

A DEFI TO UNITED STATES--"Let America do or not do what she likes. We neither care for her bluff nor for her deeds."--From the semi-official Berlin newspaper, The Tageszeitung.

GERMAN SEMI-OFFICIAL PRESS NOW SCORNFUL

Admitting That U. S. Note to Berlin Was in Earnest, it Does Not Frighten Germany or Cause Her to Withdraw One Particle.

Amsterdam, May 29--London Daily Telegraph despatch.--On the probable content of the German reply to the American note respecting the submarine war, there appears in the Tageszeitung, the organ of Count Reventlow and the semi-official German newspaper, an amazingly significant article, which breathes insult and defiance to America in every line and states practically that the submarine war will be continued, regardless of any consideration.

The American call to German "leave" is the headline over the article, from which the following are quotations: "Admitting that the threatening note directed at Berlin was meant in earnest, the view is forced upon us that the German Empire, if it does not submit to the demands and draw back before the threats, must look upon war with America as a fact. In all conditions of this kind, does not fight the German Empire or the people who will calmly follow the government."

TRADE HAS GONE. "Trade between Germany and America has shrunk to microscopic dimensions. What they receive from us is more valuable and necessary to them than what we receive from them. Complete cutting off of the negotiations would leave us calm. America would only be able to damage us by confiscating the trading ships left in her harbors and much other German property. Further dangerous deeds of war against Germany are not to be feared because they would not be possible. Also we do not forget that there are certain interior difficulties in America."

On the other hand, the German submarine war against British trade is growing more energetically it is carried forward. Any stopping of this, even for a time, would have most important results. Any orders to submarine commanders that they conform to any of the formal conditions laid down by international law would mean the hindering of their actions and make the submarine war an empty farce, a kind of screen behind which one would obediently have to withdraw from it with apologies.

CAREFULLY PLANNED. "The German undersea war is no improvisation or sudden caprice, but a well-considered measure on a great scale. Therefore, there must be a practical carrying out of the measure if it is to be a tool of great value.

"In this great struggle for existence there cannot even be a fraction of a withdrawal. The empire cannot compromise itself in this nor in any other particular of the manner in which it is to carry on the war. To do that would be to commit hari-kari amidst the jeers of the world. To give up the submarine war, or to modify it, would be equal to surrendering a great fortress without a struggle--without being compelled by force, but merely in response to a threat, the carrying out of which need cause us no fear.

"If America has counted upon anything other than this, then they must attribute to the Germans a weakness such as does not exist. America does not appear any more terrifying to us because Italy now has been added to our enemies.

WILL NOT DO IT. "Germany is not to be frightened by words and threats. We believe every German expects the German Empire to answer the American note by maintaining its position by maintaining the submarine war.

"The call to fear finds no echo in the German heart said Bismarck, and it was such a call that came from Washington. The only German answer that is worthy of the empire, either from a political or military viewpoint, is that the submarine war against British trade must be carried on with all Germany's means and without consideration for America.

"Let America then do or not do what she likes. We neither care for her bluff nor for her deeds."

LEADING FIGURES AND CRACK CAVALRY OF ITALY

King Victor Emmanuel and General Cadorna, Chief of the General Staff, are two of Italy's most noted men who hold the secret of the Italian situation in their keeping. With every hour increasing the excited suspense of the people over the Austro-Italian negotiations, the importance of General Cadorna has steadily taken the ascendancy. To-day he is the one man in Italy who holds the situation in his hand, and in that hand is the sword. He is demanding that there be no compromise on the question of Austrian concessions. To-day he is said, of the King himself, Cadorna has shown that the cession of Trentino in part and not up to the Brenner border would be a constant menace to Italy. Looking at Italy's position in the European upheaval with the keen and far reaching eyes of the military defence expert, he practically says that only with Trentino, Trieste, Fiume, Gorizia--in fact, all provinces occupied by Italians--once more in Italy's control will he be content to keep back his dogs of war.

Lieut. Ashton Cockshutt Led an Attack On the German Lines

A Montreal officer now at the front, during the course of a letter under date of April 26th, says:

"I told you we had an hour's rest on the morning of this date. There were no rations for us, as our stores were some distance to the rear. We lay down in a field and I started on a cruise. An English General--Gen. Hall--heard of our long fast and immediately turned out his entire stock to us. We had parties told off to draw rations and these were passed around. No sooner had the rations been issued than Major Betty came along with an order that we were to move up towards the front line. We had no time to get water. The men were formed up and away we went. We divided the men up in platoons and advanced up on that hillside. Major Betty and Capt. Arthur led at some distance in front. I had the machine gun in the centre under Major Good. On my right Lieut. Critchley with one platoon, on my left, Lieut. Glandfield with another, two hundred yards behind came Lieut. Knowles on the right and Lieut. Cockshutt with a platoon each. In the rear and directly between was another platoon under Lieut. Morgan and Capt. Stewart. Some of these were new men just joined that morning. An attack was expected, which was the reason for our being ordered out. I shall never forget how these men who had been without food or water since the twenty-second, and had no sleep all that time, responded to the call. They knew that they were needed, otherwise they would not have been called upon after what they had gone through. It was not for us to ask the reasons for our advance over that open field. We had to go by rushes in extended order. We had a little over a mile and the enemy could get at us from front and both flanks. It was a grand sight to look back at my boys advancing bravely up that hill. Just before we reached the foot of the slope they got after us with shrapnel. Then as we advanced up we came under the machine guns from our left and steady rifle fire from the front. On we went by 50-yard rushes. "When we neared the front line we found it occupied, so had to dig ourselves in out in the open. The boys got to work like gophers, and the way they tossed mud was a marvel. On the way up the hill we lost a lot. I ran back and forth urging and encouraging the men. Once, when with Glandfield's platoon, six men were hit around me by machine gun fire. How ing and prepared to meet the rush of Germans. Our ration party sent out got lost and did not come back. We had what rations we had received in the morning and we filled our bottles out of a pond around which lay dead men and horses. But the water was as sweet as I had tasted for a time."

ETHIOPE SUNK

Liverpool, May 29, 1.04 p.m.--The Elder-Dempster Line steamer Ethiope has been torpedoed and sunk. The chief officer and 16 men of the Ethiope have been picked up. The rest of the crew is supposed to be in boats.

BERLIN TAKES HEED

Washington, May 29.--An urgent warning to American shipping against traversing the war zone incautiously and to have all neutral markings displayed as conspicuously as possible, including illumination at night, was communicated to the State Department to-day by the German Government through the American embassy at Berlin.

CAPTURED STORO

Geneva, Switzerland, May 29.--The Italians, after a severe fight along the frontier north of Lake Idro, have captured the town of Storo and are now bombarding Riva.

On the eastern front, north of the Gulf of Trieste, bayonet fighting is in progress south of Goritz. The Austrians are retreating slowly. Italian forces have arrived before Gradisca, about 16 miles from Trieste. The Italian authorities issued an order last night prohibiting Austrians and Germans from leaving the country.

Telephone connection was established between Toronto and San Francisco, a distance of over 3,000 miles.

Turns Tissues Into Liquid: An Awful Lingering Death

Major-Gen. Stuart Wortley Writes Home of Latest German Gas "This Last Damnable Effort" is What He Calls It.

By Special Wire to the Courier. New York, May 29.--A letter from Major-General Edward Stuart-Wortley, commander of a British army medical corps in France, is made public here by his brother, Ralph Stuart-Wortley of New York, giving this distinguished officer's tribute to the behaviour of a Canadian division in France, and describing the horrors which resulted from the use of asphyxiating gases by the Germans.

Germans to disregard all laws of humanity and civilization. TERRIBLE SCENES. "I have seen our men in hospital after having been brought back from the trenches. There is no need to ask for the ward in which they are, as their groaning is quite sufficient a direction of itself. In one ward there are eighteen cases. They are all sitting bolt upright, or swaying back and forwards, gasping for breath, their faces, hands and neck a shiny grey-black color, their eyes glazed and unable absolutely to speak or feed.

The effect of these gases upon the men who inhaled them, he says, has been to turn all the tissues of the lungs into a liquid, and during the two days that it takes for the men to die, the victims are "the most hopeless, helpless, sickening sight imaginable."

TWO DAYS TO DIE. "It takes two days for these men to die. During these two days they are in the most acute agony, and if by the slightest chance they recover from the poison they will in all probability be rendered useless for life, as the effect of the gas is to turn all the tissues of the lung into liquid. The doctors and nurses are working day and night in the attempt to give some relief, but there is nothing to be done. It is the most hopeless, helpless, sickening sight imaginable. One medical officer, who has a very large experience of the habits of African and Asiatic natives, tells us that in all his life, he has never had to deal with such an example of scientific torture.

NO EXAGGERATION. "At first I was inclined to disbelieve the accounts of the ill-treatment of our prisoners at the hands of the enemy, and to put them down to the inevitable exaggeration of warfare, but now that I have come face to face with German methods in the field, my opinions have undergone gradual but permanent change."

NEVER AGAIN. General Stuart-Wortley was formerly on terms of considerable intimacy with Emperor William of Germany. A few summers ago when the emperor was ordered by his physicians to spend some weeks at the English seashore, the General placed his country seat on the Hampshire coast, at the emperor's disposal.

ITALY SEIZES TURKISH ISLAND ON THE COAST OF ASIA MINOR

London, May 29.--The Turks and their German officers probably will have another invasion to meet before long. Unofficial reports reaching here to-day are to the effect that the Italians have landed on the Island of Rhodes, off the coast of Asia Minor, while a cruiser has been bombarding Budrum, which is on the Gulf of Kos, on the mainland of Asiatic Turkey, not far from Rhodes. This is believed to be the first step in an attempt to land on the Asia Minor coast. The Island of Rhodes is situated off the coast of Asia Minor, about 150 miles south of Smyrna.

Among the survivors of the British battleship Majestic, which was torpedoed and sunk in the Dardanelles, is Ellis Ashmeade Bartlett, the official correspondent with the allied fleet for all the English newspapers.

TOOK SIX SOLDIERS

The Turkish official story of developments in the Dardanelles, as given in a Constantinople despatch, tells of the capture of six soldiers and seven rifles at one place, and the seizure of five sailing vessels with provisions near Gorizza. This statement continues: "On the coast of Baba Tepe an enemy tug, which attempted to tow in four armored ships, was prevented from approaching the shore. Our soldiers waded far out into the water and under the enemy's fire took prisoners. Enemy cruisers, which yesterday vainly attempted to disembark troops at Budrum, to-day fired 1,600 shells upon the town, damaging some houses, destroying a church and a mosque."

VIRTUAL STATE OF SIEGE

Milan, via Paris, May 28.--Milan tonight is in a virtual state of siege. The entire garrison is being kept in readiness and troops are posted in various points of the town to prevent excesses against the Germans and Austrians. It is believed that no further trouble will occur. The population of Milan, irrespective of classes or parties, condemns the outbreak against the Austro-Germans and their property during the past few days. Further arrests of the disturbers of the peace were made to-day.

GERMAN REPLY TO U. S. NOTE WILL BE DELIVERED TO-DAY

Berlin, May 29.--It is understood that Germany's reply to the American note concerning Germany's submarine warfare, which will be delivered to the American ambassador to-day, will be furnished to the German Foreign Office and the Admiralty by still without news concerning the reported torpedoing of the American steamship Nebraska. The American note regarding the destruction of the Lusitania was (Continued on Page Four.)

Count von Bernstorff, German Ambassador at Washington, to the Foreign Office in Berlin. The telegram, as thus given, says that the American press is "getting impatient about the delay in the answer to the American note," and states that "tension has been increased by the wrecking of the Nebraska, which is not yet explained."

TRANSFERS HATE FOR ENGLAND TO ITALIANS

Berlin, via Amsterdam, May 29.—In a speech before the Reichstag, Chancellor von Bethmann-Hollweg said yesterday: "Italy has inscribed in the book of the world's history in letters of blood which will never fade her violation of faith."

"Nobody has threatened Italy, neither Austria-Hungary nor Germany. Whether the nations of the Triple Entente were content with the blandishments alone history will show later."

"Without a drop of blood flowing, without the life of a single Italian being endangered, Italy could have secured a long list of concessions, which I recently read before the House."

"Why didn't she accept it? Does she perhaps wish to conquer the German territory. Hands off (prolonged cheers). Does Italy wish to provoke Germany to whom she owes so much in her upward growth to great power and from whom she is not separated by any conflict of interests? We left no doubt in Rome that an Italian attack upon Austrian-Hungarian troops would also strike the German troops."

"The Italian statesmen played against their own people the same game they played against us. It is the Italian-speaking territory along the northern frontier has always been the dream and desire of every Italian. But a great majority of the Italian people as well as a majority of the Parliament did not want war."

"Fed with the gold of the Triple Entente the mob under the guidance of unscrupulous war instigators was roused to a frenzy of blood which threatened the King with a revolution and all moderate men with murder if Italy did not join the war delirium."

"Against the living wall of our warriors in the west our enemies have fighting fluctuates, if here and there a trench or village is lost, or won, the great attempt of our adversaries to break through, which they announced five months ago, did not succeed and will not succeed."

"They will perish through the heroic bravery of our soldiers."

FRENCH GAINING STEADILY

Paris, May, 2 30 p.m.—The French War Office this afternoon gave out a report on the progress of hostilities as follows:

"In the region to the north of Arras there occurred last night a very violent artillery engagement. The enemy bombarded particularly our positions on the heights of Lonette. A night attack made it possible for us to make further progress to the east of the roadway between Aix Neulette and Souchez. At about midnight a German counter-attack on our trenches at Ablain-St. Nazaire was easily repulsed."

"In the Argonne, in the vicinity of Fontaine Madame, we yesterday took possession of a section of the enemy's trenches."

The British government has arranged to make the press censorship more rigorous.

IN THE BRITISH MUSEUM.

(By Edward Shillito.)
I watched a wounded soldier pace the halls,
Where stone records how tyrants played their part,
But o'er the price, he bought their splendour, falls
The golden mist of Art.

Proud faces rose around him on his way,
Kings, in whose nod lay life and death, and more
Dwelt by Euphrates and the Nile, for they Had seen that face before.

This was the man who broke from out the line,
When slaves beneath the lash built tombs for Kings,
And Pharaoh mocked him, as he sat at wine
With fawning underlings.

This man, the foe of wrong and godless craft,
Died often in the land where faith was born,
He, from the lovely towers of Zion,
Sennacherib to scorn.

Long ere this day upon the Lowland plain
He shed his blood; for Alva knew this man,
Who met the cruel chivalry of Spain,
And foiled the Corsican.

Art bids dead tyrants live; but he unnamed
Shall be immortal as our liberties;
Now, home again from Flanders, scarred and maimed,
He pays the ancient price.

"You Can't Afford To Do Laundry Work in Your Home!"

A strong statement perhaps—but stop and figure it out for yourself. Just total the cost of preparing for the wash, the heating of water, washing materials, time and labor, wear and tear on clothing. WEAR and TEAR forms a big part of the cost, for few homes have washing machines that do not harm the clothing. In most homes the old-fashioned wash-board is still the big "rub" on wash day. Then use for this week's washing. This week do away with the usual fuss and muss of wash day and instead of being tired by a heavy washing and ironing, have the expert laundry workers at the Brantford Laundry do your work.

The modern methods used at the Brantford Laundry will save in wear and tear more than you actually spend for the laundry work—you'll save the time and labor usually spent in washing and ironing, and you'll not have the worry of a "washing".

Now, phone 274, have a "White Wagon" call at your home and prove our statement—"You can't afford to do Laundry work at home."

Old Country Notes

The Board of Trade having called upon the Newcastle Corporation Tramways Committee to release as many men as possible, in order that they may be employed on the manufacture of munitions of war, the situation was considered by the employees at a meeting the other day. It was decided to raise no objection to such a course, providing that the men who leave the trams and go into the factories shall be guaranteed reinstatement at the end of the war, and that their work in the factories shall count as tramway service. The introduction of women to fill their places was not objected to, provided that the women join the Union, and are not underpaid.

Shopkeepers in the poorer localities of London have for some weeks past noticed a number of particularly bright half-crowns, shillings, and even five shilling pieces in their tills. Examination has shown that they bear the date 1887—Queen Victoria's Jubilee year—and that some have small holes pierced in them. "It is a sign of the times," said a shopkeeper. "Some people can no longer afford to keep ready money lying idle, and they are forced to spend coins that they have treasured as brooches or watch-chain charms, or kept safely away in a box. The other Saturday night I took six Jubilee coins over the counter, some of them in appearance as fresh as the day they left the Mint."

A truly magnificent Christmas gift was made by the late Frederic J. Harrison, of Liverpool shipowners, to the men of His Majesty's Navy, a gift remarkable not only for its magnitude, but for the thoughtful care with which all the details of its distribution were worked out. Briefly, Mr. Harrison presented to the men of the lower deck of every ship in the Navy a gift of books varying in quantity with the size of the ships, the total number of volumes amounting to more than 275,000. The whole of this large order was executed by W. H. Smith and Son, who were responsible for the selection of the books, and the dispatch of parcels to their various destinations. The number of parcels, weighing on an average about 55 lbs. each, was no less than 2478. From the letters received by Mr. Harrison from various ships it is evident that his princely gift has been everywhere welcomed, and that the kindly thought for our brave sailors has been most warmly appreciated. With characteristic modesty, Mr. Harrison had no desire for publicity during his lifetime, but there is no longer any objection to the disclosure of his generous and kindly action being made known.

Manchester Corporation recently concluded arrangements whereby, owing to the dropping of various municipal schemes, 1,800 workmen from some twenty departments were to be released for the manufacture of munitions. Twenty-four students of the chemical department at Manchester University, who gave up their Easter holiday of a month, which they would have spent with the Officers' Training Corps, have been assisting in constructional work at the chemical works of Messrs. H. W. Morris and Co., Gordon Creek, where a plant is being erected for the manufacture of essentials for munitions.

Western University, London, held its annual convocation.

FOR 1915 COPPER

CHARLES A. STONEHAM AND COMPANY announce a new publication in their series of PROTECTIVE PUBLICATIONS, entitled "COPPER."

The new booklet contains a wealth of vital and valuable information on this subject. It comprises sixty pages, divided into five parts.

Part I. contains the history of Copper Metal, the part now being played by American Miners in the World's production and demand, together with a forecast of the future of the red metal.

Part II. is devoted to Copper Securities, the history of the share markets and the present relationship of securities prices to the new conditions in the metal.

Part III. contains Copper Statistics of incalculable value to the investor and speculator, showing production and consumption figures, price ranges, dividends, etc.

Part IV. represents an analysis of thirty-five Copper Companies, giving capitalization, funded debt, officers, dominant interests, property location and acreage, ore reserves, costs, annual output, and at the end of each Company statement the Company analysis is appended a table showing earnings per share with each variation of 1 cent per pound in the price of Copper Metal.

Part V. gives instructions for trading in Copper Securities, together with a brief description of the business of CHARLES A. STONEHAM AND COMPANY.

The booklet is handsomely and attractively printed in two colors, bound in Copper colored covers, and is a de luxe edition.

A copy of this booklet will be sent without any charge whatsoever. The edition is limited because of the great expense incurred in its preparation, and we suggest requests for copies be filed as early as possible.

THE SITUATION.

The comparative ease with which the Italian forces are sweeping towards Trieste and Trent, gives cause for surprise, but it is stated that Austro-German troops are now becoming massed and some big fighting may soon be expected.

The Russians are manifestly sticking with good success to their "come back" in Galicia. They are now pushing forward on both sides of the Vistula and Petrograd claims that there need be no fears with reference to Przemyel.

A description in a special despatch elsewhere in this issue with reference to the terrible effects of the gas used by the Germans constitutes yet another illustration of the fact that they do not stop short of any devilment.

A German paper in close touch with the authorities, breathes defiance at Uncle Sam. It is to be sincerely hoped that even yet our neighbors will keep out of the scrap.

A. J. BALFOUR.

The new First Lord of the Admiralty, in succession to Winston Churchill, has been a member of the British House for forty-one years, and for the greater portion of that time he has been one of the most conspicuous figures in British public life.

Young Balfour, who was the eldest of a family of eight, was given every opportunity to acquire an excellent education. He made his studies at Eton and later at Trinity College and Cambridge.

Allies Gain to the North of Arras Region

London, May 29.—The reply of the Imperial German Government to the note of the United States concerning the sinking of the Lusitania is awaited with keen interest in England.

Terrific fighting is continuing along the River San, in Galicia, with the Austro-German hosts making progress except at Siemawa, fifty miles north of Przemyel, where, according to the admissions of Vienna, an Austro-Hungarian force is being thrown back across the river to the west bank.

In the Caucasus, the Russians now in occupation of the city of Van in Turkish Armenia, are steadily advancing against the Turks. The latest report given out by French army headquarters dwelt on the British advance toward La Bassée and further French progress in the most difficult sector of the Lens-Arras line.

Liberal Ministry was defeated at the election of 1885 and preference came to those who had worked for its overthrow. Mr. Balfour, who had been returned for East Manchester—a constituency he was to represent for 20 years to come—was made President of the local Government Board in Lord Salisbury's first government.

In the following year, in the second Salisbury administration, Balfour became Secretary for Scotland, with a seat in the Cabinet. In March of the following year he stepped from the comparative security in which until then his career had been passed into the very centre of the political arena.

Every summer many Austrians and Hungarians have visited the towns, villages and fishing hamlets, finding lodgings in hotels and the homes of peasants. Most of the men assumed themselves, it is said, by drawing, painting and taking photographs, while the women cultivated friendly relations with the natives who were their temporary neighbors.

Residents of Rimini maintain the Austrian squadron was signalled by dense columns of black smoke which poured from the chimneys of a factory in the northwest of Ancona. Signals are reported to have been given at Ancona by means of rockets fired from the deck of a German steamer into an Italian port.

At a meeting at Ancona between General Asinari, the mayor of the city, Deputy Facetti, Deputy Bocconi and the bishop, with revolutionary leaders, who last June attempted to proclaim a republic, the revolutionists pledged themselves to give their property and their lives, if necessary, in the struggle to crush Austria.

London, May 29.—"It would be politically wrong, as well as morally unjust, to intern naturalized British subjects or in anyway to discriminate between them and native citizens."

AMMUNITION GOING FAST.

London, May 29.—The Turkish forces defending the Gallipoli peninsula against the landing forces of the allies, number 80,000 men, according to the correspondent at Athens of the Reuter Telegram Company.

London, May 29.—The appointment of a person of ministerial rank to supervise the dissemination of authentic war news to neutral countries is editorially urged by The Times, which says: "The minister should be backed by sufficient funds and assisted by men who have direct knowledge of the newspaper press of the world."

Rome, via Paris, May 29.—Great preparations are being made all over Rome for the reception of wounded soldiers from the front. Both Queen Helena and Dowager Queen Margherita have risen nobly to the occasion.

London, May 29.—The first detachment from the Canadian Aviation school at Toronto, is expected to go to the front within a month.

GERMAN SPY SCOURGE ON THE FRONTIER

German, Austrian and Hungarian Spies Systematically Over-run Italian Frontier.

Italian Frontier, May 28.—via Paris, May 29.—The spy mania which has developed along the Italo-Austrian frontier apparently is justified by the reported discovery of a carefully-planned espionage system developed by Austrians and Germans, especially in the Garda region and along the Adriatic coast.

There is reason to believe, also, the authorities declare, that large advertising signs erected along the railway line, especially near important junctions, really were intended to provide directions for airships or warships by means of a secret code.

Residents of Rimini maintain the Austrian squadron was signalled by dense columns of black smoke which poured from the chimneys of a factory in the northwest of Ancona.

"One Reason and One Only," Says Premier Asquith

London, May 29.—The prime minister has sent the following letter to J. K. Gulland, the chief Liberal whip, under the recent Liberal administration.

"My Dear Gulland—The government, of which I have been head for more than seven years has been reconstructed on a new basis. It has hitherto been recruited entirely from among the members of our own party. In its altered form it contains representatives of the regular opposition and of the Labor party. It was wished, for reasons I fully understand have not been realized, that our Irish Nationalist friends also should have participated in it.

Every summer many Austrians and Hungarians have visited the towns, villages and fishing hamlets, finding lodgings in hotels and the homes of peasants. being awaited to-day by administration officials with keen interest. It was to be handed to Ambassador Gerard in Berlin to-day, who, it was believed here, would immediately cable it to the State Department.

Unofficially advised said the reply would embody a proposal to the United States to defer definite consideration of Germany's submarine policy and the American demands until the two governments have had an opportunity to determine just what sort of vessel was sunk—whether the Lusitania was a peaceful merchantman, as assumed in the American note, or an auxiliary cruiser on the British navy list, mounting concealed cannon and carrying munitions of war, as indicated by information the German Government claims to have.

Sufficiency on hand. Berlin, May 28.—via London, May 29.—Replying to a question at a sitting of the budget committee of the Reichstag to-day as to whether the army administration had taken measures to ensure a supply of raw materials and textiles in the event of a long duration of the war, a deputy war minister made this precise statement: "Even a new winter campaign would find us prepared in every way. All the raw materials are at hand in sufficient quantities for it. It must be declared out of the question, therefore, that the efficiency of our army could be impeded owing to some deficiency."

TONE UP THE BLOOD

Hood's Sarsaparilla, a Spring Tonic-Medicine, is Necessary.

Everybody is troubled at this season with loss of vitality, failure of appetite, that tired feeling, or with bilious turns, dull headaches, indigestion and other stomach troubles, or with pimples and other eruptions on the face and body. The reason is that the blood is impure and impoverished.

Hood's Sarsaparilla relieves all these ailments. Ask your druggist for this medicine and get it today. It is the old reliable medicine that has stood the test for forty years.—that makes pure, rich blood—that strengthens every organ and builds up the whole system. It is the all-year-round blood-purifier and health-giver. Nothing else acts like it, for nothing else is like it; so be sure to get Hood's.

Only necessary work is to be taken up at Niagara Camp, and the training is to be accelerated as much as possible on orders from Ottawa.

PARADE TO ST. JUDE'S.

The Sons of England are holding a parade to St. Jude's church to-morrow at the evening service, when the Rev. Mr. Jenkins will deliver the address.

BRANTFORD BOYS ARRIVE.

Mr. George Macdonald, 35 Peel street, received a cablegram from his sons, Ross and Norman, who joined the Second Canadian Contingent of the National Cycle Corps, of their safe arrival in Devonport, England.

BREAK AWAY.

A team broke away this morning on Colborne street, and dashed into the standing outside the Davies store. The rig was overturned and the driver took a dash away, but was brought in about forty yards without injury to anyone.

THE NEW SCHOOL.

Work has been commenced upon the new Farrington school which is to be erected in school section, No. 1, Ingleby, Taylor and Co., who have secured a handsome building to accommodate one hundred and twenty pupils in three rooms.

NOTES.

Our beat Mr. Shell in the semi-final of the Foville shield and Mr. Shell beat Mr. L. Waterous. The final will be played off between Mr. Shell and Mr. Towers. The Buffalo team will consist of only twelve players and the match will be played this afternoon.

WERE NERVOUS.

In the soft ball game yesterday at Recreation Park, the Marlboro team trimmed the Brants of the Y. M. by a score of 9 to 2. The batteries were: Brants—Fleming and Robbins; Marlboro, Crawley and Lenington. The Marlboros scored three runs in the first inning and this unnerved the Brants, for they gave their pitcher no support, and were shaky on flies. Fleming pitched an airtight game, and if all had been as good as the pitcher there would have been a different story to tell. On Friday the Brants play the Beavers at Recreation Park.

TRANSFER OF PRISONERS.

Rome, May 28.—Via Paris, May 29.—Negotiations have been reopened with Petrograd, according to the Tribune, regarding the transfer to Italy of prisoners of Italian nationality taken from the Austrian forces. Italy originally refused to consider the return of these men on the ground that it would constitute an offense to her ally, Austria. With the entrance of this country into the war, however, the situation has changed and if Russia still is willing to make the transfer, Italy will pledge herself to return to Russia all prisoners of Polish nationality she may take. The Tribune, says similar negotiations are being conducted with Serbia. Prisoners of Serbian and Croatian nationality will be exchanged for Italians.

ITALIANS CENSOR LETTERS

Telephone Service Suppressed and Mail Matter is Delayed.

By Special Wire to the Courier. Italian Frontiers, May 28.—Via Paris May 28.—Italy thus far has been rigorous than any other country at war concerning provisions for the newspapers obtaining news of the progress of the war.

TELEPHONE SUPPRESSED. The telephone service has been suppressed and letters and telegrams are being strictly censored.

THREATENED TO SHOOT. A correspondent went to the eastern front without permission. The result was that he was stopped at most everywhere sometimes by sentinels who threatened to fire upon him.

ONLY AFTER TEN DAYS. Descriptions even of the most trivial episodes of the war, will only be permitted to be sent out of Italy 10 days after their occurrence.

OLD WORLD NOTES. A serious explosion occurred recently in Lerwick, causing great damage and resulting in loss of life.

MORE MEN ARE REQUIRED FOR THE 58TH. Recruiting Proceeds Very Slowly for New Company.

Recruiting last night was somewhat slow, only a bare half-dozen putting in their appearance. However, out of four examined, three went through with flying colors, and have been enlisted in Britain's Army of Liberty.

THE tiny stream of percolating water gradually gained in volume, and at length the men had to run for their lives. They all reached the "skip" in safety, but the last man had scarcely got in when there was a tremendous rush of water.

THE ladies enlisting are mostly remarkable for youth and are so far distinguished by a majority of Old Countrymen. One young fellow, on being rejected for being a half inch short, had a grievance hard to assuage.

AN extensive fire occurred a few days ago at Waterford. An extensive drapery establishment and an adjoining building were completely destroyed.

THE tiny stream of percolating water gradually gained in volume, and at length the men had to run for their lives. They all reached the "skip" in safety, but the last man had scarcely got in when there was a tremendous rush of water.

AN extra-ordinary accident occurred a few days ago in Galtwhorpe Street, Clerkenwell. Without any warning a stretch of the pathway, twelve feet long, and about 50 square yards of the roadway, collapsed into a huge cavity twenty feet deep.

TOTAL CANADIAN CASUALTIES NEAR 6,000

More Than 900 Have Been Killed —1,217 Are Yet "Missing."

Ottawa, May 28.—Additions to the Canadian casualty list bring the total number of wounded and missing up to 5,847. The Canadian division is still in the fighting in the vicinity of Ypres. Of the total 38 have been killed, 3,902 wounded, and still 1,217 are missing.

'TWIXT LIFE AND DEATH

Wounded Officer Lay and Would Have Bled to Death But For His Men.

London, May 29.—Lieut. Hellyer of the 48th East Yorks Territorials, who is in a hospital at Boulogne, owes his life to the devotion of his men in the ranks, who kept him from bleeding to death by taking turns in holding an artery. The officer's left arm was blown off by a shell and his right arm badly injured.

CONSCRIPTION IS LOOMING OUT AHEAD

London, May 29.—The announcement that conscription will be introduced next month is made by the weekly paper, "Town Topics," which says that the Government will propose legislation empowering the military authorities to call upon men in four classes, viz., 1st class, unmarried men, 18 to 35 years; 2nd class, married men, 18 to 25 years; 3rd class, married men, 25 to 35 years; 4th class, unmarried men, 35 to 45 years.

A DESPERATE EFFORT

"Curfew shall not ring to-night."

"How did you feel the first day under fire?" He closed one eye and shook his head. "Not very grand—not very grand—not for two or three days. Soon got used to it, though. Only things I don't care about now are those Jack Johnsons. Long Toms out in South Africa—now Jack Johnsons—funny names—and he went into a roar. Then leaning forward and, to make sure of one's attention, sawing the air with a hand that held perhaps the longest used handkerchief ever seen. "I seen 'em make a hole where you could 'ave put two hundred and fifty horses."

Thirty officers were killed in the Princess Irene disaster. Robert Kerr, of Kincairdine, was fined $50 and costs on pleading guilty to a charge of running an auto while under the influence of liquor on May 24.

THE FROBS

Toronto, May 29.—The relative distributions of barometer pressure have changed but little since yesterday, the high area remaining almost stationary north of the Great Lakes with low area over the upper Mississippi Valley and Maritime Provinces. The weather is moderately warm in the Western Provinces, elsewhere cool with tendency towards higher temperature.

FORECASTS:

Easterly winds, fair, except in southwestern districts, where it will be showery. Sunday, fresh to strong northeast and east winds, cool and showery.

Lieut. Von Buellow Killed in an Aerial Duel

By Special Wire to the Courier.

Paris, May 29.—Aviator Lieutenant Von Buellow, believed to be a relative of Prince Von Buellow, the former German Imperial Chancellor, was killed near Fismes, according to The Matin, in an air duel with a French aeroplane belonging to the newly formed rapid squadron M. S. 12. The French pilot, describing the battle, said: "Wednesday morning I saw an Albatross machine coming from the horizon, headed for Paris, and I gave chase. He was 8,000 feet up. I went up to 9,000 feet, rapidly overhauling him and the fight began. We were now less than 30 feet from the Albatross, but we were under such headway that we overshoot him, and I got a bullet in the shoulder but it didn't prevent me from continuing the chase.

The Germans tried to escape by dropping, but I flew over them again. Apparently one of them was wounded. Suddenly my lieutenant got in a volley at point blank range, and the Albatross tipped forward, shooting nose downwards foot feet to the earth. We followed them with our eyes. When the machine struck the earth it seemed to crumple into a ball and bounded along the hill side like a wounded rabbit running. We followed them down descending in spirals. The pilot lay some yards away where he had been thrown out, while the observer had been crushed under the engine. In one of his pockets we found a paper bearing the name 'Lieutenant Von Buellow, Imperial Guards, Berlin.' We found in the wrecked aeroplane ten large bombs and forty grenades."

The pilot, given his choice of the Legion of Honor or the military medal, chose the latter.

Late Wires

APPOINTED C. I. C. By Special Wire to the Courier.

Copenhagen, via London, May 29.—A despatch from Berlin states that Archduke Eugene of Austria has been appointed commander-in-chief of the Austrian forces operating against Italy. He has been chief of staff of the army engaged against Serbia and is highly popular with the rank and file.

HAS BROKEN UP. By Special Wire to the Courier.

London, May 29.—10:23 a.m.—A report received by Lloyds state that the Steamer Champagne of the French transatlantic line, which ran ashore near St. Nazaire, has broken in two. The 900 passengers aboard the Champagne were removed in safety. The steamer which was built in 1888, had a net tonnage of 3,068. She was 493 feet long, with a beam of 52 feet.

DIPLOMATIC CHANGES

By Special Wire to the Courier.

Paris, May 29.—Important changes in the Bulgarian diplomatic service, just announced are considered here to be highly significant. The Matin sees in them an indication that Bulgaria will be the second neutral to join the allies. Dr. Rizov, minister to Italy and a firm supporter of the triple alliance, has been replaced at Rome by M. Stancioff, diplomatic agent in Paris, who in turn is succeeded by M. Grekov, confidential secretary of King Ferdinand.

ORDER RE-ESTABLISHED.

By Special Wire to the Courier.

Milan, Italy, via Paris, May 29.—Energetic measures adopted by General Springardi have resulted in the arrest of 283 persons and the re-establishment of order throughout the city. Disorders had been of frequent occurrence since the declaration of war by Italy. From the Turin comes a report that Count Salamei, a son of the late Count Salamei, minister of the interior from Austria, has left for the front as a volunteer soldier in a cavalry regiment. At a meeting to-day of the Bologna municipal council, the majority, composed of Socialists, acclaimed the redemption of Italian provinces from Austrian rule. Senator Giacomo Ciamician, a native of Trieste, proposed to send greetings to Trieste and there followed a scene of the wildest enthusiasm.

FRENCH CREW RELEASED

By Special Wire to the Courier.

Rome, May 29.—Via Paris, May 29.—A Messina despatch to The Messagero says that after Italy's declaration of hostilities, the minister of war ordered the release of the survivors of the crew of the French cruiser Leon Gambetta, who had been interned at Messina. They will be sent back to France. The Leon Gambetta was torpedoed by the Austrian submarine U3 in the straits of Otranto on April 23 with the loss of 552 of her crew.

ANTI-ITALIAN RIOTS

By Special Wire to the Courier.

Udine, May 28, via Paris, May 29.—Reports from Cormons say that advances there from Trieste state that serious anti-Italian disorders are taking place in that place. The municipal authorities are said to have fled, leaving the civil government in the hands of a committee, which has been unable to prevent vandalism. The building occupied by the Italian newspaper Piccolo is reported to have been set on fire and several other buildings occupied by Italians have been sacked. It is reported that Austrian gendarmes have made little attempt to quell the disorders.

BRANTS' INFIELD BLEW UP; SAINTS SCORE EIGHT RUNS

Rube Made Big Mistake by Putting Higgins out and Substituting "Slab" Warner, Who Was Found For Five Singles and Four Runs.

Poor infield work by LaCroix, Mullin and Fried allowed the Saints to get away with the game yesterday at the Agricultural Park when they won out by the score of 8-7, after giving a tame exhibition whose only sparks of life were shown at the opening and at the end. The memory of those middle innings should be blotted out, if Brants are to make a name for themselves in the Canadian League.

THE FOURTH. With this lead Higgins was cool and confident, and held the Railroaders hitless until Harris tapped him in the fourth sending runs home. The break began when Ort walked, and Hadley was presented with a base by Dunlop. Stewart then received a gift from Mullins, and Ort went home. Todd whiffed and Inker was out, hitting to short. Forgie was passed and Harris landed heavily for a double, scoring Hadley, Stewart and Forgie. Reilly went out to first. Four runs on one hit.

THE FIFTH. Following this calamity, the Saints came back in the fifth and emulated their feat. Kopp made an infield hit and beat out the ball to steal second a moment later. Here LaCroix failed. Ort singled and stretched it into a two bager on a wild peg. It was then that Rube made the mistake of putting "Slab" Warner in for Higgins. The pitcher had been cool and kept his head, and was not to blame for the score. Slab's first man swatted hard to right by Hadley and two runs came home. Stewart connected and was lucky to reach first on an infield bunt. Todd went out going to first, when Inker doubled sending two more runs across, Forgie and Harris followed each other to the bench, and the inning closed with the tally 8-3. Kopp should never have secured his base and Ort should have been caught stealing, while Stewart reached first on a virtual gift.

Warner then got into his stride and got fairly good support, shutting up tight, and refusing the Railroaders any tickets to bases. Little life was evident in the work of the Brants in front of Reilly and they retired in order. Coming to the eighth the Indians rallied and brought in three runs causing the fans to enthuse. Dunn walked, Burrill doubled, and Mullin filled the bases with a scratchy single. Dunlop fanned and Fried singled, sending in Dunn. Foran connected, and Burrill and Mullin came in. LaCroix went to bat and played into an easy double from Forgie to Todd to Ort, with two men camping on the bases. Saints were down before Warner and the Brants returned to the attack, and the Brants were brought in as pinch hitter and waltzed strongly to be caught in right field. Green got his first single at home, luckily when Forgie dropped in his drive. Dunn walked, and Burrill singled. Green crossing the plate. Pitcher Howick was brought into the fray. Mullin hit an infield fly, reaching first, but forcing Burrill at second, and Dunlop went out to first and the game had ended in favor of the visitors.

THE LEAD.

Brants took a nice lead in the first when Dunn singled and Burrill walked, Mullin went out punching to second, being the second man down. Green already having failed to do this. Dunlop reached first on a long drive to centre, sending Dunn and Burrill over, Dunlop crossing the plate.

NATIONAL LEAGUE. Boston, May 28.—The Boston Nationals to-day raised the world's championship pennant, captured from the Philadelphia Athletics last fall, and observed the occasion by winning both games of a double-header from Philadelphia, and moving into the first division. Scores: R.H.E. Philadelphia 2 3 2 Boston 5 9 2

At New York.—The New York Giants batted Perdue, the St. Louis pitcher, for 19 hits to-day, enabling them to win an easy victory from St. Louis in the last game of the series by a score of 11-4. Five times up, Fletcher hit a home run and had three singles, and drew a base on balls. In the first inning Umpire Eason ordered Manager McGraw of New York to score Brooklyn's Mammaux outpunched Coombs in a close battle to-day, and Pittsburgh beat Brooklyn by a score of three to one. Wagner figured prominently in the victory. He tripled in the sixth, sending Baird home, and he scored himself on a close decision at the plate. When Viox hit a short sacrifice fly to Myers, Wagner was hurt in the collision and retired, while Miller was put off the field by Umpire Byron for protesting the decision. The score: R.H.E. Pittsburgh 3 5 2 Brooklyn 1 4 3

London Lost to Lee's Leafs. Guelph, May 29.—The Leafs annexed the second game with London, five runs, which proved enough to do the trick. The Cockneys were a different team altogether, largely due to the fact that Evans put up a good game on the slab. They were dangerous all the way and after Guelph team had tried ahead in the fifth and sixth innings London tied the score in the eighth. The Leafs won out in the ninth. O'Brien bringing in the winning run. Kirley pitched for Guelph and was hit fairly all the way through. The score: London 5 Guelph 6

OTTAWA BEAT HAMILTON. Champions Scored Four Runs in the By Innings. Hamilton, May 29.—Ottawa got sweet revenge on Hamilton yesterday, when the Senators started a batting rally in the eighth inning that netted five runs, which proved enough to win the tally in the first inning giving them a total of six to Hamilton's three. There were no excuses to offer for the Hamilton team; it was good clean hitting that gave the champions the victory. Dougherty had been stingy with his hits up to that time, and it looked for a time as if the locals had the game at their mercy. Fuller, the young phenom, whom Ottawa secured from the Detroit team, has not had a hit in either of the two games here, although his fielding has been above the average usually seen in the Canadian League. The score: Hamilton 3 Ottawa 6

ONTARIO PRINTERS IN CONVENTION

Conference of Typographical Unions Held in St. Catharines—Address of Welcome by Local Master Printers.

The fourth annual convention of the Ontario Conference of Typographical Unions was held in the Collegiate Hall, St. Catharines on Tuesday, May 25th. Twenty-four delegates representing sixteen locals were present. President T. A. Stevenson of Toronto presided.

Letters of regret expressing inability to be present, owing to a prior engagement were received from Marsden G. Scott, President of the I. T. U. and James T. Burke, Chief Labor Inspector.

President Stevenson, in his address spoke on the matrix question and the reproduction of borrowed matrices which is becoming an important question in large cities. He also suggested supervision of apprentices and suggested that stringent rules be provided to insure learners being given a thorough knowledge of the different department connected with the trade.

The question of looking after the members of the union who had enlisted at the call of their country was taken up. This is becoming quite a problem to many locals. One western Canada local has some forty of its members enlist.

Ald. W. B. Burgoyne and J. M.

Elson, in short addresses conveyed the greetings of the Master Printers of the conference.

Mr. W. A. Vickery, organizer of the Pressman's International Union, and Charles A. Kinsky, President of Buffalo Union, also briefly addressed the gathering.

On behalf of the city, Ald. J. A. Wiley extended a royal welcome to the delegates. He trusted that after their deliberations would be harmonious, and to the best interests of the trade; which plays so important a part in the world to-day.

Most of the morning session was taken up on the report of the Secretary-Treasurer which dealt with the result of his trip through Ontario. Many topics of great interest to printers came forward at the afternoon session which was held in the Journal Hall. Among others the question of better sanitary condition of printing offices came in for much attention.

At the conclusion of the morning business the delegates were the guests of the St. Catharines local, who treated them to a sight seeing trip along the Welland canal zone.

Peterborough was chosen as the next place of meeting, the sessions to take place on June 9th and 10th, 1915. Brantford lost out by three votes for this honor.

Ex-Ald. George A. Ward, represented Brantford at this convention.

derly developed, will be claimed by some, as not in the interests of the state, and which can be better served when party lines disappear or are at least temporarily obliterated.

All that is now needed is for Britain to adopt direct legislation, through the initiative and referendum and emulate the example of Switzerland, where political parties have entirely disappeared, and where the people themselves absolutely control the destinies of the country, with the power to initiate new legislation and to defeat attempts of politicians to foist measures upon them of which they disapprove.

Certainly the present war has demonstrated that an entire reconstruction of society is absolutely necessary, for not only has it shown in a most unmistakable manner that state ownership is immensely in advance of private capitalism, but that partyism as it exists to-day is a hamper on the progress of the world.

What new step the war governments will find it necessary to take it would be hard indeed to forecast; but it is not too early to begin to speculate upon the changes that may be made.

How the Worker Pays for It

It has often been advanced by professional men that one reason why they are entitled to charge large fees for an hour or two's service is due to the fact before they are qualified to practise at the profession they find it necessary to put in several years of strenuous study which costs a considerable amount of money, and that during this period they do not earn or receive any remuneration whatever for the time they expend and the strain they undergo; therefore, they argue, we are entitled to a much higher salary than the laborer, who has lost no time in study, but has earned wages right along.

Under a proper economic system, we argue that such a contention would be laughed out of court. In the first place the man who has learned a profession has no need to lose any time in study. The opportunity was open to him, and he could have worked with a pick and shovel on the street, like the city laborer, and have earned a laborer's wages right along.

As for the laborer, he never had the chance to go to college or the university and learn up. No doubt, if the opportunity had been afforded him he would have done so. He is unfortunate because he had not the means to qualify for a profession, while the other fellow was so situated that he could make good—perhaps because he had come in for some unearned increment in land, once on a time, he had the wherewithal to help him get through, simply a case, in both instances, of the influence of environment.

It hardly seems fair, however, that the lawyer or the doctor should be able to pull in a one hundred dollar bill for an hour's work simply because he happened to have studied things out, probably for four, or say five, years, while the laborer should be penalized by a life sentence to do the dirty and disagreeable work of society because he was so unfortunate as not to have had a dad with the necessary to put him through.

Under a proper economic system, the fellow who did the nice clean work, and wore the good clothes, should get the least pay, and the laborer who performed all the disagreeable tasks and toiled while exposed to all kinds of weather should receive the higher remuneration.

But then it is only the way this old world of ours is run. A man has to pay for being unfortunate, while the other fellow is paid because he happened to turn up lucky at birth.

Some day society will be modeled on a more equitable system. Equal opportunity will be accorded to every man and woman who is born into the world; when the man who does the nice and easy work will not be paid at the rate of one hundred dollars per hour, and the one who performs the disagreeable, heartbreaking task will not be remunerated at one dollar

Always Keep Them In The House

That's what Mr. H. J. Eastwood, of Carleton Place, Ont., says about Gin Pills.

"I have taken Gin Pills and find them good for pain in the joints, swollen hands and ankles, and all symptoms of Rheumatoid Bladder Trouble. We always keep them in the house."

Gin Pills FOR THE KIDNEYS

If you are feeling badly, perhaps it is your kidneys or bladder that is causing the trouble. If there is pain over the bladder—if the urine is hot and scalding—too free or scanty—if the urine shows brick dust deposits or incrusts—if there is constant pain in the back—restless sleep and loss of appetite—then you certainly need Gin Pills. Get them today and feel better tomorrow.

Gin Pills are sold by all dealers at 50c. a box, 6 boxes for $2.50. Free trial treatment if you write National Drug and Chemical Co., Toronto of Canada, Limited.

and twenty-five cents for a whole day's work.

At least, that's the way we figure it. We think eventually it will work out that way—if the workers organize and get wise.

Cannot Afford to Get Sick

There is hardly a laborer or mechanic but who dreads to think that some day or other it may be obligatory upon him to go to the hospital in the guise of a patient. He has no objections, of course, in going to the hospital as a hospital. Probably he would prefer to do so, all things being equal, for to be sure everybody knows the hospital is a nice place to go to, if one be sick or injured.

The one reason why the worker dreads to go to the hospital arises from the fact that few of us are able to get sick at the price it costs to keep up one's self-respect in an institution of that kind, no matter how admirable or desirable it may be as an institution in itself.

The average working man these days, as a rule, only manages to about live from hand to mouth. He is pretty well off indeed if he has been fortunate enough to save a few hundred dollars in his earnings, in case of a rainy day, or to provide against old age, and he is well aware that if he once gets into the hospital, and pays his way, and does not get out, his hard-earned and fondly hoarded pile will melt with the rapidity of a snowflake on an August day.

The average workmanman certainly cannot afford to get sick and try to be independent and pay his way through the hospital as hospitals happen to be run in this year of grace 1915.

If it happens to be a case of appendicitis, an operation will take just one-fifth of that five hundred dollars he has saved up after years of sacrifice. Then he has to pay so much more than if he went to board a swell hotel and dined high every day.

Then if he requires the services of a special nurse that means an addition to the expense account of two figures he has to pay rent for the house his family happens to live in, and the butcher and grocery bills go on all the same.

If he wants to be independent, as we have said and pay his own way through, that five hundred dollars he has in the bank will look like thirty cents before he has a chance to get rested up.

Honestly, no workmanman of average means can afford to grow sick and go to the hospital, and even if he at last comes down to it in earnest and goes into the public ward, where he is told the city or some other institution is paying for part of his keep, he finds it is a losing proposition all the same.

The worker knows it means ruination to be sick for any length of time and pay his own way through, and he loses his self-respect if finally, through necessity, he has to become a public ward.

Perhaps some day who knows but that a workmanman may afford to get sick as comfortably as the rich man, and go to the hospital with the comforting assurance that it will not bankrupt him to pay his way through. It may come when the workers earn a wage rate that will enable them to get a disease and rest up once every few years, like the rich, or when hospitals are run on a different basis than they are to-day in Toronto.

"A Plea for Mothers' Pensions."

"THE WIDOW."

A gaunt and pitiful figure At the close of day, I see, A woman alone and helpless, Caring for babies three. Pale and thin and worn, Shabby of clothes and sad, Never a hope for the morrow, Never an hour to be glad.

You ask: Pray, why is she lonely? Why is she worn and sad? Why is she hopeless, disheartened? Why can she never be glad? Never an hour in the sunshine, Always the wolf at the door, Living in dread of starvation, In face of earth's bountiful store.

Listen! 'Tis an every-day story, A blot on our Nation's fair name, A cause that has driven hundreds Of women and children to shame. It has wrenched little babes from their mothers.

It has bleasted innocent lives, Sent hundreds of souls to damnation, Crushed thousands of toiler's wives, She is one of those penniless widows, A victim of industry's greed, Whose husband was killed while on duty.

Producing for profit and need, Now alone she must fight for her babes, Bowed by the weight of her load, Black lies the future before her, Always a hill on her road.

Ah! great is the Nation whose mothers Have leisure to train and to plan! Ah! great is a mother's devotion And sacred the children of man! O God! how long will we watch her Falter and labor in vain, Before we arise and defend her And lighten her burdens and pain? —Rose Henderson.

War Tax and Out of Work

It does not make the least bit of difference that although the Government point plank refused to lift a hand for the relief of the unemployed worker during the past couple of years, they expect to see him pay his share of the war tax all the same.

He had to bear his proportion of the cost of the million bags of flour donated by the authorities at Ottawa Belgium, and the somewhat smaller amount the Ontario Legislature voted for the same purpose.

If his baby gets sick he has to raise the money for the added two-cent stamp that will have to be affixed to the bottle of medicine he has some way or other, procured for its relief, and in a hundred and one insidious and unperceivable ways they will manage to get his coppers out of him. Of course, his share has to be raised in some way or other to finance Canada's share in the war, and no one is raising any objection to the country meeting the demands made upon it for its part in the defence of the Empire; but it does seem out of place that the fellow who has been unemployed for months himself, and had to pay his share of sending over more than a million bags of flour across the sea to unfortunate he never knew, while he would have liked and certainly needed some of the same flour himself, is now compelled to fork over his share of the war tax.

When a Government desires to raise money, no matter how large the sum it always finds the means to do so.

If the powers that be had had any inclination to relieve the unemployed regularly monthly meeting of the Brantford Typographical Union, the following officers were elected for the ensuing year: President, Mr. E. E. Reynolds; Vice-president, Wilmot D. Reeves; Secretary-Treasurer, Ira D.

ideal, the ideal of personal and political freedom. We are hoping that this bond of community cannot be severed even by this war.

The women of all nations have the same lot in times of war; we must give the lives that we created; we must suffer war inhumanity and kindness to be cruelly destroyed; we must work to relieve the distress which war brings in its train; we must heal the wounds which men inflict on each other by the most subtly invented tools of destruction.

In times of peace, we women of all nations are united by the same lot—the lack of freedom; in times of war we woman of all nations are united by the same lot—to suffer great hardships, to help and to cure. True humanity knows no national hatred, no national disdain. Women are nearer to true humanity than the men are.

Across the turmoil of the war of nations, we will shake our sisters' hands, we salute each other with drooping, sorrowful heads, being more united than ever in the consciousness that the world will only be spared the repetition of a similar horrible experience, when women will be emancipated and will help to guide their states."

Considerable routine business was attended to.

George A. Ward, delegate to the Ontario Conference of Typographical Unions, held in St. Catharines on May 25th, gave a comprehensive and interesting report of the proceedings. After business Mr. Ward entertained the members to refreshment at the Tea Pot Inn.

Women Bear Brunt of War

A short time since it was published in this column the appeal of British women to their sisters in European countries, and in this issue we present an address which has been sent out to sister workers in belligerent and neutral countries by the suffrage societies of Germany, which shows that they apparently have the same sentiments as the message sent from across the English Channel. It says in part:

"We are impelled under the pressure of this criminal war, which devastates the earth and incites the peoples to mutual hatred and enmity, to seek the sisterly hand of the women to whom we were hitherto intimately linked in all countries on the globe by the common striving for the highest

Question of Unemployed

Federal Government Called Upon to Appoint Committee to Immediately Deal with Question—Reforestation, Encouragement of Small Intensive Farming and Good Roads Suggested.

The Thirteenth Annual Convention of the Ontario Labor Educational Association, held in the Masonic Hall, St. Catharines, on Monday last, May 24th, was attended by over two hundred delegates, presided over by Vice-President Jos. E. Suave of Kingston, in the absence of President Stokes.

The question that received considerable attention was that of unemployment, and a resolution was adopted, calling upon the Federal Government to immediately appoint a committee to bring down such legislation they may deem efficacious to deal with conditions of unemployment, pledging the convention to stand ready to support any practical plan to abolish the unemployment entirely. Ex-Controller Simpson of Toronto, who introduced the resolution with Delegate Norman of London, was appointed to head a delegation to Ottawa to take up the matter with the government.

During discussion three suggestions were offered toward solution. First, that the government should take up the question of reforestation which would add to a national asset as well as supply employment; a larger system of permanent roadways and assistance to smaller and intensive farming as an inducement to get the men back to the farm.

The convention endorsed the plan of the Industrial Toy Association, and urged heavy co-operation of all trade unionists to make this undertaking a success.

It was shown that the demand already exceeds the supply, and indications were given that branches of the concern now in operation in Toronto are to be established in other points in the province.

It was reported that the indebtedness of the Toronto Labor Temple and the Industrial Banner had been wiped off, and that a dividend of six per cent had been declared.

Berlin was chosen as the place of convention for 1916.

Officers were elected as follows: President—Jos. E. Suave, Kingston. First Vice-President—James Usher, Ottawa. Second Vice-President—C. H. Douglty, Guelph. Third Vice-President—J. A. Wiley, St. Catharines.

One Step More

History during the past six months is being evolved with a rapidity that almost takes one's breath away. No sooner do the governments of the belligerent powers make one astounding departure from the old deep-rooted and time-honored customs and traditions of past ages before another odd came in for some unearned increment in land, once on a time, he had the wherewithal to help him get through, simply a case, in both instances, of the influence of environment.

It hardly seems fair, however, that the lawyer or the doctor should be able to pull in a one hundred dollar bill for an hour's work simply because he happened to have studied things out, probably for four, or say five, years, while the laborer should be penalized by a life sentence to do the dirty and disagreeable work of society because he was so unfortunate as not to have had a dad with the necessary to put him through.

A SUNDAY SERMON BY PASTOR RUSSELL

TWO PENTECOSTS TWO SALVATIONS

Holy Spirit to be Poured Out Upon All Flesh.

The Divine Plan Provides Two Distinct Salvations - The First Pentecost - Its Blessings For the Church Exclusively - Its Work Nearly Completed - The Second Pentecost - Its Blessings For the World in General Coming Through the Messianic Kingdom - Operating Through Israel Restored - A Thousand Years of Blessing.

PASTOR RUSSELL

San Antonio, Texas, May 23. - Pastor Russell spoke here to-day on the text: "And it shall come to pass afterward that I will pour out My Spirit upon all flesh..."

of these, upon the servants and the handmaidens, found its fulfillment at Pentecost; and during the more than eighteen centuries since then, God's spiritual blessing has been with all the faithful followers of Jesus - all of God's servants and handmaidens. If we see the fulfilment of the prophecy fulfilled it becomes a guarantee to believers that the remainder of the same prophecy will have fulfillment in God's due time.

St. Peter's explanation of the Pentecostal blessing. "This is that which was spoken by the Prophet Joel, should not be taken to mean that what was witnessed in the upper room on the Day of Pentecost, nearly nineteen centuries ago, completely fulfilled the Prophet Joel's predictions. (Acts 2:14-18)

The later Pentecostal blessing upon the world will have points of similarity as well as points of difference. The blessing will come through the great Messiah as a representative of the Holy Spirit, and will make for the sins of the whole world by applying to the race the merits of His sacrifice. Thus He will seal the New Covenant with Israel, and then we will see the fulfilment of the prophecy in Isaiah 55:1-5.

Abraham of old typified Jehovah and Isaac typified Messiah, born not after the flesh, but after the Spirit - by a special Divine interposition - according to the promise of God. Of this antitypical Isaac class Jesus is the Head, the Forerunner of the Church, as well as the witness of the Spirit. The Body of Messiah is composed of a saintly few, according to the Scriptures, gathered primarily from the Jews, but being completed by additions from every people, nation, kindred and tongue. (John 1:11)

This Spiritual Seed of Abraham, all saintly will constitute the Church of the First-borns, the antitype of the Priests and the Levites of the Jewish Dispensation. With the completion of this Church, gathered out of all nations, sects and denominations, Divine favor will again return to the natural seed of Abraham. As Jew was granted the first opportunity or privilege of becoming the Spiritual Seed of Abraham, he will likewise have the first opportunity to participate in the blessing which will then come to the whole world. To the Jew first is the Divine order in respect to both of these blessings.

To this agree the words of the Apostle Paul. After telling of the Divine election to the Church, the saintly few of both Jews and Gentiles, the Apostle adds, "I would not, brethren, that ye should be ignorant concerning this mystery, lest ye should be wise above yourselves, that blindness in part (only, not perpetual) is happened in Israel, until the fullness of the Gentiles be come in. When the full, elect Spiritual Seed shall have been gathered in, all shall have been completed from amongst the Gentiles, then all Natural Israel shall be saved from their blindness and their outcast condition. Paul points out that as Israel's stumbling was directly foretold through the Prophet (Psalm 69:22), so also through the Prophecy God has foretold blessing later on according to the Prophet (Isaiah 55:1-5)

As a result of the second outpouring of the Holy Spirit, the Prophet Joel declares, according to our Common Version, "Your sons and your daughters shall prophesy, your old men shall dream dreams, your young men shall see visions." A preferred translation of this hereofore obscure passage reads: "Your young men (in that New Dispensation) will see with clear vision what your Ancestors dreamed of and related in parables. This vision of glory will be the Reign of Righteousness and the Pentecostal blessing accompanying it, upon the willing and obedient, every one of whom shall be brought to clear knowledge and full opportunity for salvation.

The order of the blessing is stated. It will come upon all flesh after those days, but upon the servants and handmaidens in those days. The days mentioned evidently refer to the days of the First Pentecost to the Second Coming of Christ. During this period, now nearly nineteen centuries, God's Holy Spirit has been granted to His faithful ones, and to these alone, only the fully consecrated have been accepted of the Lord as living sacrifices; and only such have been begotten of the Holy Spirit, that they may be His "Creatures in Christ" (2 Corinthians 5:17). During all this time the world has been unrecognized, so far as the Holy Spirit is concerned.

Indeed, after Pentecost the Apostle John went still further and declared, "The whole world lieth in the Wicked One." The only action of the Holy Spirit has been, as in the case of Felix, to "prove the world ungodly and unrighteous, and of judgment." (John 16:7-11; Acts 24:25) Our text declares, however, that the time is coming when the world will receive a share of the great Divine blessing which Christ died to secure for the world. The time will be "after those days" - after this Gospel Age shall have come to an end; after the New Dispensation shall have begun.

Only Jews received the first Pentecostal blessing. For three and one-half years thereafter the Gentiles were excluded, in harmony with the Divine promise made to the Jewish nation. Then came the time for a similar privilege to be extended to the Gentiles. I rejoice with you to-day, fellow-students of the Word of God, that this great gift of God is still obtainable, that the time has not yet fully come when the door of opportunity to this High Calling must close. Close it will, so soon as the full number of the elect shall have been completed. Thank God that another door will then open! The door of Restitution to human perfection and earthly life, grand beyond the power of description.

Then God's Holy Spirit - holy power - will through Christ be outpoured upon all flesh - upon all mankind. Messiah will inaugurate the New Dispensation, by sealing with Israel the New Covenant in His blood; as through the Apostle Paul the Lord declares, "This is My Covenant with them when I shall take away their sins. As concerning the Gospel, they are enemies for your sakes; but as touching the Election, they are beloved for the faith." - Romans 11:27-28.

This outpouring of the Holy Spirit is not merely for Israel, nor is God's blessing merely upon Abraham's natural seed outside of the Church class. It will include all of every nation desiring of coming into accord with God after they shall have come to a clear knowledge of the Truth. All nations shall be privileged to enter into and enjoy Israel's great Covenant, by becoming children of Abraham through faith. After all rejections of God's grace shall have been destroyed in the Second Death, the world of mankind will constitute the promised "seed" of Abraham, whose number shall be as the sands of the seashore, even as the spirit-begotten ones of this Gospel Age are likened to the stars of heaven. Therefore every creature in Heaven and on earth will acclaim honor to Him that sitteth upon the Throne and unto the Lord forever.

Abraham, David, etc. They must all obtain everlasting life through Him, and hence will be His children. Thus the Prophet David wrote of the future, "Instead of Thy fathers shall be Thy children, whom Thou mayest make princes in all the earth." (Psalm 45:16). Those fathers who are to be princes are already declared to have been pleasing to God. They attested their loyalty by a faith which worked in harmony with His will through the limitations of a fallen nature.

On account of this the fathers are already declared to be worthy of a "better resurrection" than the remainder of mankind - but not so glorious a resurrection as will be granted to the Church. Their resurrection will be to the perfection of human nature - mental, moral and physical. Thus they will stand before the throne of God as perfect beings, to which standard all the race may attain by obedience, if they will, during the thousand years of Messiah's Reign.

The Lord's Worthies (Hebrews 11) will not only be illustrations of human perfection, but princes, or rulers, in all the earth. They will be the outward and visible representatives of the invisible Messiah - the agents through whom the Word of the Lord will go forth. As it is written, "Out of Zion (the Spiritual Kingdom) shall go forth the Law, and the Word of the Lord from Jerusalem" - the earthly manifestation of the Kingdom amongst men. - Isaiah 2:3.

Lesson IX.—Second Quarter, For May 30, 1915.

THE INTERNATIONAL SERIES.

Text of the Lesson, II Sam. vi, 1-19; Ps. xxv.—Memory Verses, Ps. xxiv, 7-10.—Golden Text, Ps. cxxii, 1.—Commentary Prepared by Rev. D. M. Stearns.

David having been established as king over all Israel began at once to think of a place for the ark of the Lord, the symbol of the presence of the Lord in the midst of His people. The last record of the ark was when the Philistines returned it in a new cart with an offering; the men of Bethshemesh transgressed by looking into it, and 50,000 perished; they were glad to send it on to Kirjath-jearim, where it found a resting place for many years in the house of Abinadab in the hill (I Sam. vi, 1). I think that there is no mention of it during the reign of Saul. In our lesson chapter and in chapter vii, 2, it is mentioned sixteen times, and in the parallel record in I Chron. xiii, xv and xvi it is mentioned twenty-five times. It always suggests righteousness which God requires, but also that righteousness provided in Christ, who is the end of the law for righteousness to every one that believeth. The blood on the mercy seat speaks of the sacrifice on Calvary, and the cherubim bent out of the same piece of gold as the mercy seat tell of the oneness of Christ with His redeemed.

The Lord of hosts dwelling between the cherubim (verse 2; I Chron. xiii, 6; I Sam. iv, 4; Ps. lxxx, 1) tells of the mercy of God in Christ and of His provision for communion with us (Ex. xxv, 21, 22). For it is our privilege to say, "Truly our fellowship is with the Father and with His Son Jesus Christ" (I John 1, 3). Although David's desire to provide a place for the ark in Jerusalem was commendable, he was certainly out of fellowship with God in the way he took to accomplish it and in his adopting the method of the Philistines, whom he really knew better, as we shall see. David's folly in the matter of a new cart to bear the ark instead of the shoulders of the priests (chapter vii, 3; I Chron. xiii, 7; xv, 2, 12-15) brought about the death of Uzzah, terror in the heart of David and the ark resting for three months in the house of Obededom. When the Lord instructs us as to how He desires His work to be done there is nothing for us to do but obey and avoid all methods not His own.

One of the most grievous things in so-called church work of our day is the worldly methods which seem to have been adopted on all sides instead of prayer and fasting and looking to the Lord alone to carry on His work in His way by His Holy Spirit. As truly as the Lord gave Moses that plan of the tabernacle and David the plan of the temple (Ex. xxv, 9, 10; I Chron. xxviii, 12, 19), leaving no room for suggestions or improvements or modifications of any kind from those who have His plan plainly told us His plan for building this world to Himself and making it a new earth wherein dwelleth righteousness. We are not permitted to be conformed to this present evil world in any way, nor are we to think of making this world, which lieth in the wicked one, a right thing to work so long as plainly told us His plan for building this world to Himself and making it a new earth wherein dwelleth righteousness. LORD & TAYLOR NEW YORK

By Katherine Cecil Thurston, Author of "The Circle," etc.

Copyright, 1904, by Harper & Brothers

Still she hesitated. Then her decision was made for her. With a new boldness he touched her arm, drawing her forward gently but decisively toward Chilcote's rooms.

In the study a fire burned brightly, the desk was laden with papers, the lights were nicely adjusted, even the chairs were in their accustomed places. Loder's senses responded to each suggestion. It seemed but a day since he had left it—the niche needing but the man.

To hide his emotion he crossed the floor quickly and drew a chair forward. In less than six hours he had run up and down the scale of emotions. He had looked despair in the face of the sudden sight of Chilcote had lifted him to the skies; since then surprise had assailed him in its strongest form; he had known the full meaning of the word "risk," and from every contingency he had come out conqueror. He bent over the chair as he pulled it forward to hide the expression in his eyes.

"Sit down," he said gently. "Eve moved toward him. She moved slowly, as if half afraid. Many emotions stirred her—distrust, uncertainty and a curious half dominant, half suppressed questioning that it was difficult to define. Loder remembered her shrinking coldness, her reluctant tolerance on the night of his first coming, and his individuality, his certainty of power, kindly at first, never had been so vehemently himself; never had Chilcote seemed so complete a shadow.

As Eve seated herself he moved forward and leaned over the back of his chair. The impulse that had filled him in his interview with Renwick, that had goaded him as he drove to the reception, was dominant again.

"I tried to say something as we drove to the Bramfells' tonight," he began. Like many men who possess eloquence for an impersonal cause, he was brusque, even blunt, in the stating of his own case. "May I hark back, and go on from where I broke off?"

Eve half turned. Her face was still puzzled and questioning. "Of course," she sat forward again, clasping her hands.

He looked thoughtfully at the back of her head, at the slim outline of her shoulders, the glitter of the diamonds about her neck.

"Do you remember the day, three weeks ago, that we talked together in this room—the day that great many things seemed possible?"

This time she did not look round. She kept her gaze upon the fire.

"Do you remember?" he insisted quietly. In his college days men who heard that tone of quiet persistence had been wont to lose heart. Eve heard it now for the first time and, without being aware, answered to it.

"Yes, I remember," she said. "On that day you believed in me."

In his earnestness he no longer simulated Chilcote; he spoke with his own steady reliance. He saw Eve stir, unclasp and clasp her hands, but he went steadily on. "On that day you saw me in a new light. You acknowledged me."

He emphasized the slight peculiar word. "But since that day—his voice quivered—"since that day your feelings have changed, your faith in me has fallen away." He watched her closely, but she made no sign, save to lean still nearer to the fire. He crossed his arms over the back of her chair. "You were justified," he said suddenly. "I've not been myself since that day." As he said the words his coolness forsook him slightly. He leathed the necessary lie, yet his egotism clamored for vindication. "All men have their lapses," he went on. "There are times—there are days and weeks when I—when my"—The word "nerves" touched his tongue, hung upon it, then died away unspoken.

Very quietly, almost without a sound, Eve had risen and turned toward him. She was standing very straight, her face a little pale, the hand that rested on the arm of her chair trembling slightly.

"John," she said quickly, "don't say that word! Don't say that hideous word 'nerves'! I don't feel that I can hear it tonight—not just tonight. Can you understand?"

Loder stepped back. Without comprehending, he felt suddenly and strangely at a loss. Something in her face struck him silent and perplexed. It seemed that without preparation he had stepped upon dangerous ground. With an undefined apprehension, he waited, looking at her.

"I can't explain it," she went on with nervous haste, "I can't give any reasons, but quite suddenly—the—the farce has grown unbearable a used not to think—used not even to care—but suddenly things have changed—or I have changed." She paused, confused and distressed. "Why should it be? Why should things change?" She asked the question sharply, as if in appeal against her own incredulity.

Loder turned aside. He was afraid of the triumph, volcanic and irrepresible, that her admission roused.

"Why?" she said again. He turned slowly back. "You forget that I'm not a magician," he said gently. "I hardly know what you are speaking of."

For a moment she was silent, but in that moment her eyes spoke. Pain, distress, pride, all strove for expression; then at last her lips parted. "Do you say that in seriousness?" she asked.

It was no moment for fencing, and Loder knew it. "In seriousness," he replied shortly.

"Then I shall speak seriously too." Her voice shook slightly and the hand came bare into her face, but the hand on the arm of the chair ceased to tremble. "For more than four years I have known that you take drugs—for more than four years I have acquiesced in your deceptions, in your meannesses."

"There was an instant's silence. Then Loder stepped forward.

"You knew—four years?" he said, very slowly. "For the first time that night he remembered Chilcote and forgot himself.

Eve lifted her head with a quick gesture, as if, in flinging off discretion and silence, she appreciated to the full the new relief of speech.

"Yes, I knew. Perhaps I should have spoken when I first surprised the secret, but it's all so past that it's useless to speculate now. It was fate, I suppose. I was very young, you were very unapproachable, and—and we had no love to make the way easy." For a second her glance faltered and she looked away. "A woman's—a girl's—disillusionment is a very sad comedy—it should never have an audience." She laughed a little bitterly as she looked back again. "I saw all the deceptions, all the subtleties, all the—lies." She said the word deliberately, meeting his eyes.

Again he thought of Chilcote, but his face paled.

"I saw it all. I lived with it all till I grew hard and indifferent—till I acquiesced in your 'nerves' as readily as the rest of the world that hadn't suspected and didn't know." Again she laughed nervously. "And I thought the indifference would last forever. If one lives in a groove for years, one gets frozen up. I never felt more frozen than on the night Mr. Fraide spoke to you—asked me to use my influence; then, on that night!"

"Yes, on that night?" Loder's voice was tense.

But her excitement had suddenly fallen. Whether his glance had quelled it, or whether his words had worked itself out it was impossible to say, but her eyes had lost their resolution. She stood hesitating for a moment, then she turned and moved to the mantelpiece.

"That night you found me changed?" Loder was insistent.

"Changed—and yet not changed." She spoke reluctantly, with averted head.

"And what did you think?" Again she was silent. Then again a faint excitement tinged her cheeks.

"I thought"—she began. "It seemed—"

Once more she paused, hampered by her own uncertainty, her own sense of puzzling incongruity. "I don't know why I speak like this," she went on at last, as if in justification of herself, "or why I want to speak. But a feeling—an extraordinary, incomprehensible feeling seems to urge me on. The same feeling that came to me on the day we had tea together—the feeling that made me—that almost made me believe."

"Believe what?" The words escaped him without volition.

At sound of his voice she turned. "Believe that a miracle happened," she said; "that you had found strength, had freed yourself."

"From morphia?"

In the silence that followed Loder lived through a century of suggestion and indecision. His first feeling was for himself, but his first clear thought was for Chilcote and their compact.

He stood, metaphorically, on a stone in the middle of a stream, balancing on one foot, then on the other; looking to the right bank, then to the left. At last, as it always did, inspiration came to him slowly. He realized that by one plunge he might save both Chilcote and himself.

He crossed quickly to the fireplace and stood by Eve. "You were right in your belief," he said. "For all that time, from the night you spoke to me of Fraide to the day you had tea in this room, I never touched a drug."

She moved suddenly, and he saw her face. "John," she said unsteadily, "you—I—I have known you to lie to me about other things."

With a hasty movement he averted his head. The doubt, the appeal in her words, shocked him. The whole isolation of her life seemed summed up in the one short sentence. For the instant he forgot Chilcote. With a reaction of feeling he turned to her again.

"Look at me!" he said brusquely. She raised her eyes.

"Do you believe I'm speaking the truth?" She searched his eyes intently, the doubt and hesitancy still struggling in her face.

"But the last three weeks?" she said reluctantly. "How can you ask me to believe?"

He had expected this and he met it steadily enough. Nevertheless his courage faltered. To deceive this woman, even to justify himself, had in the last half hour become something sacrilegious.

Woman's World

President of Association For Erection of Washington Memorial.

MRS. HENRY F. DIMOCK.

A building is to be erected at Washington which is to be a veritable people's forum. There is an association called the George Washington Memorial Association, of which Mrs. Dimock is president, which has been authorized by congress to raise $2,500,000 for the construction and maintenance of this building. A site has been set apart by the Sixty-second congress next to the new National museum and near Pennsylvania avenue, which is valued at $500,000.

The memorial is to contain rooms for various state exhibits, offices for patriotic, educational, scientific and public welfare organizations of national scope; many small and average size halls, a banquet room, reception room, etc., and a large hall to seat not less than 6,000 persons.

This auditorium, with the small halls adjoining, will afford ample accommodations for great world congresses such as have heretofore met in the capital cities of Europe. Diplomatic functions and the inaugural reception may be held there also.

This unique and serviceable memorial, when completed, will be under the care and administration of the board of regents of the Smithsonian Institution.

Make Your Days Joyous. Here is a general warning to elderly women: Never permit yourself to live in the past. This trick, more than anything else, will age you. So often we hear women say: "Life holds nothing for me now save memories. I live with my loved ones in the past."

That speech and crows' feet are boon companions. Naturally the woman of fifty or more finds herself dropping into reminiscences, but do not indulge in this habit even if it gives you a melancholy sort of pleasure. Find yourself to be interested in their interests. Think of the future. Never permit yourself to think that your usefulness is ended or your capacity for enjoyment dulled. If you cannot play tennis you certainly can take brisk walks in the fresh morning air—and play bridge later in the day, if your conscience permits. And there is no law against your playing golf.

Do not dress in what is known as a kitchen fashion, but do not think that because years are overtaking you you must wear dim colored raiment. Do not brush your hair back severely from your face and don an uncompromising touque. Fluff your hair on either side if you part it, and under no circumstances wear a severe pompadour unless you have classic features and a stately carriage.

Do not curl your hair with the iron, as this has a tendency to break hairs which you cannot afford to lose. Better far to use soft rags or patent curlers overnight, and right here let us speak of the nightcap, which is enjoying a decided revival. Make this of very thin china silk, interlined with fine sheer wadding in which you strew scented powder. This gives a charming perfume to the hair and wards off dangers from drafts if you sleep near an open window.

PURITY FLOUR is not a so-called bargain. But it is cheapest in the end and bake-day success is assured.

The "Lancet" announces that a committee, under the presidency of the Director-General of the Army Medical Service, has been formed to provide the necessary co-ordinating authority for the compilation of an adequate medical history of the war.

The exportation of anthracite is prohibited, by an Order-in-Council, to all foreign ports in Europe and on the Mediterranean and Black Seas, other than those of France, Russia (except Baltic ports), Spain, and Portugal.

At an inquest at Swansea on an old woman of eighty-two, death was found to have been caused by asphyxia due to gas escaping through rats eating a hole in a gas pipe.

"Lord Kitchener," a beautifully formed daffodil of a delicate yellow tint, attracted much attention at the spring show of the Royal Horticultural Society, London.

The Albert Medal of the Royal Society of Arts has been presented to Senator Guglielmo Marconi for his services in the development and practical application of wireless telegraphy. Owing to the absence in Canada of the President, H.R.H. the Duke of Connaught, the presentation was made by Colonel Sir Thomas H. Holdich.

The Port of London authority has given notice that an increase of from twenty to twenty-five per cent, will be made in the port rates on goods imported into and exported from the port. The additional revenue thus yielded is required to meet the increase in cost of material and wages in connection with the extensive works of the port improvement which are now in progress.

Rates of Postage to the front is a topic of considerable discussion in Great Britain just now. A correspondent who complained of the rate of postage for parcels to soldiers at the front has received a reply from the General Post Office that the Postmaster General has discussed the possibility of a reduction with the military authorities, but "he is inform-

Lord Charles Beresford suggests that steps should be taken to confiscate a German or Austrian ship at present interned for every British merchant ship sunk by a German submarine. The President of the British Shipowners' Association has made a similar suggestion to the French Navy Minister, who has replied, says Reuter, that he was considering the plan, but that arrangements must be made with the British Government before it could be put into execution.

A novel proposal has been made with a view to providing for the fitting celebration of the King's fiftieth birthday. It is suggested that a sum of one million pounds shall be raised and given to His Majesty on the morning of his birthday, the money to be applied by him in the manner he thinks best for the benefit of sailors and soldiers and those dependent upon them. It is understood that the idea would meet with the hearty approval of the King.

Good Form

Announcing an Engagement.
If you are to make the announcement at a luncheon of your friends, which is a very popular method of announcing one's engagement, you can very satisfactorily herald the announcement by some message written on the place cards. Choose place cards having some bridal or wedding design, such as a tiny bride and groom, wedding bells or hearts. The bridal couple is perhaps the most effective design.
Write across the back some such sentence as "Wedding bells are soon to ring." When the girls come into the dining room and see all these bride and groom cards they will naturally take them up and read what is written on the back. Then you may write your place standing at the head of the table and, holding up your hand, call attention to your engagement ring.
Or, if you prefer to make the announcement at an evening party, choose any game in which your guests have to select partners. Have provided as many cardboard hearts (such as attractive valentine cards) as there are couples. Have each heart cut into two sections on a zigzag line, each heart being differently cut. One-half of each card must be given to one of the girls and the other half to the young man who is to be her partner. When it comes time to select partners and match up the sections of the cut hearts, let all of your guests, your fiancé excepted, find their partners first. Then, taking the arm of your fiancé, both you and he having a section of a heart of larger size than the others, step where you can stand in front of all your guests and holding up the two sections of the heart match them together, at the same time showing your engagement ring.
Or you might have two hearts wreathed together in some way with a satin ribbon and hold these up before your guests. They will at once understand the significance of the united hearts.

Things to Do and Not to Do.
A woman who is untidily or carelessly dressed is quite as rude as a man without a collar. He would never dream of going out without something around his throat, yet she will appear in public with a divorce in the region of the waist, a few buttons and hooks missing, her hair bundled up anyhow, and her shoes down at the heel. Not only is she exceedingly unattractive, but she is being actually discourteous to the folk who are obliged to look at her.
It is usually either nervousness or thoughtlessness that prompts a woman to display her worst side to the world. She will take a seat that is offered to her in a crowded car without a word of thanks or else will make the chivalrous person feel still more embarrassed by a quick and emphatic refusal to profit by his generosity.
Or perhaps she will rush through swing doors without bothering to notice if any one is likely to be caught in the rebound, elbow people who are in the street or fail to remember that she must always bow first to her male acquaintances before they raise their hats.
Consideration for others and a desire to be inconspicuous always mark the well bred person in public. It is still more important that in the home this consideration should not be pushed aside like an irksome duty. It is a mistake to encourage indifferent manners toward those who are lived with day after day. It is just as much trouble to be rude as to be polite, and intimacy in the home should not be made the peg on which to hang countless petty bickerings and little errors in good manners.
Ignore Social Errors.
Do you know how to meet the social break-how to pass it off lightly or ignore it if it is made intentionally, or how to cover it or even to take it upon yourself if it is made blindly?
There is one sort of social break that takes a great deal of courage to meet in the tactful womanly manner, and that is the break when some one tells you something disagreeable she has heard about you. Besides the pain that such information always causes, there is always an element of curiosity that makes you yearn to hear all. But put down this curiosity; show the greatest indifference about any sort of slander that may be brought to your ears.
"Oh, please don't tell me. I like to be liked, you know," laughed a young woman when her neighbor volunteered some malicious gossip she had gleaned about her.
"Well, I'm sorry; that is my misfortune," you might say the next time your attention is called to the goodness of another toward you. Remember that the woman of social importance--the woman who has a place of consequence to fill anywhere--will always have fault found with her, and there are always plenty of persons who will bring you news of this fault on the slightest encouragement. Repeating this sort of gossip is one of the worst of social errors, and, no matter how high the social standing or how great the education of the person who repeats it, the part of the woman of refinement and tact is always to meet it by disregarding it.

GOOD BOMB THROWERS AT A SMALL EXPENSE

Ingenious Methods Are Used in the Trenches to Send Missile of Death Into Opposing Lines.

(Special Dispatch.)

LONDON, May 29.—The widespread use of trenches in the present war, writes a correspondent with the French army, has brought the opposing armies into closer proximity than ever had been considered possible since the development of firearms, and the result has been that new methods have had to be devised to deal with unexpected conditions.

"At first," says the correspondent, "the Germans were probably better prepared for this kind of warfare. Their 'minenwerfer' are excellently made and well designed, as I have been able to assure myself by the examination of some of those captured on the Champagne front. There is no suggestion of improvisation about them. On the contrary, they are, if anything, over-complicated. Experience has shown that they are far too heavy. The largest of them, indeed, are cemented into the trenches, so that they cannot be removed, and none of them is nearly so effective as the simple weapons that the provincial ingenuity of the French has invented under the pressure of circumstances.

"The Germans have been scoring to a certain extent by the use of asphyxiating bombs in utter defiance of the obligations they had accepted under the Hague Convention. The French have not been long in finding a reply to these weapons. If the Germans mean to use poisonous gases in warfare, the French are ready to retaliate with a weapon which should prove very effective, though it in no way contravenes the regulations accepted by all civilized nations except Germany.

"This weapon consists of a hand grenade filled with certain chemicals which when released produce gas that has no deadly effects but is quite powerful enough to paralyze a man for several minutes. An experiment two of these grenades were thrown into a narrow lane between two walls that might fairly be taken to represent a trench. When the gases had released a company of infantry was ordered to advance up the lane, and I accompanied them.

"When the first ranks came within the zone of the fumes they stopped suddenly and beat a hasty retreat, fighting their way through the men behind them, also, but they were not blind, they were running round their cheeks. The smell of the fumes is not unpleasant. It is suggestive of pear drops combined with very strong ammonia, and it produces such violent smarting of the eyes and nose that it would be hopeless to try to use a weapon while under its influence. These bombs have not yet been used, and will only be employed if the Germans make any further use of asphyxiating gas.

French Hand Grenades.

"Besides the newly invented gas bomb the French have various forms of bombs and bomb throwers for use in the trenches. The hand grenades are of two kinds. The larger kind, which looks like a rocket with a stick sawn off short and a very large head, contains more than a pound of explosives. These explosives are contained in a black steel case closed by a wooden cap, with a fuse at the bottom end. The man who is to throw the grenade breaks off the seal which covers this fuse and sets light to it with a small match. When the fuse begins to splutter he has five seconds before the explosion, and with a good swing can throw it twenty-five to thirty yards. Men of all arms are being trained to use this weapon, and the explosives which I have seen permitted to witness were carried out by a number of infantrymen just back from the front. Its effects are very deadly, as it will sweep an area of fifteen yards, and though we were fifty yards away from the point where one of them exploded it was advisable to take cover behind a tree, as several splinters reached us.

"When the trenches are 200 to 300 yards apart the range is too great for hand grenades. For this work a bomb thrower called the 'craquante' has been devised. Its name is derived from 'crapan', a lead. It is a squat, toad-like thing, painted gray and consisting of a wooden stand and a part of a German shell case mounted on it. The German shrapnel cases have only to be shortened and to have a touch hole bored in them. A charge of powder is placed in them, and above the bomb contains three pounds of explosives.

Insensitive Bomb Throwers.

"Two salves of six 'craquantes' were fired in one hour. Six range-like bombs were thrown into the air and exploded with tremendous violence when they reached the ground 250 yards away, hurling missiles in every direction. A piece of mitrail, like a heavy machine gun, came hurtling through the branches of the tree behind which I was sheltering and fell at my feet. The mitrail was driven down into the trench of the same tree. One bomb fell into a stream and threw up a column of water some fifteen feet into the air. The Germans, when they capture a trench, have an ingenious way of describing these bomb throwers, which cost about a dollar each, as guns, to impress the senders of their communications.

"We also saw the use of a sort of smoke bomb from these engines. They produced a certain amount of smoke which was blown by a fan into the trench, and their success was the more remarkable as there was a strong wind blowing. The output of these bombs was roughly three times that of the ordinary smoke bomb, and practically undisturbed. The engine and method with which the men, who of course are not allowed to carry them, were working was quite remarkable. The factory has been commended by the state, which has a patent for its use to its profit."

Resort to Deadly Gases Amazes Kaiser's Allies

Austro-Hungarian Newspapers Now Silent After Having Denounced First Reports of Use of Asphyxiating Fumes as Slanders of the Enemy.

(Special Dispatch.)

BUDAPEST, via LONDON, May 29.—News of the use of asphyxiating gases by the Germans in the western theatre of war has reached here from Italy, in extracts from French and British newspapers. The Budapest journals reproduced these items in full, giving a technical description of the gases, although at the same time commenting upon the report as "an absurd and ridiculous slander." One of the morning newspapers characterized the news as one of the usual French and Italian libels on Germany. "To whose fairness in the war," it was added, "no suspicion can attach, but to keep silence on the subject, and to have tried to discredit German heroism with a slander so grave and libelous in nature as this newly invented form of accusation."

It will thus be seen that the report obtained no credence in the Austro-Hungarian press, but because the report was confirmed by Germany itself there was nothing else for the newspapers to do but to keep silence on the subject. "Slanders" were, after all, not slanders, but the popular disappointment and disillusionment of the Austro-Hungarian press, which had proclaimed to the world that it was a peace-loving nation, and that it would not resort to weapons which have sold their hands. To Hungarians it is inconceivable why Germany, with all her power, should persistently have proclaimed to be weaker and inferior, and that she should resort to such a course of conduct.

It is argued that Austria-Hungary, in fighting Russia, is contending against a powerful and determined enemy, but while excessive may have to be admitted on either side, there have been no flagrant violations of international conventions on the part of either of the belligerents.

When the history of this war comes to be written as an unbiased pro, though atrocities and breaking of conventions will have to be recorded, it will be recognized that the war of Austria-Hungary and Russia was in the main waged on human and self-respecting lines.

Of the many observations incidentally supplied by the Austro-Russian campaign, it is only necessary to take the case of three Serbian soldiers who found a wounded Austrian officer lying in a wood one night. As the Austrian line was the nearer, in order to save his life they brought him in, and then asked for permission to return to their own lines. In return for their courtesy, the man, who had been wounded, escorted them back, accompanied by instances like these, German "kulturs" and "humanity" take a very secondary place.

French Hand Grenades

"Besides the newly invented gas bomb the French have various forms of bombs and bomb throwers for use in the trenches. The hand grenades are of two kinds. The larger kind, which looks like a rocket with a stick sawn off short and a very large head, contains more than a pound of explosives. SIR JOHN FRENCH SCORNS WAR'S ALARMS

(Special Dispatch.)

STOCKHOLM, May 29.—The Svenska Dagbladet, of Stockholm, tells an amusing story which it received from a correspondent at the front, showing that Field Marshal Sir John French, commander of the British forces in France, will not permit the press to interfere with his personal comforts.

The story was told to the correspondent by a young lieutenant who was on duty with his regiment one night on the outskirts of Cambrai, when Field Marshal Sir John French, who was in the vicinity, was asked to give them a hearty welcome to the front.

GRATITUDE FOR LORD KITCHENER'S MASTERLY WORK IN CRISIS STIRS BRITISH AGAINST HOSTILE PRESS

Called to War Portfolio When England Was Unprepared and Office Was Strangled in Red Tape, He Poured Army Into France, Forced Newspapers to Keep Military Secrets and Won and Keeps Public Confidence.

(Special Dispatch.)

LONDON, May 29.—When the war was breaking over Europe like a sudden tempest Lord Kitchener was in London, having come for consultation regarding the tense situation in the army over the Irish question, which had brought the United Kingdom to the verge of civil war.

Everybody was asking, "Who shall lead the War Department?" Everybody replied "Kitchener." At that time, it will be recalled, because of the sedition in the army, Mr. Asquith, the Premier, was discharging the functions of Secretary of State for War, but it was clear to all that the very best and the very strongest man who could be found was needed for that task.

But the suggestion which was on the lips of entire Britain did not seem to meet with a hearty response from the Cabinet. It was announced that Lord Kitchener was leaving for Egypt. Contention was expressed on all sides, because it had been expected that the government would lose no time in availing itself of his services. Then came the news that he had actually started for Dover on his way to Cairo. Simultaneously with this report came the news that the war portfolio had been offered to Lord Haldane.

The Evening News, one of the newspapers of the corporation known as the Associated Newspapers, Limited, opened fire on Lord Haldane instantly. It declared he had been a German sympathizer, that he had been responsible for limiting the arming of the British forces and that he was not to be trusted with the destinies of England in this emergency.

Marked for Slaughtering.

From that time Lord Kitchener has been marked for slaughtering, and for nearly the entire time that he has been in office the newspapers whose correspondents he rejected have been hammering away. First it was the necessity to have accounts of English gallantry published in order to inspire enlistment. It would be impossible to raise an army, they said, unless these stories of how this or that regiment fought were spread broadcast. Lord Kitchener sent an "eye-witness" to the front to describe the operations for all the newspapers, and a mighty good "eye-witness" he proved.

Then the newspapers opposed to the War Office insisted that the army could not be raised unless the government resorted to conscription. That lasted a long time, until Lord Kitchener in a speech in the House of Lords showed that he practically had his two million men under arms without conscription.

Those newspapers that have set themselves the task of breaking Lord Kitchener's will then began to hint

Harmonicas Cheer Austrian Soldier

(Special Dispatch.)

VIENNA, May 29.—The part which music is taking in this war is told by the Prazer Tagblatt in an interesting incident which stirred Vienna into action.

Recently an Austrian soldier wrote a pathetic letter to his parents in Vienna saying he would give anything to have an harmonica. He missed that he spends days in the trenches in all kinds of weather, and while he missed many comforts, he would forget all his worries if he only had an harmonica with which to pass the dark, lonely hours at night. This letter somehow reached the hands of the Minister of War, and he was greatly stirred by it. He made an investigation and found that music played a most important part at the front. It was like a tonic to the soldier—it aroused them from depression, and even the grating strains from an old accordion would build new courage into discouraged soldiers in the trenches. While everything had been done to meet the physical wants of the men at the front, the Ministry of War is delighted with the results. The soldiers in every leisure moment sing, while others play on the violin, the piano, the harmonica, and other instruments, and it has had a remarkable effect in relieving their sorrows and keeping off depressing thoughts. One soldier writes, "My little song book has become my best comrade." More money has been expended to send several hundred harmonicas to the soldiers, and the result has been a great increase in their morale and a decrease in their suffering.

Quaker City Women Aid Prague Children

(Special Dispatch.)

PRAGUE, May 29.—The Prager Tagblatt, of Prague, Austria, announces that Mrs. George D. Widener and Mr. George H. McPadden, of Philadelphia, who have taken the cure in Carlsbad every summer for many years, have sent to their physicians in that town 6,000 kronen with which to relieve the distress of the women and children in Carlsbad. This newspaper adds that as a result of the war there has been a great distress throughout the town, and the money received from these charitable Americans will do much toward relieving some of it. In the letter which accompanied this generous donation the writers state that in view of the many months of incessant fighting which has been going on in the town, and the many deaths of the women and children in Carlsbad, they had taken pleasure in giving the money to relieve the distress of the poor.

DESOLATION MARKS WIDE COUNTRY SIDE

All Movements Outside of Zone of Death Are Made Furtively by Inhabitants.

(Special Dispatch.)

NEAR RHEIMS, via LONDON, May 29.—Touring along the battlefields of Champagne, where after nine months of desperate fighting the guns are still at work, one sees great armies of France and Germany still divided from each other by a few barren meadows, a burnt wood or two, a river bank, a few yards of trenches, and a zone of death.

The spirit of war broods over all the countryside. Gradually as one gets nearer to the front the signs of ordinary life are left behind, and one comes into a region where all the activities of men are devoted to one extraordinary purpose and where they live in strange conditions.

No civilian comes this way unless as a correspondent under the charge of a staff officer. The laborers on the roads—carting stones to this country of chalk—are all in uniform. No women of this territory exist where here and there, by a lonely road, a wrinkled face drives a rare chance.

German Fo Hopes Take

Berlin, May 30.—Via London 31.—Gottlieb Von Jagow, the German foreign secretary, received the correspondent of the Associated Press and outlined the sons which impelled the German government to send "an interim" to the United States Government as a final and definite recognition of the American representations of the Lusitania and other matters that have been torpedoed among many submarine policy.

TAKE SAME VIEW.

"The issues involved," said Von Jagow, "are of such importance and the views in regard to the same show such variance, that the German Government believed essential to attempt to establish a basis of fact before entering a discussion of the issues involved."

"We hope and trust that the American Government will take the view of the case and let us know what points their understanding of the facts differs from the German viewpoint as set forth in the memorandum in which they agree, looking for a direct answer to communication."

LEAVES WAY OPEN.

"The American note," says the Associated Press, "leaves the way open for a preliminary discussion of the situation as set forth in the German note. It is not such a common basis of fact established, may serve as the work for further conversations."

The minister was unwilling to make a more definite statement of the German position, but he did not seem to be in any doubt as to the basis of the American position. He felt entitled to anticipate as the departments of the government be heard before suggestions of definitely taken up or discussed.

PRESIDENT GRAVE THE UN

WASHINGTON, May 31.—Two national problems, one a crisis relations between the United States and Germany, and the other the termination of the administration of President Wilson to-day in view of circumstances paralleled in American history.

MEXICO WILL BE WAR.

The President had prepared a message to be issued to-morrow warning the Mexican faction of their incessant attacks upon the innocent populace to the starvation, and that unless the elements came to an agreement soon, some other means would be found by the United States to accomplish this end.

RELATIONS GRAVE.

There was a confidence in expectation that the warning would be set in motion definite peace in Mexico, but in respect relations with Germany, made increasingly grave by the reply Berlin to the American note, a consequence of the Lusitania disaster, pessimism and high tension were apparent.
