INVESTIGATION ASKED FOR

Health Authorities in Camden and Dresden Said to be Negligent

LOCAL CASES THE RESULT

The laxity of the health officials of some neighboring townships and villages is causing much anxiety to the local health department. Through this negligence on the part of outside officials the health of Chatham is gravely endangered. A repulsive form of disease has been allowed to go unchecked in certain municipalities for some time, and the local health authorities have come to the conclusion that remonstrances are in vain, and have resolved to take a practical way of putting a stop to the indifference of the out-of-town officials.

For some time it has been known that small-pox has been rampant between Florence and Dresden, and in those villages. This state of affairs has been a great menace to the city of Chatham, and Medical Health Officer Hall and Inspector Mounteer have had to exert all their vigilance watching people coming in from the vicinity of the infected districts. At times patients from these places have had to be isolated in Chatham to prevent the disease spreading here. As far as can be made out the authorities of these municipalities are doing little or nothing towards isolating patients, or preventing them from leaving their neighborhood. The local officials have been perplexed for some time as to what to do to prevent the danger of contagion. The attention of the outside authorities has been often called to the matter, but they seemingly have decided to take no notice, and they have replied with indignation several times that there was no small-pox in their districts.

M. H. O. Hall has decided that severe measures will have to be taken to deal with the local officials. He does not care to interfere with their local charges, but he tightly believes it is his duty to see that the health of Chatham is not daily endangered in this way.

The Planet has learned from an authoritative source that Dr. Hall has written to the Provincial Board of Health laying a complaint, charging the above named municipalities health authorities with gross negligence in the performance of their duties. It is likely a Government investigation into their methods will follow, and the heads of some careless officers may fall. The local health department has decided that laxity can be tolerated no longer. A couple of cases of small-pox, which are now isolated at the local isolation hospital, have been traced as having their origin in Dresden and Florence. The outcome will likely prove quite interesting for somebody. The cases, fortunately, are of a mild nature and every precaution is being taken to prevent the spreading of the disease.

A MINISTER'S TROUBLES

Methodist Divine Restricted in Performing Burial Service

ENGLISH RECTOR RULES

A local Methodist minister had rather an unusual and unpleasant experience yesterday while conducting a burial service.

The funeral, which was under his charge, took place from this city to a burying ground in the country. The short service was conducted in the city at the home of the deceased, according to the rites of the Methodist church, and the procession proceeded to an English church in the country, where the service was to be continued and concluded. The burying ground was situated just adjoining this English church.

Upon arriving at the church in question the Methodist minister was informed that he would not be allowed to preach a sermon from a text in the church, and as a result, he was just allowed to give an informal talk and was not allowed to occupy the pulpit. This, it is understood, is a rule of the English church, and in this case it was strictly adhered to.

After the short service in the church the mourners and friends repaired to the burying ground, where again the Methodist divine was restricted in conducting the last rites and was forced to leave out a considerable part of the burial ceremony.

The incident has caused considerable wonderment in some quarters, while in others it is viewed as being quite proper and in full accord with the rules of the Church of England.

MAN IS ILL, NEGLECTS DEBT, IS IMPRISONED FOR TEN DAYS

The Unfortunate Position of a Worthy Citizen Who is Arrested and Sent to Gaol for Contempt to Court—Law Should Be Altered

A rather unfortunate state of affairs was brought before the attention of the police yesterday, in a case where they unfortunately have no jurisdiction.

A man named Wm. French was sued in the Division Court some time ago for a debt of $50. Judgment was given against him, and he was ordered to pay $2 per month until the whole debt was paid. This would have been all right if French had had good health. He is said to be a good workman, and a steady wage-earner.

Several payments of $2 each were paid, when French unfortunately became ill, and was unable to work. Of course, the payments then stopped, and the unfortunate man was arrested for contempt of Court, and was sent to gaol for ten days.

This imprisonment does not lessen the debt whatever, and when he gets out he will be in a worse shape than ever, all owing to his illness. When he was arrested he had a job, and was trying to catch up with the world, as it were, and now through his imprisonment, he may lose his position, and will have to look for another one.

The injustice in the case seems to be in imprisoning a man because he was unable to pay his debts on account of illness. It is thought that the principal to whom the debt is due would not be in favor of goading the man, but unfortunately he is at present out of the city. It is, however, a question whether he would have any power in the matter or not. It is understood that the man is needy, with a family to support, and his wife and family are dependant for support until he gets out, and when he does get out his job may be filled by another man. It would seem that it would have been better for all concerned if the man had never been imprisoned. There should be some law to protect such unfortunate people.

MR. CLEMENTS' STRONG APPEAL FOR COLORED PEOPLE OF KENT

The Full Text of his Splendid Speech Made in the House—He Advocates That They Be Given Employment on Railways—Colored People Excellent Citizens

The following is the full text of I am expressing that these people should receive some consideration in the future. I care not what stripe of politics you may take into consideration in offering any of these appointments to our colored people. The Government have some very strong supporters there but I would be just as glad to lend a hand to assist in securing a recognition of these supporters of the Government as I would of supporters of the Opposition. I trust the Government will take this matter into their consideration and that with the vast number of appointments which are being made from day to day in the different departments, these people will be given some consideration. I feel it my duty as a representative of that section of the people to advocate their interests here and I trust these people will be represented as well as other nationalities in this Dominion.

Mr. Clarke—I just wish to add a few words to express my agreement with what has been said by my hon. friend from West Kent (Mr. Clements). There is no doubt that for different reasons the colored people ought to be recognized. In the first place, they have had a harder struggle than the white man in this country. They have obstacles to overcome which the white man has not. They have prejudices against them. They have not had the facilities for education which the white man has. I am very glad to be able to agree with my hon. friend in saying that wherever they have had the advantage of schools equally with the white people they have taken a very good position indeed. Within the past year I had the pleasure of being at a school entertainment where two of the brightest pupils of the whole body were colored. We ought to encourage them, so that they may become educated and take a high standing in the community. My hon. friend is quite right in saying that the colored race in Canada ought to be recognized by the Government, and given their fair share of the public positions which are open to the people of this country.

Mr. Clements—I have known Dr. Shadd since I was a boy and I have the highest regard for him. He was the Conservative candidate in one of the constituencies in the Northwest and I may say that irrespective of party politics the people of our district have the highest opinion of him. I shall not say whether or not it is the fault of the Government, but I understand that notwithstanding that Dr. Shadd has one of the most extensive and best practices and is deservedly esteemed by all, the medical party distributed throughout the district, literature of the most offensive kind in order to defeat him. Had not that kind of thing been resorted to, I believe Dr. Shadd would have been elected by a large majority.

Mr. Sam. Hughes—I can add to the testimony given by my hon. friend (Mr. Clements) as to the high character of Dr. Shadd. I may state that some time ago I had the privilege of selecting lands in the Northwest for some settlers of the colored race who came from Essex, and they have made exceptionally good of thrift and industry to the whole community.

THREE MORE OIL WELLS

One Well Gushes 110 Barrels per day—Others are Promising

GAS IS VERY ABUNDANT

Excitement at present in the Tilbury oil district is at feverish height. Wonderful stories of wells which belched up tremendous quantities of oil and gas with the force of small volcanoes are being told, and tales of wealth amassed in a single day and gushers of untold promise, have set the imaginations of speculators afire. The field is now acknowledged to be one of the richest in the world.

A new well, struck on the Stephenson farm yesterday, gushed 110 barrels during the day. The oil is pouring steadily into five large tanks, and shows no signs of abating in its flow. Another new well has been struck on J. W. Smith's farm. At this well the first oil was struck at a depth of 1,300 feet, and when a depth of 1,400 feet was reached, the oil belched up through the opening. The drillers will sink to the depth of 1,435 feet, and leave the well to run at that. This is the third well struck on the Smith farm. A good paying well has also been struck on the Kerr farm.

Two representatives of the Chatham Oil Syndicate paid a visit to the Tilbury fields yesterday. They have returned wildly enthusiastic over the future of the field. Talking to a Planet reporter this morning, one of them said:

"I never saw anything like it in my life. The wildest excitement prevails, and the country is filled with speculators, who are quietly buying up everything in sight."

"I saw one well struck on the Stephenson farm yesterday. It gushed 110 barrels during the day. Gas and oil came up out of it with tremendous force, and we had to shout to each other in order to be heard above the deafening roar of the gusher. One old oil speculator wanted to wager $1,000 that 19 more paying wells will shortly be located on this same farm."

"One American capitalist has cleared $75,000 in two months' time in deals and leases, and the farmers in that locality have almost gone mad with excitement. The American capitalists claim that the Tilbury field is one of the richest in the world."

The Chatham Oil Syndicate has leased the Purdy farm, which is located on the 4th concession of Tilbury. The indications are so promising that the Chatham men have already had several American capitalists after them wanting to buy out their lease already. The material for the erection of the derricks is now being shipped to the fields leased by the Chatham syndicate.

THE SUNDAY BILL.

The ill-fated "Lord's Day Act" has been the subject of much discussion during the past few weeks. The Government spent the greater part of a whole week discussing it and making amendments. The result has been that in trying to please everybody Premier Laurier has succeeded in pleasing nobody and has sent to the Senate a bill that is by no means workable and will only provide good food for argument in the courts whenever it is attempted to enforce it. No one understands the clauses of the bill, and the whole measure is rendered useless for the purpose for which it was intended.

As the measure went to the Senate it differed greatly from the bill as it was returned from the special committee, and still more from the bill as introduced by Mr. Fitzpatrick, then Minister of Justice. Sixteen sub-clauses containing exceptions and exemptions from the Sunday prohibitions have been introduced at the request of as many different interests, and as Mr. Borden says many of these are inconsistent with each other and with the rest of the bill. But the principal change was that made on June 29th on the motion of Mr. Piche, one of the Montreal supporters of the Government, provided that the general prohibition of Sunday labor shall not interfere with any law which may hereafter be enacted by any province. The effect is that any province may at any time repeal with-in its own territory the chief enacting portions of the measure. On the motion of another Montreal supporter it is provided that the Dominion law shall not come into force until next March, so that the Province of Quebec or any other can repeal the act before it comes into operation. Mr. Aylesworth on behalf of the Government accepted both amendments.

It was a notable circumstance that Mr. Aylesworth had, on June 20th, or nine days before, opposed the like amendment and caused its rejection. On June 20th, Mr. Aylesworth said: "Just a word with regard to the proposed amendment of my honorable friend from Montreal, Mr. Piche. Its effect would be far reaching indeed. It would destroy all practical benefits from the clause under consideration. It would, in fact, be delegating, if we had the power to delegate, the whole question of dealing with the subject to each one of the several Provincial Legislatures. . . . This general question, has been, by the highest tribunal, declared to be within the functions of this Parliament. We ought not to shirk our responsibilities. We ought not to say, by any form of words or any side wind, that we will seek to put that responsibility upon the different Provincial Legislatures and let them legislate nine or ten different ways upon the same matter. . . . Parliament ought to legislate and not leave the question any longer in doubt."—Hansard, 1906, revised, page 5651.

Mr. Aylesworth was then a convinced federalist. Nine days later when Mr. Piche demanded reconsideration of his principle of the provincial veto Mr. Aylesworth suddenly became a life-long provincial righter. He said: "I am very pleased indeed that my honorable friend from St. Mary's has proposed the amendment. It is a recognition of what I think very properly may be, and ought to be, a recognition of the co-ordinate rights, within their own jurisdiction, of the Provincial Legislature to legislate on this subject. It has been, and it is the pride of the political party to which I belong, as it is my personal pride, who regard myself as a humble member of it, to be ardent advocates of the principle of Provincial rights. I, therefore, personally am glad indeed to see in this statute, as I shall be glad to see in every statute which this Parliament might pass, recognized to the full, the right of the Provincial Legislature to legislate on any question which is within their jurisdiction. That is the effect and course of this amendment, and it seems to afford a means by which this measure will

FASHION HINTS

LADIES' FIVE-GORED PRINCESS SKIRT.
Three Sizes, 24 to 28 Inches, Waist Measure.

For dainty afternoon and evening dresses to wear during the warm days, the princess mode is without doubt the most popular. The one pictured here in light-blue shantung is given quite a novel effect by the addition of the bib portion. The skirt is shaped with five gores, and is in long sweep, though perforations show where the skirt may be cut off if a round length is desired. The model may be worn over any style of waist, and if desired the bib may be omitted and the skirt finished with the deep girdle. The sleeve consists of ruffles of narrow lace, and the bib portion is embroidered in brown along the outer edge. Sheer materials are given preference, and the following are suggested as good fabrics for satisfactory results: Crepe de Chine, radium silk, veiling, chiffon cloth, French voile, nun's veiling, batiste, lawn, pongee, and cologne. Valenciennes, Tulle and Mechlin laces are all good laces for trimming. The pattern is cut in three sizes, from 24 to 28 inches, waist measure. Size 26 requires 9-1/4 yards of 36-inch material.

Mailed postpaid on receipt of 10 cents, name, size and address to the Fashion Department of C. Austin & Co.

GIRLS' DRESS.

Five Sizes, 8 to 16 Years.

For sheer materials the pattern pictured here is admirably adapted. In this instance pale blue dimity, with a yoke of all-over lace and insertion was employed. The pattern is cut with a lining over which the waist be, at all events, made, if not more acceptable at least less disagreeable to the people of the Province of Quebec. . . . Desiring to meet the wishes and views of those who do not accord with the Province from which I come, I for my part gladly assent the amendment which is proposed by my honorable friend from St. Mary's (Mr. Piche), and I will ask this committee to agree in passing it."

Hansard, unrevised, 1906, page 6743.
It should be explained that during the nine days in which Mr. Aylesworth was acquiring his new life-long convictions, Mr. Bourassa was carrying on an agitation in the Province of Quebec, and that on the same day that Mr. Aylesworth surrendered, a mass meeting was held in Montreal city to protest against the bill. To this meeting a member supporting the Government hurried after Mr. Aylesworth's conversion to announce that everything was settled and that Quebec was practically free from the Lord's Day Act.

Factory and Warehouse—Toronto.

Charlotte Perkins Gilman, and "Finances and the Girl on the Farm," by Anna Steese Richardson. Characteristic articles on summer cookery, fashions, etc., increase the value of the magazine as a household publication.

The July McClure's is a good, hearty and satisfying literary meal—some good articles on new things the world is doing, some important ones on vital topics of the day, and a good share of brisk and entertaining stories; the whole well served with attractive illustrations, many in color.

The Cosmopolitan for July opens with "How the Army Worked to Save San Francisco," by General Funston. This paper is profusely illustrated, one of which illustrations is a panorama of the city before the disaster and since. "Poor Girls Who Marry Millions," by Lida Rowe McCabe, gives brief sketches of the wives of many millionaires, amongst whom is Florence Evelyn Nesbit, whose husband, Henry Thaw, is now awaiting his trial for the murder of Stanford White on June 25th. There is a full page portrait of this beautiful woman who has so sadly and suddenly sprung into notoriety. "The Treason of the Senate" is continued. Julia Ward Howe contributes "What Life Means to derjahr," "Ruth Thornton Wadsworth" and "Barty's Marriage" will be found absorbingly interesting. "Man Games that Murder Beauty" should be read by girls who go in too strongly for athletic sports. The various departments are as well sustained, and there are numerous short articles that are in keeping with this high class magazine. The American edition is published by Warwick Bros. and Rutter, of Toronto, Ont.

The Girls' Own Paper, for June contains a complete story, "A Happy Chance." The serial stories, "Betty Tevror," "Ruth Thornton Wadsworth" and "Barty's Marriage" will be found absorbingly interesting. "Man Games that Murder Beauty" should be read by girls who go in too strongly for athletic sports. The various departments are as well sustained, and there are numerous short articles that are in keeping with this high class magazine. The American edition is published by Warwick Bros. and Rutter, of Toronto, Ont.

The Boys' Own Paper for June opens with the continuation of the thrilling romance, "The Voyage of the Blue Vege." A feature that must always strike anyone who looks over this magazine is the attention that is given to all matters connected with the British army and navy. It would be almost impossible for a boy who is a constant reader of The Boys' Own Paper to grow up disloyal to his country and his flag. "Training Boys for Service in the Royal Navy" is the article which is given this month along these lines. "Winter Sports" in "Noway" and "Cycling by Night" and "Our Champions" will attract those who are interested in athletic sports. The usual departments are well sustained. American edition published by Warwick Bros. and Rutter, Toronto.

Perhaps the most opportune article in the June number of Everyday Housekeeping may be "The Protection of Plumbing in Vacation Time." As every housekeeper knows what evils often arise from the plumbing not having been properly protected during the time the house is closed for the summer vacation. There are many recipes given for delicious salads, which will be appreciated by both those who have to prepare them and those who eat the salads which have now come into daily use on most tables. "Fats and Fats," is the title of a department which gives miscellaneous receipts. There are many other articles both interesting and instructive. Issued by The Clark Publishing Co., Boston, Mass. Price $1 per annum.

The June number of Little Folks opens with a colored frontispiece. The Kiddiest One is continued to a point that will make children long for the July number to learn what happens next. And the same might be said of "The Beautiful Story of the Red and the Red" and "The Red and the Red." There are numerous short stories and poems. Published by S. E. Cassino Co., Salem, Mass.

The number number of Keith's Magazine on Home Building, which is the modern magazine, makes a specialty of Porches and Pergolas. There are many beautiful illustrations, and with the characteristic thoroughness of this publishing company, a suggestion is given of the many ways in which these structures may be used. "Designs by Leading Architects" show designs and plans for homes of various sizes with a description and the estimated cost of each. There are principally of the small artistic cottages that are being built at the present time. Interior decoration receives much attention. The departments are kept up as usual and are full of interest. The price of the magazine is $1.50 per year or 15 cents per copy. Published by M. L. Keith, Minneapolis.

Humor and Philosophy

By DUNCAN M. SMITH.

PERT PARAGRAPHS.

In trying kindness on a mule always apply it to the front exposure.

If a man will studiously practice looking wise it will go for the real stuff with most people.

It is a mighty poor astrologer who cannot predict whatever the man wants who is paying the bill.

You can depend on more steady results from a garden when the man with the hoe is a woman.

If a bumblebee were to try to have its way through kindness, the human race wouldn't begin to respect the little fellow as much as it does.

Truth crushed to earth will rise again, but it always takes it several days to recover from a horse trade.

A lie that is half truth is not improved much by reason of its better half.

It would be a much happier world if the postmen could be broken of the habit of leaving duns in the mail box.

The man who says he is at home where his hat is off changes his mind when a cyclone comes along and lifts his lid.

Truly Rural.

There are chunks of inspiration in a bunch of country air.

Take a trolley to the country and get off most anywhere.

Or, still better, hitch up Dobbin for a distant rural drive.

Back to nature and I venture. You'll be glad you are alive.

Breathing in the balmy ozone, Gazing on the flowers of spring, Gladly soaking in the sunshine, Listening to the birds sing.

Will be good for your complexion. Or for twitches in your back. And a fine thing for your liver. If it's slightly out of whack.

As the friendly winds of springtime Through your glossy whiskers play, Making music soft and melodious, You'll be glad you came away.

For the rugged rural trail, If you do not meet a dinosaur, Mixed with chunks of stored hail.

Charter, then, the raging trolley Or put Dobbin in the thrills. For your health 'twill do more business.

Don a bunch of doctor bills. Get out where the grass is growing, Than his new summer dress, Where you'll feel like turning handsprings.

And you'll sleep that night, I guess.

Just the Difference.

"He caught the grip from a slight draft."

"Pshaw, I lost my grip from a slight draft."

Lacks Strong Point.

"His wife always makes him carve the turkey."

"I suppose he likes it by this time."

"No; he never can catch on, he is so terribly handicapped."

"Can't sharpen his knife?"

"No; he never learned to swear when he was a boy."

Going the Limit.

"Is he in love with her?"

"Is he? It is a positive pleasure for him to have her stand on his corns when they are riding in a crowded street car."

Elusive.

"What is he doing for a living?"

"Following the races."

"Why, he was doing that last summer. Hasn't he caught up with them yet?"

Worth Talking About.

"I had a bad quarter of an hour this morning."

"Huh! That's nothing. I had a bad quarter of a dollar."

Better Place.

To wear a braid on your hat is wrong; we all agree to that.

To wear it underneath your vest Or pinafore is much the best.

Proof of It.

"Some scientists are disputing the laws of gravitation."

"Guess they never stepped on a banana peel."

Looking Ahead.

"Do you think they are engaged?"

"They must be. She can pass an ice cream parlor without dragging him in."

Held the Book For Him.

"He has learned to love another."

"Yes, but I understand she made the lessons very easy for him."

MANAGER A DICTATOR

Mr. J. M. Spence in Control of the Central Life Co.

Business of Young Company Probed by Royal Insurance Commission—Ex-President Thomas Crawford, M.P.P., While President of the Company, Borrowed $4,000—How the Concern Was Floated.

Toronto, July 11.—Thomas Crawford, M. P. P., and the Central Life Insurance Co. of Quebec were before the Insurance Commission yesterday. Today the commission will take up the affairs of the Dominion Life Insurance at Waterloo, and to-morrow the Mutual Life.

The Central is a young company, under J. M. Spence, who has managed to get the controlling interest.

Mr. Crawford, who was president from its inception in 1901 until the end of 1905, was the first witness called, and told of the organization proceedings. J. M. Spence was organizer. He was asked to become president, and Hon. J. W. St. John was also on the board. There were seven directors, but Mr. St. John and Major Craig dropped out, the former owing to a dispute with Manager Spence, and as the latter controlled the majority of the proxy vote, he succeeded in getting Mr. St. John out of the way.

Witness wanted a new manager appointed, and Mr. Spence stepped in with the controlling power and bought over Mr. Crawford's stock at the price he paid for it.

Thought Purchase Quite Proper. Certain debentures of the Provincial Building and Loan Co., of which Mr. Crawford was president, were bought at his instigation by the Central Life, despite the fact that the Ontario Government refused them as proper security.

Witness explained that he knew the value of the debentures, and thought the deal quite proper.

Mr. Tilley approached the subject of loans to directors, and learned that witness himself had borrowed $4,000 from the Central Life on a promissory note. No interest was mentioned.

Mr. Crawford said that the suggestion had emanated from Mr. Spence, who was very friendly with him at the time, but was not so friendly now.

J. M. Spence, manager and practically owner of the Central Life, then took the box. The directors, according to him, got their stock at par, while other subscribers had to pay the premium. Along with Mr. Crawford, he had borrowed $75,000 from the Imperial Bank on personal notes to make up the Government deposit. His salary was $3,000 per year for the first five years. Mr. Crawford got $400 per annum.

The St. John Trouble.

The St. John trouble arose out of fees charged the company for their law business. Mr. Crawford wanted to get witness out of the manager's chair and make him superintendent, but this witness refused to do so, as he would have to relinquish his power given him by the directors.

Mr. Tilley took Mr. Spence's evidence in regard to witness' illness. The minutes showed a resolution to the effect that, during Mr. Spence's illness, any extra expense incurred was to be deducted from witness' salary.

Mr. Spence said that this was not correct, and that there was no resolution ever passed.

From the minutes, Mr. Tilley read a resolution to the effect that J. M. Spence be given three months' leave of absence. When Mr. Spence came back he would not stand for a reduction of $75 being taken out of his salary. He made objections, and the directors ordered the money to be repaid.

"What were your reasons?"

"I found that Mr. Crawford had been trying to dig up something against me, and found a $75 increase in my salary, which I had taken for expenses paid out in reorganization. It was not the $75 that I kicked at, but the principle."

Dictates Own Salary.

"Mr. Spence's salary as president and general manager was $2,500 a year. Mr. Spence said he was making $900 on accepting the dual position. He made it clear that he was taking $500 less than his previous contract, and, if necessary, should the financial standing of the company not warrant this amount, he is willing to take less."

Mr. Tilley brought out the fact that as witness had complete control of the company, he would say what his own salary would be.

Mr. Spence said that he had never used his power in any way to run the company, only to its best interests.

Mr. Tilley then took up the $4,000 loan to President Crawford on May 12, 1903. He asked witness if Mr. Crawford's evidence to the effect that he had the sanction of his manager was correct, and Mr. Spence answered that he went into the deal as innocently as an unborn child.

Mr. Crawford came into my office and told me that he was stuck, and needed $4,000. I said that I had not four thousand cents, and Crawford asked if it would not be all right for him to borrow it from the funds of the company on a promissory note.

Crawford Good For It.

"I said 'You are good for it,' and as he was the president, I could do nothing else but put the loan through. He had done good turns for me, and I did not think I was doing anything wrong."

Mr. Spence's own loans were gone into. He had put through a $2,500 loan for himself under the guidance of the Continental Life for a few days on some real estate. At certain times he got advances on salary.

Five thousand dollars of Provincial Building and Loan debentures, Mr. Spence said, were purchased by Messrs. Crawford and St. John. He had nothing to do in the matter.

The purchase by the witness of stock from the shareholders who could not pay the call of 5 per cent. made to raise the Dominion deposit, was discussed.

How Stock Was "Sold."

Mr. Spence unlearned a new scheme of getting a company floated on a substantial basis, and putting in devious returns to the Government. At the outset, the directors took stock to the value of $100,000, and so pretended that the stock was all sold. These transactions dated from October, 1901.

When applications came in in the regular way some of the directors who had stock gave authority to cancel the amount and assign it to the applicant. Witness saw nothing wrong in this, and Mr. St. John, his solicitor, had advised him that it was a proper transaction.

"This was done simply to get into the Ontario Government returns," said Mr. Spence, when pressed by Mr. Tilley.

Harry Austin Loses His Life While Bathing Near The City

WAS A GOOD SWIMMER

News was received in the city this afternoon of the drowning of a young lad, named Harry Austin, at a point half a mile up the river. The accident took place at the rear of the farm owned by Geo. Lamphard. Austin was a young man 19 years of age, and until lately he worked in a roller mill in London. He came here yesterday with the intention of working for Mr. Lamphard. He had just gone out to the farm this morning, and after dinner he and the boy who is there, Dave Kelly, thought they would go in for a swim.

At this point the water is about 25 feet deep, and the two swam out to the middle of the river, and Austin made for the opposite shore. Both were good swimmers. Kelly, turning around, noticed that his companion was not in sight. Thinking that he had merely dived down in the water he did not bother much about it. He became uneasy, however, when young Austin did not come up, and he raised an alarm.

The unfortunate young man had evidently taken a cramp and gone down without having a chance to cry for assistance. He was within 15 feet of the opposite bank when last seen.

About ten minutes after the accident some men came along in a scow belonging to The Hadley Company. The water was so deep, however, that they were unable to do anything, and they had to come on to the city. All they had with them was a 14 foot pole, and it was too short to reach to the bottom.

At three o'clock this afternoon, the body had not been found. Three men are at work, and it is hoped that the body will be found before night. Will Janke was notified and left for the scene of the drowning.

WHAT'S IN A COLOR?

Two Colored Women Have A Quarrel Over Color Of Babies' Faces

DODSON TO SETTLE IT

Miss Mary Morton, a young colored woman who lives with her mother on Wellington street, has a little colored baby that is said to be quite white. Miss Lucas, who lives next door with her mother, also has a little colored baby that is said to be quite dark in complexion, although its mother cannot see traces of darkness in her child to any marked degree. These two facts put together with the additional fact that the two young mothers are very jealous, are the cause of considerable trouble in that neighborhood.

Miss Morton, the mother of the little colored pickney, was a visitor at the Police Court this morning, and laid complaint with the authorities. According to the Morton story, Miss Lucas claims that her baby is much lighter than the Morton one, and she is on the verge of a "scrap," but Miss Morton does not want to scrap with her.

Miss Morton's baby is provided with little toys and chairs, and the Lucas baby comes over and takes the toys away. Miss Lucas encourages her baby to do this, and gives the Morton woman every chance to make a quarrel.

"I don't want to fuss with her," said Miss Morton this morning, "and all I want to do is to live in peace. I am satisfied that my baby is lighter than the other one, and I am willing to let the matter go at that. What's the use having a row over it?"

P. C. Dodson was commissioned to go to the neighborhood and see what the trouble is, and have matters straightened out. He may have to the judge as to which baby is the lighter, and in that case he is sure to make an enemy.

There are two wheels at the Police Station waiting for some one to come along and claim them. They were brought in about a week ago.

A Chatham resident called at the Police Court yesterday and complained about the noise coming from a factory in his vicinity. Chatham is getting so many factories that the people are commencing to complain about the "hum." It might be suggested to the man who laid the complaint that if he wants to get away from the busy city life he ought to move out and go to Windsor or St. Thomas. He can live quietly enough in either of those places.

A LUCKY ESCAPE.

Quick Wit and Daring Run of a Russian Revolutionist.

Nowhere outside of the pages of fiction would we expect such an incident as the following from the personal story of the Russian revolutionist Nardoy. Nardoy had just jumped from a window to escape the police. "When I scrambled to my feet I discovered myself in the yard and among half a dozen soldiers. I was without overcoat and hat—a very suspicious figure—and, having neither, I could not escape even could I get by the soldiers who surrounded me," he said.

"I jerked a card from my pocket—to this day I do not know what it was—and handed it to one of the soldiers. 'Here is my card,' I said rapidly. 'I am a member of the secret police. One of these revolutionists is trying to escape. I am after him. Quick! Give me your coat and hat!'"

"He automatically obeyed. I slipped on his coat and hat and to all appearances was a soldier of the czar. I walked past the guarded gate of the yard, out into the street. Before me were thousands of soldiers. I saw my friends being brought down from the hall and put into the black vans, about which stood guards of Cossacks. I marched through my friends (all of that group are in prison today) and myself and the friend who escaped with me) with the air of a soldier on a very important message and pressed on through the mass of other soldiers that filled the street."

BARBER SURGEONS.

When the Razor and the Scalpel Were Linked in One Trade.

More than 400 years old is the Royal College of Surgeons, Edinburgh. At the time it was founded the surgeons and barbers of the city were united as one of the fourteen incorporated trades of Edinburgh. On July 1, 1505, they received their charter from the town council. The charter of the barber surgeons was confirmed by James IV., an early Stuart king of great enlightenment and accomplishment, who took much interest in the progress of the surgeons on account of the needs of his army in time of war.

In the charter leave was given to the incorporation to control the medical education of the city, which was in those days, of bloodletting, to have the sole right of practice and to put down quacks. They were to get every year the body of a criminal who had been executed to practice anatomy on, and they promised in return to do "surgery for his soul." Of the first 153 members of the incorporation six were surgeons to the kings of Scotland.

As society improved and medical science developed the gulf between the surgeons and barbers widened, and in 1772, as the result of a dispute in the court of session, the connection was finally terminated. The deacon, or president, of the incorporation of surgeons was for more than 320 years a member of the town council of Edinburgh, ex officio, and several of the deacons were members of the Scottish parliament.

February Legends.

Why February has twenty-eight days is explained in the legends of the past. One is of an old woman, who, tending her flock, ridiculed the month of February because he had dealt so leniently with her and her sheep. Then February felt insulted and made leap year and borrowed a cold day from March and froze her and her flock. There is a Norman legend which makes it out that February had originally as many days as the other months, but February was a confirmed gambler and lost at domino a day both to January and to March. Strange to say, there is an old story of Egypt, wherein the god of February plays forfeits with the moon and loses certain days.

Not Wholly Ignorant.

An applicant for a position in the public works department in a certain city was undergoing a civil service examination. With a view to testing his knowledge of history the examining officer asked him what he knew of the Funicular.

"The name sounds familiar," said the applicant, "but I can't just remember when it was or where it happened."

"Don't you know anything about Scipio?"

"No, sir."

"Surely you have heard about Hannibal?"

"Oh, yes, I know all about Hannibal. That's where Mark Twain used to live."

The "Bere" of 1542.

It is curious to find in a "Dietary" of 1542 the information that "there is made of malte, of hops and water. It is a natural drynke for a Dutchman. And now of late dayes it is moche used in Englande to the detriment of many Englishme men." The author was speaking of "beer," the then new liquor distinguished from "ale" by being hopped. In this sense a seventeenth century rhyme says that "turkey, carps, pike, pike and beer came from England all in one year," "piccadilly" being a kind of ruff or collar.

Monument to a Fish. A "tombstone" which is to be seen in the garden of Fish cottage, Blockley, a picturesque village in South Worcestershire, is believed to be the only fish's tombstone in existence. The inscription is as follows:

In Memory of the Old Fish. Under the soil the old Fish, do, lie. Twenty years, he lived and then, die. He was so tame you understand. He would, come, and eat, out, of, our, hand.

Died April the 20th, 1885. Aged 20 years.

"THE SONG OF THE SHIRT."

It Proved the Most Popular Thing Hood Ever Wrote.

During his last illness Tom Hood in an idle moment made an imaginative sketch of his own tombstone. He drew himself reclining at full length on a thick slab of stone, on the edge of which in large capitals he wrote, "His Song of the Shirt." This was the only inscription, and, as he himself has said, Tom Hood needs no other.

How much he felt and prided himself upon the song by which he became known and loved by millions is shown by this and the following fact: "If I were enabled these are the arms I should adopt," said he one day, showing a rough vignette to a friend. The sketch contained a very beautiful and pathetic idea. It represented a heart pierced by a needle threaded with silver tears, and beneath was the motto he had inscribed on the imaginary tombstone.

"The Song of the Shirt" appeared in the Christmas number of the fifth volume of Punch. It was unsigned, but every paper in the land quoted it, and it speedily became the talk of the day. Hood himself did not think it very remarkable, but Mrs. Hood had said to him as she folded it for press: "Now, mind, Hood, mark my words, this will tell wonderfully. It is one of the best things you ever did."

Mrs. Hood was right. The song was translated into French, German and Italian. It was printed on cheap cotton handkerchiefs and parodied times without number.

THE FIRST MONEY.

It Is Credited to the Lydians of Asia Minor.

It is difficult to realize that prior to B. C. 700 there were no true coins, that ingots or buttons of gold and silver were weighed at every mercantile transaction. The Lydians of Asia Minor are credited with having been the first to cast and stamp with an official device small oval gold ingots of definite fixed weight, an invention strangely delayed, but of inestimable importance to industry and commerce. A coin has been described as "a piece of metal of fixed weight, stamped by authority of government and employed as a medium of exchange." Medals, though struck by authority, are only historical records and have no currency value.

The bright, far flashing intellect of Greece saw the import of the Lydian invention and adopted it quickly, and every Greek state, nearly every city, island and colony, established a mint, generally at some one of the great temples, for all early coin types are religious in character. They bear symbols of some god as a pledge of good faith. The offerings, tithes and rents of the worshippers were coined and circulated as money. Temples thus became both mints and banks. Our word "money" is said to have been derived from the Roman shrine of Juno, Moneta, the earliest Latin mint.

The first shape of these early coins was that of an enlarged coffee berry, punched on the rounded side with official letters or sinkings, as they are called.

Earth Curvature and Vision.

One of the "seven wonders of the ancient world" was the Pharos, or light tower at Alexandria. If you have a popular account of that great structure handy, read it carefully and note that you are informed that the tower could be seen at a distance of from 100 to 150 miles. Let us see if this could possibly be true. The curvature of the globe is 6.99 inches to the mile. This being true, we find that an object 100 feet high can only be seen at a fraction over thirteen miles. Figuring on the basis of an earth curvature of even seven inches to the mile, we find that the light tower in question must have been over a mile in height if visible even at a distance of 100 miles.

Old Workmen.

An Englishman who is a large employer of labor has been investigating the arguments of those who say that a workman under modern conditions becomes at an early age valueless. He has kept a record of all accidents that have incapacitated his men for three days and upward. The people engaged in his employment are from fifteen to sixty-five years of age, and he asserts that more accidents occur to men under thirty than to those over fifty. He says, "I would much rather have an exceptionally dangerous job to a man over fifty than to one of thirty years of age."

Drew His Picture.

It is told of Major General Sir William Gatacre of the British army that during the Sudan campaign he was one day going the round of the sentries. Stopping before one he asked him what his orders were. "To keep a sharp lookout for the enemy and also for General Gatacre," was the prompt reply. "Do you know him by sight?" asked the general. "No, sir," answered the man, "but I was told that if I saw an officer fussing and swearing and rushing about that would be General Gatacre."

Against a Snap Judgment.

A boy in a Chicago school refused to sew, evidently considering it beneath the dignity of a ten-year-old man. "George Washington sewed," said the principal, taking it for granted that a soldier must, "and do you consider yourself better than George Washington?" "I don't know. Time will tell," said he seriously.

Man never fastened one end of a chain around the neck of his brother that God did not fasten the other end around the neck of the oppressor.—Lamarine.

Many Women have Kidney Trouble and don't know it. They attribute their ill-health to weakness. Dragging pains in the hips, backache, nervousness, tiredness, headaches—are more often caused by sick kidneys. If your kidneys are not well, the other delicate organs are disturbed and inflamed, bringing on the horrors of female weakness and the serious troubles often attending pregnancy.

Bu-Ju THE GENTLE KIDNEY PILL

cures these cases of "Female Weakness." They promptly restore the kidneys to health, rid the system of poisons, take away the pains, and make the delicate organs well and strong.

PROVED IN MOUNT FOREST.

Every doctor in this town tried his best to relieve Mrs. J. Williams of Asthma, and none succeeded. "For years," she states, "I was a dreadful sufferer; nothing gave relief. At times I found it necessary to have all the doors and windows open to get my breath. When in despair I heard of Catarrhine. I used it and now am perfectly cured. This proves beyond doubt that any case of Asthma is curable with Catarrhine. No remedy so pleasant none so absolutely certain to thoroughly cure. Try Catarrhine yourself; it's guaranteed."

What He Thought.

Visitor—Your wife wrote me that she would send her "drag" to meet me at the station.

Jones—Oh, that's all right. She meant me.—Leslie's Weekly.

Take care of the stomach and the health will take care of itself. If people only realized the soundness of that statement the majority might live to a good old age like Moses, "the eye undimmed, the natural force unabated." It is in the stomach that the blood is made. It is from the stomach that nourishment is dispensed to nerve and muscle. If the stomach is "weak" it can't do its whole work for each part of the body. If it is diseased the disease will taint the nourishment which is distributed and so spread the disease throughout the body. It was the realization of the importance of the stomach as the very centre of health and the common source of disease, which led Dr. Pierce to prepare his "Golden Medical Discovery." "Diseases which originate in the stomach must be cured through the stomach." The soundness of this theory is proved every day by cures of diseased organs, heart, liver, lungs, blood, by the use of the "Discovery" which is solely and singly a medicine for the blood and organs of digestion and nutrition. It is a temperance medicine containing no alcohol, whiskey or other intoxicant.

OLD ROMAN NAMES.

The Peculiar System That Was In Use by the Nobility.

The noble Romans were peculiar in their system of nomenclature. They had the praenomen, the nomen and the cognomen. The first of these distinguished the individual and was equivalent to our Christian or baptismal name. It was usually indicated by a single letter, as A. for Aulus, or by two letters, as Ap. for Appius, or three, as Ser. for Servius. The nomen was distinctive of the gens or clan and has no corresponding appellation among us. The cognomen was placed last and designated the family, precisely answering to our surname. Sometimes a fourth name was added, the agnomen. In consequence of a renowned action, some conspicuous event of life or feature of character. Scipio, in addition to his regular names, was styled Africanus after his conquest of Carthage. The name Germanicus was assumed by those who distinguished themselves in the wars with the Germans.

In female names the Romans indulged but small variety of appellation, and fancy had little or nothing to do with their invention and bestowal. When there was but one daughter in a family she received the feminine termination of her gentile name, as Fulvia, the daughter of Marcus Tullius Cicero, and Octavia, the sister of Octavius Caesar, etc., which names were retained even after marriage. When there were two daughters one was called Major and the other Minor, as Cornelia Major and Cornelia Minor. If there were more than two they were distinguished by their number, thus: Prima, Secunda, Tertia, Quarta, etc.

GREEK COINS.

How the Ancients Tested the Purity

The first coins of gold and silver that have come down to us are now dated as a rule in the time of Croesus, who lived about the middle of the sixth century B. C.

It may readily be imagined that a mere lump of gold, supposed to be of a certain weight, would be subject to skepticism unless it were guaranteed by some recognized authority. So, in order to save reweighing and testing at each transaction, these ingots or coins were stamped with the authoritative mark of a prince or state. So stamped they became the true coins in spite of the fact that, contrary to modern custom, they were not at all regular.

But, in spite of the guarantee that might be afforded by the mark of a state or a prince, we find the Greeks applying certain tests to determine the genuineness of the currency offered to them. Plating was easily detected by jabbing the suspected coin with some sharp instrument. At other times the touchstone was used. One which was known as the "Lydian stone" was supposed to reveal a proportion of foreign metal as small as a barley corn in a stater. Another test, in the case of silver, was to polish the coin and then breathe on it. If the moisture quickly disappeared the metal was pure. Yet another way to detect alloy was to heat the coin or coins on red-hot iron. If the metal was unalloyed it remained bright, if mixed with other substances it turned black or red according as it was more or less impure.—Oliver S. Tonks in Chautauquan.

FIGHTING FISH.

Peculiar Animals That Are Found Only in Siamese Waters.

A favorite recreation in Siam is watching the fighting fish, a species of fish found in the waters of no other country. The fish cannot live in unity, and if two are placed in a bowl they will instantly engage in a struggle to the death.

It is no unusual thing to see in the streets of Siam crowds of natives chattering and gesticulating around a bowl containing a number of these fish, which they bet on in the same way as more civilized people do on race horses. Intense excitement reigns among the natives as they watch the fish fighting within the bowl.

These peculiarly quarrelsome fish are very similar to the common pike in appearance, with the exception that they are not in the possession of gills. Their fins, too, are remarkably sharp, and these they use with terrible effect upon one another. Blood oozes from their sides, and yet they persist in fighting until perhaps only two are left alive, and then the survivors turn on one another until only one is left out of perhaps a dozen placed in the tub.

Although the fighting fish are exceptionally good to eat, the majority of natives esteem them only for their fighting propensities, which affords them amusement and excitement every day.

London's Last Public Hanging.

The gruesome spectacle of a public execution in England is happily a thing of the past. The scaffold used to be erected in the roadway outside the prison, and crowds would assemble to witness the sight, the last time a man was hanged in public being when Michael Barrett suffered the extreme penalty in May, 1903, in Old Bailey, outside Newgate prison, for exploding a cask of gunpowder under the walls of Clerkenwell prison, to release the Fenian prisoners Burke and Casey, a mad act that killed several and injured still more.—London Graphic.

TORONTO LIVE STOCK.

Toronto, July 10.—The receipts of live stock at the city cattle market were 63 car loads, composed of 719 cattle, 830 sheep and lambs, 345 hogs and 172 calves.

Exporters.

Few shipping cattle were offered and it was quiet. The market was a little better and the top of the market was $3.00 and that was for a small lot of five cattle, the best on the market. The ruling prices for exporters would be around $4.00 to $4.50 per cwt. Bulls sold at $3.50 to $4.00 per cwt.

Butchers.

The supply of butchers' cattle was not large, but quite equal to the demand. Trade for them was drab, with a downward tendency in prices. Choice picked ones, ranged around $4.00 to $4.50 per cwt. of good, $4.00 to $4.50; fair to good, $3.50 to $4.00; common, rough steers, mixed with good, $3.00 to $3.50; common cows and canners, $2.50 to $3.00 per cwt.

Feeders and Stockers.

Trade in feeders and stockers was slow, with a light demand. Prices were easy at the following quotations: good steers, 90c to 1050 lbs. at $4 to $4.25; good steers, 800 to 900 lbs. at $3.90 to $4.10; light stockers, $3.25 to $3.50; medium stockers, $3 to $3.25; common stockers, $2.75 to $3.

Milk Cows.

The number of milk cows and springers offered was not large, and generally of low to medium quality. The market for them was slow, as there were no out-of-side buyers from a distance. Prices ranged from $20 to $25, but only three cows were reported at the latter price. The bulk sold from $20 to $25 each.</
