CHAPTER IV.

Sir Charles saw that Lady Gladys' eyes were fixed upon him, and he advanced to her stall, smiling. Lady Marcia was assisting her niece, and she greeted him pleasantly. "I hope that business has been brisk," he said. "I shall be glad when it is over," replied Lady Marcia. "We have quite a crowd about us the whole time, and I am getting fatigued already."

"You look tired, auntie, but you shall have some tea soon. Oh! we are doing a great trade!" Lady Gladys clapped her hands in almost childish glee, and her eyes sparkled with happiness. Sir Charles thought that she was more beautiful than ever. "You have been buying roses from one of my rivals?" she continued, mischievously, and blushing warmly. "Only a trifling purchase," he said, quickly. "I was inveigled into this little sin! Will you forgive me?" He laughed. "Now I have come to the stall of Lady Gladys Howard to buy the costliest article she has to sell!"

"Indeed, I hope you won't tell people that I inveigled you into the folly of wasting your money." She smiled into his reproachful eyes and was conscious of the warm blood mounting to her brain. "You see that I have nothing but flowers to sell. Here is a magnificent bouquet. The price is ten guineas."

"It is indeed beautiful," observed Lady Marcia, who was watching her niece in some surprise. She had never seen her so bewitchingly vivacious before.

Pain's Enemy

SLOAN'S LINIMENT is proclaimed the world over as being Pain's greatest enemy. Multitudes of people use and recommend it. Rheumatic aches and pains instantly obey its command and disappear. It penetrates right to the sore spot. No need of rubbing. It does its work thoroughly. Give it a trial. One bottle will convince you. At all druggists and dealers.

SLOAN'S LINIMENT
(DRUGGISTS' MARK)

GERALD S. DOYLE, Distribution.

"Think kindly of him if you can," Lady Marcia interposed. "He was weak and erring, but I believe that there was some good in him."

"I am surprised to hear you defend him, Lady Marcia."

"He was my lover," was the simple reply; "the only man I ever cared for. The late earl, my father, would not consent to our marriage. The disappointment maddened Edgar Emden. His disinheritation followed, and his strange disappearance."

Sir Charles had grown white. "You know the story?" he said, quietly. "You know that my father was accused of murdering him, and that we, my mother and I, live under a social ban?"

His eyes were fixed on Gladys' happy face, as she moved about and chatted with the people she knew, and a sigh escaped him.

"We have never lived the scandal down. My uncle's curse follows us to this day. There are many people who believe that his body is somewhere hidden in the vaults of Emden Hall. There are many who believe that I am the son of a murderer. My father's life was blasted by these charges. He had dreams of representing his county in Parliament, but found himself completely ostracized by society. His death did not relieve my mother of the ban, and I—"

He stopped, as though conscious of having said more than he intended. His face was pale, and his hands were tightly clenched.

"Yes, my uncle's curse follows us to this day."

"I should like to know your mother," said Lady Marcia, pleadingly. "I heard much of her from Edgar. You will let me visit her?" Sir Charles, I never believed that he died. I am waiting for him still! He was a wild, wayward fellow, and considered himself bitterly wronged by his own father, by his sister's husband."

"It may be so," was the moody rejoinder. "But I do not think that it would be wise of me to invite you to Emden Hall. It is a house of darkness and gloom. But for my mother I would never pass its portals again!" His tones had become bitter. "I have tried to hope that Edgar Emden would come back some day, but even this faint hope is damped by what you have told me, Lady Marcia. If he lived, and cared for you, he would not have hidden away for the mere sake of perpetuating the mystery, to his sister's misery."

"You will let me visit Lady Hastings?" implored Lady Marcia. "In some way, Sir Charles, our lives seem bound up together. I can comfort your mother. If the fates had been kind, I might have been your aunt. I know all the dread, trouble, Sir Charles, and there is a bond of sympathy between us. I felt insensibly drawn toward you the moment I beheld you."

Reluctantly the young baronet yielded, though it was with many misgivings. "I am only here on a flying visit," he told her. "I came down to see Stanhope's hunters. I am passionately fond of horses. Then Cecil had much to tell me about the people here, and I literally dragged me to the flower bazaar."

If the chair at your sewing machine is just the right height you will not be so tired when sewing. Save ironing in hot weather by running flat pieces, such as towels and pillow cases, through the wringer.

He laughed lightly. Then his brow darkened and a sigh escaped him. He had been watching Lady Gladys with rapt attention.

"Your uncle's name—was—Edgar—I mean the unlucky one?" stammered Lady Marcia, a little catch in her voice.

"You know him?" exclaimed Sir Charles, surprised.

"Yes!" She turned away her head; then added: "You are like him; your eyes, your voice."

"I am sorry for it," said the young baronet, abruptly. "He hated my father, and the night before he disappeared there was a terrible scene between them. The servants heard blows; they naturally took the part of their old master's son. I was but a child, but I remember my uncle's baleful eyes being fixed upon me. I was another creature in his way. He called upon heaven and haled to curse my father, and my father's child! I was sent out of the room, and my mother fainted. She will not talk of that terrible night. My uncle was never seen again. He left behind him a legacy of hate—for father and son. To know that I resemble that man is cruel, indeed!"

The simplest way to end a corn is Blue-jay. A touch stops the pain instantly. Then the corn loosens and comes out. Made in two forms—colorless, clear liquid (one drop does it) and in extra thin plasters. Use whichever form you prefer, plasters or the liquid—the action is the same. Safe, gentle. A DISTINCTIVE STYLE.

3331-3335. The short detachable cape on this pretty model goes well with the wide sleeves and youthful garment lines. Canton crepe would be very attractive for this design, with braiding or embroidery. This is also a good model for taffeta or crepe de meteor combined with georgette.

The Vest, 3331 is cut in 3 Sizes: 34, 36, 38, 40, 42 and 44 inches bust measure. The width of the skirt at the foot is 2 3/4 yards. To make the dress as illustrated will require 7 yards of 36 inch material.

Two separate patterns mailed to any address on receipt of 15c. FOR EACH pattern in silver or stamps.

A PRETTY SUMMER FROCK. Pattern 3385 supplies this attractive youthful model. It is cut in 3 Sizes: 16, 18, and 20 Years. An 18 year size requires 4 3/4 yards of 38 inch material.

Crepe, crepe de chine, voile, embroideries, dotted Swiss, taffeta, and wash silks, also linen and chambray may be used for this model. The width of the skirt is 2 3/4 yards.

A pattern of this illustration mailed to any address on receipt of 15 cents in silver or stamps.

A NEW AND COMFORTABLE SUIT FOR THE SMALL BOY. Pattern 3385 is here portrayed. It is cut in 4 Sizes: 3, 4, 5 and 6 years. A 4 year size will require 1 1/2 yards of 27 inch material for the blouse, and 1 1/2 yard for the trousers. If preferred blouse may be of material different to that of the trousers.

Linen, drill, cambric, madras, pongee, khaki, and flannel are good for the blouse, with the same materials for the trousers, or serge, mixtures, chevot, corduroy and galates.

A pattern of this illustration mailed to any address on receipt of 15 cents in silver or stamps.

A GOOD STYLE FOR A PLAY SUIT. 3322. In a romper suit like this one, the "little" person may run and romp unhampered, or hindered by skirts. The "Dutch" lines are attractive, and the "up-to-date" neck and bodice features will be very becoming. Chints or cretonne with linen or chambray may be used for this style.

The Pattern is cut in 4 Sizes: 1, 2, 3 and 4 years. A 3 year size will require 2 1/4 yards of 38 inch material.

NOTE:—Owing to the continual advance in price of paper, wages, etc., we are compelled to advance the price of patterns to 15c. each.

toes and use with milk in making muffins, griddle cakes, etc. Strawberry hard sauce lifts a commonplace bread pudding among the aristocracy of desserts.

Common house paint thinned with gasoline and applied with a brush or cloth will brighten carpets. Thinly sliced cheese can be cut with a large French vegetable cutter and served on a silver dish.

YOUR-TEETH-DR. LEHR, Dentist,

329 Water St. A DECAYED BONE.

A decaying tooth is simply a bone decaying in your mouth. It is present day and night passing out its poisons into your system. How can you expect that you may retain your health with these poisons constantly working into your tissues? Is it any wonder you have rheumatism, neuralgia, affected eyes, ears and heart? Does it seem strange that you should more readily contract contagious diseases than formerly? The teeth are a wonderful adjunct, but uncared for they become the seat of almost numberless human woes.

THE MOST IMPORTANT VIRTUE.

"There is one virtue that matters more than all others. I have that virtue. I am a shining example of it. A great many other people don't have it. I can't imagine anyone saying 'Can you imagine anyone saying that just once or twice, but over and over again to old friends and to people who were not at all.'"

She tells you so as she meets you and she tells you at frequent intervals ever "Now I," she says, "am all frank. I suppose it's a fault, but I know perfectly well she doesn't think that way I'm made. I just fight out the way I feel. If I show it. And then I always show it. If I have something disagreeable, I say I can't bear people who are so call to call a spade a spade, can't I like people to be frank. Then know where you stand with them. I like people who act like all the time and so forth."

Wandering Wives.

(From an Exchange.)
Three removals as bad as a fire!" said an officer's wife bitterly. "Well, we've removed nine times in the past three years!"

What an existence! But how many people spend the best years of their lives in removing and settling down again, buying and selling furniture making and breaking friendships?

The Methodist minister removes with clockwork regularity every three years. He no sooner gets a grip on his congregation than it is time to go.

He is, however, able to foresee his removals, and he always gets a house, some fixtures, and a garden on which it has been worth the previous tenant's while to spend a little time and money.

An army officer's wife may expect to get a little more time in one place now that things are more settled; but she has to put up with houses which are let furnished at extortionate rates, or furnished rooms whose owners object to children.

In the Royal Air Force an officer is at present much more of a wanderer, and drags his wife and babies from one unsatisfactory set of "diggings" to another. The rooms always seem to be a long way from the aerodrome and he may move as many as three times in one year.

These people may expect to be supplied with married quarters some day, and possibly after that will in most cases move every three or five years.

For naval officers shore jobs are scarce, and the unfortunate wife resides first in one port and then in another; and for the greater part of the time has not even the comfort of her husband's presence.

But they all get a rest sometimes—the irony of it!—they get a rest when their husbands go to a foreign station.

Service pay abroad is the same as in England. In India the total of pay and allowances for a married officer is less than at home! So with the prospect of greatly increased expenses and less money, the soldier goes on his five years' exile, leaving his heart in England. And with that part of his pay which by rigid self-denial he can send her, his wife runs a makeshift little home.

For five years she may elect to go with him, though for junior officers with children the wisdom of this step is doubtful. Every six months the wife will have to remove either to or from the hills, and even were it not so it is not worth while buying furniture when a transfer to a station a thousand miles away may happen any day. Household gods never bless these moving tents.

After about 20 years of this, 10 of which they have spent apart, the husbands and wives settle down together at last.

Their sons join the Service! And their daughters marry Service men!

My Lady Nicotine.

(From the London Morning Post.)
Most people will probably be surprised to know that Sir James Barrie, who is now installed as rector of St. Andrew's University, had practically never smoked up to the time when he was writing "My Lady Nicotine." Such, however, is the fact. Until then he had merely toyed, now and again, with a cigarette—and hadn't liked it! But his friends smoked a tobaccoist's shop interested him—and the rest came. Sir James has never revealed the secret of his success in play-writing, but years ago he gave away his recipe for fiction. It was as follows:—Eight pipes 1 oz. 1 week, 2 weeks, 1 chapter, 20 chapters, 1 nib, 2 nibs, 1 novel.

A delicious cocktail is made with strawberries and orange juice. Let the berries stand in the sweetened orange juice, and chill thoroughly. Casserole of beef is an excellent dish in which to use up left-over vegetables. In place of part of the gravy, canned tomatoes may be used.

THE SMALL BOY TELLS.
They say that the trouble with me is I go out to the neighbors and tell all I know! That when I'm at the table I'm certain to say: "Whatever is done and whatever is said, and they shut up like oysters whenever I'm there—But Pa didn't like it when Sis bobbed her hair!"

Ma says it's all right and she thinks it looks fine. But Pa said: "I vowed that no daughter of mine should dress like a flapper, and walk through the streets! To be winked at by every young fellow she meets." He was made as a hornet and cross as a bear. And I kicked up a rumpus when Sis bobbed her hair.

Ma said that she's got to dress just like the girls. And nowadays nobody's wearing long curls. And aunty spoke up and said: "Just wait a bit. You'll like it that way when you get used to it." But Pa banged the table, and said: "I could swear at such a fool fashion," when Sis bobbed her hair.

Ma thinks it looks lovely, and sister is glad. And the servant is sure that it doesn't look bad. But Pa's mad about it. He said: "I don't care. I thought you'd more sense than to cut off your hair." But don't go and tell them that I told you so. 'Cause they say that I tell everything I know.

BEAUTIES OF NATURE.

WALT MASON

I went with Blitzen in his van, across a country road; he's a romantic sort of man, to men, to whom this life's an ode. He's always seeing lovely things, wherever he may look; he boosts the little bird that sings, goes batty o'er a brook. With one hand on the steering wheel, he glanced to left and right; "this lovely landscape makes me feel like wrapping with delight. How wonderful that field of wheat, that stretch of fragrant hay! Oh, life is glorious and sweet, on such a golden day!" "Yes, life's a scream," I slowly said, "but when you drive a bus you ought to keep your eyes ahead, and cut out all the fuss. When you're afoot it's well to mark the sunshine on the grain, and trill about it like a lark—not when you tool a wain." "Oh, life is full and sweet and rich," he cried, his eyes aswim; and then he dumped us in the ditch and broke my harboard link. I'd rather ride with one who takes long chances here and there, than with the delegate who rakes the landscape with his stare. A driver shouldn't watch the goats that play upon the grass, or rubber at the fields of oats, as he steps on the gas. He shouldn't think of things afar, but play the driver's game; to navigate his creaking car should be his highest aim.

Three E.E.E.'s Footwear Wears Well and Lasts Long

Three E.E.E.'s is a Ladies' Footwear of fine quality and dainty design that lasts long and wears well. It is not surprising, therefore, that it is invariably chosen by many ladies who can, if they so desire, afford to pay far more for their shoes, but who prefer the Three E.E.E.'s combination of style and service at a reasonable price.

Retrospection.

Mr. Sullivan's question in the House of Assembly on Monday, elicited from the Minister of Shipping the answer that the substitution of the sailing steamer "Eagle" for "Portia" on the Western Coastal Service, was due to the fact that the latter ship was taken off the route from St. John's to Bonne Bay because there was not sufficient passenger and freight traffic to warrant the keeping of the ship on. The Minister also added that the members of the House of Assembly for Burin, Burgeo and LaPoile—and we presume Fortune Bay—had given their approval to the removal of the Portia and had agreed to the change. Arrangements, said the Minister, in conclusion, were being made to look after the West Coast route. Just what these were the Minister did not say. Quite possibly the gentlemen who represent the Western Districts named were sincere in placing the seal of their approval on the taking away from the West Coast of the steamboat which has been performing coastal service along that section of the island, between the points already given, serving numerous ports of call in seven districts, viz., Ferryland, Placentia and St. Mary's, Burin, Fortune Bay, Burgeo and LaPoile, St. Georges and St. Barbe. And this service has been performed by the Portia for a period of nearly seven years. As a convenience to the people of the various places at which the ship called, she had no equal. Sailing from St. John's direct and maintaining trade and mail connections with the capital, the benefits derived from having the service of an up-to-date boat like the Portia were incalculable. Yet in a moment, with the stroke of a pen, or to suit the whim of some person, the ship is taken off a route on which she was invaluable, and a service substituted which does not—cannot approach that carried out by the Portia. Mr. Sullivan's question was based upon the interests of the district which he has the honor to represent, and represent well. The action of those M.H.A.'s for Burin and Burgeo in consenting to the replacement of the Portia by an inferior boat, was surely not good judgment, nor yet in the best interests of their constituents, and unless the temper of the people of the districts concerned have greatly changed, it will not be long ere a storm of protest will be aroused, and the real reason demanded of those responsible. The Government is indeed becoming economical in respect of that which is due the people of seven of the most important fishing districts, yet we cannot accept the unsupported testimony of the Minister of Shipping that the earnings of the Portia on the Western Service did not equal disbursements, and for that reason and with the approval of two or three, at most, Western representatives, the ship was therefore taken off and an inferior Government service instituted.

The Wraithful Premier

If the Prime Minister of this Colony is not bamboozling both House of Assembly and people over the Railway situation, what then is he doing? That his ire was aroused against the Telegram is plain from his attack on the editor in the House yesterday, and when the doughty young tribune is angry he is certainly a sight for gods and men. We repeat that bamboozling is exactly the word to define the position of the Premier. The further agreement to operate the railway for a period proves that there must be an understanding, and if it is that an armistice has been declared between Government and Company, both sides must know where they stand. Equivocation and temporisation might be excused in a politician but cannot be condoned when practiced by such a statesman as the Prime Minister, whose consistency in all things is one of the wonders of the age.

MINARD'S LINIMENT FOR GARGET IN COWS.

At the House.

SOME BUSINESS DONE—ADJOURNMENT TAKEN TILL TO-MORROW.

Various business which had been on the Order Paper for some time occupied the attention of the House yesterday.

In answer to Sir Michael Cashin's question, the Prime Minister said that the Government had neither directly or indirectly provided money to pay the passage of men who were leaving the country, nor had they any knowledge of such a practice on the part of any business man.

In answer to Mr. Fox, Sir Richard said that since the first day of January, 1922 men had left the country to seek employment abroad.

The Minister of Justice informed Mr. Moore that Capt. Jones had not been appointed magistrate on the Labrador.

The House went into Committee on the Revenue Act amendment, a bill which incorporated the reduction in duties made on certain fishery supplies. This created considerable discussion.

Sir Michael Cashin said that with reference to leather boots it was merely a reduction of 3 per cent.

Mr. Bennett referred to the excessive duty on sugar and the discrimination which the high taxes on this commodity was against the local candy manufacturer. The duty on a pound of sugar is now about 200 per cent over cost.

Sir Michael Cashin reminded the Government that they had promised to considerably reduce the duty on sugar when the losses made by the Food Control Board had been recovered.

The Prime Minister said that he had the matter under consideration. The question of kerosene oil in wooden barrels and the right of the right of the Imperial Oil Company to fill the barrels was discussed. The Opposition asked if the idea were to allow the company to fill the casks only.

The Prime Minister replied that the object of the Bill in this connection was not only to provide cheaper kerosene but also to have the casks distributed. Under these circumstances the Imperial Oil Company would only be permitted to fill them once.

The Bill was passed and the amendment to the Sales Tax Act was next considered. This Bill exempts various fishery supplies from the payment of the sales tax. The question of leather goods and the effect of the act on these was debated briefly, and the Bill passed Committee.

In moving that the House should consider the Municipal Bill in the Committee stage, the Prime Minister announced that the Select Committee had two reports to present. He and Dr. Barnes were the signatories to the minority report and the Opposition members of the Committee were responsible for the majority report. The one section which caused the disagreement referred to the Parade Grounds and the right of the Council to dispose of it. As this was the only debatable section, Sir Richard suggested that the remainder of the Bill be passed, and that the outstanding section be discussed on the following day and a division taken on it. He then proceeded to explain the section at some length. The whole question, said Sir Richard, depended on whether the Municipal Council shall or shall not impede the Government in carrying out its policy of education, for it was their intention to utilize the northern end of the Parade Ground for the erection of a Normal School as a National War Memorial. This scheme had the hearty support of the educationalists, and the site selected was an outstanding location for a school. The part of the ground not required for the school would be made into a play ground for children and not a sports ground. The Parade Ground, he stated, is owned and controlled by the Imperial Authorities and not by the Municipal Council of the Government.

The Prime Minister then staged an attack on the Municipal Council, whom he accused of trying to prevent the erection of the Normal School, thus stopping employment in the city and the operation of the school itself. St. John's, Sir Richard said, owed its existence to the outports, but because it was the business centre of the colony, it had been spending on the Government for years. The Mayor and certain councillors were reasonable and in favour of the Government's project, but others prevented the Council from giving a decision. He was amused that the intelligent electorate of St. John's could not in such a Council, and he was glad that its election was not due to assistance rendered by him or his party.

Mr. Macdonnell, when informed that the Normal School was the germ of a University, stated that he would debate the matter more fully at a later date.

Mr. Higgins said that the Government had given the Parade Ground to the Council in 1921 and should not take it back until they had consulted that body. The Government had determined that the Normal School was going on the Parade Ground, or not at all, and what he wished to do was to save enough of it to make a play ground for the children. This, he was glad to say, had been done. He referred to the Prime Minister's attack upon the Municipal Council, and suggested that Mr. Coaker's return had

"PLAY BALL"

This is the day! The mists of months roll away; St. George's Field dotted with uniformed figures again spreads panoramas of dramatic action before the eye. "Play Ball!"

It's a great old game—a wonderful old game.

Here's breaking a hope across the prove of the game as it shoves off, that the season of 1922 will see Baseball gets the chance it deserves. It's the players make the game. If they play it to the best of their ability, then the fans are behind them. So, boys, Play Ball!

LAST NIGHT'S FOOTBALL.

By a score of 4 to 0 the Cadets defeated the Saints last night before a very large gathering of fans. A regular westerly gale was blowing, and with the wind in their favor the Saints kicked off the ball. During the first half, which was scoreless, they had many chances but bothered by the wind the work of their forwards was ineffective and their shooting ineffective. Christopher and Galgaly for the Cadets' back division did wonderful work, while Kavanagh, their goalie, displayed great skill and saved some very difficult shots. In the second period the Cadets took matters in their own hands and Madigan, Mesney and Billy Callahan scored. In a mixup near the goal, Flynn and Canning added another. Elton and Tait for the losers gave a splendid exhibition but the Saints have to get a better system for controlling the forward passing to make their efforts anyway effective. The players were:

Cadets—Goal, E. Kavanagh; backs, T. Christopher, A. Galgaly; halves, S. Morris, M. Madigan, W. Cull; forwards, Billy Callahan, R. Mesney, M. O'Tool, M. Flynn, Jack Canning.

Saints—Goal, Turnbull; backs, A. Barnes, Dr. A. Tait; halves, W. Brown, A. Fisher, G. Elton; forwards, J. Young, S. McNeil, Mattland, H. Sowers, Douglas.

BASEBALL.

"All hands on deck" is the fans' slogan this afternoon to see His Worship grove the first one over. Present will be his Excellency the Governor and the Premier, Sir Richard Squires. The clash will be between the champion Lions and the Cubs who for two years have been runners up. A movie will be taken of the game and spectators to be exhibited at the local picture house next evening. The line up is:

WHAT TO DO TO-DAY.

Take in the ball game at 2:30. Then at 4 o'clock get down to the St. Bon's Sports. All the most interesting events will be on there between 4 and 6 including the open 2, ½, and ¼ mile, and the Fast and Present Relay Race. Have tea at the Aulis Maxima there and hike back to St. George's Field in time to get a good vantage point for the big St. S.-Feldian match to-night. I thank you!

The Prime Minister retorted with an attack upon the Telegram's editorial of yesterday.

Sir Michael Cashin in reply, stated that the editorial in question was not far short of the truth, and was in any case, very different from that of the Advocate.

STAR FOOTERS TO FLAY BELL ISLAND.

Negotiations were finalized yesterday for a most interesting athletic and social event which will be held on Bell Island on Thursday evening, the 22nd inst., when the Star football team of St. John's will visit Bell Island, and play an eleven from that place. The arrangements are principally due to Mr. Wm. Duggan, the old time football "star" who is still in the ring. Secretary J. Kelly and Capt. Leo Murphy, Chairman of the Star Society's Amusement Committee, who was in town yesterday and met the officers of the local Athletic Association when the programme was completed. The game will be incidental to the annual Garden Party of the Bell Island Star Society. The contest will commence at 7 p.m., and at its close the visiting team will be the guests at supper of Chairman Andrew Murphy and the Garden Party Committee, who will be assisted by the Ladies' Auxiliary. Dancing will commence in the Star Hall immediately after the match, and a feature of the affair will be the presence of McGinty's Star Jazzola from St. John's; these musicians are an attraction in themselves, and all appearances indicate a very enjoyable occasion when the Star boys visit the Iron Island.

THE POLL TAX.—Several city bachelors have been summoned to appear before the magistrate this morning for non payment of poll tax. Some have paid up since the summonses were issued, and it is probable that the remainder will follow the same course. The Council intends to make sure that all taxes are promptly paid.

A SLIGHT FIRE.—Yesterday the Central and West End fire companies were called to a garage near the Atlantic Fisheries plant where a slight fire was in progress. The blaze was caused by sparks alighting on the roof of the garage, but it was extinguished before any damage was done.

HIS DIARY.

June 13th.—This morning, on early and to the office, where the painters are at work, and they making a great do, and mighty trying to my patience. They did let fall their paint on all my papers and my clothes too, did get soiled with it. Abroad, and among other things, met with Mr. Shirley, that is a most absent minded fellow, and told of his mistake the other day, to wear his coat inside out, and went so all day. Meeting with Dr. Campbell, we did fall into discourse of many things, and he being in a mighty good humor, did tell me divers tales wherest I did laugh heartily. He also tells me how there is nothing yet done about the railway, albeit it will be operated by the Reids till they come to a settlement. It is now come to be common property, what I did learn some days since, that Mr. Morine, the Attorney, is retained by the railway company, and a mighty bad thing for the Cabal, that they did not get him for their advisor. I did meet Mr. Graye, who did beg of me that I would drink with him, but I find my head grow weak now-a-days if I come to drink wine, and I did therefore refuse him, and pray God, I may always so do.

Congratulations.

SEPTUAGENARIAN POLICE OFFICER.

On Wednesday last, the 7th inst., ex-Sergt. John Smith, of the Terra Nova Constabulary celebrated his 71st birthday, and we are pleased to note that, although he has arrived at that advanced stage of life, he is looking well and is still as light of foot as many men much younger in years. The ex-Sergeant spent many years of useful service in the Constabulary of this country, having joined the Force nearly fifty years ago, and served under the late Inspectors Foley, Carey, Farcott and McCowan. His record during his long term of service is second to none in the Constabulary. He was one of the best known and most efficient police officers of his time. A trustworthy and faithful civil servant, and yet the most bitterly persecuted of any man that we have known; and that all because of sectarian differences, which not only deprived him of his position and pay, but denied him the common rights of a loyal citizen and subject. And the valuable and useful presents received by the ex-Sergeant on Wednesday last, testifies to the esteem in which duction carries a powerful theme, and it is declared to be the greatest screen achievement yet given to the public by Mr. Franklin

SYLVIA BREMER HAS LEADING FEMINE ROLE IN UNUSUAL STORY FILMED BY SIDNEY FRANKLIN.

"All-star cast" is perhaps the most misused and abused phrase that has been called into active service since the inception of the motion picture industry. But the use of this time-honored and well-worn expression was never better justified than in "Unseen Forces," Sidney Franklin's initial production for Associated First National and Mayflower Photoplay Corp., which will open an engagement to-day at the Nickel Theatre. Miss Bremer, one of the most beautiful and talented young women of the silent drama, has the leading feminine role. The other players include such well-known persons as Rosemary Theby, Conrad Nagel, Robert Cain, Sam De Grasse, Edward Martindel, Harry Garrity, James O. EMIGRATION SCHEME.

LONDON, June 13. Mr. L. C. Amery, Parliamentary Secretary to the Board of Admiralty, in the House of Commons yesterday, announced that since the Empire Settlement Act was passed the Government had entered into negotiations with the Commonwealth of Australia for the adoption of a scheme for assisted passages for emigrants, the two governments paying one-third the transportation and advancing a loan of the other two-thirds. The Imperial Government, he said, was negotiating with the state of Western Australia to cooperate in the scheme for helping emigrants after arrival, the Western Australian Government undertaking to find work for 7,500 new settlers. The scheme contemplates the placing of a suitable portion of the 7,500 men on farms to become their own in due time.

Statements were made that True was reprieved because he was the son of a woman of the peerage.

WHY THE LOAN FAILED.

PARIS, June 13. The International Bankers Committee which has adjourned without agreeing on a loan to Germany considered three plans, according to Echo De Paris. Germany wanted a loan of four billion gold marks under her plan of which she was to take 1,300,000,000 marks, dividing the remainder with the Allies. The Belgian plan provided that Germany borrow during the current year from international money lenders 1,200,000,000 marks, just enough to meet Belgium's claims under her priority privilege. The French plan proposed to divide the 12,000,000,000 gold marks due from Germany into two parts and issue bonds in instalments spread over a number of years.

Old-Time Industries That Are Dying Out.

While science and invention have blotted out many of the old and time-honored industries in the country, some still exist which not only date back centuries, but succeed in holding their own against their modern rivals.

Perhaps the oldest and yet least-known surviving industry is carried on in Brandon in East Anglia. Long years ago the dwellers in the Stone and Neolithic Ages discovered that the ground in this district was full of flints, which they proceeded to unearth and fashion into polished tools and weapons.

Relics of the Past.

That was at least nine thousand years ago. To-day the industry still flourishes, and it is believed that the Brandon "flint-knappers" are the direct descendants of those old-time workers. In their work they use curiously shaped iron picks, closely resembling reindeer's horns, which, as a matter of fact, were the tools used by the Stone Age workers.

The flint is found in large blocks, which are left to dry and then broken into pieces six inches square. These, in turn, are shaped with hammers, and then trimmed. Few flint-knappers live to be old men, for the particles of the material that are thrown off enter the lungs and bring on consumption.

In the days when the flint-gun flourished, flints fetched fifty shillings per thousand, but now the same number can be bought for about five shillings. Brandon still ships something like three millions of gun-flints annually to Africa, China, and South America, where flint-muskets are still largely in use.

There is another industry which for years has supplied man with one of his luxuries—his clay pipe. Half a century ago, the making of clay pipes was the staple industry of St. Jude's, Bristol, but of the fourteen firms then engaged in the industry in the district, few, if any, have survived; but the work is still carried on in Dundee.

It was from St. Jude's that traders got the pipes which they bartered with the natives of Africa in exchange for ivory, gold, and other treasures. The popularity of the clay was destroyed during the Boer War, when the soldiers got accustomed to cigarettes. Once the industry dies it may never recover, for it calls for great skill and long training.

It is generally assumed, by the way, that a person driving along a high road is bound by law to keep to the left, but, in point of fact, he is not obliged to keep to any particular side when the road is clear. He must, however, maintain a sharp look-out, and get out of the way of vehicles which are on the proper side.

A remarkable anomaly is that most railway companies prohibit smoking on their premises, and yet provide smoking carriages for culprits.

The man who plays golf on Sunday instead of going to church is liable, if he is not a Dissenter, to ecclesiastical censure, and though he cannot be fined, ecclesiastical censure would in itself operate as a fine; for he might be "admonished" to go to church or to do penance.

Once there was a tax on windows, and there is still an unrepented law against "artificial light."

The rule of the road is a curious thing, and the tramcar driver whistles, hoots, and clangs vehicles off the rails. Yet, if he whistles, the owner of a conveyance may have the wheels of his vehicle fitted with fanges, so that it will travel on the tram lines.

AN ADVERTISING RISK.

The notice, "Trespassers will be prosecuted," is scarcely worth the board on which it is painted. Trespassers will be prosecuted only if they are doing appreciable damage to the land or anything on it, or if the trespass is committed while in pursuit of game. If, in taking a short cut, you are confronted with such a notice, the best thing you can do is to proceed as unostentatiously as possible until the owner or occupier orders you off. So long as the trespasser departs when requested to do so, and has done no damage, he is not likely to hear anything more about the matter.

If a woman has the misfortune to lose her pet dog, and publishes an advertisement offering a reward for its return, she should beware of advertising as an inducement to the thief the statement that no questions will be asked.—TH. Bita.

Made Famous by Friends.

HOW MASTERPIECES OF POETRY WERE INSPIRED.

Four poets of first rank—Milton, Shelley, Tennyson, and Matthew Arnold—immortalized their friends by writing memorial poems about them.

The greatest is the first, "Lycidas," one of the finest poems in any language. Yet it was written about a man otherwise unknown.

Edward King was on his way to Ireland to visit his people when the ship was wrecked and the young traveller was drowned. Milton calls the ship a "perfidious bark, built in th' eclipse, and rigg'd with curses dark."

Noble Tributes.

John Keats is doubly immortalized. He immortalized himself and was immortalized by Shelley's memorial poem, "Adonais." It is one of the coincidences of literature that these two poets lie in the same cemetery—the English cemetery in Rome. The first went to Italy in search of health and died; the other was yachting off the coast and was drowned.

Had not Tennyson written "In Memoriam," nobody would ever have heard of his friend Henry Arthur Hallam. They were bosom companions, and Hallam was engaged to Tennyson's sister. "In Memoriam" is the most popular memorial poem ever written, and lines from it like "Tis better to have loved and lost than never to have loved at all," are known and quoted by everybody.

Arthur Hugh Clough and Matthew Arnold were at "Tom Brown's" school together. Clough was a splendid fellow, and had a great influence on Arnold. He went to live at Florence, where he died at the age of forty. "Thyrsis," Arnold's lament for his dead friend, is a noble tribute.

Another example of a double immortality is Sir David Wilkie. He died and was buried at sea. This incident fired the imagination of Turner, and he painted the masterpiece which hangs in the National Gallery: "Peace: Burial of Sir David Wilkie at Sea."

Weights We Wear.

An ordinary suit weighs about six lb. By using the thinnest materials, or flannels, it can be brought down to 4 lb.

At the best, however, a man must carry about 8 lb.—for an ordinary pair of shoes will weigh 2 lb, and at least another 2 lb would be added by all the other articles of dress.

The burden of a countryman's costume soon mounts up. A pair of corduroy trousers alone weighs over 3 lb, and hob-nailed boots about 2 lb 10 oz, each.

That was the weight recorded when a test was made with the costume of a gamekeeper, who, altogether, was carrying garments weighing 16 lb. 8 oz.

The outfit of the ordinary woman has been estimated at 12 lb, but even ten years ago a dressmaker boasted that she could dress a customer from hat to shoes at a weight of under 5 lb.

Laws You Break Every Day.

FUNNY REGULATIONS THAT ARE STILL IN FORCE.

Taking an oath, except before a Commissioner appointed for the purpose, is an offence punished by fine. "A soldier, sailor, or labourer," under the provisions of a very old statute is liable to be fined one shilling for using bad language, but a "gentleman" may be mulcted to the extent of five shillings.

Sunday observance was made compulsory by a law passed in the reign of George III, and no purchases may be made on that day. This law is quite a dead letter nowadays. Look at our Sunday markets, our Sunday barbers, our Sunday concerts and cinemas. In one instance in recent years however, a North of England barber was fined regularly every Monday morning for violating his razor on Sunday.

The woman who wheels a perambulator on the pavement and barks your shins is within the pale of the law, which provides that "no wheeled vehicle is to be allowed on the footpath."

"All fares, please!" is the cry of the omnibus and tramcar conductor, and yet you cannot be legally compelled, says another old Act, to pay until the completion of your journey. Again, you can still be compelled to clip trees and hedges which overhang a footpath or roadway. This provision had its origin in the period when footpaths and highwaymen were active, and country roads, and owners of land were required to cut down trees and shrubberies adjacent to their estates which might afford shelters for Dick Turpin and his companions.

Once there was a tax on windows, and there is still an unrepented law against "artificial light."

The rule of the road is a curious thing, and the tramcar driver whistles, hoots, and clangs vehicles off the rails. Yet, if he whistles, the owner of a conveyance may have the wheels of his vehicle fitted with fanges, so that it will travel on the tram lines.

The man who plays golf on Sunday instead of going to church is liable, if he is not a Dissenter, to ecclesiastical censure, and though he cannot be fined, ecclesiastical censure would in itself operate as a fine; for he might be "admonished" to go to church or to do penance.

Once there was a tax on windows, and there is still an unrepented law against "artificial light."

The rule of the road is a curious thing, and the tramcar driver whistles, hoots, and clangs vehicles off the rails. Yet, if he whistles, the owner of a conveyance may have the wheels of his vehicle fitted with fanges, so that it will travel on the tram lines.

It is generally assumed, by the way, that a person driving along a high road is bound by law to keep to the left, but, in point of fact, he is not obliged to keep to any particular side when the road is clear. He must, however, maintain a sharp look-out, and get out of the way of vehicles which are on the proper side.

A remarkable anomaly is that most railway companies prohibit smoking on their premises, and yet provide smoking carriages for culprits.

TOOTH BRUSH

THE WORLD'S STANDARD
A CLEAN TOOTH NEVER DRIES
THE BRISTLES ARE THE BEST AND CLEAN
BETWEEN THE TEETH AND BRUSH
THE BRISTLES NEVER DRY

THERE'S no such thing as half brushing the teeth if you use the Propylac-tic Tooth Brush.

It is made to do the work right. The tufted bristles reach between the teeth, and the curved handle takes the brush 'way back where it is hard to reach with some brushes. Twice a day use of this brush and four visits a year to your dentist will insure beautiful sound teeth for life.

Look for the name on the handle. Always sold in the yellow box. At leading druggists.

"KEARNEY FIRST'S" Stepping to Time.

Back From America! With New York's latest expressions of dressy ideas. Pick-me-ups from Broadway's crack shops.

A GREAT TRIP! A BIG NECKWEAR MANUFACTURER CLOSES OUT HIS COMPLETE LINE AT A SACRIFICE. NEW GOODS! SPICY, BRISK, SPICK AND SPAN.

Ready for Summer! Ready, aye, ready! No longer need a man look at a dollar with askance. A dollar looks bigger to us than to any store on the street. It was a blue town, but listen! There's nothing like the chink of the good old rhine to make a man think quick. That's what happened when I got over—something like this:

"I want Neckwear, old boy; something good, neat and full-ranged. Want a thousand dozen. I'll buy it all here if you make a price, if not I'm going. What's for this lot?" Quick! make a price."

That's how I bought the Neckwear. Wait, it's not opened yet. It's a big, big surprise.

SHIRTS that flow before your eyes in a long vista of exquisite patterns. Tap your chest—here's where your long-suffering pocketbook chortles with joy. You'll want some. There's plenty for all—wait!

COLLARS with many new ideas and some old ones popping up in new garb. The new Semi-Soft Collar that grew famous in the States over night. Here, too! The best of many shapes in stiff and soft from where men wear the latest.

CAPS—a startling new idea. A Cap that will fit any size head. Loosen or tighten the strap—that's comfort. Won't shrink—won't stretch. See them here—they're not elsewhere.

STRAW HATS that grip like velvet. Silks predominate in beautiful Summer Pyjamas, Socks that ease weary feet and charm the eye, Handkerchiefs of exquisitely blended tones. Novel, new and bracing, Summer has given us a bracing impetus to show the latest and best.

Watch for what Kearney shows every day. Kearney's first with the latest and only a step behind Broadway. Good Goods don't come back—"tell me on the floor."

Where Corks Come From

Because the world's supply of cork is diminishing rapidly, the cork perquisites in the big hotels and restaurants is now a valuable privilege.

Upwards of fifty per cent. of the world's cork is produced in Portugal and Spain. The finest is grown in various parts of the provinces of Seville, Badajoz, Chdis, Huelva, Barcelona, and Salamanca.

The age of maturity varies in different parts of the same tree. From eight to nine years is required by the first branches, and from eleven to twelve years for the second branches.

Not until the sap flows freely thru the tree—usually from June to the beginning of September—does the "stripping" take place.

"COOKING" THE BARK.

After the tree is gauged to determine the approximate thickness of the cork-wood a circle of horizontal cuts is made at the bottom of the trunk, and again about four feet from the ground.

A series of perpendicular cuts then connect the two. A wedge or lever is now inserted in the cuts and moved gently too and fro, when the bark is stripped off.

Removed to the storeyard, the bark is stacked in piles and left until some moisture has evaporated.

The next process is that of "cooking" and scraping. Each section of bark is steamed over a huge boiler, after being made soft and pliable the bark is scraped and finally flattened under pressure.

The sheets are then stacked in piles and left until each piece is taken on a blue mold—a process occupying about four or five weeks.

Dried once more, the bark is cut into strips corresponding in width to the varying cork lengths. The strips are then cut into cubes, and are passed through machines which round off the edges and give them the required taper.

WATER BADLY INJURED.
 The Felidians just managed to win the match at the School Rugby games yesterday afternoon. The score was three points to nil. The Felidians were deprived in the remaining part of the services of one of their three-quarters, Stewart, who was unable to break his collar bone. A very strong wind made the game impossible, but there was by no means any necessity for touch in which the players indulged in, when the three were out of the field. The three would get the ball and despite an opportunity to kick, would kick for touch with always finding it. The Felidian players played much better than in former games and succeeded nearly in letting the ball out. The last half was played well and did not waste any time in getting on the field. The only try was scored by the three after a fine run through. It was converted. It was near the end of the game that he met with the injury which will prevent him from playing any more this season. Pickering tried to go through the opposition and went down with a dozen men on top of him, one of whom must have fallen on his back fracturing the collar bone. The Felidians have now two wins, and are fortunate to win out in the game, they will have the championship for 1922, Mr. Jack Paterson referee.

Legislative Council.

TUESDAY, June 13.
 Council met at 4 p.m. On motion the second reading of Bill entitled respecting a tax on certain goods. Hon. George Shea informed the Council that the Bill cancelled all legislation on this matter, and there were one or two points which he desired information he would defer further explanations until Committee Stage was reached. Mr. Bishop thought that the further discussion was important to have the fullest information before the House was asked to pass on it. After the second reading Hon. George Shea gave notice that he would on tomorrow move for the passage of Rule 33, after which the session was moved until Thursday at 4 p.m.

Visitors to Visit Bell Island.

Arrangements were finalized yesterday to have the Star Football team visit the Bell Island garden party which takes place on the 22nd inst. The game starts at 7 p.m. and will be held at supper of Chairman Anson Murphy and the Garden Party Committee, who will be assisted by the Star Auxiliary. Dancing will take place in the Star Hall immediately after the match and a feature of the evening will be the presence of Mr. Star Jazoola from St. John's.

NEW STAMPS FROM AN OLD LAND
 (Saturday Night)
 Postage stamp collecting is a universal hobby. Canada has its thousands of enthusiasts, and news about stamps, especially new special issues, is eagerly sought by them.
 Mr. C. H. Shields, Commissioner of the Chinese Postal Service, at Shanghai, who has spent 25 years in China, recently arrived in Canada on the Empress of Asia.
 In celebration of the twenty-fifth anniversary of the foundation of the Chinese postal service, said Mr.

Shields, "there was issued a very interesting little set of commemorative stamps. The issue consists of four values of the same shape and size as the Chinese revolutionary issue of 1912 or the familiar Quebec Tercentenary stamps of 1908 and the Confederation stamps in Canada issued in 1917.
 "The values are 1 cent, orange; 3 cent, blue green; 6 cent, gray; 10 cent, dark blue. One cent is the local letter rate, three cents the general domestic rate, six cents the double rate, and ten cents the foreign rate. The reason for issuing the six cent stamp is that under the famine surcharge, the registry fee is six cents, although normally five cents. It is noteworthy in this connection that the Chinese stamps use postal union colors to correspond with the denomination rather than the rate.

 "The three portraits used on these stamps are those of President Hsu Shih Chang, fifth president of the republic, who took office in 1918; Chin Yung Peng, the Premier and formerly concurrently Minister of War; and Yeh Kung Chow, who was Minister of Communications when the issue was planned, but later resigned. He made a fine record for constructive achievement during his brief tenure of office and, though not in office yet remains one of the most influential political figures in the country, and a forerunner of better things in Chinese politics.

 "The denomination, in Chinese characters, is in circular tablets shown in the upper corners. An arched label above the president's head bears the Chinese characters reading, in Mandarin, 'China Postal Service Foundation Twenty-five Years Anniversary' to make the translation as literal as possible.
 "It will be recalled that the old Imperial government celebrated the taking over of the postal service from the customs by surcharging all of the stamps of former issues in eight (with denominations in candareens) with new values in cents. The postal service has consistently improved under a series of capable foreign Postal Commissioners, until to-day it is efficient, far-reaching, reasonably rapid as speed in this part of the world goes, and cheap. The Chinese postman in his slouchy green padded clothes is a far cry from the 'postie' at home, but you get your mail, and that is the main thing. In fact, the foreign postal agencies no longer belong in China, for their need is a thing of the past. At the Washington Conference one of the important matters agreed upon was the abolition of the postal offices of foreign governments in China. Under this agreement, China will assume complete and absolute control of her postal services on January 1st, 1923.

Trainman Badly Injured

DISCOVERED ON ROADSIDE.
 Lying on the roadside near Kelli-grews with three ribs broken and a fractured leg, two ladies who were motoring to the city discovered railway conductor Wm. Howlett yesterday afternoon. The injured man is now in Hospital. Conductor Howlett was bringing a freight train city-wards and was not missed by the train crew until arrival at the station at 8 p.m. He was last seen at Kelli-grews and when he did not report upon arrival in the city, enquiries were made for him along the line. The ladies who discovered Mr. Howlett conveyed him to his home on Patrick's Street where he was attended by Dr. J. B. O'Reilly, who ordered him to hospital.

Employment Outlook Brighter.

PORT AT PORT REOPENED.
 Recent prospects of a brighter outlook for Steel and causing some activities in iron ore and other materials used in smelting are to be noted. At present a good deal of labour is being given at Bell Island and nearly 1400 men are employed there. A large quantity of ore which has been in stock pile for some time is now being marketed and a fleet of steamers is engaged carrying the ore to the German market. Trade on the Iron Isle is in consequence booming, after over two years of depression. It is understood that the D. I. & S. Co. will work the Lime Stone quarries at Port au Port during the summer. Mr. H. B. Gillis, the Company's representative, who arrived from Sydney by the Sable I. recently visited Agathuna with a view to re-opening the works. Some 200 men have been engaged and they are now at work quarrying the stone.

Water Supply Pure.

INSPECTION AND ANALYSIS PROVE ASSERTION.
 The purity of the water supplied the city from Windward Lake has been the subject of much discussion among householders of late and various rumours of foreign matter getting into the water have been circulated. As a matter of fact for some days past the water at times has not been as clear as it should be and besides it was noticed to have an odor, and taste of animal matter. On Monday last the Mayor and Councilors paid a visit of inspection to the Lake and screen house. The filter was found to be in complete working order and everything looking in a satisfactory manner. The water has been analyzed by Mr. D. J. Davies, B. S. C., and found to be pure. So householders have no cause to be alarmed.
