SPRIGG'S PARTY IS IN REVOLT

Support of Only Ten Can now be Relied on—Falling Back on Afrikaners

In Order to Secure a Majority—Cape Parliament Meeting Under Odd Circumstances.

London, Aug. 18.—The Parliament of Cape Colony, says the Cape Town correspondent of the Times, meets on Wednesday, under peculiar circumstances. Colonial Secretary Chamberlain when refusing the suppression of the constitution, advised that Parliament be convened early for the purpose of passing indemnity acts, and the budget, which Sir John Gordon Sprigg, the premier, assured he (Sir John) could effect. As the premier cannot rely on the support of more than ten of his own followers, it seems he must depend upon the Afrikaner Bond support, which has indicated that other legislation is necessary for the welfare of the country. He apparently desires a short session. Rightly or wrongly, Sprigg is believed to be inordinately keen on retaining office. His present attitude, when nearly his whole party is in revolt and the services of the Bond have been enlisted for the purpose of securing a majority, lends color to this report.

EDITOR MARRIED

A Former Member of The Planet Staff Wedded in London—A Brief Notice.

Miss Elizabeth Wilson, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Peter Wilson, was quietly married Thursday afternoon to Mr. Horace L. Hall, city editor of the Advertiser. The ceremony was performed at the residence of the bride's parents, 320 Dundas street, by Rev. S. Salton. The bride was attired in a handsome blue cloth travelling suit, with trimmings of white satin and duchess point lace. Only the members of the family were present. After a wedding repast Mr. and Mrs. Hall left on a trip to eastern cities.—London Free Press.

Mr. Hall is a former Chathamite and is a graduate of The Planet newspaper department. His many Maple City friends will unite in good wishes and congratulations.

TAKING ACTION

Board of Health Going After the Railroad Companies on Account of Hog Pens.

The nuisance caused by the railway hog-pens was the cause of a special meeting of the Board of Health being called this morning to consider means of removing the grievance of those to whom the odors emanating from the hog-pens proved offensive. Chairman W. S. Richards and Messrs. Dr. R. V. Bray, Dr. Charteris, Chas. Hadley, Dr. Cornell and Mayor Sulman were present.

City Solicitor M. Wilson, K. C., was present and stated that both the G. T. R. and C. P. R. could be compelled to abate a nuisance, and if it was necessary for them to abate such a nuisance, then in that case the companies will have to remove their hog-pens. In order to bring the G. T. R. under the provisions of the Health by-law, it would be necessary for the city to get the consent of F. D. Chaplin to extend Raleigh St. to the property of the G. T. R. Then the Board of Health and City Council to act jointly in the matter, and that the Railway Companies should be either indicted criminally or restrained by an injunction. He advised an injunction, as then the case would be tried by the judge without jury.

Dr. Cornell said there was no doubt about the pens being a nuisance. Even driving down Grey St. the odors from the pens were offensive.

Chairman Richards said that he was sitting on the verandah at Mrs. Hey's the other evening, and had to go inside on account of the odors.

Chas. Hadley said that they had to shut down their factory one day, as on account of the odors the men could not work with the windows open, and on account of the heat they could not work with them shut.

It was moved by Mayor Sulman, seconded by Dr. Charteris, that the city solicitor be had is hereby instructed to take all such proceedings as he shall consider advisable or necessary to compel the different railroad companies to remove or stop entirely the nuisance caused in Chatham by the maintenance of their respective hog and pig yards or pens, and that the members of the Board of Health be a committee to wait upon the City Council Wednesday night to request them to take immediate action so that no delay may arise.

This motion was adopted.

LOSS OF LIFE

Yokohama, Aug. 18.—The little island of Torishima was overwhelmed by a volcanic eruption between Aug. 13 and Aug. 15, and all the inhabitants numbering 150 persons were undoubtedly killed. The island is covered with volcanic debris, and the houses on it have disappeared. The eruption is still proceeding, and is accompanied by submarine eruptions in the vicinity, which make it dangerous for vessels to approach the island. Torishima is of a chain of islands extending between the Bonin islands and Hondo, the biggest island of Japan.

SHAH VISITS KING EDWARD

Ruler of Persia the Guest of His Majesty in Old London.

He Was Resplendent in Blaze of Diamonds, and Staff Were Similarly Decorated.

London, Aug. 18.—The Shah of Persia, Muzaffar-Ed-Din, and his suite, who arrived at Dover yesterday and stopped at the Lord Warden Hotel, reached London to-day, and took up their residence at Marlborough House as the guests of King Edward. In accordance with the Persian monarch's express wish the train from Dover only travelled 20 miles an hour. His Majesty therefore had plenty of time to array himself in full state uniform, and when he left the train at Victoria Station he was resplendent in a blaze of diamonds. On his turban (cap) a huge diamond stood out like a headlight, his epaulettes were adorned with large emeralds, and his breast was covered with jewels of all kinds. The gems worn by the members of the Shah's suite were only a little less rich than those of His Majesty. The Prince of Wales, Lord Lansdowne, the Foreign Minister, Lord Roberts, the Commander-in-Chief, and the members of the Persian legation, and others met the royal traveller at the station. The Prince of Wales and the Shah shook hands, and the visitor was introduced to the prominent persons present. The Prince of Wales subsequently conducted the Persian monarch to a royal carriage, and they drove off escorted by a detachment of Life Guards, and followed by other carriages. The route to Marlborough House was lined with troops. The weather was miserable, so the sight-seers were not numerous.

WILD NIGHT

Three Men Spent it on a Gas Buoy in Lake Erie—A Perilous Adventure.

Buffalo, N. Y., Aug. 18.—Patrick Botkin, Michael Downing and William Dray were rescued to-day after clinging to a gas buoy in Lake Erie all night. They were fishing, and their boat was capsized by a wave, and they were thrown into the water, but managed to reach the buoy. "In the black of the night," said one of the men, "it seemed as though we would be swept away at any minute." As soon as dawn broke the sea died down, and Botkin swam to the buoy, which was near by. It was dragged partially on to the buoy and emptied. Botkin ran into it, and started to drift to Buffalo without oars or sails. The others hung to the buoy until rescued by a passing boat. In the meantime Botkin reached shore safely.

BIG BATTLE

Escaped Convicts Exchanged Shots With Guards at Close Range—No One Hurt.

Florence, Ala., August 18.—Deputy Sheriff T. S. White, of Waynesboro, Tenn., had a battle with five men supposed to be the Tennessee penitentiary escaped convicts, at the head of Cypress Creek, twenty miles north of Florence, late yesterday. The men were armed with 44 Colt's pistols, and dressed in blue jumpers. White saw the men pass near Waynesboro, coming south, and he followed them on horseback. Coming suddenly upon the men sitting on a lumber pile at a cabin, he opened fire with his pistol at close range. All five men returned the fire, and White jumped off his horse, using it as a protection. Two men whom White recognized as Gus Hyatt and Jno. Doe stood their ground until their pistols were emptied, and then ran down the road and joined the other three, whom White says he recognized as Fred. Seguin, Robert Bridges and James Simpson, from photographs sent out by the prison authorities. White left this morning with Sheriff Hill, and will make any other effort to capture the criminals.

WORST ENEMY OF THE BOERS

Those who Would Compel Painless Action on the Part of Great Britain.

Creation of Hostile Party in the Transvaal Depreciated—Some Good Advice for Burghers.

London, Aug. 18.—The Independence Belge, in an article quoted by the Times' correspondent in Brussels, thinks that much good will result from the visit of the ex-Boer generals to King Edward. It depreciates the idea that either the generals or Kruger favor the creation of a party in the Transvaal hostile to Great Britain, and trusts that the Boer leaders understand that their worst enemies are those who would compel Great Britain to adopt a pitiless line of action.

Owing to the death of Lucas Meyer says the correspondent, public manifestations in connection with the reception of Botha, De Wet and De la Rey in Holland, will be avoided as far as possible. The warmth of England's greeting to the generals is not unfavorably noticed by the Dutch press, which interprets their absence from the naval review as a natural mark of respect for the memory of their late colleague.

FIFTEEN YEARS

Vice-President of Wrecked Detroit Bank Sent to Jackson—Never Wined.

Detroit, Mich., Aug. 18.—Judge Murphy in the Recorder's court to-day sentenced Frank C. Andrews, who was found guilty on Saturday of having misappropriated the funds of the wrecked City Savings Bank, to fifteen years at hard labor in Jackson prison. He had previously refused to grant Andrews bail, pending the settlement of the bill of exceptions which his attorneys will file. An exception to the ruling denying bail, was taken by the defendant's attorneys, and it was announced that the case would be taken to the Supreme Court for a writ of error on this point. Andrews never wined when sentence was pronounced. He was taken back to jail immediately.

TRIO KILLED

Fatality on M. O. R. Track—Deceased Young Man Had Relatives in Chatham.

Essex, Ont., Aug. 18.—Millie and Hattie Schram, sisters, and John Brown, of Ruthven, were killed in a railway accident early this morning by a Michigan Central passenger train, west bound, at a crossing three miles east of Essex. William Wortley, another member of the unfortunate party, narrowly escaped a similar fate. The two couples were walking down the track a short time after midnight and about 150 feet apart when the accident occurred. A freight train, bound east attracted their attention and they stepped aside, but failed to notice a west-bound passenger train. Wortley was the only one in the party who noticed the oncoming passenger train, but he had not sufficient time to drag his companion out of the way. His effort to save her almost cost him his own life, as he was thrown with some violence to the ground. Almost at the same time he noticed another of the party thrown from the engine and then knew that the others had been struck. A search revealed the fact that his three friends had been killed.

John Taylor, residing near where the accident occurred, was awakened and the bodies were removed to his home. An examination disclosed the fact that one of the girls had had both limbs torn from the body, while the sister had her head smashed. Brown did not appear to have any outward marks.

Millie Schram was employed at the home of John Taylor, and her sister had gone there to visit her. Their parents reside at Ruthven, where the remains were taken for burial. Brown's home is at Maidstone. He was about 25 years old, while the other unfortunate victims were slightly younger. The coroner has called an inquest.

Brown, the deceased young man, was a nephew of Sam. James and William Horne, Delaware avenue, also a cousin of Mrs. Ralph McCubbin, and Mrs. John Kime. A number of his Chatham relatives left to-day for Essex.

BRITAIN LEADS

Washington, Aug. 18.—The State Department made public to-day a report from U. S. Consul Winter at Annaberg, dated July 19, showing the commerce of the world for 1901, according to German statistics. The total import and export trade of all countries is given as approximately $23,800,000,000. Great Britain and her Colonies head the list with the great total of nearly seven billions of dollars. Germany is placed second, with $2,518,000,000, and the United States third, with $2,118,300,000.

NEW LODGE

The institution of the new I. O. O. F. lodge in Tilbury has been postponed from August 20 to September 3, when the dedication of the new hall will also take place. The lodge will open up with between 60 and 70 members, one of the largest openings the Order has had in some years. Dedicating, instituting, degree work and installing of the officers will occupy the afternoon and evening of the third, after which a banquet will likely be given. The local lodge will be well represented.

MATTER OF FEES

"Mr. Arnold is mistaken when he says that the Crown Attorney gets fees for conducting the prosecutions in cases of cruelty to animals," said Judge Houston this morning. "The Crown Attorney has never got them yet but, if Mr. Arnold will show that official that fees are his due, no doubt Mr. Smith would be more than pleased. The late Wm. Douglas never got any fees for these cases, but he was interested enough in them to conduct the prosecutions for nothing. In the forms I have to sign before the Crown Attorney can draw fees, it says that the prisoner has been tried before me by consent. In prosecutions for cruelty to animals the defendant has no option but to be tried before me. Mr. Smith, Crown Attorney, was at Thorncliffe yesterday on business. He asked me to adjourn so as to give him a chance to attend, but I didn't think it fair to John Milner, George Jamieson and Dr. Kime, witnesses, to ask them to attend again. I didn't think the case of sufficient importance to require the adjournment. In fairness to Mr. Smith I must say that he has told me that he didn't care the slightest about the fees and he would attend whenever he was needed, fees or no fees."

"If I had held Mr. Arnold to the letter of the law, I needn't have given him the adjournment he asked for. He had had a chance to summon his witnesses and didn't do so."

TUESDAY, AUGUST 19.

JUST A SUGGESTION.

"A recent issue of The Planet said that the Queen street school property had been sold to renovate McKeeough school, but that is wrong," said Secretary T. C. Macnabb to a Banner-News representative this morning. "The property was sold for $2,000, but not to repair McKeeough school or any other school so far as that is concerned. The third story of the Central school was fitted up at a cost of $3,300 and this took the $2,000 received for the Queen street property and $1,300 besides. I think The Planet has a picture at the McKeeough school, so I wish it understood that the property was not sold to benefit the McKeeough school."—Yesterday's Banner.

Assuming that our local contemporary has managed to quote Mr. Macnabb correctly—and that gentleman has given us no notification to the contrary—there are just a couple of things to be said:

1—The Planet never said "the Queen street school property had been sold to renovate McKeeough school." The Planet never hinted, never even inferred it. On the contrary, this great home journal has quite recently—although it differed with the Board as to the advisability of the sale—taken occasion to compliment the Trustees upon the judicious manner in which they have handled the finances of the Board and the economical and progressive way they have conducted all their expenditures on the various schools.

2—Regarding the "picture at the McKeeough school" which Mr. Macnabb thinks characterizes The Planet, it is, perhaps, fortunate that no one is responsible for the gentleman's "think." But lest he might allow them to develop abnormally we must assure him that McKeeough school and all the other schools—for we don't like Mr. Macnabb's idea of being sectional and reviving old animosities—have no more loyal and ardent supporter than this great home journal. We were really under the impression that we had given some practical evidence of this support on more than one occasion.

There is but one thing more. THE PLANET HAS A KINDLY SUGGESTION TO OFFER MR. MACNABB.

Mr. Macnabb holds the Government position of License Inspector in this city.

He may not be aware of it, but the way in which he has not performed his duties in this connection for some years past has practically BECOME THE LAUGHING STOCK OF THE TOWN, and—a much more serious matter—has been the cause of many a disgraceful episode and scene.

Now, since Mr. Macnabb has undertaken to make The Planet responsible for a budget of his "think," he will scarcely take it amiss if this great home journal reciprocates with a most kindly and pertinent suggestion.

It is this:

SUPPOSE that Mr. Macnabb were to devote some of the spare time, which he apparently monopolizes in the manufacture of slanders on The Planet, to THE PROMPT, VIGOROUS AND IMPARTIAL PERFORMANCE OF HIS OWN OFFICIAL DUTIES—wouldn't it bring far more profit and pleasure to the public at large?

Wouldn't it be better for us all, Mr. Macnabb?

BRITAIN'S IRON WALLS.

The final important feature of the coronation celebration was the great naval review off Spithead, points out the Hamilton Herald. Although but a comparatively small part of the British navy participated in the event, no other country would be able to bring together on short notice, such a force of fighting ironclads as King Edward reviewed.

From sheer necessity Britain is the first naval power in the world. If she lost her naval supremacy it would not be long before she would lose her rank as one of the first class powers. Her great and scattered empire, her enormous sea-borne commerce, make it necessary for her to maintain a navy, for protective purposes, far greater than that of any other country; and it is not too much to say that the very existence of the British empire, and in a great degree of the British commerce, depends upon the British navy. This fact has been clearly recognized by British statesmen for two centuries at least—so clearly, that even the peace-at-any-price Quaker, John Bright, frankly admitted the wisdom of maintaining the navy in a high state of efficiency.

Since the Napoleonic wars the science of land warfare has made considerable progress, but small in comparison with the progress of naval warfare. Indeed, the science of naval warfare has been revolutionized during the last half century. The great change came suddenly, just after the Crimean war. During that war comparatively few of the British warships were propelled by steam, and armored vessels were almost unknown. It was the experience gained in that campaign that gave the old system of wooden ships its death-blow. "The terrible effect of shells against wooden structures," says Rear Admiral Wilmot in his history of the navy, "was realized in one quarter, at least, and from that time it was evident that fleets in future would have an entirely different character. There was no gradual evolution, but a leap from the hundred-and-twenty-gun wooden line-of-battle ship to the iron frigate carrying one-quarter the number of guns, but burdened with over a thousand tons of armor four inches thick."

Since then progress has been made chiefly along the lines of improved defence, especially in the adoption of Harveyized steel for armor plates and the use of much heavier armor, made necessary by the increase in the power of artillery.

The revolution that has taken place in naval warfare might be realized if one could place a modern battleship side by side with one of the men-of-war that Nelson brought into action when he annihilated the French and Spanish navies at Trafalgar. It has been truly said that a single battleship of any of our modern types could have destroyed with ease, and without loss to herself of a single life, the British, French and Spanish fleets that fought at Trafalgar, the greatest of modern sea fights. With her steam power she could keep out of their range, and it would only need one of her shells to sink or fire each wooden ship of the line.

When it is accepted as one of the unalterable things that four-fifths of the staff can never hope to marry, such will be a death-blow to the social supremacy of the Bank Clerk. What fond mother in our midst will ever dream of encouraging the attentions of a man who can offer Birdie nothing better than tickets for the opera, a seat in his canoe, or a box of all-day suckers. Why, the Imperial forces did better than this, because, when they were the top-sawyers in social circles, here, certain love-sick subalterns did, occasionally, call in the services of the church to put the seal on some particular flirtation. The outlook for the Bank of Montreal Clerk is a cheerful one, because he, or at least four-fifths of him will be relegated to the ranks of "the indigibles." He will, in the near future, be the "Younger Brother" of commercial life and will have to sit down on a back seat and play second violin to the hardware clerks and the other lucky dogs whose employers decline to interfere with their matrimonial aspirations. Soon, the green links will miss his golf cap and knickerbockers, in a very short time he will be conspicuous by his absence from the tennis-courts, in short, the places that once knew him will know him no more, and one day we shall read, with regret, the epic of the near future that will mainly deal with "The Passing of the Bank Clerk."

Corr. Washington Post.

The most sickening cruelties are practiced in Hayti every day. Every one in power carries a club, which is used freely on the slightest provocation. A policeman will beat a citizen into insensibility on the street, and no one dares to interfere for fear of receiving the same treatment. Officers club soldiers until they fall to the ground half dead—and if they die of their wounds no one seems to care. Exhibitions of brutality are so numerous that they pass unnoticed.

When men receive such treatment they go without saying that cruelty to animals is practiced to an extent not dreamed of in other countries.

What does it profit a woman if she gain the whole world of knowledge and lose her own health? Young women students, and school teachers, eager, ambitious, and full of energy, very often neglect their health in the struggle to gain education. They eat insufficient food, and at irregular hours, they allow irregularity of the womanly functions to be established, and the result is that they become chronic invalids with all their education practically worthless. There is a plain road back to health for such as these, marked by the feet of thousands. It is the use of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery for diseases of the stomach and digestive and nutritive organs, and Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription for diseases of the delicate organs of womanhood. A cure so certainly follows the use of these remedies that out of hundreds of thousands who have tried the treatment, ninety-eight in every hundred have been perfectly and permanently cured. Constipation, with its calamitous consequences, which is a common ailment of students, can be entirely cured by the use of Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets.

God is content to wait because He reigneth; man must be content to wait because he believeth.

Advice to Mothers

If your little boy or girl comes home with a sore throat, the first thing to do is to rub the throat and chest with Polson's Nerviline. Don't be afraid to use Nerviline freely—a whole bottle full wouldn't burn or blister the tenderest skin. Rub in until all taken up by the pores, and just before the child goes to sleep give him a glass of hot water into which 30 drops of Nerviline has previously been stirred. This is a sure, pleasant, and speedy cure. Large bottles 25 cents.

YOUNG BREAD-BAKER

Major Coogan brought to the city five o'clock yesterday afternoon the two children charged with stealing from the houses of Mr. Barnier and Herbert MacIntyre. All the parties live down the river in Dover. While their parents were in Wallaceburg on Saturday and the Barnier and MacIntyre families were in Chatham, the children, aged ten and eleven respectively, broke into the Barnier and MacIntyre houses and stole a large quantity of dishes and clothing. Major Coogan said that it was surprising the amount of stuff that had been taken by the two children. They moved it on a small express wagon they had. The little girl is eleven years old and her mother told the Major that while she was away the child had made a baking of bread ready and had it baked when her parents returned. The children pleaded guilty and were remanded for a week.

CHASED BY A TRAIN

"John M. Northwood's colored domestic had a very narrow escape from probably fatal injury or death at the Eau this morning," was the greeting addressed to a Planet reporter by the popular owner of a lodge, better known as Beverley, at Eriau. "It happened this way," continued he, "the girl was walking along side of the track with a bottle—a milk bottle—in each hand toward the station, her feet were shoeless and you could see her toes sticking out of her 'holly' stockings. There was quite a number on the platform waiting for the train to come in and the girl, not wishing to show herself too much, walked along between the track and the platform, the distance between, which is only about 18 inches, when the train came in."

"I was talking to Conductor Crounman afterwards and he said he was standing on the platform of the car and he looked at the girl but she could not hear and immediately dropped back in the doorway, expecting the next minute to hear that the girl was killed."

"How in the world that girl escaped is a mystery to me and all who saw it," concluded Archie.

A MAN AND A KNIFE

A man named Young was tried before Squire Shaw, at Thorncliffe yesterday on the charge of threatening to use a knife on a neighbor named Gilbert. Young went to the house of Gilbert and invited the latter to come out and have his heart removed. Young, while he was talking, brandished a huge knife. The man with the big knife and a desire to perform surgical operations was committed for trial.

Crown Attorney Smith prosecuted.

MR. MACNABB TAKES IT BACK

Says he was Wrong and Saddled The Planet With a Statement This Journal Never Made

Banner Also Credited him With Something he Never Said—Had no Grounds for Criticizing The Planet.

The following interview with T. C. Macnabb, secretary of the Public School Board, appeared in the columns of the Banner yesterday:

"A recent issue of The Planet said that the Queen street school property had been sold to renovate McKee school, but that is wrong," said Secretary T. C. Macnabb to a Banner-News representative this morning. "The property was sold for $2,000, but not to repair McKee school or any other school so far as that is concerned. The third story of the central school was fitted up at a cost of $3,300 and this took the $2,000 received for the Queen street property and $1,300 besides. I think The Planet has a picture at the McKee school, so I wish it understood that the property was not sold to benefit the McKee school."

A representative of The Planet waited on Mr. Macnabb this afternoon and submitted the extract to him. He was shown that The Planet had condemned an utterance by one of the aldermen recently upon the same lines as that with which he credited this journal, and that another quotation of a similar character was reproduced from the Growler in this journal, and was so credited, and asked for an explanation of his saddling The Planet with such views.

"Oh, I did not know that when I spoke to the Banner man," explained Mr. Macnabb. "I thought that The Planet had made that statement themselves, but I see now where I was wrong, and that The Planet did not deserve my criticism. I know and have known that The Planet has never objected to improvements being made on McKee school—in fact it has on different occasions advocated this. The whole matter is the result of a misunderstanding on my part."

"The Banner credits you with saying that The Planet has a 'picque' at McKee school. On what grounds was the statement made and in what way has this 'picque' been shown?" Mr. Macnabb was asked.

"Oh, well, I can't say that The Planet has a 'picque' at McKee school, and I did not say that to The Banner. In that part of the interview I was misquoted by the Banner."

PRAYER BOOK

Move For New one in Church of England Endorsed by Halifax Paper.

At the recent meeting of the English Church Synod of Huron, in London, M. Wilson, K. C., introduced a motion to the effect that a Canadian Prayer Book be printed for use throughout British North America.

The motion advocated that a prayer-book should contain conveniently arranged, all the prayers and forms of service authorized for use of church services in Canada, and should be issued with the authority of the General Synod, and used by the various congregations within its jurisdiction and that the Upper House should take some action to accomplish this. Speaking against this motion, the Halifax "Church Work," says—"Matthew Wilson, K. C., of Chatham, we were glad to note made a definite move to a definite move at the Synod of Huron in favor of a Canadian Prayer Book. This is something that will be necessary soon in coming and which will involve the overcoming of mountains of suspicion and prejudice. But it is something gained that the first step has been taken and at the suggestion of one who always commands a respectful hearing in our ecclesiastical councils. All the Synods, including Nova Scotia, appear to have passed resolutions favoring the principle of interdenominational reciprocity. This, again, however, is something whose realization cannot under any circumstances be speedy."

Where Tall Men Are Found.
The tallest men of west Europe are found in Catalonia, Spain; Normandy, France; Yorkshire, England, and the Ardennes districts of Belgium. In the United States the thirty-eighth parallel, ranging through Indiana and northern Kentucky, is as decidedly the latitude of big men as the forty-second is that of the big cities.

Medicinal Properties of Cabbage.
In olden times cabbage was supposed to be endowed with marvelous medicinal virtues. Among other things, it was considered as being the only radical cure for drunkenness. Cato, writing of the cabbage, said: "By the use of the cabbage alone Rome has done without physicians for 600 years."

Japan Tea

Are you looking for something really nice in Japan tea; if so come in and let us show you ours. It is without a doubt the Finest we have had for years. It is a first chop May picking, very handsomely made, and is equal to anything we ever drew in the cup (that is saying a whole lot). This tea we are selling at 50c a lb., and it is worth every cent of it.

Another Japan at 35c or 3 lbs. for $1, is a new May tea, very evenly made, and has great cup qualities; for a fact it is the superior quality; it has when drawn that makes our customers come back for more of that good Japan Tea, we got last time. Try it and be convinced.

Our Japan at 25c is a winner. I really think it has brought us more trade than any other article in the store.

WORLD OF SPORT

BOWLING

Secretary A. E. Jewett of the Lawn Bowling club, is drafting out the links and players for the doubles etc., for the local tournament which will take place very soon.

The scheduled bowling match between two rinks of Ridgeway players and two rinks from Chatham, which was to have been played on Tecumseh Park this afternoon, has been postponed until Friday.

FOOTBALL

Sam Courtney, the veteran full back of the champion Chatham Penitentiary league team, says that the football team will show up one of these days and will clean up everything. "Of course," said Sam, "there will be new blood in it, and that is just what we want. This will be my last season and I hope to make it my best, but the matter should be taken in hand immediately."

CRICKET

Secretary John Reeve, of the Crick Club, received a telegram from the management of the St. Louis club, which was to have played here to-day, to the effect that the club was going home and could not fill their date here.

In the game between Orliss and the Gordon-McKay team, Aitken (for the Gordon-McKay) was out in the first innings for no runs, but had 14 not out to his credit in the second.

LACROSSE

Wallaceburg may play here Friday. The Thamesville Junior Lacrosse club for unknown reasons did not show up to play the local juniors yesterday and the game has been postponed indefinitely.

The committee of the lacrosse club will meet to-night to make arrangements for the excursion to Cleveland to play Blenheim. Blenheim will be represented at the meeting, which will be held in the Merrill house parlors.

BASEBALL

The Cincinnati papers are conceding Sam Crawford to Detroit for next season.—Detroit Tribune.

Next Thursday Austin will take his team to do battle with Tilbury's strong aggregation of ball-players.

Jack Austin, manager of the Aberdeen baseball club, is a hustler without a doubt. He returned yesterday from London, where he arranged a game with the Maple Leaves, a fast team of that town, for here on the first of September, Labor Day. The game will come off in the afternoon at 2 o'clock.

The grocers and firemen have been indulging in a little practice for the past few days, and their game on the park to-morrow afternoon at four o'clock will be one of the hardest battles yet seen on the local diamond. The firemen, while practicing last evening, showed their ability at the bat, while the prowess of the Chief is well known.

Yellowstone National Park

This famous national park offers to the tourist and sightseer more novelties and curiosities than perhaps any other spot on earth. The stage ride from Monida is through scenery hardly inferior to the park itself, and this ride is one of the very many enjoyments of the trip.

The new route to the Yellowstone is via the Union Pacific and Oregon Short Line Railroads to Monida, Montana, thence daily by palatial Gemcoaches of the Monida & Yellowstone Stage Company to all points in the Yellowstone National Park.

Our Recipe

For preparing "Kent Baked Beans for the table is as follows:

"Empty the contents of the can into a bake dish, putting the piece of pork on top of the beans, and adding a little water if thought necessary. Put the dish into a rather warm oven for 15 or 20 minutes, and serve in the sauce dish."

In this way the beans come on the table whole, and with the delicious brown color and flavor that distinguish the "Home-made" Boston Baked Beans.

ROYAL MUSKOKA NOW OPEN

Guests Are Arriving Daily at the New Summer resort.

The opening of the new Royal Muskoka Hotel on Lake Rosseau, Muskoka Lakes district, for the season of 1922, has been a source of satisfaction to the proprietors, and the resort, which has been made up to the present for accommodation at this resort assures the success of the venture. Guests are arriving daily, and by next week, hundreds of people will be enjoying the beauties of Muskoka with the advantage of sojourning in one of the best summer hotels in America.

Among the guests at the hotel now are prominent people from Buffalo, Chicago, New York, and other American cities, as well as many Canadians. The Ontario Government, in conjunction with the Grand Trunk Railway system, is continuing the policy inaugurated last year of restocking the Muskoka lakes with parent bass. The first carload was deposited in lake Rosseau, June 29, and a finer lot of bass have seldom been seen. Last year 10,000 fish were transplanted into the Northern Lakes with much success. The fishing this year in the Muskoka Lakes is good, some excellent catches having been made, the bass weighing from two to four pounds, and pickerel from two to eight pounds.

The deceased lady was married to William Lane, in England, and came to Canada about 1847, and with her husband and three sons, William, George and Richard, resided for many years in Harwich. Some years after the death of her first husband she married David Hirst, and had one son, David Hirst, Jr., who resided with her up to the time of her death. Mrs. Hirst was a member of the Episcopal church and for many years took a deep interest in the welfare of the congregation in the township. The funeral will take place on Thursday at 2 o'clock to Maple Leaf Cemetery.

A Scientific Voice Improver

Because of its strengthening influence upon the vocal chords, Catarrhozone cannot be too highly recommended as a wonderful voice improver. It almost instantly removes huskiness or hoarseness, thus insuring clearness and brilliancy of tone. Catarrhozone keeps the mucous surfaces in perfect condition, and its regular use absolutely prevents colds and throat irritation, thereby removing the singer's greatest source of anxiety, unfitness of voice. The most eminent specialists and Prima Dones would not be without Catarrhozone, and credit in no small degree their uniform strength and brilliancy of tone to its influence. The hard rubber inhaler fits snugly and comfortably into a vest pocket, and may be used in the church, theatre, any place or time. Complete outfit $1. Small size 50c. LIKES THE SOO

John Milton Pike, of the firm of Wilson, Pike & Gundy, was much taken with the Soo as a business place. He saw a good deal of the place when he was there. The day Mr. Pike arrived at the Canadian Soo, the first rails on the street railway were laid. At present the people have to walk every place. There are about 1,400 people living at the American Soo and 13,000 at the Canadian Soo. The Canal on the Canadian side has developed 20,000 horse-power. This power is used to furnish electricity for the steel mill, where everything is done by electricity. Mr. Pike thinks that the Canadian Soo has the advantage over its Yankee twin both in situation and in the future. He thinks that the 60,000 horse-power canal on the south side of the river is merely a sop to the American shareholders. The canal on the North shore is in use, but only 10,000 of the 30,000 horse-power is being used. There were 787 steel rails made at the steel plant the day Mr. Pike visited the plant. Mr. Pike travelled on the Huron, of the Grey line. She is a fine modern steamer, in construction and equipment equal to the Northland. She has the merit, however, of being a Canadian boat.

HEALTH RESORTS AND ATTRACTIONS

There is no region in America richer in natural springs than Colorado, while throughout the state there are pleasure resorts and splendid places of attraction of various kinds in great numbers. It has been truly said that all of Colorado is a health resort, and this statement is sustained by the most eminent physicians of the country. What with its beautiful cities on the plains, its gorgeous mountain peaks, its lovely valleys, its awful canyons and their rushing torrents, its forests and streams, its broad green parks, and charming crystal lakes amid the mountains, what more could nature provide or man desire for his welfare or his delights. Not only the health-giving mineral and thermal springs, which gush spontaneously from the mountain sides invite the invalid and the weary, but in all the rest of these charms of nature is found a panacea for the ill and cares of body and mind diseased.

To enable persons to reach these favored localities without unnecessary expenditure of time or money, the Union Pacific has put in effect very low rates and splendid train service, three trains leaving Missouri River daily for Denver, one of which is "The Colorado Special," which is the finest train in the West. Accommodations are provided for all classes of passengers, the equipment including free reclining chair, card-playing table, buffet, smoking cars, drawing room sleepers and day coaches.

Advice to Mothers

If your little boy or girl comes home with a sore throat, the first thing to do is to rub the throat and chest with Polson's Nerve-line. Don't be afraid to use Nerve-line freely—a whole bottle full wouldn't burn or blister the tenderest skin. Rub in until all taken up by the pores, and just before the child goes to sleep give him a glass of hot water into which 30 drops of Nerve-line has previously been stirred. This is a sure, pleasant and speedy cure. Large bottles 25 cents.

If fortune has played thee false to-day, do thou play true to thyself to-morrow.

A GIRL OF THE PEOPLE

By Mrs. C. N. Williamson

Sintra Leigh had on her arm the heart-shaped scar, which seemed to me to be the secret incarnate. Here she was, in the house where her portrait as a young girl had been preserved for so many years. But where was the original of the third portrait? Could it be that he was also under this roof? Was it his voice that had cried the name of Erinnyrude in the night, before he had again been hurried away into obscurity?

If it were true that such a man was voluntarily or involuntarily a guest in the house which had once been Sir Vincent Cope's, apparently his presence was to be kept a secret from me. Sintra Leigh had, I was certain, lied when I questioned her concerning the strange sounds in the night. Therefore something was to be hidden from me, and it was natural to suppose that the something had to do with the secret. Roger knew the secret, and did not wish me to know it; and for this reason, as much as any other, it seemed worth while to make some sacrifices and run some risks, for the sake of even one chance out of a hundred that I might stumble upon it.

Sintra Leigh and I had a large, pleasant dining-room to ourselves, save for the old butler, who had admitted us to the house last night. Once I ventured to ask whether she had known this place for long, but she evaded the question, and I did not think it prudent to raise suspicion by pressing her. When we had finished and left the dining-room, I heard the door being softly locked after us on the inside. Instantly I guessed that the butler had been instructed to do this, for the windows opened out to the lawn, and it would be easy enough for anyone who wished to walk out of the house.

The stealthy sound reminded me of the test I had intended to apply, and I asked Sintra Leigh if she would take me through some of the principal rooms. "If I decide to marry Sir Roger Cope," I remarked, rather flippantly, "this will be my house, as you ingressed upon me last night; and naturally I should like to know something of the bargain I may be making."

"You shall see the whole house if you wish," said the woman in black. We were in the great hall with the ugly pillars when I made the request, and Sintra Leigh rang a bell which presently brought the butler.

"The keys of the rooms on this floor," she said; whereupon a bunch of large, old-fashioned keys was produced from a pocket and respectfully handed to her. "This is the way, then, of unobtrusively making me a prisoner," I thought; but I made no comment aloud, and only requested, with due meekness, that I might see the rooms on higher floors as well. Miss Leigh announced that the other keys which might be needed were in her own possession; and forthwith we began an inspection of the rooms on the ground floor. "The house is so large and there are so few persons in it at present," my companion deigned to explain, "that Sir Roger considers it more prudent to keep the unused rooms locked, except when they are wanted."

Still I made no comment, but I thought that I understood.

We visited a number of handsome rooms, all furnished in the style of long ago, and I simulated more interest than I really felt. The place had, it is true, a certain charm of association for me because it had been Sir Vincent Cope's; and as my adopted mother had been a cousin of the man she married, I doubted not that she had been in this house, though Arrish Mall Court had remained her home.

At last we went upstairs, each door having been locked as we left the room to which it belonged; and here my interest quickened, as in a childish game of hide and seek, when the players cry "warm" or "cold" to each other. If there were in the house a man whose presence was to be concealed, it was probable that his rooms were on one of the upper floors, and each closed door that we reached might be hiding a mystery.

On the first floor some doors were locked, others stood open, as I had noticed last night on my arrival. But I soon satisfied myself that the rooms which were not secured against intrusion offered no facilities for escape, even to a courageous and determined person. Their windows without exception looked out upon a courtyard, from which evidently there was no means of egress, save by returning through the house. As for my own room, anyone attempting to escape by the window would have to descend into a moat, which was half full of water, carpeted with the flat green leaves and waxen buds of lilies.

My search for exploration apparently knew no bounds, for I did not pass a single door without begging to see what was on the other side; and, with a weary air of resignation, the woman in black each time granted my request. After I had seen everything on the first floor, I asked to visit the second. Sintra Leigh offered no objection, save a sigh; and again the exploration was exhaustive.

"Now there are only the third floor and the two towers left," I remarked at last.

"I hardly think that the third floor will interest you," said my companion. "The servants sleep there. And as for the towers, they have been used for a long time as places to store all sort of rubbish which will accumulate in old houses as generation after generation passes."

"Nevertheless, if there's a chance of my being mistress here, everything should be of interest to me," I returned; and with another sigh Miss Leigh preceded me upstairs. She threw open door after door, and as she had prophesied, the tour of inspection became more than ever dull. I glanced into the servants' rooms, not because I wished in the least to see them, but because I wanted to be sure that they really were what they purported to be. The part of the house occupied by the servants was in a separate wing, but the remaining portion of the third floor was not much superior in its attractions, at all events to my preoccupied mind. At last, however, the woman in black attempted rather hastily to pass a door without opening

"What room is that?" I promptly demanded.

"I believe that Sir Roger Cope gave the late tenants the privilege of leaving a few things in the house for a time, until it should be more convenient to remove them," she explained, with an air of complete indifference. "They are kept in that room, and Sir Roger has the key. Now, if you like, we will go on to the towers. There is rather a good view from the windows, but I warn you that there is nothing else you will care for."

As she spoke she walked away from the door of which Sir Roger was supposed to have the key, and I did not attempt to detain her. I thought that at last I had found out what I wanted to know; for I did not believe that the room behind the locked door was sacred to the belongings of departed tenants. I said to myself that there, if anywhere, lurked the Secret.

We visited the towers, which gave a fine view of the County of Dorsetshire towards Bournemouth, with a far-distant glimpse of the sea; and then Sintra Leigh reminded me that, unless I wished to visit the kitchen and servants' hall, I had done all that there was to do. I did not wish to see the domain she mentioned, and consented to go down with her to the drawing-room for tea.

I was glad that the hours were passing, for I knew that I must wait for night before attempting that which it was in my mind to do.

I asked if it would be convenient to have dinner at seven, as I was very tired, and would be glad to go to bed early, by way of making up for lack of sleep the night before. This was easy to arrange, Sintra Leigh responded; and in consequence of my request we dined at the hour I had named. Afterwards we had coffee in the room where Roger and I had talked in the morning, as (the woman in black explained) it was more cheerful in the evening than the huge drawing-room.

During the scene with Roger my nerves had been keyed high with excitement; my eyes had fallen on the three portraits by the curtained door through which he had entered, and after that I had observed few details. But now that Sintra Leigh and I sat together at leisure, I saw something which I had not seen before—something that roused my interest and curiosity to the highest pitch.

CHAPTER XXIII.

The Room With the Locked Door.

In a corner of the room was a screen, quaintly painted in imitation of Watteau; and from behind the screen was visible an old-fashioned escritoire. From where I sat I could only see it in part, but the design was familiar to me, and I was sure, now I came to see it, that it was either the escritoire which had stood in the octagon room at Arrish Mall, or else one exactly like it. I wondered very much whether Roger (who owned the escritoire in common with everything else that had been Lady Cope's) had really attached enough value to the old piece of furniture to transplant it here, and, if so, what had been the underlying motive.

I said nothing of all that was in my thoughts to Sintra Leigh, however; and as a French clock on the mantel softly chimed the half-hour after nine, I rose, announcing that I would like to go to bed.

My companion received the proposal with unconcealed relief; and indeed, for the past hour, since we had left the dining-table, our conversation had been the reverse of lively.

I have used Strong's Pilekone in my practice, as well as in my own case, and can justly certify that it is an excellent remedy for the purpose for which it is intended. J. B. CAMPBELL, M. D., Coroner, London, Ont.

CASTORIA

For Infants and Children.

The Fac-Simile Signature of Wm. Wood is on every wrapper.

She went with me as far as the door of my bedroom, pointing out her own door further down the hall. "I showed you which was my room during your tour of inspection this afternoon," she said, "but I will remind you now, in case you should need anything in the night. Not that you are likely to lie awake, I trust. Compose your mind with the resolve to do as your best friend, Roger Cope, desires, and you will sleep peacefully enough."

"This is certainly not a bad place to be mistress of," I answered, diplomatically.

A moment more and I was alone. Still, there was nothing to do save to wait until the house should be quiet for the night. As to what should happen after that, my ideas were vague, but all my thoughts turned toward the Secret.

There was no clock in the room, but I had wound and set the watch which had come back from the pawnbroker's, and when I told half-past ten I looked out into the corridor. It was still lighted, but very dimly. The gas had been lowered since I came to my bedroom, and a faint yellow star, shining through the glass globe, redeemed the passage from darkness.

For a few moments I listened, but there was not a sound to be heard. Evidently the house had gone to sleep for the night, and if I could hope to do anything, I might as well make the attempt now as later.

I took a candle in a tall silver stick from my mantel, and a box of matches, but I did not mean to light the candle unless it were needed. Without a light, I might hide in the shadows, in case of a sudden alarm, while yet if I should at once become a conspicuous figure for prying eyes.

I walked along the corridor until I reached the stairs, and then I cautiously ascended the two flights which lay between my floor and the third story. Now and again a board squeaked under my slipped foot, and I stopped, with a beating heart, peering fearfully into the darkness. But the noise had only seemed loud in my own fears; no one else had heard, and no door opened to frame a peeping face.

At last I reached the third floor, which was also the highest. Here also there was a faint light, and I could see in the distance the door of which Roger Cope was said to keep the key. So far, everything had been easy—far easier than I dared to hope it would be in the end. I decided that I would go to the door and knock very softly. If I was answered by a voice from the other side, I should feel that my theory regarding last night was correct.

Suddenly, as I tiptoed towards the door, it seemed to me that I heard someone speak. My heart gave a great bound, and, almost involuntarily, I shrank into the thick shadow of a great old-fashioned clothes-press which stood halfway down the hall. Hardly had I crouched in the corner when the door towards which I had been bound opened. A bright light shone out from inside, silhouetting the tall black figure of Sintra Leigh against a yellow background.

Japan's Mountains.

All the mountains of Japan are of unquestioned volcanic origin, and Fuji stands where Honso, the main island, is broadest. About twenty craters are still active throughout the islands, but Fuji-san belongs to the much greater number which are now inactive. Its last eruption occurred in 1707, continuing more than a month. As far away as Tokyo, sixty miles northeast, the ashes fell to a depth of seven or eight inches, while on the Tokaido, twelve or fifteen miles southeast, the accumulation was six feet. At this time was formed Ho-yel-san, a secondary, or parasitic, cone on the southeast slope.

No other mountains in Japan reach within 3,000 feet of the elevation of Fuji, and it is therefore in prominent view from an immense area, including thirteen provinces of the empire. Certain avenues in Tokyo are called Fuji-mi, or Fuji viewing streets, and from all of them the famous peak is a glorious spectacle. All winter long the summit of Fuji-san is unapproachable, and from November to July snows reign supreme. In the latter month, however, when the trails up the mountain slopes are laid bare, the ascent becomes feasible and remains so throughout the summer and early autumn.

There Is No Mikado.

Mr. W. S. Gilbert was no doubt primarily responsible for the belief which is everywhere prevalent that the emperor of Japan is always called the mikado by his people. Ask nine men out of ten what is the official title of the ruler of the islands of the chrysanthemum and they will probably think they are being made fun of. Assure them that the question is asked in all sober seriousness, and they will give that of the title of Mr. Gilbert's imperial opera. For all this, the nine men out of ten would be wrong. His majesty is known as "tenno hei-ka," which means "his imperial majesty." Thus the people of Japan address their sovereign exactly as do the subjects of the imperial kaiser. Mikado used at one time to be the title, for it is the oldest form of address in use. It has, however, fallen into abeyance for several generations.

Grindstones.

The production of grindstones in the United States is almost entirely from Ohio and Michigan. The principal grindstone district in Ohio is included in Lorain, Cuyahoga and Summit counties, with Cleveland as a center, the largest grindstone quarries and manufacturing plants being within twenty-five miles of Cleveland. The quarries in southern Ohio are along the Ohio river west of Marietta and inland northwest of that city. A few quarries are in West Virginia across the river from Marietta. The Michigan quarries are on the shores of Lake Huron, about ninety miles north of Port Huron, near Grindstone City. In South Dakota are located the quarries of the Edgemont Stone company.

"FORCE" FOOD CO.,
Buffalo, N. Y.

Gentlemen,—I took home a package of "FORCE" yesterday and the children were anxious to try it for supper. We found it suited our palates and our little two-year-old girl cried for the second dish. The first thing this morning on reaching the breakfast table, she, in her baby English, made us understand that she wanted "FORCE" for her breakfast. We are all in love with it, but I am fearful you have got me into a "peck of trouble," as the children want "FORCE" for dinner and supper as well as breakfast.

Yours very truly,

ENGLISHMAN AND TURK.

How the Former Obtained Some Cash Owed by the Latter.

An Englishman has just had a very curious experience, says the London Telegraph. He had lent a Turk some money, but the man was unable to pay and on his deathbed laid a particular charge on his wife and children to meet the debt. The eldest son was making arrangements accordingly, but also died, and he, too, begged his family to pay the money as soon as they could.

One day the Englishman received a visit from a member of the family, who said that there were now four members of it left, and they were ready to pay, but one of the daughters refused to subscribe her share, declaring that the money was never really lent. The others, however, wished to settle the matter, and if the Englishman would come to the house it would be arranged. "But," the Turk added, "if you see there is any difficulty just say that you leave it to be settled in the next world."

Accordingly the Englishman went to the house at the appointed time and met the family in the presence of a mollah, the ladies being behind a screen. The mollah began by asking if he had truly lent the money, how much it was and if he would take any less. One of the women behind kept saying it was all a fraud. The Englishman then declared that he had lent the money, that he had not asked for it, that they had told him to come and get it and if they did not want to pay it he would leave the matter to be settled in the next world.

There was dead silence for a few moments, and then the women called their brother, and each paid her share without a word. It seems the prospect of meeting the father in the other world without having carried out his wishes was too serious a thing to face.

THE COOKBOOK.

In baking bread it is better to overdo rather than underdo the work.

To make a good digestible pie crust use cream instead of lard, and it will be light and healthful.

If there is not butter enough to fill the greasy pan, put cold water in the empty space before setting the pan in the oven.

The rich cheeses, which have the largest percentage of fat, are those which blend well with bread in sandwiches or with macaroni or rice.

For a quick cake beat until thick four eggs. Add four tablespoonsful of sugar, half a cup of flour, a little cinnamon and lemon rind. Beat well and spread on a baking pan. Bake in quick oven and cut at once.

Sweet potatoes are much richer twice cooked. Baked or boiled merely, this vegetable is good, but when the baking or boiling is followed by a subsequent cooking in the pan or in the oven they are far better.

A fine cheese pudding is made by grating five ounces of bread and three of cheese. Warm two ounces of butter in a quarter of a pint of fresh milk and mix thoroughly. Add two well beaten eggs, salt and bake half an hour.

Death in Their Work.

Gilders, photographers and those who handle the hydric and potassic cyanides are liable to suffer from chronic poisoning by hydrocyanic acid. They have headache, giddiness, noises in the ear, difficult respiration, pain over the heart, loss of appetite—in short, show all the evidences of mild poisoning. Zinc workers, too, suffer. Zinc is used as a pigment in calico printing, in coloring glass, in polishing optical glasses and in making artificial mercurium pipes.

So men die in harness in these and a hundred other occupations, killed by the very air they breathe, and other men step into their shoes.

The European Plan.

Some queer customers are seen at New York hotels. An old farmer from the country tells how he got ahead of one of the clerks. "I walked in," he says, "asked the young man at the desk, 'What are your prices?' 'American or European?' he asked me. Now I wasn't going to tell where I was from until I had seen the lay of the land. 'What difference does that make?' says I. 'If American,' he answered, 'it's $4 per day; if European, $1.50.' I thought a moment, and then an idea struck me how to get ahead of him. I walked up boldly, and registered from London."

The Standing Army.

Old Lady—Poor fellow! And so you are a soldier?

Corporal Cannon—Yes, ma'am.

Old Lady—I'm awfully sorry for you. My, my, to think they never allow you to sit down!

Corporal Cannon—Ma'am?

Old Lady—I said I was sorry for you, and it is heartless and cruel for the government to keep a standing army all the time.

Corporal Cannon—Ma'am? Oh yes, ma'am, thank you.

Discovery of Iron.

Teacher—Johnny, can you tell me how iron was first discovered?

Johnny—Yes, sir.

"Well, just tell the class what your information is on that point."

"I heard pa say yesterday that they smelt it."

Oh, So Polite!

"Politest people I ever knew down in that fever and ague country," remarked the traveler. "In other places they shake hands when they greet you, but down there they shake all over you."—Chicago Post.

THE GREAT HEALTH AND STRENGTH GIVER.

No Other Medicine Can Afford to Guarantee Such Happy Results.

Men and women young and old, of every rank in life, freely admit that they are more conscious of overtaken nervous strength in the hot weather than any other season.

When such a condition is experienced, Paine's Celery Compound affords advantages and results that no other remedy can offer with honesty. It vigorously cleanses the blood and regulates the tardy circulation. It strengthens and encourages the kidneys and enables them to filter from the blood all waste and morbid matters; it secures strong, firm nerves, gives sweet and natural sleep to the nerve-tired and brain-weary. In a word, Paine's Celery Compound is a true summer life-giver and health-builder. Mr. J. Ralston, of Nixon, Ont., says:—

"It is now a year past since I had a severe attack of nervous prostration caused by chronic dyspepsia, and I could not sleep at night. This condition of sleeplessness brought on delirium. I was attended by four of the best doctors, and took a great quantity of medicine, but all failed to do me any good. I thought I would try your Paine's Celery Compound. After I had used four bottles the nervousness and dyspepsia left me, and I have done more work since than for years past. I now enjoy excellent health and consider myself completely cured." Has fate denied?

Happily Not So Sure of It.
Raynor—This fortune telling business is all humbug. One of these professors of palmistry told me a little while ago to look out for a short, blond man.

Shyne—I don't know about it's being all humbug. I'm blond and I'm short. Lend me a ten, old fellow, will you?

FASHIONABLE GOWNS.

Many Are Made of Fillet Lace—Boleros Still Popular.

Fillet lace is much used for summer gowns. It is frequently trimmed with bands of pongee or silk. The foundation of this lace is a square meshed lace on which a pattern is worked in darned fashion. It has rather the effect of an old sampler. Gold or silver tinsel on black or brown is exquisite with a touch of color.

The bolero, like the blouse, has apparently come to stay. Chiffon and mouseline are appliqued with heavy textures or bits of silk, and the bolero in this fashion is fitted loosely and fastened with bows of colored velvet set on in the front.

So far there is little change in the fashion of skirts, but short ones are in the minority and are rarely seen except for athletic sports.

A costume of gray veiling is shown in the cut. Both waist and skirt are laid in wide bias tucks. The skirt has three tucked ruffles. The waist is collarless and is trimmed with a yoke and undersleeves of white chiffon. Bands of white silk applique also aid in trimming the waist and skirt.

JUDIC CHOLLET.

FANCY COLLARS AND TIES.

Silk Mull Pichus, Wash Collars and Stocks.

Bertha collars of embroidered batiste appear on many of the new gowns. Another fashionable mode for linen dresses shows a short, oddly shaped bolero with stole ends of lace and edged around the sides with narrow bands of stitched linen. The bolero is worn over a tucked blouse of embroidered batiste.

Pretty little silk mull fichus are edged with flower passementerie.

OF OLD ROSE LINES.

Thin white wash goods and net make equally effective fichus. A flower bordered fichu is as dainty a piece of apparel as one could wish for.

In the wash ties and neckbands fashion still clings to the pique stocks of white, with narrow colored ties. The knot seems to be superseding the bow, and many of the new stocks have the ties simply crossed over and fastened with a fancy pin.

Many collars are made of insertion and featherstitching. They fasten in the back and taper down into points in the front.

The picture shows a gown of old style collar cut in points and edged with square lace applique. The skirt is also tucked and has a wide gored ruffle.

JUDIC CHOLLET.

Thomas B. Reed on Fame.

Here is a definition of fame given by ex-Speaker Reed at the Bowdoin college commencement dinner: "Fame is largely a matter of accident. Being in the right place at the right time and doing the right thing, or better still, making people think you are doing the right thing, is about all there is to fame." This definition, given much in effectiveness when "fame" is pronounced with the ex-speaker's well known drawl.

Nature Has Hired Man.

It was in the far south.

"How's times?" asked the tourist.

"Pretty tolerable, stranger," responded the old man who was sitting on a stump. "I had some trees to cut down, but the cyclone leveled them and saved me the trouble."

"That was good."

"Yes, and then the lightning set fire to the brush pile and saved me the trouble of burning it."

"Remarkable! But what are you doing now?"

"Waiting for an earthquake to come along and shake the potatoes out of the ground."

Darned Stockings.

Tender feet are often made so by the use of much darned stockings. Wear light woolen stockings, and let them be of the cheap kind, that you will not mind discarding directly they become worn. To harden the skin it is a good plan to rub the soles of the feet with methylated spirits every day or to wash them over with salt water.

Wonders of Our Language.

The construction of the English language must appear most formidable to a foreigner. One of them looking at a picture of a number of vessels, said: "See what a flock of ships." He was told that a flock of ships was called a fleet, and a fleet of sheep was called a flock. And it was added, for his guidance in mastering our language, that a flock of girls is called a bevy, and a bevy of wolves is called a pack, and a pack of thieves is called a gang, and a gang of angels is called a host, and a host of porpoises is called a shoal, and a shoal of buffaloes is called a herd, and a herd of children is called a troop, and a troop of partridges is called a covey, and a covey of beauties is called a galaxy, and a galaxy of ruffians is called a horde, and a horde of rubbish is called a heap, and a heap of oxen is called a drove, and a drove of rowdies is called a mob, and a mob of whales is called a school, and a school of worshippers is called a congregation, and a congregation of engineers is called a corps, and a corps of robbers is called a band, and a band of locusts is called a swarm, and a swarm of people is called a crowd.

BRILLIANT SUCCESS AT "THE PINES"

The results of the recent Departmental Examinations demonstrate most fully the excellent character of the instruction given by the ladies of the Ursuline Academy, Chatham.

These ladies conduct the following schools: the Ursuline Academy, Chatham; St. Joseph Separate School, Chatham; Tecumseh Separate School and Tilbury Separate School. At the High School Entrance 7 wrote from the Academy and all were successful, 30 from St. Joseph, 19 successful; 4 from Tecumseh, all successful; 2 from Tilbury, both successful, or a total of 32 successful out of 34, being 97 per cent.

At the Academy 12 wrote Part I. Junior Leaving or Part I. Junior Matriculation, and eleven succeeded. Eight wrote Part II. Junior Leaving and seven succeeded, one obtaining honors, or a total of 95 per cent. successful.

In the examinations conducted by the Toronto Conservatory of Music the success of the ladies trained at the Academy could not have been more brilliant. Of the ten who tried the practical examination, "Piano," all passed, two receiving first class honors and eight honors. Of the seven taking the theoretical examination all were successful, four taking honors. The papers were set by the Toronto Conservatory of Music, of which the Academy is now a local centre; and the practical examinations were conducted by Prof. J. D. A. Tripp, of the Conservatory.

These results speak most forcibly of the thorough and practical character of the education given by the Ursuline ladies. It is an honor to the city of Chatham to have within its bounds an institution so capably conducted.

BRITISH SHIPPING.

Comparative Statement of Trade With Foreign and Colonial Ports.

The Liverpool Steamship Owners' Association have just prepared a very interesting series of tabular comparative statements with respect to the carrying trade of the United Kingdom during the ten years 1891-1900, showing the part of that trade carried in British and foreign vessels, distinguishing the trade with foreign countries and that with British possessions, and also distinguishing vessels with cargo and those in ballast. The figures have been obtained from the "Annual Statements of the Navigation and Shipping of the United Kingdom." The tonnage of vessels with cargoes trading to foreign countries in 1891 comprised 36,428,937 British and 15,816,415 foreign, while in 1900 the figures were 42,780,284 tons British and 26,566,403 tons foreign. The annual average for the ten years was 40,860,575 tons British and 18,887,284 tons foreign. The percentage of British decreased from 69½ to 61½, while that of foreign increased from 30½ to 38½, the annual average percentages for the whole decade being respectively 68 and 32. The vessels traded from the United Kingdom to British possessions with cargo were 9,105,416 tons in 1891 and 9,551,871 tons in 1900, while foreign ships were of 963,456 tons in the former year and 969,586 tons in the latter. The annual average percentage of British increased in the ten years from 90½ to 91½, while that of foreign decreased from 9½ to 8½.—The London Times.

The Use and Purpose of Blots.

Mr. Mortimer Menpes, in his volume of "War Impressions," published last year, relates the following story to show the extreme impetuosity of the late Cecil Rhodes:

"One day, while he and Mr. Kipling were looking over the farms, they came across a most exquisite view, one of the most wonderful on the estate, a scene that suggested Turner in its broad expanses. Just in front of this beautiful piece of nature, blocking out a portion of it, stood three apple trees, which, from Mr. Rhodes' point of view, harmed the picture. In a moment he wanted to sweep them away. He pulled and tore at them with his own hands, and then screamed out for a chopper. His manager ran to the nearest little cottage, but found the door locked, and came back and told Mr. Rhodes that there was no chance of getting implements to cut down the trees. Mr. Rhodes, determined not to be baffled, swept him aside, flew to the cottage, and hammered and kicked at the door; then screamed for a crow bar to force it open. So eager was he to exterminate the apple trees, in the end, through sheer force, he broke open the door, fetched an old rusty chopper, and with his own hands, cut them down. Mr. Kipling all this time was sitting quietly on a boulder watching the performance, and when Mr. Rhodes, tired out with his exertions, sank down on the bank and expressed his complete satisfaction by saying, 'Now we can see this beautiful view, we can get quietly along to a little soiled piece of rag that was lying on the ground, and tied it on to a branch of one of the fallen trees. Then as quietly he crept back to his seat on the boulder, and murmured to himself excitedly what Rhodes had said a minute ago. 'Now I can see this beautiful view.' Mr. Rhodes turned round, looked at him with a blank expression, and asked him what he was talking about. Mr. Kipling simply pointed to the rag dangling from the end of a bough, and said, 'That soiled rag you see is a blot on the landscape. Without it the scene would be too perfect, and I couldn't have enjoyed it. In life we must always have a blot—and that is my blot.' The idea of having 'blots' to distract one's attention from a beautiful picture seemed to grip Mr. Kipling, for when he got back to the farm where they were all staying, he suggested that a vicious red plush curtain with gold tassels should be hung in the opening leading from the Dutch kitchen to the hall, to be a blot, giving value to this beautiful Dutch interior. But the manager said he preferred to live without the blot."

Cats Like It.

Our English mammals are nearly all capable of sheltering themselves from rain, but of them being burrowing creatures, and others, like the squirrels and dormice, able to take shelter in hollow trees. Cats positively enjoy a wet June on account of the number of drooping and helpless sparrows they can catch. Even a London cat will catch three or four benumbed young sparrows in a day. Leverets, unfortunately, suffer a good deal, and though rabbits have shelter available, the wet grass disagrees with them. Lambs are too forward for such late rains to affect them, and even when quite young seem almost waterproof. We doubt if rain ever penetrates to the skin of a sheep, so full of oil and grease is the wool. Even cattle have a quantity of oil and lubricant on their comparatively short hair, and on their skin. It is said that oxen's harness never gets rusty. Horses, on the other hand, are miserable in continued wet.—London Spectator.

Always Amenable to Discipline.

Lord Kitchener received a part of his education at a school about four miles from Montreal, not far from the point where the Rhine enters the Lake of Geneva. Great Clow, as the school was called, numbered some thirteen boys, and the head master was a clergyman of the name of Bennett. A former master of the school describes Kitchener at the age of fifteen: "He was of medium height, broad chested, a very model of strength, but not passionately addicted to sports. Solitary in his habits, not chumming especially with any of his schoolfellows, he worked quietly and steadily, and proved always amenable to discipline."

The Letter-Box

THE "KOP" TOP MYSTERY.

The Editor of The Planet:

Notwithstanding the hints that the grass freely prints: Spite of blue book, on dit, and suggestion: Still from experts in vain we attempt to obtain: A reply to the Spion Kop question. Ink by quarts has been shed, old reports have been spread, and expanded: But still there's a doubt which has not been threshed out, As to who on that hill-top commanded?

The "Bullerites" swear with a blust-erous air, Which to English traditions seems foreign: That if any one man can be blamed for the plan Which resulted in failure—'tis War-ren! Whilst the "Warrenites" vow, all fair folk must allow That there could not be evidence fuller Than that which connects the fiasco's effects With the too-tardy tactics of Bul-ler! Some time discern through the smoke of the fray General Coke, Limping up with not very good gait, Whilst others suggested that, when blame is assessed, Just a little should fall on Wood-gate. There are sharp critics, too, who in-culcate the view (One that time has not tended to soften) That Thorneycroft's fame hasn't been quite the same Since he took the command Vice Crofton.

So no wonder each day we praise with dismay, In the papers yet more revelations, As denounces attack and defenders hit back, And new charges bring new vindications: Till the public, amazed and perplexed, and half dazed, In the role of distracted beholders, Are in such sorry case that they can't even place The just blame on the right pair of shoulders? But no mother! If wise they'll conceal their surprise, And refrain from mere vague accusation: For we've news to impart—let the public take heart! We can give the desired information. In command on the top of that ill-omened kop, Where our soldiers like sheep had to huddle, Was a general whose name England knows to her shame, That confounded old General Mud-de. Chatham. J. J. WILDE.

Men's Working Clothes

Every working garment sold in the store is our own make. When you buy a smock here please remember that T. & D. are responsible for every thread of it, and give them credit for all the looks and wear and comfort that you find stitched in.

When we first set out to make these goods we started from the standpoint of the man who wears them—which is not the usual way with manufacturers. We planned each garment about as a man's wife would, supposing her to be an expert. Made them ample, comfortable, extra strong where extra strength is needed—did everything to postpone the day of the first patch. Results were so satisfactory that we have kept right on making them that way.

We are content with the maker's profit on these garments. You pay at our counters about what we should have to pay at wholesale if we bought them from another maker.
