The copy filmed here has been reproduced thenks to the generosity of:

Library of the Public Archives of Canada

The images appearing here are the best quality possible considering the condition and legibility of the original copy and in keeping with the filming contract specifications.

Original coples in printed paper covers are filmed beginning with the front cover and ending on the last page with a printed or illustrated impression, or the back cover when approprlate. All other original copies are filmed beginning on the first page with a printed or illustrated impression, and ending on the last page with a printed or illustrated impression.

The last recorded frame on each microfiche shall contain the symbol $\rightarrow$ (meaning "CONTINUED"), or the symbol $\nabla$ (meaning "END"). whichever applies.

Maps, plates, charts, etc., may be filmed at different reduction ratios. Those too large to be entirely included in one exposure are filmed beginning in the upper left hand corner, left to right and top to bottom, as many frames as required. The following diagrams illustrate the method:

L'exemplaire filmé fut reproduit grâce à la générosité de:

La bibliothèque des Archives publiques du Canada

Les images sulvantes ont Gté reproduites avec le plus grand soin, compte tenu de la condition et de la netteté de l'exemplaire filmé, et en conformité avec les conditions du contrat de filmage.

Les exemplaires originaux dont la couverture en papier est imprimée sont filmés en commençant par le premier plat et en terminant soit par la derilère page qui comporte une empreinte d'Impression ou d'illustration, soit par le second plat, selon le cas. Tous les autres exemplaires orlginaux sont filmés en commençant par la première page qui comporte une empreinte d'impression ou d'illustration et en terminant par la dernière page qui comparte une telle empreinte.

Un des symboles suivants apparaîtra sur la dernière image de chaque microfiche, selon le cas: le symbole $\rightarrow$ signifie "A SUIVRE", le symbole $\nabla$ signifie "Fliv".

Les cartes, planches, tableaux, etc., peuvent être filmés à des taux de réduction différents. Lorsque le document est trop grand pour être reproduit en un seul cliché, il est filmé à partir de l'angle supérieur gauche, de gauche à droite. et de haut en bas, en prenant le nombre d'images nécessaire. Les diagrammes suivants illustrent la méthode.

LETTER V.

NOTWITHSTANDING the Change of the Adminiftration which has lately taken Place may have excceded the Hopes of many, who fincerely wifh well to their Country, and the Fears of others, who, carelefs of it's Fate, were, neverthelefs, fomething intimidated by the Apprehenfions of private Lofs; there yet remains many and obftinate Difficulties to be removed, before the Affairs of this Nation, under the wifeft and happieft Direction of the ableft Underftandings, can be brought to glide fmoothly on in their natural Channel, and B the the Miferies brought upon you by paft M—rs be effectually effaced.

Mankind in general is apt too promptly to infer a happy Event from a dawning Promife of Succefs, and conceive an Undertaking accomplifhed which is but juft begun; and, perhaps, Englifbmen are as much fubject to the Influence of this Manner of thinking, as the Natives of any other Nation of the World.

We have frequently concluded, though taught otherwife by previous Experience, that one remarkable Victory would effectually humble our prefent Enemies; and when fuch Conqueft has happened, and they have again rifen from the Defeat, and once more appeared in Arms, we have beheld with Surprize the Powers which have effectuated that which was greatly owing to our Neglect, in not drawing the Advantages which would naturally have followed fuch Succefs. And what Maberbal faid to Annibal after the Defeat of Canne, is juftly applicable to this $\mathrm{Na}-$ tion. You know how to obtain Victory, but you are ignorant in what Manner to apply the proper Advantages arifing from it.

[3]

The fame Remark which has been made in defeating a foreign Enemy, holds equally true in fubduing a domeftick; and the fame Vigilance hould be exerted againft fallen Statefimen, that is neceffary againft a conquered General; without purfuing the Advantages obtained, M-_rs may eafily recover their loft Ground, and the People, becoming remifs and thoughtlefs in protecting the new Statefmen, may probably fee their Endeavours foiled, the veieran Deftroyers reinflated, or, at leaft, preferving Power fufficient to thwart and fruftrate every good Intention of their Succeffors, and prevent every Benefit which might otherwife accrue from the Change. Probably at no Time h.s there been more Reafon to fear, that fomething fimilar to this may prove the Event of the prefent Alteration of the M—_ry; unlefs you, the People of England, whofe juft Remonitrances have removed the old Clan, and placed the prefent Gentlemen in their Places, are ftrenuoufly refolved to exert with Energy every Effort which can preferve them in the Adminiftration of publick Affairs.

Almost infinite are the Reafons which ought to determine you to this Refolution. B 2

It

[4]

It is not to decide a Faction of two rival M _-rs, a $N —$ le or a $F-x$, who, like Athleticks fighing for the Box, oppofe each other with no other Motive, but that of de.termining who thall obtain an abfolute Power over you and your Money, and fecure himfelf your Mafter. It is not whether a $\mathrm{C}-\mathrm{r}$ or Lord of the Ad-ty fhall or fhall not amafs Sums of Money, unknown to have been made in fuch Places 'till this Age, beflow Favours only on the undeferving and infufficient, and fell your Poffelfions to your Enemies. It is not a Difpute concerning what Family fhall reign over you; but others, however interefting the two laft may appear to be, of greater Importance to every Engli/hman. It is whether your Conftitution thall or Thall not be any longer maintained. Whether you. Treafure hall be referved for the Ufe and Advantage of England, or totally exhaufted in purfuing the Interefts of $H-r$. Whether neglecting your Trade, all Power of fupplying and fupporting this Realm fhall be at an End, or Commerce, the Source of all your Powers, vigoroully fuftained. Whether ye Shall be longer a refpectable People, or, fuffering the French to dry up this plenteous Source of all your Wealth, ye become a Scorn amongft the Nations of the Earth.

[5]

That your national Affairs are almoft arrived to this fatal Iffuc, by the Conduct of the late Adminiftation, farce needs an Mr gument to convince you: But as the Force of all their Mifchief may not be fully comprehended by many amongft you, and as I know no Motives more endearing, or more likely to continue your Perfeverance in fo laudable a Defign, as that of preferving your Rights, Liberties, and Conftitution; permit me to lay before your Eyes, the lnjuries which the late $M —$ rs have done you, and this Kingdom; let me endeavour to incite you by all Arguments, which become a free Man fpeaking to a free People, to efpoufe that Caufe, which is of all the moft interefting to fave your Conftitution, grown giddy with long looking over that Precipice on which it ftands, from which it has only not already fallen, and which without the almoft momentary Relief of all England is irrecoverably loft.

I mean of thofe whofe Hearts are not yet converted into Stone, with Refpect to all feeling for their Country's Welfare, by the Gorgon's Head of Place, Penfion, and Corruption, held out by the Hands of the late M-rs.

Indeed

[6]

Indeed was a M —_r once difplaced, like a Tortoife turned on it's Back, rendered incapable of moving from the Place or affifting himfelf, you might have fome pretext for becoming fupine and carelefs: But if you are induced to think in this Manner you err egregioufly. Are they not rather retired than difcarded? May they not have taken Poffeffion of powerful Hearts, like their own, unanimated with Zeal for England's Welfare, and which from fimilar Senfations cannot well bear a Separation? Are they not fuftained by thoufands of mercenary Affociates and Adherents, who, confcious that their own Interent depends on that of the late M——rs, regard their Removal as figning the Death-Warrant of their Luxury, and an Overture to the want of Biead? And though their Suftenance has been long pilfered from the publick Money, and the Produce of your honeft Induftry; fuch is the Nature of Man, and of fuch Men in particular they prefer a general Ruin, which embraces the whole Nation, to the particular one of themfelves, though the Kingdom emerged from that deep, to the bottom of which they had almoft dragged it by their unnatural Weight. The Pain arifing from the Eye of Scorn on their fallen State, infinitely put-weighing out-weighing the Joy, which fuch Men can feel from the Salvation of a whole People.

It cannot reafonably be denied, when M—_rs willingly adopt the Plan and Purfuits of their Predeceffors, that they render themfelves anfwerable for all the fatal Effects, and praife-worthy for all the Benefits, which accrue to the Nation in Confequence of fuch Conduct. We muft imagine, they have juftly weighed and clearly forefeen the probable Events, and accordingly purfued or rejected that Syftem, which had been formed by thofe whom they fucceed.

Those then who have conducted publick Affairs in the fame Way, and left unremedied the Mifchiefs which their Predeceffors brought upon you, are equally criminal with them: For to commit a Crime, or permit it to continue, when it is their Duty to remove it, and they poffefs t've Power, are in nothing materially different : The late $\mathrm{M}-$-rs then might have relieved you the Subjects or quitted their Service. They might have bleffed the Nation by Acts of publick Benefit, or proved they were refolved not to ruin it, by refufing to commit publick Injuries.

These

[ 8 ]

These Men then having rigoroully purfued the pernicious Doctrines of their iniquitous Predeceffors, are left without juft Caufe of Complaint, and equitably deemed refponfible to you the People of England, for the Miferies which have followed.

To alledge in Favour of fuch Men, that the defpotic Inclination of a $S-n$, the extreme Love of Power, or Incapacity in the M—_rs, are Extenuations of their Gult, is to the laft Degree audacious and ridiculous in a free State, which this is ftill prefumed to have a Right to be.

The firft, however arbitrarily and ftrenuoufly it may formerly have been exerted to raife Money for the Ufe of Germans, to engage in Wars in their behalf ruinous to England, to bribe P ——ts, introduce foreign Forces, and opprefs an induftrious and free People with intolerable Taxes on thefe Accounts, might eafily have been warded againft by honeft Statefmen ; they can oppofe to thofe unwarrantable Inclinations in a Prince, the Laws of the Land, the Compact he has made with you the People, his Coronation-Oath, the Conftitution of the Realm, and that Share only which he poffeffes in it, Arguments fufficient to efface every fuch Defire in a virtuous Prince ; but if no Reafons can prevail to avert his Defigns, the Place of $\mathrm{M}-\mathrm{r}$ ought to and may be deferted on fuch Occafions, both fafely and honourably, attended with the Approbation and Efteem of a whole Nation; and what exceeds all, a Confcioufnefs of having difcharged his Duty to his Country and his God.

The exorbitant Love of Power in a M-r, can offer no Excufe for the Evils which are confequent of Mal-Adminiftration ; becaufe it being by nature a Propenfity which no Man has a Right to fatisfy, it becomes greatly criminal and juftly punifhable. And in judging in this Way, we follow but the eftablifhed Order of Nature, which has annexed fevere Penalties to the Indulgence of every Paffion in Excefs, unlefs it be the Love of Virtue; the Debauchee of every Kind feels the Effects of this Truth, and falls the Victim of his own irrational Paffions, and the Senfe of Right and Wrong implanted in our Souls, dooms Punifhment on Offenders of another Kind.

As to the want of Capacity, that Plea is equally inadequate to defend a $M-r$; he muft in the Progrefs of publick Adminittration, have fo repeatedly felt his own Infufficiency, that perfilting to proceed in oppofition to fuch reiterated W arnings and Admonition, he becomes, with the greateft Equity, deemed delinquent, and a kind of Felo de fe, in thus knowingly to continue that, for which he deferves to fuffer by publick Juftice.

Havina thus clearly fhewn, that the Crimes of paft M _rs are juftly to be imputed to thofe who fucceed them, and have not remaved the Miferies which were confequent, permit me to go back to the date of the Revolution, to explain your Rights and Privileges.

It has been generally believed, that at this Period the Nature of your Conftitution, became more explicitly afcertained, and fixt on more permanent Principles, than it had known before that Æra: Ac leaft the obtaining thefe Ends, as well as redreffing Grievances, are acknowledged to be the Motives to the Tranfactions of thofe Times. For had the Power of the Crown been left unlimited and unfetted, unfettled, as before that Event, and the Lim berties and Privileges of you the Subjects in the fame undecided State ; it would have been only to change the Names of Mafters, and not the Nature of their Sovereignty. And if inftead of removing the Caufes of your Sufferings, and fixing your Rights and Liberties, you then gave the P —t an unlimited Authority to difpofe of the latter according to their Inclination; you only changed the Poffeffors of arbitrary Power, by granting to them what you denied the King; and thus this illuftrious Action of the Revolution mult appear to be the Refult of Faction, Caprice, Averfion to one Intereft, or unwarrantable Zeal for another. For how is a Nation become more fettled in it's Freedom, by transferring arbitrary Power from one Part of the Conftitution to another ; any more than a Man becomes more rich who makes the Conveyance, by which a hundred thoufand Pounds pafs from one Hand to another, without a Shilling refting in his poffeffion?

Certainly the Laws that were then enacted to eftablifh the Conflitution, ought to be confidered of a more permanent Nature than Laws in common, of a lefs interefting Intention; the very Bafis and Boundary of the King's Prerogative and Peoples Rights; fomething in the Government like the Center in the Earth, the fixed Point, round which all Things move, and to which they tend; or, according to the Opinion of fome Philofophers, like the plafick Nature, or creative Power, which, immixed and animating all, is immutable in itfelf.

The Acts which were then made relative to this Conflitution, fuch as the Bill of Rights, and fince, in Confequence of it, the Act of Settlement, which may be juftly deemed the Compact between the prefent Royal Family, and you the People of England; are certainly of a Nature more unchangeable and facred than thore which eftablih a Turnpike, and not to be altered or defeated with the fame Eafe as an Act which removes the Fair-Day of a Market Town from Yune to September.

Ought not thofe Acts, founded on your former Rights in Magna Charta, to be confidered rather as the effential Authority by which P -nts exift, than Laws which a P-nt may abrogate, through pure Inclination to indulge a M-r or deprefs a free People?

For does it not feem ftrangely abfurd in a Conftitution, that the Reprefentatives of the People. which form a third Part of it, fhould be authorized by them to annihilate their $\mathrm{Li}-$ berties, and thereby exclude them from the Rights which they poffers in the government of the Realm? Is it not repugnant to the very Idea of a free State, that a People can have given an Authority of facrificing their Privileges, to Men chofen the Guardians of them ? efpecially when nothing of that Kind is either actually or virtually deputed to them at the Time of Election, or in the Nature of the Conftitution; there can be no Reafon affigned for giving up this Right to a reprefentative Body, and relinquihing that of defending your Liberties by the Power of your own Hands and Speech ; but, becaufe you conceive them obliged to be your Defenders, and depend on their fecuring your Properties: otherwife you deprive yourfelves of the Advantages which arife from a State of Nature, and make yourfelves a Prey to fuch Men, by entering into Society ; the moft abfurd and contradictory of all Conceptions. For, as a Man can never give another the Right of killing him, and be deemed in his Senfes, nor the Perfon to whom this Liberty is given put it into Execution, tion, without being punifhed: In like Manner the People, had they given the Power of ruining this Conftitution to their Reprefentatives, ought to have been confidered as Lunaticks, and their Actions illegal, and the Reprefentative punihed, who had given up their Privileges in Confequence of it.

Unless fomething exifts in a free State, which no Part of it can be authorifed to deftroy, it is impoffible the Idea of a Conftitution can fubfift; for not to allow fomething fuperior to a Houfe of Commons, is to grant them an abfolute Power, a Power contradictory to the original Notion of a free People, and deftructive to the Genius of a mixed Government, as it becomes thereby fuperior to the other Parts in the King and Peers, who are acknowledged to be bound by the Confttution.

Ptitution, the two pored fu-$-n t$, the igs; and ery Kind te Power nnot be meant meant an abfolute Power to do Injuftice, or deftroy itfelf, more than an individual Man has to commit Suicide. Such a Power contradicts the very Exiftence of Society, and the Laws by which the Omnipotent is bound, of not doing wrong. Wherefore the deftroying the Rights and Liberties of Nations, being a moft heinous Wrong, neither you can give, nor your Reprefentatives affume, with Equity, a Power which God has not.

Should it be acknowledged, that, though the Commons have exercifed a Power of annihilating many Privileges and Rights belonging to the People, that they can poffers no reafonable Title to it ; then all Laws fubverfive of Magna Cbarta, the Bill of Rights, Act of Settlement, and Spirit of the Conftitution, are an Excefs of their Authority and a Violation of their Truft.

Ir it be afferted that your Reprefentatives, after the Hour of their Election, are no longer anfwerable for their Behaviour, and are legally invefted with Authority to treat your Liberties as they pleafe, then what did King Fames ufurp more than this by his Prerogative? And of what Advantage has the Revolution proved to you, if the fubverting your your Conftitution be legally placed in the Hands of your Reprefentatives? In whet Senfe does the Idea of a free State or Liberty of the People exit, when it depends on nothing more permanent or eftablifhed, than the vague, capricious, or interefted Inclination of a Majority of five hundred Men, who may be open to the infidious Attacks of a M-I? Is it not more precarioully intrufted than to the Care of a S-n ? Surely it will be granted, that a $M \longrightarrow r$, who, by illicit Influence, fhould prevail in paffing Laws fubverfive of the above Statutes, mult be deemed an Offender againft the moft facred of all human Enjoyments, Liberty and the Conftitution of his Country, and at leaft equally criminal with Fames the Second.

It is allowed, that every Part of this Confitution has an equal Right to it's particular Privileges; the King, Lords, and Commons, have fome in general, and fome peculiar to each feverally.

The King, intrufted with the Sovereignty; cannot, by any ACt of his own, diveft the Heir apparent of his Right of Succeffion to the Crown. The Lords cannot alienate the Honours and Privileges of thofe who are entitled entitled to precede them ; they are the Raprefentatives of Peerage as well as of themfelves. In like Manner the Commons, who are intrufted with your Share in the Conftitution, can they give it up to a M-r? Reafon, and the Spirit of the Government, evidently evince they cannot. And to thefe, in Matters relative to the fundamental Parts of a Conftitution, hould not every Act conform?

What can be more contradictory to the Reafon and Spirit of the Conflitution, and of Liberty itfelf, than that where every Subject has an equal Claim to Freedom and the Privileges of the Realm; and not more than a third the Right of voting for their Reprefentatives: That this Minority fhould be authorized to give away the whole Rights and Immunities of a Majority of their Fellow-Subjects to Men, the latter are no wife concerned in electing. And though the Letter of no Law may precifely pronounce they can not: In like Manner there is none which declares they can. Wherefore the whole prefumptive Title a P ——nt can pretend to have of difpofing of your Rights and Privileges can be but Prerogative, which, in thefe very Inftances, having been illegally carried beyond the Limits of Liberty and the Conftitution by

[ 18 ]

King Yames, munt, for the like Reafon, be equailly illegal and criminal in every Branch of the Legillature: And therefore the Spirit of the Conftitution is neceffary to be followed with the friiteft Rigor and Perfeverance.

Should it be objected to this, that uninterrupted Poffeffion for a certain Time, according to the Letter of the Laws, creates a Property in many Things; it fhould be replied, that, in this Inftance of a general Nature, a Manner and Practice of thinking ought to prevail contrary to that which is obferved in thofe of a private: The Spirit and not the Letter is fteadily to be adhered to in all conftitutional Points, becaufe thereby Li berty can only be preferved. To inflance, the Claufe in the Act of Settlement, which prohibits the Prince on the Throne from leaving the Dominions of this Realm without confent of Parliament; though the Letter fays nothing more, the Spirit Speaks a free Parliament, becaufe it confiders nothing a Parliament which is not free. But, in Cafes where the Individual is only concerned, as in Life, the Letter fhould be held inviolably facred; becaufe Judges may poffibly become corrupt, wreft or difguife the Laws by their Explanation, even to influence Juries, and undo the Perfon Perfon adjudged though inn:oce:4: In Property, for the fame Reafon, and becaufe where the Laws are oppreffive in particular Inftances, there remain befides two Courts of Equity, to which you may have Recourfe, and from whence to obtain Redref3.

Probably the Reafon why your Progenitors, in the antient fundamental Statutes of the Realm, have delivered nothing verbally explicit on this Head; of limiting the Power of their Reprefentatives, derives it's Origin from the fame Caufe that the Romans had no Laws againit Parricide : They never conccived that the Thought of betraying or felling a People's Liberties, any more than murdering a Father, could enter the human Heart They neither imagined that the Reprefentative could ever pulfers an Intereft diftinct from that of his Conlituent, or that pecuniary Advantage could outweigh the publick Good in his Breaft: They did not frefee, that M-rs might one Day have Occafion to opprefs yau for the Support of German Princes, or that Englifbmen, no longer animated by the Soul of publick Profperity, might degenerate into granting oppreffive Taxes, 'til! the Nation would be brought within one Step of Ruin: Or that Laws, effential to the Eftablifhment of Freedom and Security of the State, could, like Bubbles blown by Boys, be made to reflect different Colours as the Light was directed upon them, or burft at the Mandate of a M-r, by the Breath of a Majority of five hundred Men.

1 Am apt to believe thofe Advocates, who fuftain that your Reprefentatives once elected are free to act as they lift, and not anfwerable for their Conduct to you their Conlituents; are led into that Error from not righly comprehending the Difference between Power and Authority: Two Words frequently ufed indifcriminately to exprefs the fame Idea, which, notwihftanding, diffe extremely in their Signification.

A General appointed by the King and paid by the Nation, receives an Order from his Prince to command; and Money from his Fellow-Subjects to fupport, an Army. In his Commiffion, it is not mentioned that he fhall not wage War againft the Kingdom, becaufe his being appointed for the Prefervation of the Realm excludes all Idea of his deferting the Duty of oppofing the Enemies, to invade the Rights of his Fellow-Subjects: Yet, though this Reftriction be never inferted, so Man cair reafonably conceive, that becaufe by Rewards and Punifhments, by finifter Application to the Paffions, artful Infinuations, fophiftical Arguments, and various Methods of prevailing on Mankind, he may have a Power of feducing this Army to defert their Duty and enflave their Country ; that therefore, he has an Authority to behave in that Manner: Or that his Crime would be lefs atrocious and flagrant fhould he fucceed in that Attempt. On the contrary, all Mankind will denominate him and his Troops, bafe and perfidious Betrayers of the Nation's Caufe, detefted Enllavers of a free Country, even though he perpetrated this horrid Action in Obedience to a King's Mandate: The very Spirit of their Appointment, and nefarious Breach of Truft, denounce Horror and Deteftation on all fuch Men.

In this Inftance, and in ten thoufand others, Power and Authority are utterly diftinct : The being enabled to do an Injury, implies no Authority for it's being carried into Execution, or Extenuation of the Iniquity.

In like Manner, when the Reprefentatives of a People prefume to act contrary to the very Elements of their Conflitution, betray and give up their Rights, Privileges, and Lir berties, though nothing in the fundamental Statutes literally may prohibit to ignominious a Behaviour; the very Nature of their Station, the innate Senfe of Right, and original Spirit of Government, manifefly contradict all Poffibility of their having Title for fuch Proceedings: And whenever it is done, is it not an Act of Power and not of Authority? To this fhould it be added, that fuch Things have been accomplifhed in Confequence of a M—_r's Mandate and pecuniary Influence: What Crime can be more heinous, improved by the indignant and humiliating Confideration, that your Equals, whom you chofe to fave, have fold you like Cattle, you and your Poffeffions, the Produce of your Arts, Manufactures, and Commerce, to M—rs who paid your Betrayers with one Part of that Money which was levied on you, and fquandered the Remainder, to fecure themfelves in Place, on German Slaves and German Interefts, neglectful of every Advantage, which their Station, their Country, and Heaven itfelf called upon them to afford their exbaufted Fellow-Subjects.

Indeed, though no Statute, as far as I can recollect, has mentioned the Limitation of p ———y Power before the Revolution; yet it is manifeft from the Bill of Rights, that the Enactors of that Law, having conceived what pecuniary Ferfuafion and $\mathrm{M}-$-rs might hereafter obtain on the Parliament, have inferted a Claufe declarative, that the Rights then afcertained were no Innovation on the Conftitution, and that their Succeffors were obliged to follow them, as may be feen in the fucceeding Words tranfcribed from that Charter of Liberty.

" ration, are the true, ancient, and indubi$\because$ table Rights and Liberties of the People of "this Kingdom (Eingland), and fo fhall be "s efteemed, allowed, adjudged, deemed, and " taken to be : And that all and every the "Particulars aforefaid, fhall be firmly and " ftrictly holden and obferved, as they are " exprefled in the faid Declaration ; and all * Officers and Minifters whatfoever, thall " ferve their Majenties and their Succeffors, " according to the fame in all Times to "s come."

From this it evidently appears, that the Men who formed this Act, imagined, that as the Redrefs of Grievances was by the Nature of the Conftitution obligatory on them, that the fame ought and muft be fo on their Succeffors, and the Act immutable; otherwife, their affuming an Authority to bind them to it by this Paffage, would of all Things appear the moft impote.t. and ridiculous.

In order to clear up the Difficulties which have been imagined to attend the afcertaining the Authority of your Reprefentatives in P—_t, I hope I fhall be excufed, having taken up fo much of your Time. It appeared to me abfolutely neceffary to lay a folid Foundation ple of tall be 1, and ry the $y$ and $y$ are nd all thall effors, les todation for the Accufation, which I am about to bring on the late M—rs, That they have, in open Violation of your Rights, extended their Power infinitely beyond the Limits of their Authority and the Conftitution, by Means of prevailing on your former Reprefentatives, and by that Means divefted you of the moft effintial Privileges of Liberty and a free State, and reduced you to a worfe Condition than that to which you were brought before the Revolution.

If I miftake not, we are prohibited by an Exprefs and penal Lawi, to write any Thing derogatory to the Revolution, confidering it; I imagine, not as a Tranfaction, that will not bear the ftrongef Light of Truth; and Teft of ftricteft Enquiry ; but as fomething facred, which it is a Kind of political Blafs phemy to attempt to criminate.

In Confequence of the Excellences parliamentarily acknowledged to exift in the Revolution, the Acts made to eftablifh that, the prefent Conftitution, and the prefent Royal Family, muft alike participate of this Sacrednefs: Or on what juft Foundation can this Reve= rence have been demanded.

For this Reafon the Bill of Rights, paffed in 1689, at the Prince of Orange's coming to the Throne, and the Act of Settlement, in the twelfth and thirteenth Year of his Reign, muft include the great Title to this Diftinction; if writing, then, againft the Revolution, of which thefe make the moft effential Confiderations, is little lefs than Treafon; rendering them ineffectual in the moft important Articles can be but little lefs than State Sacrilege.

The Particulars mentioned in the firf, were then confidered as fo many Violations committed by King fames on the Privileges of the People, and neceffary to be remedied, for the Sake of fecuring your Religion, and re-eftablinhing Liberty and the Conftitution.

And of the fecond, as fo many Barriers to fortify your Liberties, Privileges, and Conftitution, againft any Probability of lofing them, which might arife from a new King being feated on the Throne; a Stranger to our Language, Cuftoms, and Laws; born to rule arbitrarily over his original Subjects; unacquainted with the Nature of a commercial and free State ; uninftructed in the Knowledge of Arts and Sciences; fond of a military Government; and of a different Sect in Religion from the eftablifhed Church of England.

Can, it then be conceived, that, if a M—_r hall, by Dint of Corruption, have effaced the Effects of all Religion, and, by Dint of the fame Purfuit on former P -_ts, have abrogated every Article which was protective of your Rights and Privileges, that fuch Acts are lefs illegal or lefs criminal in him than in a $\mathrm{S}-\mathrm{n}$; for what Difference does it make, whether you lofe your Liberties by the exorbitant Power of a King, or the Tyranny of a M-r ; or what Confolation can be drawn, from being affaffinated by a royal Hand, or by a Captain of the Mob; it is the Lofs of Liberty which makes the Curfe, and the taking it away the Iniquity.

The Grievances at that Time complained of againft the Sovereign had their Foundation in Juftice and the Rights of the Subject, and the redreffing them in the Nature of the Conftitution: Otherwife, by what Arguments will you affign a Caufe of Complaint againft the Prince on the Throne, or preferve thofe E 2 Men

Men who accomplified the Revolution from the Imputation of Want of Allegiance to their King.

They confidered the Conftitution as the primary Object of an Einglijhman; and the King but as the fecondary ; who, by his Attempts towards Defpotiiin, became a Kind of Rebel againft this fuperior Power. They junly reafoned, that as the People, which makes a third of the Conflitution, are deemed Traitors, for plotting or attempting the Life of, or taking up Arms againft, the King, which forms another third of the Conftitution, and doomed to Death in confequence of fuch Behaviour; in like Manner that King Fames rebelled againft two thirds of this Goyernment, by attempting to fubvert their Religion and Liberties: For our Conftitution fuppofes, that each Part of it has a Right to be preferved; that two ase more than one: And the Happinefs of a whole People to be preferved, in Preference to the Ambition or other pernicious Paffions of a $\mathrm{S}-\mathrm{D}$.

Shall then a M—r be exempted from Punihment, becaufe he has effected in one Method the very Defpotifm which was oppofed in a King, and defervedly drove him into Exile for attempting it in another?

But before I prefume to animate you towards the recovering your loft Privileges, and calling them who have fubverted the Conftitution to a legal Inquiry, let me lay before you what are the Particulars which afford a Reafon for fuch a Proceeding; and in this Place I hope it may be excufed in me, if I tranfpofe the Order of the Articles which are in the Bill of Rights, and begin with the following:
> - The Election of Members of P——nt ! ought to be free.'

If a Minifter, then, by Rewards and Punifhments, by Means of his Affociates, by Promifes or Threats, or any other undue and corrupt Influence, has at any Time procured a P-nt to be returned, is it not totally repugnant to that Part of the Act of Settlement juft mentioned? But if to this it may be confcientioully added, that a Majority of thefe Members have been under the fame pernicious Power of pecuniary Purchafe, Placemen and Penfioners, mercenary Dependants on a M-r's Nod; certainly fuch a Body of Men

[ 30 ]

Men were not what they ought to be, and therefore, like James, when he became what he ought not, righteoully to be oppofed.

AND here, perhaps, before I proceed, or reafon or conclude any Thing on the fatal Effects of fuch a M—r and fuch a P _nt in this Conftitution, I ought to prove, that a M—r has by fuch Means influenced, or the Conftituents by fuch Means returned, Reprefentatives of fodangerous a Complexion.

In Anfwer to this, I appeal to the Bofom of every Man, if he is hot conviuced of this Truth; if any Man is not, let him ftand forth and declare his Name, and it thall be proved; 'till when, I thall confider it as a felf-evident Truth, like that in Geometry, that a ftrait Line is the Morteft which can be drawn between two Points.

If, then, this effential Article of your fecond Charter of Liberties, the Refurrection of your Conftitution, has been long violated, how can a P—nt of fuch a Temperament be faid to be your Reprefentatives, or by what Senfe are the Laws they paffed legally enacted, when this, your only Security, is effectually alienated.

The firft Claufe in this facred Act, the Bill of Rights, which was ordained for your Security, is, "That the pretended Power of " fufpending Laws, or the Execution of Laws "by regal Authority, without Confent of " Parliament, is illegal."'

To declaim on the Benefit of this Bleffing, or tla Miferies and Oppreffions, which have been and may be confequent of it, would be to treat you like Children, infenfible or regardlefs of your Condition, or as Beings, whofe Souls are rendered paralytick, by the numbing Malignity of the late Ad——n.

How then fhall I mention to you the Affair of Maidfone, where a common Thief, a capital Offender of the Laws, a foreign Hireling, becaufe a $H — n$, was, by $m$-rial Mandate, difmiffed from the Cognizance, and refcued from the Hands, of Juftice? Were not the Laws fufpended in this Inftance without Confent of $\mathrm{P}-\mathrm{nt}$, Mag$n a$ Cbarta and your Charter of Rights unpardonably violated? And here permit me to afk you, if billetting the foreign Mercenaries, at their firf coming, on the Inn and PublickHoufe Keepers, equally intitled to Liberty and and Pofieffion of their Abodes with all other Subjects, was not an arbitrary and illegal Act, a Shameful Stretch of $m$-rial Power? Your Laws then have been fufpended in $\mathrm{Fa}_{\mathrm{a}}$ vour of one $H — n$, and an arbitrary Power affumed, even more criminal than the Sufpenfion of Law, in Favour of the reft.

Will not then more momentous Confiderations again fufpend the Laws, preferve Offenders, and create defpotick Orders, to opprefs you, whenever Occafion fhall demand them? For can it be conceived, that the Perfon who at once prefided in the Law, coëval with the M—r in Power alfo, could be fo grofly ignorant of your Conftitution, as not to know that fuch Commands, to billet Mercenaries, were illegal and anticonftitutional? The next Article to be oblerved, fo effentially neceffary to the Prefervation of Liberty and the Conftitution, and fo happily provided by the Reprefentatives of the People at that Time, is,
" That the raifing and keeping a Stand" ing Army within the Kingdom in Time of " Peace, unlefs it be with Confent of Par" liament, is againft Law."

This Claufe has been long abrogated, long complained of, and long unremedied, in Times of profound Tranquillity. And though by Confent of $P$ ——nt is inferted in this Article, by which the Sufpenfion of it was effected; yer the Condition of that P——nt ought to have been free, or it neverthelefs becomes repugnant to the Bill of Rights, the Nature of $\mathrm{P}-$-nts, and the Spirit of the Conttituion. Is there a Man who will affert, that the P _nt which firft deprived you of this Bleffing was independent of the $\mathrm{M}-\mathrm{r}$ ?

To this inmediately fucceeds another Claufe, which, the Moment it was fufpended, rendered you impotent, and ranked you amongft the moit abject of all Slaves; with that Circumftance, fo aggravating to a liberal Mind, the being deemed Rebels; for Cowards may poffefs Arms without Danger to any Man. It is,
> "' That the Subjects, which are Prote" Rants, may have Arms for their Defence " fisitable to their Conditions, and as allowed " by Law."

${ }^{\prime}$ The Law of a free P-unt. How are your Conditions lefs fuitable to the poffeffing Arms now, than when this Law was made? Have you renounced all Title to Freedom? Have you deferted the eftablifhed Religion of the Kingdom? Have you turned thuie Arms in Rebellion againft your $S-n$, that you are now no longer intrufted with the Poffertion of them? Or is the Prefervation of Hares and Fartridges become a more important and P——ntary Concern, than thofe of Liberty and the State? That an Engli/Jman, and free, unlefs he poffefs one hundred Pounds a Year in Land, or one hundred and fíty in Leafe, though though he be worth a hundred Thoufand Pounds in Money, cannot kill one of thefe Animals, without being fubject to a Fine of five Pounds, or Imprifonment, in a Country where it is not worth a Shilling.

[ 35 ]

Thus, to be qualified to kill a Hare, a Man muft be poffeffed of fifty Times the Revenue which authorizes him to vote for creating the Legiflators of his Country. Strange Abfurdity in a free State, unnatural Vaffalage, that a free Man fhould be prohibited by Law from killing the Produce of his own tands, whatever be the Income of the:m.

Yet under this Difguife of preferving Hares, did a $\mathrm{M} \longrightarrow r$ cunningly devife to deprive you of Arms to defend Yourfelves, thus making you Slaves, by robbing you of the Power of Refiftance: When will the Day of Redemption come!

The next Article was made to coincide with that Law, which, though frequently fufpended to indulge a $M — r$ in exercifing Acts of Oppreffion and Tyranny; is ftill the beft Bleffing of an Engli/b Subject: The Habeas Corpus Act. ., It is as follows,

F_{2} \quad \because \text { That }

[ 36 ]

"That expeffive Bail ought not to be "required, nor exceffive Fines impofed, nor " cruel and unufual Punifhments inflicted."

What excefive is meant to exprefs in this Place is not eafy precifely to determine. In a common Cafe, I know, two thoufand Pounds Bail was demanded and given as Security for Appearance at the King's Bench; and not long fince, a Printer received fuch Punihment, as can fcarce be conceived to come within the Letter of this Claufe; being punifhed in Body, Purfe, and Soul $\mathbf{b}_{j}$ a Man who dared to oblige a M——r in any Action that came before him, however illegal and inhuman, for the Sake of acquiring Nobility, and amaffing infinite Wealth. A Man who committed to Prifon, in direct Oppofition to the Habeas Corpus Act, and offered to try the pretended Offence in his own Houfe without a Jury; who only wanted the bloody Opportunity of being lefs merciful than Peftilence or Jefferies: For never fince the Hour that Satan revolted from his God, has Heaven permitted fo large a Portion of that Principle, which in Scripture is called dxapiviov $\tau$, to be immixed with the human Soul, But he is gone, and his Defires unaccomplifhed.

[37.]

complithed. Thus perifh all, difappointed and detefted, who pervert the Laws of Li berty to the Mandates of a $M-r$, their own Ambition, or the Ruin of the Conftitution.

Such have been the important Articles enacted for the Prefervation of your Rights, Liberties, and Conftitution; and though the latter may now no longer remain a Caufe of Complaint, becaufe fuch M -is are no more; and becanfe it is difficult to conceive, that Genius, a Senfe of Honour, and the Rank he bears, can permit the Succeffor to ftain his high Office, by obeying the Dictates' of a $\mathrm{M}-\mathrm{r}$, or other Perfon in Power.

Yet to what a forlorn Condition is this Bulwark of your Liberties reduced. Let any Man, who can feparate the Influence of m -rial Intereft from that Luve and Duty which he owes his Country, reflect but one Moment, and then ank himfelf, whether the moft effential Benefits of the Revolution are not rendered ineffectual, and the Bleffings of the Conftitution done away, by the Power of $\mathrm{M}-\mathrm{rs}$.

$\left[3^{8}\right]$

Such having been the Fate of the Bill of Rights, let me now proceed to lay before you what has been the Event of the Act of Settlement, founded on the former, made for the eftablifhing the Houfe of $H-r$ on the Throne, the Compact between that and you.

The fecond Article of this AEt is,
" That, in Cafe the Crown and imperial " Dignity of this Realm fhall hereafter come to any Perfon, not being a native of this, Kingdom of England, this Nation be not " obliged to engage in any War for the De" fence of any Dominions or Territories " which do not belong to the Crown of " England, without the Confent of Parlia" ment."

Whether this Article hath or bath not been righteoully obferved, let the Blood you have fpilt, the Millions you have wafted, the Millions you are in Debt, the Mercenaries you have hired, the German Princes you have purchafed, the Alliances you have made and broken, the Days you have toiled, the Commerce you have extended to procure Wealth, ftand fland forth and declare; and then do you pronounce according to their Evidence.

The next Claufe was happily devifed for ftrengthening the former, by weaning the new S-n from the Love that he bore his native Land and native Subjects; and which, however well deferving it they might be, and however laudable in their Prince, was no hard Exaction on the Part of the People of England, confidering the Value of what he left and what they gave; the Territories he quitted for the Dominions he gained, and that from one of the leaft Princes of the Empire he inftantly became one of the moft powerful Kings of Europe.
"That no Perfon who thall hereafter " come to the Poffeffion of this Crown, fhall " go out of the Dominions of England, Scot" land, or Ireland, without Conient of " P——nt."

What has the abrogating this Claufe als ready coft? When will the Expence be at an End? How effectually has it verified the Wifdom and Prefcience of thofe, who made it Part of this Charter of Compact ?

The following Article in like Manner, of the utmoft Importance, was prudently devifed for the Prefervation of your Liberties, to intimidate $M-r s$ from giving pernicious Counfel to their $\mathrm{S}-\mathrm{ns}$, and from attempting to fubvert the Conftitution of the Realm; for wicked Men will dare to advife, when concealed from Difcovery, what the Fear of Death makes them fhrink from witneffing with their own Hands. It is,
" That from and after the Fime that " the further Limitation by this Act fhall " take Effect, all Matters and Things relating " to the well-governing of this Kingdom, " which are properly cognizable in the Privy" Council, by the Laws and Cuftoms of this " Realm, fhall be tranfacted there, and all Re" folutions taken thereupon, fhall be figned " by fuch of the Privy-Council as Chall advife " and confent to the fame."

This Reftraint, fo falutary to King and People, framed for the Prefervation of mutual Rights and reciprocal Profperity, unhappily fubfifts no longer; M-rs advife and fubfcribe not: Thus Kings have been milled and you undone. Befides the infuperable Difficulty

[41]

Difficulty which from thence arifes, of tracing to the Source the Iniquity of thofe Men, who have involved this Nation in all the large Lift of prefent Misfortunes, and of obtaining ample Satisfaction, fo neceffary to the Support of your Rights and the Conftitution.

After the above Claufe, immediately fucceeds the following, imagined with the fame righteous View by your Fathers, and doomed to the fame fatal End by your Cotemporaries; it was for the Security of your Properties from Foreignere, who the P—nt, tanght by the bounteous Inclination in King William, of fripping you, and beftowing on fuch Men, wifely forefaw, without fuch Provifion, would, like the Swarms of Locufts fallen upon Egypt, be ao lefs the Plague of this Country, and eat up every green Thing.

And here I confider all Pofts and Places, civil and military, as the Birthrights of Englifhmen; on you the Taxes are levied, on you thefe Emoluments naturally devolve. The Words are,
"That after the faid Limitation fhall " take Effect, as aforefaid, no Perfon born G " out

[ 42 ]

" out of the Kingdoms of England, Scotland,
" or Ireland, or the Dominions thereunto " belonging (although he be naturalized or " made a Denizen, except fuch as are born " of Englif Parents), fhall be capable to en" joy any Office or Place of Truft, either " civil or military, or to have any Grant of " Lands, Tenements, or Hereditaments, " from the Crown to himfelf, or any other " or others in Truft for him."

This Claufe, with Pain I tell it you, has been openly violated by a late $\mathrm{M}-\mathrm{r}$, i i appointing to the Command of a Ship of War an Alien to the Land, a $H-n$, a Man by no fuperior Merit entitled to fuch Diftinction ; for Merit may afford fome Excufe for fuch Predilection. Indeed, though this Part of the above Claufe has alfo been fufpended in Favour of Mr Prov- $t$, it affords you Matter of Joy, rather than Caufe of Complaint; becaufe his long Service, great Skill in military Affairs, his known Honour to the Prince he formerly ferved, his Merit in fo fpeedily, fo fully; and fo cheaply, raifing his Regiment of Germans, fo timely fent to the Colonies, fo agreeable to the Difpofitions of the Inhabitants, and fo promifing of national national Service, render him an Object deferving fuch high Diftinction.

Great as this Advantage from German Troops may prove to America, there is yet one Object which muft pierce the Heart of every Englifbman with unfpeakable Anguifh; it is the numerous Germans which are inlifted in the Guards. This ftamps the moft flagrant Difgrace on Engli/b Loyalty, and raifes the moft honourable Refentment againft a M—r in all who behold his M-y's facred Perfon furrounded by foreign Soldiers. Nor will I, though an Angel came from Heaven to tell it me, believe an Engli/b King can conceive himfelf fafe, protected by German Guards, be acquainted with, and permit this Affront to reft on Subjects who have never ftained their Allegiance. Surely the Guards of facred Perfons are in Places of military Truft, or what Idea can be annexed to the Expreffion. Who can be affured of the Fidelity of fuch Men, accuftomed to be fold and ready to be bought to any Purpofe? Who can clofe his Eye in Peace, alarmed by Apprehenfions for the precious Life of his moft facred M-y ; particularly when we confider what has been fo lately attempted on the Life of the Moft Chriftian King.

Away then with every venal and fufpected German; free the Nation from it's Fears and the K-g from Danger ; fuffer not the ftanding Reproach of Difloyalty with which the M—r has ftigmatized you; let your Prince know, what your Fathers thought and accomplifhed concerning the Dutcb Guards of King William, how difpleafing, to them, how reluctantly he difmiffed them, and the Intereft he loft in his Subjects Hearts by that jll-judged Partiality; you will then have no longer Caufe to complain. With what royal Condefcenfion has your S- fent back the $H-n s$, becaufe they were no longer pleafing to the Nation. Will he not do the like with Refpect to thofe Germans which are inlifted in the Guards?

Nor, in this Part alone of this Article, does this Act feem to be virtually, if not literally, infracted; for though Lands and Tenements may not have been granted to Foreigners, Are not Penfions for one and thirty Years abfolute, within the Letter of this Law? Do they not defcend from Father to Son? Are they not juftly ftiled Hereditaments? At leaft, Are they not contrary to the Intent and Spirit of the Act? Deprivations of that Money, which, raifed by the Subjects of the Realm, ought to be difpofed of only for their Service. Why then do the Names of Sporke, Herman Hobourge, Steinberg, Gravenbope, Schuts, Scbroder, Y-, Schaub, ftand oppofite to nine thoufand three hundred Pounds in the Lift of Penfions, paid annually by the Revenues of Ircland? What are their Pleas of Merit for thefe Rewards? Are they all according to the righteous Commandments of the King of Kings.

Besides thefe, Numbers fand as Penfioners on England. Is it not Time to wipe them from the Lift, when this Nation is now agonizing at the laft Gafp, drained to the laft Drop, by Transfufion of the vital Power of England into Germany, to fuftain the unnatural Interefts of $H=r$ ? Certainly your S——n knows it not ; your and his Enemies have alike concealed from him and you the approaching Ruin.

There yet remains another Article, which requires the moft facred Obfervation, effential to the very Being of a P-nt, and fecuring the Members you return the genuine Reprefentatives of your Rights and Privileges. It is,

[ 46 ]

"That no Perfon who has an Office or " Place of Profit under the King, or receives "a Penfion from the Crown, fhall be capa" ble of ferving as a Member of the Houfe " of Commons."

The manifert Defign of framing this Claufe, was to fecure your Part of the Conftitution from the Influence which the Crown might otherwife obtain by the Power of Port and Penfion, and, of Confequence, from that of the M—ralfo. Now, though no Offence may ever have been committed againft this Part by the immediate Interpofition of the Crown; yet few Men, $\mathbf{I}$ nagine, will deny, that an Influence, equall . oductive of Evils, which this Article was intended to prevent, has been long exerted by the late M -rrs ; and that, in former P-nts, Places have been fplit, and the Salary weighed out, like Provifions to Sailors on a fhort Allowance, becaufe the Crew was too large, and the Stores too fmall, to give every Man the full Quantity; not to preferve the Ship, but from a very different Motive, to fecure them as Evidence in Favour of the Captain, who may one Day be tried for having embezzled the Cargo.

Nor is it only by the Annihilation of thofe Claufes, that M—rs have reduced you to a worfe State of m——rial Defpotifm than before the Revolution. Other Laws have been framed, incompatible with the Exiftence of a free State. A Magiftrate, in the Power of a M-r; and Nomination of the Crown, is by Law impowered to commit the Freemen of England to a Jail, if more than twelve meet together, and do not difperfe at his Word of Command ; which Difobedience is Deati by the fame Law. What Chriftian Nation in Europe has any Thing fo defpotick in it's Nature? The innumerable Hardhips in the Act of Smuggling, which the Subject is liable to fuffer from the Mialice of latent Enemies, is a moft grievous Oppreffion, as well as all Statutes where the Subject has no Appeal from Officers of the Crown to the Courts of Law. What are all thofe Informations which have been encouraged by the late M—_rs in the Court of King s-Bench, for pretended Libels; where you are arbitrarily put to Expence, and though innocent, and never brought to Tryal, yet without all Power of Kedrefs. What are they but the Reftoration of the Star-Chamber? Why are you deprived of the conftitutional Method by Indictment?

The Marriage Act, by which the leaft criminal is rendered guilty, and the moft criminal unpunifhable: That inflicts Penalties on the Clergy, from which all other Subjects are exempt.

The Power which a $\mathbf{C}$-ur affumes, of committing thofe who are legally married and their Relations to Prifon: What is it in Effect but another Court of Wards.

As to Popery, thank Heaven, we are in no Danger of feeing a Prince of that Religion on this Throne; no Man can deny the Royal Family the Juftice of acknowledging that they are thorough Proteftants.

But whether that Deluge of Irreligion and Irreverence for the Supreme Being, which has been let in upon the Nation, fo that Bifhops have been encouraged to depreciate the Object of your Worthip, and Corruption let loofe to the effacing all moral and religious Obligation, annihilating the very Idea of a God from the Minds of the higheft and loweft Clafs of People, be lefs pernicious to the

[ 50 ]

State in a M—r, than an Attempt to introduce Popery in a King; you will decide for yourfelves. One Thing, however, I may venture to affirm ; the Motives in each probably fprung from a very different Origin: In the King, it might be Zeal for the Caufe of God, and the Salvation of thofe, whofe Souls he conceived in Danger of eternal Perdition, by continuing in the fame Perfwafion: In the M—r, Defign to eradicate every Senfe of Duty as a Citizen and Chriftian, to lay open the Minds of the People to the Prevalence of Money, to break down every Principle of Virtue by Corruption, to remove all Objection to his Intent of fubverting the State, that he might reign fupreme through fuch deteftable Atchievements.

The firf, however miftaken and contradictory to the Genius and Welfare of this Conftitution, might take it's Birth from Good-Will towards Mankind.

The latter could foring but from the moft nefarious of all Defigns, that of vitiating every Heart, and enflaving a whole People.

Through the Courfe of what I have faid to you, I have fuppofed for the laft forty Years,

[5I]

Years, before the Commencement of the prefent Punt, that your Reprefentatives have been under undue m—rial Influence, illegally elected, and contradictory to the Genius of a free State; which abfolutely requires they fhould be independent. But, even in fuppofing them free in every Senfe, could they have conftitutionally given away or alienated your Rights and Privileges? You muft affuredly poffefs the fame Title to thefe Immunities, which your Forefathers poffeffed in the Reign of Ricbard the Second; when, by the Machinations and Perfwafions of that King and his Minifters, that execrable Parliament of 1397, in one facrilegious Vote, impudently repealed every falutary Law of their Anceftors, attempted to fubvert the Conftitution, declared the King fuperior to the Laws, and transformed the Autbority of the Sovereign into the lawlefs Power of a Ty rant.

The Senfe of your Progenitors was by no Means altered by this audacious Action; they deemed the Conftitution paramount to the united Powers of P —nt, their Liberties incapable of being given up by their RepreSentatives: ihey took Arms, oppofed the King, their Reprefentatives, and his Abettors, and H2 reftored reftored their ancient Rights and Privileges. Such was the exalted Love of Liberty, the honourable and virtuous Behaviour of your Anceftors, on that important Occafion; they obliged Ricbard the Second to abdicate his Throne, for having ufurped their Rights by Confent of Parliament. In like Manner Fames the Second, in attempting a fimilar Defign by extended Prerogative, fuffered the like Fate, and abdicated allo.

Shall then M——rs in England, the Servants of the Publick, in the Reign of George the Second, perpetrate, without being called to a national Enquiry, what Sovereigns have never dared to attempt with Impunity?

Awake then, inftruct your Members, remonftrate inceffantly to your Prince, fet forth the Juftice of your Requeft, petition the Repeal of thofe Laws which have fecluded you from Rights and Privileges renewed by the Revolution, and urge the Neceffity of being reftored; let not Pleafure, Pain, or Sleep, efface that Image from ypur Minds, nor change that Refolution of your Souls, 'till you obtain the Liberties, of which by M--rs you have been spoiled, and you deliver the Conftitution to your Sons as you received it from your Fathers.

Fathers. So thall fucceeding Generations blefs the prefent, and your Names be fairly written in the Records of immortal Glory.

For either your Forefathers, whofe Actions have fo often warmed your Hearts in reading their Story ; from whom you glory to have defcended, had no juft Title to recover thofe Rights, which their Reprefentatives gave op in the Reign of Ricbard: Or that Title fubfifts in full Force in that of George the Second, and may be as righteoully exerted by you againft $m$ _rial, as by them againft royal, Power. For you neither have nor can forfeit the Claim of fueing for Redrefs of Grievances; nor M——rs obtain a legal Confent and conftitutional Authority from your Reprefentatives, of rendering ineffectual thofe Statutes, which were made to protect your Liberties, and preferve your Share in the Conftitution.

This muft inevitably be the Opinion, whatever be the prefent Profeffion, of all who have juftified and fupported the Eftablifhment of the Prince of Orange and the prefent Family on the Throne of thefe Realms; otherwife; they renounced without Reafon, and adopted without Principle; they have relinquifhed quifhed the moft prevalent Arguments in Fa vour of the Revolution, and ftand Self-condemned Criminals. For would it not be a ftrange Manner of arguing to urge, that thofe Laws were effentially neceffary at that Time, to preferve us againft arbitrary Power in a King, and needlefs at prefent againft the Defpotifm of a M——r.

Nor can I conceive any Way of thinking fo promifing of Prejudice to the royal Line ; hould you, the People, conceiving that all Security arifing from thofe Acts is rendered ineffectual by m-rial Influence, infer, that every mutual Compact is virtually diffolved: When the moft important Articles on one Part are rendered effete and without Efficacy, thofe on the other ftill remaining in all their original Vigour; and thence think yourfelves abfolved from all Allegiance.

The very thought, like the Hand of Death, muft frike every Man with Dread, when he reflects how numerous are the Bleffings with which the prefent royal Houfe has enriched this Land; how convincing the Reafons which oblige him to cherih every ardent wilh for their long Life and Profperity; and how perilous the Situation into which they may may be brought by the Mifdeeds and Iniquities of the late M-rs.

Thus, then, the Breaches of the Conftitution may be alike fatal to the Crown as to the Subject, and the Neceffity of it's being reftored becomes the equal Concern of King and People.

Certainly, nothing can be more averfe to the Inclination of a good Prince, thanfcreening M-rs who have oppreffed his Subjects. By fuch Meafures, did not Ricbard, Fames, and many others, incur the Difpleafure which their M-rs would otherwife have felt, and, by becoming their Protectors, rowfe the Wrath of an injured Nation, and fuffer accordingly?

But, fince the Seafon is now palt, in which the late Ad ——n entirely poffeffed the $\mathrm{r}-\mathrm{al}$ Ear, the Rays of Truth, darting from other Underftandings, may probably reveal new Profpects, and difpel that Obfcurity from Facts difguifed and Fallhoods concealed, which, hanging like Mifts before your S_-n's Eyes, prevented him from difcovering the pernicious Tendency of his late Advifers.

[ $5^{6}$ ]

By Means of this Illumination, thofe who have undefervingly rifen by fpurious Means, like Hubert de Burgh, alike difpofed to fix or to deftroy your Conftitution on felfifh Views alone; who have obtained the high Honours of Earl and Baron, degraded from their Ranks, may unpitied, with the juftert Ignominy, ftand on the Rock of wild Ambition, deferted and expofed, amidft the Waves of popular Contempt ; like the Edyftone amidft the Sea, a warning Light to all, who, through falle Glory, Avarice, Pride, betraying, ill advifing, or felling their King and Country, may hereafter rife from the loweft Extraction to the higheft Honours.

Such has been the Fate of the Bill of Rights and Act of Settlement, obtained with Honour and loft with Ignominy, preferved from Kings and facrificed by M-rs. Yet frange as it may appear, fuch is the diffolute Nature of thofe Men, who are attached to the Meafures of the late Ad ——n, the Author of a Pamphlet, called the Confitution, has omitted every Confideration of this Kind, and, with affected Tendernefs for his dear Country, Itrives to alarm you with the Danger which attends

attends your Liberties from the future At- ${ }^{\text {² }}$ tempts of the prefent Minifter.

In fetting out he declares," His Defign is " to animate and unite the Fitends of the "Conftitution in it's Defence and Prefervation." Yet; as if it were ftill undamaged and entire, mentions nothing of that Diftrefs in which it is involved at prefent, by thofe whom he abets and fears only for the future. Strange Blindnefs, in not perceiving the Miferies to which it is reduced; frange Perfpicuity, in feeing that, of which no Symptom can fpeak the Approach, becaufe it is already paft ; ftrange Inattention to your Interefts, which has now firt alarmed you of your Danger; ftrange Defign of animating and uniting the Friends of the Conftitution, to the Prefervation of what is already loft, and thus, by calling your Eyes from thofe Pilots which har hipwrecked your Liberties, fix them on thofe who have not long enough poffeffed the Helm to have fteered amifs.
$\mathrm{T}_{\mathrm{H}}$ is Danger on the Part of $\mathrm{Mr}_{\mathrm{r}} \mathrm{P}$-, and this friendly Alarm on the Part of the Author, he tells you, "Arifes from the M——rs " having excluded fome Men moft eminent" ly capable of ferving their Country, and ! "introduced

[58]

". introduced others new to Bufinefs; and not " diftinguihhed by fuperior Abilities:"

Whereare they to be found, thefe Men fo eminently capable of ferving their Country? Why did this Writer omit the Inftances they have given of their great Capacity? Is the prefent forlorn Condition of the whole Realin the Proof he means to bring? What of prudent or happy has, for a Lengeh of Years, entered into the Ad-- tion? However, he declares he does not mean the veteran $\mathrm{M} \longrightarrow \mathrm{r}$, whofe confufed Speech and unftable Motion are the exact Emblem of his Conduct in the Mmy who Swivel-headed, like that Machine fixed in Cherry-Gardens, to preferve the Fruit from Birds, obeys the Breath of every Wind; ftill noify according to it's varying Impulfe; fo long placed in one Situation, that even foreign Pilferers grew acquainted with his Impotence, gathered your Fruits beneath his Eyes, and fung in pure Security and Contempt of you and your Guardian.

Is it that Man, tremendous in Mifchief, whofe Laws are thofe of Oppreflion and Tyranny, whore Soul, like the nicef Ballance, inftantly inclines to that Side into which the greateft greateft Weight of Gold is thrown, and declares accordingly; feeing only through one contracted Aperture, illiberal, illiterate, unforgiving, and detefted.

Is it he, whofe Conduct, like that of the Viper warmed, has been one continued Inftance of Perdition to his Country which enriched, and Ingratitude to his God who preferved, him?' Whofe every Plan has been the Creature of Ignorance or Treachery in him, the Source of Difgrace and Ruin to you. Duller than the Waters of Oblivion, Stupidity governed by Impertinence.

Or he, whofe rank Ambition, backed with what afpires to the ——, would bind you all in military Chains, the Condition of whofe former acquiring the $\mathrm{M}-\mathrm{ry}$, was the introducing Germans to your Difgrace, and fuftaining $H-r$ to your Undoing ? Whofe daring is equal to every Attempt but that of doing right; whofe Luft of Expence and Pleafure would pillage your laft Shilling to fate itfelf; infenfible to the Motives of true Honour, Love of his Country, and the Miferies you feel; acknowledging no Limit to his derpotick Will but Impoffibility ; like Sar tan, more michievous after his' Fall.

[60.]

Are thefe the excluded Mer, fo eminently capate of ferving their Countiy? If it be in Underftanding, their Pronenefs ic Mifchief has prevented them from exerting it. If from Good-Will towards Mankind, their Incapacity has effaced the whole Defign. Thus the Alliance of Weaknefs or Iniquity, like Gravitation, which operates ftrongeft in the heavieft Matter, has hurried all your Privileges and Expectations down towards the Center of Darknefs and Deftruction.

How then does the new $S \rightarrow$ fland unjuftified in removing fuch Men from publick Ad_tion? Whom hould he introduce but thofe he is intimately acquainted with? Actuated by the fame honourable Motives, purfuing the fame falutary Endis, and in whom he may, fafely confide. In acting ctherwife, he would have adopted the very Errors of thofe this Writer applauds, like them been furrounded by Knaves and Fonlofy and your Ruin fiill continued by a Change of M ——s?

But at length, fach is the Difficulty of long concealing the real Nature of Men's. Defigns, the true Sentiments of this Author burft into open Difcovery in the following Words, relative relative to the late Sir Rob-t $W$-ple, " his " higheft Abilities will be faid moft unjuflly " to have confifted in corrupting." Is he not then the Abetter of his Conduct? Has he not joined in this Deftruction of your Conftitution? Does he not long to complete that Purpofe? Is not his Heart rent in being difplaced or difappointed by him he calumniates? Does he not dread the Lofs of Place or Penfion, envy Merit, or deteft Virtue? Thence fprings his long silence and prefent babbling of Danger: Thence this Zeal for the preferving a Conftitution alreadv ruined: Will not there Things for ever rende all he has written, or hall hereafter wrice, void of Attention or Belief? For what Man can merit the leaft degree of Credit, who Favours the Conduct of that M-r, who, to the Mind of Man like the Earthquake to Lifbon, left not one human Virtue unfhaken to the Ground?

Another Crime which by this Writer is imputed to the Charge of the new $\mathrm{M}-\mathrm{r}$ is, that " $\mathrm{Mr} P$ - in Puft might by his Ad"vice have animated, or by his Diapproba"tions awed, Mr P-m, to Mealures more " honourable and Advantageous to the $\mathrm{Na}-$ "tion." - In this the Witer declares what is next to impoffible'; by what fuperior Fower of Genjus can one Man animate another, whofe Capacity is incapable of comprehending any Thing extenfive or fublime, or awe the Heart of that timid Deer into Actions of Fortitude, if he could have comprehended it. If Mr P- long held his Place in Complacency, it was ftill in Expectation, that, at length underftood by the M-is, he might gain the Opportunity of being heard by His $S — n$, and fave the Land: From this Jealoufy excluded him. If he held it in Silence, he both held and renounced it with Fonour, to open his Lips for the Prefervation of his Country. To have declined joining with the veteran M-r, even the Writer of the Conftitution agrees is univerfally approved: And not joining with him he favours, is yet more applauded by all honeft Lips; becaufe recomrnended by him and Men of fuch pernicious Principles. Folly, though deftructive to a State, may poffibly be led by Integrity and Wifdom ; but direct and avowed Iniquity tends invariably to Deftruction.

Yet notwithftandirg this Author's Approbation of not joining the $\mathrm{M}-r$, which he has delineated, he fays, "it muft be acknow" ledged, that he has left $\mathrm{Mr} \mathrm{P}_{\text {- a Fleet }}$ " fuperior to that of our Enemies, and an Ar-

[ 63 ]

" my fufficient to repel and avenge an igno" minious Invafion at Home, yet fend our "Colonies a vigorous and effectual Support."

In this Affertion I wifh he may not be mittaken, and that the Calamities arifing from the late Ad_-n, by two Years fatal Mifmanagement, may not have involved the prefent M-rs in Difficulties far fuperior to thofe which exifted at this Time two Years; notwithffanding the State of the prefent Fleet and prefent Army.

This I thall endeavour to prove in a Sixth Letter to you, that no Man may be caufelefly ded to inveigh againf the prefent $\mathrm{M}-\mathrm{y}$, for not remedying in Weeks, the Evils which have been fuperinduced by forty Years Mifconduct and Iniquity; and that your Miferies do not inftantly vanifh at the coming of a new M——r, like Apparitions at the Word of a Magician.

Wно the Gentleman is, which this Writer recommends to the new M-r as an Example of Temper and Moderation, is not eafy to divine from any likenefs between the Character and any M—r lately difmiffed; he cannet mean that Man whofe Moderation has has engroffed and given to his Cusin the Attorney's Clerk, employments as lucrative as all thofe which the M-r's Family poffers, againft which he fo grievoully inveighs. Whofe Spirit of Modefty prompted him to give under his own Hand, to Men of fuperior Birth, fuperior Fortune, and fuperior Underflanding, that he had undertaken the Management of them. Indeed he has recommended a Militia as unconftitutional as a ftanding Army, and may have advifed the fending back the $H-n s$, fearing left more pofitive Commands to exempt thefe Favourites from condign Punihment, in direct Breach of the Conftitution, may effectually prevent the Army of England from perpetrating on fome future Occafion, what he and his Affociate may have no fmall Inclination to attempt.

$H_{A D}$ the new $S$ - y even violently taken Poffeffion of the Seals from this Man, the Heir apparent, the King, and the People, have ample Reafon to rejoyce: For Pofts of great Import in Poffefion of daring and defpotick M——rs, may on certain Events fill the Land with Civil War; Rapine, and Murder. For what has not a Nation to dread, which will not tamely relinquifh it's Rights

[ 65 ]

Rights and Privileges: To preferve which may Heaven ever infpire you, if fuch Men, who, daring all Things, may hereafter poffefs the Power of fpreading the hidden Millions of $H \longrightarrow r$ amongft the military of this Land.

Bur let this Writer declare, by what Means " the new S——ry has violently ta" ken Poffeffion of his Poft, by Methods " wholly unknown to the Confitution." Or will he be condemned for afferting what he cannot prove? Has he taken the Scals, as Teague took the Covenant, by Force? Has he raifed a Rebellion in the Kingdom, and poffeffed them by Dint of Arms? But probably this Author thinks, that fruftrating the vicious Purpofes of bad M—rs, and expelling them the Ad - tion, is the moft criminal of all Rebellions. Or is the obtaining popular Good-Will by fuperior Abilities, and the Neceffity of changing Meafures, from m—_rial Infufficiency and Mifconduct, and thence being called to the Seals, violently unconftitutional in his Opinion? But in this Dlace, does not this Zeal for his Favourite, perhaps for himfelf, outfhoot his Prudence, and, throw a brownilh Shade over his M——Aty, who, on fuch Terms, delivered K

the Seals to the new S-y? Where then was that Magnanimity which was fo remarkably exerted at Dettingen? Where was the Dignity of our Nobles, and the Freedom of our Reprefentatives, that they bore this Infult fo filently? To fpeak in his Words, Were they all gaming at $A \longrightarrow r$ 's, or faft alleep in their Beds, when he took them ? And in what Manner do four Men, allyed to the M—r only by Affinity, extend his Family through all the great Offices of State? Or who behold this with Indignation but the Writer, and Men like him, dreading to fee thofe rifing into Power, who muft fink them to fave the Nation?

He then proceeds to fay, "If thefe are " undeniable Facts, it is in Vain to evade "t their Force by any fuppored Malignity in " the Writer, by any Affurance that he loves ". you not, or by Conjectures of his Attach" ments to another Gentleman, whom it is " apparent you do not love. Come Truth " from Heaven or Hell, it's Force is equal, " and not to believe is equal Obflinacy and ". Blindnefs."

Bur is the Word Fart to give Reality to Affertions, unfupported by Proof, and as to the Malignity of the Writer, who loves not the M——r, and his Attachments to his Fat vourite, whom the M-r loves not. Certainly the latter wifhes not to evade the Force of what he fays by fuch mean Artifice. It is the infeparable Delight of all honeft Minds, to be bated by fuch Men, and not to love fuch as he approves: For Virtue cannot bear to be efteemed by, or to efteem, Vice, in any Shape whatever. And this is Truth and Nature, " come it from Heaven or Hell."

[ 67 ]

The Writer then proceeds to afk, "What " Virtues, what Excellencies, do thefe new " Men bring with them?"-That of Integrity, of more Worth than the Wildom of Solomon and the feven Sages divefted of that Virtue. And let me afk, What Virtues have been difmiffed in his Friend, unlefs Rapacioufnefs, publick Profution, premeditated Mifchief, and Thirft of ruling by miliary Power, enter into his Lift of Excellencies? What Proof has he given of great Abilities, unlefs it be that of doing wrong in all Things?

The new M——r pretends not to protect by fpeaking in the Houfe of Commons, but to convert by Reafon and fave by Action; and though Pantagruel's covering his Army K 2 with with his Tongue may, in the Writer's Opision, be an arch Piece of Pleafantry, as applicable to an Orator; yet, believe me, the now M-r faw the Storm coming, and you have felt it ; which the Writer and his Friend confider only as the balmy Dew and gentle Breath of Zephyr, fertilizing and fatiening their Paftures; like the Inhabitants of inhofpitable Shores, thriving by the Shipwreck and Ruin of the Innocent and Induflrious. From this, indeed, the S-tary would have protected you, had his Speech found Favour, and his Admonitions been obeyed; fo far in covering you with his Tongue the Caracatura may have fome Refemblance.

After this the Writer infers, from the newnefs of thofe in Office, that the fame Ignorance muft attend them which lately accompanied a noble Lord in his Plea for Excufe before a certain Tribunal. But he is miftaken; the Deficiency of that Nobleman fprang from another Caufe; neither from Newnefs nor Want of Practice, but from the Want of that which Heaven has beftowed on thofe whom he calumniates, and which, when imparted, renders Men fit for every Duty of the State, and, when denied, improper for any.

After

[ 69 ]

After that, this Friend of the Connlitution tells you very fublimely, "Gold, from " the Slave who digs it to the Wretch who " hides, requires no very extraordinary Ta" lents." And yet this Sublimity is little better than Nonfenfe; for what is the meaning of Gold requiring no extraordinary $\mathcal{T} a$ lents? If he means by this a fmall Invective againft $\mathrm{Mr} L —$, he fhould have remembered, that he that careth for his own, may not unlikely care for the Nation's Money alfo; and not, alike lavifh of both, pillage to wafte, and fquander to deftroy.

This farcaftic Stroke of all others is the moft unjuft, and proves the leaft effectual againft him at whom it was levelled. He has given a moft noble Inftance of his Attachment to the Good of his Country, by refufing to affix his Name to what he deemed illegal in Favour of Gcrmans; and of his Superiority to the Love of Money, by renouncing that Poft, to which the Neceffity of the Times and his own Merits have again called him.

To this he adds, "Yet happily for the "S Nation, his Majefty, as bis almoft laft "Act

" of royal Authority, has placed a noble " Duke, upon whofe Vigilance and Integri:y " the Nation may rely, at the Head of that "Board." What can be the Meaning of thefe Words? Has his Majefty refigned and given all Power into the Hands of this noble Duke, by this alinoft laft Act? But, as the Writer really means, into the Hands of the S-y, muft he not be confounded, at having fpoken a Thing fo difrefpectful of his S-n in Favour of his Favourite? Can the royal Authority ve reduced to a more humiliating State, than when, with War Abroad and Rebellion at Home, without common Decency and Kefpect, the late M——rs threatened to defert their P -e in his utinoft Need, unlefs their Commands were abfolutely complyed with ? What Infult, what Violence, has ever equalled that Action, when they compelled him, as it were, to continue them in Place, to his Difhonour and the Nation's Ruin? Yet this Outrage even on his $\mathrm{M}-\mathrm{y}$, this candid Friend of the Conftitution has never remarked, and dreamed only on that which never exifted.

He then adds, " But if our Navy, muft " be governed by the fame Inftinct (as the ". Treafury); if; when Experience and Knowledge

[71]

" Knowledge in Profeffion have failed in the " Deftination of our Fleets, and the Choice " of their Commanders? If a total Inexpe" rience, and an Ignorance that can hardly " be fuppofed to know the Points of the "Compars; if they can fucceed, let the "Winds and Waves be our Pilots."

These are his fatirical Strokes on a Nobleman, who, however deferving the former may be whom he applauds, merits no lefs Approbation from you his Countrymen, if Steadinefs for Liberty, Oppofition to Germanz Troops and German Interefts, and Zeal for this Conftitution, deferve a Nation's Efteem,

But let this Writer declare, on what he founds the Experience and Knowledge of the late m --e M -r. It cannot be on his Succefs; he has had none. Is it from Length of Service? The eldeft Boatfwain in the Navy has a much better Title to it. But, alas! Experience and Knowledge in fuch Cafes arife from Strength of Capacity and much Reflection, and not failing round the World between the two Ends of a Ship, the two former of which were never within the Reach of the late m—e M——r. And, if knowing the Points of the Compafs be neceffary to the Head of the Ad —. ty, it is not the Work of half an Hour to accomplifh ; probably Lord $W$ - Sea knows them not to this Hour, any more than might Blake, Monke, and the Duke of York, whore Prudence, Courage, and real Knowledge, have never been called in Queftion; whofe Conduct and whofe Victories do Honour to the Nation. The little Duties of a Seaman are by no Means requifite to be knowa by a Commander in Chief or Head of the A-y ; and, had the Waves and Winds been our Pilots for thefe two laft Years, Cbance might have given us that Succefs, of which Ignorance or Treachery has deprived us; for mere Cafualy is preferable to Weaknefs or Iniquity, the firft may conduct you right, the laft muft lead you wrong.

As to that Heroifm and Enthuliafm with which the Multitude is charmed, mentioned and contemned by the Writer of the Conftitution, it is certainly an Object worthy their Admiration. Reafon is conl and inactive, loft in Confideration, and doubtful from Refearch: Unaccompanied with this celeftial Ardor, nothing great has ever been accomplihed: Men, animated by that Charm, are awed by no Fears, intimidated by no Menaces,

[73]

Menaces, nor reftrained by any Danger, in the Caufe of Liberty and their Country. And when this Writer fays, "That the truly great " Man, who can moderate his own Ambi"tion, who founds his Plans in Wifdom, " and rather chufes to prevent an Evil by his " Prudence, than to conquer it by his Cou" rage, is not of your Tafte, and is an Ob" ject above your Underftanding:" Why does not he draw a Likenefs, or write the Name under his Figure, that the Portrait may be known? Is it that open foreheaded, ruddy-cheeked, fair-faced Gentleman of the World Extrao .inary which he means? If he does, he is miftaken; you know the Moderation of his Ambition, and that his Defigns are not above the Underftanding of the Vulgar ; every Man is convinced, from his military Connections and engroffing Spirit, what is to be expected from him.

As to the Appellation of Demagogue and Tribune of the People, with which the Author prefents the $S —$, Names can never hurt him, who thinks nothing more noble and Praife-worthy, than reftoring a People to thofe Rights of which others have deprived them. If the Nobles never interpofed between his $\mathrm{S}-\mathrm{n}$ and him, it mult be, beL caufe caufe they knew no Safery but in his being near the Throne. And certainly that "one "Man, who, in the Conccioufnefs of his "Abilities, the Dignity of his Birth, and the " Influence of his Fortune, dared to call this " Minifer by his proper Title, and aflure " his royal Mafter, that be would not calm" ly fand by to fee his Clofet ftormed, and " his facred Perfon violated by one factious "" Family," miftook his Abilities, repented of the Undertaking, ran away without defending the Clofer, flanding the Storm, or fighting for his royal Mafter; for the Family, which the Writer denominates a Faction, has fucceeded, and we have never heard of this great Perfon's being conquered when they got the Victory.

Besides, what a Pack of Ingrates were the late $\mathrm{M}-\mathrm{rs}$, hot to have affifted his M-y's facred Perfon, and held out the Siege againft this tremendous Family of Faction, if they had not been convinced of the contrary to that which this conflitutional Writer has all along been ftriving to infinuate.

The next Thing this Author declares is, "That he cannot be fuppofed to blame or ". reproach

[ 75 ]

" repraoach the Adminiftration of the pre" fent M-r, becaufe nothing bas been " done ; but that he expected a gieat many "Things might have been letuled, fuch as a "Plan of Operations," which, for ought he knows, is determined. "A Day of Enqui" ry named, which is fo loudly demanded ;" very likely it is, though it may be neceffary to conceal it from him. "A Scheme for a " Militia;" it is brought into the Houfe. In fhort, this Writer expects that the new M—r, like Harlequin with one Slap of his wooden Sword, fhould inftantly change the gloomy Scenes which have long been ftanding, for new ones of more Pleafure and Delight.

As to what he fays about the Heffians, he knows the $\mathrm{M}-r$ cannot be accufed for their tarrying fo long in this Nation; his Favourite has confpired to prevent their Departure.

Next to this fucceeds a Compliment of Condolance for the new M-r's Indifpofition, and an Indignation that the Councils of this great Nation thould wait upon his Health. It feems the Nation is not ferfible of this Shame, and have not yet thought it worth

[76]

while to feek his Favourite's Affiftance. The Write: then adds, "That he thinks the new " M-r greatly capable of ferving, thiough "not of governing, this Country." What! the Man who violated the facred Perfon of the $\mathrm{K}-\mathrm{g}$ and the Conflitution capable of ferving his Country! Sarely he forgets himfelf. The only Fault, then, it is apparent, that he poffeffes is, that he will not admit his Friend into Partnerfhip; and thus, like the two Kings of Brentford, fmelling the fame Odour of Power, be Joint-Governors of the Realm. From thence arifes all his Indignaiion, becaufe the M-r refufes the Affitance of him, whofe whole Defigns are of another Stamp, and whofe Endeavours would be exerted fecretly, to opfofe and traverfe all the Good which the S--y intends for his Country. But, let him know, Gold allayed is of lefs Value. Thefe are the Reafons which determined the $S-y$ to oppofe the Alliance of the Writer's Friend, and not the Difference between the parliannentary Debates of him and the Author's Favourite. For Men may think well who exprefs it awkwardly; but he only who conceives with Judgment, Force, and Intuition, who fpeaks with Power, Eloquence, and Truth, whatever Burleigh, Godolphin, Richliul, and Mazarine, might do, bids faireft to influence Mankind to better Ways of thinking with refpect to the Welfare of this Country, and lave it from the manifold Misfortunes with which it is well nigh overwhelmed.

I come now to the Title of this Production, the Confitution; "Than which he " confeffes to know no other Name more " powerful or more folemn; it includes our " deareft moft valuable Pofieffions, Liberty " and Religion." And yet thefe beft of Bleffings he has filently feen deftroyed, and only now Fears for them from the future Attempts of the prefent M ——r.

With what Countenance could he give it this Name? Had his Zeal for this Liberty and this Religion been fincere, would he, through pretended Sollicitude for your Welfare, have warned you againft Dangers which may arrive, and neglected to fupprefs thofe which are already cone? Would he have infinuated the Dread of Ufurpation in the new, and not oppoled the Defpotim of the old, M-_rs? Would he have calumniated the Character of $\mathrm{Mr} P$ —, to glofs that of him, who, from being his Favourite and of fimilar Sentiments, muft be a dangerous Man?

[ $7^{8}$ ]

Bur his Principles are feen and his Defigns difcovered; he bas fpread the Name Confitution upon his Performance, like Creen-fword on the Pit-fall, to enfnare the Engli/h Lyon. Stratagems difcovered give Juy to thofe who efcape, and Pain to thofe who are difappointed. And, to the fincere Sorrow of him and his Affociates, he will find the Man he means to leffen in your Efteem, will fupport his Majefty's Crown and Dignity, promote the Welfare of the People, improve, the Conftitution, or relinqui(h, with Honour, that Poft which he canliot preferve with Integrity.

Having thus far animadverted on the Spirit, Intent, and Difguife, of this Addrefs to $\mathrm{Mr} P$-, I hall wave fhewing the Contradictions which are to be found in it, to take Notice of the firf Paper called the Confitution. And here, as the Beginning of it requires no particular Attention, Neceffity of being examined, or denied; and the enquiring into the various Kinds of Governments may be an ufeful Refearch, I fhall not delay you a Minute, ' 'till I come to that Part, in which he fays, "Too much of the Demo"cratical enters into our Conftitution."

[79]

Here at length the Truth of his Defign efcapes; fo difficult is it to be an uniform Hy pocrite; this Declaration unfolds the Secrets of his Heart. Hence, it evidently appears, he is the Enemy of you the People, and that his Idea of improving the Conftitution is yet farther to enflave you.

With this Intent, bas he not long in Silence and Delight beheld the Encroachments of the late M - rs on your Rights and $\mathrm{Li}-$ berties? Hence fprings his Averfion to the new S——y, left he may reftore them; from that Motive he has opened his Lips, to excite your Jealoufy againft him; from this Source, thofe hypocritical Tremblings for the Danger of your Conftitution take their Rife.

AGAin he declares," That thould the "Paffions and Interefts of the Conftituents be " mixed with thofe of the Reprefentatives, " one fatal Confequence attending all Demo" cracies would attend fuch an Affembly." What, in the Name of Goodnefs, is this Fatality? "Some few powerful Speakers "would determine the Debates." And thereby would they not preferve you a free and happy People? Can the Care of your Rights

[ 80

Rights be a fatal Confequence to this Conftitution? What an Idea does this Writer form of them?

To this he fubjoins, "That if ancient " Definitions fuppofed an Orator perfectly good,
(A faultefs Monfter which the World ne'er faw)
" modern Oratory will not bear fo fevere a " Limitation." How happy are you, then, fince Perfection is not to be fousd, that at prefent you polfefs one, whofe whoie Ambition is to fave his Country; whofe Contempt for Money prefer ves him incorruprible; whofe Love for Virtue and the Conflitution renders him incapable of corrupting others; of Fortitude fuperior to every Oppofition but that of Truth and Reafon ; defpifing all Honours, but thofe which fpring from Merit; of $\mathrm{Ge}-$ nius to conceive, of Powers to exprefs, of Refolution to exert, whatever tends to fave a finking Land; and of Faculties to convince all but thofe, whom the Bials of Corruption has withdrawn from the ftrait Path of Verity and Virtue.

[ 8i ]

By fuch a Man no Liberty can be loft; from the Calamities and Diftreffes of the $\mathrm{Na}-$ tion, whether they proceed from Peftilence or Famine, Adverticies in War, or former Mal-Adminiftration, all mult receive Alleviation, if not Cure. Every Apprehenfion, excited by preceding li —rrs, muft fubfide ; every Danger diffipate; from his Orations you have nought to diead; the exorbitant Power of the Crown, the Abules of Prerogative, the Horrors of Slavery, will difappear, and weak and wicked M -urs be driven from the State; whilf the Name and Exiftence of Liberty and the Conftitution are held inviolably facred, and Perfwafion, from clear and explicit Truth, fhall fatisfy your Souls, and create an Acquiefcence in his Conduct, which will prevent the Jealoufies of approaching Slavery. Of all human Beings; in his Orations, the leaft refembling the dark, confufed, and hypocritic, Cromwell, who, by concealing his. Defigns, and inflaming by Fanaticifm, infatuated the People to believe and be enflaved.

Such being the Man who now prefides in the Adminiftration, be not feduced by this Garb of T'endernefs for the approaching Danger M of of the Conftitution; it conceals a Heart rankly rotten, which prompts the Tongue to glofs, fallify, and exalt, the Man, who longs to undo and depreciates him who wifhes to preferve you. Liften not to this Syren's Song of Liberty, which he utters with no other View than to feduce and to deftroy.

Having in this Manner demonftrated by his Writings, that he is not a Friend to your Part in the Conftitution, that Writer proceeds to hew he is as little attached to the prefent Family. He fays, "Never was any Civil "War, never was any Sedition raifed, any "Revolution formed, but under the horrid "Aufpices of thefe Patrons of the People, " thefe Defenders of publick Freedom."

If all Revolutions have been formed under fuch horrid Aufpices! What muft we think of that which expelled Fames, and feated the prefent Family on the Throne, and of him who has delivered this Opinion? Here, again, Truth breaks through Difguife; the Man who thinks your Liberties too great, is alike the Enemy of your Sovereign. What is now become of all that Reverence for the fac: d Perfon of the King, expreffed in the Addrefs to $\mathrm{Mr} P$-; that pretended Regard for his Mafter's Honour? Who will hereafter credit what he writes?

Nor in this has he even the Merit of a Facobite; that would be to be attached to Iome Caufe, into which, however wrong, felfinh Views might not enter. He is one of thofe Ariftocratical Anarchs, who have long played the King and People one againft the other, as Dancers do Caftanets, to govern both, enrich themfelves, and amufe you with the Performance.

Such being the Principles of this Writer, of what Import is it whether his Name be known or concealed; whether he be defcended from a Line of Kings, or dropped in a Bafket ; whether his Education has been at Cambridge or St Giles's; his Perfon tall or fhort, ftrait or crooked, of winning or forbid-' ing Countenance ; his Abilities great or infufficient? It was the Heart, and none of thefe Qualities, which made Cafar Borgia and Catiline detefted; and fuch Sentiments as he avows, will bring a like Abhorrence on him, and all whom he abets and favours.

Bid him, then, not fain the private Reputation of $\mathrm{Mr} P$ - by his facred Efteem, nor forget, that Petulance and Levity have already entered into his Manner of treating him. Bid him defift, and tell him it is in Vain, with the Author of the Teft, to implore that poor $H-y$ may not be totally excluded from the M—ry. If the prefent M-r, as he acknowledges by intreating the Admiffion of his Favourite, be equal to the firft Place in the Ad-mion, he wants the Affiftance of no Man, whofe Addition would retard or fruftrate the Execution of every good Intent ; the difcordaut Particles in their Natures can never affimilate, nor the Friend of Liberty act in Conjunction with the Abettor of military Government, the avowed Subverter of the Conftitution.

a After this the Writer proceeds, "Ma"ble of Mankind, and Sulpitius, the moft " abandoned." Afk what he felt in applying thefe Characters to the prefent M-ris; Had he no Check, no Remorfe, on fo fingular an Occafion? Where are thefe Likeneffes to be found? Who will feek them amongft the S -y's Companions, that knows where the Temple of private and publick Perdition flands branded in the Front with the Name of $A$-'s? There Cetbegus and Saturninus hold their impious Orgies, plundering the $\mathrm{Pa}-$ trimony of thoughtleis Heirs, who firf fell their Eftates, and then themfelves and Country for Place or Pention. There Catiline is nightly found, who has his Cefar in Relerve, of whom, like Sylla to the Romiin People, I bid you BEWARE.

The furious Clodius and profligate Milo are amongit their Numbers; Men who, having diffolutely fquandered in their Youth their whole Poffeffions, have fince rapacioully robbed Individuals, and the Publick in Reprifal. Who have prophaned the Rites of the Bona Dea, ftallions to the Mother's Luft, to fteal the Daughter from the Father's Heart and for a Brother's Bed; who fport the Lives of Jnnocence in Wagers, and, not unlikely, are this Moment exerting every Art to deftroy an Admiral under Sentence of Death, becaufe it is their Intereft he Thould die; for thole who wage will wilh to win, and thore who wilh to win will dare fuch Actions to gain the Wager, though the Death of Innocence were the Means which can only give them their Succefs.

The fame Spirit of this Author of the Confitution, which tells of Dangera to come, and lees not thofe arrived, has found Characters where they exift not, to conceal them where they do. The very Likenefs in his Favourites to the above-named Roman Profligates, determined him to place it amongit the prefent M——ry, to prevent your difcovering it amonght his Friends. Such is the whole Conduct of this fallacious Writer.

For thefe Reafons you are juftified to oppofe and fteel your Hearts, againft the Man he chufes hould direct the State; and whilf he writes in this Strain, and the prefent M-_rs deferve the publick Approbation, which I truft will exift as long as their M—_ry continues, no Endeavour Thall be wanting to expofe his malevolent Defign, and prevent you from being feduced by Fallacy and Impofture.

A r length he concludes in faying, " I " Thall end this Paper with the Sentiments of " an ancient suthor, not yet tranflated into "Englijh. Cities and Fortreffes have their "proper Defence, Walls, Tienches, Forti" fications; but Nature hath given to a wife " and

" and generous People a Bulwark more im" pregnable. What Bulwark? Diffidence."

Ask him wherefore he concealed the Name of Demofthenes when he quoted thefe Words. Was it not Confcioufnefs of the ftriking Similitude between that Greek and the prefent M——r, which prevailed upon him at that Moment to conceal that Name? Did he not know that every Eye would difcern, every Heart feel, and every Tongue pronounce, the Likenefs? Is it not as ftrong between them, as it exifts between the Author and the Sophifts of thofe Times? Are not their Purfuits the fame?

The Orators, difinterefted and animated with Zeal for their Country's Welfare, by found Senfe and genuine Eloquence to perfwade and fave a whole People; the Sophifts, moved by felfinh Confiderations, by appealing to the Love of private Intereft in cvery Breaft, by feductive and fallacious Arguments to win the Multitude from the general to the good of Individuals; to fmile on the Ruin of their native Land, which inriches them alone.

What Athens then was, England is at prefent, loft in Pleafure, rotten with Corruption, ruption, adoring Ignorance infhrined its Wealth, and detpifing Ginius unaccompanied with that defactuve Poffeffion. Yet had the Conftitutions of Rome or of that City refembled this of England in every particular ; had they enjoyed the Power of changing the great Council of thofe Nations, the nefarious, in a new Choice, might have been excluded, and Demo;ibenes and Tully might have preferved their Liberties and their Country from Perdition; for there were not wanting in Greece and Italy at that Time Men of Integrity, who, liftening to the Voice of Reafon, and entering under the Direction of thofe Statefmen, would have effected what, unfuftained by fuch Affociates in the Senate-Houfe, they were unable to accomplih. The Senators were unchangeable and corrupt; Integrity was excluded from the Council; and thus fell the Greek and Roman States.

This Excellence of changing the great Council of the State, your Conftitution happily enjoys. Whenever, then, Danger to your Liberties may hereafter arife from the Neglect of publick Profperity, by attending to private Advantage; when Wars, which exhauft you, fhall become the great Emoluments of your Reprefentatives; when a new $\mathrm{M}-\mathrm{r}$ refolved to fave your Coninttution on virtuous Motives, fhall be impeded by the corrupt Influence remaining amongft the Adherents of the old, then it will become your great Concern and chief Diny inceffantly to perition, though the ufual Time be not arrived, in Juftice to your King and Conftitution, that a Change of Senators be made, left ye perifh by the fame Means which fubdued the Liberties of Atbens and of Rome, and ye are no more a free People.

After having faid fo much in Favour of the prefent M - r , it becomes an indifpenfible Obligation on me to offer you thofe Reafons, which have determined me to warm your Hearts with Hopes of Redrefs and Reparation of your Conftitution from his Conduct ; to urge you to fuftain him; and to preferve myfelf from the injurious Imputation of having attempted to exalt him, and deceive you, without offering any Arguments for fuch Proceeding.

Though all Men participate of the fame Faculties, yet the ruling Paffion is that which characterizes every Individual, and, in all Matters of Moment influences his Conduct.

[ 90 ]

Had Mr $P$-, then, defigned Aught malicioufly againft your Liberties, would he have renounced the Seals, when they were fome Time paft offered to his Hands? Would hot he have gladly ftood on the Ruins which the late M -rs pulled down, the eafier to have reached and accomplifhed the total Demolition of that little which remains ftanding? Would he have oppofed the Introduction of mercenary Germans, had he intended to inllave the Land? would he have refifted $H-n$ Interefts, had he determined to impoverifh you and finally exhauft your whole Treafure? would he have efpoufed the eftablifhing of a Militia, had he not apprehended the Danger of a military Government? Would he have renounced the Affociation of the old Deftroyers, had he not refolved to fave you from their Iniquity?

Ir is the Remark of an admired Writer amongft the Greeks, that nothing can make a Man great, the Contempt of which makes him greater. With Inftances of this Truth the Greek and Roman Hiftories are replete; and the Safety of thefe States was preferved by the voluntary Poverty of their Statefmen. In like Manner, the acknowledged Contempt for for Gold in Mr $P$-, muft have framed his Heart to the Influence of true Glory, the Love of which alone forms his ruling Paffion. In what Manner, then, can that Defire be exerted with fuch genuine Honour, fo amply fatisfied, and fo exalted in the Opinion of Mankind, as, by reinflating the Liberties and Privileges you have loft, reftoring the ruined and unftable State of this Conftitution to it's ancient Excellence, and rendering Millions happy.

[ 9I ]

Men only of fuch a Stamp are immovable to the Voice of Titles, Riches, Power, on unrighteous Terms; and rarer amongft Mankind than a Comet amidft the Skies.

Nor are thefe the fole Reafons which ought to weigh on every Mind, and Influence every Englifbman to fuftain his M-y. The very oppofition of thofe who fpeak and write againft him, offers the moft convincing Proof of his candid Intentions; they know he defigns to fave, or that their Hands would be neceffary to affift him to deftroy; they would not oppofe, but that they are convinced he means to exclude them from the Purfuit of your undoing; for what have they ever oppofed but honeft and upright Meafures.

[ 92 ]

Nor this Oppofition only of pernicious Men brings a Proof of his Integrity; thofe of your Reprefentatives, whofe Behaviour has never yet been ftained with deviating from yours and their Country's Caufe, uncorrupt by Place or Penfion, by Hope or Fear ; who, amidft the eternal Slander of the Diffolute, and Profution of injurious Terms, were then, as now, the true Friends of England, free and independent; are unanimous in believing the Intentions of the $\mathrm{M}-r$, to be honourable, and in fupporting his Adminiftration. Will he, then, riling into Authority from his own Virtues, your publick Remonftrances, and the Neceffity of the Times, fupported by the undeviating Friends of the Conftitution, relinquifh the Blifs of faving, to undo his Country, and renounce immortal Fame, for temporary Power and eternal Deteftation ?

Be not deluded into a Diftruft which muft ratal to the Nation; nor liften to thofe tho infinuate, that his Orations refemble avers, running in melodious Murmurs thro' reading Foretts and flowery Lawns, diverfived with hanging Rocks, alpiring Hills, ad Vanety of beauteous Profpect; Charms .. the Eye and Rapture to the Ear: Which yet, yet, in jverflowing, walh away the Farmer's Toil and Manure, fterilizing the Land. Believe them, like the rifing W aters of the Nile, bringing Joy, and leaving the Power of Plenty.

Yet fhould you give Credit to Part of what his Enemies affert, and think the Stream of his Conduct has fomeiimes appeared flained with Impurities, has it not in general been tranfparent, whilft that of thofe who oppofe him, has continued unremitting, black as Co cytus running through Hell? If he has erred like Man in the Moment of Frailty, and forfeited your good Opinion, he has repented in the Day of Perfection, and claims the juiteft Title to your Affiftance and Efteem; whilt his and your Enemies have, undeviatingly, purfued the Paths of Iniquity, without one Moment's Remorfe for overwhelming you with national Calamity.

Thus, in the moft unfavourable Light, Reafon bids you to affift him and yourfelves. Where is Perfection to be found? To whom will you apply? Where place your Hopes? Unlefs he be fuftained by you, how can he refift the Torrent of Thoufands, determined alike to his and your Undoing? Now is the Moment

[ 94 ]

Momen of returning Happinefs or accomplihed Ruin. Men adapted by Nature to retrieve a finking State arife not in Ages. The Faculties of conceiving right, expreffing perfectly, and exerting arduoufly, form the rareft Union amongft Mankind. With the Power of conceiving only what might fave, without fuperior Elocution, you could not be convinced of his Abilities; by fpeaking with Eloquence, void of exalted Underftanding, though you might be delighted, you could not acquiefce in him; and, without Refolution of exerting every Conception for the publick Good, and Fortitude above all Temptation, how could thefe Refolves be carried into Execution, or you rely upon him? Then defert not him and your own Interefts, left Conviction coming, when no Remedy for your Evils hall remain, you repent too late of not faving what will be irrecoverably loft. When dying Slaves, your Children Chall curfe you in your Graves, indignantly pronouncing, Here lye thofe Fathers, who, ignominiounly deferting him that would have preferved them free, deliyered us their Children down to Bondage.

Thus you are neceffitated to fupport him, whom your Remonftrances have placed at the Helm ;

Helm ; or to pronounce Sentence of Condemnation on yourfelves. It will be faid, that Timidity, or Confcioufnefs of meriting fuch Treatment from the late M-rs, has determined you to defift, and to endure the Calamities they brought upon you; for either the late M-ry hath tranfreffed, and ought to be called to Juftice, or they are caullefly removed; either they are criminal, or you actuated by unwarrantable Motives in the Clamours which have been raifed againft them. Wherefore be not like Cannon on a publick Day, noify without Effect, but inceffant in Execution, 'till the Citadel of m-rial Iniquity be humbled in the Duft.

Without acting in this Manner, the Praifes which you fo liberally and fo jufly beftow upon your Anceftors, are converted into the moft bitter Satires againft yourfelves; you admire them for fubduing Tyrants, and confefs your own Cowardice in fearing to purfue M -_rs; at leaft it will be urged, that you have purfued through Hate, or pitied without Jufti $\therefore$. The firft it is neceffary you remove; by perfifting to fhew the Reafons for their being called to an impartial Examination; and Mercy belongeth to none who who deferve to fuffer according to the Atrict Rules of Equity.

Too long, alas! have the Symptoms of a corrupt and expiring Conftitution, like thofe amidft the Plague at Atbens, when all was filled with Defolation and with Death, prevailed amongft you! of Souls fupine, inattentive to Futurity, thinking the Hour of Diffolution near at Hand, treating every Impediment as infurmountable, and every Difficulty impoffible to be removed; ye have fought no Remedy to your Evils, but, enjoying prefent Pleafure, lived only by the Refpite of Moments. Such is the Degeneracy of the prefent Race, Englifbmen even prefer Sloth and Eafe to Liberty and the preferving their Conftitution.

Rowze, then, and be perfwaded, that though Men are by Nature mortal, your Conftitution may, by your Means, be made immortal ; for it is the firft Duty of every Man to think it can not die.

And though the Grivances you complain of hould not meet immediate Redrefs from Circumftances at prefent irremediable by the New M-r, perffit in your Remonftrances, let not your Purfuits, like Fire in Straw, be quick to blaze and fudden to expire; the Requefts you make want no Cargoes of Paper to devellop Myftery and explain Truth, nor deep Refearch into m-rial Conduct ; they cannot be hid by Art nor difguifed by Sophiftry; the very Rolls which contain the Laws of Liberty, will prove the Truth of what I have laid before you; the Bill of Rights and Act of Settlement made whole, as at their firft Formation; and the Abroga-tion of thofe penal Lavzs before mentioned fuffice to make you free.

[ 97 ]

Believeme, the Demand of a whole Nation is irrefiftible; that which placed Mr $P$ - at the Head of the Adm-tion continued, will fecure him and preferve you. Shall Byng be fentenced to Death for Breach of Part of one Article of War; and your late M —rs efcape unexamined, who have infracted the moft effential in your Charters of Liberty? Nay, the very Article on which he has been condemned, offers yet a ftronger Argument for calling that Man to Juftice, who felected and appointed him for the Expedition. Had the Ad-l's Mifcarriage fprung from Treachery, that might have been concealed in his own Bofom; from Difaffection, the moft piercing Eyes might have been juftified in not difcerning it; but, as it arifes from Ignorance in his Profeffion, this could have been concealed from no Man of Senfe, bred to the Practice of maritime Affairs. His Offence, then, reverts with full Force on the Perfon who chofe him; for furely the Ignorance of not diftinguifhing thofe Perfons who are proper to command, is to be equally ignorant with him who knew not how to command on the Day of Battle, and requires Punifhment with greater Reafon, becaufe infinitely more fatal. The Want of Senfe in the Head of the Ad-ty, whofe diftinguifhing Characteriftick ought to be the Skill of felecting proper Commanders, may fill the Fleet with infufficient Men, and lofe your whole Poffeffions, as it has already loft Minorca.

One happinefs peculiar to the prefent Enquiry attends your perfifting in what you have already fo aufpicioully begun; thofe who have openly arrogated the Power of deftroying your Liberties, having alike in Secret ufurped the Authority of their $S-n$, Juftice to him, as well as to yourfelves, compels you to demand the late $M$ - rs to an Examination.

[ 99 ]

The only Objects of your Purfuit are, Men, alike Subjects of the fame Realm, ob:dient to the fame Laws, Servants of the Publick, anfwerable for their Conduct, and in no Senfe your Superiors; unlefs the Circumftances of rifing from Obfcurity to Titles, from Duft to immenfe Riches, mifguiding by Ignorance, ruining by Neglect, betraying by Avarice, or enflaving by Pride, communicate the Power of rendering fuch Men above the Reach of Juftice and the Laws.

Call them to Account; reftore your Conftitution; leave your Children free; otherwife, to what Purpofe do you bear Arms againt the French? Why complain of the Lofs of Minorca and Ofwego? though you were victorious in every Engagement, and poffeffed the Eaft and Weft Indies, the Treafures which they yielded, like Birds of Paffage, would only reft a Moment in this Land, to gather Strength, and take their farther Flight into Germany. Nay, what would it profit you, though you won the whole World and loft your own Liberty.
