Our "PATTERN DYED" Flags have now been in use for many years, and have given great satisfaction, being found to fly lighter, and the patterns or devices showing equally well on either side. This is especially so with regard to flags bearing name and address, now a popular and successful method of advertising. The colours more durable, and the patterns being printed on the material, make them more suitable for Flags with intricate design, which can be carried out as well as any design could be executed on paper.

PREFACE.

The preparation of Directories, perhaps as vividly as anything else, impresses the compiler with a sense of the progress of the country in all that constitutes material prosperity. Villages bearing names yet unfamiliar are found to have taken root where, not many years ago, the stillness of the forest was only invaded by the stroke of the woodman's axe, and what were formerly thin settlements are seen to be advancing, under the impetus of an active and persevering population, to the rank of important towns.

Looking back over the comparatively brief period during which the senior member of this firm has been engaged in the publication of Directories, the Publishers find ample evidence of an expansion in which the people of this country may well take pride and satisfaction. Referring especially to Quebec, this Province which, in 1857, when LOVELL'S CANADA DIRECTORY was issued, contained 457 places, now includes 968 places in which business occupations are carried on, besides a large number of places inhabited by farmers and others, not engaged in mercantile pursuits. In the population and flourishing industries of the cities and towns there is like evidence of continuous and healthy progress.

Of the labor expended on the present Directory it may not be out of place to say a word or two here. In the Prospectus the Publishers promised that no effort would be spared to produce a work which would worthily reflect the greatness, the energy, and the progressive spirit of the important Province of Quebec. That promise they have kept in view throughout the long interval of preparation, and they venture to think that it is amply fulfilled by the work which they now lay before the public.

In addition to the lists of names, the Directory comprises miscellaneous information relating to the Province and to Canada generally. Historical sketches of the Provinces of Quebec and Ontario are also included. In this connection it is the pleasing duty of the Publishers to make grateful mention of the kindness which in so many instances facilitated their researches. To the Postmasters, and other gentlemen, throughout the Province, the Publishers are under special obligations.

Montreal, May 15, 1890.

HISTORICAL SKETCHES

OF THE

PROVINCES OF QUEBEC AND ONTARIO.

QUEBEC AND ONTARIO.

As the division of Canada into two prowinces did not take place till 1791, and as the two sections were reunited in 1840, and were not disjoined until the confederation of the provinces in 1867, much repetition will be avoided by including in one sketch the principal events in the history of the whole province as it existed before confederation.

I. CANADA UNDER FRENCH RULE.

The history of Canada is naturally divided into two great epochs: the period of French rule and that of British rule. Of the former period, the most prominent events were the incessant wars of the colonists with the native inhabitants, and with the neighboring colonies of Britain. The second period has been remarkable as an era of wonderful expansion and prosperity, especially in Western Canada. The most prominent events are the introduction of a representative system of Government, the division of the province, the war with the United States, the political struggles arising out of hostility of race, the rebellion, followed by the reunion of the provinces, the institution of "Responsible Government," and the concession to the Legislative Assembly of entire control over revenue and expenditure; and, lastly, confederation with the other British provinces.

EARLY VOYAGES AND DISCOVERIES.

It was on the 3rd of August, 1492, that Columbus, with his little fleet of three vessels, sailed on his memorable voyage of discovery from Palos, a port on the coast of

After the lapse of another month, during which the spirit of the commander was sorely tried by the murmurs and menaces of mutinous and superstitious crews, Columbus left his ship on the 11th of October, and planted the flag of Spain on an island to which he gave the name of San Salvador. Several months were spent in exploration, and then the great explorer set sail for home on the 4th of January, 1493, and arrived safely at Palos.

The discoveries of Columbus excited a spirit of enterprise and adventure throughout Europe, and subsequent explorers had not to encounter the great difficulties which long baffled the efforts of the pioneer adventurer, to procure means to prosecute his voyage. Newfoundland and Prince Edward Island were discovered by the Cabots. Other discoveries followed in quick succession; but it was not till 1534 that the discovery of old Canada (Ontario and Quebec) was made by Jaques Cartier, a navigator in the service of Francis I., King of France. The kings of Spain and Portugal protested against the proposed expedition under Cartier as an encroachment on their territorial rights "What!" Francis is reported to have ex claimed, "do they expect to share all America between them? I should like to see the clause in our father Adam's will that makes them sole heirs to so vast a heritage."

Cartier, with two small vessels, sailed from the port of St. Malo, on the coast of Brittany, on the 20th of April, 1534. Arriving off the coast of Newfoundland after a favorable voyage, he passed through the Straits of Belle Isle into the Gulf of the St Lawrence, and sailed southward to the Baie des Chaleurs. It was early in July when he reached the Bay, and the heat of the weather caused him to give it the name it has since borne. Finally, on the 24th of July, he landed on the peninsula of Gaspé, and took possession of the country in the name of the French king. A few days later he set sail for France, taking with him two of the natives. The report of his discoveries excited so much interest at home that the following year he was sent out with three vessels, well manned and equipped. On this occasion he sailed up the gulf. Having anchored in a little bay at the mouth of the River St. John on St. Lawrence day, he named the bay after that saint, and the name was after ward extended to the gulf and river. Ascending the St. Lawrence, he arrived at the Island of Orleans, where he was received in a friendly manner by Donnacona, the Algonquin chief. He then proceeded to a native settlement, called Stadacona, near the mouth of the St. Charles. Here he moored his vessels, boldly resolving to winter in the country. Having heard accounts from the natives of a large settlement further up, he was induced, in the month of September, to ascend the St. Lawrence as far as Hochelaga (Montreal), where he was welcomed with the most friendly manifestations by the Huron Indians.* The beautiful mountain lying to the west was named by him Mount Royal. The winter was now approaching, and Cartier returned to Stadacona (close by Quebec), where he entrenched himself near his ships.

The expedition suffered greatly during the long winter that ensued. The cold was intense. Most of the sailors were attacked by scurvy, and before the snow disappeared one-fourth of their number had perished by disease. In spring, Cartier made haste to return to France. On his departure he abused the confidence of the friendly natives, by seizing their chief, Donnacona, and four Indians, and carrying them off to France, where they all soon died.

The origin of the name Canada, it may be mentioned here, is somewhat obscure. Some would derive it from the Spanish or Portuguese, by putting together the words Ca, here, and nada, nothing, supposed to have been uttered by the first explorers when they found no precious metals. Others, with better reason, conjecture that Jacques Cartier, having heard the natives apply the Indian word Kannatha (or village) to their settlements. mistook it for the name of the whole country

Harassed by wars with Spain, and distracted by religious dissensions at home, the French were unable to give as much atten_ tion to the newly discovered territories as their importance deserved. Five years elapsed after Cartier's return before another expedition was organized. This was placed under the command of a distinguished soldier, the Sieur de Roberval, who received a commission as viceroy of the colony to be founded. Cartier sailed in advance of Roberval, in command of a flotilla of fivevessels. After a stormy passage he arrivedin the gulf, and again ascended the St. Lawrence to Stadacona or Quebec. Here the French colonists who had been brought out landed, and began to prepare ground for cultivation. Cartier continued his voyage to Hochelaga, and endeavored to pass the Lachine rapids, but without success. The summer passed away without any intelligence being received respecting the movements of Roberval, who was to have followed him out; so Cartier resolved to spend the winter in the country. The Indians, mindful of his former treachery, were far from friendly, and he deemed it prudent to erect two small forts at Cape Rouge, for the protection of his winter quarters. In the spring, the natives showing signs of increasing hostility, Cartier sailed for France, where he died a few years later. Before his death he was ennobled by the king for his distinguished services, and his heirs received a license to trade in Canada. We read of his nephews being engaged subsequently in the peltry traffic.

* It is hardly necessary to say that the term "Indians" arose from a mistake of the first discoverers, who thought America was part of the "Indies," or Asia.

layed for one year, met Cartier near Newfoundland (or, as some say, near Quebec), and vainly endeavored to prevent his return. Roberval then continued his voyage to Cap Rouge, where he remained for some time. Little is known regarding his movements during the year that he spent in Canada. He is said to have explored the River Saguenay, and other parts of the country. During the winter fifty of his colonists perished. In 1543, he returned to France at the request of the king, who required his services in the war with Spain, which was about to recommence. This was the last expedition for six years.

In 1549, Roberval, having been permitted to organize another expedition, set out for Canada, but was lost in the passage across the Atlantic, with all his followers. This disaster led to the abandonment of French settlements in Canada, For many years there was no opportunity to renew them, France being engaged in wars with Spain and Austria, and harassed by civil and religious dissensions. During this period England made no attempt to acquire territory in Canada, contenting herself with a nominal claim on Newfoundland for fishing purposes.

Passing over Ribaut's ill-fated Huguenot expedition to Florida, with which we are not concerned in the present sketch, we come to the next attempt to found a colony in Canada. In 1598, the Marquis de la Roche was appointed lieutenant-general, or viceroy, of New France, with very extensive powers. De la Roche landed most of his colonists, who were chiefly convicts, on Ile de Sable. His ship being afterward driven off the coast by a storm, he was forced to return to France. There he was arrested and kept prisoner in Brittany by an enemy of the king, and no aid was sent to the unhappy convicts on Sable Island till five years had elapsed, when only twelve were found living.

PERMANENT SETTLEMENTS IN NEW FRANCE.

We come now to the voyages of Champlain, a distinguished naval officer, whose name is honorably connected with Canadian exploration and settlement. His first voyage was made in 1603, under the auspices of a company of French merchants trading in furs. The little fleet consisted of three small vessels of twelve to fifteen tons each. Champlain ascended the St. Lawrence to Hochelaga, but was prevented by the Lachine rapids from passing upward. He, however, diligently collected all the information that could be obtained from the natives respecting the country above the rapids, and sketched a map for the king. Henry IV. was well pleased with the account of the expedition, and appointed de Monts, a Huguenot, lieu tenant-general of Acadie, with extensive trading privileges. In the ensuing years, settlements were formed at Port Royal (Annapolis) and other places in Acadie

In 1608, Champlain sailed a third time from France on a voyage to the St. Lawrence. On the 3rd of July he reached the point of land, now the Lower Town of Quebec, where he erected a fort, and cabins for the accommodation of his men. Thus were laid the foundations of the famous city of Quebec. The name is Indian, Kebec, a strait. This was the first permanent settlement in Canada.

For some years Champlain pursued the congenial work of exploration. His enemies, indeed, made it a matter of reproach that he was more fond of exploring the country than of improving the facilities for trade, and thus increasing the profits of the fur company. About this time wars between the Iroquis and other Indian tribes appear to have been waged with great ferocity. The weaker tribes, the Hurons and Algonquins, sought the aid of their powerful neighbors, the French, and Champlain unfortunately granted the request. Thus commenced the terrible wars with Indians which fill so dark a page in the early annals of the colony. The first blood was shed in 1609, when Champlain took part with the Hurons in an attack on some Iroquois cantons. The terror inspired by the loud report of European firearms, and the havoc caused by each discharge, caused the Iroquois to fly on this and other occasions. Few years elapsed, however, before they fought on more equal terms, and manifested a courage unsurpassed by any other race.

In 1611, Champlain established a trading post at Montreal, and named the adjacent island Ste. Hélène, after his wife. The death of Henry IV. deprived de Monts of his influence at court, and great rivalry in the fur trade ensued. In 1613, Champlain, who had endeavored to reconcile the conflicting pretensions of the trading companies, having at length secured the patronage of the Prince de Condé, as successor to the privileges enjoyed by de Monts, again sailed for Canada-He spent some time this year in exploring the Ottawa. Two years later he took out four Recollet fathers (a branch of the Franciscans), and a first effort was made to introduce Christianity among the Indians. Monastic establishments began to appear in the land, They were the most prominent buildings at the various settlements. At this time (1615), Champlain renewed his explorations of the upper Ottawa. Passing up the Mattawin river to Lake Nipissing, thence down the French river, he came to the Georgian Bay and Lake Huron. He spent some time in exploring those western parts, and visited several of the lodges of the Hurons. At length he reached Cahiague (now Orillia), one of the chief lodges of the Hurons, near Lake Simcoe. Champlain's relations with this tribe were very friendly, and he was induced to join them in a great expedition against their bitter enemies, the warlike Iroquois. The assault on the enemy was made suddenly and unexpectedly, but the Iroquois speedily rallied, and repulsed their assailants with great courage and determination. Champlain himself was wounded, and with his Indian allies was forced to retreat. Thus Champlain, who was the first, or among the first, to assist Indian against Indian, began to experience the disastrous consequences of his policy. The thirty years during which he was engaged in exploration were marked by incessant Indian conflicts. Treaties of peace were not long regarded. In 1622, for instance, a solemn treaty of peace was entered into between the Hurons and the Iroquois, but a few years later we read of fresh hostilities between these tribes.

About 1620 the Prince de Condé ceded the vice-royalty of Canada to Admiral Montmorency, who confirmed the appointment and powers of Champlain as deputy head and resident governor of the colony. About this time Champlain laid the foundations of a government house, known as the castle of St. Lewis, at Quebec. He also promulgated several ordinances for the maintenance of order in the colony. Very little was done in the way of tilling the soil, the attention of the colonists being engrossed by the more lucrative occupation of trading in furs. The number of permanent residents at Quebec, including the monks, did not exceed fifty. However, the colony was reinforced in 1625 by a band of Jesuit missionaries, who labored with the Recollet fathers for the conversion of the Indians.

THE HUNDRED PARTNERS.

Disputes concerning trading privileges were constantly occurring. The trading associations were bitter rivals. At length, in 1627, a new company called the Company of One Hundred Partners, or Associates, with extensive trading privileges, was organized under the patronage of Cardinal Richelieu. The powers of this new association were very extensive. The Hundred Partners were, in fact, rulers of the colony, with power to make laws within their limits, with attributes of seigniory and justiceship, etc. In return for their privileges the company undertook to send 4,000 persons to Canada during the fifteen years their charter was to be in force, and to aid these colonists in settling on lands to be appropriated to their use.

Shortly after this, war was declared between France and England. Tadousac, a trading station, was captured (1628) by Sir David Kertk, a French Huguenot refugee, who had entered the English service, and messengers were sent to Champlain to demand the surrender of Quebec. The request was peremptorily refused. To disguise the starving condition of the colonists, Champlain is said to have sumptuously entertained the messengers of Kertk. The English commander withdrew without making any attack on the place, but while cruising with his fleet in the gulf, the ships and stores sent out from France by the new company fell into his hands. The following year (1629) he resumed hostilities. The inhabitants of Quebec had been half starved during the winter from lack of the supplies which had been intercepted; no help came from France, and when in July, 1629, Kertk appeared in sight, the garrison capitulated. This was the first capture of Quebec. At the date of its surrender peace had been concluded between England and France at home. Champlain was carried to England, where he was set at liberty and permitted to return to France.

Three years afterward (1632), Canada, together with Nova Scotia and Cape Breton, was ceded to France by the Treaty of St. Germain en Laye. The following year Champlain was reappointed governor, and carried out with him abundance of stores. He sought to strengthen and build up the shattered colony, but his labors were soon interrupted by death. He expired on Christmas day, 1635, after thirty years' service in connection with Canadian exploration and settlement. The new governor sent out from France was Montmagny, who pursued the policy initiated by Champlain. Some consternation was caused (1638) by shocks of earthquake which were felt throughout the country. Similar shocks were experienced in 1663, and have frequently occurred in our own time.

In 1640, the island of Montreal was ceded by M. de Lauzon (who had acquired it from the Hundred Partners) to an association of thirty-five persons, by whom de Maisonneuve was instructed to found a settlement. The new town or colony was established near the Indian village of Hochelaga, and named Ville Marie, on the 18th day of May, 1642. The few buildings erected were surrounded by wooden palisades, for the protection of the place against Indian incursions. Such was the small beginning of Montreal city.

INDIAN WARS.

The war between the French and Hurons on one side and the Iroquois on the other was at this time waged with great ferocity. The Iroquois formed a design to wipe their enemies from the face of the land. The French posts were to be simultaneously attacked. The plot failed, but for some years the Indian braves carried on a war of extermination. The French were able to afford very slight assistance to their Huron allies. Their own existence was, in fact, almost daily in peril, for it must be remembered that the whole European population of Canada at this time did not exceed three hundred souls. Soldiers had to be sent from France to protect the enfeebled settlement. Ville Marie was put in a condition for defence by d'Aillebout; Fort Richelieu was erected at the mouth of the Richelieu, and other measures were adopted to check the incursions of the enemy.

In 1645, a truce was entered into with some of the Iroquois bands. The Company of the Hundred Partners had suffered enormous losses during these Indian wars, and were glad to renounce their rights for an annual rent payable in beaver skins. The inhabitants of Montreal, Quebec, and Three Rivers accordingly obtained from the company, on the above condition, the privilege of trading on their own account. The sanguinary conflict with the Indians soon broke out afresh. The unhappy Hurons were hunted to death without mercy throughout the length and breadth of the land. The French were wholly unable to afford their allies any protection. Several of the Jesuit missionaries, who were laboring amongst the Indians, died under cruel tortures inflicted by the Iroquois. The Huron tribes were almost annihilated. A few survivors sought refuge within the palisades of Quebec and other French forts, and were finally transferred to Lorette, where some of their descendants may still &e found.

So great was the terror inspired by the bitter hostility of the Iroquois, that when the New England colonies (1648-1651) put forward a project of colonial union with Canada, the French governor refused to negotiate, unless the New Englanders consented to aid the French in humbling the power of their Indian foes. Now the Iroquois, while harassing the French to death, had been fast friends of the English, and such a stipulation would have been extremely ungrateful on the part of the latter. So the negotiations were broken off. The incident only served to increase the fury of the Iroquois. For some years trade was paralyzed, and the French were in serious danger of being driven from the country. "The war with the Iroquois," says a chronicle of 1653, "has dried up all sources of prosperity. The beavers are allowed to build their dams in peace, none being able or willing to molest them." It must be borne in mind that at this time the Iroquois were in possession of fire-arms, and had learned to use them with fatal effect. At length, in 1653, reinforcements being received from France, the governor was enabled to act vigorously on the offensive. European discipline prevailed. The Iroquois lost heart when they saw the number of their foes suddenly doubled by arrivals from the unknown land beyond the seas. They were induced to sue for peace, and a treaty was concluded the following year (1654).

During this time several changes had taken place in the government. It had been decided to change the governors of French dependencies every three years. Montmagny was succeeded in 1647 by d'Aillebout, and he, in turn, was superseded by de Lauzon in 1651.

In 1656, another alarm was caused by incursions of the Iroquois, and war again prevailed, with brief intervals of respite, for several years. D'Argenson came out (1658) as governor in the place of de Lauzon, and in 1661, d'Avaugour, a very able governor, succeeded.

Up to this period, progress had been very slow, especially when contrasted with the rapid strides of modern times. The inhabitants of the settlement at Quebeo did not number a thousand, and the whole population of Canada of European origin fell short of 2,500. The mode of colonization had been semi-religious. Jesuit and Recollet missionaries penetrated the country in all directions, and endeavored to win the natives to the Christian faith. There was not a printing press in the colony till long afterward. A very small portion of the soil was brought under cultivation. The residents, occupied for the most part in trade, did not raise sufficient produce for their subsistence, and depended largely on supplies from the mother country. The principal buildings seem to have been the monastic establishments. Ecclesiastics exercised magisterial authority in the parishes. An incident related by Garneau, which led to dissension between the governor and ecclesiastical authorities, throws some light upon the state of affairs at this time. Selling liquor to Indians was prohibited under the severest penalties. The governor, d'Avaugour, had caused three men to be shot at one time for this crime. A widow being subsequently taken to prison for the same offence, one Père Lallemant not only interceded for her, but justified her act. The governor angrily exclaimed that if the law was to be enforced in this irregular and partial manner, he would cease to enforce it at all. On their side, the priests refused absolution to those who engaged in the liquor traffic with Indians, and the bishop publicly excommunicated the offenders. Dissensions arising from conflict of jurisdiction continued till, unfortunately for the colony, the governor was recalled. On resigning the reins of government, d'Avaugour drew up a document strongly recommending that France should, without loss of time, strengthen her footing in Canada. He advised that three thousand picked soldiers, accustomed to agricultural pursuits, should be located in the country, and assisted from Imperial sources till they had firmly established themselves.

SOVEREIGN AUTHORITY RESUMED.

In 1663, the Company of One Hundred Partners, which had not fulfilled the obligations imposed on it, was formally dissolved by Louis XIV., and a sovereign council, composed of the principal officers of civil government residing in the colony, M. Laval, the first bishop, who had come out in 1659, and other distinguished persons, was established at Quebec. This council acted also as a court of appeal from the district courts. In each of the three districts, Quebec, Three Rivers and Montreal, there was a judge appointed by the king, who had full power to decide all matters, both civil and criminal, that arose within the district. Besides the regular courts, judicial authority was vested in the intendant. This power was exercised generally in matters of small amount. The owners of seigniories were also authorized under certain restrictions to administer justice within their seigniories.

The new governor, appointed by the influence of Bishop Laval and the Jesuits, after d'Avaugour's recall, was de Mesy. He was the first royal governor under the new constitution. He landed at Quebec in the summer of 1663, but a year had hardly elapsed before fresh disputes arose between him and Bishop Laval, in consesquence of the interference of the latter in demporal affairs. The recall of the governor was therefore at once resolved on by his adversaries, and it was not long before they brought it about. The governor died before the command to return reached him, but he declared with his latest breath that in all his acts he had ever had in view the prosperity of the colony. Whilst these events were taking place in the colony, the trading interests of Canada were conceded to the West India Company by a royal edict in May, 1664. As to the law of the country, the "Custom of Paris" was at this time introduced to the exclusion of all other French coutumes. The Marquis de Tracy was chosen to fill the office of lieutenant general. Talon, another officer of ability, was sent out as intendant, and de Courcelles, an administrator of great tact and prudence, was appointed to succeed de Mesy as governor. The new rulers were cautioned by Colbert, the French minister, to avoid disputes with the Jesuits, and recommended to devote themselves to strengthening and building up the colony.

These were days of sunshine to the struggling inhabitants. For a space only too brief, things assumed an air of prosperity. The men in authority displayed great zeal and energy in advancing the interests of the colonists. Settlers were brought out from France; cattle and agricultural implements were imported. The audacity of the Indians was checked by a decisive expedition commanded by de Tracy. The Iroquois sued for peace, and in 1667 a treaty was concluded with them which lasted eighteen years.

The reports sent home by Talon advised that the colony should be taken out of the hands of the West India Company. This recommendation was acted upon, and freedom of trade with the natives and the mother country was conceded to the inhabitants. Talon strove to encourage agriculture. Horses were first introduced into the colony in 1665. The Carignan regiment, which had come out with Tracy, was permitted to remain, and the soldiers were encouraged to settle in the country. Talon, being in ill health, was forced to solicit his recall in 1668, but the following year he was persuaded to resume office, and sailed from France with 700 emigrants.

destined to occupy a distinguished place in the history of Canada, came out as governor in the place of de Courcelles. Talon now retired from his office of intendant. At this date the population had increased to nearly six thousand souls.

Frontenac was a high-spirited soldier of very fair abilities. Shrewd and discerning in his views, he was also quick and impetuous in action. The position of Quebec excited his admiration on landing. "It could not have been better placed," he said, "if it had been expressly selected as the capital of a great empire." The new governor was also favorably impressed by the dignity and eloquence of the Indian chiefs. In 1673, having been present at a conference with Iroquois chiefs at Cataraqui, he remarked, in a letter to the Minister of State: "You would assuredly have been surprised, my lord, had you listened to the eloquent oratory, and remarked the subtle spirit with which all the deputies harangued and reasoned. Did I not fear to incur your ridicule, I would venture to intimate that the noble presence of these deputies, in conference with me, recalled to my mind somewhat a meeting of the senate of Venice."

In his efforts to improve the condition of the colony, Frontenac was unfortunate enough to excite the opposition and enmity of the Jesuits. Grave dissensions soon commenced between the governor and other dignitaries. Frontenac having imprisoned Perrot, the governor of Montreal, for treasonable conduct, the side of the accused was openly espoused by Fenelon, the parish priest of Montreal. The ecclesiastics denied that jurisdiction could be exercised by them over the sovereign council, and contended that they could be summoned to appear only before their bishop. The intendant, Duchesneau, sided with the ecclesiastics. Fresh trouble was created by the liquor traffic. We cannot follow here the course of these unfortunate disputes. The king censured his servants, but attempted in vain to check their quarrels, which proceeded to such a height that both Frontenac and Duchesneau were recalled in 1682.

INDIAN WARS RENEWED.

The new governor, de la Barre, came out at a critical time. Another Indian war was imminent. The New England colonists offered the Indians better prices for their skins, and exchanged goods on far easier terms than the French traders, fettered by trade restrictions, could afford to offer. Much ill feeling prevailed on this account among the natives. The conjuncture required a prudent and conciliatory course. De la Barre, who lacked ability and experience, proved unequal tothe occasion. After some months of indecision, an expedition set out and advanced as far as Lake Ontario. Here envoys from the Iroquois met the governor, and de la Barre concluded a disgraceful treaty, by which he abandoned some of his Indian allies to the mercy of the Iroquois. The treaty was disallowed by the king, who immediately recalled the governor, and sent out the Marquis de Denonville to replace him. The new governor was braveand determined, but entered with slight. experience on duties of great difficulty... His instructions were to repel the encroachments of the Iroquois, and compel them to keep the peace with their neighbors. The hatred of these powerful tribes to the French had grown with the lapse of years, and was embittered by a long course of hostility. At this time, moreover, the Iroquois were incensed by a discreditable act of treachery on the part of the governor. Having decoyed some Indian braves to Cataraqui, under pretence of a conference, he caused them to be seized and sent to France to work in the galleys.

Having obtained reinforcements from France, the governor led an expedition against the Iroquois, which was successful in the field; but as soon as the steps of the marquis were turned homeward, the for reappeared with unabated spirit. The ort at Niagara was suddenly attacked by them and completely destroyed. An ineffectual attempt was made to negotiate a treaty through the intervention of Col. Dongan, the governor of New York. The critical state of affairs was vividly depicted as follows by the governor in a despatch to Paris, Aug. 10th, 1688: "The savages are just so many animals of prev, scattered through a vast forest, whence they are ever ready to issue, to plunder and kill in the adjoining country. To go in pursuit of them after their ravages is a constant but almost bootless task. They have no settled habitation to which they can be traced with any certainty. They must be watched for everywhere and long waited for, with fire-arms ready primed; many of their lurking places could be reached only by blood-hounds, or by other savages as trackers. But those in our service are few, and the native allies we have are seldom trustworthy. They fear the enemy more than they love us; and they dread, on their own account, to drive the Iroquois to extremity. It has been resolved, in the present strait, to erect a fortress in every seigniory, as a place of shelter for helpless people and live stock, at times when the open country is overrun with savages. As matters now stand, the arable grounds lie far apart, and are so surrounded by bush, that every thicket serves as a covert for the foe; so that an army would be needed to protect the tillers of our cleared lands."

The following year (1689) war was declared by France against England, for the purpose of aiding James II. A bold project, suggested by Chevalier de Callières, of attacking the English posts at New York and Albany, was under consideration by the French authorities, when a terrible disaster fell upon the colony. The Iroquois, who for some months had been unusually tranquil, without the slightest warning, in the month of August, appeared in force near Montreal, and in one night massacred the entire population of Lachine. Two hundred persons were slaughtered or burnt alive on the spot, and others, less fortunate, were carried away to die by torture. The invaders also assailed and captured the fort at Montreal, and kept possession of the island till the month of October. The colonists, stupefied by terror, made no effort to drive off their enemies, and everywhere throughout the land the Indians held the upper hand till the approach of winter, when they retired suddenly to their settlements.

In the meantime, Frontenac, who had been reappointed governor, was on his way out to assume the direction of affairs. His coming was hailed with joy by the terrified inhabitants, who had endured much misery through the incapacity of the last two governors. Fresh spirit was infused into the colonists. The incursions. of the Iroquois were everywhere repelled with energy. The Canadian villages were enclosed by palisades, and protected by cannon. The project of attacking the New England settlements, which had received the sanction of Louis, was now prosecuted with some success. Unhappily these successes were sullied by terrible atrocities. Helpless inhabitants of the places that fell into the hands of the invaders were slaughtered without mercy.

The New Englanders, who seem to have been taken by surprise by the sudden attack of Frontenac, speedily concerted measures of defence and reprisal. In 1690, a squadron of 35 sail, with 2,000 militia men on board, left Boston under command of Sir William Phipps, afterward governor of Massachusetts. The fleet captured Port. Royal (Annapolis), and other places in Nova Scotia, and on the morning of the 16th October, Quebec was summoned to surrender at discretion. Frontenac returned. a haughty refusal, and the batteries opened fire upon the English ships. The strength of the defences baffled all the efforts of the besieging force, and the fleet was compelled. to retire. A land expedition under Winthrop, which was to have co-operated with Phipps in the attack on Canada, returned without accomplishing anything.

During the succeeding years hostilities were continued between the French and English colonists. Each side sought to enlist as many of the savage tribes as it could, and to render the aid of these allies more effective, the Indians were instructed in the use of fire-arms. The Iroquois who fell into the hands of their enemies were often cruelly burned or tortured to death, in revenge for similar atrocities practised by their own tribes. Under Frontenac's energetic direction, the Canadians were enabled to get possession of the English posts in the Hudson Bay territory.

At length, in 1697, the treaty of Ryswick put an end for a time to the exhausting conflict between the colonies. By this treaty France agreed to restore all places in America that had been taken during the war. The restoration of peace was welcome intelligence at Quebec. The colonists, who had ceased to till their lands and had taken refuge within the palisades of the towns from the ferocity of the savages, now ventured back to their farms.

The following year (1698) Count de Frontenac died, at the age of 77, deeply regretted by his countrymen in New France, whom he had rescued from almost total extermination. De Callières, who had long been governor of Montreal, succeeded him.

In 1700, the French concluded a long hoped for treaty of peace with the Iroquois confederation. The treaty was solemnly confirmed at Montreal on the 4th of August, 1701. Thirteen hundred natives, the representatives of many tribes, took part in the ceremonies.

In 1703, France and England being again at war, there was as usual a renewal of hostilities between their colonies. On this occasion the French were fortunate in having the formidable Iroquois neutral by virtue of the solemn treaty of 1701. In the spring of 1711, another expedition against Canada was organized by the New England colonies, aided by British troops. The object was to capture Quebec. But the fleet was dispersed in the gulfby a storm, and many of the vessels were lost. Peace was restored by the treaty of Utrecht in 1713.

Vaudreuil, who had succeeded de Callières as governor in 1703, introduced some improvements in the municipal system, and caused a census to be taken. Montreal was walled in, and the fortifications of Quebec. were enlarged and strengthened. The governor earnestly called the attention of the home authorities to the weak state of the colony as contrasted with the flourishing condition of the New England provinces. In 1714, he wrote home that Canada contained but 4,484 inhabitants capable of bearing arms for its defence, in addition to 620 colonial troops. The British colonies were represented as having 60,000 males fit for war: and it was not doubted that as soon as war commenced an attempt would be made by them to achieve the conquest of Canada Vaudreuil was succeeded in 1726 by the Marquis de Beauharnois, whose long administration of twenty-one years was for the most part peaceful. The population increased from 22,000 in 1719 to nearly 50,000 in 1744. The value of the exports in 1749 exceeded £100,000 stg. There were some petty conflicts with Indians, and there were some disputes between the governor and the intendant, Dupuis; but up to 1745 the colony enjoyed immunity from external assaults. In 1745 peace was again disturbed. The contest, however, was not so much on Canadian soil as in the maritime parts. The strong fortress of Louisbourg was taken by the New Englanders, and an expedition projected against Canada. A. French fleet, under the Duke d'Anville, sent to retake Louisbourg, was dispersed by terrible storms. The peace of Aix-la-Chapelle, in 1748, put an end to the conflict, and France and England mutually restored the territory acquired by either during the war.

But a warm debate immediately commenced as to the boundaries of their respective possessions in the New World. The territory in dispute was very extensive, comprising the whole of the seaboard on the north side of the Bay of Fundy, and also the Valley of the Ohio, connecting the French possessions in Louisiana with Canada. A joint commission, French and British, was appointed to settle the question. A conference took place at Paris, but the commission extended over five years without any definite result. Meanwhile the quarrel in America was daily growing in violence-Each party sought to make good its pretensions by encroachments on the debatable territory. In 1750, three English traders were arrested under the authority of the French governor in the disputed territory of the Ohio Valley. Redress being withheld, reprisals were made. After some years -consumed in futile negotiation, the war, generally known as the Seven Years' War, commenced. The colonial forces on both sides were reinforced from Europe, Gen, Braddock came out from England to command the militia and regulars. A strong British force, under his command, marched against Fort Duquesne, at the junction of the Ohio and Monongahela rivers: but pressing on too eagerly, in July, 1755, the men fell into an ambuscade near the fort and were cut to pieces. Gen. Braddock and most of the mounted officers were killed. The celebrated Gen. Washington, who was serving under Braddock at this time, wrote as follows of the disaster: "We have been beaten, shamefully beaten by a handful of French, who only expected to obstruct our advance. Shortly before the action we thought our forces were equal to all the enemy in Canada; we have been most unexpectedly defeated, and now all is lost," On the other hand, it was not long before the French met with reverses. Baron Dieskau brought from France a large force in 1755. After some slight successes his army was defeated, and he himself wounded and taken prisoner in an attack on Col. Johnson's camp near Fort William, at the head of Lake George.

The struggle for supremacy in the New World now assumed serious proportions. War was formally declared by England and France (1756). At the urgent representation of the Canadian authorities large reinforcements were sent out. Gen. Montcalm and Gen. de Levis came out to Canada early in the year of 1856, with a considerable force, together with supplies of provision8 and munitions of war. Sixteen hundred men had been sent out the previous year, and the colony furnished a thousand more. Nor was the British Government lacking in energy. Money was freely voted to arm and equip the provincial militia. Gen. Abercrombie came out from England with large reinforcements, and Lord Loudon was appointed commander-in-chief. After some minor incidents the campaign terminated unfavorably for the English. The important place called Fort Oswego, erected by them on the south-eastern shore of Lake Ontario, surrendered to Montcalm, and fourteen hundred prisoners and a large quantity of stores fell into the hands of the French. This expedition had been planned by the governor, Vaudreuil Cavagnal, Gen. Montcalm undertaking it apparently against his own judgment in obedience to the governor's orders.

The following summer passed without any important engagement. The inhabitants of Canada suffered during this period great privation from the scarcity of food. In France dissatisfaction began to be expressed at the great cost of maintaining and defending the colony. In 1758 Lord Loudon, the English commander-in-chief, who had failed to evince any military capacity, was superseded by General Abercrombie. A great effort was made, and successfully enable the English colonies to send into the field a large force of militia. The strong post of Louisbourg, in Cape Breton, fell into the hands of the British forces. In other quarters the campaign was ineffective. Gen. Abercrombie led an expedition against Fort Ticonderoga (Carillon), where Montcalm was strongly intrenched. The attack on the fort, persisted in during several hours with great gallantry, was repulsed with heavy loss to the English. This misfortune was in some measure retrieved by a successful expedition against Fort Frontenac under Colonel Bradstreet. The fort was taken, together with a great quantity of stores, shipping, and several pieces of cannon. This achievement destroyed the power of the French on the great lakes.

The English were also successful in their operations in the Ohio Valley. A force of regulars and militia marched against Fort Duquesne, and the commandant, despairing of being able to make a successful defence, destroyed the fort and retreated.

The following summer (1759) decided the contest. Gen. Amherst came out to replace Gen. Abercrombie. The French, being now compelled to act on the defensive, endeavored to strengthen their fortified posts. The number of males able to bear arms was estimated at 15,200, and of regular soldiers there were 5,300. Provisions were at famine prices. The farmers, having for the most part been engaged in campaigning, had been unable to cultivate their fields, whilst the scarcity of food was increased by the fraud and cupidity of certain officials intrusted with the purchase of stores, who enriched themselves at the public expense. Montcalm, who was at variance with the governor, earnestly solicited his own recall as the only reward he desired for his services. The king, reluctant to comply with this request in the critical position of Canadian affairs, recommended the general and governor to reconcile their differences, and accorded them promotion and honors.

The campaign of 1759 did not open till June, when the British forces took the field in three divisions. One, under Gen. Prideaux, was to attack Fort Niagara; the second, under Gen. Amberst, was to make another attempt to take Fort Ticonderoga, a the outlet of Lake George; the third, under the celebrated General Wolfe, was to assail Quebec, where the other divisions of the army were to assemble after carrying out their parts of the general plan. The expedition against Fort Niagara was successful, but General Prideaux fell during the siege. The French retreated from Fort Ticonderoga, and entrenched themselves at Isle aux Noix, where the British allowed them to remain unmolested during the winter.

The expedition against Quebec is that which is most memorable in the annals of Canada. The French had made every preparation in their power for the defence of the city. The buoys had been removed from the channel of the river. Fire ships were in readiness to be launched into the midst of the enemy's fleet, and booms were constructed across the River St. Charles. All the difficulties of the navigation having been overcome, the English fleet, carrying Generals Wolfe, Monckton, Townshend and Murray, and a considerable army, arrived at: the Island of Orleans on the 25th of June. The fireships sent against the fleet proved ineffectual. Gen. Monckton took up his position at Point Levis, and commenced to bombard the city. Wolfe's encampments was on the left bank of the Montmorencia river. The French were intrenched in rear of Beauport. The month of July was spent. by the b siegers in preparations. They carefully examined the defences, and endeavored to find some vulnerable point. On the last day of the month Wolfe attacked Montcalm's camp, but was repulsed. It was now resolved to make the assault from above the city. Montcalm'seems to have looked upon his position on this side as perfectly secure. "We need not suppose," he wrote to the governor, "that our enemies have wings to enable them in one night to cross the river, disembark, and ascend steep and rugged paths." Wolfe, however, quietly prepared for the desperate undertaking, disguising his intention from the enemy as far as possible. The landing was successfully effected during the night of the 12th of September, at the point now called Wolfe's Cove. The sen-

The English awaited the onset, and when the advancing line was close at hand, fired a deadly volley which threw the French ranks into confusion. Wolfe followed up the temporary success by a charge, himself leading on the grenadiers. At this moment, however, he received a mortal wound, and was carried to the rear. The French were giving way in confusion. Montcalm, while endeavoring to rally his flying troops, also fell mortally wounded. As Wolfe's last moment was fast approaching, the cry "They run! they run!" fell upon his ear. "Who run?" eagerly inquired the dying hero. "The French," was the reply. "Then I die in peace," he murmured, and immediately expired. The gallant Montcalm also died the following day.

The citadel held out a few days, but on the 18th of September, the garrison surren dered to Gen. Townshend. The loss of the English is stated at 700, and of the Fren n at 1500.

The announcement that Quebec had fallen was received with great joy in England and in her American colonies. Both sides prepared earnestly for the approaching campaign, the result of which was hardly doubtful. The French concentrated their diminished forces with the design of retaking Quebec, which had been garrisoned for the winter with an army numbering seven or eight thousand. Gen. de Levis, who had taken command on the death of Montcalm, pitched his camp, in April, 1760, in the rear of the city, with an army of eight or nine thousand mon. Gen. Murray marched out to meet him, but after a sharp encounter was forced to retire within the fortifications. A few days later, having received the reinforcements which he had been anxiously expecting from England, he resumed the offensive, and compelled de Levis to raise the siege and retreat.

The French cause in Canada was now in a desperate extremity, and the mother country was unable to send adequate assistance. The Canadian militia commenced to give in their submission to General Murray, and the regulars deserted in great numbers. Isle aux Noix, where the French had entrenched themselves the previous summer, and Forts Oswegatchie and Levis, were the next points of attack. These forts successively passed into the hands of the English. and then the victorious armies, from Quebec, Lake Champlain and Oswego, converged on Montreal. The united strength of the beleaguering forces under Gen. Amherst was 17,000 men. Resistance was hopeless, and Vaudreuil proposed a capitulation, which was agreed to and signed on the 8th of September, 1760. Thus was brought to a close the era of French dominion in Canada.

II. CANADA UNDER ENGLISH RULE FROM THE CONQUEST TO THE QUEBEC ACT-1760-1774.

The Canadian people were secured by the terms of the capitulation in the free exercise of their religion. Vaudreuil and de Levis, with the troops and the principal civil and military officers, as well as many of the colonists, embarked for France, where some of the officials who had been guilty of peculation and abuse of trust were brought to trial, condemned and punished.

Peace was concluded by the Treaty of Paris signed 10th February, 1763. By this Treaty, France ceded to England the whole of her possessions in North America with a few insignificant exceptions.

The Indian allies of the French did not acquiesce without a struggle in the new order of things. A vast conspiracy was hatched in 1763 by Pontiac, a noted chief of the Ottawa tribe, who was not friendly to British power. The object of the plot was nothing less than the simultaneous capture of the chain of forts extending from Lake Michigan to the Niagara. The conspiracy failed of entire success, but nine British posts were assailed, and the garrisons massacred. The Indians sustained a defeat at Bushy Run, near Fort Pitt, and the garrison was relieved. Pontiac was soon forced to abandon the siege of Detroit; the Indian forces began to melt away, and the hostile tribes were glad to obtain terms, and accept the proffered friendship and protection of the new lords of the soil.

At the time of the Conquest the population numbered only 75,000 souls, including 8,000 Indians. The pages of this Directory disclose how great has been the advance during the period which has since elapsed It is worthy of note that not until after the Cession was a printing press used for the first time in Canada. The first number of the first newspaper-the Quebec Gazetteappeared June 21st, 1764.

The country, which now received the name of the Province of Quebec, remained for some years under military rule. Gen. Murray, after the peace, was appointed the first Governor General; Gen. Gage was in command of the Montreal District, and Col. Burton of the Three Rivers District. The Executive Council was composed of the lieutenant governors of Montreal and Three Rivers, the chief justice, the inspector-general of customs, and eight of the leading inhabitants of the colony.

In 1766, Gen. Carleton, afterwards Lord Dorchester, was appointed Governor General-Gen. Carleton, who had taken a prominent part in the capture of Quebec, continued to be connected with Canada for six-and-thirty years.

The French Canadians, who constituted the immense majority of the inhabitants, were not slow to express dissatisfaction at the continuance of military rule. The administration of the civil law was defective. The barristers and judges not understanding French, the people were under the necessity of carrying on their lawsuits in the English language. Memorials were addressed to the Crown by the discontented majority. In 1770, the Governor went to England to give testimony respecting the affairs of the province. The result of the inquiry was the passing of the "Quebec Act" by the English Parliament in 1774, for reconstructing the Government of the Province of Quebec. This measure provided for the free exercise of the Roman Catholic religion by the French Canadians, subject to the king's supremacy, and that the clergy of the Church of Rome might "hold, receive and enjoy their accustomed dues and rights, with respect to such persons only as shall profess the said religion." It further provided that "in all matters of controversy relative to property and civil rights, resort shall be had to the laws of Canada, as the rule for the decision of the same." The Act confirmed the criminal law of England as the law to be administered in the province. It furtherprovided for the establishment of a Legislative Council, to consist of residents appointed by the king, not exceeding 23, nor less than 17, in numcer. Thus, by express provisions of the Legislature of the mother country, the inhabitants of the conquered territory were secured in the enjoyment of their civil rights, the free exercise of their religion, and the protection of their own civil laws and customs. This liberality to the French Canadians was displeasing to some of the British residents, and was denounced by the Congress of the other American colonies which met in Philadelphia in September, but was highly acceptable to the French Canadian clergy, as well as to the principal French-speaking inhabitants of the colony.

FROM THE QUEBEC ACT TO THE DIVISION OF THE PROVINCE-1774-1791.

The colonies, which had so recently exerted themselves for the extension of British rule in North America, were now on the point of offering armed resistance to the mother country. The same year in which the Quebec Act became law, Canada received an invitation to send representatives to Philadelphia to concert measures of union and defence. But if the French Canadians disliked the British, who had recently come amongst them, they felt a still greater hatred and distrust of their fellow colonists in New England; and the Congress had increased this feeling by its denunciation of the Quebec Act. "Nor can we suppress our astonishment," it had been declared in a document addressed to the people of Great Britain, "that a British Parliament should ever consent to establish in that colony (Canada) a religion that often drenched your island in blood, and has disseminated impiety, bigotry, persecution, murder and rebellion through every part of the world." Canada, with this document before it, shewed no disposition to take part in the Congress.

The following year coercive measures were resorted to by the revolutionists. Arnold led an army against Quebec, and Generals Montgomery and Schuyler against Montreal. There were few British troops in the province, and the invaders advanced without much difficulty over large tracts of the country. The forts of Ticonderoga and Crown Point, on Lake Champlain; and Isle aux Noix, St. Johns, Chambly and Sorel, fell into the hands of Montgomery. The Americans still hoped that the Canadians would make common cause with them. A conciliatory address to the people was issued and widely circulated. The sympathizers with the revolutionary cause were, in truth, not few, and the ranks of the invading army were daily swelled by deserters. The French Canadians refused to make common cause with the revolutionists, but they likewise refused, for the most part, to bear arms against them. The British population was a mere handful. Montreal could make no effectual resistance, and presently Quebec was the only place that held the enemy in check. The strength of its defenses saved the city, and probably the colony. Carleton, with only sixteen hundred men, of whom six hundred were militia, was able to repel all attacks. General Montgomery fell in an unsuccessful assault upon Quebec, made on the 31st of December.

In the spring of 1776, the English received einforcements. The American army, weakened by disease, fell back to Three Rivers. Governor Carleton pursued, and captured the enemy's stores and artillery. The retreat was continued to Sorel, which was also retaken by the English troops; and the expulsion of the invading forces was speedily completed. The colonies in revolt now made fresh efforts to detach the Canadians from their allegiance. Franklin and others were sent as special commissioners. The offers were now more liberal: the Roman Catholic religion was to be respected, and the people allowed to govern themselves. But, on the other hand, the French Canadians already enjoyed entire freedom of worship, and the protection of their ancient laws. They had obtained almost all they desired, and refused to put into jeopardy the privileges already secured to them. The American colonies, though successful in severing their connection with the mother country, were unableto bring Canada into the Union, and on the recognition of American Independence, on the 3rd of September, 1783, Canada remained a colony of Great Britain.

A large number of persons throughout the colonies embraced in the new confederation had remained faithful to the royal cause. These were now treated with great severity by the American Government, and preferring to live under the British flag, the greater part of them emigrated, and settled in Canada and the other British colonies, but chiefly in the western parts of Canada, now the Province of Ontario. The number of the United Empire Loyalists, as they were termed, that settled in Canada, is estimated at ten thousand. Their property had been confiscated, but by the liberality of the British Government, large sums were applied to their relief and each of them received as a free gift from 200 to 5,500 acres of land in Canada or some other colony. Many of them endured great hardships in thus leaving their homes to begin life anew, but by their energy and enterprise they contributed in a large degree to the development of the resources of the country.

There was now a growing agitation in the Province of Quebec for a representative system of government. The French Canadians, it is true, had been admitted from the first into the Legislative Council, but were not in a majority there, whereas in an elective chamber they must almost necessarily have a very large majority. One of the most prominent agitators for a representative form of government was Du Calvet, a French Protestant, who was accused of aiding the insurgents during the revolutionary war. He strenuously advocated an elective assembly, and also the representation of Canada by six members in the British Parlia-

In 1875, Lord Dorchester returned to Canada as Governor General, Sir Frederick Haldimand, who had held the office since 1778, having solicited his own recall. Notwithstanding the popularity of Lord Dorchester, discontent generally prevailed. At length, after petitions and counter petitions had been canvassed for years, and transmitted to Britain, the draft of a new constitution was in 1789 sent to Lord Dorchester by Lord Granville, the colonial minister. By this it was proposed to divide the Province of Quebec into two-the Province of Upper Canada and the Province of Lower Canada. Each section was to have a Legislative Council and Assembly. "This separation, I hope," said Mr. Pitt, then Chancellor of the Exchequer, " will put an end to the competition between the old French inhabitants and the new settlers from Britain and the British colonies." The upper Province was to give a great majority to one nationality, and the Lower Province to the other. All taxes were to be imposed, and the money disbursed under the control of the Legislature of each section.

The division of the province was contrary to the advice of Lord Dorchester, but the measure finally became law in 1791. The act provided that the Legislative Council of Lower Canada should be composed of not fewer than fifteen, and that of Upper Canada of not fewer than seven persons. Members were to hold their seats for life. The number of members to be elected to the Legislative Assembly of Upper Canada was to be not less than sixteen, and of Lower Canada not less than fifty. The Council and Assembly were to be called together at least once in every year; the Assembly to be elected for four years.

During the thirty years that the colony had been under British rule, the population had doubled in number. In 1761, it was about 70,000 souls, now it was over 135,000, of whom 120,000 were French Canadians. The inhabitants of the new Province of Upper Canada numbered only 10,000, and were nearly all of British origin. Within ninety years, however, the preponderance of population has been reversed, the inhabitants of the Upper Province now out-numbering by hundreds of thousands those of the other section.

FROM THE DIVISION OF THE PROVINCE TO THE UNION-1791-1840.

The first elections in Lower Canada under the new form of government took place in June, 1792. Fifty members were returned. Fifteen persons had been nominated legislative councillors. The Legislature was opened on the 17th of December by General Clarke (in the absence of Lord Dorchester), and sat till May, 1793. A contest took place at the opening of the Legislature as to the election of a Speaker, and as to the language in which business should be conducted. Mr. Panet, the French candidate, was elected by 28 to 18, and it was resolved that the minutes, etc., be recorded in both languages. The revenue of the Lower Province was this year only $25,000.

The Parliament of Upper Canada met at Newark (Niagara) on the 17th of September. 1792, and was opened by Lieut.-Gov. Simcoe. The Council numbered seven, and the Assembly sixteen. The Legislature in its first session passed an act introducing the English law " as the rule of decision in all matters of controversy relative to property and civil rights." The second act introduced trial by jury. The eighth and last act gave the names of "Eastern, Midland, Home and Western" to the four distrits into which the province had been divided by Lord Dorchester in 1788. These divisions were afterwards abolished in 1849. The following session (1793), the Legislature of Upper Canada abolished slavery. The owners of slaves then in the province were to keep their rights, but the children born of female slaves were to become free at twenty-five years of age. In 1803, it was decided by Chief Justice Osgoode that slavery was incompatible with the laws of Lower Canada. In 1796, the seat of Government of Upper Canada was removed from Niagara to York (Toronto), by Gov. Simcoe.

Lord Dorchester, who had been a faithful friend of Canada for more than thirty years, was succeeded, in 1796, by Gen. Prescott. The country was now enjoying repose and steadily advancing in wealth and importance

The bitterness which had previously existed between the French Canadians and the British inhabitants of Lower Canada was now considerably moderated. This will be evident from the remarks of M. Plessis, parish priest of Quebec, in his funeral oration over Bishop Briand. "Our conquerors," he said, "regarded at first with a jealous eye and lowering brow, inspired in us feelings only of detestation or aversion. We could not be persuaded that a race of men, strangers to our soil, to our language and to our worship, could ever be willing to render to Canada an equivalent for what it lost by changing its masters. Generous nation, that has made us aware, by so many proofs, how ill-founded were our prepossessions. Pardon us then, for that our first (and now past) distrustfulness of a foreign race, whose virtues, not being then experienced by us, we had not the happiness to know."

Sir R. S. Milnes succeeded Prescott as lieut. governor of Lower Canada in 1799, and remained in office till 1805. On his retirement, the Hon. Thomas Dunn acted as administrator until 1807. Le Canadien newspaper, printed entirely in French, was first issued in November, 1806.

The relations between England and the United States at this time were beginning to cause no little disquietude and uneasiness. Mr. Dunn having called out the militia of Lower Canada, the response was prompt and satisfactory, giving an emphatic contradiction to the reports which had been diligently spread, that the Canadians were only waiting for the approach of the invading army to flock to its standard. At this critical time Sir James Craig, a military officer, came out as Governor General, and remained till 1811. Sir James did not become popular with the French Canadians. It was a time of great irritation and disquietude. The Governor issued a general order exhorting the people to be on their guard against treasonable designs, and directing all militia men to watch attentively the actions of aliens amongst them. Col. Panet and other officers were dismissed from the militia, on the charge of exciting discord and animosity between the two classes of British subjects. The Assembly, in 1808, adopted a bill, by twenty-two to two, excluding judges from seats in Parliament. The Legislative Council rejected the measure, and the Governor approved their course. The following session the Assembly engaged in discussions on constitutional questions, and was dissolved by the Governor after a session of five weeks, on the ground that the House was neglecting the matters submitted for its consideration, and wasting the time in fruitless debates. The new Parliament met in 1810, and forthwith proceeded to declare that it was an infringement of parliamentary privileges for the Governor to censure the acts of the Assembly. The House also sought to bring the government officials under its control by offering to assume the payment of their salaries. The Assembly further demanded that a budget should be presented to it, showing in detail all the estimated expenditure for the succeeding year. The Council and Assembly were at variance on the question of excluding Judge de Bonne. The Assembly passed a resolution that a judge of the Court of King's Bench could not sit or vote in the House. The Governor declared that he felt bound to oppose this assumption, and prorogued the Legislature. Proceedings were instituted against the proprietors and editors of Le Canadien for disseminating treasonable publications, and several of the opposition leaders were arrested. The Governor's health began to fail. The distrust and opposition which he encountered at every step from a section of the French Canadians roused his indignation. "Base and daring fabricators of falsehood!" he exclaimed in an address to the Canadians, March 21, " what do you know of me or my intentions? Canadians, ask the heads of your Church, who have opportunities of knowing me. These are men of honor and knowledge, from whom you ought to seek information and advice. The leaders of faction, the demagogues of a party, associate not with me; they cannot know me. For what purpose should I oppress you? Is it to serve the king? Is it for myself, then, that I should oppress you? Is it from ambition? What can you give me? Is it for power? Alas! my good friends, with a life now ebbing slowly to its period under the pressure of disease contracted in the service of my country, I look only to pass what it may please God to suffer to remain of it, in the comfort of retirement among my friends. I remain among you only in obedience to the commands of my Sovereign."

In his letters to Lord Liverpool he drew a dark picture of the discord and enmity between French and British colonists, and suggested that it would be better, rather than leave matters as they were, to unite the two provinces. In the session of 1810-11, the bill for excluding judges of the King's Bench from seats in the Assembly was again carried, and this time it received the Royal sanction. Shortly afterward Sir James Craig returned in consequence of ill health, and died the same year. Mr. Dunn assumed the administration of the government for a short time. Then Sir George Prévost, who had been lieutenant governor of Nova Scotia, was transferred to Canada. Under his conciliatory policy, much of the irritation and animosity between the two nationalities was removed.

The war which had long been apprehended between Great Britain and the United States broke out the following year. M. Plessis, the Roman Catholic Bishop, profited by this occasion to claim the restoration of the rights and status of the Church as they existed in Canada before the conquest. The Legislature of Lower Canada passed an act empowering the Governor General, in case of invasion, to embody the whole militia of the country, and voted £15,000 per annum for five years towards defraying the expenses of defending the province. The Legislature of Upper Canada also passed measures for the defence of that province, and for raising and training the militia. The population of Upper Canada had increased at this date to 80,000, and that of the Lower Province to 200,000.

Success attended the first steps taken against the enemy by the British forces in Canada. Fort Michilimackinac, situated on the island of the same name, in the strait between Lakes Huron and Michigan, was captured, and an American force, under Gen. Hull, which had crossed over from Detroit, was forced to retire. Gen. Brock, commander of the forces in Upper Canada, on the 11th of August, advanced on Detroit. Hull, the American general, capitulated, and 2,500 prisoners and 33 pieces of cannon fell into the hands of the English.

Another attempt was made to invade the province in October. A crossing was effected above Queenston on the night of the 12th. The following morning Gen. Brock was engaged in opposing the crossing of the Americans near the village, when the body that had already crossed above took possession of Queenston Heights. The dritish general immediately led a force to regain possession of the Heights, but while galantly advancing to the attack he was struck down by a ball. Gen. Sheaffe took command, and the attack was continued with so much determination that the enemy was dislodged with great loss. The English were everywhere completely victorious. A subsequent attack made in November was also repelled. In Lower Canada the invading force, under Gen, Dearborn, retired without accomplishing anything. The campaign proved favorable to England, and the Canadian militia gained some renown.

Hostilities were resumed early in the following year. The Indians, under the command of their gallant chief, Tecumseh, gave valuable aid to the British forces. One of the most notable events of the campaign was the battle of Chateauguay. An American army of 3,500, under Gen. Hampton, was on the way from Lake Champlain to Montreal. A thousand Canadian militia, under Colonel de Salaberry, opposed their progress at the junction of the Outarde and Chateauguay rivers. A battle ensued in which the Americans were defeated and forced to re-Meanwhile the enemy, who had gained some successes in Upper Canada, was concentrating his forces to co-operate with Gen. Hampton in the attack on Montreal. While on the way down the St. Lawrence, Gen. Wilkinson, the American commander, landed part of his troops under Gen. Covington to give battle to a small Canadian force under Col. Morrisson, that had been sent to intercept the invaders. A battle was fought at Chrysler's Farm, county of Dundas, where the Americans, though three times as numerous as the force opposed to them, were completely routed, and their general killed. The defeat of Hampton at Chateauguay, and of Wilkinson at Chrysler's Farm, led the Americans to abandon their design on Montreal.

In March of the following year (1814), the Americans were defeated at Lacolle, and their depot at Oswego was destroyed. The English failed in an attack on Sackett's harbor, and were forced to retreat at Chippewa. A hard fought battle took place at Lundy's Lane, near Niagara Falls, after which the enemy retreated during the night to Chippewa. The war was subsequently terminated by the Treaty of Ghent, 24th December, 1814.

About the time peace was restored the Legislature of Lower Canada met at Quebec. The political discussions which had ceased during the war now commenced afresh. M. L. J. Papineau was chosen Speaker in the place of M. Panet, who was nominated a member of the Legislative Council. The elder Papineau had long been one of the most prominent champions of French Canadian nationality, and his son, the new Speaker, was destined to become the greatest agitator of his time.

Sir George Prévost, who had been regarded by the French Canadians as their firm friend, went home at the close of the war to defend himself against some charges that had been made against his conduct of military affairs during the last campaign. He died shortly after his arrival in London. Sir Gordon Drummond administered the government for a short time, and was succeeded in 1816 by Sir John C. Sherbrooke, ex-governor of Nova Scotia, who, like Sir George Prévost, endeavored to gain the good will, or at least remove the animosity of the French Canadian majority. M. Plessis, the Bishop, was invited to take a seat at the Council board, with the reservation that the right should not extend to his successors. A similar honor was conferred on M. Papineau. The principal topic of discussion now was the Estimates. The Legislative Assembly claimed the right of controlling the entire expenditure. In Upper Canada a similar discussion was proceeding.

Another subject that engrossed much attention was the Clergy Reserves. A large amount of territory had been reserved by the Imperial Act of 1791 for the support of the Protestant clergy. The lands had been appropriated exclusively to the support of the Church of England in Canada. At first they had yielded no revenue, the rents being insufficient to cover the expenses of management. They remained in the hands of Government, and the only money paid to the Church of England up to 1821 was a sum of £427 in 1816. Other bodies of Protestants began to lay claim to a share of the fund, and addresses were passed by the Houses of Assembly recommending the distribution of the money among all denominations. The subject was not finally disposed of till 1855, when, after certain provision had been made for the widows and orphans of deceased clergymen, and for securing the incomes then enjoyed, the rest of the fund was applied to municipal purposes. The colony, notwithstanding these political discussions, was in a highly prosperous condition, and the great majority of the people, busy and contented, took little interest in the debates on constitutional questions.

In 1818, Sir J. C. Sherbrooke was permitted to retire from office, and the Duke of Richmond came out as governor. His administration was brief; being bitten by a fox, he died of hydrophobia, August, 1819. The Earl of Dalhousie succeeded him. The struggle of the Assembly on the question of voting the supplies continued. Between the Legislative Council, of which the majority of members were British, and the Legislative Assembly, composed almost exclusively of French Canadians, there was continual strife and animosity. The Assembly objected, in particular, to vote the salaries of certain obnoxious officials.

A bill for the union of the two Provinces was introduced into the Imperial Parliament in 1822, but thrown out on the second reading. When the French Canadians learned that this Bill had been introduced by the Government, they loudly denounced the project. The people of Upper Canada were not in favor of it, and when the Lower Canadian Assembly met in January, 1823, it forthwith passed resolutions condemning the Bill, and Messrs. Papineau and Nelson were despatched to London to protest against it. The project was therefore abandoned for a time.

Meanwhile, the dispute on the question of voting the supplies continued more fiercely than ever. In 1827, the Lower Canada

Assembly again stopped the supplies, as they had done for several years previously. Lord Dalhousie prorogued the Chambers the next day. A new parliament was summoned, which elected M. Papineau to be speaker. The governor disapproved of the selection, and requested the House to propose some one else. The House, refusing to comply, was immediately prorogued. The House of Commons appointed a committee that reported at length on the state of Canadian affairs, but no definite action was Sir James Kempt, from Nova taken. Scotia, replaced Lord Dalhousie in Lower Canada, and Sir John Colborne came out to Upper Canada.

Matters were becoming more serious. In-Upper Canada there was a strong republicanelement that looked with admiration at the rapid growth of the neighboring states. The fact that the leading positions in the g overnment were held by a small number of officials and their family connections was the cause of much dissatisfaction. In Lower Canada there was the ancient hostility of race. Concessions which, if made in time, would have sallayed the discontent, were withheld. In the Lower Canadian House of Assembly 92 resolutions condemning the Government for their management of affairs, for the exclusion of French Canadians from office, and setting forth other grounds of complaint, were introduced and passed in the spring of 1834. The Imperial Government in 1835 sent out a commission. to inquire into the grievances complained of. The report of the commission was submitted to Parliament in 1837, but the majority of the House of Commons was opposed to most of the demands of the Lower Canadian opposition. The Imperial Act of 1791 had authorized the establishment of Church of England rectories in the parishes of Canada. Under the authority of this act, fifty-seven rectories were established in Upper Canada by Sir John Colborne in 1836. This act caused increased excitement. Steps were taken by the leaders of the malcontents to enroll the disaffected.

In this their success was not great, for few of the common people were disposed to take vup arms to enforce the demands made by their leaders. The clergy, and the most prudent and moderate chiefs of the opposition, strongly opposed any resort to wiolence. Some of the more violent agitators, however, could not be restrained. The first outbreak occurred in Montreal on the 7th of November, 1837, when the "Sons of Liberty," an organization of young men of Montreal, assailed a body of volunteers in the street. In the course of the month, several encounters took place between the insurgents and the military at St. Denis, St. Charles, St. Eustache, and other points. At St. Denis, the British troops, being few in number, were repulsed; but at St. Charles, the rebels were routed with great slaughter by a detachment under Col. Wetherall. At St. Eustache also, the loss of the insurgents was very heavy. In Upper Canada the insurgents, under command of W. L. Mackenzie, were defeated near Toronto by a force of volunteers, commanded by Sir F. B. Head, The Earl of Durham, the new governor general, came out with special powers, to inquire into the state of Canadian affairs. The Constitution of Lower Canada had been suspended and a special council appointed. The governor reported strongly in favor of the union of the provinces, but some acts of his administration being censured in the House of Lords, he was recalled. Before the rebellion was finally suppressed, several attempts were made to invade Canada from the American frontier by sympathizers on the other side, but these attempts were all speedily defeated. The subsequent risings were punished with greater severity than the first, a number of the leading rebels being executed under sentence of court martial, and many more transported. Some of the chief instigators of revolt, however, escaped. Mackenzie, Papineau, and others were, some wears later, permitted to return to Canada, and they subsequently obtained seats in the Legislative Assembly.

The insurrection being at an end, the project of uniting the two Canadas was urged on by the British ministry. The Right Hon. C. P. Thompson, an eminent merchant (afterwards Lord Sydenham), came out as governor general (1839). The assent of the Special Council of Lower Canada, and of the Legislature of Upper Canada, was obtained to the measure. A bill was drafted and sent to England by Lord Sydenham, and passed in 1840. The Union took effect by royal proclamation on the 10th February, 1841.

FROM THE UNION TO CONFEDERATION-1841-1867.

Canada was now fully under "Responsible Government," the ministry having seats in the Legislature, and holding office so long only as they enjoyed the confidence of a majority of the members of the Lower House. The local Legislatures were abolished. Upper and Lower Canada were represented by an equal number of members in the Legislative Assembly of Canada. To the House was conceded also entire control over the expenditure. The Legislative Councillors were to be appointed by the Crown for life.

The first United Parliament was opened at Kingston in June, 1841. In September of that year, Lord Sydenham, who had been a very able and popular governor, died from the effects of a fall from his horse. Charles Bagot then came out as governor general, and held office till 1843. In 1844, the seat of government was removed from Kingston to Montreal. Lord Metcalfe administered the government from 1843 to 1845. Being then obliged to retire in consequence of ill health, he was succeeded by Lord Cathcart, who held office till 1847, when the Earl of Elgin was appointed governor. The administration of this able statesman was prosperous and satisfactory. Some agitation occurred during his term of office respecting the" Rebellion Losses Bill," for indemnifying persons who had sustained loss during the insurrection of 1837-8. Violent opposition was made to this measure which was considered by many to be too liberal as well as too indiscriminate. Lord Elgin, after assenting to the bill, was hooted and pelted in the streets of Montreal; the Parliament buildings were set on fire by the meb, and a large amount of property, including the library and valuable records, was destroyed. The seat of government was afterwards removed to Toronto.

The succeeding years were years of steady progress and prosperity. A few events only will be noted here. In 1850, a free banking law was passed. In 1851, five cent postage was introduced. Iu 1853, the Legislative Assembly was increased from eighty-four to one hundred and thirty members, sixty-five from each section of the province. In 1858, the decimal system of currency was adopted. Sir Edmund Head succeeded Lord Elgin in 1854, and continued in office till 1860. In 1855 the Clergy Reserves question was settled by the Legislature, and Seigniorial Tenure in Lower Canada was abolished. In 1856, the elective principle was applied to the Legislative Council, and it became an elective chamber. It was to be composed of the members appointed by the Crown before the 14th of July, 1856, and of forty-eight members elected for forty-eight electoral divisions, into which the province was divided. In 1858, Ottawa was selected by the Queen as the permanent seat of government, and Parliament buildings were erected there. In 1859-60, the Statutes of the province were consolidated into three volumes, one volume containing the Acts relating to all Canada, and the other two volumes embracing the Statutes relating to upper and Lower Canada respectively. In 1860, the British Provinces were visited by the Prince of Wales. Whilst in Canada the Prince inaugurated the Victoria Bridge, and laid the corner stone of the Parliamentary buildings at Ottawa. The seizure of Mason and Slidell on board the British steamer Trent towards the close of 1861, and the prospect of a war between England and the United States, caused intenseexcitement throughout Canada, and prompted the organization and enrolment of numerous bodies of volunteer militia. These corps in later years have twice done good service (1866, 1870) in repelling incursions of Ferian marauders. In 1855-6, the Civil Code of Lower Canada, the compilation of which had been entrusted to three commissioners several years before, was completed and promulgated. In 1864, great difficulty was experienced in carrying on the government. The majority of Lower Canadian members and the majority of Upper Canadian members were arrayed on opposite sides of the House, and the two parties were very evenly balanced. The number of members in the Legislative Assembly was the same for each. section of the province, and although the population of Upper Canada now greatly exceeded that of Lower Canada, the Lower Canadian members opposed the concession of any increase of representation to Upper Canada, because at the time of the Union the representation had been thus settled_ notwithstanding the fact that at that time the population of Lower Canada was by far the larger. The demand for "Representation according to population" was now every year becoming more urgent on the part of Upper Canada. A project for uniting the British North American Provinces under one Confederation had been before the country from time to time for eighty years, and more especially from the date of Lord Durham's administration. The desire to carry out this scheme induced some of the leaders of the Upper Canada opposition to form a coalition with the Lower Canadian. majority. A government was thus formed pledged to introduce the federal system. After conference with the other provinces, Confederation was carried, to take effect 1st of July, 1867. To the confederated provinces was given the title of the Dominion of Canada. The construction of an Intercolonial Railway was one of the stipulations of the-Confederation Act, and this great work, which united the provinces of old Canada with the other members of the Confederation, was successfully completed, and the line open for traffic, throughout its entire length, early in the summer of 1876.

In 1869, an Act was passed providing for a territorial government for the North West Territory, which had been purchased from the Hudson Bay Company for £300,000. Resistance was, however, offered to the entrance of the Lieutenant Governor, Mr. Macdougall, in consequence of misapprehensions on the part of some of the inhabitants. The difficulties increased, Fort Garry being taken possession of by one Riel, and a provisional government formed. The following year a military expedition was sent to Red River under Colonel Wolseley (now Sir Garnet Wolseley). Riel and his principal followers fled on the approach of the troops, and took refuge on United States territory. The same year (1870), an Act was passed constituting the Province of Manitoba out of a portion of Rupert's Land. The new province is represented by four members in the Commons and two in the Senate. A local government was organized, with a Legislative Council of seven members and a Legislative Assembly of twenty-four members. The first elections for the local House took place 11th January, 1871. The new province has since enjoyed peace and prosperity, and is making rapid progress in population, wealth and importance. In 1875, an amnesty was passed to all who had been concerned in the troubles except Riel and two others.

In 1871, High Commissioners were appointed by the British Government to arrange the terms of a treaty with the United States for the settlement of the Alabama claims, the Fisheries question, and other matters. Canada was represented on this Commission by Sir John A. Macdonald. The treaty was signed May 8th, and provided, among other things, that the Canadian fisheries should be thrown open to the people of the United States for ten years, with free navigation of the St. Lawrence, and the use of Canadian canals or ten years on certain conditions

The money compensation to Canada for the use of the fisheries was to be settled by a Commission.

The same year (1871) steps were taken for the admission of British Columbia to the Confederation. By the terms of the admission the new province was allowed three representatives in the Senate and six in the House of Commons. A very important article in the agreement of Union was the promise by the Dominion to build a railway to the Pacific, to connect British Columbia with the eastern members of the Confederation. It was agreed, with some reservations, that this railway should be commenced in two years and finished in ten from the date of he admission of the province. A charter was granted to a company for the construction of this gigantic work, but in consequence of the impossibility of effecting the necessary financial arrangements, the company subsequently surrendered their charter. The building of the road was then undertaken by the Government, under the direction of their own officers, and proceeded with until the session of 1880-1, when a contract received the sanction of Parliament, handing over the undertaking to the present Canadian Pacific Railway Company with subsidies of land and money.

On the 1st of July, 1873, the Province of Prince Edward Island entered the Confederation. A railway through the island was opened in 1875.

In June, 1877, a commission appointed under the Treaty of Washington met at Hali fax, and on the 23rd of November following, closed its sittings. The compensation awarded for the use of the Canadian fisheries was $5,500,000, in gold, to be paid by the United States Government.

The conservative administration under Sir John A. Macdonald resigned on the 5th of November, 1873, while a debate on a want of confidence motion was proceeding. A new ministry, under Mr. Alexander Mackenzie, was formed, which retained office until the 16th of October, 1878, when the Government resigned, in consequence of being defeated in

In 1875, an Act was passed, constituting a Supreme Court for the Dominion.

In March, 1878, an incident of considerable importance occurred. Lieutenant-Governor Letellier, of the Province of Quebec, declined to accept the advice of his ministry, and dismissed them from office, although at the time they had the confidence and support of a considerable majority of the Legislative Assembly. For this step he was censured by a vote of the House of Commons in September, 1878, and, on the advice of the Dominion Government, the Governor-General subsequently dismissed Mr. Letellier from office, on the ground that " his usefulness as Lieutenant-Governor had ceased."

DESCRIPTION OF ONTARIO AND QUEBEC.

The Provinces of Ontario and Quebec extend in an easterly direction from near the Red River settlement to the Gulf of St. Lawrence, and from Michigan to New Brunswick. They extend northward from the Canadian lakes and the St. Lawrence to the high ridge of land which separates the rivers of Canada from those of the ter. ritory hitherto known as the Hudson Bay territory, but now forming a part of the Dominion of Canada.

The provinces are bounded north by the Hudson Bay territory; east by the Gulf of St. Lawrence; south by the States of Maine, New Hampshire, Vermont and New York, and Lakes Erie and Ontario; and west by Lakes St. Clair, Huron and Superior, and the north-west Indian territories.

The area is about 331,280 square miles, of which 121,260 are included in the Province of Ontario, and 210,020 in the Province of Quebec.

The principal rivers are the St. Lawrence, which drains an area of 565,000 square miles; the Ottawa, 450 miles long, which forms a central boundary between the two provinces; the St. Maurice, nearly 400 miles in length; the Saguenay, noted for its fine scenery; the Richelieu, the Niagara, and others. The Province of Ontario has for its southern and western boundaries five great lakes-Superior, Huron and Georgian Bay, St. Clair, Erie and Ontario, of which the total length is 1,085 miles, and area 80,000 square miles. In some parts of the Province of Quebec, especially in the Eastern Townships, the scenery is extremely picturesque. In the Province of Ontario the surface is undulating rather than mountainous. A main watershed separates the waters of the St. Lawrence from those of the Ottawa.

The system of inland navigation is the most extensive and perfect in the world. The statistics given under separate heads will convey some idea of the extent of railway communication; of the agricultural and mineral wealth; the volume of trade, and the vast resources and general prosperity of the provinces.

LAPRAIRIE—An extensive municipal village and parish of the south shore of the River St Lawrence, between the Lachine rapids and Victoria bridge, district of Montreal, seigniory and county of the same name. Incorporated March 30, 1846. The parish was erected on the 17th November, 1870. A market is open every day. An aqueduct is constructed. The first railway in British North America was constructed from here to St Johns in 1836. It was first worked with horses, afterwards by steam, but was discontinued, and the rails taken up a number of years ago. A steamboat maintains a regular communication between Montreal and Laprairie. A branch of the Grand Trunk railway, starting at Fort Covington, in the State of New York, to reach the Victoria bridge, now runs twice a day in close proximity to the village, with a good station and depot, and contributes materially to the future development of the locality, which is considered a very healthy and pleasant summer place. This railway is now in connection with the Rome and Watertown at Massena Springs. There is alsoa fire station, thoroughly supplied with new fire apparatus, such as a fire engine and hook and ladders. Fishing and hunting are also largely practised. A permanent wharf has been erected, and will be much improved during the present summer. A new channel is completed The aqueduct is now giving a very good service to the village, and the work of putting up pipes is being done very rapidly in the different streets. The pressure of water in case of fires is also very powerful, as the water is drawn by steam and air pressure, which brings it at a distance of 1350 feet from the St Lawrence river. The premiums upon insurances have also been greatly reduced on account of the recent ameliorations to the fire system apparatus. The Great North-Western Tele graph company has an office here. Distant from Montreal, 9 miles, fare 15 cts.; from St Johns, 18 miles. Mail daily. Pop of village about 1800; of parish 2200.

MONTMORENCY FALLS - A post village in Quebec county, 6 miles from Quebec. The Falls of Montmorency present one of the most majestic spectacles in the province. The Montmorency itself, so called after a French admiral of that name, is an inconsiderable stream. Its course lies through an almost con. tinued forest over an irregular broken rocky bottom, until it arrives at the precipice, where its breadth is from 16 to 20 yards. A little declination of the bed before it reaches this point gives a great velocity to the stream, which, in being impelled over the brink of a perpendicular rock, falls in an extended sheet of water into a rocky chasm 240 feet below. An immense spray rises from the bottom in curling volumes, which, when the sun shines upon it, displays bright prismatic colors, producing an effect inconceivably beautiful. The falls are a great source of attraction to visitors to the ancient capital. It contains a Roman Catholic church, 4 saw mills and a cotton factory. Pop 900. Bernard Francis, grocer

MONTREAL—A city of the province of Quebec, the commercial metropolis of the Dominion of Canada, situated on the south side of the Island of Montreal, in the St Lawrence river (here above 2 miles wide), 180 miles south-west of Quebec, 620 miles from the sea, 420 miles north of New York. Lat. 45° 31′ N., lon. 73° 34′ W. It is at the head of ocean navigation, and at the commencement of lake and river navigation; and has railway communication with the chief cities and towns in the Dominion of Canada and the United States.

The Island of Montreal, on which the town is built, is situated at the confluence of the Ottawa with the St Lawrence. It is 32 miles long by about 10 miles broad at the widest part, generally level, with the exception of the mountain which rises north-west of the city. The soil is for the most part fertile and well cultivated, and is watered by numerous small streams, and the climate particularly favorable for the growth of nearly every kind of grain, fruit and vegetable.

Montreal occupies a low tract of land about 2 miles wide, between a considerable and very beautiful elevation called "Mount Royal" and the river. It is divided into 12 wards, and has over 150 miles of streets and lanes. The principal streets have large well built edifices, constructed chiefly of limestone quarried near the city. These buildings, combined with the effect of the lofty towers and spires, give the city a very imposing appearance when viewed from a distance. Notre Dame is the main street, running on the centre of the ridge on which the city is built, but St. James street is wider and more elegant. The chief business streets are St Paul, Notre Dame, St James, St Lawrence, McGill, Craig and St Catherine.

Montreal-Continued.

The city is well supplied with water, gas, and the electric light.

The principal public buildings are the City Hall, Court House, Post Office, Custom House, Seminary of St Sulpice, Convent of Notre Dame, General Hospital, Grey Nunnery, Montreal College, McGill University, Presbyterian College, Methodist College, St Mary's College, Young Men's Christian Association Building, Academy of Music, Queen's Hall, Theatre Royal, Victoria Skating Rink, Deaf and Dumb Asylums, Mechanics Hall, Sailors Institute, St James Club, &c., and 8 markets, including the Bonsecours, a magnificient pile with a lofty dome, fronting the river. There is also a Society of Natural History, a Mechanics Institute, Merchants Exchange, Board of Trade, Corn Exchange, &c., and 72 churches, viz.: Church of England 14; Church of Rome 21; Church of Scotland 1; Presbyterian 12; Methodist 9; Baptist 3; Congregational 3; American Presbyterian 2; Unitarian 1; German Protestant 1; French Evangelical 1; Missionary 2; Advent Christian 1, and 2 Synagogues. The Cathedral of Notre Dame is capable of containing from 10,000 to 12,000 persons. It is 255 feet long and 145 feet broad, with two towers 220 feet in height. In the northeast tower is a fine chime of bells, and in the north-west is a bell weighing 3000 tons. Christ Church Cathedral is the most perfect specimen of gothic architecture in America. It is built of Montreal limestone with Cæn stone dressings, obtained from Normandy. The new Methodist church, on St Catherine street, is a very handsome building, in the gothic style of architecture, It is the largest Methodist church on the continent, with a sitting capacity of over 2000. The Church of the Gesu, a very imposing edifice, is 230 feet long and 102 feet wide, with a transept 152 feet long, and will accommodate over 4500 persons. The walls and ceiling of the interior are beautifully frescoed. Another magnificent pile is the Roman Catholic Bishop's Church,— St Peter's, now almost finished, which will cost, when completed, $300,000. It is after a model of its namesake in Rome, and will be one of the finest ecclesiastical edifices on this continent. Trinity, St George's, St Andrew's, St Paul's, and the majority of the other churches are all exceedingly handsome edifices, and add much to the beauty of the city.

The largest banking houses in the Dominion have their head offices in Montreal, are mostly situated in Place d'Armes and St James street, and consist of very handsome and costly structures.

The harbor of Montreal, which is formed towards the St Lawrence, is secure, and the quays are unsurpassed by those of any city in America; built of limestone, and uniting with the locks and cut stone wharves of the Lachine Canal, they present for several miles, a display of continuous masonry which has few parallels. No unsightly warehouses disfigure the river side. A broad terrace, faced with grey limestone, the parapets of which are surmonted with a substantial iron railing divides the city from the river throughout its whole extent. Improvements in the harbor (which is controlled by Commissioners) are yearly being made to accommodate the large increase of shipping.

The duties have increased from $1,013,440 in 1854 to $9,265,405.73 in 1889; and the value of imports was respectively $18,729,612 in 1854, and $47,415,619 in 1889. The value of exports in the latter year was $22,638,270.

Among the manufactories of Montreal are foundries of cast iron, distilleries, breweries, sugar refineries, soap and candle works, manufactories of hardware (including excellent cutlery), carriages and sleighs corn brooms, wooden ware of every description, glass, paints and drugs, edge tools, locomotives, steam engines, boilers, India rubber goods, printing presses, agricultural implements, musical instruments, paper, ropes, sewing machines, types, tobacco, woollen and cotton goods, boots and shoes, &c., &c. There are besides saw and flouring mills, rolling mills, lead works, brass foundries, and many other industrial establishments.

Montreal is the seat of the Grand Trunk and Canadian Pacific railways. The Canadian Pacific railway has its head offices and depot on Windsor street. The depot is a new one, and presents a very striking appearance. The head offices and chief works of the Grand Trunk are at Point St Charles, a suburb in the western part of the city. There have just completed a very handsome depot on the site of their old one on St James street west. The Victoria Bridge here spans the River St Lawrence. The first stone of this great masterpiece of Stephenson was laid July 20th, 1854, and the first train crossed over it Dec. 19th, 1859. It is 9,184 lineal feet in length-24 spans of 242 feet each and one (the centre, 60 feet above the river,) of 330 feet. The bridge cost nearly $7,000,000.

In 1890 there were 70 churches (already enumerated) and 2 synagogues; 15 fire stations, 18 banks, 5 savings banks, about 50 assurance and insurance agencies, 4 medical schools, 4 general hospitals, an asylum for aged and infirm women, 3 orphan asylums, a lying-in-hospital, 2 Magdalene asylums, a dispensary, a ladies benevolent society, 2 houses of refuge, an infants home, a newsboys home, and a number of institutions under the charge of Sisters of Charity. There were published in the same year 9 daily, 4 tri-weekly, 17 weekly, 1 fortnightly, and 15 monthly newspapers and periodicals, besides other religious and scientific journals.

The educational means of the city comprise a University (McGill) with faculties of law, art, science, medicine, and veterinary science, open to persons of all religious denominations; a Roman Catholic Theological college, a Methodist college, a Congregational college of B. N. A., a Montreal Diocesan Theological college in connection with the Church of England, a Jesuit college, a Presbyterian college, a High school, 2 Normal schools, several classical and scientific academies, and a number of private and public schools; also 2 affiliated medical colleges, one to Bishop's college, Lennoxville, the other to Victoria college, Cobourg, and a branch of Laval University of Quebec.

Montreal returns 3 members to the House of Commons and 3 to the Provincial Legislature. It is the sent of the See of the Anglican bishop of Montreal, and of the See of the Roman Catholic Archbishopric of Montreal. The climate in summer is hot, often reaching 90° in the shade; and the winters are severe, the temperature ranging very often from zero to 10° and even 30° below it. Pop. in 1844, 44,093; 1851, 37,715; 1861,90,323; in 1871, 107,225; 1881, 140,000. The population in 1890 is estimated at 230,000.

The history of Montreal dates back to the 3rd of October, 1535, when Jacques Cartier first landed on its shores. An Indian village called Hochelaga existed here at this time. The way to it was through large fields of Indian corn. Its outline was circular; and it was encompassed by three separate rows of palisades, or rather picket fences, one within the other, well secured and put together. A single entrance was left in this rude fortification, but guarded with pikes and stakes, and every precaution taken against siege or attack. The cabins or lodges of the inhabitants, about 50 in number, were constructed in the form of a tunnel, each 50 feet in length by 15 in breadth. They were formed of wood covered with bark. Above the doors of these houses as well as along the outer rows of palisades ran a gallery ascended by ladders, where stones and other missiles were laid in order for the defence of the place. Each house contained several chambers, and the whole were so arranged as to enclose an open court yard, where the fire was made. Cartier named the place Mount Royal. It first began to be settled by Europeans in 1542, and exactly one century after the spot destined for the city was consecrated with due solemnities, commended to the "Queen of the Angels," and called Ville Marie, a name which it retained for a long period. In 1760 it was taken by the English. At this time it was a well peopled town of an oblong form, surrounded by a wall flanked with eleven redoubts -a ditch about 8 feet deep and a proportionable width, but dry, and a fort and citadel, the batteries of which commanded the streets of the town from one end to the other. The town was at this time divided into upper and lower town, the upper town being the level of the present Court House In the lower town the merchants and men of business generally resided, and here were situated the royal magazines, the armory and the nunnery hospital. In the upper town were the principal buildings, such as the palace of the Governor, the houses of the chief officers, the convents of the Recollets, the Jesuit's church and Seminary, the Free school, and the Parish church. The houses were solidly constructed in that semi-monastic style peculiar to Rouen, Caen and other towns in Normandy. Early in the present century vessels of more than 300 tons could not ascend to Montreal, and its foreign trade was carried on by small brigs and barges. In 1809 the first steam vessel," The Accommodation," built by the Hon. John Molson, made a trip to Quebec; she had berths for about 20 passengers. Years of industry, intelligence, enterprise and labor have produced a mighty contrast-Ocean steamers of 4000 tons, the magnificent floating palaces of the Richelieu Company, and ships from 700 to 2000 tons, from all parts of the world, now lay along side the wharves of the harbor, which are not equalled on this continent, in point of extent, accommodation, approach and cleanliness. In 1832 the cholera raged in Montreal with great violence, carrying off 1,843 inhabitants in a population of little more than 30,000. In April, 1849, a political mob burned the Parliamentary buildings (which were situated on the site of the St Ann's market), and the seat of government was in consequence removed to Quebec, subsequently Toronto, and finally to Ottawa. In July, 1852, a destructive fire laid waste a large part of the city, burning 1108 houses and destroying property valued at $1,363,264. In 1860, the city was visited by the Prince of Wales; in 1862 by the Duke of Edinburgh; and in 1869 Prince Arthur made it his residence for several months. The Hotel Dieu was founded in 1644 by Madame de Bouillon, and six years afterwards the Convent of Notre Dame was founded by Mademoiselle Marguerite de Bourgeois. In 1663, the Company of Montreal was dissolved, they having already sold their rights to the religious order of St Sulpice at Paris, by whom was founded the Seminary belonging to that order, and still existing in the city. The oldest church in Montreal is the Bonsecours (Roman Catholic). It was erected in 1658; was burnt in 1764, but rebuilt in 1771. Montreal is surrounded by villages whose population numbers over 40,000.

PERCE-The chef-lieu of the county of Gaspé, is situated on the Gulf of St Lawrence, 36 miles from Gaspé Basin. It contains a Roman Catholic and Episcopal churches, Model and Elementary schools, post office with money order and savings bank branches, six stores, two saw mills. one flour mill, two lobster factories and a court house and jail supplied with water by means of an aqueduct. The far famed Percé Rock with its abundance of seabirds is situated in close proximity to the shore. The scenery from this portion of the coast is highly picturesque and romantic and not exceeded in grandeur, and combines a view extending over thirty miles of sea-coast. The largest cod fishing industry is located here and several important fishing establishments export to the West Indies, Brazil, the Mediterranean and other foreign ports. The best fishing grounds for salmon, trout, cod, mackerel and other salt and fresh water fish are in this portion of the Gaspé coast. The place offers very fine bathing facilities and is visited by large numbers of tourists including Americans. There are several boarding houses affording excellent board and accommodation. Mount St Ann, situated in rear of the village, is about 1400 feet high, and, from its altitude on a clear day, commands a view towards the Gulf of St Lawrence of over fifty miles in circuit. On its summit is being erected a shrine to St Ann. A breakwater has lately been constructed in the South cove of the village and is of great advantage to the fishermen. Bonaventure Island lies three miles south east from the village. Two lines of steamers call at Percé: the SS. "Miramichi" of the Quebec SS. Co., plying between Montreal and Pictou, calling weekly, and the SS. "Admiral" of the St Lawrence and Steam Navigation Co., running between Dalhousie and Gaspé Basin in connection with the Intercolonial Railway, calls four times a week. Percé is a port of entry and warehousing port and was for some time the residence of Lieutenant-General Cox who was appointed Governor of Gaspé about 1785; the site of the government house may still be seen. Mails are received daily, 28 hours from Quebec in summer and 40 hours in winter. The Great North Western Telegraph Company has an office here. Pop 2500 (including township).

QUEBEC—After Montreal and Toronto, the most populous city in the Dominion of Canada, capital of the Province of Quebec, is situated on the left bank of the River St Law rence, which here receives the St Charles, 400 miles from the mouth of the River St Lawrence at Point des Monts, 180 miles north-east of Montreal, and 328 miles north-west of Portland, Me., Lat. (of N. E. bastion), 46° 49′ 6″ N., lon. 71° 13′ 45″ W. Mean temperature in winter 10°, in summer 68° Fahrenheit. Mean of the year 39°.

The city has a remarkably picturesque situation between the two rivers at the north-eastern extremity of a narrow but elevated tableland, which, for about eight miles, forms the left bank of the St Lawrence. Cape Diamond, the extremity of the table land, is 333 feet above the level of the river, to which it presents a nearly precipitous face; the descent to the St Charles is more gradual. The distance from one river to the other across the ridge is rather more than a mile. Opposite Cape Diamond the St Lawrence is contracted to a breadth of only 1314 yards; but immediately below, at the confluence of the St Charles, it spreads out into a broad and beautiful basin more than 2500 yards wide, forming a capacious and excellent harbor. The spring tides rise and fall 18 feet.

Quebec is divided into two parts, called Upper and Lower Towns. The Upper Town occupies the highest part of the promontory; a small part of it is surrounded with walls, and otherwise fortified. The ancient citadel, which crowns the summit of Cape Diamond, covers, with its numerous works, an area of 40 acres, and from its position is probably the strongest fortress in America.

The Lower Town, which is the seat of commerce, is built around the base of Cape Diamond, where, in many places, the rock has been cut away to make room for the houses. On the side of the St Charles the water at flood tide formerly washed the very foot of the rock, but from time to time wharf after wharf has been projected towards low water mark, and foundations made sufficiently solid on which to build whole streets, where boats and even vessels of considerable burthen once rode at anchor. The banks of both rivers are now lined with warehouses and wharves, the latter jutting about 200 feet into the stream, and along which the water is of sufficient depth to admit vessels of the largest size. The streets are generally irregular and narrow, in some instances well paved and lighted. The houses are principally of stone and brick, two or three stories high, the older ones with steep and quaint-looking roofs.

The city has several times suffered from disastrous fires, but the result has been the erection of more attractive buildings, and a consequent great improvement in the general appearance of the city.

During the year 1854, a plentiful supply of water was introduced from Lake St Charles.

In the Upper Town are several squares and public walks, commanding views unrivalled for their varied and picturesque beauty. In one stands a substantial monument, erected to the joint memory of Generals Wolfe and Montcalm, the English and French commanders, who fell at the taking of Quebec in 1759. It consists of an obelisk resting on a granite pedestal, the whole 65 feet high. A monument 40 feet in height marks the spot where General Wolfe fell on the Plains of Abraham; while on the St Foy road stands an iron pillar surmounted by a bronze statue, presented by Prince Napoleon Bonaparte in 1855, intended to commemorate a fierce struggle which took place here in 1760 between the British and French troops.

Among the public buildings of Quebec may be mentioned the new Parliament Buildings; the Roman Catholic Cathedral, an irregular building, capable of containing 4000 persons, and covering, with the university attached, an area of 8 acres; the English Cathedral, surmounted by a lofty spire, both occupying elevated positions in the Upper Town.

There are in all 23 churches in Quebec, and 1 synagogue. Of the chuches 6 are Church of England; 14 Roman Catholic; 2 Presbyterian; 1 Baptist.

The educational institutions comprise 3 Roman Catholic colleges, viz.: Laval University, with faculties of law, medicine and arts; the Grand Seminary, and the Minor Seminary; the Ursuline convent, an extensive establishment founded in 1641; several nunneries; Morrin College, with 7 professors; Laval Normal and Model School; Girls' High School; the Quebec High School; and a number of private academies and public schools. There are in addition the Canadian Institute. provided with library and reading room; the Literary and Historical Society, the oldest chartered institution of the kind in Canada, having been founded in 1824, and possessing valuable "Records of the Realm," in 80 or 90 folios, and a large collection of historical manuscripts, but nearly the whole of its museum, and a great part of its library, were destroyed by fire with the Parliament buildings in 1854; the Entomological Society, St Patrick's Literary Institute, Advocates' Library, Board of Trade, and Merchanta' Exchange, and the Young Mens' Christian Association Rooms.

Eight daily newpapers are published in Quebec, 5 of which are in the Franch language.

The principal benevolent institutions are the Marine Hospital, the Hotel Dieu, the General Hospital, and the Lunatic Asylum at Beauport.

Quebec has the head offices of 3 banks, viz.: Quebec Bank, Banque Nationale and Union Bank of Lower Canada, besides which there are 4 savings banks, and agencies of the Bank of Montreal, Merchants Bank, Bank of British North America, Du Peuple and Jacques Cartier.

Boots and shoes and leather are the chief manufacturing industries of Quebec. There are also manufactories of iron castings, machinery, cutlery, nails, musical instruments, paper, India rubber goods, rope, tobacco, etc.

Quebec is an important port of Canada, and the most ancient. The great staple of export is timber, Montreal being the port where the agricultural exports are chiefly exchanged for supplies of foreign goods. The timber is furnished principally by the Ottawa and St Maurice rivers. As the rafts come down the river, they are collected into what are called coves and secured by booms moored along the banks, the timber being partly afloat, partly aground, according to the rise or fall of the tides. These coves extend almost continuously along the left bank of the St Lawrence, for a distance of six miles above the town, throughout the whole of which, at certain seasons, may be seen a mass of logs with a breadth varying from 150 to 200 yards. There are also extensive timber and deal sawing establishments near the city, on the right bank of the St Lawrence.

Quebec returns three members to the House of Commons, and three to the Pro-

Quebec was first visited by Jacques Cartier in 1535. It then consisted of an Indian village called Stadacona. In July, 1608, Champlain founded the city, giving it its present name. The progress of its aggrandizement was slow, in consequence of the hostilities of the powerful Iroquois. In 1629 it fell into the hands of the English, but with the whole of Canada was restored to the French in 1632. From this period some attention was paid to the increase of the city; and in 1663, when the colony was made a royal government, it became the capital. In 1690 the English attempted to reconquer it, but met with a disastrous defeat; but in 1759 it was captured by the brave General Wolfe, and has since been under the British Crown. An unsuccessful attempt was made by the Americans to carry the city by assault on the night of December 31, 1775, when General Montgomery was slain.

TOWN OF ST HENRY-(Incorporated in 1876.) An incorporated town, adjoining the City limits of Montreal, and formed by the amalgamation of the former villages of Tannery West and Coteau St Augustin. The town of St Henry is situated in the seigniory of Montreal, county of Hochelaga and district of Montreal. The Lachine canal passes on the south side, and signal stations of the Grand Trunk railway are situated here at the junctions where the roads branch off east and west, and to Montreal and Lachine. The Grand Trunk Railway Co., with the aid of the Council of the town, has erected a splendid station at the curve, near the Notre Dame street bridge. The municipality of St Henry is governed by a mayor and corporation, and a separate permanent fire and police force is maintained. The town contains a new Roman Catholic college and convent, church and presbytery, and several important industries, amongst others two extensive tanneries, boot and shoe factories, brick yards, the C. W. Williams Manufacturing Co., employing 600 hands, a cotton manufacturing Co., one of the finest in the Dominion, and a public Abattoir and stock yard Co. The council has built a very fine Town Hall, Fire and Police station at the corner of Notre Dame and St James streets, at the cost of $25,000. Buildings are being prosecuted briskly, and the town bids fair to rise into some importance, having Fire and Police system of alarm telegraph. The town is now lighted by gas and oil lamps. Distance from Bonaventure station 24 miles, from Lachine 6 miles. Pop about 10,500.
