CHAPTER XVIII.
CAPT. MORTON.

When the ladies moved to the drawing room, the captain got a tone more genial, and was all war, politics and sports. He had hunted game, small and great, all over the world, and had anecdotes to tell and experiences to relate, besides which the records of glorious runs after the immortal fox seemed tame and spiritless.

And yet it was no vain boasting; the vicar and Lord Mersey would have caught him if he had sinned against veracity. He had really shot tigers in Bengal, raced the kangaroo in Australia and snared the subtle beaver in North America.

"Capt. Morton appears to have been everywhere," said the vicar, as Edward More rose as a signal to join the ladies.

"I think I might almost plead guilty," said Capt. Morton, quietly. "I am cosmopolitan. A free lance, and I am almost one, stands a chance of going anywhere and everywhere, and picking up a little of something wherever he goes."

Tea was on the table, and Aunt Martha was deep in the mystery as the gentlemen entered. Capt. Morton made his way to her side, and took the greatest interest in her proceedings, mentioning casually that he had seen the Russians make tea—they are the greatest tea drinkers in the world—and explaining that they introduced a pinch of lemon.

Aunt Martha, delighted to get a new idea on her favorite topic, rang for a lemon instantly, and Capt. Morton cut it with his own hands—they were long and shapely and very white, though the right hand had a long scar across it—and squeezed the proper quantity of juice into the tea.

Then he moved away and joined a small group in the conservatory. They were gathered, not round a flower, but round little Bertie, who had been caught in the act of stealing in to get another glimpse of the beautiful ladies and grand gentlemen before going to bed.

The captain was very fond of children—so he declared—and stooped down to put his hand upon Bertie's

WOMEN EVERYWHERE

Praise Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound as the Greatest Remedy for Woman's Ills.

New Haven, Conn.—"For two years I suffered with a female weakness, pains in my back and painful periods, and I was so weak and tired that I was not able to do my work. A friend told me to use Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and it gave me great relief. My pains left me and I am now able to do my work and feel fine. You can publish my testimonial and if your Vegetable Compound does others as much good as it has me I will be very much pleased."

—Mrs. CHARLES E. MORGAN, 37 Sea Street, New Haven, Conn.

The reason Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is so successful is because it contains the curative, strengthening properties of good old fashioned roots and herbs, which act directly on the female organism.

There are women everywhere who long for children in their homes yet are denied this happiness on account of some functional disorder which in most cases would readily yield to Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Such women should not give up hope until they have given this wonderful medicine a trial, and for special advice write Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., Lynn, Mass. The result of 40 years' experience is at your service.

silken head and ask him his name. He did it in his softest and most insinuating voice, but Bertie, after looking at him for a moment with childish steadfastness, moved slightly away and refused to answer, which generally shocked Mrs. More, who explained that he was a most peculiar child, and terribly fanciful and willful—"And, I am ashamed to say, Miss Weston encourages him!"

Then the captain turned to Edna, and they two walked down the conservatory together.

If Capt. Morton was not a lady-killer it was not his fault. Few women could resist the intoxicating homage which was indicated by the soft voice and lowered, impassioned gaze of the dark eyes; of that manner which had been matured in foreign courts, where manners had been considered before anything; respect, admiration, devotion commingled, the captain could infuse with look and tone, and many a woman of the world had mistaken them for honest and passionate love.

Capt. Morton's manner to Edna, the heiress and hostess, was perfection; full of respect and profound attention. When she spoke he listened as if her words were those of an oracle, and when it came to him to speak he did so with the deference that might mark the tone of a subject addressing a sovereign.

Edna came back from that short walk more than ever charmed with Capt. Morton, and she would not have been a woman if she had felt otherwise.

The cards were on the table when they re-entered the drawing room, and the captain was quite ready to take a hand, but stood aside for the vicar, with the greatest amiability, taking a seat next Aunt Martha, and charming the soul out of the gentle old lady, telling her all about the fans in Spain and Japan, and looking over the one he held at the people in the room with his dark eyes that noticed every little look, and sharp ears that let not a single word slip by them.

Lord Mersey and Edna were standing talking together near the conservatory; Lord Mersey was telling her how much the duchess wished that Edna would come up to town, and adding a few words on his own account, and Edna stood with a hesitating look. Anyone would have guessed that they had been talking of some matter more important and nearer their hearts than this, and the captain, turning his eyes toward Grace Bromley, as she sat at a table looking at some book, fancied that she for one thought so. His eyes rested on her handsome face and downcast eyes for a moment, then he said he would go and fetch a leaf he had admired in the conservatory to show Mrs. Weston, and he made his way across the room and glanced over Grace Bromley's shoulder. What made him smile, as he came back, leaf in hand, with a self-satisfied smile? Was it because he had seen that the book Grace seemed so deeply engrossed in was upside down? Presently Aunt Martha asked if Miss Bromley would sing for them, and as Grace moved to the piano, the captain opened it for her, and was ready with her music.

He stood by while she sang, his eyes on everybody, and more especially on Lord Mersey, who soon left Edna, with that reluctant way peculiar to him, and came and stood beside the piano, his hands folded behind him, his head bent and his whole attitude one of the dreamy enthusiast.

"Perhaps Capt. Morton will sing for us?" said Edna, and the captain, after protesting that he would sound like a raven mocking a nightingale, sat down to the piano.

At the first few notes there was a profound silence; the card players suspended playing, Lord Mersey got close to the piano and shut his eyes; the captain's triumph was complete. They implored him to sing again, and he did so, modestly and unaffectedly, and sang better than before. As he raised his head to give vent to the last high note, he looked up in the glass over the piano and saw Grace Bromley's face reflected. She was looking at the downcast one of Lord Mersey, and with such a look that if Capt. Morton had any doubts as to her feelings before, that look solved them.

The revelation—or confirmation—nearly spoiled that note, but the captain did not mind that, for he felt that he held the key to Grace Bromley's heart, and he was satisfied.

"Splendid!" exclaimed Lord Mersey, in his deep bass. "Capt. Morton, I have never heard any tenor better than yours, excepting Mario's."

"Syrup of Figs" is Child's Laxative.

Look at tongue! Remove poisons from stomach, liver and bowels.

Accept "California" Syrup of Figs only—look for the name California on the package, then you are sure your child is having the best and most harmless laxative or physic for the little stomach, liver and bowels. Children love its delicious fruity taste. Full directions for child's dose on each bottle. Give it without fear.

The captain was seated in a luxurious chair near the fireplace; a small fire had been lighted, for the nights were still chilly, as is usual with our English spring, and the captain was lounging back, with his slippers feet resting on a small Louis-Quatorze chair; he wore a dark crimson satin dressing gown, of which he had turned back the wide wristbands, leaving his hands free to hold before the fire; they were very shapely, as has been said, and they looked as white as a lady's against the dark background of satin.

The captain looked up with a smile as Edward More's frowning face came round the door, and removing his feet from the dainty chair, he waved one white hand toward it, saying: "Come up to my room; I will wait for you."

CHAPTER XIX.
CASTLES IN SPAIN.

The handsome and captivating Capt. Morton was something more than "an old friend" of Edward More—he was, in truth, a distant relative. One of the More's, in years gone by—a cousin of Edward and Cyril More's father—had been what is commonly known as a "loose fish," and had put a climax to a number of eyes on everybody, and more esch-born relatives by marrying a second-rate French actress from the Porte St. Martin.

The direct line of the Mores had thereupon disowned him; and he, possessing no mean share of the family pride, had retorted by disowning them; in other words, he took his wife's name, and was known as Morton.

The affair had been so admirably hushed up that the world had either not known or had quite forgotten that such a person as George More or Morton had existed; and as neither George Morton, his wife, nor their son ever claimed relationship with their powerful kinsmen, the world was not likely to be reminded of it. That son was our friend, the elegant captain, and it is scarcely necessary to explain why Edward More's compliment respecting the captain's chances in a professional career was neither in good taste nor exactly pleasing to the recipient. It is not pleasant to be reminded that you are the son of a third-rate French actress and a disowned branch of the house.

Edward More, as he made his way to the captain's room, was rather sorry that he had made the little speech—for, if the truth was told, Edward More, the irritable, bad-tempered barrister, of whom many people were afraid, was, in his turn, rather afraid of Capt. Morton; for what reason, it would be rather difficult to say, but the fact was indisputable, and Edward More was aware that the captain as well as himself was perfectly cognizant of it.

Edward More knocked at the door, and having received permission, given in a soft, sweet voice, entered the first of a suite of three rooms—dressing, bath and bedroom—which had been allotted to the captain.

Edward More, who had been half over the world—anywhere, everywhere. Do you object to my putting a few more coals on?—and I have been at the old trade—

"Card sharp—card playing!" snarled Edward.

"Fie!" retorted the captain, with a pleasant laugh. "What is a soldier's trade but fighting? I have been fighting, my dear Edward."

"Where?"

"My dear Edward, you make a capital cross-examining barrister; no wonder you are rich and famous. In Spain, if you must know, with Don Carlos. Spain, the land of the grave and the garlic; Spain, the land of the—"

"Welcome, my gentle Edward—be seated."

"Phew!" replied Edward, shaking his head at the fire angrily. "Not near the fire. What on earth do you want with it?"

"Ah!" said the captain, pleasantly. "You northerners are all in love with your native cold; but we—I am half a Frenchman, as you were kind enough to remind me to-night—like warmth—warmth, wine and women; was not that the old Sybarites' motto?"

"I don't know," said Edward More, snappishly.

Then, as a pleasant smile stole over the face of the not-to-be-irritated captain, he turned upon him sharply. "What brings you here, Morton?"

"The ricketiest and dirtiest fly, I think; I ever traveled in; and I have traveled in many sorts in divers countries. If I could have let you know you might have sent the carriage!"

Edward More looked as if he would rather have sent a hearse for him, but he controlled himself, and said: "That's no answer, as you know. I asked what brought you here? What is the reason? You don't do things without a reason generally."

"There I think you make a mistake!" retorted the captain, holding up his white forehead as if he were prepared to indulge in a pleasant argument. "An idle whim brought me here—or shall we say the desire to see your friendly face again, my dear Edward, and indeed I am so very glad to see it—I have seen so many ugly scoundrels lately!—that you ought to feel some little glow of delight at the sight of mine."

Edward More grunted, but deeming it best to attempt conciliation, said: "Where have you been lately?"

"What have you been doing?"

"Ask me where I have not been, what I have not been doing," answered the captain, with a little yawn.

"My dear Edward, I have been half over the world—anywhere, everywhere. Do you object to my putting a few more coals on?—and I have been at the old trade—"

IMPORTANT DOCUMENT.

PARIS, Feb. 22.

The Supreme War Council has today issued the main details of the treaty which Marshal Foch presented to the Germans. The document is a highly important one, being in its terms a complete armistice but in effect a treaty disarming and demobilizing the German forces down to the police basis understood to be in force and ten divisions of troops, with a similar complete demobilization of the frontier forces as well as Heligoland and the Canal. The economic and political questions with Germany were later determined, but the military and naval standing treaty will be completely terminating the war, and impossible the resumption of the German forces under the terms of the Allied demand in the established areas except under the definite peace terms. This military treaty is effective in ending the hostilities that it is in some quarters as defining the final ending of the war and the signing of the peace.

WILL DESTROY THEM.

PARIS, Feb. 22. (A.P.)—Out of the great number of contradictory statements issued concerning the disposition of German warships which have been seized, this much may be accepted as a definite official fact, Great Britain insists that these ships be destroyed. This proposition, it is understood, will be put before the Supreme War Council as a part of the British proposals for definite peace terms. The published assertion that these ships will be destroyed would seem premature since there is considerable opposition to the plan especially on the part of France. The Admiralty's decision is said to have been influenced largely by the opinion that a satisfactory distribution of the ships among the Allies was impossible. In fact, it is added, Great Britain would claim a major portion of the ships. This would only serve to increase her preponderance of sea power which it is held might be objectionable to other nations.

AGAINST LEAGUE OF NATIONS.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 22. Support for the Republican attacks in the Senate upon the proposed League of Nations came from the Democratic side, when Senator Reed, of Missouri, Democrat, delivered a prepared address in denunciation of the plan. Free American Government, Senator Reed asserted, would through the League be largely displaced by a government controlled by European monarchs and Asiatic despots. He supported the charge of Senator Borah, of Idaho, Republican, that the League would abrogate the Monroe Doctrine and involve American questions to a foreign tribunal. England, Senator Reed asserted, virtually would dominate the League and on all questions, he insisted, the United States would be overwhelmingly out-voted.

DENMARK'S CLAIMS.

PARIS, Feb. 22. Denmark claims for a portion of Schleswig-Holstein were heard by the Supreme Council to-day. H. A. Bernhoft, the Danish Minister in Paris, who appeared to represent Denmark, told the Council the northern half of Schleswig-Holstein rightfully belonged on historical and national grounds to Denmark, but that Denmark was willing to have a plebiscite to determine its disposition. While the Danish Minister did not make a flat claim for the northern half of Schleswig-Holstein including the Kiel Canal, he said that in justice to the population its future should be decided by a popular vote. The whole question was referred to a commission.

DIED FROM WOUNDS.

COPENHAGEN, Feb. 22. Minister of the Interior Auer, of Bavaria, has died of his wounds, according to the Munich correspondent of the Politiken. Deputy Sweller, the despatch adds, fired the shots which fatally wounded Minister Auer and killed Deputy Osel.

COMMUNIST LEADER LYNCHED.

LONDON, Feb. 23. The Communist leader Bela Kun of Budapest, has been lynched, according to a despatch from the Berlin correspondent of Reuter's Limited, quoting a message from the Hungarian capital. The action of the Communists to undermine the existing order of the entire Hungarian press including extreme socialist organs has been unanimously condemned by the Communist agitation, the despatch adds.

ELEVEN BURNED.

MONTREAL, Feb. 21. Eleven persons are believed to have been burned to death, while another will probably die, as the result of burns in the fire which destroyed the small hotel at St. Jovite on Wednesday morning.

LAURIER'S FUNERAL.

OTTAWA, Feb. 22. Canada's capital to-day honored its great dead in worthy fashion. There was a tremendous dignity and solemnity in the funeral cortege of the late Sir Wilfrid Laurier. This dignity made itself manifest not so much in the formal arrangements which had been made for a state funeral, but in the grand spontaneity which the people flocked in thousands to pay a last tribute of respect. Unquestionably this was the largest funeral, the grandest and the noblest that Canada has ever seen. Monsignor Dimara, representative of the Pope in Canada, officiated at the church, assisted by other high dignitaries of the church.

WILHELMSHAVEN IN GOVERNMENT HANDS.

COPENHAGEN, Feb. 22. The German naval port of Wilhelmshaven has been occupied by Government troops without fighting, according to an official statement issued in Berlin.

GERMAN ASSEMBLY MEETS.

WEIMAR, Feb. 21. (By the A.P.)—The National Assembly opened to-day's session under the disheartening influence of the Munich murders and a sudden change for the worse in the strike situation in the Ruhr industrial region. The news of the killing of Premier Eisner, of Bavaria, and the assassination of Herr Auer, Minister of the Interior, and other ministers, was posted on the newspaper bulletin boards in the lobby of the theatre where the assembly meets, just before the session opened.

CLEMENCEAU'S POOR NIGHT.

PARIS, Feb. 22. Dr. Tuffier, Gosset and Laurby this morning examined the Premier who passed a somewhat disturbed night, owing to the forty visits he received yesterday afternoon.

OPERA SINGER ILL.

LONDON, Feb. 22. Adolina Patti, the famous opera singer, is dangerously ill at her home in Wales, according to the Liverpool Post. A fatal issue of her illness is feared.

GERMAN STRIKE STOPPED.

AMSTERDAM, Feb. 22. The Soldiers' and Workmen's Council at Essen, the Ruhr Industrial Union, has decided to stop the general strike. This action was taken today according to a report from Essen after an agreement had been reached at a conference in Murgart between the commander of the government troops and representatives of the Council.

BOSTON, Feb. 23. The steamer George Washington bearing President Wilson and his party, arrived off the Graves, near the entrance to Boston Harbor late to-day.

Market Notes.

Codfish—Confidence is being expressed along Water Street that everything will be O.K. very soon, notwithstanding the bad situation created by the unwise handling of the Italian market, which resulted in somewhat of a loss to shippers. More active buying along Water Street was marked last week, $11.50 being paid for Labrador Soft and $18 for No. 1 Shore.

Cod Oil—This commodity shows no improvement in the common article, there being no shipments to foreign markets and no sales made locally. Refined demand is slow, though the price has gone up to $2.25 per gallon, with exports for last week showing a total of about 7,000 gallons.

Herring—As shown on Saturday in our columns the New York buyers of Scotch cure are quite displeased with the fall pack consequently the demand is not so keen as it was last year at this time. St. John's prices to-day are $17 for Large Fuls. Splits $7 to $7.50.

Provisions—Standard Flour is being shaded down, the current wholesale price being $14.20; Retail $14.50. Arrangements for taking away a large cargo of the substitutes in stock have been made, which may possibly be a reason for the gradual decline in war flour quotations. Pork figures current are as follows: Spare Ribs, $48; Ham Butt, $48; Short Cut Clear, $50. Beef—Plate, $43.50; Boneless, $46; Bcs Packet, $46.50; Bos Flank, $47.50 to $48. White Sugar will be permitted for general use if the Food Control Board are successful in disposing of 300 bags of Brown on route by schr. Metamora from Kingston, through Halifax agencies. Present Wholesale prices are: White, $12.10; Brown, $10.50 per hundred pounds. Molasses prices are unchanged and no new stocks are due for some time. Holdings in the city are limited and quality not guaranteed.

Sundries—Hay from Canada will likely be $55 a ton on next arrival. Oats are selling at from $5.80 to $6.20; according to grade and colour. per sack of 136 pounds. Potatoes of P. E. I. produce are $5.80 per barrel and Turnips of local growth, though very scarce were disposed of at $4.50. Cat-

In Memoriam.

We twine a wreath to-day to the memory of those men, women and children, who one year ago, met unexpected death by the loss of the S. S. Florizel. The pall of gloom shed o'er Newfoundland on that fatal Sunday in February 1918, has not yet been entirely lifted. Recollections of those who met their end with fortitude and bravely waited the issue, of which there was no alternative, are fresh in mind, and time will never dispel the fragrance of their lives, nor the heroism of their deaths, and as the years go by memory's immortelles will be placed on the last resting places of the gallant band, who looked into the face of death in the most cruel form and quailed not. The sharp fanged rocks of Cappahayden had their victims, animate and inanimate, and the sea as it rolls over them constantly sings its requiem for the souls who have passed within the veil which separates man from God, and have had revealed to them the mysteries of the life everlasting. During their brief period upon earth they had hosts of friends and doubtless some enemies, but in the day of disaster and death, all classes paid just tribute to their work and humanity and mourned sincerely, as they do to-day, the untimely passing of those whom Newfoundland could ill afford to lose. Both the manner of their living and the manner of their death will be an inspiration to generations yet to come. "May light eternal shine upon them."

Despicable.

There is no other word in the English language, which can be used with better effect to define the conduct of the individual who descended so low in the social scale, as the particular person referred to in the letter of Sir Robert Bond, addressed to, and published in the Plaindealer, and reported beneath. The very act of all men, and the perpetrator of this contemptible joke has been reprobated by his associates, and denounced by his friends. What prompted such an action as the sending of greeting cards to various people, ostensibly from Sir Robert, it is difficult to place, and we can only conjecture that a diseased mind coupled with a disordered imagination was responsible for such a display of reprehensible conduct. The object of such is not at once apparent. There may have been some ulterior motive underlying it, as Sir Robert himself suggests that it was not done for a malevolent purpose, we will be equally charitable.

At the same time we cannot refrain from stating that the purpose of the "joke" was far from being "benevolent" and had criminal action been instituted, and the matter placed in the hands of the police for investigation, disclosures would have resulted, which would have surprised and startled the community, and shown the "joker" and his "fellow-conspirators" in this sordid affair in their true light. Exposure, however, will come later.

SIR ROBERT'S LETTER.

Editor Plaindealer:
Sir,—In the issue of your paper under date the 11th ult. I observe a paragraph headed, "Sir R. Bond Sends Greetings." It struck me at the time as extraordinary, that a mere social, and entirely private, courtesy should be considered by you a suitable matter for public comment, and I could not but wonder what prompted you to publish that paragraph. I was conscious of having sent greetings to old and intimate friends, but I been an annual pleasure which they had reciprocated for many years. What then could be the meaning of your extraordinary comment? I had not to wait a very long time for the solution of the enigma, for a number of notes came to hand from people with whom I am not privileged to be acquainted, and do not even know by sight, thanking me for complimentary cards received by them, and which they believed had come from me, for they bore my name. These good people had been deceived, shamefully deceived, as you evidently had been. Their expressions of gratitude were entirely unmerited by me, and in justice to all who received those cards—I have evidence that a large number passed through the St. John's Post Office on the 11th of December—as well as in justice to myself, who as liable to be brought into contempt by their promiscuous circulation and transparent aim. I beg to intimate that I did not send them; that I did not sanction their being sent, and that I do not even know what parties are responsible for this new form of what I suppose to be, political propaganda.

The prostitution of an emblem of personal friendship and good will to the basest kind of political warfare, but the document was a far more serious matter. Probably the parties who forged my name did not consider that they were guilty of infamous conduct punishable by criminal law, but they were. Now, as I do not think that this was done with a malevolent purpose, I have refrained from handing the matter over to the police for further investigation, although I have obtained some of the cards and the address envelopes that were posted in St. John's East, which would be likely to furnish a clue to both the printer and the transmitter. For the present I shall rest content with this exposure of the crime. I think I can discern the object that the guilty parties had in view and would, therefore, say to them that I regard such political activities with loathing and contempt.

Yours truly,
R. BOND.
Whitbourne, Feb. 6th, 1919.

Generous Employers.

It is a good sign of the co-operation and appreciation which exists between Employers and Employed, to note the generous gift of Messrs. Ayre & Sons, Ltd., to the "Blue Puttees" boys, who have resumed the positions with that firm, which they resigned in 1914 in order to join up for active service.

Each one on his resumption of work was handed a cheque the amount of which was a great surprise to the recipients, and showed that the patriotic spirit which animated the men, was fully reciprocated by their no less patriotic employers. May the happy relations between Messrs. Ayre and Sons, Ltd., and their capable and competent staff never be less pleasant than they are to-day.

Love's Offering Too Late.

Speaking on the above subject on Sunday morning the Rev. D. Bright Ashford used with fine effect an illustration from Florence Barclay's "Wheels of Time." It was the story of the little babe that wanted one white rose. The mother and her friend were sitting in the garden close to a magnificent white rose tree. Her little baby girl came dancing on to the lawn. Her eyes fell upon the roses. Drawing near her mother she looked up into her face, and with a pleading look, said, "Oh, Mummy, they are so lovely; may I pick one of your roses?" "Certainly not," replied the mother, "how often have I told you that you must never pluck flowers in the garden. The little babe said no more, but the little mouth drooped and quivered. The small feet trailed slowly away, all the dance gone out of them. Three weeks later, the mother was a childless, despairing woman. The little child lay dead upon the bed, covered with white roses; the tiny feet, snowy petals, framing the tiny face, now whiter than the whitest snow. The poor mother knelt at the bedside and sobbed, "Oh, oh, she wanted but one white rose, and I would not let her have it. Ten thousand roses strewn about her now, are not worth the one she wanted, which would have given her so much pleasure then." But the little angel face was unresponsive, and the roses fell from the light clasp of the baby hands. Ah, poor breaking heart, love's offering came too late.

Funeral This Afternoon.

The body of the late Hon. C. H. Emerson arrived by yesterday's express from Placentia, having been landed there by the S. S. Kyle. Mrs. Emerson accompanied the remains. At 3 o'clock p.m. Undertaker Carnell removed the casket to Quinnaplace, the late residence of deceased, and the funeral procession starts from there at 3 o'clock this evening.

A Graceful Tribute

To the Memory of Canada's Deceased Statesman, by the Right Hon. Sir Robert Bond, P.C.; K.C.M.G.

The tired builder has gone home to rest. An Empire builder was Wilfred Laurier, and for forty odd years he had worked unremittingly amidst the difficulties, perplexities, and anxieties that ever confront the honest, faithful, toiler in that great constructive undertaking. He was eminently successful too in carrying out his work, and his country and our Empire could hardly expect more from one who had passed the allotted three score and ten years of human activity. But, throughout the Canadian Dominion, and the whole British Empire there is sorrow and poignant regret today because the old builder's labours have terminated, and it will be impossible to quite fill his place. Sir Wilfred Laurier is dead. He has come to the end of a long journey, and now he rests. My acquaintance with the deceased Statesman goes back through a period of many years, but it ripened into friendship when, nearly a score of years ago, I sat with him in the Council Chamber of the Empire. We were colleagues at the Imperial Conference held in London in the year 1902, and again in 1907. During our sojourn in England we were in daily contact, and I thus had an opportunity to know him under varying circumstances. No one who came in touch with Sir Wilfred Laurier could fail to admire him. He was a man of rare personal dignity, and remarkable charm which found expression in an antique grace and courtesy of exquisite French polish. He was the astute Statesman, and the wise diplomat; the alert champion of Colonial constitutional rights, and at the same time the sane Imperialist. He stood for a wide Canadian nationality, but was the author of the policy of giving the Mother Country a Tariff preference. And he set a striking example of Empire loyalty when at the commencement of the Boer War he hastened the despatch of Canadian contingents to the scene of conflict. As leader of The Liberal Party in Canada he recognized the truth, that politics should be an application of great principles, and as a result of following that light he won world wide recognition as a Statesman. I feel that Newfoundland has reason to revere the memory of Sir Wilfred Laurier, for he was the only Canadian Prime Minister who ever evinced sympathy with its aspirations to work out its own destiny as an autonomous unit within the British Empire. I do not forget that when in 1890 the then Prime Minister of Canada did all in his power to thwart my negotiations with the United States for a measure of reciprocal trade, and subsequently moved His Majesty's Government to disallow the Treaty I had successfully arranged, Sir Wilfred Laurier strongly deprecated the move. It is grateful recognition then of his good will towards this country, I would, with profound respect, lay this humble tribute of affectionate regard upon the grave of Canada's illustrious son.

R. BOND.
The Grange,
Whitbourne, Feb. 21st, 1919.

Gower St. Church.

Thanksgiving Services.

Large congregations attended both services at Gower St. Church yesterday. In the morning the pulpit was occupied by Rev. G. Dickie, M.A., of St. Andrew's Church, who preached an inspiring sermon upon the subject of Christian giving, taking as his text, "And Christ stood over against the treasury as narrated in St. Mark's Gospel, illustrating the just as surely as Christ sat by the treasury in the days of old, so to-day He sits by the treasury of the church noting, not so much what we give, as the spirit we give it, but at the same time impressing upon us the necessity of giving what we can as illustrated by the story of the widow who gave her mite and of whom Christ said: "She hath done what she could."

In the evening the Pastor Rev. E. W. Forbes, M.A., preached a vigorous and forceful sermon from the text (1) "Awake, awake, put on your strength O arm of the Lord; awake as in the ancient days, in the generations of old"; (2) "Awake, awake, put on this strength, O Zion put on thy beautiful garments, O Jerusalem, the holy city; for henceforth there shall no more come unto thee the uncircumcised and the unclean."

The one being a cry of God's people unto him for salvation and the other being the response of God to this appeal. The Rev. gentleman showed the great necessity of the awakening of the church to action to cope with the many problems that presented themselves at the present day, showing that if the church would successfully continue it must arouse itself. At both services the choir rendered special music, while the evening service opened with an organ recital by Mr. C. E. Beresford, choir master and recent organist of Fulham Congregational Church, London, England, which was thoroughly appreciated by all present as shown by the great attention and interest given.

No report is yet to hand of the day's collections but they were undoubtedly good.

Personal Mention.

PRESENT TRAIN SERVICE. Special to Evening Telegram. OLD PERLICAN, To-day. Kindly publish the following in your esteemed paper, is Croble beaten in Bay de Verde? District cut in half at Northern Bay and all points east of there cut off from train service without a moment's notice. Croble orders train to Grate's Cove but Roadmaster says she shall not go. Roadmaster wins. Public can find no explanation of delay of train at Northern Bay and the conclusion is that Reid Nrd. Co. has been misled by report of Roadmaster, and others that may be co-operating with him. The public are not disposed to endure present conditions any longer. There is absolutely no reason that train should turn at Northern Bay unless it be to suit convenience of Reid employees. Business losses have been sustained and others are threatened. If delay continues business men threaten to sue Reid Nrd. Co. for losses in train does not come through immediately. Freight accumulating all the time at Carbonar and Northern Bay. Passengers put to great inconvenience and enormous expense, and mails seriously delayed. The undersigned are prepared to asseverate that there is nothing to prevent train running out to her proper terminus, nor has there been since the west through to Carbonar. Rev. E. Moore, Moses Bursey, Jos. March, Charles Barrett, George March, William Hopkins, Uriah Bursey, Levi J. March, George Hopkins, Walter Cramm, George Barrett, John C. March, William Bursey, Avalon Green, Sergeant March, Dr. L. N. Fickens, Gordon Cramm, Frank Cramm, George Howell, John T. Barrett.

Directors Visit New College.

The new Spencer College, formerly the British Hall, was formally opened at 3.30 this morning, the Directors of the C. C. E. College being present. These were: His Lordship Bishop White, Rev. Canon Bolt, Rev. Dr. Jones, Dr. Blackall, Messrs. Geo. March, Walter Cook, Messrs. Dunfield and A. J. Harvey. Speeches were made by the Bishop, Canon Bolt and Mr. Blackall, after which the directors inspected the school rooms of the institution. They were highly pleased, needless to state, with everything they saw.

C. M. B. C.

At yesterday's meeting of the Class Rev. Mr. Brinton addressed the members of the C. M. B. C. on the pilgrimage of the sinners to God, the self-appropriation of God, when found, and the self-surrender to God. The lecture was very interesting and instructive to all who attended. At the end of the meeting it was said that the lecture on Church History to be given at the Synod building would be "Leading Events in the Reformation."

Unions Meet.

We understand that there is to be a meeting of the unions to-night to discuss the matter of the new city directory being prepared. There is an impression around the town that this directory is not being prepared as it should be, and that instead of having members of the W.F.A. do the necessary canvassing, returned soldiers at present idle should be given the first opportunity. It is also considered that the book should be printed in this country instead of in Canada, and let the Newfoundland printers benefit therefrom.

Shipping Notes.

Schr. Imprimus, A. E. Hickman & Co. owners, left Marseilles, France, Saturday for Gaudeloupe, French West Indies. Schr. John R. Bradley has cleared from G. M. Barr's with fish cargo for Gibraltar. St. Anthony left Halifax on the 23rd for this port.

Weather and Ice Conditions.

Belle Isle - Light northeast wind, light, open ice all around; no heavy ice visible. The Cove - Wind southeast, strong, raw and cold; bay full of heavy ice. Fog - Strong E.S.E. wind, fine and mid; ice moving off about quarter of a mile. St. Anthony - Moderate E.S.E. wind, cloudy, coast clear.

BOWLING'S BOATS.

S.S. Prospero left for Spain yesterday morning. A message received from the Captain this morning stated that "he was 130 miles south of St. John's, in open water, all well." S.S. Fortia left St. Joseph's last night, coming this way. She will probably be unable to break through the heavy ice outside and will harbor at Trepassey. The S.S. Megie is harboring at Trepassey since Friday night, waiting for a chance to get into port.

REID'S BOATS.

The Ethio is leaving Placentia after arrival to-day's train, on Bay route. The Glenoe left Burgeo at 11.10 a. m. Saturday, coming to Placentia. The Kyle left Placentia at 10.10 a. m. yesterday. The Megie is at Trepassey.

The Sagons arrived at Port aux Basques at 4.40 p.m. Saturday. BODY SENT HOME. The remains of the late Mrs. Gull-arg take place this afternoon from her late residence, 119 South Side. Interment in the Church of England cemetery.

Here and There.

BRINGS BIG MAIL. At twelve o'clock to-day an express arrived in the city from Trepassey, bringing the Megie's mail from Louisbourg. The Megie landed the mail, which amounted to 300 sacks, at Trepassey, the train bringing it from there.

Support the N. T. A.

A few days ago while reading a short article by the Hon. H. L. Fisher, British Minister of Education, I was struck with the emphasis that the writer put on "Unity of Teachers."
 The words of Mr. Fisher in this connection are undoubtedly applicable to us, for as he says: "A teachers' union brings teachers together for the discussion of educational topics."
 Now I think that we in Newfoundland do not realize as fully as we ought, the importance of the U. T. C. I am unable at present to give statistics as to the strength of the Association, but I feel safe in saying we are not keen enough in looking out to our true interests and the interests of the children committed to our care. If every teacher would become an active member of the N. T. A. then indeed there would be no continuation of the delay in making our educational system better. We have in hand at present plans for the holding of a Convention in 1919, and there is also a movement under way to erect a War Memorial, and public opinion is partially in favour of an educational improvement. In neither of these two important questions can we speak, as a body, so effectively as through the N. T. A. Again the history of unions through the ages emphasizes their usefulness. Therefore it is up to every teacher of Newfoundland to hear himself and become an active, agitating and fighting member of the Newfoundland Teachers' Association, and our educational status will be increased thereby.
 Sometime later I hope to show more clearly the need of supporting our own union.

Timely Warning.

(Kittanning, Pa., Exchange.)

The mother who allows a 16-year-old daughter to float around the township in a too buggy until 2 a. m., with a counterfeit sport of weak paws and weaker morals, merely opens the front door to grief and disgrace. If you don't know what company your daughter keeps, or what time of night she turns in, your roar when gossip gets busy will sound about as pathetic as the wheeze of a Jew's harp. The girl who insists on spooning with everybody in the corporation limits ought to be taken back to the wood shed and relieved of her overflow of affection with a No. 11 slipper, laid carelessly across the hiplets. We had sooner see a girl kiss a blind about than a barbed wire fence than have her change partners six nights a week in the front parlor with the lights turned low. It is harder to marry off a girl who has been pawed over by every boy in the community than it is to fatten sheep on pine-apple foam.
