Wesleyan Missionary Anniversary.

We are unable to present our readers this week with a full report of the very interesting meeting held in Brunswick Street, on Monday evening last.

The meeting on Monday evening was opened by the Rev. J. B. BROWNELL, who gave out the hymn commencing on the 634th page.

The Rev. JAMES ENGLAND then offered up prayer.

At the conclusion of these opening services the Rev. J. B. BROWNELL, advanced to the front of the platform and said that he had very great pleasure in announcing that his highly esteemed friend T. A. S. De Wolfe, Esq., had kindly consented to preside over the present occasion.

Mr. De Wolfe on taking the chair offered a few exceedingly pertinent and forcible remarks, he said,

It afforded him very great pleasure to meet again with his friends as he had oftentimes done, to advocate the great cause of missions. He did not purpose making a speech, but would take the liberty of uttering a few remarks respecting the importance of this work.

of, and that it is safer to bow to the behests of a power so situated and disposed, than to continue the war.

Such is the phase which the all-merciful questioner of peace or war presents to us at the present hour. It is not unnatural at such a stage to look calmly at what has been effected so far as to entertain a rational hope (if that be possible) as to the prospect opening on the nations.

When the Emperor Nicholas died, we felt and said that the Russian aggressive policy was broken. He left a frightful spirit still alive and rampant in his second son, and a strong party in the empire, but it was a spirit so much of his own creation, and so dependent on his personal influence for its maintenance in the world, that it continued to exist, that even in them it has visibly declined since his death.

Mr. De Wolfe on taking the chair offered a few exceedingly pertinent and forcible remarks, he said, It afforded him very great pleasure to meet again with his friends as he had oftentimes done, to advocate the great cause of missions.

placitly that of submission—a foe not prostrate, but giving back to avoid the stroke, and lowering the sword's point to demand a parley. That it should have come to this soon is more than any of us could have expected.

These devastating epidemics which have destroyed so many lives, have been shorn of their terrors by the skill of enlightened physicians. We may mention the small-pox and cholera.

Human life, through the skill of physicians, has been greatly lengthened during the last hundred years. The reports of Parisian hospitals show that, in 1805, one in seven died, but now it is one in twelve; and in the 80,000 who annually pass through the hospitals, there is a saving of five hundred human beings; and formerly they stay was thirty-nine days, now it is twenty-four, a difference of fifteen days in fifty-six cases, now only one dies in two hundred and ninety-four.

How anxious it is that the public will endure the impositions of quacks! It is still more wonderful that a Christian community will bear with these impostures; and that legislators should neglect this is still more strange! We need not now be surprised at the doings of the dark ages, and the deceptions of impostors, when legislators have been to extend the boundaries of knowledge and to exalt mankind? Who knows half so much of the wants and the wishes of the joys and sorrows of the community?

the Condon brook, crossing the Sackville near Bedloe, and the Halifax and Windsor road near Mount Unisack, and continues on the west side of this road to within three miles of Windsor. The length of this branch is thirty and three quarters miles.

Before determining upon the line to Windsor, it appeared judicious to explore all the routes previously proposed; surveys were therefore made along the valleys of the Nine Mile, Herbert, and Meander rivers. The valleys through this part of the Province are narrow and crooked, and the country contiguous to them is generally much broken; in some instances their general is great, while in others a dead level is maintained for a considerable distance.

The engineering staff have also been employed in exploring the country up to, and beyond, Truro village, with the view of determining upon the proper position of the Pictou branch. A straight line between the mouth of the Stewiacke river and Pictou passes within six miles of Truro, crosses the Salmon river near its head, and the elevated ground at Mount Thom's about two miles east of the present high road.

Works in course of construction.—The dates fixed for the completion of the several portions in the course of construction are—First, Fourteen and a half miles of the main line, included between Sackville station and Schultz's on the 1st June, 1856; Second, Seven miles of the main line included between Schultz's and the Nine Mile River road, by the 30th June, 1857; Third, Twelve and a half miles of the Windsor branch, included between Five Mile Lake and Windsor, by the 1st September, 1856; Fourth, The remaining portion of the Windsor branch on the 1st June, 1857.

veral of the drains are built, and in some places the road has been ballasted and made ready for laying the permanent way. The want of suitable stone for the St. Croix River viaduct delayed its commencement; large quantities of granite of excellent quality, however, have been found within a mile or two of the site, and the contractors have already prepared some of the material for the course of the work, and are exerting themselves to get forward during the winter months as far as possible.

Every care has been taken to secure the best possible route for the main line. The lines previously explored have been in most cases abandoned, but not before they had undergone a thorough examination, and their relative merits carefully compared with the adopted one. Being out of the direct course, I considered the valleys of the hills, and their height above the valleys at Black Rock, and their position to any line on the east side of the Shubenackie river, between Horn's and Nelson's.

An excellent site has already been selected for a station at Windsor, affording good accommodation for harbour purposes, and is well situated from its proximity to the town for the local traffic.

STATE OF THE WORKS ON THE COMPLETED PORTION OF THE LINE.—These works are in good order. The mode adopted for placing the sleepers and fastening the rails, has given stability to the permanent way, and consequent steadiness and security to the passage of the trains, and ensures also economy in the maintenance of the line and rolling stock. The loose rock embankments formed along the shores and across the coves of the Basin, have withstood the stress of the heavy gales to which they have been exposed as well as expected; any repairs necessary were trifling, requiring little additional labour to that usually employed, and only for one day has the passage of the trains been interrupted from this cause.

Wesleyan Intelligence.

Truro Circuit.

The Rev. G. O. HURDIS writes under date February 13th, 1856:— Mr. Editor.—Not long since the following enquiry was made by one of your correspondents, "Why do not preachers write more for the Wesleyan?"

It is probably known to many of your readers, that some alterations were made in this Circuit at the last District Meeting. River John, lying nearly 40 miles distant, was cut off and made a new Circuit. In lieu thereof was added, in a westerly direction, the more distant Five Mile and Economy, including also Londonbury, or as it is generally called, New Londonbury, a place which has had no stated preaching by the Wesleyans for four or five years past, until the present Methodist year. It is now visited every fourth Sabbath evening by the Truro preacher, and presents a fine field for our labours.

The average daily number of men employed on the above works for the year 1855, was six hundred and thirty; and the largest number employed on any one day was twelve hundred and forty-two.

The Late Rev. J. Crowther.

It is our mournful duty to announce the death of the Rev. Jonathan Crowther, Classical Tutor of the Wesleyan Theological Institution, Dublin, who died on the 17th inst. at the residence of his friends, the Rev. William Williams, of Leeds, he was suddenly attacked by severe congestion of the brain.

The War.

If this morning's intelligence is correct, Russia has not only conceded the demands of Austria, but has already laid down the sword in Crimea. It is true hostilities were there suspended, in point of fact by the winter; but it is not the less a most favourable omen, by the direct order of the Emperor, that the Emperor is indebted to a source which has of late always given the earliest tidings of the events and negotiations proceeding and proposed, and which has not hitherto been deceived on any important point.

Suspension of Hostilities.

If this morning's intelligence is correct, Russia has not only conceded the demands of Austria, but has already laid down the sword in Crimea. It is true hostilities were there suspended, in point of fact by the winter; but it is not the less a most favourable omen, by the direct order of the Emperor, that the Emperor is indebted to a source which has of late always given the earliest tidings of the events and negotiations proceeding and proposed, and which has not hitherto been deceived on any important point.

The Submission of Russia.

The submission of Russia is as complete—the expression may be a strange one, but it gives the precise fact—as it was asked to be. It should not lead to peace, the fault will lie in one of three directions: it must be from a suicidal insincerity, on the part of Russia, in the ostensible acceptance of our demands; or from treachery by Austria in presenting them; or else from the Western Powers themselves declining to abide by a moderate interpretation of the propositions which were presented by Count Esterhazy and at last submitted to by Count Nesselrode. For all these propositions have been unconditionally accepted—even the cessation of territory in Bessarabia along the Pruth and the Danube, and also the indefinite Fifth Article, which authorizes the belligerent Powers to produce further special conditions, over and above the four guarantees. The fact was astounding at first; then people began to congratulate each other, and many, we hope, to thank God, though the press has dealt more in Pagan allusions to Fate and Nemesis, or to the might and terror of a naval and military preparations, than to the only Giver of all victory; but soon a pane of doubt and suspicion occurred, and by this time men have settled down into a watchful and resolute expectation of the progress and issue of the affair.

The bearing of this country, we must say, has a moral grandeur about it which commands respect and admiration. Slow to enter into the contest, it has endured the shock, risen higher after every trial, disclosed increasing resources with each campaign, and better prepared at this moment than ever before to recommence hostilities, it stands ready for either event, not declining war if that be necessary, nor refusing peace if offered in a loyal spirit and on equitable terms. But what shall we say of the attitude of Russia? Whether sincere or not, it is em-

Value of the Medical Profession.

We adopt the following article from the Western Christian Advocate:— Except the immediate blessing of our holy religion there is scarcely any provision for relieving suffering humanity of more real benefit to human society, than a proper supply of well-constructed physicians to the exclusion of quacks. He that gave man his immortal soul, gave him also an appropriate body, which in its mechanism and functions, exceeds, in its structure and adaptation, the bodies of all other animals. The Almighty, in Eden, while man was in a state of innocence, appointed him the tree of life to preserve health and immortality. Since the fall he has made provisions to alleviate the miseries of the body, and finally to remove them. In the law given to Moses there are many sanitary regulations laid down, which have formed the basis of our present prescriptions to prevent disease, as well as to remove it. Our blessed Saviour redeemed the body as well as the soul of man, and has therefore assured us of a glorious resurrection. While on earth he was especially mindful of relieving the wants and maladies of the body. He several times fed, by miracle, the hungry multitudes who followed him. He healed
