A Millionaire; —or—
Countess Westerleigh

CHAPTER XLIII.

"How is Nora?" he asked. "I am afraid we shall have trouble with her, Milly. I never saw any one so determined to wreck her own happiness, and I'm afraid she'll succeed." "Perhaps," was all Milly said oracularly, pursing up her lips. "We shall see. Papa, I want a groom to ride into the town for me." "What for?" he asked, mechanically. "Can I do it?" "No, you can't. It is a prescription," she replied, concisely. "Very well," he said; and he rang the bell and ordered the groom.

Immediately after the funeral, Vane started to return to the Grange. The lawyers grumbled, and would have detained him; but they found that they had to do with quite a changed man—a man as unlike the old easily yielding Vane Tempest as it is possible to imagine. Looking pale and stern in his black clothes, he reached the Grange late in the afternoon, and inquired of the butler, who somehow seemed even more deferential to the Earl of Westerleigh than he had been to Mr. Vane Tempest, for Lady Florence.

Women suffering from any form of female ills are invited to communicate promptly with the woman's private correspondence department of the Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., Lynn, Mass. A woman can freely talk of her private illness to a woman; thus has been established a confidential correspondence which has extended over many years and which has never been broken. Never have they published a testimonial or used a letter without the written consent of the writer, and never has the Company allowed these confidential letters to get out of their possession, as the hundreds of thousands of them in their files will attest.

Out of the vast volume of experience which they have to draw from, it is more than possible that they possess the very knowledge needed in your case. Nothing is asked in return except your good will, and their advice has helped thousands. Surely any woman, rich or poor, should be glad to take advantage of this generous offer of assistance. angular, practiced hand; it was not from her. Had she asked any one to write for her? The thought, the hope, sent the blood dancing through his veins like fire. The old earl watched him.

"What is it?" he asked, irritably. "Lord! how I hate all this fuss and mystery! There! don't tell me. The doctor says I'm not to be worried, and, by Heaven, I won't! Go and dress for dinner."

Vane shook his head. It was in a whirl. "I can't stop," he said; "I must go;" and before he had finished the sentence he had left the room. The old man rang the bell furiously.

WEDDED AT LAST!

CHAPTER I.

"What station is that, Shirley?" "That was Amiens, dear; we are quite half way there now." "Half way to Boulogne, perhaps, but our journey will not end there. I am afraid you are very tired, darling," the girl said, in a pitiful voice; and the invalid answered wearily— "Yes, very tired—very, very tired. They were the only occupants of the first-class railway compartment in the tidal train from Paris to Boulogne on a gray October afternoon of the year of grace 187—, and both were weary and sad. There was something besides fatigue and sadness on the elder woman's face, a pale, half resting on the daughter's strong young arm, had the one upon another to give her some support.

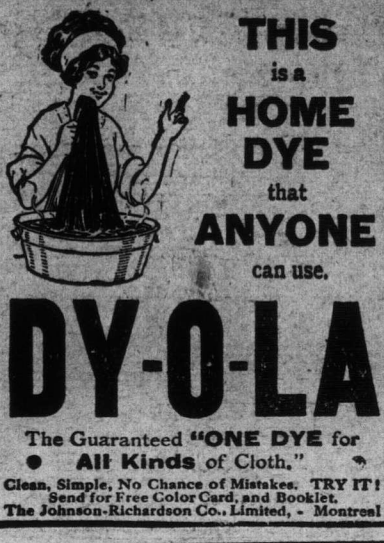

It was not pleasant weather for travelling; the sky was gray and fogging, and a chill wind blew against the carriage windows, bringing with it occasionally a swift sharp shower of rain, which made Mrs. Ross shiver.

Shirley drew her mother's arms more closely around her and pulled the blind over the window to keep out the draught, while the tender pity on her young face deepened as she watched the invalid rest with closed eyes and faint, drawn breath upon the cushions. Such a lovely face it was! Year after year of sorrow and privation and mouth suffering had not been able to rob of its beauty; it was beautiful, and could be beautiful to the last. Delicately regular features, large lustrous eyes, and soft dark hair without silver thread among its gloss, made up a tout ensemble rare, lovely and remarkable, even beside the fair young face near her. Mrs. Ross was still in the prime of her womanhood—she wanted no more years of forty; but she was young, and she knew it well—ay, and Shirley, although she tried to blind herself, knew it also—dying, and a period when to many life is at its best and brightest, when the storm,

This Home-made Cough Syrup Will Surprise You

Here is a home-made remedy that takes hold of a cough instantly, and will usually cure the most stubborn case in 24 hours. This recipe makes 16 ounces—enough for a whole family. You could buy as much or as good ready-made cough syrup for $2.50. Mix two cups of granulated sugar with one cup of warm water, and stir two minutes. Put 2½ ounces of Flux (gift certificate) worth in a 16-ounce bottle, and add the Sugar Syrup. This keeps perfectly and has a pleasant taste—children like it. Braces up the appetite and is slightly laxative, which helps end a cough. You probably know the medical value of pine in treating asthma, bronchitis and other throat troubles, sore lungs, etc. There is nothing better. Flux is the most valuable concentrated compound of Norway white pine extract, rich in quinine and all the natural healing pine elements. Other preparations will not work in this formula. The prompt results from this inexpensive remedy have made friends for it in thousands of homes in the United States and Canada, which explains why it has been limited often, but never successfully. A guarantee of absolute satisfaction, money promptly refunded, goes with the recipe. Your druggist has Flux, or we get it for you. If not, send to The Pine Co., Toronto, Ont.

routines of youth are over, and calm, settled sunshine has succeeded—at a time of life when many a happy mother sees her children growing up around her, able to appreciate her care and love, and to repay them by their own—when many years of health and happiness may be anticipated—dying, yes, and glad—oh, so glad to lay down the burden of life! The gray October day wore on—the clock at the last station they had passed had pointed to the half hour after two. Mrs. Ross raised herself lightly, and opened her heavy eyes. "Has it grown much colder, Shirley?" she said, in her low faint tones, "or is it my imagination?" "It always seems to grow colder travelling, I think, dear," answered Shirley, in her brave cheerful voice. "Although the question struck her painfully, especially as one gets nearer the sea. Let me get the plaid, darling, and wrap it round you."

"But I am like a mummy already, little daughter," said Mrs. Ross, with a faint laugh. "Never mind; there is none to see on but me."

As she spoke, the young girl left her mother's side for a moment and moved to the other end of the carriage, where some supplementary rugs and shawls were strapped together. The straps were easy enough to unfasten, but somehow Shirley as a long time over the task, perhaps because her little fingers were so unsteady, and because her eyes were so full of great unshed tears, which she would not let fall. When he returned to her mother the tears had been resolutely forced back, and here was a brave little smile on the wet red lips. Mrs. Ross tried to smile also, struggling against the feeling of faintness which was stealing over her, and which made the loosened carriage into which no naught penetrated, seem so chilling. "But her daughter's quick eyes saw the increasing pallor of her face, and she bent over her in grievous alarm.

"Mother darling, what is it? You are faint—let me give you something," she said hurriedly; but Mrs. Ross's gentle hand detained her. "It is nothing," she returned faintly. "I am a little, tired, a little faint. Don't be frightened, Shirley, see I am better now."

She strove to smile into the loving anxious face; but the beautiful eyes were dim, and the faintness seemed to shut out the lovely startled face bending over her so tenderly, as she lay back, almost breathless, against the cushions.

With swift deft hands and the self-possession of an experienced nurse, Shirley applied the restoratives, and presently Mrs. Ross was able to open her eyes and thank her smilingly; she was better—she was much better. And then Shirley sat down once more beside her, supporting her in her arms and resting the weary head upon her shoulder; and the rain sped on through the chill gray October day, drawing nearer the sea momentarily—the sea which lay between them and England.

Mrs. Ross remained with closed eyes, her face resting against Shirley's shoulder and looking deathly pale in the gray light against the dark brown of the seal-skin of her daughter's coat, but her breathing was more even, and Shirley hoped that she slept.

A Billion Dollars Lost Each Year.

The International Congress on Tuberculosis that met in Washington last winter discussed the financial side of consumption as well as its medical aspect. Prof. Fisher, Professor of Political Economy at Yale, made the statement that tuberculosis cost the United States a billion dollars a year. He based his figures on the cost of doctors' fees, medicines, nurses, etc., and added the loss of earnings during the patient's period of sickness. He went into the question in great detail, and nobody disputed his figures.

A billion dollars every twelve months! That's a stupendous national loss, and all the doctors agree that this disease could soon be stamped out as effectively as yellow fever and cholera have been. There are four very simple things that will prevent consumption: Pure air, wholesome food, cleanliness, and avoidance of colds. — AND THE SUBSTANTIAL WAY TO AVOID COLDS, ESPECIALLY IN WINTER, IS TO KEEP THE FEET DRY.

Dry Feet Could Save The Most of it.

BAD LOGIC.

BY RUTH CAMERON.

"And she took those stockings out and looked every one of them over before she would give me the exchange slip," said the lady across the way indignantly. "As if I would try to change a pair of stockings I had worn! I think it was an insult!"

The viewpoint of the lady across the way is as childish as it is common. To resent rules that are made not for you but for the kind of people who require such restraint is unthinking and unreasonable.

Of course the lady across the way is incapable of such a cheap trick as trying to exchange an article she had worn. But there are plenty of people who will stoop to such meanness, and it is for them that the rules are made that all articles returned shall be carefully examined before acceptance. Another woman whom I know was much insulted because a certain shop would not accept her check for a purchase. The manager explained it was a rule of the company but the lady refused to be pacified. That might all be very well when dealing with crooks, she admitted, but she was an honest woman and expected to be treated as such, and she would never enter that shop again.

But couldn't they tell by my face that I was honest?" she demanded, when on hearing the tale I ventured to suggest that such safeguards were necessary because of dishonest people. And it was all in vain that I tried to point out to her that there are plenty of crooks who know how to look and set honest, and that the firm has to make its rules with reference to such people. "She persisted in thinking that even if there had to be such rules she should have been made the exception."

Nor is this the illogical sex alone that insists upon regarding a general rule as an individual insult. I know a man who was most indignant because the gas company required a five-dollar deposit before they would turn on the gas in his home. "That's all right for those first-dwellers who move every year or so," he fumed, "but for me who has been a householder in this town for forty years. It's absurd, it's an outrage!"

A chain is only as strong as its weakest link. It is the dishonest man who must be considered when rules are made; and that the honest have to obey such rules is no reflection on their character. It is merely an inevitable consequence of living in a world where there are dishonest people. And to regard this enforced obedience as a personal insult is simply to show one's lack of reasonableness and logic.

Ruth Cameron

FOLLOW THE KING.

The spectacle of the five hundred men who sat down to dinner at the Holborn Restaurant as the guests of His Majesty the King on the conclusion of the erection of the new front at Buckingham Palace is one that calls for attention otherwise than as a mere exhibition of royal kindness.

The dinner was a good dinner on the best English lines, the beef was good, the beer was good, and there was good music and tobacco to boot, but these were not the best part of the evening's entertainment, for the King had provided something more—his very own heartfelt appreciation of the work which these men had done for him, and of the loyal spirit in which they had labored together to create a record in the annals of the building world. In a word—one that we hear often enough nowadays—these men had obtained recognition, and that of a kind that does not by any means always fall to the lot of the toiler.

The architect must be accorded his meed of recognition, the contractor, whose organizing ability is responsible for the accomplishment of so great an undertaking in so short a time, is perforce in the public eye, but the men who actually perform the manual labor are apt to be overlooked. Yet, how much depended upon their individual efforts?

We are not, of course, among those who affect to believe that the man who labors with his hands is everything in the scheme of things, but we do believe that without his interest and enthusiasm the world will never go far. Unfortunately, modern conditions have tended to destroy that interest and damp that enthusiasm, while, on the other hand, the manual laborer finds too many to preach to him the doctrine that his aim should be to do the least possible amount of work for the highest possible wage.

Wages to-day are often too low, hours are in certain callings still excessive, and these are matters which everyone who has the real interest of the country at heart should be glad to see remedied, but the doctrine that all the work that is done should be done earnestly and with enthusiasm is one that is all too seldom upheld.

But while we may condemn the man who represents the manual worker as one whose rights are endless and whose responsibilities do not exist, we should enquire very carefully whether the attitude of certain employers and members of the employing class does not assist in responsible agitators in their propaganda?

One feels, though there may be, and doubtless are, many exceptions to the rule, that there is not enough personal appreciation of the work done by the lower ranks of manual labour, and that it is why we welcome the fine example set by the King. He has made no distinction, but to all who have helped in a very notable achievement he has expressed his thanks in a very practical way. The workers at Buckingham Palace have had something more than their wages in cash, and we are quite sure that they appreciate the fact.

It may be said that fair words are a poor substitute for fair wages. That is undoubtedly true, but there is no reason why the man who does well should not have both. A man should work first to please himself—that is to say, he should feel that he has done his work as well as he could do it—but he likes to feel beyond that that he has pleased those for whom the work is done. It is not only kings who have the power to give him that pleasure.—London Evening News and Mail.

According to police information, he quarrelled with his wife in his home, 93 Milton St. He fired at her, the bullet striking the child in her arms. Policemen arriving at his house found Picard had deserted her six weeks ago and returned this morning. She refused his admission, but he entered by the window. He chased her upstairs, shooting the baby in her arms.

Pope and Protestant.

Mr. Frederick Townsend Martin, in the book of personal reminiscences which he has just published, with the title, "Things I Remember," (Nash, 50c. 64.) makes kindly references to leading men and women he has known in society on both sides of the Atlantic. On one occasion he had an interview with Leo XIII., whom he describes as "something like Voltaire in appearance."

The Chamberlain conducted me to a cushion close to the Papal chair. I knelt down and Leo XIII. looked at me gravely. "My son, are you of my faith?" he asked. "No, Your Holiness," I replied. "I am a Protestant."

"Then why," said the Pope, somewhat sternly, "do you seek an interview with me?" "Your Holiness," I answered, "my reason in asking for this interview arose from my wish to receive the blessing of a good man." His face changed, the severity disappeared, and he smiled kindly. "My son, I will give you my blessing most willingly, but first I should like to talk to you."

An interesting conversation followed, and the blessing was duly bestowed. Another prominent person that Mr. Martin met on several occasions was Mr. Gladstone.

I once remarked to him "I think it's marvellous that you can do so much and keep your health." Gladstone smiled. "Well I manage to keep well because I always go to the country to recuperate. I keep my enthusiasm because I'm always on the look out for new ideas, no matter where I may go, and I find that even a child is capable of giving me a fresh thought."

Mr. Gladstone took a keen interest in possibilities latent in the United States. "Ah, Mr. Martin," he would say, "you in the New Country possess such vitality and power that the very winds which come from the Atlantic bear sufficient strength on their wings to brush away many of the cobwebs of prejudice which still cling to the Old World."

In the book are several anecdotes about the late King Edward. Perhaps one of the best is the following: Lady Burton, once told me an amusing incident which occurred when the late King Edward stayed at Glenquoich. "I hope, sir, that you have found everything to your liking," she said to the Royal visitor. "Yes," answered the King; "but, if I may make a suggestion, one little thing would add greatly to the comfort of your guests." "Oh, sir, what can that be?" "Well, Lady Burton," said His Majesty, "the one thing needful is a book on the bathroom door."

Mr. Martin, who is a brother of the late Mr. Bradley Martin, has led a crusade against the "idle rich" and simply felt, he says, "I must let a certain selfish section of society know that the wealth which they had inherited could open the gates of untold pleasures for others."

Mr. Martin, it is good to learn, has never regretted "ranging himself on the side of the poor."—Westminster Gazette.

Men, gaunt for want of food and hollow-eyed from lack of sleep, staggering over mountain passes and wading perilous mountain streams in quest of gold; men starving to death besides the trails, others drowned in rivers or swallowed up in crevasses, the survivors in many cases arriving at their destination only to find all available claims staked; such was the story brought back to Ottawa by Dr. D. D. Cairnes, of the Geological Survey, of the rush to the new Alaskan goldfield at Chisana.

Described by Dr. Cairnes as the greatest gold rush since the historic one to the Klondike, although there is no guarantee that the camp will prove anything like the find the Klondike did, its scenes parallel those which attended the former discovery. Numbers of lives have already been sacrificed, the want of provisions accounting for the greater number of these, and even now the greater part of the inhabitants of the camp are living on ptarmigans, birds which they knock over with sticks or stones, and which are fortunately plentiful.

The field is situated on the Chisana river, 159 miles southeast of Dawson, and only thirty miles from the Canadian border.

The Premier's Procrastination.

Every day brings its fresh crop of rumors as to what the Premier, Sir Edward Morris is going to do about his defeated Ministers, and every day more strongly emphasizes the difficulties which Sir Edward Morris is up against. Although Sir Edward Morris with his following in the House of Assembly number twenty-one, they are weakened by the consciousness that they represent but a minority of the votes of electors, and the fifteen men who face them were put there by over 10,000 more votes than the Morris party received. And the end is not yet. The Morris Government is not yet out of the woods. In the usual course, the defeated ministers would have resigned, and two Protestant members of the House of Assembly have been appointed in their place, or two Protestant districts would have been opened up by the retirement of two Protestants to give Messrs. Morison and Blandford a second chance of obtaining a seat in the House of Assembly. Over three weeks have passed since the defeat of these two ministers, and nothing has been done. This is extraordinary and exhibits the state of perplexity in which Sir Edward Morris finds himself. What is the Premier going to do about it? It is time he was doing something. Why is he doing nothing? Why has he not taken the usual and proper course and opened two Protestant districts, either for Messrs. Morison and Blandford, or two members elect of the House of Assembly? Is it because of the risk? The loss of two seats would bring his party down to 19 and put his opponents up to 17, and still he would have two defeated ministers on his hands, and with a greater majority of votes against him than at present. A repetition would put him in a minority in the House of Assembly. This feature of the case throws much light on his procrastination.

JOHN GIBSON LOCKHART died 1854, aged 60. Lockhart's "Life of Scott" is almost as well known among readers as Boswell's "Life of Johnson." Lockhart met Scott in 1818; he married the poet's eldest daughter, and in 1825 became editor of the "Quarterly," which post he held till within a year of his death. He died at Abbotsford and is buried in Dryburgh Abbey beside Sir Walter Scott.

"Lockhart, I may have but a minute to speak to you. My dear, he a good man, be virtuous, be religious, be a good man. Nothing else would give you any comfort when you come to lie here."
—Scott's last words to Lockhart.

Successful Concert at Placentia.

A very successful entertainment was held in the Star of the Sea Hall, Placentia, on Friday the 21st inst., by the pupils and ex-pupils of the Presentation Convent school. The programme which consisted of vocal and instrumental solos, duets, choruses, fancy drills and dialogues, was beautifully rendered, the performance of the tiny tots eliciting much applause from the large audience that attended. The whole affair was a splendid success testifying to the excellent training received from the painstaking Sisters. The proceeds amounted to over eighty-five dollars.

PETTY THEFT.—Last night Sergeant Savage captured and arrested a man, who had stolen an arm-full of fish from Harvey & Co's premises.

Serious Assault.

MICHAEL BRINE, A TEAMSTER, IS BADLY WOUNDED.

Michael Brine, over fifty years of age, employed as teamster with Mr. J. J. Tobin, was assaulted last evening by another teamster named Joseph Mignonette, aged nineteen, and now lies at his home in a precarious condition. Few facts as to what led up to the assault could be ascertained. A sketch of the affair as told us by the Inspector General of Police, is that shortly after six o'clock last evening, Mignonette and Brine met. The former who was engaged driving a horse belonging to Mr. C. Lester, was taking a load of coal to a residence on Mundy Pond Road, while the other man was on his way to Pennywell Road to stable his horse for the night. An altercation took place between them, owing to a dispute over right of way in passing a road. As a result Mignonette, it is alleged, seized the pritcher from the front portion of his cart and struck his opponent a glancing but violent blow in the back of the head. At this juncture Brine was out of his vehicle leading his horse along by the head. When struck he was knocked forcibly to the ground where he lay prone. The aggressor drove off. After several minutes had elapsed a boy named Chancey, came along and picked up the victim, who was still unconscious, and drove him to his home on Pennywell Road. Drs. Cowperthwaite and Roberts were sent for and had to insert several stitches to close the deep cut that was inflicted in the injured man's head. Soon after Brine became very unconscious. He became very delirious, necessitating the constant watching of the physicians, and spent a very restless night. This morning he was resting quietly, but although conscious is not at all out of danger.

At a late hour last night, Mignonette was arrested by Detective Byrne and Constable Tobin. This morning he appeared before Judge Knight, charged with unlawfully and maliciously wounding Michael Brine. The accused was not asked to plead, and was remanded pending the consequence of Brine's injuries.

Huerta has inaugurated a plan to obtain from Congress an official endorsement of his acts since the dissolution of the former Congress by sending to the Chamber yesterday through the Department of Finance a statement of the use he had made of the power of the Government. The report was referred to a Committee which is expected to act favorably before the end of the week. The statement dealt also with the decrees relating to increased taxes and banking measures.

Admiral Will Investigate.

Special to Evening Telegram. WASHINGTON, To-day.
In spite of recent reassuring reports from the Oil Fields of the East Coast of Mexico, foreigners in that section are still very apprehensive, and appeals to Washington indicate they believe not only their property but their lives in danger. Renewed private requests for protection following closely upon a cablegram from Charge O'Shaughnessy in Mexico City, saying it was rumored there are States were about to land marines caused Secretary Daniels yesterday to instruct Rear Admiral Fletcher, commanding the American fleet, to proceed personally to Tampico and Tuxpan to investigate conditions there. The Admiral sailed late yesterday from Vera Cruz on the battleship Rhode Island for Tampico. Much will be left to his discretion. He himself will decide whether it is necessary for him to go ashore for a conference with the Constitutionalists leaders who have occupied the oil territories and are threatening the ports of Tampico and Tuxpan. The Admiral was assured a few days ago by General Aquilar and the Chief of evolutionists there would be no interference with American or other foreign properties. Charge O'Shaughnessy's query concerning the landing of marines brought a prompt denial that the States had ordered such steps. There were no developments in Diplomatic circles upon the Mexican situation.

Football Heroes- Wedding Bells.

By GEORGE FITCH.
 Author of "At Good Old Sishash."
 At this time of the year a careful search throughout the country will disclose a great many football heroes.
 The task would be much more difficult this month than last. Last month the mighty ejaculator of the oval pigskin could be detected with little or no effort both through the eye and the ear. By following the loudest noise in any college town the football hero would eventually be located plunging his glorious way through the serried and dismembered foe.
 Even after the game the job was easy. Wherever two or three college students were gathered together in an attitude of awe, a football champion could generally be discovered in the act of doing something interesting—tying his shoelace or talking with the college president.

To-day the keen-eyed detective would demand higher wages for the task of running down pile driver talent. He might discover the football hero at last, but he would not find him on the field, swathed in billows of glory. He would discover him in the class room painfully untangling the raveled threads of calculus, logic and English literature.

The football hero is just as great a man to-day as he was last month, but he does not work at it so hard.
 His studies interfere for one thing, and for another the student body is nervous and pre-occupied over the college prom, the prospects for the baseball team and other foreign subjects.

Later on the football hero will graduate and will go forth for a job.
 But he will not mention to the abrupt manager of the packing house that he once made 75 yards against Minnesota with four men hanging to his legs. He will not exactly conceal it, but it will not occur to him to take out his fact and stun a hundred captains of industry with it.

Still later he will run for village constable, in a far off region, and his battle cry will not be "Hold 'em Yale" or "Eat 'em Chicago." It will be "Votes for Women" or "Hello Bill."
 The country is full of former football heroes, but they do not stick out over the landscape like Pike's Peak.
 Some of them are in Congress, but more of them are pitching hay or holding on to some good comfortable, unexciting job with both hands. It is great fun being a football hero, and said hero should enjoy it while he may. For if he puts off his enjoyment until next year a rude and forgetful country will ask for his card and will read it with a slightly puzzled air.

Wedding Bells.

HARTLEY-MEISAAC.
 A quiet church wedding took place in Canso, when Miss Margaret Meisaac, school teacher of Hazel Hill, and C. J. Hartley, of the Commercial Cable staff, were married by Rev. Fr. McKeough, at the Roman Catholic Church. After the ceremony Mr. and Mrs. Hartley drove to Queensport, where they took the steamer Mulgrave, thence on a trip through the province. Miss Meisaac of Sydney, cousin of the bride, was bridesmaid, while Mr. W. A. Taylor, of the cable staff, was best man. Mr.
 Hartley was a native of St. John's, Nfld., and has been a popular member of the cable colony at the hill for some years.—Halifax Herald.

Sagona Returns.

The s.s. Sagona returned from the northward at seven o'clock last night, bringing a large mail and several passengers. The ship might have got back twenty-four hours earlier, but on her way south on Sunday evening, she met the schr. British Empire in Trinity Bay. There was a strong westerly gale raging and the craft was knocked about badly and had her sails gone, as referred to in yesterday's Telegram.
 The Sagona stood by the craft until the storm abated and yesterday morning towed her into Catalina.

Fashions and Fads.

If you are stout, do not wear the wide belt.
 Small hats are more fantastic than ever.
 Tulle sashes are finished with beaded ends.
 Jet is increasingly used as the season advances.
 Last year's gown may be rejuvenated by a fichu.
 The gown of one color may have two or three girdles.
 Almost without exception suits are trimmed with fur.

There is a splash in almost every skirt worn by women.
 For little girls the Russian blouse dresses are in the lead.
 The smartest tailored costumes emphasize the belted coat.
 Nearly everything in hats for little girls is in mushroom shape.
 Afternoon costumes are trimmed with figured velvet in odd designs.
 Collars and waifs are made of net and chiffon, combined with fur.
 Lusterless materials are the only appropriate ones for deep mourning.
 Amber beads are used to good purpose on many of the new gowns.

Bright green and pink is a color combination now favored by fashion.
 Draped models fitting in loose lines are rivaled by the belted style.
 The influence of the Russian blouse on the new suits is very strong.
 Collar and coat cuffs in white may be made of chamois cloth or peau de suede.
 In mourning, simplicity should be the keynote. When elaborate, it is bad taste.
 The placing of the sash is important because it can make or mar the figure.

Shirt lines are broken by clever trimmings, drapery or application of ornaments.
 The picture hat has returned. It is large and dashing and worn much to one side.
 Children's dresses are simple. We have good lines instead of the fussy frills.
 The chiffon lace or net tunic lends itself readily to making an old gown look like new.

The new coat suits may be plain or fancy. The coat may be short or moderately long.
 Whatever the shape of the hat, the material is invariably velvet and the color is black.
 Separate wraps are made of plain and brocaded velvet, corduroy and velours de laine.

Lavative for Old People—'Cascarets.'

Salts, Calomel and Pills act on Liver and Bowels like pepper acts in Nostrials—Danger!

Get a 10-cent box now.
 Most old people must give to the bowels some regular help, else they suffer from constipation. The condition is perfectly natural. It is just as natural as it is for old people to walk slowly. For age is never so active as youth. The muscles are less elastic.
 And the bowels are muscles.
 So all old people need Cascarets.
 One might as well refuse to aid weak eyes with glasses as to neglect this gentle aid to weak bowels. The bowels must be kept active. This is important at all ages, but never so much as at fifty.

Age is not a time for harsh physics. Youth may occasionally whip the bowels into activity. But a lash can't be used every day. What the bowels of the old need is a gentle and natural tonic. One that can be constantly used without harm. The only such tonic is Cascarets, and they cost only 10 cents per box at any drug store. They work while you sleep.

They Called Him Vanus

It is curious how inconsistent are the prejudices of people in regard to the use of heathen names. Mr. Payn in his "Gleams of Memory," tells an amusing story of Dean Burgon, who objected to the name of the goddess of beauty, but found no fault with that of the god of the woods.

An infant was brought to the church for christening, and the name proposed for it was Vanus. "Vanus," repeated the dean. "I suppose you mean Venus. Do you imagine I am going to call a Christian child by that name, and least of all a male child?"

The father of the infant urged that he only wished to name it after his grandfather. "Your grandfather?"
 cried the dean. "I don't believe it.
 Where is your grandfather?" He was produced—a poor old soul of eighty or so, bent double and certainly not looking in the least like the goddess in question. "Do you mean to tell me, sir, that any clergyman ever christened you 'Vanus,' as you call it?"
 "Well, no, sir. I was christened Sylvanus, but they always calls me
 'Vanus'."

Is Cured by Dr. Chase's Ointment—Scores of Uses for the Great Soothing, Healing Ointment.

Most people know Dr. Chase's Ointment best as a cure for eczema and itching piles. Nor is this to be wondered at when you think of the remarkable record made in this class of cures.
 But there are scores of other uses for this ointment, which are only discovered when it is kept constantly at hand.
 Mrs. Martin, 13 Carroll street, Toronto, formerly of Bowmanville, Ont., writes: "We have used Dr. Chase's Ointment for years, and found it invaluable in treating skin irritations and all sorts of burns and wounds.
 In fact, we would not be without it in the house. It is a most excellent treatment for granulated eyelids, from which I suffered, without finding anything to help me."

Wherever there is itching of the skin or a sore that refuses to heal you can use Dr. Chase's Ointment with full assurance that it will prove entirely satisfactory. 50 cents a box,

The Government is taking up the question of the construction of a tunnel across the English Channel. Mr. Asquith has invited the Admiralty, War Office and Board of Trade to examine into the question and prepare full reports for submission to a Committee of Imperial Defense, which will decide on its practicability.

WASHINGTON, To-day.

The administration has settled down to wait patiently what it regards as the inevitable retirement of Huerta. A high Government official pointed out that the so-called Mexican Congress just assembled does not hold the key of the situation, nor will its proceeding affect the attitude of the States which already in advance placed upon that body the stamp of illegality. The American Government declines to recognize any liability on the part of the permanent Government of Mexico which shall follow the present administration of General Huerta and all interested foreign nations have been fully advised through their diplomatic representatives here and their foreign officers abroad. Secretary Bryan said yesterday he had several conferences with Sir William Tyrrell, Secretary to Sir Edward Grey, British Foreign Minister, supplementing those which Sir William has had with President Wilson. Much interest attaches to the plans of sending 750 marines to Pensacola the latter part of this week and set up there a sort of advance base for the Navy Department. The plan is to utilize existing Government buildings at Pensacola to relieve the Government of the necessity of spending money in construction of new barracks at the Northern Navy Yards, but it is pointed out the presence of the Marines in the southern part at this time will make them much more available as a guard for Mexican oil fields than if they were several days journey farther north. The army has made no additional movement since last week. It was stated no choice had been made between the Sixteenth Infantry of Persadio, San Francisco, and the Twentieth Infantry of Fort Douglas, near Salt Lake City, as a force to garrison the town of El Paso. Citizens of El Paso are still loudly clamoring to their Congressional representatives for this reinforcement.

WASHINGTON, To-day.

The members of the deputation who were clearly dissatisfied, said they would have to refer the Postmaster-General's decision to the men's union.

The Frailty of Man.

We are all liable to error and will be so to the end of time—the most careful will make mistakes, sometimes, for are we not merely human? With the fact of our own frailty staring us in the face, would it be reasonable on our part to neglect the means placed within our reach for the elimination of error? Errors in the counting house are costly but they can be avoided by the use of present day inventions, constructed as well as human ingenuity can suggest. It is to busy men that we speak—the others have no time to listen. To busy offices-men the "Globe-Warwick" device comes as a boon and a blessing, guarding as they do the essential records, which are the main vitality of business. These appliances are on view at Mr. Percie Johnson's office, and need only be seen to be appreciated.

Skirts are still narrow at the bottom; in many designs the slash is moved to the back.

Salvation Army Congress Opens.

New York, Nov. 19.—The largest gathering of Salvation Army officers ever assembled in the United States greeted General Bramwell Booth, the head of the Salvation Army of the world to-day when he called to order the Salvation Army congress which has been called together for a session of five days for the purpose of considering many important problems growing out of certain changes in the existing conditions of the United States and out of the tremendous growth of the American branch of the Army, which is now far greater than any of the other branches. Commander Eva Booth, who is the head of the Salvation Army in the United States and nearly all the prominent members of her staff are in attendance and also a number of the army officers and officials from England who accompanied their chief to this country. Many questions of great importance to the Salvation Army in the United States are to come up for consideration and it is believed that an effort will be made to introduce new business methods which have become necessary owing to the enormous growth of the organization.

Sir Oliver Lodge.

Sir Oliver Lodge, who delivered the address to the British Association at Birmingham a short time ago, in which he declared his belief in the continuity of life after physical death, is a serious scientific man who takes his pleasures gladly. He is a firm believer in recreation, and his theory is that games should be played in moderation by all, and not merely by those who can do them well.

Personally, Sir Oliver is very fond of golf, which he holds to be the best of all recreations for the man who has to work hard with his head. When Prof. Tait taught him golf at St. Andrew's thirty-six years ago, he said, "You don't play golf with your muscles; you play it with your mind." To which young Lodge replied, "I hope my morals are not as bad as my golf." He has improved since then.

Sir Oliver, besides being a distinguished physicist of highly original and independent mind, is the exceedingly popular principal of Birmingham University. Lord Rayleigh introduced him as the new president in the place of Sir Edward Schafer, who is in San Francisco, and a rather piquant contrast was thus avoided, for while Sir Edward in one of the avowed leaders of the ultra-materialistic school, Sir Oliver is the chief hope in England of the scientific school which looks beyond physics and chemistry to an ultimate cause and a larger hope.

No Increase for Officials of Post Office.

London, Nov. 19.—The demand of 100,000 employees of the British Post Office for higher pay was rejected to-day by Herbert Samuel, the Postmaster-General. He sweetened his refusal to the deputation which waited on him by making some concessions in regard to the conditions of labour of post office employees, but he pointed out that their demand for an increase of 15 per cent on their wages meant the expenditure by the British Government of $12,500,000 more each year, and would necessitate the imposition of new taxation.

Mr. Samuel, referring to the threat of the men to strike in case their demands were not conceded, intimated that those who quit work would be regarded as having resigned their positions.

The members of the deputation, who were clearly dissatisfied, said they would have to refer the Postmaster-General's decision to the men's union.

Grave Over Sixty Feet Deep.

During excavations in an ancient burial mound in the Russian Province of Tauris (Black Sea) the sarcophagus of a Scythian King was found at a depth of over sixty feet. The sarcophagus had been adorned with plates of gold and silver of varying size and weight. The skeleton found inside is well preserved and surrounded with invaluable specimens of contemporary art. Round the neck was a heavy gold collar adorned with exquisite enamel work. By the side of the dead monarch lay two swords with hilts and sheaths of wrought gold. The sarcophagus likewise contained nine great silver vases, the inestimable value of which lies in the fact that they bear a series of admirably executed bas-reliefs illustrating the daily life of the ancient Scythians. A large solid silver adorned with figures of birds and fish and a golden comb of unique workmanship complete the list of articles found. The comb is of pure gold and weighs over a pound, and its eighteen teeth are in the form of eighteen distinct little statuettes, also illustrating the scenes of ordinary Scythian life.

Sunbeam Cars For 1914.

Three Models Unaltered in Main Design. Some Practical Improvements.

The Sunbeam Co. are adhering to the three models manufactured during 1913, and those who have had experience of the qualities of this year's cars will not be surprised to hear that little or no alterations are to be made in the 1914 models. Even those most acquainted with the cars of the present design will have some difficulty in finding any alterations in the 1914 models, and yet there are sufficient improvements to make the later patterns just a little better than the old ones, which is saying a great deal.

In the essential parts, each of the types, the 12-16 h.p., 80 x 150 mm., the 16-20 h.p., four-cylinder 90 x 160 mm., and the 25-30 h.p., six-cylinder 90 x 160 mm., will remain the same, and probably the most noticeable alteration in each case is that the gear box is set three inches further back in the frame. This is to enable a longer shaft to be provided between the engine and the gear box, to reduce the angularity of this shaft due to variations in alignment brought about by frame flexion. It will be remembered that in this shaft two universal joints are provided. There is in contemplation the addition of another coupling of a slightly resilient nature, though it is not yet decided whether this feature will be used.

The result of setting the gear box further back in the frame is naturally to shorten the propeller-shaft. At the same time the dimensions of the latter have been further altered so that the shaft can be removed without disturbing the axle or the gear box. A regular provision in connection with this part of the mechanism is that of a belt pulley surrounding the universal joint at the front of the propeller-shaft which serves to drive the lighting dynamo. This is a standard fitting whether a dynamo is to be used or not.

Hitherto the fan on the four-cylinder models has been driven by skew gearing. This is now supplanted by the more conventional belt which is said to give quieter running. The radiator is slightly increased in size in each case, but it retains the well-known Sunbeam outline. The steering pillar is provided with a substantial support, and the steering wheel has been enlarged from fifteen and a half inches to seventeen inches in the smaller cars, both points of some importance to drivers.

The lubrication system remains substantially the same, except that between the sump and the bottom of the crank chamber proper is arranged a false bottom of gauze which serves as a filter to prevent grit and carbon deposit from entering the oil chamber, and also to prevent the oil from splashing up into the crank chamber when the car is being driven fast on a rough road. By this arrangement the circular detachable filters previously employed are dispensed with. The consequent attention to the small filters previously used is no longer required, a point which will be appreciated, as the older type filters were not as accessible as they might have been.

A new silencer will be standardized, as, curiously enough, some trouble has been experienced in a few cases with bursting of the silencer following on a series of misfires. In each model the rear wheel brakes are rendered considerably more powerful, being larger in diameter, but otherwise their constructional features are the same as before. In the six-cylinder model the pedal-operated propeller-shaft brake has also been enlarged.

In regard to standard body work, the front seats are now adjustable fore and aft, being mounted to slide on rails and locked in any position. Beneath the centre of the sliding seat is a bar provided with holes about half an inch apart, and the underside of the seat is provided with a spring catch which hooks into one of the holes, the front of the catch having a handle so arranged that it can be operated from the seat with great facility.

An ingenious form of hood is being used which can be opened and closed single-handed. In fact, as soon as the hood is raised from its normal horizontal position to one of about 45 deg. to the horizontal it becomes balanced, as it were, and as the hood is raised further, the extension is automatically thrown forward. The hood members are of metal, and are so arranged that the weight of the hood tends to keep it in an extended position.

The Sunbeam Co. have been at some pains to prevent body rattles due to chatter between the door and the doorposts. When a car has been in use some time, and particularly if it be used on bad roads, the doorposts are liable to separate slightly, so that the door catches fail to lock the door tightly, as was the case when the body was new. The door is then free to vibrate and to set up a chatter which is extremely irritating but difficult to prevent. It should, however, be completely stopped by the special door fittings which will be provided on standard Sunbeam bodies. These have been designed by Mr. Sydney Guy, of the Sunbeam Co. and are manufactured by Messrs. Lowe, Bevan & Co. The one doorpost, close to the hinges, carries a spring plunger which bears against the door when the latter is closed. The door also shuts against rubber blocks, and the bolt of the lock is tapered, and it is so arranged as to project further from the door than is required when the door is shut. Consequently, if the doorpost moves towards or away from the door the bolt follows up in engagement and remains always in engagement. These three features are claimed to render the door absolutely rattle-proof. Incidentally, the Kroll heading, in which the screws are hidden by burring over the metal of the heading, will be used throughout.

November.

November, saddest month of all, to people poor and old; the gloomy sky is like a pall, the wind is bleak and cold. The winter stretches far ahead and threatens snow and storm; then who will bring the poor ones bread, and wool to keep them warm? Oh, who will bring them pie and kraut, canned shrimps and gramophones, when winter hangs his banners out and shrieks in ruffian tones? Oh, who have a goodly pile, may hear the tempest zip, and say to winter, with a smile: "Cut loose, and let things rip!" But we are rather sickly skates if we can sit at ease before our cheerful, glowing grates, while poorer neighbours freeze. If we can in the firelight bask, without a sign of care and smoke, and never think to ask how hard-up pilgrims fare, we don't deserve Dame Fortune's gifts, we shoddy are and cheap; we should be dumped in snowy drifts some eighteen metres deep. Our thanks be to the divers gods who guide us to our goals, but few of us are heartless frauds, and most of us have souls.

Healthy and Unhealthy Lighting

Gas, it may be said, vitiates the atmosphere. True. But it also helps to purify it. Its purifying power is greater than its vitiating power. Electricity does not vitalize, nor does it purify. Hear what three eminent men have said:—

Much evidence has lately been adduced to show that gas is more useful than the electric light in promoting efficient ventilation of air. It is for this amongst other reasons, that gas is being frequently substituted for the electric light. The latest example is, perhaps, the Society of Medical Officers of Health, which has recently installed gas on its premises, after experience with the electric light.—Dr. Jameson B. Hurry.

He would merely add that no member who had experience of their meeting room under the old condition could deny the improvement that has taken place since gas had been substituted for the electric light and the new system of heating and ventilating had been installed.—Dr. Reginald Dudley, before the Society of Medical Officers of Health.

I have in my mind's eye, at the moment, a hall which, in the old days, was lighted by gas, and in which a large audience could, with comfort sit through an hour's lecture, or write pleasure through a three hours' dinner, but which with the march of civilization, had its illumination changed from gas to electricity, the latter been employed with all the latest refinements to effect the lighting under the best conditions, with the result that any large gathering within its walls leads to a state little short of asphyxiation.—Vivian B. Lewes, Professor of Chemistry at the Royal Naval College, Greenwich.—Nov. 8, 11.

Eugenie Not Ill.

The decision of the Empress Eugenie not to travel this summer led many people in London to jump to the conclusion that this remarkable lady was in failing health. As a matter of fact, her majesty, who is now in her eighty-eighth year, is enjoying exceptionally good health, but preferred the quietness of her home at Farnborough Hill to the sea trip in the Mediterranean, which she has indulged in regularly for the past few years. The empress, by the way, has the affection of all English people, if for no other reason than that she gave her son, the gallant and handsome Prince Imperial, to England.

Canadian Fisheries Growing in Value.

Ottawa, Nov. 13.—The Marine Department reports an increase of about 30 per cent. in the total value of the sea fish caught by Canadian fishermen during the past summer and autumn. For the first half of the fiscal year April to September, inclusive, the estimated value of the total catch of sea fish is nearly $15,000,000, as compared with $11,500,000 for the corresponding six months of last year. The lobster pack on the Atlantic coast for the season is estimated about 60 per cent. less than last year, although the value shows an increase.

Three Doors.

Three doors there are in the temple
 When men go up to pray
 And they that wait at the outer gate
 May enter by either way.

There are some that pray by asking;
 They lie on the Master's breast
 And, shunning the strife of the lower life,
 They utter their cry for rest.

There are some that pray by seeking;
 They doubt where their reason fails
 But their mind's despair is the ancient prayer
 To touch the print of the nails.

There are some who pray by knocking;
 They put their strength to the wheel,
 For they have no time for thoughts sublime,
 They can only act what they feel.

Father, give each his answer,
 Each in his kindred way;
 Adapt thy light to his form of night,
 And grant him his needed day.

Nickel Theatre.

FRENZIED FINANCE.

"Frenzied Finance" drew hundreds of ladies and gentlemen to the Nickel Theatre yesterday afternoon and last night. It is a marvelous story with elaborate scenes and swell stage settings. The dance scene is gorgeous and delighted all who had the pleasure of seeing it. The story is one of great merit, and classed among the best ever given at the Nickel. The Manager was warmly complimented on it. Mr. Fleming rendered a pretty illustrated ballad: "When the maid you made your sweetheart, is the maid whose made for you." Mr. Cameron sang one of his most catchy comedies: "Let Her Drown" which made a decided hit. The programme will be repeated this evening, and no one should miss it.

Did He Know How to Spell It.

A few days ago a fire occurred in the stereotyped room of one of Toronto's large printing offices, and after it was out Policeman XX31 came in to make inquiries and write out a report.

"What do you think was the cause of the fire?" he asked.

"Spontaneous combustion," replied the manager.

"We'll put it down as an overheated furnace," said the policeman.

An Operation For Appendicitis

Was Ordered by His Doctor, But Complete Cure Was Effected by Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills.

Almost anyone who has suffered from appendicitis will assure you that the operation is not only a painful one, but a dangerous one, and that it is better to prevent it, and very frequently cured, by the use of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills. In the case described in this letter the doctors had ordered an operation, but a thorough cure was brought about by this great medicine.

Mrs. J. A. Ballantyne, Surgeon Falls, Ont., writes: "My husband was treated for appendicitis, and the doctors ordered an operation. But he would not consent to an operation and began the use of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills. Since doing so he has had no need of an operation, or even of a doctor, as the trouble has completely left him. I cannot find words to speak our gratitude for his cure."

Short Sermons.

The question raised by the late Dean Hole as to the ideal length of a sermon is one on which different people, according perhaps to their religious proclivities, have diverse opinions; but if the preference of Royalty may be taken as a standard, the favorite time appears to be in the region of twenty minutes.

Queen Victoria's objection to long sermons may be understood by the fact that in 1867 she presented a pulpit glass to the Chapel Royal, Savoy, and it was timed for exactly eighteen minutes. The preacher who wished to find favor with Her Majesty, therefore, always took the hint and watched the glass carefully.

King Edward declared for even greater brevity. In the arrangements for his Coronation the sermon by the Bishop of London was allotted five minutes.

Napoleon III. strictly limited preachers before him to a quarter of an hour, and if they exceeded it, an officer of the Imperial Household stepped to the pulpit and stopped the discourse.

Charles II. apparently enjoyed long sermons, and on one occasion slept so soundly under the ministrations of Ken, that, on awakening greatly refreshed, he exclaimed, "Splendid! This man must have a Bishopric," and gave him Bath and Wells when it fell vacant.

John Wesley was a preacher who evidently found it difficult to condense his thoughts in a sermon of twenty minutes' duration.

On one occasion he noticed that some of his hearers were asleep. He at once stopped his sermon and in a loud voice called out, "Fire, fire!" There was an instant commotion, and some one shouted, "Where, sir, where?" "In Hell!" replied Wesley, with deep solemnity, "for those who sleep under the preaching of the Word."

A certain rather "long-winded" clergyman was officiating at Crawley Church, Sussex, when he found, a card printed in large letters placed in the most prominent part of the pulpit, "Be brief." He understood, if the village knew it was going to get out with a ten minutes' talk as an appetizer for Sunday dinner it would listen.

A certain judge, when asked by a Sheriff's chaplain what was the proper length for a sermon, replied, "Well, twenty minutes, with a leaning to the side of mercy." This judicial opinion, having the advantage of Royal approval, seems, therefore, to suggest the recognized standard for the duration of sermons.

Authorities Should Bestir Themselves.

In Codner's Lane there is an aged lady living alone. She is infirm and helpless, in poor circumstances and should be looked after at once. There are also two very old people, a man and his wife, existing in a garret in a structure on Wickford Street. The woman is an invalid, unable to get out of bed, and has been so for years, while the husband is blind. Both are unable to help themselves and the case is one well deserving of charity. The St. Vincent de Paul Society, through Sergt. O'Brien, gave some temporary relief to the poor creatures but only enough to last them for a short while. In the interest of humanity some one should act.

Decision Against Langford.

Boston, Nov. 17.—Gumboat Smith, of California, was given the decision over Sam Langford, of Nova Scotia, at the end of a 12-round bout here to-night.

Smith led clearly during the early rounds of the bout, scoring repeatedly on left jabs to Langford's head and body, while the negro made no serious attempt at defence. But as the bout went on, Smith, the California heavyweight, wearied, and Langford assumed the aggressive, sending his left and right to Smith's body at short range, while the latter swung unsuccessfully at Langford's head. So many and so strong were Langford's blows in the closing rounds that many of the spectators expressed surprise at the decision of the referee, Dick Fleming.

Smith, at the start, jabbed away with his left, supplying nearly all the action. Langford did not seem to be bothered by the long range blows, turning many away without great effort, and standing up under others without defence. Occasionally he interjected a right or left on Smith's body, but not until the seventh round did he make any attempt to maintain the battle. Then Langford started a short range fight which, in the eighth round, resulted in opening Smith's cheek under the left eye.

Smith, by reputation, a strong right-handed fighter, relied on his left jabs throughout. Several attempts to land right swings met with varying success, and the Californian's best efforts in this respect getting only three swings inside Langford's defence in the last four rounds. But his jabs were continuous.

Smith's cheek bled freely as the fight neared the end, the blood getting into his eye, and blinding him. Smith seemed fatigued, and hung on to his opponent, while Langford, although apparently carrying more weight than at any time in his career, appeared stronger. Langford escaped unmarked.

Christmas Spoilers.

These are some of the Spoilers of Christmas, that many a time have turned the day of gladness into a day of gloom. First of all is Self Pity. Five minutes of indulgence in the luxury of feeling sorry for yourself is enough to cloud the whole twenty-four hours. Then come our Rights; on this day wipe out all your Rights, your dues and claims; just live and think for other people, and be content to be neglected; otherwise you cannot understand the Christmas kind of happiness. The Grouch is a vicious Christmas Spoiler; a sulky, sour-faced person (no matter what the provocation), who moves among the happy hearts of the family on this day, as a poison snake among the strawberries. Extravagance spoils any day, and none more than Christmas; for it is not love, but mean pride and self-display that lurks under gifts beyond one's means. The simpler Christmas is kept, the more genuine it is. Finally, to get the best out of this festival, we ought to celebrate it as nearly as possible as the children do, by play and laughter and a whole-hearted enjoyment of existence.—Dr. Frank Crane in December Woman's World.

David H. Tolman, the notorious loan shark known in many American and Canadian cities for his crooked dealings, was convicted and sentenced to six months' imprisonment in New York, on October 9th, for violating the State law against usury. The complainant, a clerk, testified that he had paid interest at the rate of 200 per cent. for over a year for the use of ten dollars for three months. Tolman's nefarious business was broken up in Montreal and Winnipeg, where his depredations were proven to be enormous.

A Trio of Baby Bonds for $299

Here is an opportunity for the man or woman with a few hundreds to take a part in the development of three great industries and at the same time get a pre-eminently safe and relatively profitable investment.

This sample investment includes three of the most popular "Baby" or $100 Bonds, and are the premier securities of a great steel and coal company, a large industrial concern, and a well-known public utility. In each case assets and earnings show a large surplus over the bond issue and interest requirements.

The price is $299 and accrued interest—the latter being refunded in the next interest disbursement. The average yield is 6 3/8— which is relatively high, considering the excellent security afforded. Payment may be made if preferred on our convenient monthly plan.

Marooned Ten Years.

Hudson Bay officials have just received meagre reports from the North that a party of Esquimaux numbering ten persons, were rescued from an island in the mouth of Hudson Bay, upon which they had been marooned for a period of ten years.

The Esquimaux were caught off shore on drift ice and carried after long weeks of hardship to the island. This island has been steadfastly avoided by passing vessels because of reefs and magnetic disturbances. It is over 109 miles off the mainland. The Esquimaux had lived during all the period of their forced stay on fish and seal meat. Several children were born during the decade of their imprisonment and some of the party had died. Those who were rescued seemed to be in good health.

What Should be Brought to the Marriage Relation.

While all persons wish to be loved for themselves alone, there are many who seem to have their power of loving under admirable control. They determine to choose life-partners who have plenty of money. Such people may know a great deal of happiness, though it is not the high kind of happiness such as comes to those who are incapable of the remotest sort of worldly calculation. It is better happiness, at least, than comes to men and women who marry for money solely. If these know happiness at all, it is less than that of the beasts of the field, and only too often they pay a heavy price for their worldly comforts.

What Life Partnership Means.

Yet, in the most disinterested marriage, something more than love has to be considered. A young man, starting to make his way in the world, may not ask for wealth with the girl he loves, but he has a right to expect good health, good habits, and a sound knowledge of housekeeping in all its phases. He is marrying not only the woman he loves but a business partner, from whom he should expect competency. The girl is being loved for, herself alone, but expertness should be part of this self. A young woman, in making her marriage, may not ask for money, but she should expect her husband to have good health and habits, certain work, and some savings. He, too, being loved for himself alone, but he should have too much self-respect to offer a girl any less than a competent self.

To ask this much of a life-partner is not sacrificing love to worldliness. It is merely showing a due consideration to the next generation.—Maude Redford Warren in December Woman's World.

Book Suppressed By the Kaiser.

"So vividly are the horrors of modern warfare depicted in 'The Human Slaughterhouse,' by Wilhelm Lamszus, that the Kaiser, fearful lest Germany's spirit of militarism should be undermined, has prohibited the sale of the book within the Empire," says the Clarion, "and the Crown Prince himself has written and published an antidote in the form of a handsome volume, setting forth in eloquent phrases and glowing pictures the charms of a soldier's life."

"Although Mr. Lamszus's book was suppressed within three months of its date of publication, it has already circulated to the extent of a hundred thousand copies, and is still continuing its career beyond the German boundaries. The author was further reproved by removal from his post, as a master in one of the great German public schools, but he has since been reinstated. Modern conditions, argues Mr. Lamszus, have reduced war to an inhuman conflict between man and machinery, thereby stripping it of its glory and terribly increasing its horror. As a foreword to the English edition puts it, 'the romance and glamour of warfare in the past are grinning lies when transferred to latter-day warfare, where long-drawn fronts of flesh and blood are exposed to machines of precision and the triumphs of the chemical laboratory.' The book takes a soldier, through a campaign."

Useful Hints

FOR THE HOME LAUNDRESS.

A Clean Firebrick.
Used as an iron-stand instead of the usual metal one, will make the iron retain the heat longer.
To Prevent Iron-Mould in the Copper.

Empty the copper before the fire has quite died out. This enables it to become absolutely dry, and removes any possibility of iron-mould.

Laundry Blue.
One pennyworth of Prussian blue mixed with one pennyworth of oxalic acid and dissolved in one pint of water makes an excellent laundry blue which will last for twelve months.

To Remove Egg-Stains Easily.
From table linen, soak in cold water before placing in hot soda and soap.

To Remove Ink-Stains.
Rub with a ripe tomato cut in half before washing, and the stains will have disappeared when the linen has been washed.

Safety-Security.

According to the letter of the President and General Manager of the Company, investors who purchase Nova Scotia Steel & Coal Company 6 per cent. debenture stock are afforded nearly 85 security for every $1 of the money they invest.

This letter states that after making provision for the 5 p.c. first mortgage bonds issued there remain assets to the value of $14,000,000, equal to nearly five times the Debenture Stock issued. These figures reduced to the understanding of investors are equal to the position mentioned in the first sentence of this advertisement.

We offer a block of this debenture stock in lots to suit investors at 98 and interest, yielding over 6 p.c. on the money invested.

When We Teach the Child.

What do we do when we teach the child? We put a thought that is sweet and mild into a mind that is waiting for seed. Into a heart that has never felt greed. The man with such thoughts is never beguiled. For we teach the man when we teach the child.

What do we do when we teach the child? We take the treasures which may be piled in lesson or poem, or Nature's store. And transform them into golden ore. Of character, which cannot be reviled.

The strong comes from the well-taught child. What do we do when we teach the child? We take the nature, untamed and wild. And mould it into a life serene. With heart and will and judgment clean.

We make the man who is undefiled. When we teach, as we ought, the little child.

What do we do when we teach the child? We plant the truth, where the Unfilled. Our Lord and Master, said freedom makes.

Through knowledge, true freedom comes and takes. It's place and dominates passion wild. We have saved the man, when we've saved the child.

More Graft.

New York, Nov. 19.—A former police captain and two other high officers of the police department were named in a statement made in the district attorney's office to-day, by Al Cohen, a former city detective, regarding the wire tapping game. Cohen said he collected money for the police captain from the wire tapping swindlers, and that the captain told him the money was "going higher up."

At the district attorney's office it was said that Cohen had given details of the scheme by which Simon Jones of Pittsburgh, was lured to this city and swindled out of $20,000. Cohen said he was the man who arranged so that things would be all right "down town." District Attorney Whitman ranks Cohen's confession in importance with the disclosure of Patrolman Fox, who gave him the lever by which he pried open the police graft, scandal first brought to public attention by the murder of Herman Rosenthal, the gambler.

Cohen's statement, it is said, corroborates the confession of several principals in the wire tapping swindle who said they had divided their winnings with police officers to gain protection. He gave the names of the men who acted as agents for the swindlers as he was the go-between for the police.

In October, a year ago, Cohen said, the wire tappers planned to inveigle Simon M. Jones, into their scheme. They feared police interference, however, and got Cohen to arrange for protection. The police captain, Cohen said, told him to "go ahead."

Jones came to New York and fell into the trap. The police captain got $1000 as his share of the proceeds, and Cohen said that he himself kept a similar amount.

Cohen promised to repeat his story before the grand jury, and that body is expected to act in a few days.

University Team

Anxious to Meet Our Boys at Hockey.

A hockey team representing the St. Francis Xavier University, are anxious to meet a St. John's team the coming winter. Yesterday Mr. J. Tobin, Secretary of the St. John's Hockey League, had a telegraphic communication from St. Francis College asking what the probabilities were for coming here to play a series of games with a St. John's team. A meeting of the League will be held shortly when the matter will be determined. It is hoped by hockey enthusiasts generally that it will be arranged to have our Canadian friends pay us a visit during the winter season. The St. F. of X. team are an excellent aggregation of hockey-ists, but, no doubt, our local boys will be able to accommodate them to a lively series of matches, or at least will give them a "run for their money" as has been the case with past visiting teams.

It will be remembered that last winter the League endeavoured to get the St. Francis Xavier team here but the negotiations fell through and the Wanderers, of Halifax, came instead.

New Treatment for Eczema.

The treatment of skin diseases, and especially of Eczema and Psoriasis is one that requires the very best remedies that can be had. Modern science has provided such a remedy in Zylex, the result of many years experience with skin diseases. Zylex has the form of an elegant ointment made with such skill as to be absolutely smooth and gritless, which applied to irritated surfaces at once cures its soothing effects in a way that some sufferers from eczema have called marvellous. If you have any skin trouble especially of eczema-like nature, we strongly urge you to try Zylex. Zylex may cure where other remedies have failed—relief it will certainly give. And not alone for eczema and kindred troubles, but for boils, local inflammations, piles, etc., etc. its qualities render it of special value.

Zylex Soap contains in a modified form, many of the virtues of the ointment, and may be used with Zylex in many cases of skin disease. Both may be had from your druggist; the ointment at 5c. a box, the Soap at 25c. a cake. Zylex, London.—nov22, eod.12m

Electric Fish Delays Ship.

A remarkable story was told by the crew of the British freighter Rochelle, which reached port recently by four days late. According to several of the men, the delay was due principally to electric fish, otherwise known as torpedo fish, which were attracted by the steel plates of the vessel and fastened themselves by hundreds against her bottom and sides.

The steamer was in the Gulf Stream, north of Cuba, when she began to slow down. The officers were at a loss to account for the change in the progress of the craft. Several sailors said, they felt a tingling sensation about their feet and fingertips. The steamer was held back strangely. Members of the crew became alarmed.

A sailor looked over the ship's side and saw it was plastered with strange-looking fish. They were two or three thick along the port side under water. The starboard side also was covered, and those on board believe the fish extended to the keel plates.

As the Rochelle moved north and got out of the warm waters of the Stream, the fish dropped off and the vessel immediately resumed her speed.

The Stream That Is Never Crossed.

There's many a sorrow and pain, I know, As we tread the path of life. There's many a grief and lasting woe, And the way is full of strife. But the hardest load we have to bear Is the labor and strength that's lost In building the bridge with toilome care. O'er the stream that is never crossed.

We had fretting and worry from morn till night And anguish weighs on the heart. The thorny way seems hard to right And life is a bitter part. But there is a burden greater yet, Much peace of soul it has cost. It is building a bridge with toil and sweat. O'er the stream that is never crossed.

There's looking for crossings all the day, And searching along the shore, For a bridge or ford along the way We shall never travel o'er. There's sighing for useless toys in vain, And dreaming of chances lost. But 'tis hardest to bridge with might and main The stream that is never crossed.

Then gather the roses along the way And treasure the fragrance rare, Rejoice in the bright and joyous days Refusing to borrow care. For sorrow and pain will surely come And your soul be tried and tossed, But don't be bridging to reach your home. O'er the stream that is never crossed.

Lest We Forget.

Tap, tap, tap—can't you hear it against your window—beating with tattered wings—feebly fluttering—gently calling you?

There's a lost dream out there under the plying stars—a dream born in the simple trust of childhood—once radiant with faith, but now spent and weary with journeying from heart to heart.

Ever so many years ago you, too, sped such a hope-spangled message into the dark. When the first crystal skies broke into diamond dust and silvered hope and mead, your imagination leaped astride a prancing snow-drop and went riding across the hills and over the woods, upon a moon-beam, to Santa Claus and whispered your yearnings into his kind old ears. And sure enough, when you slipped out of bed, and crept downstairs on Christmas morning, there was the tree exactly as you wanted it, and the stocking filled precisely as you expected, with the orange bulging in the toe and the monkey-on-the-stick grinning impudently at the top.

The memory of your first sled is still as vivid as its coat of crimson. You didn't tell him to decorate it, and it was mighty fine of him to put such a beautiful oil painting in the middle. You had taken your mother into your confidence, so she knew every item of the list; and my! but wasn't she surprised to think old Santa Claus, with all the other children in the world to look out for, had remembered you so generously?

The very fact that God guided our hopes to safety should make us so grateful for memories that bring with them the faces and voices of dearly beloved ones asleep under weeping willows and brooding cypresses—that it ought to be a joy to bring happiness in their names.—Herbert Kaufman, in Woman's World for December.

Rough Weather in the Straits.

Captain Carter, of the Earl of Devon, who arrived from Bonne Bay via the Straits of Belle Isle yesterday, reports that the winter has already set in in that territory. The coast from Cape Baud to Bonne Bay is covered with snow of a considerable depth, and most of the inland waters are frozen over and many of them sufficiently strong to bear a horse and sled. In sheltered places harbour ice is forming but the weather has been continually rough the past few weeks and it is broken up by the sea as fast as it freezes. On the whole the weather in the Straits has been the most severe felt during November for many years.

NO INFECTIOUS DISEASE.—No infectious disease has been reported within the city limits during the past three days.

A Keen Creative Brain

Has value far above money alone because such a brain can win not only money, but—what money often fails to win—SUCCESS.

Brains are built—same as other parts of the body—from the food one eats.

The ordinary diet often lacks certain elements essential to the well-balanced nourishment of both body and brain. Especially is this true of white bread flour, which, to make it white, is deprived of valuable mineral salts in the milling process.

Grape-Nuts

made of finest whole wheat and barley, retains the mineral salts (grown in the grain) and other nutritious elements, and thus supplies perfectly what white flour bread lacks.

This lack is often the difference between a weak body and dull, ineffective brains and the strong, keen, creative kind.

Grape-Nuts comes ready to eat direct from package—fresh and clean. Delicious with cream or good milk.

It is a concentrated, easily digested food, and as the cereal part of the usual meal has helped thousands toward a new and successful life.
