CHAPTER IV.
"A gentleman! Impossible! How do you know?"

"How does one know? Oh, yes, he is! I could tell by his way of speaking, and by his face; besides, he ate his breakfast like—oh, well! like anyone else. But he is very strange. But don't be cast down, mother. He may, he must come back to us; and meanwhile, we ought to be thankful that we are spared. I can scarcely realize that we are not tossing about in that dreadful boat, with the waves howling to devour us, and those cruel rocks threatening to crush us. Yes, we must be thankful, mother. We are alive, and you are better—and warm, are you not? And see, I will make you some hot milk. You will be stronger presently; this air will do you good, 'tis so soft and bracing."

The woman sighed with a fretful refusal to be comforted.

"What use to live?" she asked. "Better to have made an end of it out there last night. Life is over for me. And cast upon a desert island—"

"Not a desert island, mother. See, there is a hut—why, it is quite comfortable!—and enough to eat and drink! Ah! do not let us despair! Presently some ship will pass, or some civilized people will come and find us."

While she had been speaking, she had been warming some milk, of which her mother drank a small quantity, closing her eyes immediately afterwards, and either falling asleep or into a kind of stupor.

The girl stood before the fire in deep thought—deep and disturbing thought, to judge by the varied expressions which it called up on her face. At one moment her eyes shone as if with anger and resentment, the next they became dewy, as if with the unshed tears of vexation and shame. Presently she glanced down at her clothes—at the loose shirt, the nether garments. Her face burnt, and she flung up her hands before it as if to shut out the sight of the masculine garb. Then she started and looked round eagerly. Lying on the floor beside the bed was a small bundle wrapped in a covering of tarpaulin. She remembered that one of the officers of the ship had, with a man's thoughtfulness even in the hour of his death, thrown it into the boat after them, together with some biscuits and water.

She sprang to the bundle and tore it open. It contained a few articles of woman's attire—just such things as a man would snatch up from a

Various Forms Of Headache

"It is necessary in order to treat headaches properly to understand the causes which produce the affection," says Dr. J. W. Ray of Hockton, Ala. Continuing, he says: "Physicians cannot begin to treat cases of a disease without knowing what the disease is, and we must remember that the headache is to be treated according to the cause. We must not only be particular to give a remedy intended to counteract the cause which produces the headache, but we must also give a remedy to relieve the pain until the cause of the trouble has been removed. To answer this purpose, Anti-kamnia Tablets will be found a most convenient and satisfactory remedy. One tablet every one to three hours gives comfort and relief in the most severe cases of headache, neuralgia and particularly the headache of women."

When we have a patient subject to regular attacks of sick headache, we should caution him to keep his bowels regular, for which nothing is better than 'Aloida', and when he feels the least sign of an approaching attack, he should take two A-K Tablets, to carry a few Anti-kamnia Tablets, so as to have them ready for instant use. These tablets are produced in action, and can be dissolved in water, or taken in a very few minutes. Ask for A-K Tablets. Anti-kamnia Tablets can be obtained at all druggists.

cabin before the ship went down. She opened them, and as she unrolled a blue serge skirt a small tin box fell out. She looked at it rather indifferently. She had seen it once before, under her mother's pillow in the berth.

As she picked it up, her mother, awakened by the noise of its striking against the floor, opened her eyes and saw it.

She leant forward eagerly, almost fiercely.

"Stella! What are you doing with that? Why did you take it? Answer me! Why did you steal it?"

The voice, the tone, were in their strange eagerness so suddenly a contrast to the woman's lassitude, so unexpected, that the girl stared at her, as if discovered in some underhand action.

"Mother!" she remonstrated, in wonder. "This box, do you mean? I found it here, in this bundle—"

"Give it to me—give it to me at once!" said the woman, stretching out her hand.

The girl brought it to her, and the woman clutched it, and, as if endeavoring to conceal it, covered it with both hands.

"Never take it again! It is mine—mine!" she said, swiftly, defiantly; then, as if afraid or ashamed of her vehemence, she went on, more quietly: "It belongs to me—to me alone—alone. It is of no consequence—only some trifles, some mementoes; but I value them. How—how did it come to be saved?"

"I found it in this bundle," replied the girl. "It must have been found under your pillow, and the first mate, thinking it of importance, put it with the other things. See, mother, here is a skirt and blouse for you, and—I scarcely know what else; and there is this skirt of mine. I—I am glad."

She withdrew to the back of the room, and presently came back slowly to the fire, with a sigh of relief.

The mother scarcely seemed to notice the change the girl had made in her attire, but while her back had been turned, the elder woman had hidden the small tin box.

Stella made the beds and "tidied up" the hut; she was still very thoughtful; but she glanced at the short rough blue skirt again and again, and each time seemed more comforted and, so to speak, encouraged.

The mother fell into her half-sleeping state again, and Stella examined the contents of the hut; though "examined" suggests a closer inspection than she made of it, for she looked round rather shyly, feeling as a guest might do in a room in which she is waiting for the host.

She noticed the guns and knives well cleaned and glistening in the rack over the fireplace; the neat book-case, with its few books; the cupboards with bottles and phials of spirit and oil and medicines; the cooking utensils scrupulously clean; the bundles of dried herbs; the fishing rods and tackle; the powder and cartridge boxes. A magnificent coat of sealskin which hung beside the bed proved so fascinating and irresistible that she went up to it and passed her hand over the rich, soft fur, and stroked it lovingly, as a woman would.

Then she deemed it wise to take something of a survey of the surroundings of the hut. She went to the door slowly and looked round cautiously before going out; but there was no one in sight. The young man who had rescued them, the lad with the musical name—Rath Rayne—had not returned.

The hut stood on a little clearing from which a path led to a kind of plantation. Here she found a cow-house, but the cow was out at pasture; some pigs, and some fowls. The former squeaked a welcome, and the latter ran to the netting which enclosed them, as if expecting to be fed. She got some bread from the house and shared it between pigs and fowls, then, afraid to penetrate through the plantation, went back to the bank overlooking the sea where she and Rath had sat, so contentedly that morning. She took the tea things in and washed them, aired and mended the things of her mother's which she had found in the bundle—a tidy "housewife" with needles and thread, hung over the fireplace—and then looked round for something else to do. It was a too early to prepare dinner, which she had decided should consist of boiled eggs; and she ventured timidly to take a book from the shelves.

It was a treatise on farm work, and she noticed that the front leaf had been neatly and carefully removed, and that a couple of inches at the top of the title page had also been cut away; she examined the rest of the books, and found that in every case the fly leaf, upon which the name is generally written, was missing. They were nearly all books of a practical character; but there was one on heraldry, with, as in the case of the other, the blank leaf removed.

She pondered over the fact with the natural curiosity of her sex, but could make nothing of it, and had to pass her time looking at the coats of arms and the crests in the heraldry. But how slowly lagged the hours! She spun out the cooking and eating of the dinner as long as she could, but the hours that followed, though broken by the tea and supper, dragged so heavily that she found herself watching the clock and listening as if for the occurrence of some expected event.

Day glided, dragged, into night. She went to the door and looked out before she closed it, and listened. But there was no sound of footsteps; only the dull boom of the sea, the shrill of a sea-gull. If only the dog would come! But of course, he had deserted them with his master.

They were going to spend the night alone; two helpless women, unprotected in this strange, wild place, surrounded by who knew what perils! Her eyes filled with tears, and her hand shook as she slowly shut the door, as if she were shutting Fear in instead of out.

She lay awake listening for Rath, but she fell asleep at last; and when she woke, refreshed and courageous—oh, youth! youth! sleep to you is indeed Nature's sweet restorer!—the sun was high in the heavens. She had not undressed, and she leapt from the bed and cautiously opened the door. And her eyes fell upon a can of foaming milk, a basket of eggs, and a chicken ready dressed for cooking!

The blood rushed to her face, and she drew back for an instant; then before she stopped to take up the things, she looked round with a sudden hope springing up in her bosom, but no human being was in sight.

CHAPTER V.

She felt inclined to pitch the milk-can and the fowl into the bush, but very wisely resisted the temptation. It was evident that the strange being who inhabited this solitary island did not intend to starve them, and for that she supposed she must be grateful; but it must be confessed that there was not much gratitude in her bosom. She would have infinitely preferred that he should have come and apologized, and that they should have gone in search of provisions together. It was so terribly lonely! And she looked forward to another such day as that of yesterday with absolute dread. She found it impossible to remain in the hut, for the bright sunshine, the warm atmosphere, rare, though warm, seemed to woo her.

"I will go and get some flowers, mother," she said in the afternoon. "You will not mind being left? I shall not be long, and I will keep within call."

"No," replied her mother. "Why should I mind? There is nothing could happen to me that I should fear. Stella"—she paused a moment—"you will say nothing—tell no one about—the box?"

"No, mother. But you forget there is no one to tell, excepting a boy—young man—who carefully avoids us!" she added, a trifle bitterly.

As she went out, she drew a long breath. The place was an earthly paradise; never in all her girlish dreams had she imagined a place more beautiful. If only there were some other persons on the island, 'tut one family!

She began to gather some of the flowers which grew in profusion beyond the sand line, and presently, as was natural, forgot her promise to remain within call, and wandered into the wood nearest the hut.

The firs were like the columns of a vast cathedral, and the moss was studded with anemones and a blue and red flower whose name she did not know; the air, too, was fragrant with the scent of the terebene from her firs. Such a delicious air that she began to feel happy in spite of herself. Then suddenly she realized that she was wandering, and began to trace her steps; but she lost her way amongst the trees, and presently found herself in a spot quite new to her.

Old Ways Merely Quieted The Corn The New Way Ends It

Some folks still cling to liquids, to inefficient plasters, or to merely paring corns.

They wrong themselves.

Their own friends keep free from corns by using Blue-jay plasters.

They apply one in a jiffy, then forget the corn. In 48 hours, without pain or soreness, the entire corn comes out.

A famous chemist found this way which makes corns out-of-date. One can't prevent them easily, but to keep them is folly.

Millions of people know that.

1258.—A PRACTICAL SERVICEABLE COMBINATION.

As she went out, she drew a long breath. The place was an earthly paradise; never in all her girlish dreams had she imagined a place more beautiful. If only there were some other persons on the island, 'tut one family!

She began to gather some of the flowers which grew in profusion beyond the sand line, and presently, as was natural, forgot her promise to remain within call, and wandered into the wood nearest the hut.

The firs were like the columns of a vast cathedral, and the moss was studded with anemones and a blue and red flower whose name she did not know; the air, too, was fragrant with the scent of the terebene from her firs. Such a delicious air that she began to feel happy in spite of herself. Then suddenly she realized that she was wandering, and began to trace her steps; but she lost her way amongst the trees, and presently found herself in a spot quite new to her.

They were going to spend the night alone; two helpless women, unprotected in this strange, wild place, surrounded by who knew what perils! Her eyes filled with tears, and her hand shook as she slowly shut the door, as if she were shutting Fear in instead of out.

She lay awake listening for Rath, but she fell asleep at last; and when she woke, refreshed and courageous—oh, youth! youth! sleep to you is indeed Nature's sweet restorer!—the sun was high in the heavens. She had not undressed, and she leapt from the bed and cautiously opened the door. And her eyes fell upon a can of foaming milk, a basket of eggs, and a chicken ready dressed for cooking!

The blood rushed to her face, and she drew back for an instant; then before she stopped to take up the things, she looked round with a sudden hope springing up in her bosom, but no human being was in sight.

CHAPTER V.

She felt inclined to pitch the milk-can and the fowl into the bush, but very wisely resisted the temptation. It was evident that the strange being who inhabited this solitary island did not intend to starve them, and for that she supposed she must be grateful; but it must be confessed that there was not much gratitude in her bosom. She would have infinitely preferred that he should have come and apologized, and that they should have gone in search of provisions together. It was so terribly lonely! And she looked forward to another such day as that of yesterday with absolute dread. She found it impossible to remain in the hut, for the bright sunshine, the warm atmosphere, rare, though warm, seemed to woo her.

"I will go and get some flowers, mother," she said in the afternoon. "You will not mind being left? I shall not be long, and I will keep within call."

"No," replied her mother. "Why should I mind? There is nothing could happen to me that I should fear. Stella"—she paused a moment—"you will say nothing—tell no one about—the box?"

"No, mother. But you forget there is no one to tell, excepting a boy—young man—who carefully avoids us!" she added, a trifle bitterly.

As she went out, she drew a long breath. The place was an earthly paradise; never in all her girlish dreams had she imagined a place more beautiful. If only there were some other persons on the island, 'tut one family!

She began to gather some of the flowers which grew in profusion beyond the sand line, and presently, as was natural, forgot her promise to remain within call, and wandered into the wood nearest the hut.

Serious Accident.

ANNIE CHRISTOPHER, AGED FIVE YEARS, CUT DOWN BY A BICYCLE—BADLY INJURED ABOUT THE HEAD.

Last evening, a little five-year-old girl, had a narrow escape from being killed in the East End of the city, as a result of being run over by a bicycle. The victim is Annie Christopher. As it is she is in a serious condition at the home of her parents on Banerman Street. According to an eye-witness the child was playing on Gower Street, or less than fifty yards from her home, when she was cut down by a bicycle, the driver of which was a young man named Bergeau. The cycle was travelling fast at the time. That section of the thoroughfare being inclined, extra power had to be applied to drive the machine along. The handle bar of the cycle struck the little girl on the right side of the head a heavy blow, throwing her violently to the ground and striking near her left eye where a bad cut was inflicted. With blood oozing from her head the child lay prone where she fell until picked up by Constable Snow and a civilian who took her home where she was attended by Dr. Cowperthwaite. The part of the patient's head that was first struck is badly battered and concussion of the brain is feared. Last night she vomited a great deal and suffered from shock. The young man who was riding the bicycle regrets the accident keenly, and immediately after the accident and ever since has particularly interested himself with regard to the victim.

Mr. Allen's Concert.

There was an encouraging and enthusiastic audience at the College Hall last night to listen to a refined programme under the direction of Mr. Allen consisting of unaccompanied singing by the Cathedral Choir, vocal solos by Miss Elsie Herder and Miss Marguerite Mitchell, recitations by Miss Margaret Duley and Mr. T. H. O'Neill, and a small orchestra composed of Miss Alice Bradshaw, Miss Marie Devine, Mr. Frank Bradshaw, Mr. Stafford, Mr. Alex. News and Mr. Allen. The orchestra so delighted the audience with their "Solemn Melody" that an encore was demanded and gratefully given. The Choir rendered its part sweetly. Mr. Allen has lost several of his principal boys during the past year and consequently many of his boys now have only been in training a short while, but the freshness of their voices is always a delight and the fact that people remarked on the good solo work of one of the boys whereas three or four were actually singing speaks well of the training which the Choirmaster has developed in their singing. Miss Herder was in good voice and gave fine renditions of Elgar's interesting "Sea Pictures," while her second song, "Sing, break into Song," was sung in a very happy manner and enthusiastically received by the audience. Miss Mitchell's songs, "For Music," "Bird, Say, Whither thy Flight," and "Now Sleeps the Crimson Petal," were pleasingly given, and the charm of both Miss Herder and Miss Mitchell was their delightful unaffected platform appearance.

Miss Duley's "Highwayman" showed some technical ability with perhaps a slight indistinctness that detracted from a full enjoyment of her recitation. Mr. Tom O'Neill was "himself" all through, commanding presence, unaffected, and perfectly natural, and his two recitations were up to his usual standard. Mr. Allen should feel encouraged by the evident appreciation which crowned his efforts.

The Germans

LOOK UPON YSER AS CERTAIN DEATH.

London, March 29.—An Amsterdam despatch to the Daily Chronicle says: "That terror of the Yser affects many German soldiers seems certain from accounts I have received of scenes and incidents in the far western corner of Belgium. In spite of all the frontier guards, there is still a deal of uncensored communication with Holland, and news occasionally reaches us from the heart of the German lines."

"From this it seems clear that large bodies of young and unseasoned men are never allowed to know the exact locality to which they are being sent. When they entrain it is never for the rail-heads nearest the Yser. Always it is for some destination, the name of which is not synonymous with certain death, for such is the reputation of the Yser front. A round-about train journey is arranged in order to delude the soldiers still further, if possible. According to their officers, the enemy in front of them is always more than half beaten and ready to run away at the approach of the Germans."

"Stories of the sufferings of the German soldiers are heard from all sides here. A young soldier, after many days in the trenches, crawls away to a lonely cottage, where he lies more dead than alive. The inmates lift him in and revive him, and driven by sheer agony, he breaks the rule of the army and takes off his boots and again faints and cannot be aroused. The cottagers, fearing punishment if the man is found thus under their roof, seek out an officer and reports the matter to him."

The officer visits the cottage and sees the exhausted soldier. The man has broken the rules. He has taken off his boots. His feet are swollen and almost shapeless. He is no longer of any use as a fighting machine so the officer shoots him dead as he lies in a fainting condition.

"It is by no means an uncommon thing in the German lines to see some soldiers, sometimes forty or fifty in a body, being marched to the front with their hands tied behind them. In the firing line they have the choice of shouldering rifles and entering the trenches or facing a firing party."

ON LAYING EGGS.

By GEORGE FITCH.
Author of "At Good Old Swash."
Laying eggs is the only talent which the hen possesses. The hen is not handsome and is one of the world's poorest singers. She has no education and produces the poorest grade of thoughts turned out by any brain, large or small. A hen hasn't even enough intelligence to vote a straight ticket at elections and goodness knows that needs less brain power than anything else on earth. She has just one talent—she lays the best eggs there are.

Many people with only one talent, sulk their lives away in gloom and decline to become useful to the human race. But the hen isn't built on this style. She uses her talent. Early and late, year in and out she lays eggs, putting all the fervor and enthusiasm of her being into the process. By so doing she has become one of our most valued citizens and is regarded with great affection, especially when fried with cream gravy.

Man screeches with pride because he builds half a million automobiles a year. But the modest hen with her one talent makes the automobile business look like a few rusty nickels. If the automobile were to disappear tomorrow man would mourn and become exceedingly footsore. But if the hen were to suspend the publication of 44 millimetre eggs and retire upon her reputation earth would hardly be worth living on. The annual value of the hen's work in the United States is greater than the value of the automobile, the hog or the hay crop.

This teaches us to appreciate our talent no matter how small it may be. Many a man with no ability except to make a very loud noise and keep it up for an hour at a time has run for seventeen different offices and has eventually orated himself into Congress by the vote of a weary people who couldn't get out of listening to him any other way.

The hen teaches us one more lesson. She reserves all her brags about her eggs until after they are laid. Man is not nearly this wise. He is forever figuring up the combined output of 150 hens—for next year—and buying poultry farm based on over-confidence and a few errors in multiplication.

The Keeper of War Secrets.

Sir Stanley Buckmaster, the Censor-in-Chief.

One of the most fascinating but mysterious officials in London at the present moment is the Press Censor. In ordinary life he acts as Solicitor-General, and is a sound and clever lawyer, by name Sir Stanley Buckmaster. But, in the stress of war, he has become the high priest and guardian of all the secrets of the great campaigns in Europe.

Surrounded by a trained corps of some fifty journalists and famous military officers, he sits enthroned in a venerable building in Whitehall, and woe betide any journalist or editor that offends him. He can press an electric button, or mutter a mysterious formula through the telephone, and hey, presto! the wicked scribe can be dragged off to the Tower of London under a corporal's guard of fixed bayonets, to languish in a dungeon for weary months, or be brought before a court-martial and shot in the cold and chilly dawn.

His Uncanny Powers.

Fearsome stories are whispered by journalists of his uncanny powers. One day a London journalist who sent news to the American Sunday papers, and tried to be unduly smart and communicative, found himself seized and thrown into durango vile. Another daring press potentate remonstrated with Lord Kitchener about the powers of this High Press Inquisitor. "What if we do make a trifling slip one day," he remarked, "we can always correct it the next."

"There will be no next!" returned Lord Kitchener grimly. "Within 24 hours you will be shot!"

Sir Stanley Buckmaster knows all the perplexities and problems of the campaign. He knows all the moves in the great war game weeks and weeks ahead. He is not going to let the enemy know anything that can help him beat the Allies. Germany keeps a sharp look-out on the English newspapers, and if you read their official war news from Berlin, you will see they often quote fancy passages from the chief British organs of the press.

Why News is Censored.

Nowadays they can read the English news till they go green in the face with anxiety, disappointment and chagrin. They will get no cheap tips from England as to how the war ought to be run.

It was not always so. In the days of the Egyptian campaigns and during the South African War the enemies got a lot of valuable news from the English papers because there was no Press Bureau or censor. And in that long struggle in the Philippines the American Army paid heavily for the refreshing candour and frankness, on the subject of the movement of troops, exhibited by the American press. No, Sir Stanley Buckmaster is taking no risks. He has said:

"In the exercise of the censorship everything possible is done to avoid any unnecessary inconvenience. Inconvenience and hindrance to some extent, however, are part of the national burden that must be borne. I have done everything in my power to prevent the censorship lying too heavily on any newspaper, and I am convinced that, on the whole, I have succeeded."

Journalists, as a class, certainly speak well of Sir Stanley Buckmaster. "You have got to recollect," explains one who haunts his office, "that he saves us no end of blunders. If we publish an article with his authority we are always safe from prosecution. He is the one man in London, and the only man, who knows how far we dare go. Obviously the Government must trust some one, so they trust him. He knows all the news there is, but he knows more—he knows what can go into print."

He is not an old man in any sense. He was born in 1861, and was educated at Christ Church, Oxford. For five years he represented the City of Cambridge in Parliament, but when he was rejected by that constituency, in 1910, he shook the dust of that city off his feet for ever, and stood for the Keighley division of Yorkshire, for which he has been M. P. ever since. He loves fly-fishing, and belongs to the Fly-fishers' Club. He needs all the subtlety, patience and skill he has learned in the angler's elusive art in the more elusive duties he has now to perform as the Great Keeper of War Secrets. His friends twit him with a new peril, that if he is not careful he may become the most secretive man in England. Meanwhile, however, his blue pencil is plied busily on all the war news from the front.

THE MILITANTS.

I wonder why the suffragettes, who lately made a great Britain tremble, and at whose name pale London sweets, don't go where armored hosts assemble. In times of peace they dealt in bombs, and spoiled silk hats and blew up churches, but now, when sound the fife and rums they sit in safety on their perches. Oh, how would Wilhelm's soldiers feel, if they should face long lines of sisters, all burning with their old time zeal, and yelling till their tongues had blisters? Methinks they'd up and run like squirrels, before those votes-for-women spiefers, for who could face that gang of girls who buffaloeed the London pefiers? King George should sit them on the Turks, to blow them up and chase and gall them, for they, of sinful ways and works, deserve the worst that may befall them. But there'd be protest, I'm afraid, and talk of methods harsh, inhuman: "you're killing us with dum-dum maid you're using an explosive woman." But then the girls don't volunteer, so what they'd do is merely guessing: they're playing idle games this year, and still rolls on the war distressing.

Important Debates.

The sitting of the House of Assembly to-day promises to be interesting. There are three bills in committee which should evoke much discussion. There is the Bill which provides for the establishment of a Board to fix the price of damp Labrador fish sold on the coast, under agreements in which no fixed price is named. Mr. Kent, Leader of the Opposition, commented yesterday on a strange feature in the relations of the Government and the Legislature of the Colony, that the latter had occupied the attention of the Government and the Legislature by such a small extent. That feature was the resignation of the Dominions' Commission which reported recently. The price of Labrador sloop is a matter which affects largely all the settlements, but on a matter which has been a live question for many a generation. The Logging Bill evoked much discussion, and although some of the most controversial matters have been eliminated, it should elicit expression of opinion as it affects a very large body of men who should be encouraged to go in the woods in the winter and stay there for the logging season. The Local Affairs bill is a measure which revives interest in a bill passed 17 years ago, which has largely lain dormant. There can be no doubt of the desire of the outports for a workable elective measure, but the difficulties are very great owing to the meagre population of many settlements and the areas over which these scattered populations are settled. A full discussion of these difficulties should enable the Legislature to draft some scheme, workable at least so far as the larger settlements are concerned. The interest in all these measures is dwarfed at least temporarily in the interest aroused in Mr. Hickman's motion to elicit an expression of opinion as to the desirability and feasibility of prohibiting by statute the importation or manufacture and sale of alcoholic beverages. The issue to be raised is the most drastic that has yet been placed before the Legislature, and will arouse strong expressions of opinion. The most important of all will be the attitude of the Government, as they will have to look at it not only from the larger standpoint of acquiring advantage to the country, but of the immediate effect on the revenue, and the means by their disposal to recoup themselves from a prospective immediate loss. Should the affirmative be carried, the Government will have to take charge of the measure, as it will have such a material effect on the revenue.

Obituary.

MR. FRANK COADY. We respectfully chronicle to-day the death of Mr. Frank Coady, which occurred at his residence last midnight, after a long illness. Deceased worked at the shoemaking trade up to a few years ago when he was appointed Caretaker of the General Post Office, which position he held up to the time of his death. Several months ago Mr. Coady was obliged to give up work, being stricken with an internal malady, and up to a short time before death was a great sufferer. A widow, three sons and one daughter are left to mourn a devoted husband and a kind father, to whom much sympathy is expressed, and in which the Telegram joins.

LATEST From the Front.

2 P. M.

PARIS, To-day. M. Legulee de Mezauban, President of the Brittany Ship Owners Association, has suggested to the Minister of Marine to replace each ship belonging to the Allies sunk by German submarine, by vessel of corresponding size from among 378 German ships detained at French ports since the beginning of the war. This, M. De Mezauban believes, would cause the German ship owners to change the mode of warfare, the cost of which was borne by them. The proposal has been taken into consideration by the French Government, but before it can be put into execution an arrangement must be made with the British authorities.

A PROUD RECORD.

LONDON, To-day. Great pride is taken in the record during the eleven weeks since the German submarine campaign started. The Admiralty has transported more than a million men by water and five men represent the total losses in the transport work of the Admiralty since the beginning of the war. In the merchant marine more than eleven thousand English merchant ships arrived or sailed from English ports in the last eleven weeks, while less than forty English merchant ships have been the victims of German submarines in the same time. The number of new ships launched for the English merchant marine make a total number of ships and tonnage of England's merchant marine greater than before the "Reign of Terror."

GERMAN NAVAL ACTIVITY IN THE BALTIC.

LONDON, To-day. A despatch from Copenhagen states that a large German cruiser and a torpedo boat flotilla are reported moving northward from the island of Bornholm and the Swedish coast. Bornholm is a large Danish island in the Baltic Sea.

CHICAGO, To-day. Work was tied up on building operations valued at thirty million dollars here to-day. A hundred thousand union men were thrown out of employment, as a result of the strike of sixteen thousand union carpenters which went into effect last night.

THE DUTCH MUCH CONCERNED.

THE HAGUE, To-day. The sinking of the Dutch steamer Katwyk is considered here the gravest incident in submarine warfare, as it directly affects the Dutch Government, to which the cargo of grain on board the steamer was consigned. While waiting further details of the torpedoing of the Katwyk, the Ministerial Department concerned discussed the matter to-day, but declined to make a statement.

KITCHENER'S ARMY ON THE MOVE.

LONDON, To-day. Kitchener's army, horse, foot and artillery, is on the move once more to the great camping ground on Salisbury Plain, where soon more than a hundred thousand soldiers will be camped. Winter is ended. Bells and winter quarters are being emptied and the main roads that lead to the Plains, lines of troops can be seen on the march. One entire brigade, ten thousand men is marching cross country from Whitby, making about seventeen miles a day, under active service conditions.

ANOTHER ZEPPELIN RAID.

LONDON, To-day. Two Zeppelin air ships visited the East Coast of England, shortly after midnight, dropping bombs on several towns and doing considerable damage to property. As far as has been ascertained only one person, a woman, was injured. The airships dropped four bombs on Malden, Essex County, thirty miles Northwest of London, but no damage resulted. Bombs were also dropped in Heybridge Basin, two miles across the River. These set fire to some buildings. The airships came up Blackwater River and over the marshes and circled around. At Lowestoft on the North Sea in Suffolk County, three bombs were dropped and considerable damage to house property in the centre of the town resulted. A lumber yard also was set on fire. Window panes in many houses were shattered. Three horses belonging to a railway company were killed. Previously the aircraft had visited Southwell, twelve miles South of Lowestoft, and having missed striking that town with missiles, went on to Halesworth, eight miles inland. They then again returned to Southwell and dropped six bombs.

Four Men Drowned.

A message from Mr. W. Paul, Sub-collector at Burin, to the Deputy Minister of Customs, received to-day, states that four men: Samuel Marks, Abram Wray, William Poole, and George Tarwell, of the schr. Susan C. Inkpen, of Burin, had been drowned off Cape St. George while drawing. The vessel was in charge of Capt. Leck, of Burin, with whom Samuel Marks was mate. Marks was 23 years of age, and the others were each about 21. All are unmarried.

This fact was made public in a White Paper, giving the text of the Chilean note protesting against the sinking of the Dresden and the British Government's reply.

AUSTRIA MUST ASK FOR CONDITIONS, IF SHE WANTS PEACE.

LONDON, To-day. A Petrograd despatch to the Daily Mail says: While denying categorically that Austria has made any direct peace advances to Russia, officials here admit peace suggestions have come from the Pope at instigation of private sources. The Pope's communication merely asked whether if Austria were willing, Russia would enter into negotiations with a view to peace. The answer was that if Austria desired peace she must ask the allies for their conditions and then he was contacted and communicated to the Austrian Government.

ANOTHER ZEPPELIN RAID.

LONDON, To-day. Two Zeppelin air ships visited the East Coast of England, shortly after midnight, dropping bombs on several towns and doing considerable damage to property. As far as has been ascertained only one person, a woman, was injured. The airships dropped four bombs on Malden, Essex County, thirty miles Northwest of London, but no damage resulted. Bombs were also dropped in Heybridge Basin, two miles across the River. These set fire to some buildings. The airships came up Blackwater River and over the marshes and circled around. At Lowestoft on the North Sea in Suffolk County, three bombs were dropped and considerable damage to house property in the centre of the town resulted. A lumber yard also was set on fire. Window panes in many houses were shattered. Three horses belonging to a railway company were killed. Previously the aircraft had visited Southwell, twelve miles South of Lowestoft, and having missed striking that town with missiles, went on to Halesworth, eight miles inland. They then again returned to Southwell and dropped six bombs.

OFFICIAL.

LONDON, April 15.

The Governor, Newfoundland:
A Zeppelin passed over Tynesid last night. Bombs were dropped at various points with trifling damage. No lives were lost.

The French Government reports a trench captured at Berry-au-Bac, and counter-attacks stopped at various points with some progress. At Bois de Montmaré two German aeroplanes were captured.

The Russian Government reports slight further progress and continued fighting at Uzkok Pass. The attempted enemy offensive south of Kozlova and in Bukovina and Czernowitz failed.

HARCOURT.

ST. PIERRE BULLETIN.

PARIS, via St. Pierre, April 14.

On the day of the 14th of April, generally calm on whole front. A Zeppelin threw bombs on Bailien, a town of the department of Nord, situated near the Belgian frontier. It had for its objective our aviation camp, but this has not been damaged; 3 civilians were killed. Three German aeroplanes were obliged to land in our lines, one near Braisne, another near Luneville. In both cases the aviators were made prisoners. A third German aviator by the fire of our advanced guards fell near Orne, northeast of Verdun. At six hundred metres of our lines one of the aviators had been hit by a bullet.

Near Berry au Bac last night we took a German trench which the enemy recaptured during the night. We were able to establish ourselves in the immediate neighborhood in a new trench. In Champagne in Perthos Les Hurles region an infantry detachment tried to come out of its trench but was stopped short by our fire. At Eparges a counter attack came out of Combres but was immediately stopped by our artillery.

In Montmaré Wood we have made progress, west of our lines, and repulsed two counter-attacks. Few prisoners, a cannon of 15 inches, a few guns and munitions fell into our hands.

FIGHTING IN CARPATHIANS.

PETROGRAD, April 15.
The Austro-German offensive at Kazowa, northeast of Uzkok Pass, has been completely smashed. The Russian War Office announced to-day, that in a seventeen hour battle on Tuesday night and Wednesday, attacking Teutonic troops suffered terrible losses. They charged the Russian positions seven times with the bayonet, only to be driven back each time, leaving large numbers of dead before the Russian lines. Night fighting was the fiercest that has marked the Carpathian campaign.

A ZEPPELIN ATTACK.

LONDON, April 15.
Successfully evading a squadron of ten British military aeroplanes speeding in pursuit, the German Zeppelin which attacked towns in the industrial district about Newcastle, last night, dashed out over the North Sea early this morning. Though the British aeroplanes were on the wing ten minutes after the first alarm sounded, none of them came close enough to the Zeppelin to attack her. It is believed by this time the Zeppelin is safe again at its station in Belgium. The Zeppelin had a narrow escape from destruction at Crumlington, when it passed over that town, says a despatch from Newcastle, but the rapidly with which it was moving, saved it. Eight shells were fired at the Zeppelin from guns at Crumlington. Although all missed, three burst very close to the airship. Though London Papers declare the Zeppelin raid another abortive attempt to terrify England, the attack was the longest that has yet marked German aerial operations over English territory.

For nearly five hours the Zeppelin sped from town to town inland, as well as coastal. It is estimated that 65 bombs were dropped by the Zeppelin upon the nine towns of Blyth, Wallsend, Crumlington, Welfch, Seatonburn, Helburn, Bedlington and Southshields. Reports from the raid districts, up to noon, stated only four persons, three women and one man, had been injured, none seriously. Little damage is said to have been done.

LATEST TYPE OF AIRSHIP.

LONDON, April 15.
Skippers of British trawlers, who sighted the Zeppelin airship which last night raided the northeast coast of England, describe her as one of the very latest type of German airships. The trawlers sighted her 100 miles from land. They believe she came from Heligoland. If she returned to this island it is calculated she must

CAVALRY'S WORK ON BRITISH FRONT IS GREAT.

BEFORE VERY LONG THEIR WORK IN THE TRENCHES WILL BE AT END—WHAT USE WILL SIR JOHN FRENCH PUT THE FINE FORCE TO NOW?

British Headquarters in France, via London, March 17.—No question regarding the future is answered with so much hesitation as that concerning the work of the cavalry. The drawing of a great ditch across two countries has produced a condition of affairs to which it is quite difficult at first to become mentally accustomed. You have but to walk away from it in any direction on your own side to be in perfect safety. Never was there such a state of affairs in war before. No ambushes, no awkward patrols, not even a lost scout or a stray sniper. All your enemies are on one side and your friends are on the other.

In a crisis of such simplicity what can the cavalry do? It takes its turn in the trenches, and is as admirable in the trenches as it is elsewhere, but cavalry in a trench is a wasteful thing; wasteful because the training of a cavalryman runs into a considerable sum of money, for which only a small return can be obtained from a trench; wasteful because when only one man from a section can be left to look after the horses they cannot be adequately groomed or exercised, so that while the ranks are being reduced by the wrong sort of work, the horses are getting out of condition owing to lack of the right sort.

BORE BRUNT OF FIGHTING.

The British cavalry bore the brunt of some of the most exciting fighting in Flanders, when every man had to be made use of, wastefully or otherwise, and splendidly as they acquitted themselves, indeed, just because they did so splendidly, the work told upon their proper efficiency, which they have only recently been able to retrieve. Before very long, however, there again will be a fine cavalry force at Sir John French's disposal, and interest is concerned in the use to which it may be put. Called upon to undertake the most exciting work from the very moment it detrained at the front, and at a season when it was some way from having arrived at its hardest condition, it responded to every test with which it could have been tried.

Very noticeable in that connection, too, is the different regard which the various arms extend to their opponents. The airman, though he has established a superiority on which every onlooker has commented, says very little about it himself. Indeed, he even depreciates too hastily deductions from what has happened hitherto. He thinks the German is probably a fine weather flier, and expects him to do better, when the winds lighten.

The gunner speaks with respect of the enemy's artillery. He speaks, indeed, enviously of what it was when he was called up to face every calibre of weapon with his 18-pounder, and though conditions happily have changed since then, he maintains his respect for the foe's cunning and marksmanship. The infantryman also is not in the least inclined to undervalue his opponent's pluck, persistence and adroit devices.

"He is so good a soldier one might easily get to like him if he wasn't such a villain," said one field officer regretfully.

GERMANS LACK CONFIDENCE.

But the cavalryman's attitude is different altogether. Though all his fighting in the saddle and out of it, has been done with the odds, and of-target it desired. Nothing is so pleasant in cavalry work as to charge something that had its doubt about charging you. Before the war was many days old British cavalry practice had crystallized into the simplest of formulae: "Go for them!"

Whatever the discrepancy in numbers or the disadvantage in position, down came the lances or out flashed the swords, and the trot became a gallop before the enemy knew what was upon them.

So easily and exactly did the thing work that much was pulled off by sheer effrontery at which the text books would, rightly, have looked askance—that affair of the squadron and a half, for instance, which ended after the vivacious prelude, with a pretty piece of fooling which drew the outraged enemy right up to a dismounted line of rifles, which put the finishing touch to his discomfiture.

INSULTED THE U. S. FLAG.

Germans Apologize for So-Called Misunderstanding at Liege.

Paris, April 7.—The Belgian correspondent of the Journal des Debats writes to his paper that as a result of a complaint by the American consul, German officers have called on the Burgomaster of Liege and made excuses for German soldiers who are alleged to have torn the American flag from the breasts of citizens the day that an American fete was being held. The German officers pinned American flags on the burgomaster and two councillors and declared the incident resulted from a misunderstanding of orders.

The correspondent adds that the news that excuses had been made soon spread through Liege and all the inhabitants of the city immediately pinned the Stars and Stripes on the lapels of their coats.

A Child's Laxative Is "Syrup of Figs"

They love to take it and it doesn't harm the tender little stomach, liver and bowels.

When your child suffers from a cold don't wait; give the little stomach, liver and bowels a gentle, thorough cleansing at once. When cross, peevish, listless, pale, doesn't sleep, eat or act naturally; if breath is bad, stomach sour, give a teaspoonful of "California Syrup of Figs," and in a few hours all the clogged-up, constipated waste, sour bile and undigested food will gently move out of the bowels, and you have a well, playful child again.

If your child coughs, snuffles and has caught cold or is feverish or has a sore throat give a good dose of "California Syrup of Figs," to evacuate the bowels no difference what other treatment is given.

Sick children needn't be coaxed to take this harmless "fruit laxative." Millions of mothers keep it handy because they know its action on the stomach, liver and bowels is prompt and sure. They also know a little given to-day saves a sick child to-morrow.

Ask your druggist for a 50-cent bottle of "California Syrup of Figs," which contains directions for babies, children of all ages and for grown-ups plainly on the bottle. Beware of counterfeits sold here. Get the genuine, made by "California Fig Syrup Company."

Pupils of Night School Entertained.

The pupils of the night school held at the Star Hall during the winter months under the direction of Rev. Dr. Greene were entertained at the T. A. Armoury last night. In the afternoon the boys numbering over 100 were treated to a moving picture show at the Casino by Mr. J. P. Kiely during which vocal numbers were given by Messrs. Arthur Priestman Cameron and J. O'Neil Farrell. At 6 p.m. teas were served by the lady friends of the teaching staff, and were presided over by Miss Dunphy. After supper Rev. Dr. Greene addressed the lads in encouraging tones and extended them an invitation to continue their attendance at school, which will re-open as soon as convenient. Mr. W. F. Trelligan, who had been in charge of the school, also spoke to the boys along similar lines and congratulated them on their good attendance and discipline.

The average attendance at the night school classes for the season now closed was 130, and the results achieved must indeed be gratifying to Rev. Dr. Greene and his staff of volunteer teachers who sacrificed so much of their time in the interest of the boys.

Mr. Grimes presented a petition from the residents of St. John's asking that a sum of money be allocated for the purpose of erecting a public wharf at the foot of the Government House. Mr. Clapp strongly supported the prayer of a petition from the residents of St. Barbe, asking that a sum of money be allocated for the purpose of erecting a public wharf at the foot of the Government House. He emphasized the great hardship it was inflicted upon the people, as the only means of bringing their supplies to the island was by the use of a motor boat, and in consequence to many dangers. Further stated that the approach to the wharf was just as good as a pond and several other points of call. This was the time that he (Mr. C.) had the honor of presenting this petition to the House, but on the previous day nothing had been done in the matter. He had reason to call on the Secretary last fall in connection with two men, belonging to the Government House, who were marooned at the foot of the Government House. THURSDAY, April 15th.
At 2.30 p.m. yesterday the House met. The members proceeded to Government House and presented the Address in Reply which was graciously accepted by His Excellency. Returning, the Speaker resumed the Chair.

Mr. Grimes presented a petition from the residents of South River, asking that a sum of money be allocated for the purpose of making additions to the public wharf there.

Mr. Clapp strongly set forth the prayer of a petition from the residents of St. Barbe, asking that Gros Islets be made a port of call of the s.s. Prospero. He emphasized the great hardship it was on those isolated people, as the only means they had of bringing their families along with their supplies to the island each season for the fishery was by motor boat, and in consequence liable to many dangers. Furthermore, he stated that the approach to Gros Islets was just as good as Greenpond and several other northern ports of call. This was the second time that he (Mr. C.) had the trouble of presenting this petition to the House, but on the previous occasion nothing had been done in the matter. He had reason to call on the Colonial Secretary last fall in connection with two men, belonging to Conche, who were marooned at Gros Islets. Through the instructions of the Colonial Secretary the Prospero was ordered to the assistance of the two men and succeeded in rescuing them. Mr. Clapp hoped that the Government would give his request favorable consideration and at least have the Prospero make six calls at Gros Islets during the summer and fall months, and if they did this the petitioners would be perfectly satisfied.

Mr. Coaker supported the petition. He had been in communication with the Government and Bowring Bros. about the matter last spring, and heard that Capt. A. Kean had objected to go there. He trusted that the request would be acceded to and was confident that if the Prospero did call at Gros Islets that she would not strike a rock.

Mr. F. J. Morris presented a petition from the residents of Whitbourne, North Hr., Colinet and other places in Trinity and Placentia Districts, asking for telegraph and telephone connection. His colleagues, Messrs. Devereaux and Walsh gave their support to the petition, which was endorsed equally by Messrs. Lloyd, Stone and Targett, members for Trinity.

Mr. Winsor asked that Farewell be made a port of call for the s.s. Dundee and Mr. Coaker presented a petition from Mr. Grace and Bay de Verde re price of fish on Labrador.

Mr. Lloyd called attention to the question he had asked the Finance Minister as to the balance on current account in the Banks. He wished to know when the information would be ready.

The Finance Minister said it was in course of preparation and that it would take ten days to prepare answers to two other finance questions asked by Mr. Lloyd.

Mr. Lloyd expressed surprise that the information in reference to the balance on current accounts was still in course of preparation after a week's grace. Last year similar information was given, and he (Mr. Lloyd) had copied the statement in five minutes or so, and that was all that had to be done by the Finance Department. As to the data asked for in the other questions, he was surprised that the Finance Minister had not got it prepared before the House met, as the Government needed it to deliberate intelligently on the question of the new taxation they had foreshadowed in the Governor's Speech.

Mr. Kent asked that the answers to all questions relating to Finance, be tabled before the House goes into Committee on Supply.

Mr. Morine then moved the second reading of the Bill relating to the Sale of Codfish on the Labrador. Mr. Morine said the bill was an honest attempt to meet great difficulties, which had existed for many long years. It was experimental and could not be expected to cure every ill and would probably need amendment in future sessions. It did not interfere with freedom of contract between buyer and seller, but it provided a Board to fix a price current where the contract did not name any definite price. Mr. Morine then read a number of the vague terms as to price in use on the Labrador and he read a couple of letters indicating a combination of buyers on prices. He said that in fact in the past there had been little freedom of contract, the seller being usually at the mercy of the buyer. The merchant played with loaded dice in fixing the price. They had all the information and they fixed the price as a rule to suit themselves with little regard to the fishermen. It was only when the merchants differed and competed that the fishermen got a chance. The fishermen did not treat the merchant in these matters. They wanted some means of knowing they were getting a fair show in the fixing of prices. That was one of the objects of the bill and it would tend to restore confidence in the merchant. He (Mr. M.) submitted statistics showing the great falling off in the fishery and the number of vessels and persons prosecuting within the past few years, due largely to the unjust way, he said, the fishermen were treated by the purchasers. The Bill that he was introducing, provided for the establishment of a Board which meet annually and which shall consist of a member appointed by the President of the Board of Trade, another by the President of the F.P.U. and these two shall choose a third party. If these representatives of buyer and seller fail to agree on the appointment of a suitable man or independent party, a Judge of the Supreme Court shall act in that capacity. One month after the date their appointment is published in the Royal Gazette, they shall fix fair and reasonable prices on codfish on his scuppern. The reason the matter settled by agreement.

The Prime Minister offered the bill his support. The hononr the matter had not been dealt with before was the difficulties it presented, which would be found as the law ran its course. He, however, welcomed the bill as an effort to surmount these difficulties.

The Leader of the Opposition, Mr. Kent, considered the bill an honest attempt to grapple with grave difficulties. The bill in no way interfered with buyers or sellers who wished to fix their own price, but it did afford a means of obtaining a standard price in which Labrador fishermen could have confidence.

The Leader of the F.P.U. Party, Mr. Conker, said that the bill furthered the result of conferences with Conception Bay fishermen, who were the fishermen mostly interested in Labrador fish. As the fishermen in the past had no means of knowing whether they were getting value for their catch, they had lost confidence, and the fishery was being abandoned. The bill would tend to restore confidence and he hoped would help to bring back the big Labrador fishery.

Mr. Hickman supported the bill as a fair one between merchant and fisherman. He believed the fall in the Labrador fishery was due to the use of trawls and bottoms on the St. Pierre and Grand Banks. He would avail of the opportunity afforded by the Committee of discussing the bill further.

Messrs. Piccott, Grimes, Jennings, Cashin, Downey, Woodford and Young also spoke on the bill, which was read a second time and go into Committee of the Whole this afternoon.

The Logging Bill and a Bill to amend the Saw-mill Act was read a second time.

The Bill "An Act to amend the Customs Act, 1898," was deferred as was also the Minister of Finance motion to move the House into Committee of the Whole to consider certain resolutions in reference to the imposition of duties levied on the estate of deceased persons.

Concrete Trenches to Last for Years.

F. H. Gallor, an American Rhodes Scholar, writes to the London Daily Mail of a visit to the Namur district as follows:—

One of the officers told me that the Germans had been there since the beginning of October and that even the trenches were in the same position as when they first came.

Certainly the trenches seem permanent enough for spending many winters. A number of them have now been built of concrete, especially in that swampy part near the Aisne where they strike water about three feet underground. The difficulty is in draining out the water when it rains.

Some of the trenches have two stories, and at the back of many of them are subterranean rest-houses built or concrete and connected with the trenches by passages. The rooms are about seven feet high and ten feet square, and above the ground all evidence of the work is concealed by green boughs and shrubbery so that they may escape the attention of the enemy's aeroplanes.

The concrete rest-houses were interesting. Most of them have furniture made from trees "to amuse us and pass the time." Both officers and men use the same type of house, though discipline forbids that the same house be used by both officers and men. The light in these houses is bad and the ventilation not all that it should be, but they are extremely careful about sanitation and everywhere one smells disinfectants and sees evidence of scrupulous guarding against disease. Oil and candles are scarce and the "pocket electric" that all the men and officers carry does not last long enough for much reading. There are always telephone connections, but in most cases visits are impossible save by way of the underground passages and the trenches.

One officer described the life as entirely normal; another said, in speaking of a Louis XV. couch which had been borrowed from a nearby chateau and was the pride of a regiment, "Oh, we are cave-dwellers, but we have some of the luxuries of at least the nineteenth century."

The major-commandant at Rothel showed me a letter from a friend demanding "some easy chairs and a piano for his trench-house," and the major said, "I hear they have music up on the Yser, but the French are too close to us here."

FIRE FIGHTERS

Are Not Always Victorious.

Sometimes even a prompt response of the most effective fire apparatus fails to subdue a fire before considerable damage is done. It all depends upon the headway the fire has got. Do not rely too much on the ability of the fire fighters. Fight the chance of loss, yourself, by fully insuring your property in one of the reliable Companies I represent.

When Your Fiftieth Birthday Comes

will you have the sound heart, steady nerves and good digestion of your younger days?

Many men and women reach the prime of life, burdened with stomach trouble, headaches, constipation, nervousness, heart flutter, etc., and frequently the cause is the drug, caffeine, in the tea and coffee they drink.

You can quickly tell if tea or coffee is injuring your health by stopping it ten days and using

INSTANT POSTUM

This delicious, pure food-drink contains no caffeine nor any other harmful ingredient. It is wholesome and invigorating, with a snappy, delicious flavour.

And Instant Postum is so easy to make. Put a level teaspoonful in a cup and add hot water—that's all.

The convenience of Instant Postum is seen at a glance. Sold in 30c and 50c tins. Some prefer Postum Cereal—the original form, which must be well boiled, 15c and 25c packages.

Grocers sell both kinds, the flavour is equally delicious and the cost per cup is about the same.

"There's a Reason" for POSTUM

Canadian Postum Cereal Co., Ltd., Windsor, Ont.

Within the next few weeks you are going to buy a new Spring Suit—that's certain. Perhaps to-day, perhaps to-morrow, perhaps in a month—but you're going to buy it.

We think you ought to know why it's wise to "Do it now." The best reason is that our stocks are complete—you're bound to get more style satisfaction out of a broad choice than a narrow one—you get the broad choice now—you may not get it later.

This is why we invite your inspection of the stylish patterns now on hand.

Chaplin,

THE STORE THAT PLEASURES.

Two Good Forgetters.

By RUTH CAMERON.

A good forgettery is as great a gift as a good memory is a curse.

Forgetting is like going to sleep, something you cannot do by sheer effort of will.

And yet, just as there are some lucky people who can go to sleep at almost any time without any difficulty, so there are people who forget with the greatest ease, too great, in fact.

Charging Ten Cents for the Privilege of Doing an Errand.

For instance, a woman who is in very comfortable circumstances, asks a friend to do an errand for her. In performing the errand the friend is obliged to telephone twice at a cost of ten cents. Now ten cents isn't very much, yet there are plenty of people who feel they can't spend even that little carelessly and this girl is one. To the woman for whom the errand was done, however, it was nothing and she carelessly forgets to reimburse her friend.

Well, you say, if she does not have to count the pennies it is hard for her to get the viewpoint of one who does. Ah, there's my point. She is in comfortable circumstances now but isn't within a few years she was in distinctly uncomfortable circumstances. Ten cents meant just as much to her a few years ago as it does to her friend now. How can she have forgotten so quickly? For the life of me I can't see.

The Startling Way Married Women Forget.

Again is there anything more startling than the way some married women forget their girlfriends? In our neighbourhood, is a young married woman, the mother of two babies, who before her marriage loved good times and attention as much as any girl. Moreover, while she was fundamentally as good as they make them, she disliked conventions and sometimes doubted them. Yet to-day this woman is the most unsympathetic critic the unmarried girls of the neighbourhood have. Their perfectly natural desire for masculine attention and admiration, she calls man-chasing. She stigmatizes one of her closest friends as a frivolous "because she doesn't seem to care for anything but a good time." (I hate that criticism. It's so sour-grapesy. It's what people who have lost or never had the gift for having a good time say about people who possess that great blessing.) If the girls overstep any convention ever so slightly she lifts her hands in horror, yet it wasn't five years ago that she was one of them. How can she have forgotten it all? I don't know. "You tell me," as my small nephew always says when we ask him any question he can't or won't answer.

Can You Remember How You Felt as a Child?

In an interesting article on the bringing up of children, a critic of the American parent says that he is generous to a fault and almost painfully anxious to do his duty but the place where he falls is in remembering how he felt when he was young.

How few of us there are who do remember. The baby scarcely forgets the time before he began to talk more completely than most of us forget our childhood.

I never knew but one person (a man by the way) who remembered not only what he did but exactly how he felt as a child. And how the children loved him! They seemed to know he hadn't forgotten.

Life should be one lesson after another in sympathy and understanding. Many of us are like a pupil who forgets his old lesson as fast as he learns the new. We sadly need a review.

The Rossley Contest

TO-NIGHT.

Last night another big crowded house and the audience more and more delighted with Mr. Ballard Brown and Miss Madge Locke, the finest artists ever brought to St. John's. The patrons were charmed last night with the great dramatic one act scene, "Scotland's Glory." Miss Locke's Welsh character studies in national costume was one of the prettiest things ever seen here and certainly new and novel; her dancing and glorious voice compelled her to respond to several encores. Their great finishing number "A Hundred Pipers" brought down the house. The pictures of our noble lads marching off to war is something every one should see. To-night the go-as-you-please competition when three good money prizes will be offered; there are a number of names given in. This contest will be conducted in first class style and all are assured of a real night's amusement.

On Saturday three prizes for the little ones; encourage home talent; send the little ones to see their soldier brothers in Rossley's moving pictures.

Patriotic Concert

AT PORT BLANDFORD.

On Easter Tuesday night a splendid patriotic concert was held in the Methodist School at Port Blandford by the following young ladies and gentlemen:—Misses Blandford, Stone, Adams, Dunton, Burry, Garrett, Pelley and Rowsell and Messrs. Tavernor, E. R. Rowsell, Oakley, S. Rowsell, Garrett and Pelley. The school-room was very nicely decorated for the occasion, and a full house greeted the performers. A very appropriate address was given by the Chairman, Rev. W. Boyes, after which a splendid programme consisting of choruses, recitations and dialogues was placed before the public and every item was warmly applauded. After the concert Misses Pelley and Oakley served coffee, cake and ice cream. Much credit is due those who took part, and all went home fully satisfied with the evening's performances. The proceeds which amounted to $25.00 will go towards the Belgian Relief Fund.

Sanitation Improved.

The catch basins recently installed in the various streets of the city by the Civic Commission, have done much towards the improvement of sanitation. These basins connect with the sewers, and carry off much of the washwater that was heretofore thrown carelessly into the cobble stone drains. We understand that several more of these are to be placed in various localities in the city.

AMERICAN TEXTILE INDUSTRY.

Gloomy View Taken of the Immediate Future.

Washington, April 6.—A gloomy view of the immediate future of the American textile industry was presented at the White House and the state department to-day by a committee representing 400 mills and headed by former representative Metz of New York. Unless some relaxation of the recent British blockade order-in-council is obtained and German dyestuffs reach them within six weeks time, Mr. Metz declared, 270 mills will be forced to close and 260,000 operatives be thrown out of work. When the textile representatives called at the German embassy after their conference with government officials, the Ambassador, Count Von Bernstorff suggested that there would be no further trouble about dyestuffs shipments if they could get the United States to threaten an embargo on exports of war supplies to Great Britain, unless interference with trade between America and Germany in foodstuffs, cotton and other non-contraband goods ceased. Whether the much wanted dyestuffs could be obtained, the ambassador insisted depended entirely upon whether the American government made such vigorous protests to Gt. Britain that they must be yielded to. England, he said, would soon stop interfering with legitimate commerce if the prospect of guns and ammunition from the United States being cut off were placed before the allies.

CUT HIS TONGUE OUT.

Austrians' Barbaric Method With Loyal Russian Soldier.

London, April 7.—Reuter's Petrograd correspondent sends the following: "A despatch from the commander in chief received to-night says: 'In the region of Zalesitrow, during the night of Saturday, the Austrians violently bombarded one of our fortifications with heavy guns, their fire killing almost all the defenders. The Austrian infantry then attacked and occupied our positions, but they were almost immediately dislodged by a counter attack made by a Russian company.'

"The Russians found in a trench one of their comrades, Makukusa whom the Austrians had captured and horribly mutilated. Makukusa had been acting as a telegraph operator, and, having refused to give the enemy information, his tongue was cut out. The commander in chief promoted Makukusa on the spot to rank as a non-commissioned officer and conferred on him the Cross of St. George, first class. He also expressed to Makukusa personal gratitude and commended his case to the attention of the Emperor for a double rate of pay."

ANOTHER "INOCULATE" AND IT'S ON ME, BOYS.

Harvard Professor Invites Students To Guard Against Germs.

Cambridge, Mass., April 7.—"Drop in any time during office hours and get inoculated against disease for nothing," is the invitation extended to all Harvard students by Dr. Roger I. Lee, professor of hygiene.

The doctor says you can never tell when you are going to fall into the clutches of the dread germ of typhoid and that forewarned is forearmed. Especially since the war in Europe is apt to breed diseases that may be brought into this country, one may pick up the germs in a thousand and one different ways. As to what happens after the virus is administered, Dr. Lee says:

"The preventative inoculations are three, at intervals of seven to ten days, and are practically painless. Occasionally within twenty-four to forty-eight hours after inoculation there is some disturbance of a mild nature."

SUBMARINES GET LESS THAN ONE QUARTER OF ONE P.C.

Statistics up to March 17 inclusive show that the effect of the German submarine blockade, though sensational as applied to individual ships sunk, are almost negligible in the main. As the report below shows, the losses so far have been less than one-quarter of one per cent of sailings. Here is the summary:—
Inward sailings 8220
Outward sailings 7629

Total 15849
Number torpedoed:—
British 30
Neutral 6
Total 36
0.227 per cent, or about two ships lost in every 1000 sailings.

MOBILIZED!—50,000 bottles of Stafford's Liniment for killing Rheumatism, Lumbago, Neuralgia and all Aches and Pains.

Evening Gowns
at Reduced Prices!

While many of the larger social functions are—on account of the war—conspicuous by their absence this season, there are never-the-less many smaller affairs which take place where a really smart gown is not only admissible, but really necessary.

¶ We are offering a limited number only of Evening and At-home Gowns and Blouses, in combinations of Silk and Net, Satin and Lace, Charmeuse, Ninon, Voile, etc.—in very beautiful designs, and in different sizes. These Gowns and Blouses are copies of French and American models, and, owing to the depression in trade, are to be sold at heavy reductions.

¶ This week presents an excellent chance for you to purchase a dainty Evening Gown for the coming Easter festivities at actual cost.
