Beautiful Cynthia;

OR

Victory After Many Defeats.

CHAPTER XV.
THE SNAKE IN THE GRASS.

He pressed her to him still more closely.
"You are worth everything, Cynthia," he said. "I will write to you. I must go now. Perhaps Mr. Standish will suggest something"—he laughed, a mirthless laugh—"I'm a bit off my head. Good-by, darling. I shall find some way of sending to you, letting you know."

Their lips met. He let her go at last, and went out—she, with her hand on the door, watching him with love-laden eyes till the last moment.

Percy was waiting in the hall.
"Come with me, Frayne," he said. "I have thought of something. It may not be of much use, but—"

"I do hope you will not think me intrusive, my dear Frayne," murmured Percy as they went down the steps.

"It was very painful for me to have to remain in the room, an unwilling spectator, I assure you, of the distressing scene. But I ventured to hope that my presence would in some way restrain Lady Westlake. As you know, her wrath is absolutely unbridled when she gives way to it. She is a very terrible old lady, and I must confess that I myself have always a sneaking fear of her."

"Do you think she will carry out her threat, and turn Cynthia out of the house in twenty-four hours?" asked Darrel, rather hoarsely.

Percy shook his head gravely. "I'm very much afraid she will," he said. "Aunt Gwen is capable of anything when she is in one of her furies, and I have never seen her more furious than she was this afternoon."

Darrel stopped and stared at the ground, biting his lip. His brain was in a whirl. What was to become of Cynthia? Where could she go?

"The notice is very short," said Percy, with a sideways glance at his companion; "but Cynthia could go to her people—"

"She has no people," said Darrel, a trifle bitterly. "She has only her father, and he is travelling in South America."

"Surely she has some friends?" suggested Percy, with another glance.

"I know of none to whom she could go," replied Darrel moodily. "I have never heard her speak of any. She has plenty of acquaintances; I've no doubt, friends of Aunt Gwen's; but she could scarcely go to any of them."

"You have been, are being, very good to both of us," said Darrel, with feeling, "and I accept your offer of assistance very gratefully; but I am afraid you will get into trouble with Lady Westlake and all her friends—your friends, by taking sides with us."

"I am quite ready to risk that," said Percy. "I think Aunt Gwen is being shamefully, but if you would rather that nothing was said about my share in the matter, she need not know."

"Of course, I shall say nothing," said Darrel.

The whole affair will have to be kept secret," suggested Percy; "there is no need for anyone but our three selves to know anything about it. I do not know whether it is too late to get a license, but we can try, if you like."

Darrel instantly hailed a taxicab. "Tell the man where to drive," he said, his face flushed, his whole manner changed from that of doubt, perplexity, and dismay to one of hope and resolution.

They were fortunate enough to reach the office in Doctors' Commons before it had closed. Guided and prompted by Percy, Darrel made the necessary application, signed the usual form, and came out with the precious license in his breast pocket.

He felt as if a load had been lifted off his heart, his eyes were bright there was a smile on his lips; and yet it seemed to him as if he were moving in a dream, for could it be possible that Cynthia would be his before another day had passed!

What would she say when she learned of this desperate plan of his? But how was she to know? As if he had seen what was passing through Darrel's mind, Percy said:

"You'll have to let Cynthia know. I think I can help you here, Frayne. I will go back to Aunt Gwen's and ask to see her. I shall, of course, say that I have come to plead on Cynthia's behalf. It won't be a bit of use, and it is more than likely that Aunt Gwen will have me turned out, but I will try and manage to see Cynthia, and ask her to meet you, say, at the it would make trouble. She couldn't go home to Summerleigh; there is no one there. The place, the cottage in which she and her father live, is shut up; besides, she could not live alone."

"It is a difficult position," mused Percy. "Of course, there is one way out of it, but it is of so desperate a nature that I do not like to suggest it. Besides, no doubt you have already thought of it."

Darrel laughed grimly. "I'm scarcely able to think," he said. "I'm too confused, bewildered, by Lady Westlake's cruelty to Cynthia. How anyone calling herself a woman—but what was it you were thinking of, were going to suggest? I'm awfully grateful to you, for your kindness to me, and to her, Standish; and please speak right out. I'm ready to jump at anything."

"If you insist—" murmured Percy. "Has it occurred to you that there is one, and I'm afraid only one way out of this impasse—an immediate marriage?"

Darrel stopped short again, his face suddenly crimson, his eyes fixed on Percy's face.

"I never thought of it!" he said under his breath and with a leap on his heart. "Of course! But—but it is possible to do it so soon?"

"Everything is possible," said Percy softly, and linking his arm in Darrel's. "It is only a matter of a special license and a clergyman. I happen to know something about it, because a friend of mine had to marry as suddenly as you will be doing; his regiment was ordered abroad, and he wanted to get married before he left. It is quite easy when you know the ropes, and I shall be glad to help you. You will permit me to do so. I have a very warm regard for my cousin Frayne."

"You have been, are being, very good to both of us," said Darrel, with feeling, "and I accept your offer of assistance very gratefully; but I am afraid you will get into trouble with Lady Westlake and all her friends—your friends, by taking sides with us."

"I am quite ready to risk that," said Percy. "I think Aunt Gwen is being shamefully, but if you would rather that nothing was said about my share in the matter, she need not know."

"Of course, I shall say nothing," said Darrel.

The whole affair will have to be kept secret," suggested Percy; "there is no need for anyone but our three selves to know anything about it. I do not know whether it is too late to get a license, but we can try, if you like."

Darrel instantly hailed a taxicab. "Tell the man where to drive," he said, his face flushed, his whole manner changed from that of doubt, perplexity, and dismay to one of hope and resolution.

They were fortunate enough to reach the office in Doctors' Commons before it had closed. Guided and prompted by Percy, Darrel made the necessary application, signed the usual form, and came out with the precious license in his breast pocket.

He felt as if a load had been lifted off his heart, his eyes were bright there was a smile on his lips; and yet it seemed to him as if he were moving in a dream, for could it be possible that Cynthia would be his before another day had passed!

What would she say when she learned of this desperate plan of his? But how was she to know? As if he had seen what was passing through Darrel's mind, Percy said:

"You'll have to let Cynthia know. I think I can help you here, Frayne. I will go back to Aunt Gwen's and ask to see her. I shall, of course, say that I have come to plead on Cynthia's behalf. It won't be a bit of use, and it is more than likely that Aunt Gwen will have me turned out, but I will try and manage to see Cynthia, and ask her to meet you, say, at the Park gates at half-past six. If I can't get to see her, I will send a note to her by her maid or one of the servants. You might write a line or two. Come on to my club."

They went to the club, and Darrel made at once for a writing table. Percy ordered a soda and whisky for both of them, had Darrel's put beside his elbow, and drank his own, seated at a little distance, his eye fixed on the floor thoughtfully. If his luck stood by him, Cynthia and Darrel might have been married and Cynthia out of his way forever.

Darrel only wanted to write three or four lines, and yet, before he succeeded in doing so, he had torn up half a dozen sheets of note paper.

He handed the precious missive to Percy, who took it and rose at once. "I will let you know the result," he said. "Shall I come to your rooms? You will want to pack?"

"Yes," said Darrel briskly. "I shall have to go down to quarters to-night and arrange for leave, and so on. I don't never thank you enough, Standish, for all you are doing for us. You have been a true friend."

He held out his hand and gripped Percy's soft and delicate one with a grip that made its sensitive owner shiver. Darrel rushed out of the club and into a hansom and Percy calmly smoked a cigarette, then as calmly repaired to Belgrave Square.

"Her ladyship is not at home to anyone, sir," said the footman "passively."

"I have brought some tickets for a concert for Miss Drayle, James," said Percy blandly. "At this moment Percy's luck still standing by him, Parsons happened to cross the hall. Ah, there is Parsons!" said Percy. "I will give them to her, if you please."

As he went toward her he saw that her eyes were red, as if she had been crying.

"Can I see Miss Cynthia?" he asked in an undertone.

"Oh, no, sir," said Parsons, shaking her head. "She is too ill, upset. I've let her lie down."

"Quite right," he said, quickly and approvingly. "Please give her these tickets at once, and ask her not to be so late. Give them to her—and no more—Lady Westlake. You understand?"

Parsons shot a sharp glance at him, nodded, and went upstairs quickly. Cynthia was lying on the bed, her face on one arm, her eyes closed. It was the collapse after the terrible scene. She was trying to realize that she was going to be parted from Darrel, that in twenty-four hours she would have to leave Aunt Gwen's and go—where? Parsons approached the bed softly.

"Here are some tickets from Mr. Percy, Miss Cynthia."

Cynthia opened her eyes, gazed at her vacantly, and shook her head; but Parsons had locked at the envelope, and saw that the writing on it was not Mr. Percy's.

"I think you had better open it."

She started, drew her hand from her eyes, and stared at him; her lips apart, her breath coming quickly.

"Will I—Oh, Darrel, you can't mean it!" she gasped.

"But I do," he said. "Cynthia, there is no other way out of it. We are in a fix. Lady Westlake will carry out her threat. Percy Standish says so. There is no place for you to go. But there is no need to think, to talk of that. There is no reason why we shouldn't be married."

"But—but we can't be!" she exclaimed breathlessly.

miss," she said significantly; and, half unconsciously, Cynthia took the envelope and, without looking at it, opened it.

She had to draw her hand across her burning eyes before she could manage to read the note; then she uttered an exclamation, sat up, and sprang from the bed. Her eyes, dull with crying, suddenly became bright, a flush rose to her tear-stained cheeks.

She had not parted from him forever; she was to meet him, and soon, again! Half-past six! What was the time? Had Parsons kept back the letter for fear of disturbing her? Was she too late?

"Give me a walking dress, Parsons," she said. "I am going out—I must go. Oh, be quick! Give me some eau de Cologne. Oh, look at my eyes, how swollen they are! Oh, be quick, be quick, Parsons!"

Now, you cannot play melo-drama in the drawing-room without its reaching the servants' hall. Parsons knew that there had been a terrific scene between Lady Westlake and Cynthia and Mr. Frayne, and it is very probable that when Cynthia had gone up to her room she may, in her misery and confusion, have let out a few words to confirm Parsons' suspicion of what had occurred.

It is scarcely necessary to say that the girl, who was devoted to Cynthia, was entirely on her side, as were all the other servants.

"It's all right, miss," she said soothingly, as she bathed Cynthia's face. "What time do you want to be there?"

"Half past six, the Park gates," said Cynthia, too excited to be secretive.

"There's plenty of time, miss; here's plenty of time," murmured Parsons caressingly. "Now, don't you be worried and flurried, dear Miss Cynthia; it will all come right! You let me bathe your pretty eyes, and try and be calm."

"I will, I will," said Cynthia; "I'm a great trouble, Parsons. Ah! you don't know."

"Perhaps not, Miss Cynthia," said Parsons soothingly; "but we aren't deaf and blind, we servants, though her ladyship thinks that we ought to be. But I mustn't speak like that about my betters. Now, miss, sit down quiet in the chair and let me do your hair nicely. You don't want to go to your young gentleman—I mean, into the streets—looking untidy. That's better, Miss Cynthia!" as Cynthia smiled and blushed. "Lor, miss, if I was a gentleman, as strong and brave and handsome as Mr. Frayne, I wouldn't let any one, no, not even her ladyship, come between me and such a beautiful, sweet creature!"

"Oh, hush!" murmured Cynthia. "You mustn't say that, Parsons. And to be quick; I know I shall be late!"

She put on a motor veil, though there was no earthly reason for her doing so, and was at the Park gates ten minutes before her time; but, early as she was, Darrel was there sating up and down, impatiently waiting for her.

They looked into each other's eyes; she gave him her hand for a moment, and then walked demurely by his side till they reached a seat among the trees and away from all beholders.

"Oh, Darrel!" she breathed. "Ah, you mustn't, some one will see us!" or he had drawn her to him for a moment and kissed her. "How clever of you to think of this!"

"Well, I didn't," he said honestly, and a little regretfully; "it was Percy Standish. Cynthia, he has proved a true friend. He's a clever chap, and it was he who thought of—Now, Cynthia, you mustn't be strangled, and you mustn't argue; you must say 'Yes' at once. Cynthia, my dear darling, will you marry me to-morrow?"

She started, drew her hand from his, and stared at him; her lips apart, her breath coming quickly.

"Will I—Oh, Darrel, you can't mean it!" she gasped.

"But I do," he said. "Cynthia, there is no other way out of it. We are in a fix. Lady Westlake will carry out her threat. Percy Standish says so. There is no place for you to go. But there is no need to think, to talk of that. There is no reason why we shouldn't be married."

"But—but we can't be!" she exclaimed breathlessly.

9539-9536—A STYLISH COAT SUIT.

White linen was used for this design, with trimming of blue ratine, fancy loops and buttons. The coat and skirt show new style features, and will develop nicely in any of this season's dress on coat-fabrics. Blue serge with black satin would be effective. Or corduroy in a stylish shade of tan, relieved by white trimming. The suit is composed of Ladies' Coat Pattern, 9539, cut in 5 sizes: 34, 36, 38, 40 and 42 inches bust measure, and Ladies' Skirt Pattern, 9536, cut in 5 sizes: 22, 24, 26, 28 and 30 inches waist measure. It requires 6½ yards of 44-inch material for a medium size.

This illustration calls for TWO separate patterns which will be mailed to any address on receipt of 10c. FOR EACH pattern in silver or stamps.

Girls' Middy Blouse With Skirt.

Blue and white striped tub silk was used for the blouse and blue serge for the skirt. The blouse may be worn with high neck closing, or open at the throat the collar being arranged to form a facing and flat collar. The sleeve is finished with a pointed cuff. The skirt is a five gore model, with inverted plait at the centre back. The design is suitable for flannel, Eden cloth, pique, corduroy, galatea, gingham, serge or silk. White serge with red or white trimmings would make a pretty suit. The skirt is cut in 4 sizes: 8, 10, 12, and 14 years. It requires 3 yards of 27 inch material for the blouse and 2½ yards for the skirt, for the 12 year size.

A pattern of this illustration mailed to any address on receipt of 10c. in silver or stamps.

WOMAN'S MOST SUCCESSFUL MEDICINE

Known All Over The World—Known Only For The Good It Has Done.

We know of no other medicine which has been so successful in relieving the suffering of women, or received so many genuine testimonials, as has Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

In nearly every community you will find women who have been restored to health by this famous medicine. Almost every woman you meet knows of the great good it has been doing among suffering women for the past 30 years.

Fox Creek, N. B.—"I have always had pains in the abdomen and a weakness there and often after meals a soreness in my stomach. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has done me much good. I am stronger, digestion is better and I can work with ambition. I have encouraged many mothers of families to take it as it is the best remedy in the world. You can publish this in the papers." Mrs. WILLIAM S. BOURQUE, Fox Creek, N. B.

In the Pinkham Laboratory at Lynn, Mass., are files containing hundreds of thousands of letters from women seeking their own health, in which many openly state over their own signatures that they have regained their health by taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, many of whom state that it has saved them from surgical operations.

Answer: MICHELIN

As a Time and Money-Saving Proposition, 77 per cent. say MICHELIN. As an Experimental Proposition, 23 per cent. are undecided, still experimenting with various makes, with the consequent loss of time and money.

Fancy pattern covers are no doubt attractive, they are intended to be; they are also a good advertisement. To the shrewd buyer the very fact of such a great variety of Fancy Pattern Tyres proves conclusively that none of the patterns are correct.

Either one is best and should be universally adopted, or all are unnecessary. MICHELIN are not fancy pattern covers: Quality is their watchword, and on their merits they stand or fall.

Concert at Northern Bay.

A treat was in store for those who attended the concert in the R. C. School Room, on Thursday last, in Northern Bay. It consisted of songs, dialogues, recitations, etc. Those taking part in the dialogues were:—Mrs. J. March, Misses Fanny O. Flaherty, Beesele Oak, Mary Hogan, Gertie March, Bride Hogan, Ursula Flynn, Messrs. J. Hogan, L. Mullaly, J. and P. Johnson. The acting of those ladies and gentlemen in the different parts was excellent and indeed a surprise to many who were present.

The musical part of the programme was much appreciated. The songs being especially well rendered. Much praise is due to Mrs. J. March, who organized the concert, and to whose efforts its success was mainly due, also, to Miss Mollie Flynn who acted as accompanist. The proceeds go to the building fund of the beautiful new church at Northern Bay.

Big Show at Rossley's.

To-night there is a real good show at the Star Theatre, Shadrack and Julienne Talbot in a new sketch, where they introduce some fine songs. Miss Julienne will be heard in that famous old English ballad: "The Last Rose of Summer" and "Daddy Has a Sweetheart" sung as the song bird knows how to put it over. Harry Ingram, the rising young tenor, has also a fine song; there are three reels of splendid pictures and two Pathe Weeklies and Gaumont Graphics newly imported. On Monday there will be one of the best programmes ever put before the public; look out for Monday's programme.

A Remarkable Novel

CAVIARRE, By E. Grant Richards.

The author who, by the way, is publisher as well, made a special visit to Monte Carlo to study the inside workings of the extraordinary system of gambling which has been carried on there for so many years, and from it he has written one of the most fascinating novels that has ever been depicted. The scenes and characters are all true to life.

An Eye-Opener!

Editor Evening Telegram.

Dear Sir.—One would imagine by reading the Herald with its fulsome flattery of Premier Morris and his Government that the people of the country were delighted with the reckless expenditures of money now being trusted to their care. The bombastic utterances of its Editor in his editorial of the 4th April would have us believe so, for he says: "the utter collapse of the Opposition Party in this country is attested by the fact that the sittings of the Assembly each afternoon attract not more than three or four people, the clearest proof that the electors are well satisfied with the Government's great record on their behalf." What a whopper. On their people's behalf indeed, this is another freak of the editor's imagination. He also states that the proceedings in the House of Assembly have become so tame of late that the spectators are now drifting over to the Legislative Council. What are we to infer from this. Is there some great oracle there just now that attract people thither. If so, the Premier should make room in the lower house for the object of this attraction and so fill the seats now said to be vacant there, but if the people of St. John's are as much disgusted with the doings of the present Government as we are in the out-harbour, then I fear even the addition of this attractive oracle would not have the desired effect.

Mr. Kent's remarks in the house about the contracts for steamers, about to be awarded to the Reids without explaining to the House the nature, cost, etc., of said contracts was an eye-opener and showed that the Opposition Party had not collapsed as stated by the Herald. The request by the Government to have the passing of the contract to Reids left wholly in the hands of the Executive only strengthens the opinions held by the masses that the Reids were the real rulers and for some reason or other the Government must dance to the contractors' tune. If this were not so, why would the Government allow Reid to build more Branch Railways than they can successfully operate. Of what use are the railways unless they can be operated in the interest of the people who are paying through the nose for them? Will any sane individual tell us that the present railway system is a success or operated in the interest of the people of this country. The delay occasioned in handling freight alone is proof that it is not and we have no redress until the rolling day.

Then is it not worse than madness to go on building branches until such time as the Contractor can sufficiently demonstrate his ability to operate successfully the trunk line and the branches already built? This, I submit, he has not done to the satisfaction of the public, and until he does this there should not be any more money expended upon them. Millions of dollars are being borrowed yearly for the Reids to build branch railways, some of which, it is said, will never earn enough to pay for the axle grease required for the cars. Of course this makes no difference to the Contractor, for he is paid in cash for every mile of road he builds; consequently it's a matter of indifference to him whether they are operated or not. It is the people of the country who will have to bear the brunt of this stupid and reckless expenditure. The time is not far distant when the taxpayers of this country will assert their manhood and let both Morris and the Reids know that they will no longer submit to be mere machines from which the Reids can grind their gold. "Millions of dollars of our money have already gone into the coffers of the Reids, and there are millions more to follow them. Is it not passing strange that when money is absolutely needed in the out-harbour for public improvements, such as roads, bridges, wharves, breakwaters, etc., we cannot get the amount necessary for such improvements; but let Reids only build branch railways and millions are forthcoming? Why is this? Perhaps the Premier would enlighten us.

Yours truly, TRADER, Placentia Bay, April 16, '13.

THE GOOD OLD TIMES!

A state paper of the time of William Rufus describing the royal household mentioned a hundred servants in the King's kitchen and only four in the laundry, indicating that washing was not of much account in those days. Even so late as the reign of Charles II. Pepys thought it worthy of record in his diary that on Feb. 24, 1664, his wife took a bath.—London Telegraph.

New York, April 17.—The United States Circuit Court has decided that a newspaper cannot make use of the copyright laws in seeking to prevent another newspaper from publishing information alleged to be exclusive to the former, unless the newspaper claiming to have the copyright has filed two copies of the article in book form with the Registrar of Copyrights at Washington before bringing the action. The Times this lost its suit against the Sun on Amundsen's South Pole story.

Tramps And Novelists.

Extraordinary Careers of Popular Writers.

"What! Jack London only thirty-seven! I thought he was about sixty!"

The remark, made in hearing of the writer, concerning the popular American author, who recently celebrated his thirty-seventh birthday, can be easily understood by those acquainted with the career of this amazing novelist; for he has crowded into his thirty-seven years the experiences of an army of adventurers. He has been in turn sailor, gold miner, tramp, writer, Socialist lecturer, and journalist. When he was seventeen he shipped before the mast as an able seaman, went to Russia as a seal-hunter, and served at divers times in various capacities. He joined the rush to Klondyke, tramped over the United States and Canada many thousands of miles, having more than one jail experience because he possessed no fixed place of abode and had no visible means of support, and after serving as a war correspondent in the Russo-Japanese War started on a seven-year's cruise round the world in a fifty-foot ketch-rig yacht.

In 1900 he wrote his first book, "The Son of the Wolf," and since then have followed many other equally stirring romances by this astonishing world-tramping novelist.

ROLLING STONES.

Jack London's career is unique, but it is partly equalled by that of other writers. There was the late Guy Boothby, who died before he was thirty-nine, and who was a sheep-raiser, conjurer, actor, a pearl diver, a gold digger, and a sailor before he became a writer. Also Mr. Frank Bullen, happily still with us, who began life as an errand boy and ultimately drifted to sea, serving in various capacities up to and including chief mate in all parts of the world. He has been in a mutiny and experienced a shipwreck, after which he found his way to Havana, where, in order to buy bread, he accepted the post of billiard-marker at a tiny hotel. To quote his own words, "I drifted about from shore to shore, always having to ship before the mast again when I came to England."

A typical example of the rolling stone is Mr. Bart Kennedy, whose career reminds one very much of that of Jack London. As he himself says, he picked up his education in knocking about the world. When he was six he was working as a half-timer in a cotton mill near Manchester, and there he remained until he was twenty, when he went to sea before the mast. He has tramped the United States from end to end, worked as a labourer, lived and fought with Indians, and gold-mined in the Klondyke long before the gold rush. Then he drifted on to the stage and tried his luck as an opera singer and actor, but as he laughingly confessed to the writer on one occasion, "not possessing the voice of a Caruso or the histrionic genius of an Irving, I decided to see what adventures lay in Fleet Street."

An Amazing Biography.

Mark Twain, of course, was a Mississippi pilot and an "anything-he-could-find-to-cuss," as he once expressed it, before he became a writer; but it is doubtful if any author has passed through such vicissitudes of fortune as Maxime Goriky, the famous Russian novelist, who some time ago wrote the following condensed autobiography:

"1878, shoemaker's apprentice; 1879, apprentice in a drawing office; 1882, dish washer on board a steamboat; 1883, baker; 1884, hall porter; 1885, baker; 1886, chorister in a travelling operatic company; 1887, selling apples in the street; 1888, candidate for suicide; 1891, copying clerk in a lawyers' office; 1892, tramping across Russia; 1893, casual labourer in the railway service; 1894, published my first short story."

The secret of Goriky's success, of course, lies in the wonderful manner in which he has described his own experience of lower life. Most of his works are short stories, dealing chiefly with the lowest classes of society, full of life and colour, and frequently founded on incidents which came within the author's own experience.

Settle The Question Right.

However the battle is ended, Though proudly the victor comes, With flaunting flag and neighing nag And echoing roll of drums; Still truth proclaims this motto: In letters of living light, No question is ever settled, Until it is settled right.

Though the heel of the strong oppressor May grind the weak in the dust, And the voices of fame with one acclaim May call him great and just; Let those who applaud take warning, And keep this motto in sight, No question is ever settled, Until it is settled right.

Let those who have taken courage, Though the enemy seem to have won; If he be in the wrong, though his ranks are strong, The battle is not yet done. For sure as the morning follows The darkest hour of the night, No question is ever settled, Until it is settled right.

O men, bowed down with labour, O women, young yet old, O heart, oppressed in the toiler's breast, And crushed by the power of gold, Keep on with your weary battle Against triumphant might; No question is ever settled, Until it is settled right.

ELLA WHEELER WILCOX.

As Children Do.

Sometimes, when night is creeping down, And all the world about him dim, And he must go to Sleepytown, You lie down at the side of him, And whisper soothing little things, In childish words, such as your fame To tell the sound of bee-like wings, And how the freddy gets his fame.

And soon the world grows darker yet, And to the little fellow's eyes Strange, hidden dangers now beset, The shadow places in the skies; But you speak low and comforting, And tell him none of them are there, That near him is not anything, But what is kind and good and fair.

Then trembling come his little hands Out through the dark and up your face, As though by touch he understands That he is in the safest place, And so with fingers on your cheek He sighs contentedly to sleep, And you—you may not even speak, So very, very still you keep.

Some time you, as a little child, Shall fare into an unknown night, And shall yearn for the stars that smiled, With all their soothing, drowsy light, And you, as little children do, May grope out through the darks of space, And sigh in peace to sleep, when you At last have touched your Father's face.

Bankers Doing Well.

Mr. W. Poole, of Adelaide Street, today had a letter from Critchell Bros., of Belleoram, written on the 20th inst., in which they say that the bankers are doing very well. The Acme and the Winifred arrived that day with 200 and 170 qts, respectively on their second trips after a week's fishing. They report all the rest of the fleet doing very well. This is the second trip with the vessels and the banking voyage has had a very auspicious opening. The boats along the shore from Port aux Basques down were doing splendidly and take daily from 12 to 14 qts. of codfish.

A Terrible Case.

The assault upon a little girl committed at Conception Harbour, to which the Telegram referred yesterday, we learn to-day is a harrowing case. It seems that the child's mother, at a late hour went to the house of a friend who was ill, leaving the little one in her bed alone. The party who attacked her and who is 24 years old, was at the house where the child's mother visited, and seeing her there and knowing the little girl was alone, slipped quietly on ran to the house has been seriously indisposed as a result. The man is now in Holyrood jail and last evening a preliminary enquiry into the case was held by Magistrate O'Toole.

Fishery Conditions.

According to reports received all the ice have moved off the coast around Port aux Basques and Channel. The waters at both these places are teeming with codfish and daily handliners secure good hauls, the weather being such as to allow them to get on the grounds in their boats.

A Small Bill.

The seals of the S. S. Ranger were weighed off this morning. She landed 2,729 seals weighing 75 tons, 10 cwt., 0 qrs., 25 lbs. nett, valued at $5,341.92. The crew had 53 cents coming to them after paying for their crop. This is one of the smallest bills yet.

Another Arrest at Conception Harbor.

Yesterday afternoon Constable Lawlor, who was despatched to Holyrood on special duty, arrived in the city in charge of a man named Woodford, belonging to Conception Harbour, and who was arrested under warrant charged with assaulting and obstructing railway conductors. The prisoner was arraigned before Judge Knight to-day and was remanded for eight days.

Weddings in The White House.

There is afloat just now much speculation as to when the thirteenth wedding will take place in the White House. Here is the list up-to-date:

- 1811.—Lucy Payne Washington to Judge Todd.
- 1812.—Anna Todd to Representative John G. Jackson.
- 1820.—Marie Monroe to Lawrence Gouverneur.
- 1826.—Helen Jackson to John Adams.
- 1829-37.—Della Lewis to Alphonse Yver Pageot; Mary Elston to Lucien B. Poik; Emily Marlin to Lewis Randolph.
- 1842.—Elizabeth Tyler to William Waller.
- 1874.—"Nellie" Grant to Algernon Sartoris.
- 1878.—Emily Platt to General Russell Hastings.
- 1886.—Frances Folsom to President Cleveland.
- 1906.—Alice Roosevelt to Representative Nicholas Longworth.

How to Make Thick And Pretty Hair.

Soaps and artificial shampoos ruin many beautiful heads of hair. Few people know that a teaspoonful of good stallax dissolved in a cup of hot water has a natural affinity for the hair, and makes the most delightful shampoo imaginable. It leaves the hair brilliant, soft, and wavy, cleanses the scalp completely, and greatly stimulates the hair growth. The only drawback is that stallax seems rather expensive. It comes to the chemist only in sealed ¼ lb. packages, which retail at half a crown. However, as this is sufficient for fifteen or twenty shampoos, it really works out very cheaply in the end. For an actual hair-grower nothing equals pure boranum. It is quite harmless, and sets the hair-roots tingling with new life.

His Only Subject.

Mademoiselle van Vorst, in a recent book, tells a story of a dinner, at Chicago given by the ambitious wife of a millionaire tanner. The lady noticed, to her annoyance, that her husband did not speak a word to their smart guests, and when she got an opportunity she whispered angrily: "Why don't you talk?" "What's the good?" replied the tanner contemptuously. "There ain't one of 'em as knows a thing about leather!"

A Million Revenue Contribution.

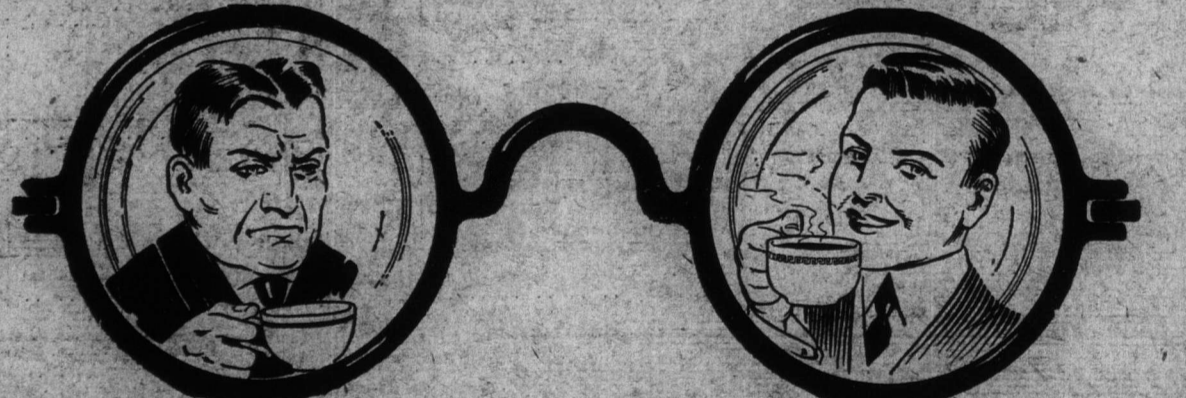

In moving the adoption of the report at the 30th annual meeting of the Off-License Association at the Connaught Rooms, Holborn, recently, the chairman, Mr. P. McKechnie, senior, of Bowen and McKechnie, pointed out that the revenue derived from the sale of intoxicants amounted last year to close upon £42,000,000, or nearly a million more than the expenditure on the Navy, while it was estimated that the number of persons to whom the trade afforded means of subsistence was close upon 600,000. The banquet of the Society was held after the meeting, under the presidency of Mr. Douglas Crossman, when a gathering of about 400 members of the trade assembled, amongst those present were Sir Edward Mann, Sir Thomas Dewar, Mr. Harry Lawson, M.P., Mr. P. McKechnie, Mr. J. Mackie, J.P., Mr. W. Harrison, J.P., Mr. W. Phesey, etc., etc. The toast of the House of Parliament, proposed by Sir Edward Mann, was responded to by Mr. H. Lawson, M.P.

One Thing After Another.

BY RUTH CAMERON.

When the babies get the chicken-pox and you break your very best, cloisonne vase, and your least beloved aunt writes that she is going to make you a visit, and your maid threatens to leave if you have any more company, and if someone spills a dish of soup on your best gown at the church supper, and to cap it all, that terrible neuralgia, which you dread more than anything on earth, pays you a visit you are sure to sigh deeply and say, "Well, it's one thing after another." But when your children miraculously escape the whooping cough despite the fact that they were repeatedly exposed to it, when you replace the disagreeable maid by one so perfect that you are almost afraid of your good fortune, when your aunt writes that she is sorry to break the news, but she will have to postpone her visit indefinitely, and your wealthy cousin brings you half a dozen pair of Paris gloves on her return from a trip abroad, when your new evening gown which you designed yourself turns out such a success that every one compliments you upon it, and the fashion leader of your coterie asks if it is a Paquin, when to cap it all, your husband gets a substantial raise and celebrates by giving you the set of mink furs you have so long hopelessly desired, do you then remember to say "It's one thing after another, meaning one pleasant thing after another?"

Probably not.

And yet, on the whole, don't the pleasant little things follow one another just about as persistently as the troubles? Isn't one pleasant thing after another, just about as much as one disagreeable thing?

I think it is only sometimes we seem to take the pleasant things for granted, while we resent the unpleasant happenings as something unfairly and unjustly foisted upon us. The confident belief which we all seem to have that happiness is the divine right of mankind and that anything else is an injustice is almost amusing.

"If angels have any sense of humor how we must divert them," Horace Walpole once said. I wonder whether they laugh or weep at the way in which we forget our blessings and recount misfortunes.

No life can be all happiness or all unhappiness. There are times in all lives when the misfortunes seem to preponderate, and other times when happiness seems to tip the beam. Of course we can't help regretting our misdeeds, but let's try to appreciate our blessings at least as much if not more, and whenever happiness does tip the beam let's not forget to say "Life is one good thing after another."

Ruth Cameron

WOMAN'S WISDOM.

The worried mother wakes up to hear her baby's heavy breathing—a little cough—perhaps the croup or whooping cough. She does not want to send for the doctor when perhaps the trouble does not amount to much. Finally she thinks of that medical book her father gave her, The Common Sense Medical Adviser, by R. V. Pierce, M. D. She says "Just the thing to find out what is the matter with the little dear." Two million households in this country own one—and it's to be had for only 31c, in stamps—1,000 pages in splendid cloth binding. A good family adviser in any emergency. It is for older folks. This is what many women write Dr. Pierce—in respect to his "Favorite Prescription," a remedy which has made thousands of melancholy and miserable women cheerful and happy, by curing the painful womanly diseases which undermine a woman's health and strength.

"My desire is to write a few lines to let you know what your valuable medicine has done for me," writes Mrs. MARGARET ZIMMER, of 223 Benton Street, Baltimore, Md. "Before the doctor came to our house I was a very sick woman. I wrote you for advice which was kindly given and which made me a different woman in a short time. After taking the first bottle of 'Favorite Prescription' I began improving so that I hardly knew I was in such a condition. I did my own housework—washing and ironing, cooking, sewing, and the worst of all nursed three children who had whooping cough. I hardly knew of the advent ten minutes before so easy was it. The baby is as fat as a butter-ball. Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is the best medicine for any woman to take when in this condition. I recommend it to all my friends."

Mrs. ZIMMER AND BABY.

They Want Hard Cash.

Editor Evening Telegram. Dear Sir,—Please grant me space in your esteemed paper to make a few remarks about the so-called Spur in Trinity. We were employed on it blasting and had no use whatever for a pick and shovel, but just the same, we were charged $1.80 by the man from Harbor Main. He is doing his employer no good and that we shall point out later on, but it appears that the Morris grab-balls are in for it next November. The laborer and fishermen have quite enough of the Morris Government. We were under the impression that the country was paying the railroad contractor in cash for building those Branch Railways, and what is it that Morris allows the contractor to pay the fishermen and laborers by cheques. We call that truck because a man has to go around the country sometimes before he can get them changed in the outshouses and then take half the amount of it in goods. We had to pay our little bills in Trinity and called on the Messrs. Ryan Brothers, who supplied the men on the Spur to have our cheques changed, but to our surprise they stopped April's account out of it and told us they could not wait until the 15th of May for their money. We, the laborers, must wait. They could not wait because they are rich and have a pull, but it would be well for the voters in this country to know where all this railway money is going. It's ten minutes' walk from Trinity to the railway station and the Government is wasting thousands of dollars on this so-called Spur, money that ought to be spent on public roads around the island, but this Spur is a gold mine for the Ryan Brothers. It would be well for the public to note if the Ryans' stores will be removed. They are on the right of way. Watch and see. If a poor fisherman had an old flake or an old house on it he would have to get it off or it would be taken down pretty quick. It's no wonder that East, West, North and South the people are asking for a change. We are done with the Morris Combine, and the sooner the laborers and fishermen wake up the better it will be for all concerned and get rid of Sir E. P. Morris and his party and also have Reids pay cash to their laborers and not cheques. The country is come to a pretty pass now when the Graballs and Morris masked men can do as they please with the poor Newfoundland under dogs, but November will put Morris and his patrons in the shade. His farm talk and branch railway cod will not work this time. Point Verde, Piacentis, April 22, Yours truly, FIVE MEN.

A Thoughtful Child.

The Marquis of Crewe, to whom the King and Queen will pay a visit this month, tells a funny story of a little boy who was naughty one day. He obstinately refused to say his lesson to his governess.

"But you know it quite well, I'm sure!" protested the distracted lady. "Yes," he admitted. "Well, why won't you say it?" she inquired.

"What's the use," he replied, reasonably enough. "If I say it, you'll only make me start and learn something else."

Those Useful Guards.

The ear-guards usually worn by Lieutenant Wodehouse, captain of the English Rugby team recall the story told in connection with the two young ladies who saw a footballer wearing them for the first time. "Whatever is he wearing those funny flaps over his ears for?" one of them wanted to know.

The other hadn't a ghost of an idea, but as she desired to convey the impression that she knew all about it, she replied at once: "Oh, that's so that he won't hear what the others say when he kicks them!"

WINARD'S LINIMENT CURE FOR DIPHTHERIA.

Convictions.

BY H. L. RANN.

A conviction is a belief with a long root which can be changed with as much ease as a safety razor blade. The older a man gets the harder it is for him to pull up a conviction by the roots and replace it with something that looks like orange relatins. There are several kinds of convictions, but far and away the most popular are political convictions. Some men get along nicely without any convictions whatever on any subject until they become a candidate for congress, when they are immediately attacked by a number of fervid convictions which will injure any local industry. Very few politicians use the same line of convictions in every campaign, as it keeps them too busy explaining their vote to the prying country editor.

Social convictions are those which prevent people from appearing in society what they feel like inside. This kind of a conviction will cause a man to squeeze into a dress suit fifteen years old and put up a losing fight against a seven-course dinner, without being able to pronounce a word on the menu, when he would rather be at home trying to trip up the game of solitaire. It also causes many a woman to invite to dinner friends of her husband who don't know a salad fork from any other farm implement, in order to push along a business deal.

Religious convictions are of two sorts—transient and permanent. The first of these is a comfortable variety which can be worn on Sunday with the utmost composure and replaced the rest of the week with sharp practice. Permanent religious convictions are those which do not have to be renewed at every revival meeting, but to show their durable qualities by doing a powerful sight of good without making any noise about it.

Every person should collect a few heatreated convictions and then stick to them, whether it hurts or not. The man with convictions which stick out and interfere with the law breaker will never be popular, but he will be able to dress in the morning without turning the mirror to the wall.

Loan Fails.

New York, April 14.—A cable to the Journal of Commerce from London says: The response of the public to the issue by the Province of Saskatchewan of $5,000,000 ten year four per cent bonds at 96 was very weak, and it is understood that the underwriters have been forced to take up 85 per cent of the issue.

Could Not Digest His Food

Suffered For Years From Indigestion Until Cured by Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills.

Mr. J. D. S. Barrett. If you suffer from chronic indigestion, forget about the stomach and pay attention to the condition of the liver and bowels. Ten to one that is where the real trouble lies.

The liver gets sluggish and fails to filter the bile from the blood, the bowels become constipated, and the whole digestive system is upset. As to cure, you cannot do better than to read of Mr. Barrett's experience with Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills. There is no treatment so prompt and thoroughly effective.

Mr. J. D. S. Barrett, Nelson, B. C., and formerly of Twillingate, Nfld., writes:—"For several years I was a great sufferer from indigestion. The least bit of food caused me considerable trouble and often I could scarcely eat a meal a day. The many remedies I tried proved futile until in 1906 I began the use of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills, and after using about eight boxes I was completely cured. Since that time I have not been troubled with indigestion, which I consider a great blessing."

Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills, one pill a dose, 25 cents a box, all dealers or Edmondson Bates & Co., Limited, Toronto.

Notes and Comments.

The Governor created a most favorable impression last night at the Carriers' dinner when he clearly defined his conception of the position and duties of a Governor in a Colony with responsible government.

The trend of his remarks was that a Governor, whose chief training had been in Crown Colonies, was not necessarily out of his element in one with responsible government, nor out of sympathy with it.

His Excellency contended that in the successful administration of public affairs, there was ground common to both forms of government. That the inspiration of both must arise from the same principle, although the means of carrying it out in practice were widely different, and that inspiration must be to rule as the people wishes. It was impossible to drive a people. It was often difficult to lead them, and the only way to lead was to go the way the people wished to go.

He pointed out that he had had the advantage of being one of the officials who were preparing the ground for responsible government in the Transvaal, although the Boers did not know it, while the war was actually on, and that even during hostilities they were consulting the enemy on questions of policy, administration and law. White men insisted on responsible government and the Crown Colony officials were those who had successfully inaugurated it in the annexed Boer States.

A Governor, he declared, was the servant of the Crown, the servant of the people over whose government he presided. He repudiated the notion that a Governor was but a channel of a communication between the home and the local authorities. He declared that no man worth his salt would accept such a position.

We noticed that His Excellency in setting forth his conception of his duty as Governor of a people with responsible government, closely followed the lines worked out so admirably last century in the old land by the Crown and Ministers responsible to Parliament, and so clearly defined by Queen Victoria in her ripe experience, and by Gladstone the old Parliamentary hand of the nineteenth century. The Governor must eschew partisanship and party politics, and preserve the honor and integrity of the government. He has a right to know what is doing and to exercise his ability and experience in the solution of problems of government, in the way of suggestions to the ministers who take responsibility for them. If ministers think there is anything in them and are prepared to take the responsibility for them, they can take them and work them out. If not, the Governor usually does his duty by leaving the responsibility of rejecting them on the ministry. His Excellency expressed the hope that when his time came to close his sojourn in Newfoundland, the people would feel he had upheld the dignity of the Crown, and the highest traditions of British Government.

Hr. Grace Notes.
 Hon. D. Morrison, Minister of Justice, has been in town the past few days.

The Supreme Court is now sitting here, Judge Johnson presiding. Very little business is before the court this term.

Mr. E. Simons' schooner Sturland, arrived from Trinity Bay yesterday morning with a load of firewood, etc.

Mrs. R. S. Nunn, and her little daughter Muriel returned by yesterday's train from St. John's where they had been for a few days visiting friends.

One woman at least in this town had dandelion for dinner on Sunday last, and still we hear people complaining of the backwardness of the spring.

Master Ernest Gill has secured the position of letter carrier here, left vacant by the resignation of Mr. A. Murray. Ernest is a smart lad and his friends congratulate him on having secured the position.

The Marriage of Mr. Thomas Perches of the South Side, to Miss Mary A. Noel of Hayes Street took place at Christ Church, at 4 o'clock last evening. The ceremony was performed by Rev. C. M. Stickings, and a large number of friends were present to witness the joining of this happy couple. We wish them much happiness.

A large number of our young people left by train yesterday for Boston and other large cities. Others we regret to say, will be compelled to go shortly, as there is no remunerative employment to be had for them here. They take with them the best wishes of their friends for their success.

Miss Gladys Oke is now at St. John's on a visit to friends, and former schoolmate.

The Agricultural Society held its regular monthly meeting on Monday night. The matter of the 1913 exhibition was to have been brought up, but owing to the absence of the President, who is on a visit to the United States, this matter was deferred till next meeting. Early for exhibition talk I fancy I hear some person say, but the Harbinger, Grace Agricultural Society believes in the old adage: Never put off till the Fall what you can do in the spring.

OTTAWA, To-day.
 The Commons, last night, on a vote of 195 to 73, adopted the closure. The vote was a straight party one, the Nationalists present voting with the Government. When the result was announced, the Conservatives cheered and the Liberals shouted "Shame."

OTTAWA, To-day.
 Sir Richard Scott, legislator, parliamentarian, administrator and member of the Canadian Senate during the lifetime of more Federal and Provincial governments than any other living Canadian statesman, is dead. Eighty-eight years of age, he is described as the Nestor of Canadian liberalism.

PITTSBURG, To-day.
 Firedamp is said to have been the cause of the explosion at the Cincinnati mine at Monaca. The known dead are all Americans. The explosion occurred between No. 1 and No. 2 right entries, three thousand feet from the mouth of the mine. An accurate estimate of the number of the dead is impossible. Of 179 men who entered the mine for work, 78 made their escape through what is known as the Mingo Entrance. At least 100 men are unaccounted for. They are in the mine and thought to be dead.

LONDON, To-day.
 Progress for the cotton trade of Lancashire by fostering a supply of cotton, independent of America, was the gist of Lord George's argument on introducing in the Commons yesterday a resolution, permitting the British Government to guarantee to the Sudan a loan of fifteen million dollars for development of cotton growing along the Nile. The Chancellor remarked, owing to difficulties with regard to the supplies of American cotton, arising from the market being cornered and thus causing a shortage here, despite abundant crops, made it necessary to foster the growth of cotton where it would be under British control. Egyptian cotton, he claimed, was better from the point of view of manufacturers, quality of goods obtained from the product, also from the point of view of workmen because it was cleaner and healthier to work than American cotton. The resolution was adopted without division.

Syrian Society's Charitable Work.

The quarterly meeting of the St. Joseph's Syrian Society was held at Bell Island, Sunday afternoon, with a large attendance and several new members were admitted. The quarterly accounts and reports submitted were of a highly gratifying nature and the worthy President, Mr. Michael Carbage, is to be congratulated on the good work the society is doing. The work of putting up a large building to be used as a night school will soon begin. Boys and young men must work in the mines and cannot attend day school but with the projected building in existence they can study and improve themselves mentally at night. The school will be undenominational and the best teachers obtainable will be secured for it. Having in mind the fact that many poor men come to the island spring and fall without money and on the chance of getting work, and that some of them have had to sleep in the open and without shelter, the society is equipping the upper flat of the hall, with 50 beds to meet this demand. If after 24 hours on the island such men do not secure labor the society will pay their fares by steamer back to the mainland, but in the meantime will try and secure work for them. The society and the Syrian people of the island subscribed $71.50 which was forwarded to His Grace Archbishop Howley for the Ecclesiastical Seminary Fund.

PITTSBURG, April 23. An explosion in Cincinnati Mine at Monongahela River Consolidated Coal and Coke Co., near here, this afternoon, set fire to the mine when 125 men were at work. Seventy-eight have escaped. It is expected that many have been killed by the explosion or are asphyxiated.

WARSAW, April 23. Prince Lubek was mysteriously murdered here yesterday. He drove to the railway station with a guest of Baron Bishing. Not returning, a search was made when he was found with several bullet wounds in his body and the empty carriage standing by.

BERLIN, April 23. The Budget Committee of the Reichstag has voted to appoint a Committee of Enquiry into the Armament scandals. The country is staggered by these scandals, which involve Krupp and the Deutsche Montions- and Waffenfabrik. It is the latter concern which is specifically accused of attempting to influence the Paris press to print false reports of French military preparations, in order to exercise moral pressure on public opinion in Germany.

LONDON, April 23. While the capture of Scutari is being in European capitals to have complicated the situation, created by the decision of the Great Powers to include that city in the future State of Albania, an opposite view is held in Balkan circles. There the opinion prevails that the Montenegrins, having accomplished the object they have aimed at since the beginning of the war, will find it more easy to accept the decision, and that later on the Powers will be more ready to grant such a rectification of her frontier as will be satisfactory.

LONDON, April 23. The long defence of Scutari was conducted by about 19,000 men, who also had to guard the outlying stronghold of Tarakosh and other connecting works surrounding the city. This they did so well that the Montenegrins, even when aided by the Serbians, could make no impression until a few weeks ago, when the Serbians brought up a large number of heavy siege guns, which soon reduced the fire of the Turkish artillery. The Montenegrins are said to have lost 3,000 killed, and the Turks 5,000. Nothing has been decided as to the continuance of the blockade of Montenegrin ports, as ordered, by the Powers.

MANCHESTER, April 23. Sentencing two defendants at the Manchester Assizes, to-day, Judge Sir John Eddowes said: "I would send you round the world in a sailing ship, if the law so permitted." The women were brought up at the Assizes on the charge of raising the Manchester Art Gallery on April 4th, and smashing the glass of thirteen famous pictures, in protest against the three years' sentence of Mrs. Pankhurst. The judge sentenced them to three months and one month respectively, with additional terms of six months and four months unless they found securities for good behaviour after leaving the jail.

LONDON, April 23. Henry Terrill, formerly a member of the Marconi Investigation Committee, has given notice of a question, asking whether, in view of the notation of shares in the American Marconi Company in London by which British shareholders had lost millions of pounds, the Government would amend the Companies' Act with the object of protecting British investors in the issue of foreign corporations.

In the Family.

Another of Lord Crewe's stories concerns his father, the late Lord Houghton.

In a second hand dealers' shop in Wardour Street one day Lord Houghton saw and admired a portrait of an admiral in full uniform. He offered five pounds for it, but the dealer refused to part with it less than £7 10s. As neither would give way, the picture remained where it was.

Not long afterwards, while visiting at a country house, Lord Houghton saw the picture hanging in the dining room. He went towards it with an exclamation of surprise.

"Hullo! what have you got here?" "Oh, that is a portrait that has just been bequeathed to us!" replied his host, a rather vulgar, boasting man. "It is the portrait of one of Nelson's admirals, an ancestor of ours!" "Was he, indeed?" commented Lord Houghton. "A month ago he was within two pounds ten of becoming one of mine!"

Drastic Weeding.

Another notable figure in Society has passed away with the death of Lady Dorothy Nevill.

One of the stories she used to delight in telling was of a certain lady not very well versed in the ways of Society, who wanted to give a smart ball. She desired to have everything "just right," and she appealed to Lady Dorothy to help her in the matter of invitations, and so on.

Lady Dorothy very obligingly gave her a number of hints, and the ball came off very successfully. Next day the hostess and Lady Dorothy talked it over, and her ladyship remarked: "It was very good for a first attempt, but next year you must weed your list a little!"—meaning that she must be more particular to whom she sent invitations.

"And she did," Lady Dorothy would add; "for next year she weeded out my daughter, and me!"

One Great Advantage.

Both Lord and Lady Crewe are keenly interested in politics. The story goes that while Parliament was discussing the Deceased Wife's Sister's Bill, by which a man might be permitted, on the death of his wife, to marry her sister, Lord Crewe wrote to his wife: "Have you heard the latest argument in favour of the Deceased Wife's Sister's Bill? It is that if a man marries two sisters he can have only one mother-in-law!"

A Large Funeral.

The funeral of the late D. A. Flynn took place at 2.30 p.m. yesterday from his late residence, Water Street West. There was a large attendance of citizens including Mayor Ellis, some of the Councillors and other public men. The remains were enclosed in a handsome oak casket. Mr. N. J. Murphy was undertaker and interment was at Bevidere Cemetery. At the R. C. Cathedral Rev. D. O'Callaghan gave the final absolution.

MAKING GOOD.—His many friends in the city will be glad to hear that Mr. M. F. Carroll, late Manager of the Rimmuller Whaling Company, is now practicing as a chartered accountant and insurance agent at Victoria, B.C., and is doing exceptionally well.

Found the Cause The Rest Was Easy

DODD'S KIDNEY PILLS QUICKLY CURED HIS KIDNEY DISEASE.

How Hudson Marchbank, After Suffering for Five Years, Found Quick Relief and Permanent Cure in the Greatest of Canadian Remedies.

MARCHBANK, King's County, N.B., April 23. (Special)—After suffering for five years from kidney disease, brought on by a strain, Hudson Marchbank, Esq., the well known farmer of this place, is again a strong, healthy man, and another grand cure for Dodd's Kidney Pills has been put on record. In an interview, Mr. Marchbank says:

"About five years ago I hurt my back from lifting, and it developed into kidney disease. My back pained me all the time, and I was very much troubled with headaches. My appetite was staid. I had a bitter taste in my mouth in the mornings; I perspired freely and my perspiration had a disagreeable odor.

"I used liniments and plasters, but they did not do me any good, and as there were other symptoms that my kidneys were affected, I decided to try Dodd's Kidney Pills. After using two boxes, my back was completely cured, and my kidneys have not troubled me since.

When Mr. Marchbank decided that his kidneys were the cause of his troubles, the rest was easy. Almost any of his neighbours could tell him that Dodd's Kidney Pills always cure diseased kidneys.

Rudyard Kipling made his debut as a dramatist yesterday, when his one-act play, "The Harbor Watch," produced at the Royalty Theatre, scored a great success. The Kiplingian humour pleased the audience, which laughed at almost every phrase. Critics hope that Kipling will contribute further plays, and promise him a big future.

SACRAMENTO, April 23. Governor Johnson has announced that the party leaders in the Californian Senate favor the Bill excluding from land ownership in the State, all aliens ineligible for citizenship, and it will probably be passed in spite of the objections from Washington. The Governor states that a law of this nature would not be a contravention of any existing Treaty, and is supported in this contention by the Senate leaders.

LONDON, April 23. The Prince of Wales will not attend Cambridge after leaving Oxford, as was expected, but will finish his university education at Magdalen College, and start early next year on an extended tour to Canada. He will receive a commission in the Grenadier Guards. Prince Albert will go to Cambridge next year, and will occupy the rooms used by King George when there.

CETTINJE, April 23.

It is officially announced here that the Montenegrin forces have entered Scutari, after a final desperate attack, lasting incessantly for almost twenty-four hours, during which they brought all their forces to overcome the heroic Turkish resistance. The Montenegrins forced their way into Scutari, which, since the middle of October last, has offered so stubborn a resistance. The assault which gave the Montenegrins possession of the city began on Monday night, when they took the offensive along the entire front, completely surprising the defenders by pushing right up to the Turkish positions where they engaged in close bayonet fighting against the garrison. The Ottoman soldiers made a number of counter attacks, and tried to drive the attacking force out. Finally they were compelled to fall back and leave their positions in the hands of the besiegers, who received constant reinforcements.

CETTINJE, April 23.

It was midnight last night, when the Montenegrins obtained a footing in the fortress. Detachments of the besiegers entered the city at 4 o'clock this morning. According to one report, Essad Pasha, the Turkish Commander in Chief, recognized the uselessness of further resistance after the outlying key to the position, Larokosh had fallen before the Montenegrin and Serbian guns. He is said to have then ordered the troops to cease firing. Another report says that the Montenegrin Commander has been negotiating since Monday with Essad Pasha for the surrender of Scutari. Still another account had it that the Turkish troops defended the city itself until the last. Although the Serbian troops did not participate in the final attack, their artillery was used by the Montenegrin gunners, and it is said, that to this fact their success was largely due. The act of capitulation was signed by the Turkish Commander shortly after the Montenegrin troops reached the centre of the city.

Red Cross Ships.

It is expected that the S. S. Stephano will sail from New York this evening for Halifax and this port, bringing a large cargo. The Stephano will make another return trip before her consort, the Florizel, which is now being renovated, is ready to resume the service.

Reported by Wireless.

A wireless message was received yesterday afternoon from the S. S. Tritonia. She was then 90 miles from Botwood in heavy ice though making good headway. It is likely she will reach her destination some time to-day. She has a load of coal for the A. N. D. Co. brought from Glasgow.

Furness Line.

The S. S. Tobasco arrived at Liverpool yesterday afternoon after a run of 8 days.

The S. S. Kanawha which sailed yesterday for Halifax is scheduled to leave London for here on May 28th.

The S. S. Almeriaha sailed for Liverpool to-day with 700 tons of cargo.

ADVENTURE'S MOVEMENTS.—The B. S. Adventure leaves Botwood some time to-day for here. Before sitting ready for her cruise in northern waters the ship will visit Sydney and Philadelphia for coal cargoes.

Nickel Crowded Again

The Nickel Theatre was crowded again last evening. The Nickel is St. John's most popular place of entertainment, and the crowd so there every night. A splendid bill was presented last night. There was the usual Gaumont Graphic, showing the principal events of the world. "The message of the Violin" is a story which appealed to all and was watched with the greatest interest. "The Old Actor" is also an attractive story. Then there were two extremely funny comedies which convulsed the audience. Manager Kieley has a big treat in store for next Monday. It is the celebrated Irish film entitled "Ara-Na-Pogue" which has been seen by millions of people. There are over 4,000 feet of it, and it is in three different parts. We feel certain it will prove as popular in St. John's as it has elsewhere.

Very Suspicious.

The suspicious habits of the new President of the United States recalls a story told in connection with the visit of Prince Henry of Prussia to America. When the Prince went to Washington the President invited him to a beer-fest, and finding at the last minute that the cellars of the White House lacked the necessary equipment, ten dozen beer-glasses were hurriedly ordered to be hired from a neighbouring hotel, kept by one Ernst Gerstenberg. The glasses arrived just before the guests, and when Prince Henry took the first observation through one of these glasses he saw engraved on the bottom this startling notice: "Stolen from Ernest Gerstenberg." Who shall blame the Prince if he looked rather suspiciously at the President. The explanation was quite simple, of course. So many glasses had been stolen from the hotel by customers that the good Gerstenberg had had the notice engraved on his property so that they might not be made so tempting.

Sunday School Banquet.

The George St. Methodist Sunday School, A.B.C. Class of which Chas. P. Ayre, Esq. is the Honorary President, founder and leader, held its banquet last night in the basement of the Church. About 250 participated and in the gathering were several ministers and prominent laymen. All spent a very pleasant evening and the different speakers extolled the excellent work being done by the Sunday School. The following was the Explosion of Lamp Causes Blaze.

At 10.40 last night, an alarm of fire was sent in bringing the Western and Central firemen to the residence of Mrs. A. Bruce, on Leitch Street. The fire was caused by the explosion of a lamp which Mrs. Bruce was taking from the kitchen to the pantry. The explosion fired the apartment and Mrs. Bruce might have been burned to death but for the prompt attendance of neighbors who came to her assistance. Mrs. Bruce was injured about the face and hands though the burns were not of a serious character and "first aid" was rendered by Constable O'Neil and Mr. Macklin, of the training ship Calypso. These men bandaged the burns which the woman received. The Western firemen were quickly on the scene and had a stream of water hurriedly on "the line." A good deal of damage was done the house. After the fire had been extinguished by the police that some vendor of oil, without knowing its nature, was selling gasoline for kerosene. Tuesday night a lamp exploded in the hall of the Bruce residence and the use of mats quenched the flames. It was found that gasoline was in the lamp instead of kerosene, upon examination and the police will thoroughly investigate the matter. If this fluid (gasoline) has been distributed to any great extent about the city, for kerosene oil, a serious menace exists.

Sale of Work.

Yesterday being the anniversary of St. George's Day, the Cathedral Mission Auxiliary held their Sale of Work and entertainment at the Presbyterian Hall. It proved a great success. The sale commenced at 4 p.m. and soon the stall-holders were kept busy. During the afternoon and night tea were served. Rev. A. G. Stamp made a brief address at 8 p.m. followed by a concert to which the following contributed: Messrs. Earle, Shummers, Cowan, Baird, Blackall; Miss Aik; recitations by Miss Hanlon and Mr. Watson; an instrumental quartet by Messrs. Peet, Dutoit, Garland and Tucker, and the farce "Who's Who" in which Misses Langmead, Barnes, Hutchings and Oakley took part. Miss Barnes acted as accompanist. The proceeds will be devoted to the Home Mission Fund.

Telegram ads. Give Satisfaction

Cause of Strike.

Editor Evening Telegram.
Dear Sir.—The following article appeared in the Evening Herald of April 23rd.—"This morning twenty male employees of the Parker Monroe's Factory went on strike because a request to have the Union Stamp placed on the boots was not acceded to."
As this statement is not in keeping with the facts we feel that the real situation should be given to the public through your columns.
There are over thirty men and several girls on strike. At no time has a demand been made upon Messrs. Parker & Monroe to use the Union Stamp on their product.
For some time the employees have felt they were not receiving sufficient wages to properly maintain themselves. They recently submitted a bill of wages to the firm which provided for some increases and requested that the firm consider same. This request was completely ignored by the firm. In addition to this the employees felt that recent discharges of their fellow-workers was due to their holding membership in the Union.
Yours truly,
JAMES CAUL,
Sec. Boot & Shoe Workers Union,
St. John's, Nfld., April 23, 1913.

His Lordship Disillusioned.

One of Lord Wolsley's favourite reminiscences goes back to the time of his service in Canada and concerns his meeting with a great Red Indian chieftain. He rode forward to meet the chief, whom his fancy had pictured as a man of dignified and impressive demeanour, and arrayed in feathers and war-paint.
Great was his disappointment to find instead that the chief was a very unromantic person clad in a discarded dress-coat and a pair of very dirty flannel trousers.
At the end of the interview the guide who accompanied Wolsley hinted that the noble Redskin would most probably not be averse to drinking the distinguished white man's health. Thereupon Wolsley presented the chief with half-a-dollar, rather fearing that he might regard it as an insult and have him scalped. Any fears he had in this direction were very promptly dispelled, however, for the chief simply looked at the coin on the palm of his hand, and inquired: "Couldn't you make it a dollar, sir?"

This Season's Bride.

Was there ever a maid who did not admire a wedding dress of white satin gleaming through a misty veil of lace or tulle? Even a plain girl shines like a star in her bridal clothes. She is in the light of the world. It is, which remains in the mind and heart of her groom through all the years.
The brides of this particular year are fortunate. Gowns were never more graceful in outline and never required less material to make them. Besides, the fabrics that are lovely and inexpensive are within reach of the most modest allowance for the trousseau.
Skirts are narrow, not more than two yards wide and often less than that. Therefore, only twice the length of the entire figure is needed in materials a yard wide, or three times the length in materials twenty-seven inches wide.
It is a season of filmy laces, and they are remarkably cheap and snowy white. They form the bodies either wholly or in part of nearly every dress. They are let in in plaatings in the split skirts and form the scanty train of the present.
Besides the satin and silk fabrics which custom sanctions as most fit to clothe the bride, there are wonderful weaves in cotton which manufacturers have astonished and delighted those who wear much white this summer. These lovely cotton crepes, volles, mulls and batistes, not to mention the endless showing of frill embroideries, bring most beautiful gowns to be simply a matter of good planning and making.
Crepes and volles, made up with a little lace and hand-embroidered in large flowers, with nearly all sewing done by hand, cannot be excelled in either elegance or beauty.
Slips of thin silk are worn under them or pretty petticoats of soft, silky cotton fabrics.
Such gowns are more useful to the bride than a satin gown. They are appropriate for nearly every occasion which requires elegant gowning. They are without trains and, worn with dressy mid-summer hats and gay parasols, serve for nearly all the demands of social life. And summer time does not claim them solely for its own. Handsome white gowns are worn the year round for luncheons, card parties, theatre parties or anywhere, where silk might be worn—for May.

North Sydney, April 19—At last night's meeting of the council part of the plans of the Western Union Telegraph company for the coming season were announced by the mayor. It has been rumored for some time that the staff now employed at Canada was to be removed to North Sydney and the mayor stated this to be a fact. The move will bring fifty operators, some with their families, to town, and the local force will thus be increased to at least 125 men.
The new cable station to be erected on Court Street will be commenced shortly and will be one of the finest stations on the continent. It has not yet been decided whether the material will be brick or concrete.

Bonspiel Dinner.

As years go by the Curiers' dinner becomes more popular, and last night's dinner was easily the most successful of recent years. The British Hall was appropriately decorated and brilliantly illuminated and the display of choice bloom, imported by the Hon. President, was the best seen here for many a long day and appropriately in honor of St. George's Day, the red rose of England, was largely in evidence. The chief guest of the evening was His Excellency the Governor, who in responding to the toast of the Governor, told how the Crown Colony officials in the Transvaal, among whom he was one, were preparing the way for representative and responsible government there, even while hostilities between British and Boer continued. Chief among the decorations was a pretty design in colored lights of the rose, thistle, the shamrocks and the curling implements at the corners of a diamond with the initials of the St. John's Curling Association in the centre.
