JURY DOES NOT CONVICT MORRIS

After a Trial Lasting a Whole Week, Ernest Morris Is Discharged, Having Been Found Not Guilty of the Murder of His Brother—His Flankee Gives Evidence in His Behalf and Disputes Mother's Story—Jury Out About an Hour.

The Morris murder trial was concluded about 7 p.m. on Saturday, the jury returning a verdict of "not guilty," and the accused was thereupon released.

All day Tuesday was taken up with the examination of Dr. Charlton, the medical expert, which was very trying for both the witness and the jurors, the latter being tired out when the court adjourned.

The most important point gained from the doctor was that, in his opinion the deceased's death was caused through a bullet wound in the head, and that he was quite dead when the fire started, and therefore the burning had in no way affected his demise.

He stated that he had examined the spade, overalls and cartridge case produced and swore that in his opinion the stains upon them were human blood.

A long discussion took place between counsel and witness as to whether or not the wound could have been caused by a fall, but the doctor stuck to his former statement. He did not think that a man partly suffocated could get up and stagger about. He might be able to rise up but would fall back again. The cross examination was still unfinished when the court adjourned.

Nothing further of importance was drawn from Dr. Charlton on Wednesday morning when the examination was continued, and he was finally dismissed just before noon.

Frank Grieve, was the next witness and testified to having visited the remains of the fire, and said the body of deceased was in the same position when he saw it, as when first found.

Grant Cassidy corroborated this statement, and added that he found a watch and a cloak in the ruins, both of which had stopped at 10 minutes to 1 o'clock.

Mr. Longbottom, the undertaker, who received the remains at Milestone and a brother of the former witness Cassidy, were formally examined, but said nothing of importance.

Hans Larsen, a farmer living in the neighborhood, was the next witness. He had known the brother for some time, and had never heard of any trouble between them. The last he saw of deceased alive, was on the Monday evening when he passed his (witness') shack. The accused passed the shack about 7 p.m. and was riding in the direction of his brother's home.

On the morning of April 8, he saw smoke arising from the Morris shack. He at once rode over and the first thing he saw was the charred body of Charles Morris, nobody else was there at that time. The body was lying face downwards, with the head thrown backwards, and the arm and legs missing. He failed to identify the skull produced in court as that belonging to deceased. He added that the accused stayed on the scene until the coroner arrived.

J. E. Bradley then entered the box and stated that he had known the deceased for about three years. He was away on the night of the fire, but on returning about ten o'clock the next morning he noticed a fire, but thought it was Gieve's haystack burning, and paid little attention to it. It was hardly visible when he reached his home. In cross examination he admitted that accused told him he possessed a revolver, but he had never seen it.

Prisoner while in court was always calm and collected, except when any of his brothers' remains were produced, and then he turned away and gazed out of the window.

On Thursday the most important witness was John Kinkade, the father of the prisoner's fiancée. He was questioned at length as to how long he knew the brothers, whether or not they were on friendly terms, and what he saw on arriving at the scene of the fire. He then proceeded to tell how he had found tracks of a man who appeared to have worn overalls, from the shack to the barn. As the strides were long and the forefront of the impressions were deeper than the back, he would think that the man who made them must have been in a hurry.

The prisoner called at his (witness') house about eight o'clock on the night of the fire, and after speaking to witness and his wife, passed into another room to see his sweetheart. Questioned as to how deceased appeared that night, witness stated that he was nervous, and looked as though he had been drinking. He left the house about 10 o'clock.

The next morning witness followed the tracks of the horse accused had been riding to within about 250 yards of the Morris shack, but no further. He was certain they were the tracks of the accused's horse, as it was shod on three feet only. Mr. Wood then cross examined the witness as to the condition of the head when he first saw it, and as to the ownership of the overalls produced, but witness would not swear that they belonged to the prisoner.

Mrs. Kinkade next went into the witness box. She stated that when accused called at their house on the night of the fire he appeared the same as usual, but left a little early, about 10.30. Sam Fowler and Peter Steward were both at Kinkade's when accused arrived, but they noticed nothing unusual about him.

Chas. W. Schiefner was then called. He explained that he purchased a team of horses from Ernest Morris for $360, paying $100 cash and gave a note for the balance, $260. He also gave Karl Morris a note for $85 for these horses.

On Friday morning Schiefner again entered the box and stated that about one o'clock on the night of the fire witness looked at the clock and they then went to bed. He heard of the fire about five o'clock next morning when he got up, and he told accused, who however, passed no remark. They both proceeded to the shack, and on the way his attention was drawn to the fact that accused's horse had only three shoes on by the horse tripping and nearly losing another shoe. He added that the accused was wearing overshoes or rubbers.

Cross examined by Mr. Wood witness said the horse showed no signs of being ridden hard. He had seen it after Mr. McCausland had made the journey from Kinkade's to his place in an hour and one minute, and both rider and horse were exhausted. The prisoner, he added, was going to work for him, as he had done on previous occasions. He had never seen him with a revolver. Someone was handling a rifle when he arrived, and other things were interfered with before the arrival of the coroner. As far as he knew the brothers were on friendly terms and both were concerned in the sale of the horses. He lent the accused $50 after the fire for funeral expenses.

Other witnesses were examined as to the prisoner's actions on the morning of the fire, and his mode of living previous to the death of his brother.

Dr. Thomson was next called and gave a lengthy examination, gave his opinion that death was due to a gunshot wound in the brain. This concluded the case for the prosecution.

C. E. D. Wood then opened the defence. Several witnesses were called, the most important probably being George Upham, manager of the Union Bank at Milestone, who stated that the brothers had a joint account in the bank, and either could sign cheques, which proved that they must be on very friendly terms.

All day Saturday the court was crowded, it being fully expected that the case would be concluded.

The first witness was Mr. McCausland of Wood & McCausland, who were handling the defence. He explained how he had ridden the horse "Billy," from Kinkades to Schiefner in a test ride, and it had taken one hour and one minute, the horse having to be urged towards the end of the journey, and was quite exhausted.

The testimony of the next witness, Rachael Kinkade, the young lady, who was engaged to be married to the accused, probably had a good bit to do with the accused gaining his liberty. She denied on oath the statement made by her mother, that on the night of the fire she said, "Oh mother, I never saw such a strange look in Ernest's eyes before."

Mr. Ross—And he was just natural that night; you would never have thought for a moment that he had done anything wrong?

A. No.
Q.—And you would never believe that he could do anything wrong?
A.—I know that he has done some wrong things.
Q.—But you still believe in him?
A.—Yes.
Q.—And always will, I suppose?
A.—I expect so.
Q.—Now you say that Ernest was quite natural that night. Did you ever say to your mother a day or two after the fire, this: "Oh mother, I never saw so strange a look in Ernest's eyes. He could do nothing but talk of Charlie?"
A.—No.
Q.—You deny that?
A.—Yes.
Q.—Will you swear that you did not say to your mother, "Oh mother I never saw so strange a look in Ernest's eyes?"
A.—Yes.
Q.—And if your mother says you did say that to her, what would you say?
A.—She was mistaken.

When the defence closed the prosecution recalled Mrs. Kinkade, who again swore that her daughter did make the all-important statement respecting the conduct of the accused, on the night of the fire.

It was very evident that the Kinkade family was divided on the question of the prisoner's guilt, and the daughter's evidence was distinctly in favor of the accused, who never once took his eyes from the box while she was being examined.

Mr. Wood then addressed the jury at length, referring first to the seriousness of the oath taken by them, and then to the various points brought out during the trial in favor of the accused man, and even suggested that Charles Morris may even now be alive, and the remains were that of some other person. He then explained various other ways by which deceased may have met his death, and in conclusion said he hoped they would do their duty, the matter was in their hands, and he could only pray that "God would guide them to bring in a true verdict as the law required."

Mr. Ross followed with a strong speech for the prosecution, during which he made things look rather black for the accused. An important point being as to what Ernest was doing from the time he left Kinkade's at 10.30 to the time he arrived at Schiefner's, at 1.15.

The judge then proceeded to sum up, he instructed the jury on various points of law, and then reviewed the case from the beginning, but in his remarks he did not lean either for or against the accused, and when the jury filed out, it was hard to anticipate what the verdict would be.

At thirteen minutes to seven, they returned, and in answer to the usual questions, they answered "Not guilty," and the man whose life had been in the balance for six days was again free and received many congratulations, and thus ended the most sensational case on the criminal list at this session.

A handsome new brick school is to be erected in Hanley this year at a cost of about $16,000. The debentures have been awarded to Messrs. Nay & James, bond dealers, Regina.

Borden's Idea.

London, June 3.—R. L. Borden, in an article in the Standard, remarks that trained in the practice of self-government for centuries, Britain has always been principally concerned with a practical temporary solution of each problem as it presented itself. In this way the relations between the various nations of the empire have been evolved in the past, and it is thus that they will develop them in the future. He concludes the article as follows: "In the consciousness of her vast possessions and her wonderful natural resources, realizing and utilizing her wealth as an opportunity for material development, Canada will not fail to turn her eyes to loftier ideals to accomplish a wise and just solution of those social and economic problems of vital concern and fundamental significance, to build up within her borders a virile population animated by intelligent patriotism, to maintain high standards and ideals of public and private life, to stand for truth and justice and make for peace among the nations of the earth, and so march with the sister nations of the empire's vanguard of civilization. This will be the higher task of the Canadian people."

WOMEN'S MEETING

The Quinquennial Congress of International Council of Women Meet in Toronto This Month—Delegates from All Over the World Attending.

The quinquennial congress of the International Council of Women, to be held in the University buildings, Toronto, June 16-30, will be one of the most unique and interesting gatherings that Canada has yet seen. There are twenty-three countries represented in the federation, and only two of these, the Argentine Republic and Bulgaria are not sending delegates. The former country is sending two papers as its contribution to the congress. Consequently women from Britain, the United States, Denmark, Sweden, the Netherlands, Italy, Austria, France, Greece, Hungary, Norway, Belgium, New South Wales, Victoria, Tasmania, New Zealand, Queensland, Germany, Switzerland, South Australia, will meet our own Canadian representatives in congress in the Queen City. The delegates and speakers number two hundred or so, but many visitors are expected as well. For instance Canada and the United States have but ten delegates each, but the speakers and visitors will add to this number by scores.

Have Already Started.

The Australian delegates have already started, and are expected in Vancouver early in June. They will cross the continent to meet the other across-seas delegates in Montreal on June 12. There will be a special service and sermon for them, and all Montreal will do them honor during their stay. Such ladies as Lady Galt, Lady Montague Allan, Madame Dandurand and Lady Drummond are on the hospitality committee.

On Tuesday morning the party will leave by special train for Ottawa where they will be entertained at luncheon by the experimental farm, at a garden party to be given at Rideau Hall by Countess Grey, and at high tea by the Ottawa local council.

They arrive in Toronto on June 16, when at a public meeting in the evening at which the Countess of Aberdeen will preside, greetings will be presented from all the countries represented in the federation. Next evening the mayor and Mrs. Oliver will hold a reception for them in the city hall.

The first week will be occupied mainly by congress meetings open only to the delegates and speakers, the three evening meetings only being public. The second week, however, will be open to the public. Tickets admitting to all open sessions may be had for $1.50 and admittance for any one day or meeting for 25 cents. With the tickets will be given a congress badge, consisting of a silver maple leaf, containing on a blue scroll the letters I.C.W.

Sessions will be held in nine halls simultaneously, the sections being art, education, health and physical training, industrial matters, laws concerning women and children, literature, philanthropy, professions for women and social work and moral reform.

The Program

A glimpse at the program for education, still incomplete, will give an idea of the interesting addresses and discussions to be anticipated. "Ideal Training Schools," by Prof. Dale of McGill University; "The Psychology of Childhood," Miss F. Melville, M. A., principal University Hall, St. Andrews, Scotland; "Municipal Playgrounds of Chicago," Mr. Graham R. Taylor; "Town Children's Holidays in the Country," two Dances; "Organized Play in Elementary Schools," Miss Lorna Johnston, England; "Vacation Schools and Supervised Playgrounds in Canada," Miss Peters; "The Education of the Mentally Defective," with line light views by Miss Mary Denny, England; "Co-Education in Colleges and Universities" for Miss Ritchie, Halifax, against Dean Brakenbridge, Chicago; "Domestic Economy and Secondary Education," by Froken Karen Blicher, Denmark; "Home Making as taught in Schools," Mrs. Carlaw Martin, England; "Technical Schools," Miss Zimmerman, "Rural Schools," Dr. Parmelee, Quebec; "Education and Democracy," Mrs. Muir, England; and "Environment," Prof. T. Morgan, Columbia University, N.Y.; "Selective Degeneracy," Lady Dockrell, Dublin; "Secondary Education," Mrs. Alfred Pollard, England; "Training of girls for future careers," Mrs. Oglvie Gordon, Aberdeen; "The People's High Schools," Frau Hasstrup, Training in Schools; Miss Mary Campbell, Ayr, Scotland; Hon. Mrs. Franklin, London; "Esprit d'coros and Schools," Miss Souleby, England; "Educational Responsibility of Parents," Miss Edgar, Toronto; Mrs. W. H. Johnston, Manchester; "University Graduates and Social Service," Miss Chrystal MacMillan, England; "Work of women on Educational Boards," Miss E. C. Harvey, England; and "The University Graduate and the Home," Miss Alice Younger, Glasgow.

During the congress the delegates will be taken to Guelph and entertained at the agricultural college by the Ontario government; to Lake Simcoe, where they will be the guests of Lady Edgar; to Niagara and to Hamilton, where Mrs. Sanford will be the hostess. They will be entertained at a reception at government house, at tea at the Lambton Golf club, and at luncheon by several different hostesses. When the session is completed about 100 of the delegates will leave on a trip to the coast. They will be entertained by all the local councils on their way out, will go down to the annual meeting of the United States Council of Women to be held in Seattle in July, and will return via the United States, the whole trip lasting about twenty-three days.

This great congress is the third to be held, the International Council holding its "annual" meeting only every five years. As there are already twenty-three countries represented in the federation and as the congress is held in each country in turn, it will be seen that it cannot be held in Canada for over one hundred years. The Countess Grey will be present at some of the sessions, and the Countess of Aberdeen will preside, and will give several addresses. Reduced rates are given on all railways for the whole time, June 16 to 30, and as only three public meetings are to be held during the first week, visitors who are not delegates will have a certain amount of time to themselves during the first five days. At the first "quinquennial" in London over 6,000 persons attended, and at the last in Berlin, even more than that number.

The importance of the congress may be known from the fact that both the Norwegian and Swedish governments are paying the expenses of the delegates from these countries, some ten or so from each, and also from the fact that the Dominion government has made a grant of $1,000, and the Ontario government of $700, toward the expenses of the Canadian National Council, which is the "hostess" of the congress.

Lucky Ontario.

Should Saskatchewan have control of its land and timber? Ontario has and is never in financial trouble with good men at the head of the government. Read the following from the Toronto Globe, and imagine Saskatchewan having control of the lands, timber and minerals. The Globe says: "The statement that the Ontario government has received a bona fide offer of $20,000,000 for the Gillies limits has naturally awakened reasonable hopes as to what will be received up to the middle of June for some 870 acres of this area. The published offer was for the entire limit, which contains about 64,000 acres, not all mineralized, and also includes a government mine which is regarded as proved richness. There is a strong conviction in the province that $20,000,000 in cash would be better than the uncertain returns to be obtained from other methods of advertising the property. But the government is in possession of the most reliable information regarding the mineral deposits of the limit, and if they decide to stake their reputation on the refusal of so good an offer they must feel that it can be made to yield far better returns."

King and Labor.

The appointment of W. L. Mackenzie King as Canada's Minister of Labor is not being received with that unanimity which the government expected. The Toronto Mail and Empire in discussing the selection says: "A cardinal error has been committed by the government at Ottawa in selecting Mackenzie King, a former official, for the position of Minister of Labour, instead of choosing for the place a man who understands the labor question as a result of both study and experience. The blunder becomes all the more noticeable in view of the arguments that have been presented in Mr. King's behalf. It has been said by the organs inspired by this young gentleman that a man from the ranks is unfit to occupy the elevated position to which Mr. King has climbed. The workman is thus ruled out as intellectually and socially incompetent. This attitude is unjust to those who are compelled to toil for a living. There are many workmen who are quite as well informed as Mr. King on the intricacies of the labor problem. Their ability to judge of the latest measures taken by other countries with a view to improving the labor situation is not below that of the former deputy minister. It may be true that socially they do not come up to the Mackenzie King standard. They have not studied lawn tennis or pink teas. But this should not exclude them from the service of the state. Another argument offered in favor of Mackenzie King, and in opposition to a real labor man, is based upon the assumption that a person who has served in the ranks cannot be trusted to deal justly should a conflict between labor and capital arise. This implies that the man who comes from the factory or the bench is naturally crooked. Against such an imputation a vigorous protest ought to be entered. Carried to its logical conclusion, it means that under no circumstances shall the citizen who labors by his hands occupy a responsible position under the crown. The spirit which has led to the King appointment is from all points of view unworthy of the present age. It is a survival from the old period when it was held that nobody but an aristocrat had the right to participate in the direction of public affairs. Nor can it be excused by the presence that Mackenzie King has any special or superior knowledge of the labor question. The young gentleman, has of course, read the literature of labor, and he has administered the law, as borrowed by Sir William Mulock from the English statute."

But apart from that he has no association with the workers, and is representative of nothing but exclusiveness. The right place for Mackenzie King was in the office of Deputy Minister, where he could perform clerical work, and make recommendations to his superior. His transfer to labor, is a direct interference with the welfare of the working element in the community, for it deprives a labor man of the opportunity to represent labor in the cabinet, and to work for the improvement of the conditions of the masses. It will not be a surprise if labor speaks out pretty strongly on this Mackenzie King affair. Certainly it has the right to object to the selection as its representative and mouthpiece in the cabinet of a civil servant whose knowledge of labor has been gathered from books and official reports, rather than from personal experience."

(Montreal Star)

The decision of the American Senate to keep the duty on lumber consistent with another perfectly plain hint to Canada how best to conserve its interests. An American duty on lumber which is saved from Canadian timber simply says to the Canadian that he must pay the duty if he wants to send his product into the United States, while the raw material of lumber can be shipped in free. That is, if we will supply the logs, the Americans will supply the capital and labor and will pocket the interest and wages.

Knowing as we do that the American supply of lumber is approaching exhaustion, we cannot but regard this as a last effort to "blow" our people into leaving the saw mill business in American hands. If we will be content with the meagre profits on the sale of our logs, and forgo the larger profits we might make by manufacturing them into lumber here and selling that, why so much the better for our Uncle Samuel. He may laugh at our folly, but he will profit by it. Ontario, however, has already shown what can be accomplished by meeting such a policy in the proper fashion. It has forbidden the export of logs; and the consequence is that the Michigan saw mills have moved over to Ontario. The mills must get their raw material. If the raw material cannot be brought to the mills, then the mills must go to the raw material.

The export of logs from Canada should be stopped. That would soon bring our neighbors face to face, with the final realities of the situation. They might even then go on protecting their lumber and pulp businesses until the rapidly rising prices they must ask for these things would bring a revolt among the consumers. Then we should see the tariffs come tumbling down. If we kept up our prohibitions against the export of logs—as we should—the American mills—saw, pulp and paper—would come tumbling across the border, and we should have an addition to our industrial establishments instead of suffering an irreparable depletion of our natural resources.

It is doubtful if the older provinces recognize how quickly the balance of political power is passing to the western territories. Population is pouring into Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta by tens of thousands. Vancouver and other commercial centres in British Columbia are making extraordinary progress. While parts of the Pacific provinces may not be as thickly settled as the prairie country, it is certain that in time it will accommodate a numerous and prosperous population.

The census of 1911 will require a material increase of western representation in the House of Commons. Upon the whole the west will contain a progressive population. It is certain these provinces will greatly determine the character of national policy. And the one issue which is certain to engage the interest of the west, and to effect the whole character of federal policies, is control of lands and other natural resources of Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta. It is out of the question that the western people will continue to be a subject population. They will not forever leave in the hands of Ottawa the control of their lands, timber and minerals. They will not shut themselves off from the chief sources of revenue which modern governments exploit, and come periodically hat in hand to the federal authorities for an increase of subsidies.

Moreover, nothing is more certain than that the natural resources of west cannot be handled as satisfactorily at Ottawa as from the provincial capitals. The whole history of federal administration of western lands and timber is disgraced by waste and scandal. The west has been regarded as the private estate of federal politicians and their allies rather than as the natural possession of the western people.

Mr. Haultain, who, notwithstanding two defeats in Saskatchewan under extraordinary circumstances, enjoys in a peculiar degree the confidence of the western people, and the respect of the whole country, should keep this issue before the constituents, and should not neglect any occasion to impress its importance upon the Conservative party, and upon the people of older Canada generally.

Now that the smoke of battle has cleared away at Ottawa, it is possible to take a survey of the financial side of things; and see where the country is at.

As to the cost of the G.T.P., the country has been called upon to lend $10,000,000 to the company, members of the government admitted that the enterprise which they said would call for $18,000,000 of public money, and "not a cent more," will impose a burden aggregating $138,000,000 upon Canada.

We had a deficit of $16,533,000 in 1908, another of $46,000,000 last year and there is a third of $30,000,000 now under process of creation. In order to meet the liabilities, new loans are being floated at a high rate of interest. The last days of parliament were devoted to the giving of authority to the government to borrow $50,000,000 more. Our annual expenditures, which ten years ago amounted to forty-four million, now reach one hundred million, and it has been estimated and so stated in parliament that ten millions of that sum is wasted or employed upon grafting schemes.

As a case of deliberate waste the Newmarket Canal, which is to cost $1,200,000 was cited. This waterway was given in the Mays-McAvity transaction, wherein the president of the St. John Liberal association received from a deeding contract $36,933 which he had not earned. The graft in connection with the government end of the G.T.P. is revealed. The outcroppings are only an indication of what is at the heart of things.

Indigestion Ends.

You can eat anything your stomach craves without fear of a case of indigestion or dyspepsia or that food will ferment or sour on your stomach if you will occasionally take a little Diaphepsin after eating. Your meals will taste good, and anything you eat will be digested; nothing can ferment or turn into acid or poison or stomach gas, which causes Belching, Dizziness, a feeling of fullness after eating, Nausea, Indigestion (like a lump of lead in the stomach), Bloating, Heartburn, Water-brash, Pain in stomach and intestines or other symptoms.

Headaches from the stomach are absolutely unknown where this effective remedy is used. Diaphepsin really does all the work of a healthy stomach. It digests your meals when your stomach can't do it. Each triangle you digest all the food you can eat and leave nothing to ferment or sour. Get a large 60-cent case of Pappe's Diaphepsin from your druggist and start taking today and by tomorrow you will actually brag about your healthy, strong stomach, for you can eat anything and everything you want without the slightest discomfort or misery, and every article of impurity and Gas that is in your stomach and intestines is going to be carried away without the use of laxatives or any other assistance.

Saskatoon, June 8.—The Saskatoon Milling and Elevator Company have decided to increase the capacity of their mill from one hundred to three hundred barrels per day. They will also build a line of elevators on the Goose Lake line of the C.N.R. A 3,000 bushel elevator is now under construction at Zealandia, while others will be erected at Vandyke and Harris. In view of the present splendid crop prospects the company will commence work at the earliest moment.

RAILWAY ADVANCEMENT

The C.P.R. From Saskatoon to Wetaskiwin to be Opened—Regina to Yorkton to be Built at Once—Trouble With Employees.

Winnipeg, June 8.—The C.P.R. line from Saskatoon to Wetaskiwin, Alta. will be opened this year before the close of harvest. The line is completed eastward from Wetaskiwin to Sedgewick and westward from Saskatoon to Wilkie, and the gap between these two points, some 130 miles in length, is all graded and ready for steel. There are a great many new towns along the branch which are looking forward expectantly to communication by rail with the outside world, and the country contiguous to the line has been settled for its entire length. The great difficulty in completing this line has been the inability to secure steel.

E. J. Chamberlain, general manager of the G.T.P., stated last evening that tenders had been received for the construction of the branch from Melville, Sask., north to Yorkton, Sask., and construction will be in progress within two weeks. This is the first piece of the line to be built by the company connecting North Portal, N.D., on the way to Hudson Bay.

EMPLOYEES WANT ENQUIRY

The operating employees of the G.T.P. railway comprising the engineers, firemen, conductors and brakemen on the Superior branch and the line from Winnipeg west to the end of the steel, have applied to the department of labor for the appointment of a board of conciliation and investigation, as the result of a dispute with the company. This action has been taken with the object of securing a working agreement and follows upon the refusal of the company to receive a committee of the men to discuss the question of a schedule of rates and conditions of employment. At the present time there is no working clause in the agreement and follows upon the refusal of the company to receive a committee of the men to discuss the question of a schedule of rates and conditions of employment.

At the present time there is no work clause in the agreement and follows upon the refusal of the company to receive a committee of the men to discuss the question of a schedule of rates and conditions of employment.

On Feb. 11, 1909, a formal request for a conference between the representatives of the company and the men was made and proposed schedule was submitted. This communication was handed to general superintendent H. H. Brewer at the time of General Manager Chamberlain's first visit to the city as an official of the G.T.P. and it is presumed that the matter was discussed by Mr. Chamberlain and Mr. Brewer at the time. The men state that they received no reply to their communication, and in reply to subsequent communications Mr. Brewer has informed them that he cannot take up the matter, but that Mr. Chamberlain will do so at some future time. Up to the present however, the men's request that their representatives be received by the officials of the company has not been granted.

C.P.R. MEN UNEASY.

Is there impending trouble for the G.T.P. and their conductors? For the past week the officials of the railway conductors' union from all parts of the C.P.R. system have gathered in Winnipeg and it is known that they have already submitted certain grievances and desired changes to W. Whyte, second vice president of the company. Officials who represent the conductors all over the road have not received a reply from the company. While at present in Montreal, but whether in connection with the conductors' trouble, is not known. W. G. Chaster, one of the prominent officers of the conductors' union, stated that the committee had gathered for "organization" and that there was nothing for publication. The action of the adjustment committee convening in Winnipeg was significant at this time because of the great international convention of conductors in Boston has just been concluded. It is possible that the present action is the result of what transpired there.

G.T.P. APPOINTMENT

Winnipeg, June 8.—A circular issued yesterday signed by W. P. Hinton, general passenger agent, and G. T. Bell, assistant passenger traffic manager, announces the appointment of R. C. W. Lett to the position of travelling passenger and colonization agent of the G.T.P. with headquarters at Winnipeg. The appointment is effective forthwith.

Mr. Lett is an Ottawa man and is well known in eastern railroad circles, where he has been connected with the advertising staff of the Grand Trunk railway. He had a thorough knowledge of the colonization work and at one time was the representative of the government at

Put a little "Sunshine" in your home. An old-fashioned, ill-working furnace is a non-producer. It consumes the coal, but through leaks and cracks wastes the heat. It is not economy to have such a furnace in your own home, or in your tenant's home. If you are thinking of building you should be interested in Sunshine Furnace. It adds 100 per cent. to home comforts. As soon as you let the contract for your house decide on your furnace. The "Sunshine" man will be pleased to tell you just how the rooms ought to be laid out with an eye to securing greatest heat from the smallest consumption of coal. If you want to experiment with the question don't specify "Sunshine." If you want to settle the question specify "Sunshine."

ARCHDEACON HARDING FOR ASSISTANT BISHOP

Synod of Qu'Appelle Elects Assistant to Bishop Grisdale--Two Archdeacons and Two Canons to be Appointed--Bishop's Address on Work of the Diocese--Officers Elected--Canons Amended.

The Synod of the Diocese of Qu'Appelle met in this city last week. On Tuesday the clergy had a "quiet day." On Wednesday morning nearly all the delegates were present and a goodly number attended the service at St. Paul's church at 9.15. At this service those present partook of the sacrament. At this gathering the Bishop read his annual address. It is as follows:

BISHOP'S ADDRESS

Reverend Brethren and Brethren of the Laity:— I gladly welcome you once more to the meeting of our Diocesan Synod. Since we last met together thus many events of great moment to the church have taken place. The past year has been one of unusual interest in many ways. It is impossible to look back on the events of 1906 without being convinced that it was, and in the Divine Councils was meant to be, a memorable year in the history of the Anglican church.

The Pan-Anglican Congress followed by the Lambeth Conference, gave to the whole church, a new vision of its world-wide opportunity, and kindled for a time a new spirit of earnest desire to rise to the opportunity thus presented. But with this widened outlook comes a deeper responsibility: What is now needed is a deliberate and sustained effort to maintain the spirit which has been aroused to give it practical scope, and to direct it to definite ends.

There have been many changes and great losses in the Canadian church. The work of the church on earth is carried on under God's guidance by human agents, whose departure to their rest throws greater responsibility on those who remain, those who, for a time at least, have to labor under the sense of a great loss.

With such feelings I address you today, as I review the work of the year, during which those who have been removed from our sight, whom we would fain have kept with us, have been deeply touched by the removal of our Primate—the late Archbishop Sweatman—who presided over the church with such fidelity and ability, and of the much beloved and eloquent Bishop Carmichael, of Montreal, and of three of my former fellow workers in the adjoining diocese—Canons Burman, Macmorine and G. Rogers. These are very serious losses. To me personally, and I doubt not to others, they throw a deep and solemn shadow over our gathering today, and bid us work while it is called today, that when our working day is over, we may join them in the Paradise of God.

Death of Bishop Anson.

Since I began to prepare this address we have received the sad news of the passing away from this earthly scene of the first Bishop of Qu'Appelle—Bishop Anson. His illness lasted some four or five months, and was very painful, but it was patiently borne in complete resignation to the will of God. He said in one of his letters from his sick bed, "God may have some further lessons of love to teach me in the school of suffering."

I have always thought that his eight years of self-sacrificing, self-consecrated labor in the prairie diocese left its mark on his health. Ever since his retirement in 1892, he has taken the deepest and keenest interest in our work, and has shown that interest in many practical ways. We shall miss him sorely as president of the Qu'Appelle Association. No one can quite fill his place in that position.

We thank God for the grace given to His servant, and for the noble example which Bishop Anson has left us, and we pray that other such warm friends of the diocese may be raised up in the Motherland.

Review of the Diocese

I must, as I have usually done on these occasions, give you some general description of the diocese, its progress, its equipment, and its needs, and say something of the difficulties, the encouragements, and the hopes of the work of the Diocese.

The past few months have been months of singular anxiety. Still we are able once more to take a hopeful view of our progress and position, without for one moment losing sight of our problems and difficulties. Thank God we are going forward. There is, however, ample room for a wholesome discontent with what we have attained. Our needs are still great, clamorous and urgent. The easily subdued prairie lands, and the vast stretches of country, and the rapid opening up of new parts by new lines of railway, have all combined to scatter our people thinly over a large area. This constitutes one of our chief difficulties. We are, however, face to face with a new difficulty. Many of our older Church settlers are moving away to a still farther west. In some parts of the diocese, where the parishes have been and are still, self-supporting, the removals exceed the gains. Several of the older parishes on the main line are thus being greatly weakened from a financial point of view. This seriously affects the stipends of the clergy and still more the offerings for extra parochial objects such as gifts for the work of the M.S.C.C., and our own Clergy Sustentation Fund.

Since our last meeting churches have been built at Rouleau, Halbrite, Lanigan, Nokomis, Watrous, Janessa, Medicine Lodge, and a small parish hall at Semans.

New churches are either in progress or are contemplated at Milestone, Pense, Glen Ewen, Esterhazy, Rocanville, Maple Creek, Medicine Hat, Caron, Baring, Basco, Wynyard, Melville and Outlook.

Additional have been made to the church at Swift Current, and to the Mission Hall at South Hill, Moose Jaw.

Vicarages have been built at Watrous, Halbrite, Lanigan, Baring and small shacks for temporary residence of the clergy at Nokomis and Watrous.

A rectory has been purchased at Fleming.

Eighty-nine Churches. We have now in the diocese eighty-nine churches, forty-five vicarages and rectories and nine parish halls.

Fleming and Buffalo Lake have become self-supporting parishes in the diocese.

There have been great changes in the clerical staff of the diocese, more than in any previous year.

The following clergy are no longer on the list: The Rev. W. Nicolls, the Rev. J. A. Murrell-Wright, the Rev. P. C. Hayman, the Rev. W. A. Leach, the Rev. R. Cox, the Rev. I. J. Jones, Rev. C. R. Littler, the Rev. G. H. Duder, the Rev. J. Rielly, the Rev. A. B. N. Crowther, the Rev. C. E. Wynne Jones.

This unexpected and welcome help from the Church in Ireland. A very special vote of thanks should be sent to express our gratitude for this gift. One special gift has been encouraging. A churchman in the diocese has given me $1,000 to be used as I may wish, as a thank offering for many blessings received during the past thirty years. I hope that this example will be followed by others. Are there not many of us who have much to be thankful for? Where is the token of our gratitude to the Giver of all good?

Dear brethren, should we not, as a diocese, thank God, who has put into the hearts of our benefactors to cheer and encourage us in our work for Him?

St. Chad's Hostel.

At our last meeting of Synod, I had the pleasure of telling you of the opening of St. Chad's Hostel. The work that has been done since then by the hostel and the missions connected with it has quite come up to our anticipations, and has even exceeded what we could have hoped for.

Our hearts were saddened when we heard that the warden had been seized by sudden illness. He was visiting the various missions last summer and, although before he started, he was weakened by anxiety and overwork, he intended to make a long tour of inspection. The warden reached Oliver on Friday, July 24th, having driven some 210 miles. The weather was intensely hot, and the long drive in the sun resulted in a stroke and hemorrhage on the brain. On Saturday 1st of August, Mr. Littler reached Regina, and was taken to the hostel. Here he lay in a precarious condition for four weeks.

The Archdeacon had gone to Regina at once, on hearing the sad news. Arrangements were made by which Rev. G. N. Doble took charge of the hostel and its missions, and the Rev. Mr. Buchanan took Mr. Doble's work at Indian Head.

About the end of August, Mr. Littler was able to travel, and spent some eight weeks in B.C., visiting points in the mountains and on the coast.

He returned to the hostel on October 18, but was still quite unfit to cope with the heavy duties of his office. Mr. Buchanan came at once to take part in the work and to relieve Mr. Littler as much as possible.

On the 28th of December, the Warden was taken seriously ill, and for weeks the greatest anxiety was felt. For a time there was but little hope of his recovery. Unceasing prayer was made for him and for his family. At length when the danger was over his medical adviser recommended him to take a complete rest from all mental strain.

Then came his resignation, which was accepted by the Executive committee, on the recommendation of the advisory board. We heartily hope that he is receiving fresh strength and better health in his new home. Mr. Buchanan continued on at the hostel, and has kindly undertaken, with the consent of the S.P.G. and of the Prairie Brotherhood, to remain in temporary charge till Nov. 1st.

These various arrangements have been the cause of much anxiety, and of considerable expense.

There was in the first place, the additional expense caused by the arrangements for Mr. Doble and Mr. Buchanan as mentioned above. Then the executive committee granted £200 from the general diocesan fund towards the expenses of Mr. Littler's trip to the coast, and a grant of $1,000 on the advice of the advisory board was made to the Rev. C. R. Littler to cover all claims in connection with his resignation.

I am very anxious that the synod should know that we consider the money expended on the hostel and the missions connected with it has been well spent, but as there is some misunderstanding with regard to the aid given by the diocese, or voted by the diocese from the funds which might have been used for other diocesan purposes, I will put before the synod some facts. Of the $3,344.00 spent on the hostel property, $1,200 was given by two ladies, who were willing to help any work in the diocese that I might recommend. I recommended the hostel.

Financial summary table with columns for items and amounts. Includes: He has paid since Mar. 31... $606.00, Since Jan. 1, 1909 the hon. Treas. has received for the hostel... 1,347.18, Paid out of Diocesan funds... $4,571.91.

This I think will show that what the Warden and I in a letter in the Shropshire Committee in Dec. 1907: "From within the Diocese of Qu'Appelle we have received much sympathy and support," has been true all along and is true up to the present time. Considerable help has also been gladly given by the various branches of the W.A. We must never forget all we owe our Shropshire friends, without whose constant and generous help, the hostel and its missions would have been quite impossible.

The Prairie Brotherhood.

In speaking of the hostel I have referred incidentally to "The Prairie Brotherhood." Let Bishop Montgomery tell the story of this new venture. "In 1908 another venture of exceeding interest has come into the diocese. One of the clergy of the diocese, realizing the loneliness of the life of the prairie parson, offered to obtain the assistance of brother priests in England in order to start a "Prairie Brotherhood" on simple lines based on the plans adopted in the well known Bush Brotherhood in Australia. The Bishop gave his consent, but said that the means at his disposal were already appropriated.

If the S.P.G. would make itself responsible for the expenses for a term of years he would set apart a region in the diocese for this venture. Brotherhoods are very acceptable methods of missionary work with the S.P.G. We believe that more and more mission work will be done on these lines. The perils of isolation, the loss by reason of the strain on the spirits and the greater chances of a breakdown make us look more than sympathetically on all such schemes.

Accordantly we put ourselves into communication with the Rev. W. J. H. McLean, the originator of the movement, as well as with the Bishop. A sum of $21,000 was considered to be sufficient to defray the expenses of passage, outfit and board and lodging for the year, and $500 for each of the next two years. We made a special appeal for $2,000 for this purpose; and obviously we could make a good case. The Bishop was willing; the men were ready; all of them are unversity men of excellent standing and reputation; they are, of course, unmarried; nothing was needed except money. The sum of $2,000 was obtained in about six weeks. The clergy have sailed for their destination and their names are: The Rev. W. J. H. McLean, J. A. Horrocks, C. R. Leadley Brown, and M. Buchanan.

Bishop Montgomery goes on to say: "We look with special interest for good accounts of this Brotherhood because a great deal depends upon it. We hope that the Qu'Appelle Brotherhood will justify our hopes and commend the Brotherhood to the Canadian Church. It will need tact, humility, and great adaptability."

The coming of these volunteers, who form the first members of the Brotherhood, attracted by the opportunity to lay foundations in a new country, shows that good men can be secured for our hardest fields, because they know that silent heroism is required.

The place of such a brotherhood is from a central home, four or a half dozen priests shall travel over a large area on mission duty, returning at stated intervals so be refreshed and recruited by companionship, united worship, and mutual conference, thus, from time to time kindling afresh the spiritual fire needed for their trying work.

The first year has been a year of getting ready, by preparing their central home, near Willow Bunch, by exploring the district which lies nearest to them, by becoming acquainted with the conditions of life on the prairie. Now the work lies clear and plain before the brotherhood. They ask for the prayers and sympathies of all within the diocese that they may have God's help, guidance and blessing.

A New Venture.

Another important venture has been begun. For about two years I have been in correspondence with the Colonial and Continental Church Society. That society generously expressed a desire to help us in ministering to the new settlers. After considerable correspondence I offered, as its field of work, all the main line between Caron and Herbert inclusive, and as much of the country lying south and north of that part of the main line, as had not yet received any church ministrations. The exact delimitation, north and south, has not yet been determined upon. I am very glad to say that the Rev. W. Simpson, M.A. formerly rector of Conde, has been appointed superintendent of this new venture. It is a great gain to have one so well known to us all, one who has had seven years' experience of work in this diocese. I am sure that in your name, I may bid him God speed in his work. You will, no doubt, duly express your gratitude to the Society for its kind action in this matter.

Work of the Laity.

The work of the laity has a very large place in my heart. May I say a word to the laymen. They fall far behind the women in the matter of service to the church. Take, for example, work in the Sunday schools. How vital that is to the welfare of the young and to the future of the church and nation! The clergy are, most of them at least, quite unable to take an active personal part in Sunday schools, because of their long drives and numerous appointments. Usually it is left to a few good women in the parish. It was not so, in my native town in the days of my boyhood. Some of the most prominent men in the town were proud of the privilege of having a share in this good work. Many of them were connected with it for a long period of years. The King's business rests with the King's men. It calls for, and has a right to call for, the same carefulness, diligence, and attention that they devote to their own private business. If that idea spreads rapidly and is accepted generally, it will mean more than we can say for the work of God and His church.

What an immense help it would be if our laity could grow up with a sense that religion is a robust and manly thing, by seeing men teachers in our Sunday schools, and what a benefit it would be in the way of mental, moral and spiritual stimulus to the teacher. The Sunday school association, which has been formed in this diocese, should be a great help in this important work.

The unsupported solitary clergyman is an entirely inadequate instrument in our great work. He needs, and should have, the cordial support and active co-operation of those who can touch the lives of men and women from various sides, and come to them more on an equality, and without the official character, which must always attach to him.

We can reach no true measure of success without the active, zealous, and generous co-operation of our lay-brethren.

I am proud of our large list of voluntary lay readers, many of them do such excellent work in their own parish and neighborhood; and I would fain see a more active extension of the church by the organization of active lay effort—but I desire specially to commend to the churchmen and churchwomen those excellent and untiring associations—the St. Andrew's Brotherhood and the Woman's Auxiliary. Great hopes are rightly based on the Laymen's Missionary Movement, which is surely awakening fresh interests in the work of evangelizing the world. I heartily wish the movement God Speed.

There is a very real sense in which it is true that the more we ask the more we get. Our communications should be trained to see that the church in God's name calls for and expects their service. Only so shall we get adequate working help by a recognition of the call of service as binding upon all Christians. Only so can we get the generous giving which would bless and be blessed. Only so can we awaken and confirm faith in the power of corporate prayer. Do not, I pray you, think that this is unimportant. This is a country with a great future, a country in which the church should obtain and retain a strong foothold. Because the church exists to witness to a glorious ideal, and it exists for the benefit of all men, it exists for the uplifting and betterment of human life and society. We should never lose sight of the great purpose of the church's existence. If we always bore these in mind, every church worker, which should be the same as every church member, would be the braver, the better, and the more hopeful in doing his share.

Many of the people in the west are not accustomed to our church ways and our church services. These have not for them that fascinating power that our older churchmen often fondly imagine. Our accumulated wealth of tradition, worship and customs do not at first appeal to the people. If we are to retain our people and to win others permanently to the church, patience must have her perfect work. Personal work on the farms and in the homes of the people is most essential. Much may be done by constant personal influence, and the wise distribution of good, sound church literature.

There is, I believe, committed to the church in this country a task and an opportunity of special significance, but also of exceptional difficulty. We do not, I think, any of us, consider enough what that is. It is broader, deeper and harder than we, any of us see. Let us beware lest we go the wrong way about it.

A special responsibility lies upon the clergy in this matter. Their work calls for great tact, sympathy, and adaptability. Especially in the matter of conducting divine service, we should specially beware of being mechanical of getting the offices said. Let our outward manner be the manner of those who pray indeed, and to whom familiarity with what we use brings only delicacy of touch, and power to draw out its beauty and wealth. The best cause may suffer at the hands of unworthy or inefficient representatives.

Value of Statistics.

I wish once more to call your attention to the need and value of complete and accurate statistical returns from every parish and mission in the diocese. Whatever the trouble may be, it is not only worth while to have these, it is absolutely necessary that we should have them that we may give answers, which shall not be misleading, to those societies which give us such generous help in our work.

It is good for ourselves also that we should be brought to book. It is often useful to contrast the facts and figures of today with the facts and figures of ten, fifteen, twenty years ago. We then obtain a mass of valuable and interesting, and I hope, encouraging information. Thus statistics may serve as a cordial for drooping courage, whenever we are tempted to despondency.

In this way statistical returns are of real service to our church life. What may seem to be mere dry figures are eloquent of many meanings. At least they show whether we are a working church or not. These returns should be sent in promptly to the proper officer. I hope we may have fewer delinquents in this matter in the future. A little trouble on the part of each worker will save much trouble to those who have charge of affairs.

I would earnestly ask for careful and prompt attention to the various notices which are sent out from time to time by the officers of the Synod. A memorandum has been specially prepared to inform the clergy, church wardens and others with regard to communications which should be addressed to the Dean, as secretary of the Synod, to the Archdeacon, and to the hon. treasurer of Synod. Careful attention to these directions would result in a great saving of time. Is there any who have not received copies of this memorandum, they can be had from the secretary of the synod now.

Not infrequently I have received letters containing matters which should have been sent separately to the other officers of the Synod. This causes delay and entails much unnecessary trouble.

A Personal Note

Dear Brethren,— After more than thirty-six years of strenuous work on the prairie, nearly thirteen of which have been spent as Bishop of this diocese, with all its burdens of care and responsibility, I do not feel as equal as I once did to extended journeys.

After giving the matter long and careful consideration, I have decided to seek assistance by means of a coadjutor bishop, to whom I can assign the most distant and fatiguing work, and who may also be able to render efficient service to the diocese in many ways. I therefore think it prudent to do what I can to obtain the assistance of a coadjutor, in order that the work of the diocese may not be impeded. I must therefore ask you to take the important step of electing a Bishop Coadjutor, with the right of succession, when the See shall become vacant by my decease or by my resignation. If it

"Marthy," he said in an awed tone, "do you know what I was thinkin' of when I was pullin' through the worst of it this mornin'?" "I was thinkin' of you, I thought of Luther and the rest of them poor souls, of course, but I thought of you most of the time. It kept comin' back to me that if I went under I shouldn't see you agin. And you was thinkin' of me, wasn't you?" "Yes. When that Mayo man said he had awful news I felt sure 'twas you he was goin' to tell about. I never fainted away in my life that I know of, but I think I fainted then."

"And you cared as much as that?" "Yes."

Somehow both were speaking quietly, but as if it was useless longer to keep back anything. To speak the exact truth without reserve seemed the most natural thing in the world.

"Well, well, well!" said the captain reverently and still in the same low tone. "I said once afore that I'd be sure you was sent here, and now I'm sure of it. It seems as if you was sent to me, don't it?"

The housekeeper still looked out of the window, but she answered slowly, "I don't know."

"It does. It does so. Marthy, we've been happy together while you've been here. Do you believe you could be happy with me always—if you married me, I mean?"

Mrs. Snow turned and looked at him. There were tears in her eyes, but she did not wipe them away.

"Yes," she said.

"Think now, Marthy. I ain't very young, and I ain't very rich."

"What an 'I' with a little smile. "And you really think you could be happy if you was the wife of an old codger like me?"

"Yes." The answer was short, but it was convincing.

Captain Eri rose to his feet.

"Good!" he said in a sort of unbelieved whisper. "Marthy, are you willin' to try?"

And again Mrs. Snow said "Yes."

When Dr. Palmer came he found Luther quiet in bed, but Captain Eri was up and dressed, and there was such a quiet air of happiness about him that the man of medicine was amazed.

"Good Lord, man," he exclaimed, "I expected to find you in your bed, and you look better than I've seen you for years. Taking a salt water bath in midwinter must agree with you."

"It ain't so much that," replied the captain serenely. "It's the way I got for takin' it."

When the doctor saw Perez alone he asked the latter to keep a close watch on Captain Eri's behavior. He said he was afraid that the exertion and exposure might have affected the captain's brain.

Perez, alarmed by this caution, did not watch his friend very closely, but he saw nothing to frighten him until as they were about to start for home Captain Eri suddenly struck his thigh a resounding slap.

"Jerry!" he groaned distressfully. "I clean forgot. I've gone back on Jerry!"

CHAPTER-XXI

ELISE and Captain Eri were kept busy that afternoon. Abner Mayo's news spread quickly, and people gathered at the postoffice, the stores and the billiard room to discuss it. Some of the men, notably Cy Warner and Rufe Smith, local representatives of the big Boston dailies, hurried off to the life saving station to get the facts at first hand. Others came down to talk with Captain Eri and Elsie, when Daniel bugged through the gate, drawing the ploddy containing Josiah, Mrs. Snow and Captain Eri.

For a man who had been described as "half dead" Captain Eri looked very well, indeed. Jerry ran to help him from the carriage, but he jumped out himself and then assisted the housekeeper to alight with an air of proprietorship. He was welcomed to the house like a returned prodigal, and Captain Eri shook his well hand until the arm belonging to it seemed likely to become as stiff and sore as the other.

While the handshaking was going on Captain Eri was embarrassed. He did not look his friend in the face, and most of his conversation was addressed to Elsie.

As soon as he had washed his hands and told the story of the wreck and rescue he said: "Jerry, come up to my room a minute, won't you? I've got somethin' I want to say."

Vaguely wondering what the private conversation was, Jerry followed his friend upstairs. When they were in the room Captain Eri closed the door and faced his companion. He was confused and stammered a little as he said: "Jerry, I've got somethin' to say to you about Mrs. Snow."

Then it was Captain Jerry's turn to be confused.

"Now, Eri," he protested, "I ain't fair to keep pesterin' me like this. I know I ain't said nothin' to her yet, but I'm goin' to. I had a week, anyhow, and it ain't haf' over. Let me alone till my time's up, can't you?"

"I was jest goin' to tell you that you won't have to say. I've been talkin' to her myself, and"

The sacrifice spring out of his chair. "Eri Hedge," he exclaimed indignantly. "I thought you was a friend of mine! I give you my word I'd do it in a week, and the least you could have done, seems to me, would have been to wait and give me the chance. What did she say?" he asked suddenly.

"She said yes to what I asked her," was the reply, with a half smile.

Upon Captain Jerry's face settled the look of one who accepts the melancholy inevitable. He sat down again.

"I s'posed she would," he said, with a sigh. "She's shown me for quite a spell now, and she's had a chance to see what kind of a man I be. Well, what else did you do? Ain't settled the weddin' day, have you?" This with marked sarcasm.

"Not yet. Jerry, you've made a mistake. I didn't ask her for you."

"Didn't ask her—didn't. What are you talkin' 'bout then?"

"I asked her for myself. She's goin' to marry me."

The sacrifice—a sacrifice no longer—at silent, but curious changes of expression were passing over his face—surprise, amazement, relief and now a sort of grieved resignation.

"I'm glad, though, about the way I've treated you, Jerry," continued Captain Eri. "I didn't mean to—but your chance was a bit, but I hope you won't."

Captain Jerry sighed. When he spoke it was in a tone of sublime forgiveness.

"Eri," he said, "I ain't mad. I won't say my feelin's ain't hurt, 'cause 'cause—well, never mind. If a wife and a home ain't for me, why, I ought to be glad that you're goin' to have 'em. I wish you both luck and a good voyage. Now, doc, talk to me for a few minutes. Let me get sort of used to it."

So they shook hands, and Captain Eri, with a troubled look at his friend, went out. After he had gone Captain Jerry got up and danced three steps of an improvised jig, his face one broad grin.

If the announcement of Captain Perez's engagement caused any surprise, that of Captain Eri's certainly did—surprise and congratulation on the part of those let into the secret, for it was decided to say nothing to outsiders as yet. Ralph came over that evening, and they told him their story, and he was as pleased as the rest.

The storm had wrecked every wire and stalled every train, and Orham was isolated for two days. Then communication was established once more, and the Boston dailies received the news of the loss of the life savers and the crew of the schooner. And they made the most of it. Sensational items were scarce just then, and the editors welcomed this one.

The life saving station and the house by the shore were beleaguered by photographers and newspaper men. Captain Eri indignantly refused to pose for his photograph, so he was "snapped" as he went out to the barn and the pleasure of seeing a likeness of himself, somewhat out of focus and with one leg stiffly elevated, in the Sunday Blanket. The reporters waylaid him at the postoffice on the day after his return, and begged for interviews. They got them, brief and pointedly personal, and, though these were not printed, columns describing him as "a bluff, big hearted hero" were.

"I don't care," he said, "but I'm disgusted, that man was the captain. In the first place, as he said, what he had done was nothing more than any other man 'longshore would have done, and, secondly, it was nobody's business. That's all he said, and with truth."

"This whole fuss makes me sick. Here's them fellers in the crew been goin' out season after season takin' folks off wrecks, and the fool papers never say nothin' 'bout it, but they go around here and don't say nobody and get drownded themselves, and they're raisin' money up to Boston to give to the widders and orphans. Well, that's all right, but they'd better keep on and get the 'armament to false the salaries of them that's left in the service."

Shortly after 4 o'clock one afternoon of the week following that of the wreck Captain Eri ventured to walk to the village, keeping a weather eye out for reporters and smoking his pipe. He made several stops, one of them being at the schoolhouse where Josiah, now back at his desk, was studying overtime to catch up with his class.

As the captain was strolling along some one touched him from behind, and he turned to face Ralph Hazeltine. The electrician had been a pretty regular caller at the house of late, but Captain Eri had seen but little of him for reasons unnecessary to state.

"Hello, captain," said Ralph. "Talkin' a constitutional?"

"Oh, say?" said Captain Eri. "I've been meanin' to ask you somethin'. Made up your mind 'bout that western job yet?"

Ralph shook his head. "Not yet," he said slowly. "I shall very soon, though. I think I can do it, and I want to go myself. My present position gives me a good deal of leisure time for experimental work, and—well, I'll tell you in confidence—there's a possibility of my becoming superintendent one of these days if I wish to."

"Ho, you don't say! Mr. Langley goin' to quit?"

"He is thinking of it. The old gentleman has saved some money, and he has a sister in the west who is anxious to have him come out there to spend the remainder of his days with her. If he does I can have his position, I guess. In fact, he has been good enough to say so."

"Well, that's pretty fine, ain't it? Langley ain't the man to check his good opinions round like flam shells. You ought to be proud. Is 'tother job so much better?"

"No."

Silence again. Then Ralph said: "The other position, captain, is very much like this one in some respects. It will place me in a country town, even smaller than Orham, where there are few young people, no amusements and no society in the fashionable sense of the word."

"Humph! I thought you didn't care much for them things."

"I don't."

Both seemed to be thinking, and neither spoke again until they came to the grocery store, where Hazeltine stopped, saying that he must do an errand for Mr. Langley. They said good night, and the captain turned away.

Mr. Hazeltine, if it ain't too much trouble would you mind steppin' up to the schoolhouse when you've done your errand? I've left somethin' there with Josiah, and I'd like to have you get it. Will you?"

"Certainly," was the reply. And it was not until the captain had gone that Ralph remembered he did not know what he was to get.

When he reached the school he climbed the stairs and opened the door, expecting to find Josiah alone. Instead there was no one there but Elsie, who was sitting at the desk. She sprang up as he entered. Both were somewhat confused.

"Pardon me, Miss Preston," he said. "Captain Eri sent me here. He said he left something with Josiah and wished me to call for it."

"Why, I'm sure I don't know what it can be," replied Elsie. "Josiah has been gone for some time, and he said nothing to me about it."

"Perhaps it is in his desk," suggested Ralph. "Suppose we look."

So they looked, but found nothing more than the usual assortment contained in the desk of a healthy school boy. The raised lid shut off the light from the window, and the desk's interior was rather dark. They had to grope in the corners, and occasionally their hands touched. Every time this happened Ralph thought of the decision that he must make so soon.

He thought of it still more when, after the search was abandoned, Elsie suggested that he help her with some problem that she was preparing for the next day's labors of the first class in arithmetic. In fact, as he sat beside her, pretending to figure, but really watching her dainty profile as it moved back and forth before his eyes, his own particular problem received but far more attention than did those of the class. Suddenly he spoke.

"Teacher," he said, "please may I ask a question?"

"No," should he hold up your hand if you wish permission to speak," was the stern reply.

"Please consider it held up."

"Is the question as important as 'How many bushels did G. sell' which happens to be my particular trouble just now?"

"It is to me, certainly." Ralph was serious enough now. "It is a question that I have been wrestling with for some time. It is, I think, a question that has been offered me in the west, or shall I stay here and become superintendent of the station? The superintendent's place may be mine, I think, if I want it."

A newly elected Senator from the State of Washington. He is thinking of the things. When the conductor came into the car with his characteristic "Have your tickets ready," he noticed that the man in the pocket came to him he was still looking for his ticket.

"Do you have any more got on?" inquired the conductor, somewhat impatiently.

"Of course I did. This isn't my first trip."

"You couldn't have lost it?" "Couldn't have lost it," replied the irate politician. "I lost a bass drum once."—Philadelphia Record.

Dr. J. D. Kellogg's Dysentery Cordial is compounded especially to combat dysentery, cholera, and other inflammatory disorders that change of food or water may set up in the stomach and intestines. These ailments are more prevalent in summer than in winter, but they are not confined to the warm months, as the laxness of the bowels may seize upon the system at any time. It will find speedy relief in this Cordial.

"Marie, you will not take offense if I take you one question, will you?"

"Can you tell me the name of the man who perpetrated that hat of yours?"—Chicago Tribune.

THE PRIZE APPLES.

They Were Not Submitted to the Committee on Awards.

This is a story of six prize apples, of Samuel G. Blythe, editor, writer and former president of the Gridiron club, and of Robert H. Davis, editor, writer and good, old-fashioned fellow. It happened in Washington when Davis called upon Blythe in his office.

There were six large, perfect and luscious looking apples standing in a row on the office window sill, their red cheeks polished till they gleamed like rubies. They tempted Davis, and he promptly ate one. Then he ate another while talking to Blythe. Then he put the third in his pocket for refreshment on the way home.

A hour later Blythe received a note from Davis by messenger with a request to give the bearer the three remaining apples. Blythe's sense of civility made him comply with the request, and he wrapped up the three ruby checked prize apples, put them in a box and delivered them to the messenger boy without the least appearance of regret at relinquishing what for which he had worked and planned for months.

The apples were the largest of a specially fine variety and had been carefully cultivated by Blythe on his farm in the northern part of the state. They had arrived that morning and had been set aside for the moment, to be later packed and sent to the committee on awards at the agricultural exhibition. Blythe had hoped to get a prize for them, but he was too magnanimous and gallant to deny them to a friend, and so Davis ate all of the six prize apples.—Chicago Record-Herald.

A Job For The Armies.

Camille Flammarion has revived his old scheme of digging a geostrophic well 200 meters in diameter to ascertain the internal constitution of the earth. The imaginative Flammarion proposes to find an economic and almost inexhaustible source of heat to verify the rate of estoric increase, to find out if the continents constituting the terrestrial globe are in a state of fusion—in a word, to do rationally and directly what has been done slightly and a little by chance up to the present time in guesswork. To carry out the scheme he has three dots, dot, space and dot, three dots. The new distress signal has been adopted by the Berlin treaty and is now official all over the world.—Exchange.

The most distress signal used when the wireless became popular on ships was C Q D. It has been changed to S O S. In the continental code it is made with three dots, three short dashes and three dots, while in the Morse it is three dots, dot, space and dot, three dots. TOO MANY WOMEN SUFFER IN SILENCE

When the Blood is Weak or Out of Order Disease is Inevitable.

Many women go through life suffering in silence—weak, ailing and unhappy. The languor, the dizziness, the nervousness of girls and young women, with headaches, dizziness and fainting spells; the nervous ailments, back pain and indigestion, their regency and mothers; the trials that come to all women at the turn of life, are caused usually by impoverished watery blood. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People have helped more women to the joy of good health and robust strength than any other medicine in the world. These Pills actually make new, rich, red blood, which reaches every part of the body, feeds the nervous system, restores the regency and makes weak girls and women bright and well. Mrs. A. E. Wadsworth, Dundas, Ont., says: "I am writing this letter out of gratitude to let you know the great benefit Dr. Williams' Pink Pills have been to me. From the time I was a girl I suffered from weakness and fainting spells, and was always doctored but it did not help me. As I grew older I seemed to grow worse. My blood seemed to grow thinner and thinner. Sometimes I would faint as often as twice in a day. I suffered from indigestion. I could not walk upstairs without stopping. I was in this condition for many years. I was brought to my attention and I began taking them. I noticed an improvement in my appetite. Then I began to grow stronger; the color began to return to my face, and my heart went on as usual. I gradually became a better person. I had a condition of more perfect health than I had ever enjoyed before. This is what Dr. Williams' Pink Pills have done for me, and that they have been of lasting benefit is proved by the fact that it is several years since they have been given to me, and I have remained strong and well ever since. (Continued from page 5.)

shall please God to spare me, I hope to be a co-worker with you all for some years longer.

To do the work which will really be most helpful to me, it is necessary that you should elect someone younger, more vigorous and more active than I am now. Physical energy and bodily activity are needed to cope with the rapidly increasing work. This disease now demands more time and energy than I can possibly give.

Different men match different times. I gratefully express my thankfulness for the brotherly help which I have received from the Dean, the Archdeacon, Mr. Dohie, the hon. Treasurer, and the rural deans. Many kindnesses received from both the clergy and laity in these thirteen years have warmed my heart, cheered my life, and lightened my load. I do most heartily thank you for all your great kindness, loyalty and love.

I thank God for all the encouraging proofs of a real spirit of unity which has hitherto been one of the marks of the diocese, and I pray earnestly that it may continue in all our work for God and His church.

The qualities needed in a Bishop for such a diocese as this are that he should have a progressive and hopeful spirit of leadership, be broad in his sympathies, not easily daunted by obstacles, always cheerful in the face of difficulties, strong in the fundamental conviction that the Christian church is in the world primarily and exclusively to bless and uplift all human life.

I earnestly desire that a Coadjutor Bishop may be chosen by you of such strength, ability and saintly life, as may be the means of leading us all to greater, braver, and more strenuous efforts for the welfare of God's people, and the building up of His church in this great North-west. Let there be in this election a most unscrupulous avoidance of anything that can be even colorably called unfair.

May the holy spirit, whose festival we are keeping, give you a right judgment in this and in all things.

A Call to Work.

This great west is vibrating with all the vigorous young life that is expressing itself with amazing force in the rapid building up of what is nothing less than a new nation. There is no time to be lost, if the foundations are to be laid in righteousness. One year's work at the right time will be worth ten years' work at a later period.

The day of high opportunity has come. There are many tempting visions and it is hard to be obliged to let them pass. There is great necessity for a great effort.

If we do not at once proceed to occupy the fields that are calling for the church's ministrations, opportunities will slip from our grasp which will never recur.

Nothing in the future can atone for remissions at the present time. Our action is only limited by the men and the means at our command. These are urgent and obvious reasons for more generous help from within the diocese, and for much larger help from outside.

We are reminded by this season of Whitsuntide of our need of the Holy Spirit to broaden our vision and inspire our energies that we may do our share to shape and mould these growing communities, and claim them for the Kingdom of God and His Christ.

This should be done by a church which knows the power of a Holy Spirit and a present Christ, and the radiation of that power and that presence through the sacraments, through the work of the ministry, through the intercourse of Christian fellowship, and through the exercise of charity. The church meets the needs of modern life, because it meets the needs of the primal and fundamental needs of men.

What then is our work and our mission? It should be to teach the people how to worship God in the beauty of holiness and in the holiness of beauty, to exhibit a sane and healthy type of religion, to try and teach the higher and broader truths of Christianity. This should be our special contribution which we should make in moulding the life of this new land.

May the church stand in the future as it has in the past, supremely and above all things else for true and living faith in God, for glorious and holy worship, for the ministering of the divinely-given sacraments, for the carrying of heavenly help and comfort to the poor and the rich, the living and the dying, the sick and the well, for the preaching in all its fullness of the ever lasting gospel, the truth of God, revealed in our Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ, and made known to us through His church, one Holy, Catholic and Apostolic.

May there be given to us to see the needs and the wisdom, the strength and the purpose to meet them!

May our two watchwords be Faith and Service. Faith in God and in His truth, divinely and once for all revealed; and then, founded on this and inspired by it, the enlarging life, the growing vision, the increasing service, which shall make the church more and more a blessing and a power for God and for righteousness in this western land.

LARGE ATTENDANCE.

After the service in the church, which lasted for about two hours, an adjournment was made to the auditorium of the Y.M.C.A., where the sessions were held. Nearly all the clergy of the diocese were present, and a very large proportion of the laymen who were elected from the different parishes to attend.

The first business done was the election of Synod officers. These resulted as follows:

Secretary, Rev. Dean Sargent.
Asst. Sec., Rev. G. N. Dohie.

A resolution conveying greetings to the synod of the diocese of Quebec was passed.

An amendment to the Canons was passed giving the Bishop authority to appoint Canons should he deem it expedient.

At the afternoon session the treasurer's report was received and adopted. Afterwards H. H. Campkin was re-elected treasurer. A vote of thanks was also tendered him for his past services.

The report of the executive committee was received and adopted.

O. J. Godfrey and Mr. Sherwood were appointed auditors.

An amendment to the Canons to change the synod year from Dec. 31, to March 31, was carried.

ASSISTANT BISHOP.

At 4 o'clock the voting on an assistant or coadjutor bishop took place. The Canons provide that the one elected must have a majority of the clergy and two-thirds of the number of laity voting.

The first and second votes did not give this and a third vote had to be taken on Thursday morning. This third ballot resulted in the election of Rev. Archeacon Harding. When the announcement was made those present sang the doxology. Afterwards the Archdeacon thanked the synod for the confidence reposed in him and expressed the hope that the Bishop would be spared many years to direct and guide them and also that he himself might be a help to His Grace as well as a strength to the church.

APPOINTMENTS MADE.

After the election had been completed the bishop announced his intention of appointing Rev. F. Wells Johnson of Moose Jaw to be an archdeacon, having as territory, the western part of the diocese, and Rev. G. N. Dohie to be an archdeacon with the eastern part of the diocese for his territory. He also announced his intention of appointing as Canons Rev. Rural Dean Hill of Regina, and Rev. Rural Dean Beal of Grenfell.

A resolution to provide for a memorial to the late Bishop Anson was adopted. There was some discussion as to the form the memorial should take. Rev. G. N. Dohie suggested a scholarship at St. Chad's and Rev. Mr. McLean suggested the origination of a fund to provide for a canon missionary whose duty it would be to move from parish to parish to help in awakening the spiritual germ which was in the hearts of all. On a vote being taken the latter suggestion was adopted.

The election of members of the executive and of delegates to the synod resulted as follows:

Executive committee—F. Wells Johnson, 51; Rural Dean Pratt, 43; Rural Dean Cornish, 42; Rural Dean M. Beal, 36; Rev. G. C. Hill, 31; Rev. C. Williams, 28; Rev. Dean Biggs, 16; Rev. Mr. Knowles, 18. On the latter two a show of hands was taken, and Mr. Biggs was declared elected.

Delegates to the provincial synod—F. Wells Johnson, 47; Rev. Mr. Dohie, 41; The Dean, 40; Rev. Mr. Pratt, 37; Rev. Mr. Cornish, 36; Rev. Mr. Beal, 35; Rev. G. Hill, 20.

Delegates to the general synod—

Rev. F. Wells Johnson 45; The Dean, 41; Rev. Mr. Pratt 37; Rev. Mr. Beal 36; Rev. Mr. Cornish 24.

The laity vote resulted as follows: Executive committee: S. Spencer Page 77; H. D. Pickett, 65; E. L. Elwood 61; J. R. C. Honeyman 60; G. Spring Rice 40; Dr. Ellis, 36; E. W. Miller, 31; Am. J. R. Peverett, 31; H. H. Jagger, 29.

Delegates to the provincial synod: S. Spencer Page, 61; H. H. Campkin 58; R. B. Gordon, 49; E. L. Elwood, 48; H. D. Pickett 46; J. R. C. Honeyman 33; Aid. Peverett, 27.

Delegates to the general synod—S. Spencer Page, 60; H. H. Campkin, 51; R. B. Gordon, 49; H. D. Pickett, 43; E. L. Elwood, 43; J. R. C. Honeyman 28.

A deputation from the Moral and Social Reform League of Saskatchewan waited on the synod and asked for the aid of the synod in the work they were aiming to accomplish. The deputation consisted of Rev. W. A. Guy, C. C. Knight and C. B. Keenleyside. They asked the synod to give a resolution stating that the synod was in favor of the abolition of the bar and treating system.

In replying the Bishop stated that the general synod held in Ottawa had passed a resolution in favor of the aim of the League, and had appointed a committee to represent them on their association. It was for this synod to say whether they would follow that example or not. However, he would say that the Church of England did not take exaggerated views but preferred to take the broad view which would commend itself to Christians of sound common sense. They were, however, as earnest as anyone in their desire to see all the evils remedied.

On motion, Rev. G. C. Hill, S. Spencer Page and J. H. H. Young, were appointed to represent the diocese of Qu'Appelle on the League.

The canons of the church referring to Archdeacons and Rural Deans etc. was amended after some little discussion.

A discussion in reference to a church paper was brought up, and the advantages that would accrue pointed out. The committee that had charge had sent in their report to the executive committee and so the matter was finally left with the executive to deal with.

A recommendation that the executive grant $200 to the Qu'Appelle Diocesan Sunday School Association was carried.

The synod also gave its endorsement to the aims of the Laymen's Missionary Movement and recommended it to the earnest consideration of the laity of the diocese.

A strong memorial to the different railway companies urging the renewal of half-fares to the clergy was passed.

A number of votes of thanks were passed among them were the following:

To the rector, wardens and parishioners of St. Paul's church, for their hospitality.

To the Y.M.C.A. for the free use of their auditorium.

To the Church of Ireland for its interest in the mission work of the diocese.

To the S.P.G. for the sum of $16,845 received.

To the Colonial and Continental Church Society for assistance rendered in the development of the work in the Caron-Herbert district.

To the C.N.R. and C.P.R. for facilities granted to delegates.

To the Bishop for his efforts in obtaining financial aid for the diocese, in England and eastern Canada.

To the Archdeacon for taking charge of the services during the synod.

To the parishioners of St. Mark's, Toronto, for the sum of $500, which was allotted to the church building at Oshkosh.

To the Women's Auxiliary of Eastern Canada for their interest in the church.

The following resolution was also voted on and adopted: "That this Synod wishes to place on record its thankfulness that the Church of England in Canada is now in possession of a distinctive hymnbook of our own, and urges all incumbents and churchwardens to introduce it to their parishes as soon as possible."

The synod concluded its labors at noon on Friday with the singing of the Doxology and the pronouncement of the blessing by the Bishop.

Port Arthur, Ont., June 4.—Police-man Symons was nearly killed last night by a couple of half drunken lumber jacks when attempting to make an arrest for disorderly conduct. One man named Keenan, who did the most of the damage, claims to have a record, supported by newspaper clippings, of having cleaned-up four policemen at Fort William and five at the Soo. In camp before coming out he told his chums that he would handle the Port Arthur police likewise.

Police-man Symons has a couple of ribs broken and serious injuries about the head, caused by the cork boots of the lumber jack.

Ottawa, June 6.—A special issue of the Canada Gazette announces that under the provisions of the election act, the governor-general proclaims that registration boards will not sit this year. This means that no federal by-elections during the present year in constituencies not municipally organized, will be held on the election lists of last October.

PROFESSORS APPOINTED

Three Chairs in the University Filled on Recommendation of the President—Fund Devoted to Ten Scholarships.

The board of governors of the university were in session in the council chamber today under the presidency of the chairman, Mr. A. F. Angus, of Regina. One of the first surprises for the board was the notification that a number of gentlemen, who are deeply interested in the university and its success, were willing to give $1,000 to be devoted to ten scholarships of $100 each. These scholarships are intended to aid ambitious young men and women who wish to enter the university this year.

In accepting these welcome gifts the governors expressed their appreciation of the generosity of these friends of the university, and gave the president authority to arrange the conditions of award after consulting with the university council.

It is expected that some of these scholarships will be awarded on the results of the examinations to be held this year in June by the department of education for junior and senior matriculation. The others will be so awarded that every student will have an opportunity of competing. will receive the $100, a very substantial contribution towards the expenses of their first year in the university.

In addition to the above scholarships the university scholarships previously announced will be awarded.

The president of the university recommended to the governors, the appointment of Dr. Edmund H. Oliver to the chair of history and economics.

Dr. Oliver is at present lecturer in McMaster university.

Mr. George H. Ling, adjunct professor of mathematics in Columbia university, is recommended as professor of mathematics.

Mr. A. R. Greig of Manitoba Agricultural College, is to be professor of farm mechanics and superintendent of buildings.

Dr. E. H. Oliver comes very highly recommended. His course in the university of Toronto, was most brilliant. Among his distinctions were scholarships in classics and mathematics at matriculation, first class honors with the Mulock and Ross scholarships and McCall gold medal at graduation. This was followed in 1902 by post-graduate work in history, economics and sociology. For two years he was Mackenzie fellow in political science. In 1904 he was president's scholar in economics in Columbia university. After receiving the degree of Ph.D. from Columbia, Dr. Oliver was appointed lecturer in history at McMaster university. Dr. Oliver has studied in the university of Halle under professors Loofs and Haupt, and has spent two years in archaeological and historical investigations in Asia Minor, Palestine, and Greece. He is a member of the political science academy of the New York Champlain Society. His work at McMaster has been most successful.

He has published a monograph on Roman economic conditions which met with a most favorable reception from the foremost authorities at Europe.

Dr. Geo. H. Ling, the new professor of mathematics, was born at Wallaceburg, Ont., in 1874. He received the B.A. degree with honors from Toronto university in 1895, and M.A. from Columbia in 1894, and Ph.D. from the same university in 1896. He was instructor in mathematics at Wesleyan university, Middletown, Conn., from 1896 to 1901. From 1901 to 1905 he was tutor in mathematics at Columbia university. During the summer session of 1900 he taught in the university of Cincinnati, and during the summer of 1906 in the university of California. He is at present associate professor of mathematics in Columbia university, New York. Dr. Ling has published several important papers on mathematical subjects and has been active in the administration work of the department of mathematics and physics. His work is highly spoken of by authorities of this continent.

Mr. A. R. Greig, professor of farm mechanics and superintendent of the buildings, was born in Montreal in 1872 and received his early education and technical training in that city. He spent a short time in the audit department of the Canadian Express Company. From 1890 to 1891 he was with the Laurie Engine Co., of Montreal. In 1893 he passed examinations qualifying him for a first class engineer on condition that he should spend one year in practical engineering. From 1894 to 1896 he attended McGill university, spending his summers at practical work. At the expiration of this term he received the degree of B.Sc. in mechanical engineering from McGill university. During the last summer he was with the town engineer of Westmount, Montreal. For seven years he was with the Canadian Atlantic Railway Co., most of the time in charge of their drafting office. In 1902 he came to Winnipeg as chief draughtsman for the Canadian Northern railway. At the opening of the Manitoba Agricultural college in 1906, Mr. Greig was appointed to take charge of the farm mechanics and rural engineering departments, a position he has held with credit both to himself and the college. In 1906 he assisted in conducting the farm motor competition at Winnipeg industrial exhibition and this year he has been given full charge of this very important work, which will be the largest farm motor competition that has ever been conducted anywhere in the world.

At a very early date recommendations will be made for appointments to the chairs of English, Classics, Modern and possibly Physics. Satisfactory arrangements for instruction in these departments during the coming session are nearing completion and will be reported for final approval at the next meeting.

OTHER BUSINESS

Other matters attended to by the governors in addition to the appointment of professors, was to confirm the arrangement reported in The Capital sometime ago as to what should be done on the farm this year. Arrangements have been made for the plowing by steam of some 800 acres under the supervision of Mr. Clancy, who has been selected to look after the interests of the university by seeing that the work is properly carried out. The plowing will be done by Mr. Lunn.

It was also decided to invite the architects of McGill medical college to come west to consult with the governors regarding the architectural work to be done for the university of Saskatchewan.

In connection with the $1,000 contributed for ten scholarships mentioned above, it should be said that Hon. A. P. McNab and Messrs. Sutherland and Engen are to be given credit for the idea and its successful carrying out. The gentlemen who have contributed to the fund for these scholarships are: Messrs. Cairns, Calder, Bell, Engen, McNab, Sutherland, Sommerfeld, Mellicke and Hansen.

The meeting of the governors was adjourned at noon, and another meeting will be called by the president within the next three weeks.—Saskatoon Capital.

RELIGION IN SCHOOLS

Edmonton, June 6.—Archdeacon Gray, rector of All Saint's Church of England, appeared before the Methodist conference on Saturday, and in a forcible address urged that all the religious denominations should unite to urge upon the provincial government the importance of adding religious instruction to the curriculum of the public schools. The conference considered the suggestion favorably, and appointed a committee to take the matter up. At the present time no instruction is given in the Alberta public schools to religion but the school boards are permitted to authorize the opening of the school with prayer, and the reading of a chapter from the Bible.

W. L. Mackenzie King, has been sworn in as a member of the Laurier Cabinet. He will assume charge of the Labor Department.

GENERAL NEWS

Spokane, Wash., June 4.—Paul C. Klein, a former Canadian Mounted Policeman, was found guilty on Saturday of the murder of John Lewandowski, a Polish cabinet maker, at Fort Wright military reserve, on March 1. His lawyers are fighting the verdict on the ground that the alleged crime was committed on a federal reserve and the state has no jurisdiction. The prisoner has threatened to become an author and write books to raise money to fight the case. He comes up for sentence in a week.

Victoria, B.C. June 3.—Sai Kei, the Chinese official, who with former Chinese customs interpreter at Vancouver, Charlie Yip Yen, were arrested by mistake at Pittsburg, when touring the United States recently, canvassing Chinese to buy stock in the Ting Pang Seng, the Heavenly Peace Mountain mine, south China, was murdered at Canton on their arrival from Victoria, according to a cablegram received by the local Chinese. The couple collected $370,000 for the development of the Kwangtze mine in the United States, San Francisco, Stockton and Victoria Chinese supplying $20,000 in each city and large subscriptions were made in Vancouver, Portland, Seattle; in fact everywhere where Chinese were assembled.

GRAFT IN MONTREAL.
Montreal, June 4.—Various methods by which to overcome city by-laws were shown at the Montreal Royal commission today.

One of these was the sale of a horse to the city by a barkeep. The witness, a saloon keeper named Hinton, said that he had bought a horse from Alderman Seguin for $200 and two days later had sold it to the police department for $300. He knew that Aldermen could not sell property to the city. The evidence will also be given of pictures show men contributing large sums to the election fund of Chairman Proulx of the police committee and further evidence was also taken with regard to the conspiracy by which the police had watched one Vandela, an opponent of Ald. Proulx and caught him in a disorderly house which was immediately raided. Evidence was shown that Vandela had gone into the house to make a collection, but that the police had been watching to catch him, and had subsequently boasted of their smartness in getting rid of Proulx's opponent.

MCGILL CONVOCATION.
Montreal, June 3.—The first convocation of McGill university in connection with the new Macdonald college at St. Anne de Bellevue, was held this afternoon in the presence of Earl Grey and a distinguished gathering. It was made notable by the conferring of the degree of LL.D. on the Hon. James Wilson, United States secretary of agriculture; Gifford Pinchot, United States secretary of forestry; James Earl Russell, dean of the teachers' college in connection with the Columbian university, New York; Dr. Duncan McEachern, of Montreal; and Prof. Robertson, the man who planned and directed the construction of the magnificent institution that the liberality of Sir William Macdonald conferred upon the province of Quebec at a cost of $6,000,000. At the close of the convocation a reception was held in the women's residence by Prof. and Mrs. Robertson. The visitors from the United States were loud in their praises of the Macdonald college, which they declared to be without an equal in the world for perfection of every detail.

Toronto, June 6.—The grand jury in its presentment Saturday deplored the gambling mania and the fact that the fashionable society could gamble at the Woodbine while the poor man who placed a small bet in a cigar store was amenable to the law. There was danger of the province becoming known throughout America as a gamblers' paradise. They further deplored the presence of King Edward and Earl Grey at the race track, thus throwing a glamor over what was the greatest evil of the age, and urging that representations be made to Earl Grey requesting that his patronage be held from race tracks where betting is permitted. Judge Winchester in commenting on the presentment said gambling was the greatest evil in England today and Canada was fast following in the footsteps of the mother country. Gambling was being suppressed in the States but was daily becoming worse here.

The people of Carlyle are agitating for a faster train service on the C.P.R. Arcola line. It is pointed out that the 366 miles between Regina and Winnipeg over the Glenboro line occupies 15 hours, or less than 25 miles an hour. It is claimed that this could be considerably cut down, first by attaching a dining car to the train which would save the hour now used in stops at Arcola and Glenboro for meals, and by improving the road bed to allow of faster running time being made.—Alameda Dispatch.

"The Great Fair of the Great West," is the apt catch-word of the Winnipeg Industrial Exhibition for this year. More than any other single influence regularly put forward, the Winnipeg fair, which is truly the national exposition of the west, epitomizes and brings to a single focus the remarkable development of the great west. Each year the establishment of this fair has to be enlarged and re-enlarged, to make room for the increasing variety and scope of exhibits, from blooded live stock to the intricate products of mill and factory. The movement for the Selkirk Centennial Exposition of 1913 had its inception in the increasing importance of the Winnipeg fair, and the exposition, which now seems assured, is but the inevitable development of the Winnipeg exhibition. The dates for this fair run from Saturday July 10, to Saturday, July 17, this year. An unusually attractive line of attractions, great and small, is promised.

Indian Head, June 5.—The voting on a bylaw of the rural municipality calling for the issue of $25,000 debentures for the construction of roads and bridges, took place today, the by-law being defeated by a majority of 13. The vote stood as follows: Indian Head poll, for bylaw-18, and against 30; Sintaluta poll, for 23, against 24. The result is a great surprise as it was generally thought the bylaw would carry.

Nokom s, Sask., June 6.—A highly respected citizen, Duncan Jamieson, aged 68, wandered away from town and perished in a slough within half a mile of his farm. He has been in failing health for some weeks, and it is supposed that he was temporarily demented. A search party hunted all night and the body was found Saturday afternoon. RAILWAY WASHOUTS.

Nelson, B.C., June 5.—Four railway lines are out of business in the Kootenay district by reason of the washouts. The Crow Nest line is having trouble, and the Great Northern railway lines are not out of danger. Many Kootenay points are isolated.

CROPS AT HUMBOLDT.

The crop conditions in this district are most favorable and it is asserted by pioneer farmers of the district that they are further advanced than they have been for five years. The heavy rain of last week was general throughout the district. A few miles north of town two inches of hail fell, but did no damage. A few farmers have been sowing oats and barley during the week. The grain is coming on nicely, and on the farm of Chas. Mycock, south of town, the wheat is over six inches high.—Humboldt Journal.

London, June 4.—It is proposed in New Zealand to demonstrate a national attitude in support of the empire in the face of foreign naval menace by sending the leader of the opposition as well as Sir James Ward, the premier to the imperial naval conference in July. Seeing the Canadian attitude as expressed in the house of commons, also that it is national and entirely removed from party politics, it is suggested that Canada do likewise by Sir Wilfrid Laurier inviting R. L. Borden to accompany the ministers. It is felt that this would be the most effective demonstration to Germany and other nations that the empire means united to hold its own and also to remind party men here that the security of the empire is a question for common agreement, and not political wranglings.
