CHAPTER XVIII.

Suddenly the loud triumphant notes of Oswald's music ceased, and his fingers wandered into a soft quaint melody, and, after a minute's prelude, his rich tenor voice rose softly and clearly, singing these words—

"Linger, O gentle time! Linger, O radiant grace of bright to-day!

Let not the hour's chime Call thee away. But linger near me still with fond delay.

"Linger—for thou art mine. What dearer treasures can the Future hold?

What sweeter flowers than thine Can she unfold— What secrets tell my heart thou hast not told?

"Linger: I ask no more; Thou art enough forever—thou alone What future can restore. When thou art flown, All that I hold from thee and call my own?"

"That is a dreary little song," Guy said softly. "The future will not take away our joys, my darling, and it may hold 'dearer treasures' for us."

"It would be difficult for it to do that dear," Shirley softly returned. "Oh, Guy, I can imagine no happiness greater than ours now!"

"I can," said Major Stuart. "I can imagine you and I alone together, sweet; and that seems a much pleasanter state of things to me even than the present. Do you think you will regret your liberty, Shirley?"

"I do not think that I have had much liberty to boast of since I came to Scotland," she answered, smiling; "and before that why— Oh, Guy," she added, breaking off suddenly, "it makes me happier now to think that my dear mother saw you, and that almost her last words to me were a message of thanks to you for your kindness to her!"

"I am glad of that," he said gently. "I think if she knows how deeply I love you, my dearest, she will be glad that you are to be mine. What is it bedtime already?"

"It is getting late," answered Lady Fairholme, smiling, "and I can't have pale cheeks to-morrow; so, as we have no rouge in the house, I am going to send all these young people to bed."

"Good-night, my own, until to-morrow," Guy said, with a long close pressure of the little hand and a long last look at the lovely face—a last look indeed, for he never saw it again as it was then. And Shirley said nothing, but only lifted her eyes to his, and then turned away.

As she said good-night, to her uncle, he gave her the letter which he took from his pocket.

"I am obeying your mother's wish in giving you this, Shirley," he said gently. "I should have kept its contents a secret from you still, but she wished it."

"Thank you, Uncle Gilbert," the girl answered, a little surprised; "and thank you with all my heart for all your goodness to me," she added, so earnestly that the tears rose in the beautiful eyes; and Sir Gilbert kissed her kindly on the forehead, and bade Heaven bless her in a tone of gentleness very unusual to him.

"Now, girls, don't get chatting and sitting up late," Lady Fairholme said smiling as she took her bedroom candlestick and went her way; and the girls laughed and promised, but went nevertheless into Shirley's room to see the wedding dress, which had been unpacked, and which lay in all its bridal finery upon the couch in her room.

When they had admired it to their hearts' content, and stroked with gentle white fingers the glossy satin and filmy lace, Alice and Ruby went away, leaving Shirley in solitude at last.

There was a bright fire burning in the grate, and Shirley stood looking at it with dreamy thoughtful eyes for a moment; then she turned away and began hastily to undress. As she removed the pretty blue dress, the letter fell from its folds, and she stooped quickly and lifted it, feeling guilty and remorseful because of the little thought she had given her mother's communication—her dead mother!

She threw the blue dress carelessly aside and hastily slipped on a dressing-gown; then seating herself before the fire, she took out the letter. For a few minutes she examined it gently, touching it with tender reverent fingers and looking at it with eyes into which great tears rose as she gazed. She knew the handwriting well—the pretty graceful handwriting which had had been so familiar to her. How clearly it brought her mother back to her now—the dear gentle mother who had never given her a cross word, who had always sympathized so perfectly with her joy and with her girlish sorrows! Ah! how joyful she was to-night to think that her little daughter was so happy! How proud and fond of Guy she would have been, and what a devoted son he would have been to her! Ah! darling mother!

Looking at the letter, with its tender superscription, "To my dear little Daughter," brought back clearly that last sad journey and the anxiety she had shown to tell Shirley something. What was it? Ah, she would know now! Those broken piteous sentences would soon be explained. Tenderly, with fingers which were a little unsteady in their eagerness, Shirley broke the seal of the letter, and drawing the lamp nearer to her, spread out the closely written sheets.

CHAPTER XIX.

"When this letter is given to you, my child, you will be about to enter upon a new, untried life; and that you may not forget your mother then I have written these lines—written them with such loving thought of you, my daughter, and with such earnest prayer for your happiness and welfare, that, even if they sadden you a little, you must not mind now."

"What I am going to write here for your perusal is the story of my life—a story which more than once lately, dear, as I feel my health failing, I have been tempted to tell you. Not that I want to sadden you by telling you that my life is drawing to a close—my poor children, if I could save you that pain, I would gladly live, even though, life is such a dreary thing now—but I think you ought to know my story, Shirley.

When I am gone to meet your father once more—Heaven is so merciful that I dare look forward to that—you will live in Scotland, the country I once loved so dearly, but which I shall never see again, for it has been very cruel to me, my child. Perhaps, after all, it will be well that you should not know this story of mine until you are on the eve of marriage. I think, Shirley, and I hope with all sincerity and fervor, that you will never marry a man you do not love. Surely I have given you such notions of truth and honor as will preserve you from the sin and the shame of a loveless marriage! If you do not love the man you are going to marry, my daughter, it will not be too late to retract even at the last moment; it will be better to suffer any blame than to go a step further on a road which must inevitably lead to sorrow and misery, and perhaps to sin and dishonor.

"But, if, as I hope, my child, you love the man to whom you are betrothed it will help you to be gentle and lenient and merciful to the poor erring mother who has loved you with a love which ought, with all her faults, to induce you to think of her kindly. I should have liked to tell you the story, to have seen the pitying love on your face; but, if that pity and that love did not show themselves there, how could I have borne it? So perhaps it is better as it is.

"You know the earlier part of my history, Shirley; you know that I was an only and petted daughter and a spoilt and indulged sister. I lost my father and mother while I was still a child, but your uncle, who was some years my senior, filled the place of those dear parents with such a tenderness that I missed them but little. He indulged me in every whim, he gave me my own way in everything; and I grew up proud, willful, and heedless of everything but my own pleasure.

"I was beautiful—you, too, my child, possess that fatal dowry of beauty; but I trust it will bring you only happiness. It is a great and precious gift if used aright, and gives the possessor a great power and influence for good or evil. I used my power for evil, Shirley; I employed my beauty as a snare to win hearts and toy with them as long as it pleased my fancy; then I cast them aside, careless whether the wounds I inflicted were serious or not. Flirtation is not looked upon as a sin in the time in which we live, Shirley; but I pray Heaven, my child, that you will be kept from such unwomanly shame.

"Among my admirers was a gentleman some ten or fifteen years my senior, whose suit my brother favored strongly. Sir Henry Proctor was a man of large property and distinguished family; he was, moreover, very handsome and agreeable; and he loved me—yes, he loved me. But there are so many different kinds of love, my darling, that it is difficult to know which is the true kind. This was true, so far as it went; but he referred his happiness to mine, and true love does not do that.

Radway's Ready Relief should be well rubbed over a large surface, until a glow is produced, with a burning sensation. Few cases require the Radway Pills. Some do, when a dose on retiring would be taken.

Jacob Able of R. P. D. No. 1, Milltown, N. J., writes: "For the last three years I have had kidney disease and backache, and I have had it so bad that for eight days and nights I could not get my clothes on. I thought I would try Radway's Ready Relief. I gave my back and hips and sides a good rubbing, and in a short time the pain was all gone. No one in this world knows but God and myself the misery I was in till I used Radway's Ready Relief."

Living Up to One's Standard.

By RUTH CAMERON.

To judge one's fellow beings under any condition is presumptuous, out to judge them merely by what they are or have done, without attempting to take into account their environment and especially the standards of their class, is the most irrational and unjust of proceedings.

I once happened to be with a girl who had been brought up in the suburbs of a big city when she paid her first visit to a very small, very primitive country town.

She had never been in such a place before, and when she found how limited was the outlook, how scanty the education and how crude some of the notions of many of these people, she was filled with a vast sense of superiority which she scarcely tried to hide from them. Needless to say, she was not very popular. But that is another story. What particularly interested me was the fact that she FELT that superiority. The opportunities for culture and education in that little village were about as limited as you can imagine. There were no schools beyond the primary. The library had been only recently established and was very small, and church services were only conducted once in two or three weeks. The simple folks with whom she stayed were the product of such conditions. They were neither above nor below the standard of education in that community—just about on a par.

Now, of course, their visitor was much better educated than they. But think of the opportunities she had had! Think of her environment and the high standard of education that prevailed in the city where she lived. She was not one whit above that standard of education and she hadn't taken advantage of half her cultural and educational opportunities. Why, then, should she think herself superior to people who had done as well with their opportunities as she with hers, and who stood full as high by the standard of their community as she by the standard of hers.

Again, the girl who has been reared in a class where the standards of feminine morality are high, usually considers that she has a right to look down upon the girls of the street. And yet, many times the girl in the sheltered home has not lived up to her standard any better than the girl of the streets. She has never been guilty of actual immorality because that meant too great a drop from her standard, but she has gone just as far as she dared with her masculine admirers. What right has she, then, to consider herself superior to the other girl who has lived no farther below the standard of her society than the girl in the sheltered home has lived below that standard to which she was accustomed? None whatever.

Before you venture to condemn anybody or to think yourself superior to him in any way, ask yourself how you measure up to the standard of your class or community. Unless you are far above it, you have no right to look down upon him, and if you are far above it you will probably be too big to want to.

Ruth Cameron

Fashions and Fads.

Tulle blouses are much worn. The panner is being revived. Yellow in any shade is fashionable. New sport coats have broad, soft collars.

Colored fans have been restored to favor. The surplice blouse is very much in favor.

Shirring promises to be a popular trimming. Very popular are the various tones of red.

Little tots are wearing coats of colored velvet. Soft white blouses are worn with the tailored suit.

For hair ornaments, peacock feathers are worn. The minaret hat is the newest edition in millinery.

In neckwear the turndown collar is here to stay. Simplicity is the keynote of the smartest afternoon gowns.

Waffle checks are one of the newest weaves in cloaking materials. Fashion indicates the return of ruffles for spring and summer.

The gown that is shirtwaisted in the back has gone out of fashion. In evening gowns the neck line is cut square, pointed or heart shaped.

The rough coat suit with a marmalade hat has passed out of existence. Evening wraps are fastened with huge clasps of barbaric workmanship.

It is rumored that buttoned shoes will be most worn the coming spring. The darker the suit the brighter should be the color used for the blouse.

There is a disposition among the furriers to bring the small muffs into fashion. Some of the most fashionable women are again wearing large picture hats.

The fan should match the evening toilettee or emphasize a distinctive color note. Hats with flower trimming and edges of fur are worn by many smart women.

Hats with flower trimming and edges of fur are worn by many smart women. Flowered and printed designs on white mousseline de soie make very pretty blouses.

Popular and elegant are the hats of dark fur with narrow, close brims in urban shapes.

It is said that the jackets of the new spring suits will reach barely to the hips.

Shoes of patent leather and kid are the most favoured, and heels have a tendency to be very low.

JANE ADDAMS.

By GEORGE FITCH.

Author of "At Good Old Slawsh."

America has contained a great many famous women, of whom probably, the Goddess of Liberty and Jane Addams of Chicago, are the most popular at present.

Many an American girl has begun her career with only a plain gown and a Sunday dress and had landed in the White House later on. Thus far, this has been due to their extraordinary sagacity in picking husbands. The first duty of the American woman, who desires to spend four years in the White House bossing the cook, is to marry a man who is a good, honest vote-getter. Miss Addams has ignored this duty for many years; yet she is nearer the White House than many a woman who has gone valiantly forth and married the raw material of a cabinet minister. For, if woman continues to march briskly through custom and precedent as she has been doing of late, some American woman may yet be elected president—and in this case those patriots who desire to represent this nation in foreign diplomatic fields had better become original Addams men.

Miss Addams is not the best known American woman, but could probably get twice as many votes for president as any other. She is a quiet, demure lady who runs a citizens' repair shop in Chicago. Many years ago she went over back of the Chicago river, where the ten commandments were unknown and the statutes of Illinois were only suspected. She has lived there ever since, getting a sort of pattern of successful and sanitary citizenship. The neighbourhood has followed the pattern and now sends out teachers to wrestle with the piousocratic sections of darkest Chicago in an effort to bring them up to its standard.

Miss Addams built Hull House, where human beings are renovated at a very small expense. In those days, locomotives, ships and corn planters were designed with great skill, but she citizen was fashioned by father time without any hindrance from any one. Since then, however, it has become the fashion to supervise the designing of citizens with great care, and as Miss Addams was a pioneer in the business, she spends much of her time lecturing, and Hull House is one of Chicago's most popular hotels.

Miss Addams is not as loud as some of our leading prima donnas or several whoops, but some of her quietest remarks have gone around the world several times. She is one of the most successful Americans—but is not rated in Bradstreets.

"What a small bottle of Stafford's Essence of Ginger Wine can do!" From the 10th of this month up to the 24th we sold 1,000 bottles of Essence of Ginger Wine.

This is an average of 66 bottles a day. One 10 cent bottle of this Essence of Ginger Wine makes 3 quarts. Now "Just a minute," please.

3 quarts makes 126 ounces. A wineglassful holds 2 ounces. Therefore you obtain 63 glasses of Ginger Wine from one little 10 cent bottle of the Essence, so that by our having sold 1,000 bottles we have provided 63,000 drinks for persons, supposing that only one drink had been taken by every person. This is utterly "impossible" we mean (one drink for each person) because once a person having taken one drink nothing in this world would prevent them from having 5 or 6 more.

The reason is simple. "They know a good drink when they taste it!" The sales for Stafford's Essence of Ginger Wine has exceeded all other previous years, just the same as— "Stafford's Linctus."

Stafford's Prescription "A" and Stafford's "Phorone Cough Cure" have done—dec 26, 11.

Obituary.

MRS. W. L. LONDRIGAN.

There passed peacefully away at her home, St. Bride's, on Christmas morning, Kate, beloved wife of William Londrigan. Although in failing health for some time her death came as a sad surprise to her many friends. Her funeral was largely attended at the Church of the Sacred Heart, where the ceremonies for the dead were performed by the Rev. Father O'Callaghan from whose kindly hands she received the last Sacraments. Besides her husband she leaves a father, mother, sister and five brothers and many sorrowing friends to mourn the loss of a kind and faithful heart. In connection with our departed friend it is consoling to know that her short life was well spent. We know that she will not forget those left to mourn, and around the spot where rests all that is mortal of her whom we loved, so well our sweetest thoughts and cherished memories will often linger. Her family circle is sad; her chair is vacant; her friendly voice will be heard no more.

St. Bride's, Dec. 29th, 1913.

CONSTABLE E. MARTIN.

Editor Evening Telegram. Dear Sir—It is with sadness of heart we record the death of Const. E. Martin who passed peacefully away to the Great Beyond on Christmas morning. For the last two years this dear young man was held victim of that dread disease consumption, and though his sufferings were great yet he bore it patiently and lived his last days submissive to his Divine Father's will; his end was a glorious one. Just before his last breath ebbed out, a beautiful smile came over his face and he was heard to say, "I shall soon be at home over there," and thus did the angels bear his spirit away to the Great Beyond. His funeral took place on Saturday and was largely attended. The S. U. F. paraded before the hearse aided by the band which rendered some very appropriate music, and thus we laid to rest all that was mortal of this dear young man. His father and brothers wish to thank the many friends who sent along wreaths, also those of his friends from Burgeo who sent messages of condolence to them; also to Inspector General Sullivan for his many kindnesses shown. Praying that God's blessing may rest on his aged father and brothers. We bid him adieu till the last trump shall sound and bid the Nations Vse. Grate's Cove, Dec. 29, 1913.

Bishopric Wall Board.

BEATS LATHS AND PLASTER.

MADE TO LAST.

Bishopric Wall Board is made by imbedding kiln-dried dressed lath in hot Asphalt-Mastic, under a pressure of 500 lbs. to the square inch. The other side of the Asphalt-Mastic is surfaced with smooth, heavy sized cardboard.

COSTS LESS.

Bishopric Wall Board saves 75 per cent. of the labor cost and about a month's time in finishing walls and ceilings. With it there is none of that expense for repairs and re-decorating that you incur so often when plaster cracks or falls.

DRYER AND WARMER.

The layer of Asphalt-Mastic in which the laths are embedded is absolutely air-tight and damp-proof. It blocks all drafts, and keeps the inside of the house dry, warm and cosy.

RAT AND VERMIN PROOF.

These pests find it impossible to gnaw or bore through the tough, gummy Asphalt-Mastic.

EASILY DECORATED.

Bishopric Wall Board is surfaced with heavy sized cardboard, which forms the ideal surface for Wall Paper or Burlap. Artistic panneling adds to its attractiveness.

THE ONLY WALL BOARD MADE WITH LATH

Laths are positively necessary to back up wall board and Bishopric is the only Wall Board that has them. They make it rigid and substantial and prevent it from working, cracking or pulling away at the joints.

INVESTIGATE.

Whether you intend to build or remodel, don't overlook this opportunity to get a better house—at lower cost—in less time—by using Bishopric Wall Board. Ask your dealer for information. Write or phone for sample and descriptive circulars to SATURDAY, January 3, 1914.

Early Opening.

The Legislature is opening much earlier than usual this year. Usually the Legislature is not opened until the end of February or beginning of March. But of course, there are exceptions, and the year 1908 was one of them. In that year the Assembly was opened and the Governor's Speech delivered on the ninth of January. When the session is called early, there is usually some good reason for it. We wonder what the reason is on this occasion. It has been suggested that it is due to internal difficulties in the Government which it is hoped to clear away by the passage of an addition to the Pension Bill as a preliminary step. It is however difficult to believe that the Government will meet the Legislature on the 15th instant, with the two defeated Ministers occupying the anomalous position they have occupied since their defeat at the polls. It will be remembered that His Excellency the Governor asked some weeks ago that he intended to ask the Prime Minister to come to a decision as to his intentions in the matter. So far nothing has been announced as to that decision. In the case of Mr. Bennett, the Governor stated that on the appointment of the latter he had his assurance that he intended to go to election six weeks later at the General Election. Two months has now elapsed since the defeat of Messrs. Blandford and Morison, and so far as the public is aware, there is nothing doing yet.

The Labrador Boundary.

The opening paragraph of the Governor's Speech in 1908 set forth the reason for the early opening of that occasion in these words: "I have convened the Legislature at an earlier period than usual, as two very important questions affecting the Colony will presently necessitate the undivided attention of my Ministers, viz.: The Labrador Boundary Question, which it is agreed shall be referred to the Judicial Committee of the Privy Council, and the American Fishery Question, which is to come before the Hague Tribunal." The latter question has in the main been disposed of to the general satisfaction of all the countries concerned, but the Labrador Boundary Question is still before the Privy Council. After five years, even in spite of the Laws delays, which pass the understanding of laymen, the time is ripe for hearing what progress has been made in the case.

Export of Pulpwood.

Some of those interested in timber limits on the Labrador are anxious to have a change in the law prohibiting the export of pulpwood. They contend the law should be so changed that pulpwood on the Labrador may be exported under an export tax. Some years ago there was a movement on foot of a similar nature, but after we had drawn attention to it and voiced an objection to it, Sir Edward Morris gave it the cold shoulder. The protagonists of the movement argue that it would afford at least one means of trying to recoup the shortage of the revenue. On the other hand it is contended that the Labrador should be kept as a reserve for pulp mills in Newfoundland, and that the best and safest policy is to keep the raw material and utilize it to give occupation in our own pulp and paper mills.

On page 5 of this issue we have much pleasure in presenting, to our readers, our annual statement of circulation for 1913. Our advertising patrons will be pleased to note the large increase in the number of subscribers over the preceding year, which goes to prove the growing popularity of The Evening Telegram with the reading public and, therefore, places it in a class by itself as an advertising medium. The comparative statement which we append, will show the increase:

Total number for Year.	Daily Average.

At the Crescent.

To-day the big show of last night will be repeated at the afternoon and evening sessions. The five great pictures made up the best bill yet selected by the management. The "Savage Girl's Devotion," which was a splendid portrayal of the undying devotion of an uncivilized girl was a winner. David Parks the baritone in his rendition of the International Rag was a hit. On Monday, the 4th week, another big success is assured. Read the advertisement in this paper for particulars. Sessions afternoon, 5c; Evening, 10 cts.

Best Market for Butter

Curiously enough, Newfoundland with its scant population, was Canada's best market for butter during October last. Newfoundland took 60,370 pounds, valued at $15,293. Great Britain took only 225 pounds, valued at $65, and the United States 11,000 pounds, valued at $4,000. The total exports of butter during that month were 112,000 pounds, valued at $30,000, so that the little colony of Newfoundland took over half our exports during that month.—Ex.

Obituary.

On Dec. 22nd, Mr. George Furey passed away at his home at St. Joseph's, Salmonier, after a lingering illness. Deceased was only forty-eight years of age, and was remarkable always for his strength and ability to work. We cannot say his death was unexpected, as for some months he had suffered from heart trouble. Only one year previously he had witnessed the death of his loving wife; they had no children, but were always remarkable for their attachment to one another. They were both beloved by the people of Salmonier, Mr. Furey, particularly, for his willingness to offer a helping hand to those in need. He received all the care and attention that a devoted brother could bestow on him in his time of sickness. He was visited almost daily by our good Pastor, who consoled him in his last moments as only priests can.—R.I.P.—Con.

Wrestling Challenge. Here and There.

Editor Evening Telegram.
Dear Sir,—As I noticed a challenge appeared in your paper a few days ago, from Mr. Hammond to Mr. Andy O'Keefe, to meet in a wrestling match, I believe I am voicing the sentiments of many of the young sporting fraternity in hoping for a reply from Andy. As an admirer of our old time Bantam champion, I would like one of the many who would like to see him once again on the mat. As the public are aware, the championship has since changed hands, and we all should like to see Andy once again try to regain the laurels and accept the challenge from Mr. Hammond.
Yours truly,

American Intervention in Mexico.

Special to Evening Telegram.
LONDON, To-day.
The Spectator, in an article on the Mexican situation, declares that the pressure of public opinion in all the world soon will force the United States to intervene in Mexico. They declare that President Wilson made a mistake in not assuming that Present Huerta would be the strongest, with which to bring about peace in Mexico and supporting him accordingly, but adds that it understands perfectly the reason why Wilson did not adopt such a cynical course. Instead, the article says, "He did what with all respect we must say was the worst thing he could have done. He intervened and pretended not to be intervening. He deprecated bloodshed and anarchy, and yet he would neither stop it himself, nor let anyone else do so. The only way left for the United States is for themselves to restore order in Mexico. The Spectator declares that joint action by either power with the United States in Mexico is possible and that the United States will have to act alone or sacrifice Monroe Doctrine, which it is not likely to do. The article says it would prove rather an easy conquest for the States, but that the conquest would be followed by a demand for National independence, and accompanied by rebellion. The rebellion also would be suppressed, but it would be followed by annexation to the States of the Northern States of Mexico and the independence of the remainder of the country under a Treaty, by which the Washington Government would control Mexico's foreign relations. The Spectator thinks even this condition would not last long and predicts that within fifty years one nation of two hundred million English speaking people will extend from the Canadian border to the Panama Canal, with the exception of British Honduras. In conclusion the article says, "In spite of foolish American talk about English jealousy and so forth, talk so idiotic that one cannot really be expected to deny it, the bulk of public opinion here will be heartily with the United States in their work of restoring order in Mexico. If they do their job well on the spot and if it is entrusted to Major General Leonard Wood it certainly will be done well and wisely, and in a truly liberal spirit. The English people will not merely be friendly in the diplomatic sense, but sincerely sympathetic. They will be proud of America's successful shouldering of this huge piece of the White man's burden."

Tidings of Part of Steffansons Expedition.

Special to The Evening Telegram.
OTTAWA, To-day.
Capt. Lane of the Polar Bear, the last man out of the Arctic with any news of the Steffanson expedition writes from Seattle to the Department of Naval Service here and conveys certain good tidings of at least one section of the party. Capt. Lane tells his vessel frozen in winter quarters at a point between the ships of the southern section of Steffanson expedition and Herschel's Land and came ashore working his way down to Seattle. The Polar Bear carried altogether a party of sportsmen and scientists, who will winter in the north. Capt. Lane states in his letter that he met Anderson, who is in charge of the Southern section of the expedition, and had spent four days in his camp prior to leaving for Seattle. He declared that reports concerning the damage done to the Alaska and Mary Sachs were untrue, and stated that the vessels were undamaged and the party well and in good spirits. Capt. Lane had no news of the Northern section which is under the command of Steffanson and, which, according to reports, has met with misfortune.

Withdrawing From Directorates.

Special to Evening Telegram.
NEW YORK, To-day.
The withdrawal of J. P. Morgan & Co., from more than a score of general corporations, and the statement shortly afterwards made by George F. Baker, an almost equally dominant figure in American finance, that he soon would take similar action, gave Wall Street generally a thrill, which almost brought trading on the Stock Exchange to a halt. Mr. Morgan made public the statement, announcing the withdrawal of five members of J. P. Morgan & Co. from the directorship in twenty-seven corporations and an intention to withdraw from more. Mr. Baker announced his decision to withdraw. In response to a question whether he intended to follow the example of the Morgan firm, "I intend to get out as Director of all the companies that will let me," he said, "as a matter of fact, I have been doing so for the last two years."

The "Tyrolen Queen"

The production of the "Tyrolen Queen" under the direction of Mrs. W. Davidson, at the Casino Theatre last night was greeted by a large and appreciative audience. The Tyrolen Queen is a charming little fairy tale consisting of four scenes.
The first scene opens with a band of Tyrolens attending to their flocks on the mountain side. Just as they have chosen Rosalie, the favourite of the band, to be their queen, a maelstrom informs them that their flocks have gone astray and a search must be made. Rosalie offers to lead the way, but is persuaded to remain while the others hasten in search of them. While she is alone she begins to wish for a change of life, and is confronted by a Gypsy woman, who points to a vision of her future for Rosalie, whom she eventually persuades to follow her.
On the return of the maidens with their flocks they are much disappointed to find their queen gone and immediately go in search of her, but in vain as they only find her crown, which they keep in sad and affectionate remembrance.
Rosalie soon tires of the Gypsy life, and makes her escape at the first opportunity. She is lost in the forest and after much wandering is found asleep by a band of fairies, who upon waking her tell her she is in Fairyland, and offer her every inducement to remain with them, but she has grown tired of wandering and is anxious to return to her home. The fairies bring her safely home, and while lulling her to sleep hear the Tyrolens approaching, mourning their queen. They withdraw and on arrival of the Tyrolens they re-enter and on being questioned as to Rosalie's whereabouts, the Fairy Queen commanded her to be brought from the bower, when she was crowned queen to the delight of the Tyrolens and Fairies alike.
The principal characters were—
Tyrolen Queen, Miss Strang; Gypsy Queen (Mother Grunt), Miss Herjer; Fairy Queen, Miss Doyle; Josephine, Miss Trappell; Corina, Miss M. Clouston; Maids of Honour, Misses M. Harris, M. Rogerson, K. McNeil, J. Grant, M. Syme and M. Bennett. They were all very faithfully portrayed, and the costumes of the little ones were quite picturesque, particularly the little fairies.
The singing was excellent, the different selections being contributed by the following:—Gypsy duet, Misses M. Chaplin and M. Kendall; trio, Misses D. Vincent, M. Chaplin and M. Kendall; gypsy solo, Miss E. Macpherson; feiry trio, Misses Gertrude McNeil, Emily Jardine and Olive Rennie; feiry quartette, Misses Marguerite Bennett, Mary Syme, Eunice Shea, Kathleen Chaplin; feiry sextette, Misses Marguerite Bennett, Mary Syme, Kathleen Chaplin, Alice Harris, Winnie Barker and Flora Currie.
Mrs. F. J. King's two solos—Love the Pedlar and Pedd—T. F. Splendid, the Pedlar and Angus Macdonald—were amongst the most enjoyable items on the programme.
There will be a matinee performance this afternoon at which His Excellency the Governor, Mrs. Davidson and children will be present.

Honor Where Honor is Due.
Editor Evening Telegram.
Dear Sir,—So much has been written and published of late about the success of the "King George Fifth Seamen's Institute" in which the name of the Secretary of the Mission has always been prominent, it seems to me that if a gratuitous testimonial is given, it should be given to those upon whose shoulders the real burden has been placed.
All honor to those to whom it is due. Mr. Sheard deserves the highest praise, in that as a result of his labors, the fabric of the Institute is free from debt.
But I am sure, that Mr. Sheard does not desire to take credit for the successful working of the Institute. This is due, as all who use the Institute know, to the untiring efforts and splendid management of the Superintendent, Mr. W. H. Jones, and his wife, who have been supported nobly, by their staff of workers.
Yours, etc.,
A Well-Wisher of the Institute.

- 2nd—We have the Surface Oak finish for our Furniture, which is the only thing of its kind in the country.

We avoid the second duty by getting the Covering ourselves and having the frames made here.
- 4th—We have our Springs made from the wire by the only Weaver in the country; also the Oxford or Copper Wire Spring by machines too.
- 5th—We have our Mattresses made by machinery in our own building, the only machine of its kind in the country. It can produce 50 against 10 by hand, thus saving considerable in cost.
- 6th—We are producing the Excelsior or Wood Fibre and cutting the cost in two, which will mean considerable saving in the making of Mattresses.
- 7th—We are also Selling Agents for the celebrated Ideal Beds and Springs, and sell at factory price.
- 8th—We also have the COMBINATION LATH and SPRING BED, the only thing of its kind in the country.

Mrs. Benson Passed Away.

Another of the old stock passed away on New Year's morning, Mrs. Elisha Benson, a native of Grate's Cove, and for nearly 30 years a resident of St. John's. Throughout her 84 years she enjoyed almost perfect health, never having experienced a day's sickness until five weeks ago, nor ever having taken a dose of medicine. Mrs. Benson was a life-long member of the Methodist Church, and held in respect and veneration by a host of friends in this city and on the North Shore of Conception Bay. She leaves to mourn her passing three sons—Sergeant Benson, of Carbonary;

Elisha Benson, of St. John's, and William Benson, of Grate's Cove; also two daughters—Naomi of this city and Julia of Winnipeg; a sister, 24 grandchildren and 27 great grandchildren. Mr. Ambrose Jeans of Glovertown is a nephew. The funeral takes place on Sunday, at 2.30 p.m., from her daughter's residence, 23 Cabot Street.

CONGRATULATIONS TO PRESIDENT FROM THE KING.—Among the many messages of congratulation by President Wilson on his birthday was the following from King George: "I want to offer you my sincere congratulations on the anniversary of your birth and trust that your health has not suffered from your arduous duties of the year." This was the only cablegram that was made public.

The Old Gray Bonnet.

I am going to tell you a story, it sounds more like a yarn. You will really say when you hear "is nothing of any harm; it is the truth I am telling, it happened long years ago." 'Tis about that old gray bonnet that once was all the go.

The ladies they sang about it, and praised it on the stage, it must have come from Paris, the fashion was all the rage. I think John Cabot lost it, and sent John Guy a note.

To steer his course for the bonnet and come to Bristol's Hope. They searched round every corner, sometimes he went alone. But an Indian lady found it and claimed it as her own; she kept it in seclusion unless when at a ball.

They searched in vain for the bonnet, but it wasn't found at all. There was a yearning for that bonnet; And wearing Dolly Vardens, a fashion we all deplore; You know they are not handsome either Green, Blue or Red.

Not like the old gray bonnet just placed upon your head. Well grandma and a party an outing went one time; It might be berry picking or something in that line; She strayed around a corner, just in a sunny nook.

There lay the old gray bonnet by a little purling brook. She danced about quite frantic, and ran with all her might To ask all her companions to come and see the sight.

They all pronounced it lovely, that bonnet they adore, Such a panorama was never there before. Many roses adorn it, just trimmed by Nature's gift.

Also leaves and buds of alder and many other rift. And yet it looked so charming after all the joys and cares. It had stood the test for over two hundred years.

You know my grandma claimed it and prized it as her own. And she the patterns taken they never will be known. She left it to my mother, that was her legacy.

And then through the ancestral line that bonnet came to me. 'Tis seldom that I wear it, except at special times; When I feel inclined to make some little rhyme; It is my chief delight, and just to show you how it look I put it on to-night to get my picture took.

You will all pronounce it lovely that's why I put it on. And all who want a pattern can surely come along; And now I wish you all the best of good cheer. Your cellar full of prog and a Happy New Year.

Mexicans Accused of Atrocities.

Juarez, Mex., Dec. 29.—Henry Miller, son of a wealthy miller and rancher of Santa-Coleman, state of Chihuahua, has arrived in El Paso with one of the most horrible tales of atrocities committed by any of the warring factions in Mexico that has yet been brought to the border. He charges that the federal soldiers, upon the evacuation of the city of Monclova, poisoned wells without notification to the citizens and that as a result over 400 residents of the town died, after enduring terrible agony. Mr. Miller also charges that after leaving Monclova, the federals on their retreat burned villages, murdered men and women, on the charge of having given aid and comfort to the enemy, and left hundreds of orphans to die of starvation and other forms of neglect.

Tinkering.

Jim Blinks shoot is always busy, he never knows an idle hour; but all he does is weird and dizzy, and brings him neither wealth nor power. He starts a job with fiery ardor, and then when it's three quarters done; and so there's little in his larder, and he is always short of mon. He always has a scheme so splendid it makes all other projects wilt; "you'll see me classed when all is ended," he tells his friends "with Astorbitt." He, has no lazy bones within him, with energy he's all athrob, but it's impossible to pin him down to a sane and steady job. And so his wife is doing washing, or beating carpets in the sud, while Blinks shoot goes wildly sloshing from one fool scheme to 't'other one. He sees his neighbors going sanely do their tasks from day to day; they prosper well, while he is vainly inventing projects "bound to pay." The Blinks shoots, in endless numbers, we see around us year by year; tan cheery, futile tribe encumbers the whole blamed surface of this sphere. Their energy is so enchanting we hate to use corrective good, as they gaily gallivanting along the hilly poorhouse road.

If Constipated or Bilious--Cascarets

For Sick Headache, Sour Stomach, Sluggish Liver and Bowels—They work while you sleep.

Get a 10-cent box.

Take a Cascaret to-night to cleanse your Liver, Stomach and Bowels, and you will surely feel great by morning. You men and women who have headache, coated tongue, can't sleep, are bilious, nervous, upset, bothered with a sick, gassy, disordered stomach, or have backache and feel all worn out. Are you keeping your bowels clean with Cascarets—or merely forcing a passageway every few days with salts, cathartic pills or castor oil?

Cascarets immediately cleanse and regulate the stomach, remove the sour, undigested and fermenting food and foul gases; take the excess bile from the liver and carry off the constipated waste matter and poison from the intestines and bowels.

Remember, a Cascaret to-night will straighten you out by morning. A 10-cent box from your druggist means healthy bowel action; a clear head a cheerfulness for months. Don't forget the children.

Meeting of Shoemakers

The Boot and Shoe Workers' Union held their quarterly meeting in the Mechanics' Hall last night. Quite a number were present and the various reports were submitted and adopted. The Strike Committee reported that they were well supplied with funds, and were fully prepared to remain out until a satisfactory settlement is effected. The strikers are now out fourteen weeks.

Open Monday Night.

The W. S. Harkins Players headed by the popular St. John's favourites, Miss Sue Van Duzer and Mr. Harry Stubbs will commence a limited engagement at the Casino Theatre opening in the latest dramatic success, "Bought and Paid For," to be followed by the dramatic sensation, "Alias Jimmy Valentine." Among the plays to be presented during the company's stay is the comedy drama, "The House

Next Door," an adaptation from the German by England's foremost author, Mr. J. Hartley Manners. It is a most attractive comedy drama, being thoroughly English throughout. It is a story of Disraeli's time in Britain, and deals with Christians and Jews with an aristocratic baronet who despises the Jews, as the central figure, while in the house next door resides a Jew who has earned his title, and the children families become engaged to each other, with those of the English lord pleading in vain to marry those of their choice, until just before the final curtain, when the satisfactory denouement comes. Reserved seats now on sale at Atlantic Bookstore.

Healthy and Unhealthy Lighting.

Gas, it may be said, vitiates the atmosphere. True. But it also helps to purify it. Its purifying power is greater than its vitiating power. Electricity does not viliate, nor does it purify. Hear what three eminent men have said:—

Much evidence has lately been adduced to show that gas is more useful than the electric light in promoting efficient ventilation of air. It is for this amongst other reasons, that gas is being frequently substituted for the electric light. The latest example is, perhaps, the Society of Medical Officers of Health, which has recently installed gas on its premises, after experience with the electric light.—Dr. Jamieson B. Hurry.

He would merely add that no member who had experience of their meeting room under the old conditions could deny the improvement that had taken place since gas had been substituted for the electric light and the new system of heating and ventilation had been installed.—Reginald DeWald, before the Society of Medical Officers of Health.

I have in my mind's eye, at the moment, a hall which, in the old days, was lighted by gas, and in which a large audience could, with comfort, sit through an hour's lecture, or with pleasure through a three hours' dinner, but which with the march of civilization, had its illumination changed from gas to electricity, the latter been employed with all the latest refinements to effect the lighting under the best conditions, with the result that any large gathering within its walls leads to a state little short of asphyxiation.—Vivian B. Lewis, Professor of Chemistry at the Royal Naval College, Greenwich.—nov.11

Nfld. Catholic Association.

A largely attended meeting of both men and women of the Newfoundland Catholic Association was held in Imperial Hall yesterday afternoon, at which speeches were made by Rev. J. Reilly, Messrs. Goff, Whelan, Ryan and Dinn, who spoke eloquently of the work hitherto done and who pledged themselves to greater things in future. Among the pledges was one to bring the Association up to a thousand strong before the end of next year. The Association is now entering on the fourth year of its existence, and it is admitted by all that it has done a large amount of benevolent work among their countrymen here. They have held a number of successful concerts from year to year and hope to make 1914 a banner year in the organization which marches under the colors pink, white and green. A large general meeting of the association will be held very soon.—North Sydney Herald, Dec. 29th.

Pilley's Island Hospital EXmas Tree.

The Pilley's Island Hospital held a most successful Christmas Tree in the Orange Hall on Dec. 26th. The children of the Island and from Heads Harbor were all given tickets and over one hundred and seventy children were made happier when they received their presents, which included dolls, toys, books, mouth organs, sewing boxes, games and such. The hall was crowded to its capacity, many of the "grown-ups" being present, despite the fact that the night was very disagreeable. The doors were opened at 7 o'clock but about two hours previously the children were on the spot. The Tree was prettily decorated. About an hour's programme of music, recitations, etc., preceded the arrival of the old favorite, Santa Claus. Mr. A. Guy, with his 200 lbs. avoirdupois made an excellent Santa, and kept everyone in convulsions of mirth while he distributed the presents. It is the consensus of opinion that the Christmas Tree of 1913 at Pilley's Island, was the best ever.
