THE BIG LEAGUE SERIES.

By Bert L. Standish, 75c. ea. Here they are! Just what you've been looking for. Baseball and Romance combined, the most interesting stories ever written.

The author managed a league team a number of years ago and is thoroughly familiar with the doings of baseball players on and off the field. Father and son will find equal delight in reading these magnificent stories.

"Any Boy with Plenty of Grit," "Baseball at its Finest," and "The Girl in the Case"—these are the elements which compose the most successful juvenile fiction ever written. You don't have to be a fan to enjoy these books; all you need to be is really human and alive, with plenty of red blood.

WHEN LOVE Came Too Late.

CHAPTER II.
"The Cherub."

"The Maples, do you mean?" said Olivia, her face crimsoning for an instant, ever so slightly. "That is Mr. Bartley Bradstone's new house. You don't admire it?"

"Good heavens! it is like a blot of red with— He stopped and colored. "I beg your pardon, Olivia; perhaps he's a friend of yours."

"Oh, we know him," she said, carelessly. "Isn't it ugly; isn't it? But that is the only change, Bertie; you will find us just the same, and very, very glad to see you."

"Isn't that just how you used to speak in the old times?" he exclaimed enthusiastically. "Now you're the little girl with the long, black legs— He stopped and stammered, and Olivia laughed. Suddenly the two dogs set up a violent barking, and the two young people, hurrying to see the cause, saw a huge mastiff with a broken chain attached to his collar traveling down the road toward them.

It is needless to say that neither Olivia nor Bertie was alarmed; but the dogs were very much upset at the terrific apparition, and, yelping, half-indignantly, half-frightfully, made a noise loud enough to rouse the sleepers in Hawkwood churchyard.

"Is this one of your dogs?" asked Bertie. ("Be quiet, you two! Quiet, Fritz; shut up, Folly!") It has broken loose and followed you, I suppose?"

"It isn't mine," commenced Olivia; but before she remembering Mr. Sparrow's story—could explain, a tall gentleman opened the gate of The Dell, and came toward them, calling, "Leo! Leo!"

The dog stopped instantly, and the owner seemed about to go back with him, when, as if reluctantly, he came forward and raised his hat.

Olivia felt rather than saw his dark eyes fixed on her, and, lifting hers, saw with this distinguished-looking man, with the handsome and strangely grave and reserved face, must be "the mysterious stranger," as she had jestingly called him. He was young, as Mr. Sparrow had said, but the dark hair was touched where it was cut close on the temples with faint streaks of gray, and the eyes, with their singularly impressive expression, were full of a reserved melancholy.

"I am afraid my dog—" he said, in a grave voice. Then he stopped; and Olivia, looking up to see the cause, saw a strange thing.

On Bertie's frank face were two expressions struggling for mastery—astonishment, that might or might not have been recognition, and a desire to crush down all sign of this recognition, if recognition it was. On the stranger's face was simply

Aching Bones and Sore Joints Cured All Rheumatic Tendencies Destroyed

Away Go the Crutches, Every Sufferer Made Well Quickly.

Old age is usually afflicted with rheumatism. Very few past fifty escape its tortures. Many it bends and deforms. Upon the countenances of others it marks the effects of its awful suffering. Nerviline will cure rheumatism. It takes the pain out of throbbing muscles and swollen joints. It untwists gnarled knuckles. It does this quickly and surely.

Nerviline is not used internally. You just rub it on—lots of hard rubbing is required for a minute or two, and then you feel Nerviline penetrate through the tissues; you feel it drawing out the congestion, feel it sink in deeper and deeper till at last it touches the core of the joint or the heart of the muscle affected.

You won't stay in pain with Nerviline—no one ever does. Just try it—you will be amazed at its magical power over pain, a power it gets from the extracts and juices of certain rare herbs and roots it contains. It's harmless—any child can use Nerviline, can rub it on for a sore throat, for a bad cold, for stiff neck, for sprains. No family remedy half so useful.

the voice of Mr. Bartley Bradstone, and both Olivia and Bertie heard these words:

"It's a deuce of a mess, a regular tangle; but we'll get out of it. Just trust to me—"

Bertie looked up at Olivia, and saw her start and her dark brows come together.

"Who is that?" he asked, in a slightly lowered voice.

"That is Mr. Bradstone," she said. The same moment that gentleman and the squire came out upon them.

The squire started slightly, and Bartley Bradstone looked from one to the other with the suspicious, searching look peculiar to him. Then the squire's face cleared, and he gave both hands to Lord Granville.

"Why, Cherub!" he exclaimed, in altogether happier tones than he have hitherto heard him use. "Welcome back! How well you look, my boy!"

"Doesn't he, papa!" exclaimed Olivia, eagerly.

"Why, you've—yes, you've actually grown," said the squire.

"Oh, come now!" remonstrated Bertie, laughing and blushing. "That is rather too thin, even for me, squire."

"But you have. How glad I am to see you! And your father—is he well?" As he turned he caught sight of Mr. Bartley Bradstone, who was standing looking at them with a half-sullen, half-jealous air, and the smile vanished from the squire's face. "I beg your pardon," he said; "let me introduce you to our neighbor and friend, Mr. Bradstone. This is Lord Granville, our old friend Bertie, Bradstone."

The two men exchanged bows; Bertie with a pleasant frankness and cordiality, Bartley Bradstone with hardly suppressed sullenness.

"I was going to call on you tomorrow, Mr. Bradstone," said Bertie. "I am happy to make your acquaintance. My father tells me that you have gone in a very heavily for preserving. By George! it was time some one did, for, begging the squire's pardon, pheasants and partridges in Hawkwood were getting very rare birds, indeed!" and he nodded with much gravity at Mr. Vanley.

"Oh, yes," said Bartley Bradstone, with an unaffected drawl. "I'm going to preserve; it's the duty of every country gentleman, I take it."

Bertie looked at him quickly, and a shade of disapproval swept over his handsome, girlish face. Bartley Bradstone's voice was that of the cad, and of course Bertie detected it.

"The squire hasn't preserved as closely as he might have done," he said, rather gravely for him, "because he is too tender-hearted to the village people."

"The village people will find me a very different kind of customer if they come poaching on my land, my lord," retorted Bartley Bradstone.

Now, a gentleman, though he be a commoner, does not address a nobleman, to whom he has been introduced on equal terms, as "my lord," and this time Bertie glanced coldly at the new neighbor, and, apparently now quite satisfied, turned from him to the squire and talked with him.

They made their way to the house, Olivia and her father chatting over old times and Bertie's travels with her, and thus Bartley Bradstone was left out in the cold, or thought that he was. He stopped at the bottom of the flight of steps and looked at his watch.

"It's time I was going," he said, sullenly.

The squire started. "I hope you'll stay to dinner, Bradstone," he said, and the preoccupied and almost anxious look which had been absent while he had been talking to Bertie, came over his face again.

"No thanks; I've got an engagement," replied Mr. Bradstone. "Good-day; don't trouble, I can get my horse;" for the squire made a movement to accompany him; and raising his hat a couple of inches to Olivia, who bowed in silence, he strode off.

An awkward silence fell upon the three.

"That's—that's a very clever young man," said the squire, with a little cough; "very clever. I think you'll find him quite an acquisition to the neighborhood, Bertie."

"Oh, yes," said Bertie; "rather a—"

Little Lectures by NURSE WINGARNIS. (Lecture No. 1.)

Anemia

Our blood is composed of red and white corpuscles—the red to nourish the body, the white to fight disease. In Anemia—or bloodlessness—the red corpuscles are more or less deficient. Thus the blood cannot provide sufficient nourishment for the body. Therefore the face becomes white and "pasty"—the eyes become dull and "heavy"—and a feeling of intense weariness pervades the whole system.

To overcome Anemia, the blood supply needs recharging with red corpuscles. And it is here that WINGARNIS possesses such wonderful power. Because, being a blood-maker, "Wingarnis" creates a wealth of new, rich, red blood, which brings the roses back to the cheeks—gives a sparkle to the eyes—and surcharges the whole body with new vitality and new life.

THE THOUGHTS

THE COT FUND.

This Fund has become one of the most popular Funds and deservedly so. Two hundred beds and even more is not too large a "target" to aim at when we begin to realise how many cots our own men need just now. The blessed peace of a hospital in a bed with clean white sheets, after trench work, is a boon that we should be glad for them to have, and be glad to pay for.

Alas that some of our boys will never need beds again. So far we have only known the glory and pride of eager departing companies; now we begin to realize that not all will return. This brings home the seriousness of war. The "Rosary" of this incomplete life's hours always seems to lead to a Cross. Some beads are for sorrow, some for joy, but all lead to our last enemy Death. It requires strength to kiss the head of sorrow, but how hard it must be suddenly to have to kiss the Cross.

O memories that bless and burn!
O barren, gain and bitter loss!
I kiss each bead, and strive at last to learn
To kiss the Cross!

The great consolation always is that the Dark is followed by the Day; Good Friday is followed by Easter Sunday, and the Cross by the Resurrection.

IF HE IS GIVEN, BUT MONEY IS LOANED.

To one who sits down and thinks, the thought must come that if Life belongs to the Empire, it must surely be true that all material possessions belong to her as well. Almost the whole of her wealth has been created within her boundaries. It has been created by the sweat of her people's brows. All have had a share in this. Whether, in the processes of business, this wealth has accumulated in a few hands or been circulated among many, does not matter. The time is past when money is a criterion either of character or men-

THE THOUGHTS OF THEOBALD.

THE COT FUND.

This fund has become one of the most popular funds and deservedly so. Two hundred beds and even more are not large figures when you think of the number of beds in the Empire. It is a fund which will do much to ease the suffering of the Empire, and it is a fund which will do much to ease the suffering of the Empire.

Alas that some of our boys will never need beds again. So far we have only known the glory and pride of eager departing companies; now we begin to realize that not all will return. This brings home the seriousness of war. The "Rosary" of this incomplete life's hours always seems to lead to a Cross. Some heads sag for sorrow, some for joy, but all lead to our last enemy Death. It requires strength to kiss the head of sorrow, but how hard it must be suddenly to have to kiss the Cross.

O memories that bless and burn! O barren gain and bitter loss! I kiss each head, and strive at last to learn.

To kiss the Cross! The great consolation always is that the Dark is followed by the Day; Good Friday is followed by Easter Sunday, and the Cross by the Resurrection.

LIFE IS GIVEN, BUT MONEY IS LOANED.

To one who sits down and thinks, the thought must come that if life belongs to the Empire, it must surely be true that all material possessions belong to her as well. Almost the whole of her wealth has been created within her boundaries. It has been created by the sweat of her people's brows. All have had a share in this. Whether, in the process of business, this wealth has accumulated in a few hands or been circulated among many, does not matter. The time is past when money is a criterion either of character or mental ability. That being so, it is manifest that the wealth of the Empire, created by all the peoples of the Empire, belongs to the Empire as a whole. So that as this war is the Empire's, as a whole, it follows that all the resources of the Empire must be engaged in order to make the victory complete, and soon. The vital resources are our men. It is almost inconceivable for them, for the call certainly must strike every young man.

And not because of any love for war, but because he thinks there is a duty involved, and sometimes because he sees everyone around him going, he joins the Colours. In no sense does he loan himself to the Empire; for her to do with him as she will, even to the death. Now how is it that our material resources are only loaned to the Empire, while our lives are given? If you add all the sums that have been given for Patriotic Funds, you will find that it all could be supplied by one or two of our rich men if they had offered their material possessions as our volunteers have offered their lives. I know that it would not do to take away capital from our businesses, but I refer to the excess money which is made every year and which in many cases is not re-invested in the Colony.

The Shell Company offers a splendid opportunity in this way. The Government surely had no faith in the patriotism of our rich men when it felt compelled to guarantee a dividend on money invested in it. At any rate we have now the example of the Canadian Cartridge Co. which returned $750,000.00 of its profits to the Government. This action is not so much remarkable as an act of generosity as it is an eye-opener to the enormous profits being made. Surely such profits are as much anti-British as a cheer for the Kaiser would be. My point is this: Inasmuch as all have contributed of their physical and mental strength to create the wealth of the Empire, so ought the surplus money, the money held which is so far in excess of ordinary requirements, be returned to the Empire, to help our common cause. Even if it is not given to the Empire, let it be loaned without interest.

LOYAL OLD TRINITY.

I am told that in Trinity and in Dunfield (near Trinity) there is not a man, single and eligible for service, who has not enlisted, either in the Regiment or the Naval Reserve. It is a remarkable record and one, I think, that cannot be approached by any other towns in the Island. Private W. Tibbs, a Gallipoli veteran, is proud of his native town, and with such a record behind him, ought to make a good recruiting sergeant on his trip north.

MORE TARIYA.

In spite of the apparent failure of the first experiment in Tarvia road-making and in spite of the fact that other cities have reported unfavourably on its qualities, our Council is proceeding with the work, and extending the tarvia road. This, in the face of so many streets unprotected from the dust on the plea of economy of water carts, and streets needing small repairs; in the face of so many houses needing sewerage connection, and so many workmen's houses needing it, is disappointing, to say the least, that the new Council should have inaugurated its term by an admission that money should be spent on paving a street rather than in securing more healthful conditions in the back streets. This portion of Duckworth Street is not at all thickly populated either. If the money that the Council uses to pay its proportion of the cost of the tarvia is taken from the general road funds of the city, then I consider that it is far from being fair to the rest of the city. The Post Office is now a public resort, so that the atmosphere cannot be very pure. In this atmosphere, drawn through the open shutter of this small office, clerks have to live all day. It is the principal telegraph office in the Postal service, and is far too small for the work. It is almost impossible to stretch one's legs in it. It is also unfair to the public to have no place that can be considered private to write telegrams. I might enlarge on other disadvantages of this "corner" office, but I trust I have written enough to draw the attention of the authorities to a state of affairs that is fair neither to the employees nor to the public.

Your Boys and Girls.

Scientists say sugar is a very good food for children if it is properly eaten. The trouble with a great deal of candy is not with the sugar it contains, but with other harmful ingredients. Another trouble is that too much candy is eaten at a time, and that it is eaten at the wrong time—between meals.

The best candy for children consists of a little pure chocolate or sweet chocolate tablets—or pure sugar, as in a lump of sugar or pure rock candy or barley sugar. Only a little of this should be eaten at a time and preferably it should be eaten after meals so that it will not spoil the natural appetite for other things.

Children should always be taught not to twist or wring the nose when using the handkerchief. This habit is often the cause of a mis-shapen nose. Rough handling is also apt to enlarge the nose and make it red. The redness can in some cases be reduced by bathing the nose twice daily with witch hazel.

Witch hazel is best used to make the lips for her by cutting dress shiflets in two and covering each half with soft material. These protect her dresses and are as easy to launder as any other bits.

Newfoundlanders Charge Hopesless Task

SURVIVORS' ACCOUNTS—WOUNDED SHOT ON RESCUER'S BACK.
 (Daily Mail, July 14.)

"Newfoundlanders I salute you individually. You have done better than the best."
 Thus the General to the men of the Newfoundland Regiment after its great attack on July 1. The Newfoundlanders were given what is now recognized to have been an impossible task, and although they failed the story of their bravery and daring will live for ever.

The regiment had been in reserve waiting to take its appointed place in the great attack—the capture of the third line of German trenches immediately in front of them. The task of capturing the first and second lines was assigned to English line regiments.

POSTAL-TELEGRAPHS.
 I beg to call the attention of the Public Health Officer to the office of the Postal Telegraphs which is on the first floor of the Post Office. This office is about 5 ft. by 9 ft. and perhaps 10 ft. high. It is occupied generally by the Clerk in Charge and three or four messenger boys who fill the office pretty well. The Post Office is now a public resort, so that the atmosphere cannot be very pure. In this atmosphere, drawn through the open shutter of this small office, clerks have to live all day. It is the principal telegraph office in the Postal service, and is far too small for the work. It is almost impossible to stretch one's legs in it. It is also unfair to the public to have no place that can be considered private to write telegrams. I might enlarge on other disadvantages of this "corner" office, but I trust I have written enough to draw the attention of the authorities to a state of affairs that is fair neither to the employees nor to the public.

"Right to it This Time."
 "Officers fell right and left, but as they fell they waved their men on 'right to it this time,' was the cry. A second lieutenant speedily found himself in charge of a company, and as he fell a sergeant sprang forward to take his place. Companies melted away, but as each man fell he always cried, 'Now right on boys, right to it this time!' That was their slogan, and bounding from shell-hole to shell-hole these gallant lads struggled towards the German wire, a few reached the German wire, which 'marvellous to relate, was almost intact. But they could do no more. The charges were over—they had failed, but in brave company, for at the outset they all realized that what had been impossible for eight English regiments was not possible for them."

FOUR DAYS' ORDEAL.
 His rations were 'gone' exhausted and he had to take food and water from the dead round him. At the end of the fourth day, he determined to make for the trenches, but which he did not know. By good fortune he chose the right direction, and was taken in by a British patrol. He was quite unconcerned with regard to his adventure and the only explanation he gave was, "Oh, I was fed up with

Lt.-Colonel Hadow's Report.

Although it adds little to the facts which are already known, the official report of the Commanding Officer of the Regiment is welcome for several reasons.

It portrays clearly the main features of the engagement. The details are being filled in one by one from other sources, though many incidents of heroism will probably never be told. It gives most important figures—the total number that took part in the engagement, and the casualties so far as known. From them the many heroes who are still anxious and uninformed of the fate of those who have not yet been officially mentioned may derive great measure of comfort. Such men will be numbered either among the 97 or 100-odd who have come through scatheless, or among the 111 who are missing. His Excellency makes the reassuring statement that many of those who reached the German line and did not return may be prisoners of war, and will be well treated. It is quite incorrect to assume, as many hastily do, that they have been killed.

Unfortunately, much anxiety must continue to be felt, largely for the reason that it is impossible to ascertain the names of those that have survived unhurt. The rigid censorship at the front prevents our hearing from them direct, though now and then some wounded lad conveys in a letter the welcome news that a friend or two came through unscathed. We can only encourage all who are still in suspense to patience and hope. Of the total whose names we have not heard nearly one half are still hale and with the regiment, and of the rest a large proportion may be alive as prisoners in German hands or wounded and in German hospitals.

On the Colonel's appreciation of the bravery of his troops it is unnecessary to dilate. It adds one more, and one of the most valuable, to a hundred similar testimonies. "I can only say that I am proud to command such officers and men." Words like these light up such tragedies and cause us to think that they have not been all in vain.

Since the above was written we have received the memorandum from His Excellency, which we print elsewhere. It shows very clearly the position, and what we may most probably expect to hear. We are glad that the names of those unaccounted for have been ascertained negatively, from their appearing in no casualty lists; but until all these lists are complete and published, there is, of course, no certainty concerning anyone not included in them. All will be grateful to His Excellency for the efforts that are being made to fill up all the gaps possible in the information; every name returned among the unaccounted will mean some hearts gladdened by hope fulfilled.

The following notice of the Ayres appeared in the London Times. It tells the pathetic coincidence of the deaths of the brother Captains, Eric and Bernard, and gives us the first details we have heard of how the latter was killed "just before his company reached its objective."

A FAMILY'S PATRIOTISM.

Four Newfoundland Cousins Killed. A notable instance of family patriotism is disclosed in the lists of officers who have fallen in the battle of the Somme. The officers killed whose names are published officially to-day include Captain E. S. Ayre, Second Lieutenant G. W. Ayre, and Second Lieutenant W. D. Ayre, all of the Newfoundland Regiment, and all cousins and members of a well-known Newfoundland family. Saturday's list contained the name of Captain B. F. Ayre, of the Norfolk Regiment, who was a brother of Captain E. S. Ayre.

Their mother, who is at present in England, has received news that the two were killed on the same day, July 1. It is understood that while they had never met since they had reached France, they were killed within a few miles of each other. Of Captain Bernard Ayre a brother officer writes that he was killed just before his company reached its objective. He was smoking his pipe and leading his men with his stick. "I recovered his body yesterday and had it brought to the cemetery. The chaplain read the service over the grave with the guns roaring all round. More than a hundred of us attended the service, although every one of us was exhausted. This alone shows how he was loved and respected."

Memorandum by His Excellency the Governor.

It is impossible that any further Casualty Lists following on the battle of July 1st will be received for some time to come.

On the 1st July the actual strength of the Newfoundland Regiment was 26 officers and 783 other ranks. There are mentioned in Colonel Hadow's dispatch in reserve 14 officers and 75 other ranks besides the men specially detached on other duties. It is probable that there were 200 officers and men who did not take part in the actual advance.

Of those who took part in the action (out of the total of 809) 2 officers and 95 other ranks are reported to have returned unaccounted for.

The official returns show that 110 officers and men are reported killed in action or died of wounds, and 495 officers and men are reported wounded. The number still unaccounted for includes 1 officer and 114 of other ranks.

The Governor has now called by telegraph for lists in the following form:—
(1) Those who took part in the charge and returned unaccounted for.
(2) Those who were held in reserve or who were on special duty and were thus unable to take part in the charge and who are unaccounted for.
(3) Those who remain unaccounted for.

Of those who are unaccounted for it is probable that most of them fell either in the enemy trenches or wounded in front of them where our stretcher bearers were unable to remove them, on account of the enemy firing on the hospital parties. Judging from the proportion of killed to wounded (110 to 495) it is reasonable to suppose that of the 115 unaccounted for 25 may have been killed and 90 wounded or disabled in some way. These 90 were probably carried to our enemy Casualty Hospitals and treated among their own wounded and have been transferred to Germany as prisoners of war.

Returns regarding prisoners of war in enemy hands will not reach us for some weeks. The Agents of the American Embassy at Berlin make it their business to obtain particulars as to the arrival of prisoners of war in Germany and transmit the lists through the American Embassy in London to the War Office. The Governor estimates that complete lists will not be obtained under two months.

There are about 300 men of whom we have no particulars as yet, namely, those who returned unaccounted for from the charge (95) those who were in reserve or otherwise employed (about 100) and those who advanced and are still unaccounted for (115).

Of these we know that 200 are on duty unaccounted for and of the remaining 115 we hope that about 90 are wounded prisoners of war, and of whom will probably make a complete recovery.

In addition to these gallant fighting men there were 27 others who "preferred to take their discharge and desert their comrades who were then actually starting on the march which was to take them into this great battle." Of these time-expired men 13 are reported to be returning to their homes on the s.s. Corinthian. W.E.D.

False Rumors and the Casualty Lists.

LETTER FROM THE COLONIAL SECRETARY.

29th July, 1916.

Dear Sir,—During this week, a number of rumors have been current in reference to the Casualty Lists of the First Newfoundland Regiment. It was stated by many persons that a long list of Privates who had been killed had come in—some knew the list was received on Sunday, others asserted that it arrived on Monday, still more on Tuesday, while the actual number of killed on the list was in some cases given and in a few cases actual names were mentioned. There was no truth whatever in these rumors, though some persons stated that there was undoubtedly authority for them. As a rule I do not take notice of such rumors, but in the present instance, knowing the anxiety felt by many who have boys in the Regiment, I think it well to put myself on record in the hope that my statements may steady the anxious hearts and lead them to see that there is no faith whatever to be put in the reports which are always so prevalent here.

The list containing the names of fifty-seven (57) Non-Com's and Privates of the Newfoundland Regiment who had been killed in action on the 1st instant, was received by His Excellency the Governor just before twelve o'clock (noon) on Wednesday, the 29th instant. This message was immediately decoded and a copy timed a "noon" was sent to His Excellency the Governor to this office, reaching here at twelve-fifteen p.m. The Official List showing those belonging to the city was posted in the Post Office at 5.20 p.m. This message was forwarded by the Official List of those men who resided in parts of Newfoundland other than the city of St. John's. The rule established here in relation to fatalities is, that the next of-kin be visited by the Clergyman and the sad news communicated, after which the official intimation is sent. As soon as this office learns that the various Clergymen have performed their sad duties, the lists are posted in the city and copies sent to the newspapers. In this way it is thought first of all to break the sorrowful news to those who are immediately concerned, and when this has been done the general public are given the lists as quickly as possible. This alone shows how he was loved and respected.

From the time when the first Casualty List was received, down to the present, there has been hard at work, Sundays and Mondays, at night as well as day, and in some instances, as late as three o'clock in the morning, the clerks engaged in this connection, and as head of the Department, I am glad to bear testimony to the excellent work done by my staff with assiduity, celerity and loyalty.

In closing, I would ask the public to place no reliance, whatever, upon any reports that they may hear, but to wait patiently for the Official List and to believe nothing else. These lists are published with the least possible delay, and I should not for a moment countenance the withholding of such lists after the next-of-kin have been notified. When the next-of-kin resides outside St. John's a telegram is at once despatched to the Clergyman and also to the relatives, that of the Clergyman being first delivered. The list is, however, posted or published in St. John's as soon as the next-of-kin in the city have been notified.

We need all our courage, patience and strength in the time of sadness. Let us not be frightened by shadows or false rumors and unfounded reports; but let us steady our nerves and pay heed to any but the official reports. And, in loyalty to our boys, who are fighting for us, and with sympathy for the fathers and mothers whose hearts are so anxious, let each one see that, so far as he or she is concerned, there shall be no more of these unfounded statements that cause so much unnecessary suffering.

Yours truly,
J. R. BENNETT,
Colonial Secretary.

The Infant Welfare Campaign.

Mr. B. S. Straus, J.P., in presiding at the sixteenth annual meeting of Virol Limited, held in London on 27th June, stated that it was a striking tribute not only to the power of the British Navy, but also in an especial degree to the efficiency and courage of the Mercantile Marine, that in the peculiar circumstances of the times the business of the country, with all its vast requirements, had been carried on and so large an export trade maintained.

The improvement shown by their own accounts had extended to all branches of their business, including Hospitals and Sanatoria, Public Health Authorities, in connection with the Infant Welfare Movement, and the development of their home and export trade. More than 1500 Hospitals, Consumption Sanatoria, and Clinics were large and regular purchasers of Virol.

He was especially pleased to state although manufacturing and distributing costs had risen substantially, they had, as a result of a record increase in their sales, been able to show improved results without having advanced their prices to the public.

With regard to the use of their preparation by the Public Health Authorities in connection with the Infant Mortality crusade, there could be no question of the important part that proper feeding must play in the reduction of the Infant Death Rate. The universally acknowledged value of Virol, whether given to the child direct or through the agency of the mother, who herself fed her child, confirmed the belief that in this connection Virol stood in a unique position as a National Asset.

He desired also to call the attention of the Governing Authorities of our Great Fever Hospitals to the consideration of the fact that the period of convalescence might be considerably shortened by more generally vitrolizing the diet of their patients. He felt sure that by this means a very large economy could be effected in the administrative expenses of these invaluable institutions, through whose wards such enormous numbers of children passed year by year.

The Report and Accounts were unanimously adopted.

A GLORIOUS VICTORY. LONDON.—A German submarine sank a British fleet of herring fishing boats. Eight vessels were sunk and 100 landed to-day at the mouth of Tynemouth.

GERMANS INTERN STEWARDESSES. LONDON.—The British Foreign Office formed that five stewardesses on the steamer Brussels have been in a German detention camp.

Foreign Office has sent a dispatch to the American Embassy demanding their immediate release on the ground that their detention is illegal.

A VALLANT DEFENSE. LONDON.—A Turkish army estimated at 100,000 strong is now concentrating in Hungary, says a despatch to the change Telegraph Company from Zanne. A Switzerland despatch says the Austrian Emperor has left Budapest, where intense excitement prevails.

ATTEMPT ON COUNCIL. LONDON.—An unsuccessful attempt was recently made to assassinate the Hungarian Premier, in a report from Budapest, says the Ireland despatch to the Morning Post.

LLOYD GEORGE STILL IN DENIAL. LONDON.—I don't despair about the situation, or the crisis of the present in spite of the recent failure of an agreement between the British and Unionists, said Lloyd to-day, replying to a question of the Associated Press for news of the breakdown of negotiations between the Irish Home Rule and effect immediately. We have at least one thing that had never been accomplished, said the War Secretary, we brought the talismans of Irish Nationalism to a point of shaking hands and shaking fists at each other. The Secretary for War is still confident regarding the Irish situation.

THE CASE OF CAPTAIN FRATT. LONDON.—Discussing the cases with the Associated Press, Baron Neville, Secretary of Foreign Affairs, during the conversation was asked to Foreign Secretary's view on a conference on the subject in the face of the details of the case as received by the British. Captain Fratt seems to be a more than the Cavell case. It is a grave incident, the importance of which would be difficult to estimate. It must be borne in mind when the alleged ramming of German submarines were at merchant ships without any warning whatsoever. According to messages from Germany, Fratt was executed for a franchise against an armed German. Officers of the Admiralty were asked to intensify indignation. He learned of the affair. It is a violation of all law and precedent at sea. It affects the merchant officer in the world as well as belligerent. There is nothing known as a franchise. We have officers of German ships whom we have taken as prisoners of war who rammed our ships without warning and they are treated as prisoners. We have naval officers who have bombed undefended towns and killed inhabitants. In the course of service Fratt was known as a franchise because on several occasions he succeeded in eluding German ships by skilful navigation. When the Daily Chronicle, it is a reference to Capt. Fratt, a titular of a brilliant expedition in 1915, he was presented with a watch suitably inscribed by the Commissioner of the Admiralty with their thanks. On another occasion, some according to the Chronicle, he was chased for over 24 hours by a submarine while he was bound from Harwich to the North Hinder Lightship, and fired at his vessel, missing it a few feet.

TO-DAY'S Messages.

10.30 A.M.

A GLORIOUS VICTORY.

LONDON, To-Day. A German submarine raided a British fleet of herring fishing boats. Eight vessels were sunk and the crews landed to-day at the north seaport of Tynemouth.

GERMANS INTERN STEWARDSESSES.

LONDON, To-Day. The British Foreign Office was informed that five stewardesses of the steamer Brussels have been confined in a German detention camp. The Foreign Office has sent a vigorous protest to the American Embassy, demanding their immediate release on the ground that their internment is illegal.

A VALIANT DEFENCE!

LONDON, To-Day. A Turkish army estimated at 7,000 strong is now concentrated in the Hungarian plains for the defence of Hungary, says a despatch to the Exchange Telegraph Company from Luzzanne. A Switzerland despatch adds the Austrian Emperor has gone to Budapest, where intense excitement prevails.

ATTEMPT ON COUNT TIZA

LONDON, To-Day. An unsuccessful attempt was made recently to assassinate Count Tiza, the Hungarian Premier, according to a report from Budapest, says a Switzerland despatch to the Daily Mail.

LLOYD GEORGE STILL HOPEFUL.

LONDON, To-Day. I don't despair about events and the situation, or the crisis of the problem, in spite of the recent failure to reach an agreement between the Nationalists and Unionists, said Lloyd George to-day, replying to a request from the Associated Press for his views of the breakdown of negotiations for putting the Irish Home Rule Act into effect immediately. "We achieved at least one thing that had never hitherto been accomplished," continued the War Secretary; "we brought representatives of Irish Nationalists to the point of shaking hands instead of shaking fists at each other." The Secretary for War is still full of optimism regarding the Irish difficulty.

THE CASE OF CAPTAIN FRYATT.

LONDON, To-Day. Discussing the case with the Associated Press, Baron Newton, Under-Secretary of Foreign Affairs, who during the conversation was summoned to Foreign Secretary Grey's office for a conference on the subject, said, "On the face of the details of the report as received by us, the execution of Captain Fryatt seems to be worse than the Cavell case. It is an extremely grave incident, the importance of which it would be difficult to exaggerate. It must be borne in mind that when the alleged ramming took place, German submarines were attacking merchant ships without any warning whatsoever. According to wireless messages from Germany Capt. Fryatt was executed for a frigate crime against an armed German sea force. Officers of the Admiralty were aroused to intense indignation when they learned of the affair. A naval officer said, the execution of Captain Fryatt is a violation of all law and all precedent at sea. It affects every merchant officer in the world, neutral as well as belligerent. There is no such thing known as a frigate crime at sea. We have officers of German submarines whom we have taken as prisoners of war who rammed merchant ships without warning, but they are treated as prisoners of war. We have naval officers who dropped bombs from Zeppelins on harmless undefended towns and killed civilian inhabitants. In the cross Channel service Fryatt was known as a pirate because on several occasions he succeeded in eluding German submarines by skilful navigation. When the capture of the Brussels was reported in the Daily Chronicle, it said, with reference to Capt. Fryatt, that for particulars of a brilliant exploit in March, 1915, he was presented with a gold watch suitably inscribed by the Lord Commissioner of the Admiralty, together with their thanks on vellum. On another occasion, some 12 months before he surrendered the Brussels, according to the Chronicle, his vessel was chased for over an hour by a submarine while he was outward bound from Harwich to Rotterdam, but he succeeded in getting safely away. A few days later, when off the North Hinder Lightship, a torpedo was fired at his vessel, missing it by only a few feet.

CAPTURE OF BRODY MENACES

LEMBERG, July 29.

LONDON, To-Day. While the battle of the Somme is continuing with methodical success by the British forces, the Russians are able to announce another important victory in the capture of Brody. This Galician town is 58 miles north-east of Lemberg, a great railway junction. It had been expected that the Austrians would retain it at all costs. Swift as it was unexpected, this new Russian stroke may lead to the capture of Lemberg itself. The Russians, according to Petrograd, have broken the whole Austro-German front west of Lutsk. In this success they are reported to have captured two Generals, 3,000 prisoners and 40 guns. The fall of Brody is a serious threat to Lemberg, and the rapid and successful advance of General Sakharoff's forces menaces the whole Austro-German line and its communications from north to south. For the present Kovel yields in importance to Lemberg. The position on this portion of the Russian front seems to be that General Linsingen's left wing behind the Stokhod River, has suspended its advance toward Kovel and is holding up great Teutonic forces there, while General Sakharoff is pressing on towards Lemberg, which is defended by the forces of General Boehmermuller. Correspondents attribute the successes over the Austro-Germans almost entirely to the overwhelming superiority of the Russian artillery and their apparently endless supply of ammunition.

TRADE UNIONS CONGRATULATE HAIG.

LONDON, To-Day.

The following telegram has passed between the Manager of the Committee of General Federation of Trade Unions and Sir Douglas Haig: "The management of the Committee of General Federation of Trade Unions, representing over a million British workers, sends sincere congratulations to you and to your staff and to your heroic soldiers on the successes achieved since July 1st, and also wishes for the speedy recovery of the wounded, and expresses deepest sympathy with the relatives of those who died in defence of the honor and civilization." Appleton, Secretary.

DELVILLE WOOD A GREAT CAPTURE.

LONDON, To-Day.

To-night's official report from the British War Office shows the British are continuing their successful progress. The whole of Longueval is in their hands as well as Delville Wood, from which they drove the First Brandenburg Division. The final capture of Delville Wood is very gratifying to the British people. It was first taken on July 17th but was afterwards abandoned. For many days the Wood and Village of Longueval have been the scene of one of the heaviest fighting of the whole campaign. The possession of this Wood and of Longueval is expected to facilitate greatly the further progress of the Franco-British forces.

In Loving Memory

Of JOHN THOMAS LUKINS, killed in Action June 28th, 1916, Veteran of Gallipoli and Caribou Hill.

I left my wife, my little ones,
A cry went up for help;
I volunteered to take my part,
My duty to fulfil.

Our little hand called out to fight,
A band so brave and gay;
But though it was not very long
When I was called away.

No mother to wet my parched lips,
No wife to say good-bye;
None of my friends were standing near,
Yet God was very nigh.

God called me to a noble band
A band of pure delight;
Where Saints and Angels ever sing,
Nor weary day or night.

God bore my fainting spirit, where
He bids the weary rest
On Him who doeth all things well,
For God alone gives rest.

My brother was in the firing line,
My brother, brave and true;
But mother, what a blessing, dear,
If he is spared to you.

Mother dear, I'm gone with Jesus,
Angels waited to bear me home;
Leaving you my darling mother,
Leaving you, but not alone.

One little word to father dear,
You'll not forget your boy;
'Twas for my King and Country's sake
I gave my life and died.

Sisters, you'll find it hard to part
From the brother you loved so well;
But most of all, my dear above,
Where Saints and Angels dwell.

There no tears shall dim thy eyes,
Nothing shall mar our peace with God
For we shall dwell on high,
In heaven I'll meet you there.

Dear wife, I pray you do not mourn,
'Twas Jesus bid me come;
And Angels they were waiting
To bear my spirit home.

Dear wife be kind to our little ones,
My spirit will hover around,
And for your darling husband's sake
A blessing will be found.

My friends I bid you all adieu,
I leave you in God's hands;
Although we'll meet no more on earth
In heaven I'll meet you there.

But now my work is ended,
I have been called to rest,
And the cross of my legion of honor
Has been pinned by God to my breast.

"Lame Duck" Reaches Port.

The Norwegian steamer Athos crippled by a mine on July 28th. She was bound from a Nova Scotia port to Glasgow with a cargo of lumber and on Sunday last, as previously reported, went ashore during a dense fog on the west side of Cape Pine.

The same day she was re-floated and put into Trepassey half filled with water. A portion of her cargo forward was leaking most seriously and was removed. The pumps were kept going continuously. Some slight repairs were effected below the water line by Diver Butler, after which the ship left for here. She is now at Prowse's Southside premises waiting to be dry docked for complete repairs.

A PRACTICAL COMFORTABLE GARMENT.

1762—Ladies' Apron. This style is nice for percale, gingham, chambray, lawn, drill, salmon or mohair. The right front overlaps the left at the closing. The fullness of the sleeve is plaited or gathered under a tab. One could wear this model as a morning dress, for it furnishes a complete covering, and for warm weather is an ideal garment. The belt may be omitted. The Pattern is cut in 3 sizes: Small, Medium and Large. It requires 6 1/2 yards of 36-inch material for a Medium size. A pattern of this illustration mailed to any address on receipt of 10 cents in silver or stamps.

A SMART FROCK FOR THE GROWING GIRL.

1617—Junior Dress in High or Low Neck, Empire Style, with or without Bolero, and with Two Styles of Sleeves. Cream challie, with a pink floral design and pink faille for bolero, is here combined. The model is nice for batiste, lawn, crepe, tulle, silk, voile, nun's veiling, net or chiffon. The Empire waist is especially pleasing and girlish. The dress will be lovely for dance or party wear. The bolero is new and attractive, and could be made of embroidery or sash ribbon. The Pattern is cut in 3 sizes: 12, 14 and 16 years. It requires 5 1/2 yards of 30-inch material for the dress, and 2 yards for the bolero, for a 14-year size. A pattern of this illustration mailed to any address on receipt of 10 cents in silver or stamps.

Danger Signals.

By RUTH CAMERON.

"Seems as if I should scream if this car stops at the next stop," a friend said to me the other day. "What's the matter with the next stop?" "Nothing at all," said she. "I just meant that I wanted the car to go ahead and not keep stopping."

"You're in a hurry?"

"It made her Nervous To Have The Car Stop."

"Oh, no, it just makes me nervous to have it keep stopping. Every time it passes a street without stopping I feel relieved."

Did you ever get into such a state of mind as that, reader friends?

I don't mean over the stopping of a street car, but over anything at all?

For instance, did you ever get a feeling of distaste toward some perfectly inoffensive person? I know a man who has that feeling toward a woman with whom he is thrown into contact. He thinks it is little things which she does that exasperate him—little mannerisms. As a matter of fact she doesn't do anything different from what she has always done, and her mannerisms haven't changed. The exasperation is subjective, not objective. It is just a state of mind into which he has permitted himself to get. His feeling toward her is merely a manifestation of it, and a manifestation which should be headed.

Stop, Look, and Listen!

He needs to look out.

So does everybody who gets into such a state of mind.

When you find that a squeaky door drives you to distraction, when the banging of a distant window shutter makes it impossible for you to work, your instinct is to go and fix the squeaky door or the shutter.

That's all right. Fix them, but don't think that settles the matter. Fix yourself, too.

When your mind is in such an irritated state that trifles torment it, there is something radically wrong. You need something—in nine cases out of ten, more outdoor exercise or more sleep, or both.

Some People Need More Sleep, Some More Exercise.

I asked this woman who was nervous when the car stopped how much she slept, and she said six hours a night.

The man who has the hate for the inoffensive housemate hasn't been getting half the out-door exercise he needs.

When your brain tells you by these danger signals that something is wrong, get out and walk. Walk the outdoor air into your whole system, walk the irritation out of your heart, walk a good healthy weariness into your body, and then go to bed and sleep it off.

Of course there may be other causes in your particular case, but try my treatment first, and then, if that doesn't work, get some expert advice—you need it.

Terra Novas Win In Fast Game.

The Terra Novas won over the Collegians last evening in the fastest and hardest fought football match for the season. The personnel of the teams were:—

Terra Novas—Walsh, goal; J. Hart, J. Kavanagh; backs, Duggan, Kavanagh, T. Jackman, halves; Evans, R. Jackman, Caul, Stimms, Kavanagh, forwards.

Collegians—Rabbits, goal; Chaney, Barnes, backs; Drover, Squires, Ellis, halves; Macklin, Quirk, King, Bartlett, Heath, forwards.

All the scoring was done in the first period. The Terra Novas scored twice and the Collegians once.

It is now a probability that the Terra Novas will be champions for 1916.

Editor Evening Telegram.

Dear Sir.—It is a source of great happiness to the Catholic people of St. John's that a move is on tending towards the building of a Church at Kilbride. Since the destruction by fire of the sacred edifice in that place in 1892, the congregation there has been at a disadvantage on account of the congested quarters in which they were called to worship and many were the expressions of desire on their part to have an opportunity to assist in the rebuilding of a suitable place for the celebration of the Divine Sacrifice. This work, being a work of love, will be carried through with earnestness by the committee in charge, backed and supported by the good people of Kilbride and their numerous well-wishing friends of St. John's.

From your very much perused paper, Mr. Editor, I read that the initial public step will be made on August 23rd in the holding of a Garden Party, for which I learn great preparations are being made. It is to be hoped that the results will more than gratify the expectations of all interested ones in this good work and be an incentive to greater exertion on their part towards its early completion.

Come along, then, friends and well-wishers; make a grand rally in support of this undertaking and assist in crowning the "Church Knoll" of Kilbride with an edifice to the glory of God.

Yours, etc.,

IN ANTICIPATION.

This is to certify that fourteen years ago I got the cords of my left wrist nearly severed, and was for about nine months that I had no use of my hand, and tried other Liniments, also doctors, and was receiving no benefit. By a persuasion from a friend I got MINARD'S LINIMENT and used one bottle which completely cured me, and have been using MINARD'S LINIMENT in my family ever since and find it the same as when I first used it, and would never be without it.

THE NEW SERIAL AT NICKEL THEATRE.

The Nickel Theatre was crowded last evening but this was not unexpected as the artistic orchestra of the Linger Florizel was present and rendered the music and the new serial "The Diamond from the Sky" began. The new serial opened well and all were delighted with it. The production of this picture cost a fabulous sum. The acting was perfect, and no doubt the serial will be the most popular ever shown here. The whole programme will be repeated this evening and those who were unable to attend yesterday should not miss it. On Monday there will be another grand performance of beautiful pictures.

MET WITH ACCIDENT.—Mr. Corneliu Picotto, shipwright, met with a painful accident yesterday afternoon while working on the Ronger at Bowring's Southside premises. He was at the time working over one of the hatches when he lost his balance and fell into the hold. He was picked up unconscious and brought to the main deck. Dr. Cowperthwaite was summoned and quickly responded, and on examination found his injuries not serious and ordered him to be removed to his home, Hamilton Avenue.

NOT A WHIRLWIND ATTACK.

Semi-officially, Paris tells us that the Allied attack now being made is not of the whirlwind type which, as in Champagne last year, may win 30,000 prisoners in a day, and which depends on speed and momentum thrown out of gear by an accident of weather or staff work. This is planned on a different system in the light of the lessons of Champagne and Verdun, and I can assure you that the results up to now fulfil and surpass the expectations of our soldiers. In the old wars there were two ways of assaulting a fortress. One could make a narrow breach and pass through storming columns with orders to reach the citadel at all costs. Or one could, after weakening the enemy, carry all his outer line by systematic attack and defence, without haste to reduce the next line. We are now working at a modern equivalent of the second method. Our men are confident that we can do so at any point where we choose to attempt it, and that if the opportunity was clear, we can revert to the first. And the London people, who through this spring, quietly awaited the offensive, are willing to wait the development of the Allies' grand scheme, and quietly welcome all the solid successes, which are now coming as instalments of it.

"THE GANG'S ALL HERE."

In a Surrey lane on Saturday I saw the Canadian troops in their thousands marching back from the review by the King. It would be difficult to exaggerate the quality of these powerful young soldiers, who so freely showed their eagerness to be in the big fight. In some of the battalions there was hardly a man under five foot eight, and the breadth of shoulder was remarkable. Every company had some old soldiers, and this was especially noticeable in the killed regiments. They were marching easy as they passed us, and from their speech it was plain that a number were from the old country or at any rate had kept pure the dialect of their fathers. The Midlands and Scotland were well represented, and also London. I even heard the racy up-and-down Surrey voices coming out from Canadian uniforms. But of course the overword was Canadian pure and forcible and mischievous. One of the party in our car was a young man in civilian clothes and he had a terrible grilling from these voices. "Have you heard about the war?" "Oh, yes, there's a war on—sure." "Haven't you heard about the war?" "So it went on for half an hour. The young man knew about the war, having received from the army after several wounds in Gallipoli, and he took it all in good part. A doggerel song the Canadians were singing was in its way tremendously expressive of the great rally of Britons from all over the earth on the day of the great push:—

Hail! Hail! the gang's all here,
(What in heck do we care?)
What in heck do we care?
Hail! Hail! the gang's all here,
What in heck do we care now?

"NELL FOY" DOLLMAKER.

A lady has found a novel and—given considerable courage, which she possesses—highly practical way of capturing the German trade. She is a daughter of a Peer who does not want to mix up family with business, and she calls herself "Nell Foy." It is the new-old story of dollmaking, with a difference. As a young girl she studied sculpture in Germany, and also made dolls in a German factory for a work-woman's wage. She did not receive much money, but she learnt how to make dolls of German lines at what are politely called competitive prices, that is to say, to turn out a useful article at a wholesale price which secures the market. The bother which the new dollmaking industries have met is that though villagers put in an immense amount of patient, conscientious work, and turn out a solid, well-finished article, it often cannot be sold in the open market at the price which makes it worth while. Miss Nell Foy, whose factory in artistic Chelsea I looked over with the critical eye of one accustomed to many well-meaning works, seems to have got over this difficulty. She is making dolls per-

LIFT GIRLS SET THE FASHION

The new uniforms for women are now influencing the style of dress adopted by ordinary well-dressed women. Smart women are ordering costumes with coats cut on the Redingote lines of those worn by the lift girls at a West End shopping establishment. Until a little while ago the Cossack girl commissionaire outside a Regent Street hat shop, in her astrakhan hat, Russian tunic, and high top boots, was, by general consent, the most smartly uniformed woman in London, but the purple-clad "Princess Charmings" of the establishment referred to, in their riding breeches with graceful Redingote to the knee, where it is met by patent leather riding-boots, are close rivals.

AMERICANS WITH THE COLORS.

Though official America resolutely refuses to sever from a policy of unending neutrality, the interest of Americans in the war is deeper and more intimate than many people here realise. Their contributions to war charities have been exceedingly lavish. Up to the present the amount subscribed exceeds ten millions sterling, of which by far the largest share has gone to Belgium, Poland, Armenia and the Allies. Splendid as this is, it by no means completes the debt to the Allies to America. Four thousand Americans are fighting, or training with the Canadians, and 10,000 are with the French Army. In addition to many hundreds of doctors, nurses, and hospital assistants who are doing heroic work under the Red Cross. The figures were quoted by James M. Beck, former Assistant Attorney General of the United States, at a luncheon given in his honor on July 6th by the Pilgrims Society.

SIR EDWARD GREY AND THE GARTER.

Touching the elevation of Sir Edward Grey to the peerage, it is interesting to note that he is one of the few commoners in the history of centuries who have had the Garter. Lord Mowley's statement on the subject may be recalled. In his book on Walpole, while recording that the great Whig Minister had received this honor, he writes: "No commoner had been made Knight of the Garter since Sir Edward Montagu and General Monk in 1660. No commoner after Walpole received the blue ribbon until Lord North in 1772, and the only other Knights of the Order who have sat in the House of Commons since were Castlereagh and Palmerston. Queen Victoria desired to give the Garter to Sir Robert Peel in 1845, but Peel, with a characteristic mixture of shyness and of pride, replied that he sprang from the people and belonged to the people, and that the honor would be inappropriate." Sir Edward Grey received the Garter in 1912.

WAR DECORATIONS FOR WOMEN.

Appropos of the announcement of a war decoration for nurses I notice that other nations have been more generous than England in bestowing decorations on women. In this country a woman may have the Royal Order of Victoria and Albert (though it is long since a woman received it), the Imperial Order of the Crown of India, the Order of Mercy, and the Order of St. John of Jerusalem. Florence Nightingale is the only woman who has received the Order of Merit. There are about twenty foreign orders bestowed for public service irrespective of sex:—The Spanish Orders of St. James and Maria; the Austrian Order of the Star Cross; the Russian Order of St. Catherine and the French Legion of Honor. During the present war Dr. Edith Inglis, for her remarkable work with the N.U.W.S.S. Scottish Women's Hospitals in Serbia, has received the Order of the White Eagle from the King of Serbia. Lately General Sarrajl bestowed the Croix de Guerre on Mrs. Hartley, a sister of Lord French, in recognition of her services to the French army as administrator of two N.U.W.S.S. Scottish Women's Hospitals in France and of their field hospital at Salonika. The Croix de Guerre is a much coveted soldier's decoration, and has never before been awarded to a woman. The palm on the ribbon, indicating that the medal has been given in the name of the whole French army, is also a special honor.

RUSH FOR GOLD-BRAID VOGUE.

The new Army Order authorising the wearing of strips of gold Russia braid by officers and men wounded in the European War—a novel idea adopted from the French, and universally approved—at once set astir West End dressmakers hastening orders for gold braid from their wholesale firms. During the first months of the war a lot of gold-braid was worn by women, more particularly as a military trimming, but it has figured little in the spring and summer dress arrangements. But an autumn vogue in gold-braid tailor-mades is predicted in consequence of the Army Order.

New Skin Remedy

Since the old-fashioned theory of curing eczema through the blood has been given up by scientists, many different salves have been tried for skin diseases. But it has been found that these salves only affect the surface and cannot penetrate to the inner skin below the epidermis where the eczema germs are lodged.

This quality of penetrating—partially explains the tremendous success of the wonderful new liquid eczema remedy, the D. D. D. Prescription. D. D. D. is now recognized as the only absolutely reliable eczema remedy for it penetrates the pores, washes away the disease germs and leaves the skin as clear and healthy as that of a child.

Cigarettes.

A cigarette is a small paper cylinder which is used by some people as a substitute for tobacco and by others as a substitute for brains. The cigarette is poisonous in the extreme and a million of them will kill a strong man if he lives long enough to smoke them. It has as few friends in this country as the rattlesnake and is much more violently denounced. Very few boys have been bitten by rattlesnakes, but millions of boys have smoked cigarettes behind the barn just once and have been unable to walk with comfort for a week afterward.

Cigarettes are very cheap and if a man will roll them himself he can smoke 100 at a cost of five cents for material and twenty dollars in time. Spain has stood still for hundreds of years because its people have not learned how to work and roll cigarettes at the same time.

Rolling cigarettes is a difficult art and many of our college students labor years to perfect it. When a college boy comes home able to roll a cigarette with one hand, you can see about all that he has picked up in college on the ends of his fingers.

When a young man smokes cigarettes to excess, he becomes so pre-occupied with poison that microbes cannot live in him and he has to get along for years with a kiln-dried brain that rattles in his head like a dried pea in a wash-boiler.

Cigarettes are used mostly by boys, loafers, college students, artists and literary men. However, the loafer cannot become a literary man by smoking cigarettes. Literary men smoke cigarettes to show off the strength of their brains in as public a way as possible.

There is a belief that any young man who spends all his time smoking cigarettes will eventually become a fool. This is not true. The cigarettes in this case are a result, not a cause.

Some women smoke cigarettes. They are of two kinds. When you see a woman smoking cigarettes you can be quite sure that either she is too good to associate with you or you are too good to associate with her.

Official Report to His Excellency

FROM LIEUT.-COLONEL HADWORTH, Telling of the Part the Newfoundland Regiment Took in the Battle of July 1st, 1916.

Sir,—I have the honor to forward herewith the following report on the part the Regiment took in the recent battle. We had been making preparations for this battle for some time, as part of the Our Brigade had been allotted a definite task in this battle, for which we went through special training. On the day of battle, owing to the altered state of the conditions, we were given a different task.

On the night of June 30th and July 1st, we marched eight miles from our billets to our allotted positions in the trenches. Our actual strength was 25 officers and 733 other ranks. In addition 14 officers and 75 other ranks and also the transport were left behind as reinforcements and for special duties in accordance with orders received. We reached our position in the trenches about 2 a.m. on the morning of July 1st.

A steady bombardment by our artillery had commenced on the morning of June 24th and was continued day and night. On the morning of July 1st from 6 a.m. to 7.30 a.m. an intense bombardment took place, and the assault by the two other brigades of this division took place at 7.30 a.m. Our pre-arranged orders were to move forward to our objective at 8.50 a.m. About 8.20 a.m. I received orders that in conjunction with another Battalion we were to advance and occupy the first system of enemy trenches, which had not been completely taken by the two other Brigades. I at once sent for the Company Commanders and explained the situation and gave them their orders. At 9.15 a.m. I gave the order to advance. Without the slightest hesitation the Regiment jumped out of the trenches and advanced to the attack of the enemy's trenches which lay at a varying distance. (See Note 1.)

The moment we left our trenches, a terrific machine gun fire was turned on us, and then shell fire in addition, and men began falling at once. In spite of this murderous fire the Regiment moved steadily forward at a rapid pace without flinching, and were quickly brought to the enemy's trenches. The officers and men who were actually in the enemy's trenches before they fell. (See Note 2.)

The whole thing was over very quickly, and at 9.45 a.m. I reported the situation to Brigade Headquarters. I then went back to our front trench to get in touch with any survivors, but heavy fire from the enemy was kept up, and then commenced an intensive bombardment by the enemy of our trenches with heavy artillery.

By next morning only some 100 men had answered their names, the Adjutant (Capt. Raley) and myself being the only surviving officers. It takes some time completing the casualty return, but you will doubtless receive the names by cable long before you get this letter. I deeply deplore the losses, but it will be some consolation to the people of Newfoundland to know that nothing could have been finer than the conduct of the Regiment, and it has established a reputation in this our first battle, which will ever be remembered. Nothing could have been finer than the manner in which the Regiment steadily advanced in the face of this appalling fire, which simply swept the men away.

The Corps Commander, Lieut. Gen. Sir A. Hunter-Weston, visited us today and addressed the Regiment. He was full of praise for their magnificent conduct. During the day of the battle the officers and men who had been kept in reserve came up to the trenches. Two of the officers were wounded and also the Quartermaster. (See Note 3.) We came out of the trenches yesterday, the 6th instant, and are now in billets, but still within range of the enemy's heavy artillery, and to-day Lieut. Steele was severely wounded by a shell. (See Note 4.)

We have already commenced the work of reorganizing, and I hope soon to receive some drafts so that we can get ready to take the field again. For myself, I can only say that I am proud to command such officers and men, and I would request you to convey my best wishes to those who are remaining in the trenches, and my deepest sympathy, and to assure them that nothing could have been finer than the gallant manner in which they met their death.

Our total losses in the battle as far as they can be ascertained at present are:—

Killed.
Officers (actually brought in)	46
Wounded.
Officers	14
Other ranks	442
Missing.
Officers	9
Other ranks	200
Unwounded.
Officers	2
Other ranks	95

On the night of June 25th prior to the battle we made an organized raid on the German trenches. The party consisted of 50 men under command of Capt. Butler, together with Lieut. Strong and 2nd Lieut. Greene. The raid failed, and we were ordered to repeat it on the night of the 27th. (See Note 5.)

Although the second raid did not achieve its object owing to the German trench being strongly held, the party was most gallantly led by Capt.

Butler right up to the enemy's trenches, where a fight with bombs took place, and the party only retired after all the officers had been wounded, some 6 men killed and 13 wounded. (See Note 7.)

NOTES BY THE GOVERNOR.

This dispatch has passed the Chief Censor, and its publication is authorized in the present form. There is nothing omitted which has any local interest.
Note 1.—The hour of the order to advance is written 9.45. It was probably not later than 9.15.
Note 2.—Some officers and men who actually reached the enemy's trenches, but who fell, are entered among the missing, but are probably wounded and prisoners, and will be well cared for.

Note 3.—These two officers wounded in the trenches in reserve cannot be identified, but the names have been published. Capt. and Quartermaster Sammers died of wounds July 16th.

Note 4.—Lieut. Owen Steele died of his wound on July 8th.

Note 5.—The official return at present is:—

Killed.
Officers	15
Other ranks	195
Wounded.
Officers	16
Other ranks	475
Unaccounted For.
Officers	11
Other ranks	341

These figures, including 95 N.C.O.'s and men unwounded, makes a total of 783, the number of men who took part in the charge.

The list of missing is composed entirely of those who charged right up to the enemy's trenches and who took cover in shell craters or hollows. It is probable that most of these are wounded and are in the enemy's hands. They will be well treated in enemy hospitals, as the Germans have learnt that inhumanity to the wounded is a disgrace.

Note 6.—Capt. Butler, wounded slightly, remained on duty. Lieut. Strong, wounded June 28, doing well. 2nd Lieut. Greene, bomb wound legs June 28, doing well.

Note 7.—It is impossible to distinguish the killed and wounded on the 27th from the others. They are probably those reported in Telegram No. 303 of July 4th.

W. E. DAVIDSON, Governor.

DELVILLE WOOD CAPTURED BY BRITISH.

LONDON, July 28. The British troops have captured Delville Wood in its entirety, a British official statement announced this afternoon. This German position in the Somme region had been defended by the Brandenburg regiment, which was driven out.

The last German stronghold of Longueval has been captured by the British troops, according to an official statement given out to-night by the War Office. Hand-to-hand fighting continued throughout the day in the vicinity of Pozieres, the statement adds.

FRENCH OFFICIAL.

PARIS, July 28. Russians reconnoitering at Aubervain in the Champagne, says a French official statement, penetrated the German trenches and cleared them with hand grenades. The Russians took some prisoners. A German attempt to attack near Ligny, north of Chaumont, was frustrated by French infantry fire. On the right bank of the Meuse in Verdun region, German preparations to attack Thiaumont were stopped by artillery fire. Two German aeroplanes were shot down in the Somme region.

PARIS OFFICIAL.

PARIS, July 28. An attack by Germans against the French positions south of Saint-Marie Pass, in the Vosges, resulted in their gaining a lodgement in the advanced French trenches. The statement adds, however, that later the Germans were driven out with the bayonet. Progress for the French on the right bank of the Meuse is reported.

WAR OFFICE REPORT.

LONDON, July 28. The following report was issued by the War Office to-day: Two of our gunboats were fired on from the banks of the Euphrates River at Khidr. Our boats replied, inflicting casualties. A naval officer and five of our men were wounded.

AUSTRO-GERMAN FRONT BROKEN UP.

LONDON, July 28. Russian forces have broken up the entire Austro-German front west of Lutsk, says a Reuter despatch from Petrograd. The Austro-Germans were routed, the despatch adds, and 3,000 men, including two generals, and 48 guns, captured.

PURSED BY THE RUSSIANS.

PETROGRAD, July 28. The Austro-German forces, driven from the line of the Rivers Slobavka and Boldurecka, in Southern Volynia, fled in the direction of Brody pursued by the Russians, says an official statement given out to-night by the War Office. Explosions and fires have been observed at Brody.

Brody, in Galicia, 58 miles north-east of Lemberg, has been occupied by the Russian troops, says an official statement given out to-night.

DECIDED TO LAY MINES.

LONDON, July 28. The Swedish Government has decided to lay mines, beginning on Saturday, in the channel between Brodgrund Light and Cape Falsterborg, says a Reuter despatch from Stockholm. Brodgrund Light is south of the Island of Lonsort, south of Stockholm, while Cape Falsterborg is on the southern extremity of Sweden, southeast of Melmo. The distance in nautical miles from the light to the Cape is probably more than 300 miles.

EXECUTION CAUSES INDIGNATION.

LONDON, July 28. The execution of Capt. Fryatt has caused great indignation throughout Holland, says a Reuter's despatch from Rotterdam. It is generally compared with the execution of Edith Cavell. The Amsterdam Telegraph says that the execution was the cause of no surprise, but excites horror and indignation at a crime which is as mean as shooting the brave English nurse, and a burning shame which calls for vengeance.

LAURENCE GINNELL, M.P.

LONDON, July 28. The appeal which he had made to prisoners, describing them as martyrs and demonstrations held by prisoners when he visited them, were given as reasons by the Crown Attorney why Laurence Ginnell, M.P., had been refused permission to visit Irish prisoners in England, when the hearing of the charge against him of attempting to gain admission to Knutsford Barracks, was resumed in Bow Street Police Court to-day.

BIRDS AND CATS.

Who does not love the singing bird? I spend much time admiring their notes, which, though in many words, are cheerful and inspiring. The nightingale and bobolink, the thrush, the wren, the linnet. The photograph is on the link—these feathered songsters skin it. The birds not only warble tunes that have Caruso going, they eat the bugs that eat the grapes and all things green and growing. To guard the birds we truly should adopt some stringent measure, and make their lives, in field and wood, one golden round of pleasure. But we are raising cats to burn, all useful methods dodging; and nothing that a cat can earn will pay its board and lodging. The cats kill of the orioles, the robins and the thrushes, and tear their bodies full of holes, with eager claws and tusks. The bird kills of the bugs and grubs and by the cat is smitten, and we should take our choice of clubs, and slay the cat and kitten.

What Are You Doing for that Eczema?

"Nothing; I've about given up trying to cure it."
"That is not wise. Do as I did and you will probably be cured in a short time. I used Zylax and Zylax Soap with it and my Eczema began to improve at once. A couple of boxes cured. You can get Zylax at your druggists."

Sir Edward Morris.

Newfoundland Premier's Speech in London.

Sir Edward Morris, Premier of Newfoundland, was the guest at luncheon on Friday, June 30, at the American Luncheon Club in London. He had just come from the United States. The leading men in every walk of life there were with us in the night. What the Empire had now to keep in mind was how best to consolidate its many outposts after the war. We would have to maintain an Army and a Navy which would com-cordially honoured by a gathering of 200, he spoke of the two years of war we were now reaching as our time of preparation. We were ready now, we had got the men and the guns, and when we started someone would get badly hurt. (Cheers and laughter.) He had just come from the United States. The leading men in every walk of life there were with us in the night. What the Empire had now to keep in mind was how best to consolidate its many outposts after the war. We would have to maintain an Army and a Navy which would command the respect of our present Allies. They must be drawn from the whole Empire and maintained by the Empire. (Applause.) We must have an Empire tariff which would encourage the development of our vast resources in raw material, make us self-supporting, and ensure to the producer a proper return for his enterprise and to the worker a comfortable life ("Hear, hear.") But never again must the Empire be unprepared for her enemies.

We thought we had been very good to the Wanderers all along, Mr. V. Sappor, and we did not know before that we are invidious. If we have hurt their feelings in the past, they hurt our feelings very much now by asking us to publish this jumble, French-Canadian-Eye-talian poem (7), but we are anxious to keep Capt. Tim and his crew in the limelight at all costs, and the readers of this column will accept our apologies for the fiction imposed on them by the publication of the above.

"A Reader not a Baseballer" wants to know the meaning of the word "Fan." From the appearance of the paper and its delicate perfume we judge it is a lady enquirer. In reply to the fair one, if such our correspondent be, we have to say that a Fan is a baseball enthusiast. Other synonymous terms would be—A Bug, a Nip, Squirrel Chowder, or a Cranium Crumple.

J.V. asks us the following play—Man on first base. Batter hits to first baseman, who touches first before runner gets there. In the meantime the man on first runs for second and stops half way between. The first baseman makes a return throw to the second baseman, who touches second before the runner arrives at the base. Is the runner out on a force? Decidedly not, as when the batsman was retired first base is unoccupied and the runner has the option of returning there or continuing to second base, and must be tagged before being declared out.

Keeping score is merely improving opportunity. The fan who fails to do it misses half the game. Most spectators watch a great play with an interest which, however intense, is forgotten in the thrills of the next inning. They leave the grounds with a hazy idea of a rather enjoyable afternoon. Keeping score remedies all this. It burns the play into the memory. It greatly increases the spectators' knowledge of the game. It increases to just that degree his pleasure in watching a contest. And, best of all, it is a pleasure in itself, not the disagreeable thing it seems. A few simple rules, practice—and keeping score becomes second nature to the fan. (From the B.B. magazine)

Pedestrians may walk from St. John's to St. Anthony, but the longest walk in the world is from the plate to the players' bench—following a strikeout.

Don't forget the double-header for the C. of E. Ophelias on Wednesday forenoon and afternoon. Try to attend one of the games, or if you can't, send price of your tickets to this office. Every little helps the orphans.

Allied Warships Water For U-Boat Deutschland

Sailing of Submarine Postponed. Some Mysterious Reason—Forecast of Cruisers is Drawn Around Virginia Capes.

Baltimore, Md., July 22.—It is explained to-day that some mysterious set-back, some difficulty known only to Captain Paul Koenig and to the officials of the Eastern Forwarding Company agents of the Deutschland, has been encountered to prevent the sailing of the merchant submarine, which was undoubtedly scheduled for a voyage in a few days. There is nothing wrong with the boat or mechanism. The cargo, with the exception of the reported shipment of 600 tons of central powers, is aboard, and as the gold need not necessarily have been carried back by the Deutschland, it is not thought insurance troubles causing the delay. Something momentous has happened. Shore telegrams to the sailors, revoked several nights ago has been granted again. Even social activities have been resumed. Palpably the Deutschland is comfortable in her berth and may remain there indefinitely.

Allied Warships Ready to use Nets. Airplanes, Norfolk Hears.

Norfolk, Va., July 22.—The possibility that not many hours after a submarine trader Deutschland takes a subsea-like way out beyond the submarine-armed by United States territorial waters she may figure in an event even more startling than her arrival as the pioneer submarine merchantman, is agitating local maritime circles.

How You May Throw Away Your Glasses

The statement is made that the man who wears eyeglasses who do not really need them. If you are one of these unfortunate, then there is a way to get rid of them. Thousands who wear "windows" may prove for themselves that they can dispense with glasses if they will get the following prescription at once! Get to any active drug store and get a bottle of Bon-Opto tablets. Dissolve one Bon-Opto tablet in 1/2 glass of water. With this medicine liquid, wash the eyes two to four times daily, and you are likely to be cured of the results right from the start. Many who have been told that they have astigmatism, eye-strain, cataract, sore eyes, weak eyes, conjunctivitis and other ailments, report wonderful benefits from the use of this prescription. Get this prescription filled and use it. You may strengthen your eyes that glasses will never have required them. Do not be careless of their eyes in time. Save your eyes before it is too late! Do not be one of these victims of neglect. Glasses are only like crutches and a few years they must be discarded to the ever-increasing weakened condition. Better see if you can like many of our get clear, healthy, strong magnetic through the prescription here given. Valmus Drug Co., of Toronto, will fill above prescription by mail, if you do not want to visit.

A prominent City Physician who when the above prescription was given to a very young man, said: "This is a very good prescription. Its merit is highly proved by the fact that you can see clearly without the use of any glasses. I feel sure that the very few prescriptions, I feel sure that the best for regular use to improve family."

How You May Throw Away Your Glasses

This statement is made that thousands wear eyeglasses who do not really need them. If you are one of these unfortunate, then these glasses may be ruining your eyes instead of helping them. Thousands who wear these "windmills" may prove for themselves that they can dispense with glasses if they will get the following prescription. Buy one bottle of Bon-Opto tablets. Dissolve one Bon-Opto tablet in 1/2 glass of water. With this harmless liquid solution bathe the eyes two to four times daily, and you are likely to be astonished at the results right from the start. Many who have been told that they have sensitive eyes, conjunctivitis and other eye disorders, have wonderful benefits from the use of this prescription. Get this prescription filled and use it. You may be necessary. Thousands who are blind, nearly so, or who wear glasses might never have required them if they had used this eye medicine. Buy your eye glasses before it is too late! Do not become victims of these "windmills." Eye-glasses are only like crutches and every few years they must be changed to fit the ever-increasing weakened condition, so better see if you can, like many others, see clear, healthy, strong magnetic eyes through the prescription here given. Valmas Drug Co., of Toronto, will fill the above prescription by mail, if your druggist cannot.

A prominent City Physician to whom the above article was submitted, has written a very remarkable remedy. The constituent ingredients are well known, and the scientific and widely recognized fact that it can be obtained from any good druggist, and is one of the best eye preparations ever known, and is used for regular use to protect every family.

There is ample evidence that if any extraordinary effort on the part of Germany's allied enemies can prevent, the great submarine is not to be allowed to depart quite so peacefully as she came. Fear that on her return trip she will give the English Channel a wide berth, and that once out to sea on this side, she will never be sighted again, is ascribed here as the reason for the Allies' determination to halt her voyage, if possible, the very instant she passes the three-mile limit and becomes legitimate merchant prey.

Liners and fishing vessels coming into this port since the arrival of the Deutschland have reported one after another the sight of allied cruisers in such varying positions that they are believed to be numerous. One at least, a few days ago poked her nose almost over the figurative line, made observations, and hurried out to sea. The United States radio station at the Portsmouth Navy Yard alone knows just how many of these craft there are about and the station, acting on emphasized orders from Washington to preserve the strictest neutral silence is dumb on this point.

Would be Prey for Submarine.

The Deutschland's microphones, those sensitive mechanical ears by which she listens when submerged which she listens when submerged can distinguish sounds accurately six miles away. By means of them she is able to tell the sound of an oncoming cruiser from that of a destroyer. That English submarines could with similar apparatus pick up the noise of the Deutschland's underwater motors many miles away is certain. A submarine lying in wait off the cape would have the advantage of being silent, making detection impossible, while the oncoming Deutschland would fairly trumpet the news of her approach.

Seafaring men thoroughly familiar with the local harbor and its channel declare this possibility is made most real by the fact that the Deutschland cannot leave Hampton Roads in any way that would put her beyond hearing distance, as she came out, of a submerged British boat lying outside the three-mile limit.

Speculation here takes the form of wondering just what would happen if a British submarine did actually await the Deutschland. Those most concerned assert that the armed submarine would not dare sink the unarmed one without warning. Would there ensue a thrilling underwater chase with the torpedo-carrying submarine ready to fire a shot the moment the Deutschland arose, if she refused to surrender? Or could the armed craft convey her desire to visit and search while submerged and destroy her defenceless prototype if she failed at once to rise and comply?

Air Scouts a Possibility.

There is one other danger that is believed here may confront the Deutschland before she is far on her way one more romantic peril that is thought she may have to overcome if she can. Germany's enemies, having known for ten days of the new merchantman's exact whereabouts, are reported in quarters not friendly to the Deutschland, as having mobilized an aeroplane squadron for the purpose of scouting about for the German submarine. The naval base at Bermuda harbor has a number of aerial craft, and there has been ample time to manoeuvre these with their mother ships into the region where the Deutschland must take to the open, unprotected sea. Working in conjunction with allied cruisers or submarines, or even operating independently, these aerial scouts would make things most uncomfortable for the Deutschland, British sympathizers declare. Germans here laugh at all such possibilities and stoutly assert that the submarine's return cruise will not even be adventurous. But that Capt. Koenig, apparently for the purpose of protection, did try, and try hard, to get an American aboard the Deutschland on her return trip can be reliably stated. While the Deutschland's owners and agents refused all passengers who wanted to attempt the recrossing, they did make every effort to engage to take the submarine down Chesapeake Bay a Maryland pilot who would agree to stay aboard until she reached the other side. The reason assigned was that the submarine didn't want to halt off the Cape Henry to put her pilot off on the boat which waits there.

glance towards the inner side of the motor-bicycle and his manner changed instantly. "One minute, sir," he said, and saluted. "Are you going straight on?" "No," up St. Andrew-street. "One minute, sir," he said again. Then with a sternly warning gesture to the protesting drivers blocked behind the motorists, he ran forward into the Circus, semaphored imperatively with his arms, this way and that, and as a consequence, the policeman opposite promptly barred Fleet-street again, and in next to no time all the traffic from north, south, east and west was at a complete standstill. "That's right now, sir," he cried, running back. "Round to the right's St. Andrew-street, and the way's all clear." "Thanks," the motorist pulled a lever, and set his machine throbbing and gasping and bumping whistling and careering, and presently let himself go across the Circus, shoving vigorously to give it a good start. A little knot of people on the nearest pavement broke into a spontaneous cheer, but the policeman was so far from being in sympathy with displays of popular sentiment that he clipped the ear of a boy who was not cheering, and presently let himself go at the driver of a motor-bus because he didn't go ahead again directly as he was told to. "Household Notes." Rhubarb gelatin, made as any fruit gelatin, but when cold whipped to a stiff froth, is dainty and delicious. Never waste the drippings or meat essence in the frying-pan—it will make a savory brown or creamed gravy. Make a pad to cover the clutch and brake and your car with white shoes on with impunity. Lemonade made with oranges, lemons, a few slices of banana and sprigs of mint is delicious and refreshing. A slice of potato is an excellent thing to clean white cloth which has become disfigured by hot cooking utensils.
