The Gatlin 3 Day Liquor Cure

Our Home Treatment.

Have you a husband, father, son, brother, relative or friend who is a victim of the Drink Habit? If so, tell us about it and we will show you how to cure him permanently. We give a written guarantee to remove all desire and craving for liquor entirely from the system in 3 days, no matter how long the subject has been addicted to the drink habit. No hypodermic injection—no bad after effects. Here is an opportunity to save your dear ones from misery and ruin and bring back your old happiness to your home once more.

Any person under the influence of the Drink Habit, whether moderate, periodical or the most difficult case, will be permanently cured by taking The Gatlin Institute Treatment for 3 days. The following is one of the 20,000 cures effected, being case No. 3,922—Male; age 55 years. Lumber merchant. Resident of F. C. Colo. Steady drinker; average one quart per day. Fair physical condition. Entered Institute December 28, 1902; discharged in three days, cured. January 1, 1903, reported had not tasted nor desired liquor since treatment. In perfect physical condition. This is the original and only reliable cure for the Drink Habit in 3 days—all others are imitations. As it is a permanent cure, call to-day, or bring your friend—written guarantee to cure is given each patient.

The Gillette for Shaving Comfort

OLD MOTHER NATURE may have wished on you the worst beard she could pick out—but that needn't bother you, for all beards look alike to the Gillette Safety Razor.

Every Gillette Blade is a masterpiece in razor steel, with edges so keen and smooth that it gives a real velvet shave, no matter how tough and wiry your beard may be.

And just for good measure, with a twist of the screw handle you can adjust the blade for a light or close shave, or a tough or tender skin. This is a special Gillette advantage.

Get a Gillette to-day at your Druggist's, Jeweler's or Hardware Dealer's. Standard Sets cost $5.00—Pocket Editions $5.00 to $6.00—Combination Sets $6.50 up.

MONTREAL

cents that faltered with love and modesty, she told the story of Ralph's avowal in the arbour, her acceptance of his love, and the earl's intervention.

"And Lord Denby"—the court stirred suddenly at the "Lord Denby"—promised to leave the Court in answer to the earl's appeal to him.

"He did," she replied. "He acted nobly, as he always has done and always will do."

There was a sound of applause, and a woman's voice was heard to murmur:

"Ah, she loves him true, does Miss Veronica! 'Tis clear!"

Veronica heard the words, and a deep flush suffused her face; then she looked in the direction of the voice, and a smile, proudly sweet, shone in her beautiful eyes.

"I have another question to ask, Miss Gresham: Were you out on the night of the murder—the night Lord Denby left the Court?"

"I was," she answered, but with a somewhat startled air.

"For what purpose?" he asked, setting his lips as if, though she was Miss Gresham, of Lynne Court, he could not spare her.

The blush stained her face again.

"To see Ralph—Lord Denby," she said, her head still erect, her eyes downcast.

"To see him—why?"

"To tell him that I could not remain at the Court if he went; to—to"—her voice broke for a moment—"to ask him to marry me and take me with him."

Again there was a sound of applause, and the same woman's voice said:

"Ah, there's a brave woman for you! She stood by her man!"

"Silence!" cried the clerk; but Veronica's eyes, went to the woman again.

"You did not see him?" asked Mr. Selby.

"No"—she suppressed a sigh—"he had gone."

"And you left Lynne Court the next morning?"

"I did," said Veronica in a low voice.

"Why?"

"Because I could not go on living a life of ease and luxury while he was fighting the world—I went to find him."

"And you found him—"

"As he was saving a little child from burning at the risk of his life."

A hoarse cheer arose, but was instantly suppressed.

"One question more, and the last," said Mr. Selby, with sudden sternness: "Did you see any one else that night?"

"Yes," answered Veronica, with a questioning look. Why was he asking the question?

"Where?"

"The word came almost sharply.

"Between the west wood and the house."

"Who was it?" asked Mr. Selby, leaning forward, his eyes flashing from her to the bench. Veronica's eyes went towards the chair where Talbot had been sitting.

"Mr. Talbot Denby!"

Mr. Selby bowed to her as a sign that she might leave the box, then he turned swiftly to the bench.

"I call Mr. Talbot Denby!"

The usher repeated the name aloud; it was caught up by the crowd, the policeman at the door shouted it, and it was heard by Talbot himself, who stood in the doorway of the magistrate's entrance. He started and his face went pale and he half turned as if to obey the summons; then, as if impelled by a sudden fear, he turned away again and quickly passed round the corner of the building. The Lynne Court carriage was standing there, and he got in with an affection of weariness.

"To the Court, please," he said to the footman.

No response came to the repeated shoutings of the name, and presently the inspector addressed the bench.

"Mr. Talbot Denby is not to be found, your worships."

"I ask for a remand," said Mr. Selby, swiftly.

Lord Sainsbury inclined his head. As it was given Veronica moved towards the dock, and the crowd sympathetically made way for her. Ralph held down his hands to her and she caught at them.

The Earl's Son;

—OR—

TWO HEARTS UNITED.

CHAPTER XXX.

Unwittingly she let out the name. There was a movement in the crowd, it swayed to and fro, and, as every eye sprang at him as it were, Talbot rose to his feet. His face was white to the lips, but he curved them with an insolent sneer.

"I take it that the girl wrote my name on the paper," he said, slowly, contemptuously. "I will not stoop to deny the accusation. It is not the first time a loose woman has endeavored to shelter herself behind an innocent person."

Fanny's face burst with passionate indignation.

"Does he—does he deny it?" she gasped, as much in amazement as indignation. "He knows it's true. He persuaded me to go with him, he promised me—and I believed him—believed him! Oh, it's the truth!" She turned to Mr. Selby, the bench with clasped hands. "Look at him, look at his face! It was Mr. Talbot Denby who took me away!"

Duchess Wormsick Candy for Children use. Safe and pure.

The crowd surged towards the spot where he stood, and muttered threateningly, for Fanny Mason had been the belle of the locality and many of the young men present had paid court to her. As they looked from her to him they remembered her as a pretty, light-hearted girl; and now—

Ralph stood sternly regarding the scoundrel—his cousin!—then swiftly his eyes went towards Veronica. She read their meaning instantly, and rising quietly went to the witness-box, took the wretched Fanny by the arm and led her out of court.

The earl had sank back and covered his face with his hand. The magistrates gazed straight before them with disgust and indignation plainly expressed on their faces. Talbot Denby looked round for a moment or two then with a scornful, defiant shrug of the shoulders he walked to the private entrance and disappeared.

Some of the people made for the door at the same moment, but a policeman kept them back. There was some noise and confusion, and when the clerk had sternly called for silence the case was resumed.

Burchett was put into the box to prove the finding of the knife; the other evidence for the prosecution was taken, but Mr. Selby seemed to pay little or no attention. He sat with his head resting in his hand, his eyes fixed on the opposite wall as if he were lost in thought, and it was with a start he replied to the question of the bench, "Do you call any witnesses, Mr. Selby?"

"Yes, Miss Veronica Gresham."

The earl started and flushed painfully, the audience drew together and for the moment forgetting Fanny's disclosure and Mr. Talbot Denby turned their eyes upon the witness-box with breathless eagerness.

There was some delay, then Veronica, having passed Fanny over to her mother with fervent beseechings for her forgiveness for the erring girl, entered the court and stepped into the box.

She was pale, but never had she looked more lovely than she did that day when she stood forth in the public eye to bear witness for the man she loved. Her eyes, calm and sweetly serene, swept the court, then rested upon Ralph with a brave, tender smile that brought the tears to the eyes of more than one of the women looking up at her.

Ralph met the look with answering tenderness and love but with something of reproach. He had prayed that this ordeal might be spared her; but now that she had met it his heart to be overrunning with pride and gratitude.

Amidst an intense stillness, Mr. Selby said gently, but in a curiously absent-minded way:

"Miss Gresham, you are aware that the prisoner left the Court suddenly and, as the prosecution state, without sufficient, ordinary reasons. I will not ask you any questions, but let you make your statement unaided. You, with the other witnesses, are sworn to tell the truth, and nothing but the truth."

"Yes," she said in a low, but perfectly distinct voice. Then, in answer to the question of the bench:

"I did," said Veronica in a low voice.

"Why?"

"Because I could not go on living a life of ease and luxury while he was fighting the world—I went to find him."

"And you found him—"

"As he was saving a little child from burning at the risk of his life."

A hoarse cheer arose, but was instantly suppressed.

"One question more, and the last," said Mr. Selby, with sudden sternness: "Did you see any one else that night?"

MRS. WILLIAMS' LONG SICKNESS

Yields To Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Elkhart, Ind.—"I suffered for fourteen years from organic inflammation, female weakness, pain and irregularities. The pains in my sides were increased by walking or standing on my feet and I had such awful bearing down feelings, was depressed in spirits and became thin and pale with dull, heavy eyes. I had six doctors from whom I received only temporary relief. I decided to give Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a fair trial and also the Sanative Wash. I have now used the remedies for four months and cannot express my thanks for what they have done for me.

"If these lines will be of any benefit to you have my permission to publish them."—Mrs. SADIE WILLIAMS, 455 James Street, Elkhart, Indiana.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from native roots and herbs, contains no narcotics or harmful drugs, and to-day holds the record of being the most successful remedy for female ills we know of, and thousands of voluntary testimonials on file in the Pinkham laboratory at Lynn, Mass., seem to prove this fact.

Divorced Life

Regarding the Barrier of Sex

A second time, Marian encountered Meadows, the rich young man, by accident on one of her morning strolls on Riverside Drive. On the third morning, she met him at their favorite bench by appointment.
"Let's take a ride on a motor bus," he proposed on the latter morning, and together they hailed and clamored to the top deck on one of the passing vehicles. The noon-day sun flashed and shimmered on the surfaces of the Hudson. Marian's companion talked of the Riviera, of interesting adventures in odd Italian nooks, of a journey through Provence. As the bus approached a certain famous and exclusive inn on upper Riverside, Meadows proposed luncheon. Like a girl in a pleasant dream, Marian did as she was bidden, and presently they were seated at an open window at a quaint little table, amid superb surroundings. The host ordered a wine so light and exquisite that it passed Marian's lips without protest.
"How do you like it?" demanded Meadows, sweeping the place with his eyes.
"It's the most beautiful eating place I've ever been in," admitted Marian. "But you shouldn't have done this," she added hesitantly. "You shouldn't have gone to all this trouble."
"I was hoping you wouldn't say that," was the grave reply. "I understand, of course, that no woman ever trumps a man. From unpleasant experiences she knows better. Yet, there are exceptions to the general rule that the barrier of sex doesn't jibe with trusting or being trusted."
"I didn't mean that—exactly," put in Marian.
"But it applies almost universally," added Meadows. "Every woman feels a subconscious distrust of every man—particularly every stranger. I don't say that men haven't earned the distrust. They have exploited and taken advantage of women for a good many hundreds of years. It's too bad. But it's a fact, and will probably continue to be a fact until we..."

In Memoriam.

William Lewis, an old and respectable resident, died at Holyrood on Wednesday evening last. Deceased, who was a strong and robust man, had enjoyed the best of health up to a year ago, when he began to fall visibly. Having consulted Dr. Jones the disease—cancer of the stomach—gave such alarming symptoms that the patient was pronounced incurable. He bore his sickness with true Christian resignation, and was often visited, comforted, and fortified with the rites of Holy Church by the pastor, Father Finn. He was a staunch member of the Star of the Sea Association, who paid the last tribute of respect to their dear departed brother by marching in procession at his funeral and assisting at his funeral Mass. The mournful procession was in charge of Undertaker Dunphy, and wended its way slowly from the home of the deceased to the Church of Holy Cross, when Requiem Mass was sung by Fr. Shean, thence to the Central Cemetery, where the remains were reverently laid to rest in the midst of sorrowing friends and sympathizers. The deceased leaves a widow, one son, the well-known and successful banking master, Capt. J. F. Lewis, three daughters, Mrs. Cantwell, Torbay; Mrs. Cranley, South Side, and Mrs. R. Mulowney, Grand Bank, to all of whom we tender our sincere sympathy. Requiescat in Pace.—Com.

The annual report of the Imperial Cancer Research Fund just published in London, shows that the investigations and experiments made during the year did not reveal any cure other than the early surgical removal of a cancer. The report also deals with special investigations of the belief that there were such places as "cancer houses" and "cancer areas." Five of the best known instances of "cancer houses" had been investigated. The results of the inquiries are set forth in detail and show that the belief is groundless. The report refers to the so-called question of animal cancer cages and says of both: "Cancer cages" in the sense that animals housed therein become infected are a myth. Contact with animals which are suffering from natural or inoculated cancer does not increase the liability of the development of the disease.

The Monkey.

By GEORGE FITCH.

Author of "At Good Old Swash." According to Charles Darwin, who once made a very careful investigation of the heirlooms of humanity, the monkey is the ancestor of man.

If this is true it is a sad thought for those whose greatest pride is to trace their ancestry into the dim uncharted past. For the monkey is no great shakes as a citizen.

It is a miniature edition of a man with various improvements as far as appendages go. The monkey's toes are more useful than man's and he is also equipped with a versatile and intelligent tail by which he can hang from the highest limb while picking fruit with both hands and feet. If the bad boys of to day were supplied with a monkey's appendages, they would make the orchards of America a howling waste in three days.

The monkey has a full beard on all parts of his body and a small, bald face, which consists mostly of jaw. Nature only provided the monkey with room under his forehead for a teaspoonful of brains and she used inferior and added goods for filling it.

The monkey is very quick and bright at imitation, and can be taught a large variety of astounding and useless tricks, such as wearing a plug hat and a dress suit, smoking a pipe, and drinking champagne, and eating ice cream with a fork. A monkey can take a watch or other mechanism to pieces as cleverly as a man. But when he attempts to put the pieces together again his full defects are exhibited.

The trouble with a monkey is the fact that he has no memory. If he could remember what he learned yesterday, he would be equal to some grades of humanity and might stand a chance in this hustling world. But he forgets as quickly as he learns, and for this reason civilization is slowly pushing him into the umbrageous regions of oblivion.

In fact the monkey has no better memory than the American voter, who one year throws the rascals out, with tremendous unctious and much-prayerful thanksgiving and the next year votes them in again with a glad hurrah. We cannot use the monkey in the arts and sciences, but in some sections of our great cities he might safely be entrusted with the divine right of suffrage without impairing the result in any degree.

25,000 GERMAN CASUALTIES.—GERMANS ASKS BELGIANS FOR ARMISTICE TO BURY THEIR DEAD.

Special to Evening Telegram. The siege of Liege is the outstanding feature of the European war. The latest advices received by way of London from official despatches say Liege still holds out against attacks of Germans. The Germans have asked for a twenty-four hours' armistice to bury their dead. On the authority of the Belgian War Minister, the German casualties in the battle around Liege number 25,000, according to their own admission. An official statement issued from Berlin described the unsuccessful assault by Germans on the Liege fortress, as "a unique act of heroism," and that it will have not the slightest influence on the larger operations of the German army. German diplomats have been using their utmost efforts to win Italy to the German side by negotiating a direct appeal to King Victor Emmanuel but without success. The Italian Ambassador, London, in thanking a great assembly, including several peers and members of Parliament, which gathered in front of the Embassy, said Italy had declared neutrality and would adhere to it. Winston Churchill, the First Lord of the Admiralty, denied there had been any engagement between the German and British fleets in the North Sea.

The Flag!

This verse was written some time ago for a Naval Reservist of this city, who has a chum serving in the Far East.

I'm sorry, Bill, that you are not this season on our station, But, then, 'tis true our boys in blue now circle half creation. Beneath the grand old Union Jack with hearts all foes defying, They stand today in brave array to keep that flag a-flying. So here's to you, tho' far away, my heart goes out to greet you, And 'till the glad day I'll reach 'till the glad day I'll meet you. The same old flag floats o'er us both in glory still undying. And, I, upon my native shore, And you in far off Singapore, Must keep it still a-flying!

QUEEN HELENA RETURNS TO QUIRINAL. ROME, To-day. The statement attributed to King Emmanuel in reply to insistence of representatives of Germany and Austria-Hungary, who continually urged the King in order to obtain active co-operation of Italy to place two Teutonic Empires, roused much discussion in political circles here. The King of Italy is said to have burst out with the exclamation: "Neither friendship for my allies nor offers made them no matter how advantageous, will persuade me to sell my honor and that of my country." Queen Helena with her children returned to Quirinal to-day, as Her Majesty desired not to be far away from the King during the present grave situation said: "My place in case of danger is beside my husband."

MONTREAL TO SEND 4,500 MEN. MONTREAL, To-day. Montreal has been asked by the Minister of Militia to send about 4,500 men to the front, three thousand infantry and fifteen hundred cavalry, probably between 300 and 400, needed. In addition there will be various branches in the service to bring up the total. The official figures were: Highlanders, 1,000; Victoria Rifles, 500; Grenadiers, 500; 65th and 6th, 1,000. Immediately after the call came this morning rolls were opened and enlistment of volunteers begun. There was a big rush to-night as men were anxious to enlist in the Grenadier Guards. It is understood whole regiment will volunteer. Colonel Carson is notified to remain in Canada as member of local defense staff. Colonel Meighen will command unit and Major Dodds will go with first battalion of Montreal regiment. The Queen's Own Rifles have offered a detachment of about 40 senior non-commissioned officers and cadets for patrol duty in and around the city, or in whatever capacity chief military officers may see fit to employ them.

ASQUITH'S GREAT SPEECH Announcing War!

Government Will Add to the Army 500,000 Men, and Ask for War Credit of Five Hundred Million Dollars.

Telegram from Secretary of State for the Colonies. (Received 7 August, 1914).

To Governor, St. John's. The following is a summary of the Speech delivered by the Right Honourable the Prime Minister in the House of Commons in proposing the vote of one hundred million pounds sterling for measures for securing the safety of the country, the conduct of naval and military operations, assisting the food supply, promoting the continuance of trade and industry, protecting of business communications and providing for expenses arising out of the existence of war conditions.

After referring to the strenuous and persistent efforts which have been made to secure the peace, Mr. Asquith laid particular stress on the communications made by the German Chancellor on July 29th, in which the latter offered in return for British neutrality to undertake that Germany would not endeavour to acquire territory in Europe at the expense of France, but in which he declined to give similar assurances with regard to French possessions outside Europe. He also offered to preserve the neutrality of Holland but only promised to respect the integrity of Belgium when the war was over. The Chancellor observed that English neutrality in the present crisis might form the basis of a future understanding. This proposal in effect meant Great Britain's assent behind the back of France to the annexation by Germany of the whole of the French external European possessions and the withdrawal of British obligations with regard to the neutrality of Belgium.

The House had read the pathetic appeal of the King of Belgium, and now when the Belgians were fighting for their lives, what would the position of Great Britain have been, if she had been an assenting party to those infamous proposals, and what return would have been made for the betrayal of friends and the dishonourable repudiation of obligations? Nothing but a promise given by a Power which at the very moment was announcing its intention of violating its Treaty obligations and inviting us to do the same. If the Government had temporized they would have covered themselves with dishonour, and would have betrayed the interests of the country of which they were trustees. The Prime Minister referred to the offer of the British Government that, if peace could be preserved and the crisis passed, she would promote some arrangement to which Germany could be a party and by which that nation could be assured that no aggressive or hostile policy would be pursued against her or her allies by Great Britain, France and Russia jointly or separately. The earnestness and sincerity of this offer is obvious. In spite of great provocation His Majesty's Government had persisted to the very last moment in efforts for peace, and war had been forced upon them. They had thought it their duty to go to war because they believed and the country believed that the cause was just. Great Britain was fighting in the first place to fulfill a solemn international obligation which in private life would have been regarded as an obligation not only of law but of honour, and secondly to vindicate the principle that small Nationalities were not to be crushed in defiance of international good faith by the arbitrary will of a strong and overmastering Power.

No Nation ever entered into a great conviction that it was fighting, not for stronger conviction that it was fighting, not for aggression, not for the maintenance of its own selfish interests, but in the defence of principles, the maintenance of which were vital to the civilisation of the whole world. It was essential that all the resources of the Empire should be thrown into the scale and for that purpose he asked for a vote of credit for one million pounds and he announced the decision of the Government forthwith to add 500,000 men to the Army. The Government was encouraged to do this without previous Parliamentary sanction by their sense of the necessity of the situation, added to the knowledge that India was prepared to send certainly two divisions and that every one of the self-governing Dominions, spontaneously and unasked, had already tendered to the utmost limits of their possibilities, both in men and money, every help they could afford to the Empire in its moment of need.

Wedding Bells.

McNAMARA-O'NEILL. The Chapel of Our Lady of Good Counsel, Cathedral Square, was the scene of a very pretty wedding a day or two ago when Miss Margaret O'Neill and Mr. Joseph McNamara were united in the bonds of matrimony by the Rt. Rev. Mons. Roche, V.G. The bride was given away by her brother, Mr. T. H. O'Neill and looked charming in a costume of embroidered French voile with black hat, and carried a bouquet of white roses and lilies. The bridesmaid was Miss Bride Winnicomb, who was handsomely dressed in pale blue silk with hat to match. The groom was supported by Mr. T. Bates. The groom's present to the bride was a gold bracelet and to the bridesmaid a diamond ring. The Telegram extends its congratulations.

PROCLAMATION!

His Excellency the Governor in Council has been pleased to direct that the following Order in Council of His Majesty the King in Council, with reference to the application to this Colony of the procedure respecting the treatment of neutral and enemy merchant ships in time of war, shall come into effect on the date hereof.

JOHN R. BENNETT,
Colonial Secretary,
Dept. of the Colonial Secretary, 4th August, 1914.

AT THE COURT OF BUCKINGHAM PALACE, THE 4TH DAY OF AUGUST, 1914.

His Majesty being mindful, now that a state of war exists, between this country and Germany, of the recognition accorded to the practice of granting "days of grace" to enemy merchant ships by the Convention relative to the Status of Enemy Merchant Ships at the Outbreak of Hostilities, signed at The Hague, on the 18th October, 1907, and being desirous of lessening, so far as may be practicable, the injury caused by war to peaceful and unsuspecting commerce, is pleased, by and with the advice of his Privy Council, to order, and it is hereby ordered, as follows:—

1. From and after the publication of this Order no enemy merchant ship shall be allowed to depart, except in accordance with the provisions of this Order, from any British port or from any ports in any Native State in India, or in any of His Majesty's protectorates, or in any State under His Majesty's protection or in Cyprus.

2. In the event of information reaching one of our Principal Secretaries of State not later than midnight on Friday, the Seventh day of August, that the treatment accorded to British merchant ships and their cargoes which at the date of the outbreak of hostilities were in the ports of the enemy, or which subsequently entered them, is, in his opinion, not less favorable than the treatment accorded to enemy Merchant Ships by Articles 3 to 7 of this Order, he shall notify the Lords Commissioners of the Treasury and the Lords Commissioners of the Admiralty accordingly, and the Lords Commissioners of the Treasury shall forthwith give public notice thereof in the "Gazette" and Articles 3 to 8 of this Order shall thereupon come into full force and effect.

3. Subject to the provisions of this Order, enemy merchant ships which—
 (i) At the date of the outbreak of hostilities were in any port in which this Order applies; or
 (ii) Cleared from their last port before the declaration of war, and, after the outbreak of hostilities, enter a port to which this Order applies, with no knowledge of the war; shall be allowed up till midnight (Greenwich mean time), on Friday, the 14th of August, for loading or unloading their cargoes, and for departing from such port:

PROVIDED that such vessels shall not be allowed to ship any contraband of war, and any contraband of war already shipped on such vessels must be discharged.

4. Enemy merchant ships which cleared from their last port before the declaration of war, and which with no knowledge of the war arrive at a port to which this Order applies after the expiry of the time allowed by Article 3 for loading or unloading cargo and for departing, and are permitted to enter, may be required to depart either immediately, or within such time as may be considered necessary by the Customs Officer of the port for the unloading of such cargo as they may be required or specially permitted to discharge.

PROVIDED that such vessels may, as a condition of being allowed to discharge cargo, be required to proceed to any other specified British port, and shall there be allowed such time for discharge as the Customs Officer of that port may consider necessary.

PROVIDED, also, that, if any cargo on board such vessel is contraband of war or is requisitioned under Article 5 of this Order, she may be required before departure to discharge such cargo within such time as the Customs Officer of the port may consider to be necessary; or she may be required to proceed, if necessary under escort, to any other of the ports specified in Article 1 of this Order, and shall there discharge the contraband under the like conditions.

5. His Majesty reserves the right recognized by the said Convention to requisition at any time subject to payment of compensation, enemy cargo on board any vessel to which Articles 3 and 4 of this Order apply.

6. The privileges accorded by Articles 3 and 4 are not to extend to cable ships or to sea-going ships designed to carry oil fuel, or to ships whose tonnage exceeds 5,000 tons gross, or whose speed is 14 knots or over, regarding which the entries in Lloyd's Register shall be conclusive for the purposes of this Article. Such vessels will remain liable on adjudication by the Prize Court to detention during the period of the war, or to requisition, in accordance, in either case, with the Convention aforesaid. The said privileges will also not extend to merchant ships which show by their build that they are intended for conversion into warships, as such vessels are outside the scope of the said Convention, and are liable on adjudication by the Prize Court to condemnation as prize.

7. Enemy merchant ships allowed to depart under Articles 3 and 4 will be provided with a pass indicating the port to which they are to proceed, and the route they are to follow.

8. A merchant ship which, after receipt of such a pass, does not follow the course indicated therein, will be liable to capture.

9. If no information reaches one of His Majesty's Principal Secretaries of State by the day and hour aforementioned to the effect that the treatment accorded to British merchant ships and their cargoes which were in the ports of the enemy at the date of the outbreak of hostilities, or which subsequently entered them, is, in his opinion, not less favourable than that accorded to enemy merchant ships by Articles 3 to 8 of this Order, every enemy merchant ship which, on the outbreak of hostilities, was in any port to which this Order applies, and also every enemy merchant ship which cleared from its last port before the declaration of war, but which, with no knowledge of the war, enters a port to which this Order applies, shall, together with the cargo on board thereof, be liable to capture, and shall be brought before the Prize Court forthwith for adjudication.

10. In the event of information reaching one of His Majesty's Principal Secretaries of State that British merchant ships which cleared from their last port before the declaration of war, but are met with by the enemy at sea after the outbreak of hostilities, are allowed to continue their voyage without interference with either the ship or the cargo, or after capture are released with or without proceedings for adjudication in the Prize Court (or are to be detained during the war or requisitioned in lieu of condemnation as prize), he shall notify the Lords Commissioners of the Admiralty accordingly, and shall publish a notification thereof in the "Gazette," and in that event, but not otherwise, enemy merchant ships which cleared from their last port before the declaration of war, and are captured after the outbreak of hostilities and brought before the Prize Courts for adjudication, shall be released (or detained or requisitioned), in such cases and upon such terms as may be directed in the said notification in the "Gazette."

11. Neutral cargo, other than contraband of war, on board an enemy merchant ship which is not allowed to depart from a port to which this Order applies, shall be released.

12. In accordance with the provisions of Chapter III of the Convention relative to certain restrictions on the Exercise of the Right of Capture in Maritime War, signed at The Hague on the 18th October, 1907, an undertaking must, whether the merchant ship is allowed to depart or not, be given in writing by each of the officers and members of the crew of such vessel, who is of enemy nationality, that he will not, after the conclusion of the voyage for which the pass is issued, engage while hostilities last in any service connected with the operation of the war. If any such officer is of neutral nationality, an undertaking must be given in writing that he will not serve, after the conclusion of the voyage for which the pass is issued, on any enemy ship while hostilities last. No undertaking is to be required from members of the crew who are of neutral nationality.

Officers or members of the crew declining to give the undertakings, required by this Article will be detained as prisoners of war.

And the Lords Commissioners of the Treasury, the Lords Commissioners of the Admiralty, and each of His Majesty's Principal Secretaries of State, and all Governors, Officers, and authorities whom it may concern are to give the necessary directions here-in as to them may respectively appertain.

PROCLAMATION.
 By His Excellency Sir Walter Edward Davidson, Knight Commander of the Most Distinguished Order of St. Michael and St. George, Governor and Commander-in-Chief, in and over the Island of Newfoundland and its Dependencies.

WHEREAS, by the 25th Section of "The Customs Act, 1898," it is enacted that the Governor in Council may prohibit the exportation or carriage coastwise of the following goods:—

 Arms, ammunition and gunpowder, military and naval stores and any articles which He, by and with the advice aforesaid, deems capable of being converted into or made useful in increasing the quantity of military or naval stores, or for purposes of hostility, or any sort of victual which may be used as food by man:

AND WHEREAS I, by and with the advice of my Council, deem it expedient and necessary that I should exercise such power of prohibition in manner hereinafter appearing:

Now, therefore, I by and with the advice aforesaid, do hereby order and direct that from and after the date hereof the following goods, being articles which I have judged capable of being converted into or made useful in increasing the quantity of military or naval stores, that is to say:—

Acetone;

 Projectiles of all kinds and their component parts;
 Sacks, coal;
 Silk-cloth, silk-brad, silk-thread, suitable for cartridges;
 Silk noils;
 Surgical dressings and bandages;
 Toluol;
 Zinc;

shall be, and the same are hereby prohibited either to be exported from the Colony or carried coastwise.

Given under my Hand and Seal, at the Government House, St. John's, this 5th day of August, A.D. 1914.

By His Excellency's Command,
JOHN R. BENNETT,
Colonial Secretary.

The Cheerful Promiser.

By RUTH CAMERON.

There were some things about him that were not to be expected. He was a kind and generous man, and his promises were not of the usual kind. He was a cheerfulness that was not of the usual kind. He was a cheerfulness that was not of the usual kind.

usual and there are really none to spare. And then, since his generous impulses had so little solid ground of real unselfishness to grow in, they are likely to wither and dry up without bearing any fruit.

When I was much younger, before I learned to recognize the type of the Cheerful Promiser, and to be careful not to build my hopes upon his promises, I was frequently his victim.

Doesn't the intention of fulfilling a promise like this count for anything you ask?

Yes, it removes the stigma of deliberate cruelty from the act, but it doesn't take away the stigma of selfishness.

Generous promises carelessly made and carelessly left unfulfilled are just one more form of the good intentions whose function every one knows so well.

Household Notes.

A bare room splinters matting easily. If you have no long-handled soft brush, make a gray canton flannel covering for the top of the broom.

To kill the worms around the root of a rose, pour a mixture of a teaspoonful of ammonia to a cup of water around the stalk, but not on it.

After exposure to poison ivy, the ill effects can be warded off by vigorously washing with soap and water. Use a hand brush. After this wash with alcohol.

To test bread dough and to make sure it has risen sufficiently for baking, press the finger on the dough. If the hole remains the dough is in proper condition.

To test a broom press the edge against the floor. If the straws remain in a solid mass, the broom is a good one; if they bristle out and bend down, it isn't.

A teaspoonful of dry mustard rubbed into the hands, after preparing onions or fish, will remove the odor completely. It should be rubbed in as if it were soap.

A thin coat of potash left on the sink overnight once a week will remove the ugly stains that will not yield to kerosene. It should be applied with care, as it is poisonous.

Solled and finger-marked bird's-eye maple can be cleaned by washing with a soft rag and lukewarm water to which a little kerosene has been added. Rub dry quickly and polish with a soft cloth.

A piece of art gum will clean white leather girdles. A gentle rubbing will remove all spots that come from rubbing against objects in the hand or on the outside.

Rusty fatigons can be cleaned by covering the rusty parts with sweet oil and powdered quick lime and allowing them to stand a few days, then washing them with hot water and plenty of sal soda.

In broiling steak or chops the fire sometimes dies down too quickly. When this happens sprinkle a little granulated sugar over the coals. This intensifies the heat and the smoke from the sugar imparts a delicious flavor to the meat.

When cleaning white shoes the first thing to do is to clean off dust and clay by means of a hand-scrub dipped in water and a fine white soap. Let the shoes dry before applying any cleaner, sometimes the scrubbing is all that is necessary.

A good method of keeping butter from turning rancid in hot weather is to put it in brine. Take a jar and put water in, then add salt until you have a brine strong enough to float a potato. Put the butter in the jar, cover, and keep in a cool place.

When watering plants be careful not to water them too frequently; this will cause the soil to become waterlogged and the plants will die. A way to test the soil is to rap the side of the pot. If it rings clear the soil is dry, if it sounds dull do not moisten.

In washing chintz, wheat bran will be found more satisfactory than soap. Tie a quart of bran in a piece of cheesecloth and use this for rubbing on the material as one would soap. Do not use too hot water and rinse and blue as one would if washed in the usual way.

What War in Europe Will Mean to United States

(The Sun, New York.)

If Europe is going to plunge into war on any tremendous scale, here is something for Americans to remember at the very beginning. This country is in practically every respect in better shape than any other to meet the shock and stand the strain of such a conflict.

As an argument for peace the expense of war serves its purpose until the clash of arms comes, but if Europe is going to break the peace which it has maintained with so much extravagant waste of wealth on armament there is bound to be a painful realization of the awful price at which such a war is waged. A European war of any consequence will inflict damage outside of Europe.

The greater the conflict up to the dimensions of the incomprehensible struggle which suddenly loomed into prospect last week, the greater the damage which will be wrought. It is going to cost the Old World fearfully in men and money, and all the nations of the earth will be called upon to help pay the price. Quite apart from the diversion of funds to the uses of war, all the ordinary processes of international finance and commerce will be thrown into derangement and the dislocation will be reflected in the field of domestic enterprise.

It is just as well to face these facts at once. The business and banking community will be better prepared thereby to deal with the situation if the present European crisis has the worst possible issue. There are offsetting considerations which must qualify apprehension, and their effect will not be diminished but increased if there is no attempt to minimize the awful gravity of foreign contingencies by assuming that they constitute Europe's quarrel, with which the rest of the world has little concern.

Both in its present and in its future aspects as nearly as they can be discerned now, Americans will have every reason based on the position of the United States, economically and otherwise, and every inducement of self-interest for refraining from an alarm which can only help to aggravate the immediate strain. Men who have in their hands the direction of the country's affairs of finance, business and government will most assuredly do all in their power to mitigate the severity of any shock communicated here from the European contest.

"Catarrhzone" Prevents Bad Colds Strengthens Weak Irritable Throats.

Employs Nature's own Methods and is Invariably Successful.

Few will escape a cold this winter, but alas! many colds run into Catarrh.

Neglected Catarrh is the straight gateway to consumption.

Catarrhzone is a germ-killer—destroys microbes that cause Catarrh.

It heals and soothes, relieves the cough, gives throat and lungs a chance, cleanses the nostrils, clears out the phlegm.

You feel better in an hour.

In a day you're greatly relieved, and on goes the curing of Catarrhzone till you're well.

THE FORTS STILL STAND. Special to Evening Telegram.

LIEGE, Aug. 7. The tenth German army corps reinforced by cavalry attacked Liege last night, and crossed a stream which had been mined, and the mines being exploded by the Belgians, a whole battalion of Germans were killed, while 1,200 wounded were picked up. Not a single fort has fallen into the hands of the Germans.

Several howitzers have been placed in position near Herve and large German forces are lying in wait on the other side of the frontier. At attack on the village of Cornesse was repulsed by the Belgians. Six Germans pretending to be Englishmen made their way to the Governor's office this morning; they were killed.

JAPAN IS READY. TOKIO, Aug. 7. Reserve army officers have been instructed to hold themselves in readiness for possible mobilization. A flying squadron of seven cruisers has been organized at Yokohama with Prince Fushimi in command. A battleship squadron of eight vessels is ready for service under command of Admiral Cato. Reliable reports received here state the German squadron is bottled up at Tsing Tau by the British.

IN THE ADRIATIC. BRINDISI, Italy, Aug. 6. The first naval battle occurred in the Adriatic to-day, between the Austrian cruiser Tauris and a flotilla of British torpedo destroyers. The Tauris was crippled and put in here to escape pursuit. She is leaking badly.

SAILED FOR HONG KONG. YOKOHAMA, To-day. The C.P.R. steamer Empress of Japan, under charter to the British Government, sailed from Yokohama to-day for Hong Kong, conveyed by a Japanese warship.

THE RECKLESS KAISER. BERLIN, Aug. 6. The German Emperor issued an order to his army and navy, which says: "After forty-three years of peace, I call upon all Germans capable of bearing arms. We have to defend our most sacred possessions of fatherland and home against the reckless assault of enemies on all sides of us. That means hard fighting. I am confident the ancient warlike spirit still lives in the German people, a powerful warlike spirit which attacks the enemy wherever it finds him, regardless of cost, which has been the dread and terror of our enemies. I have confidence in you German soldiers. All of you have ardent, indomitable wills for victory living in each and all of you, and I know if needed each and all of you will die like heroes. Remember our great and glorious past and that you are Germans. God bless you."

LIEGE STILL HOLDS OUT. BRUSSELS, Aug. 7. Liege still holds out against German assault.

HEARTS OF OAK.

Come, cheer up, my lads, 'tis to glory we steer,
To do something more to this wonderful year.
To honour we call you, not press you like slaves,
For who are so free as the sons of the waves?
Hearts of oak are our ships, hearts of oak are our men,
We always are ready,
Steady, boys, steady,
We'll fight and we'll conquer again and again.

We never see our foes but we wish them to stay,
They never see us but they wish us away;
If they run, why we follow, and run them ashore,
For if they won't fight us, we cannot do more.

Still Britain shall triumph, her ships plough the sea,
Her standard be Justice, her watchword "be free";
Then, cheer up, my lads, with one heart let us sing,
Our soldiers, our sailors, our statesmen, our King.

Hearts of oak are our ships, hearts of oak are our men,
We always are ready,
Steady, boys, steady,
We'll fight and we'll conquer again and again.

PROVIDENCE WATCHES OUR SAILORS.

Go patter to tubbers and swabs, d'ye see,
'Bout danger, and fear, and the like;
A tight-water boat and a good sea-room give me,
And it ain't to a little I'll strike.
Though the tempest top-gallant masts smack smooth should smite,
And shiver each splinter of wood,
Clear the wreck, stow the yards, and hoize everything tight,
And under reef'd foresail we'll scud;
Avast! nor don't think me a milkop so soft.
To be taken for trifles aback;
For, they say, there's a Providence sits up aloft,
To keep watch for the life of Poor Jack.

Blake, the Pioneer of Our Naval Greatness

He was the first man that declined the old track, and made it manifest that the science might be attained in less time than was imagined, and despised those rules which had been long in practice, to keep his ship and men out of danger which had been held in former times a point of great ability and circumspection, as if the principal art requisite in the captain of a ship had been to be sure to come home safe again. He was the first man who brought the ships to content castles on shore, which had been thought ever very formidable, and were discovered by him to make a noise only, and to fright those who could rarely be hurt by them.
He was the first that infused that proportion of courage into the seamen by making them see by experience what mighty things they could do if they were resolved, and taught them to fight in fire as well as in water; and though he hath been very well imitated and followed, he was the first that gave the example of that kind of naval courage, and bold and resolute achievements.

What We "Gain" by a Long War.

(From Sydney Smith's "Essays.")
Taxes upon every article which enters into the mouth, or covers the back, or is placed under the foot—taxes upon everything which it is pleasant to see, hear, feel, smell, or taste; taxes upon warmth, light, and locomotion; taxes on everything on earth, and the waters under the earth, on everything that comes from abroad, or is grown at home; taxes upon the raw material; taxes on every fresh value that is added to it by the industry of man; taxes on the sauce which pampers man's appetite, and the drug which restores him to health, on the ermine which decorates the judge, and the rope which hangs the criminal; on the poor man's salt, and the rich man's spices; on the brass nails of the coffin, and the ribbands of the bride; at bed or board, couchant or levant, we must pay. The schoolboy whips his taxed top, the beardless youth manages his taxed horse, with a taxed bridle on a taxed road; and the dying Englishman, pouring his medicine, which has paid 7 per cent., into a spoon that has paid 15 per cent., flings himself back upon his chintz bed, which has paid 22 per cent., and expires in the arms of an apothecary who has paid the license of a hundred pounds for the

BEFORE THE BATTLE.

O Gentlemen, the time of life is short!
To spend that shortness basely were too long.
If life did ride upon a dial's point,
Still ending at the arrival of an hour.
An' if we live, we live to tread on kings;
If we die, brave death, when princes ride with us!
Now, for our consciences, the arms are fair,
When the intent of bearing them is just.
I thank him that he cuts me from my tale,
For I profess not talking; only this—
Let each man do his best: and here draw I
A sword, whose temper I intend to stain
With the best blood that I can meet withal.
In the adventure of this perilous day,
Now, Esperance! Percy! and set on,
Sound all the lofty instruments of war!
And by that music let us all embrace,
For, heaven to earth, some of us never shall
A second time do such a courtesy.
—Hotspur in "Henry IV."

A FAMOUS VICTORY.

(Battle of Blenheim, 1704.)
"My father lived at Blenheim then,
You little stream hard by;
They burnt his dwelling to the ground,
And he was forced to fly;
So with his wife and child he fled,
Nor had he where to rest his head.
With fire and sword the country round
Was wasted far and wide,
And many a chiding mother then,
Said little Wilhelmine:
But things like that, you know, must be
After a famous victory.
"Great praise the Duke of Marlbro' won,
And our good Prince Eugene,"
"Why, 'twas a very wicked thing,"
Said little Wilhelmine:
"Nay, nay, my little girl," quoth he,
"It was a famous victory.
"And everybody praised the Duke,
Who this great fight did win."
"But what good came of it at last?"
Quoth little Peterkin.
"Why, that I cannot tell," said he,
"But 'twas a famous victory."
—Southey.

We all Need a Rest.

A change of some sort! That is the very first thing to plan for. Every one of us needs a change, and every one of us must have it somehow. That much is settled. Count over your pennies. Have you enough to get away for even a little while? If so do not think twice about it. I cannot tell you where to go, because you all live in such different parts of the country, and have such different needs; but I do advise you with all my heart to spend the money and go. When I was just a growing girl I was always emptying my iron money-bank to buy a book or a picture or a trip to the hills or the shore. This gave my dear little Aunt Matilda some concern, and the idea that I was growing rather extravagant. But my Uncle Ezra once said, "No, she is not extravagant. Alice just has her own way of spending money, that is all. She comes home with a second-hand book, maybe, or a bunch of field daisies, perhaps, instead of a bargain in shirtings or ribbons; and that is all she can show for her money; but you cannot see the air castles and dreams, and the blue sky and sunshine and fields, and a hundred other things that that money has bought her."
I always loved my Uncle Ezra for that.
Do not deny yourself a much-needed summer outing so that you may rejoice in a little larger savings account. I have known as well as any of you the necessity for hoarding pennies. I know it is a real duty at times; and I have not failed of the duty. But I think we often save at far too great a cost.
I would not make spendthrifts of you for the world! But I do not believe there is danger of any of us becoming that. Most of us are more likely to regret, in our old age, not having spent money for the best and most beautiful things of life than we are likely to regret having so spent it. Rested nerves, renewed health, recovered ideals, a new and brighter view of life, sound sleep and wholesome thoughts—these things are cheap at nearly any price.

Still Britain shall triumph, her ships plough the sea,
Her standard be Justice, her watchword "Be Free";
Then, cheer up, my lads, with one heart let us sing,
Our soldiers, our sailors, our statesmen, our King.
Hearts of oak are our ship, hearts of oak are our men,
We always are ready,
Steady, boys, steady,
We'll fight and we'll conquer again and again.
—David Garrick.

Isaac Walton.

Born 9th August, 1593.
Walton was born at Stafford, in the year 1593; his father, Jervis, seems to have been a yeoman. In the current of Izaak's easy-flowing life, it is only at intervals that we find any record of his upbringing little or nothing is known; but it is probable that he was apprenticed to a relation in London, who was a mercer or draper. In 1624, as shown by a deed of that date, he was joint occupier with John Mason, a hosier, of a house on the north side of Fleet Street, near Chancery Lane. Upon this evidence it has been generally held that he was a shopman trading on no large scale; but there was a family tradition, John Major says, that he was a wholesale linen-draper and Hamburg merchant. The character of his acquaintance and connections rather supports the more generous theory. In 1629 he married Rachel Flood, a descendant of Archbishop Cranmer. George Cranmer, his wife's uncle, had been the pupil of Richard Hooker, and it is probable that from him Walton obtained the facts for the Life of Hooker, which was published in 1667. Rachel dying in 1640, the widower some seven years later, married Anne Ken, half-sister to the great Bishop. During his life in London, Walton came the close friend of Dr. Donne and Sir Henry Wotton, of Dr. Morley and Dr. Sanderson, Bishops respectively of Worcester and Lincoln. In 1662, again a widower, he left London and went to live with Dr. Morley, who had been translated to Winchester; his daughter Anne married Dr. Hawkins, a prebendary of the Cathedral, in whose house Walton died in December, 1683. Besides the "Angler," Walton published a collection of the Reliquiae of Sir H. Wotton, an Eclogue on the Restoration, and the Lives of Donne, Herbert, Sanderson, Wotton and Hooker. "The Compleat Angler, or the Contemplative Man's Recreation," the pillar of his fame, the right ancestor of all the country-books, first appeared in 1653; it went through five editions before 1676, in which year it was reprinted with the addition of the Second Part, by Charles Cotton. The book, after its first success, seems to have fallen on some neglect; after eighty years it was re-introduced by the Rev. Moses Browne, perhaps at the instance of Dr. Johnson, who at one time himself thought of editing the "Lives." In 1760 appeared Sir John Hawkins' edition; Major's, in 1823 (which was said to have "Waltonized the land"), and Sir Harris Nicholas led the way to the multitudinous reprints of to-day. The main charm of the "Angler" lies perhaps in the quality of serenity; in its presentation of a world that appears fair and at peace, neither from mere shortsightedness nor from amiable shutting of the eyes (for the "Lives" show fully what the idyllic character of the "Angler" might obscure, Walton's masculine grasp of human character in light and dark), but by a gift of transmitting power, "the very spirit of innocence, purity, and simplicity of heart," as Charles Lamb called it, declaring further that the book "would sweeten a man's temper at any time to read it; it would Christianise every discordant passion," "Such sweet religion," he says again, "though the subject be baits and hooks and worms and fishes." And it is a sweetness that never becomes fulsome; there is always an infusion of delicate humour to quicken the whole, like the bottle of sack added to the milk and sugar in that "drink like nectar; indeed, too good for any body but us Anglers," made in the woodbine arbour at Tottenham High Cross. There is another reason, perhaps, for the way in which the old fisherman has taken possession of the earth in some of its kindest aspects; a reason to which Wordsworth's "Meek Walton's heavenly memory" gives the clue; that inner prerogative by which a man "possesses what he as with a meek and contented quietness; such a quietness as makes his very dreams pleasing both to God and to himself."

This pure serenity of temper and occupation of the beauty of the world are the chief elements to be kept in mind for making a parallel between the three great Naturalists. A second point to be noted is Walton's position as an accidental or amateur author. The "Angler" was altogether a paren-gone, "in writing it," says the Address to the Reader, "I have made a recreation of a recreation"—"I write to get money, but for pleasure, and this discourse boasts of no more." Not achieving authorship until he was past fifty, Walton is one of the most notable of that order unprofessional literary men, the men of one book or the seri studiorum, whose significance as a class has perhaps not yet received its full appreciation. The very style of the book owes something to this emancipation; entirely simple, perfectly adapted to the conveyance of the thought, it flows as smoothly as the currents of Shawford Brook, to break here and there into the freshets of these choice songs, or to deepen in the expression of some plety that gives thanks for "flowers, and showers, and stomachs, and meat, and content, and leisure to go a-fishing."

Dear Madam—We have been having a dispute over the question of keeping the house cool and cannot decide whether it is best to keep all windows open and let the air through or close them. I know this is not a cooking question, but some of these hot days it comes near to being that, and it really is a Practical House-keeping question.

Open windows do not necessarily mean cool houses. All bedroom windows should, of course, be open all night, and every house should be well and thoroughly aired every morning; but just as in cold weather, the aim of every housekeeper is, to have a warm house, so in warm weather the cool house is the great desideratum. Open windows, with such air as may be moving, blowing through the house, are commonly supposed to be the proper thing in hot weather. This is not the course followed in hot countries, nor is it the procedure suggested by experience. A cool breeze will cool a house, but a warm one will heat it. Hot air should be excluded. After the house has been well aired in the morning the windows and blinds on the sunny side should be tightly closed to keep out the hot air. When the sun has shifted it will be time to open them again. One must regulate the kind of air one admits into the house in warm weather.

Voice and Throat.

"Her voice was ever soft, gentle and low—an excellent thing in a woman"—ought, I think, to apply especially to the nurse. For a very soft, very low, very gentle voice in the ordinary woman is apt to be monotonous and certainly will be condemned by other women as "purring." But, better a voice like this than one harsh or loud or shrill.
A woman's voice counts for so much, much more than many women ever dream of. For if they realized the enormous power and effect that a beautiful voice has—especially with mankind—they would be more anxious to go in for voice training. I remember once reading a story of a man who fell in love with a telephone girl's voice—even over the buzzing, roughening lines of the telephone, her voice sounded rich and deep and full—so he sought her out and married her!

Unfortunately we have not all been given beautiful features, milk and roses complexion, masses of curly golden hair, but we can all claim as our right, if we like to make the effort, a pleasing voice. Anyone who has ever heard Forbes Robertson act will never forget his "violinello" voice and its beauty is, I believe, mainly due to his own cultivation. The majority of actresses have the loveliest voices, due very largely to training.

Of course, the foundation of a good voice depends entirely on correct breathing. We all know the person who breathes in the middle of a sentence, or who catches her breath after every remark, or the one who hiccups at the end of every sentence, letting the breath out like the escaping steam of an engine. Then there

Home Affairs.

Raspberry Paste.—Place ripe red raspberries in an earthen jar, and set in boiling water; when soft, rub through a colander to remove the seeds. Use measure for measure of sugar. Cook to a firm paste, carefully watching that it does not adhere to the bottom of the pan. Spread on plates, put in the oven until nearly dry, cut in strips or squares, dip in pulverized sugar, and pack between layers of tissue paper. Will keep indefinitely. Soak in cold water over night, and cook slowly until dissolved.

Raspberry Shrub.—Add a pint of vinegar to each quart of berries. Let stand 12 hours; scald and strain, and to a pint of juice add a pound of fine granulated sugar; boil half an hour, bottle and seal.

Raspberry and Currant Soy.—Crush two quarts of very ripe currants and two quarts of red raspberries; add three tea-cupfuls of vinegar, a tea-cupful and a half of sugar, a tea-spoonful each of ground allspice, cinnamon, cloves and pepper. Boil slowly an hour; put in pint cans and seal.

Currant Catsup.—Take four pounds of ripe, red currants, pick from the stems, put in a kettle, mash, add two pounds of sugar, and let boil slowly until thick; add a pinch of salt, a tea-cupful of vinegar, a tea-spoonful each of powdered cinnamon, allspice and mace. Mix, take from the fire, let cool, bottle and seal.

Currants and Raisins.—Pick from the stems ripe currants, crush to start the juice, and add to three parts currants one part of chopped seeded raisins. Cook 15 minutes; then add three tea-cupfuls of sugar to every quart, and boil until thick, with frequent stirring.

Rhubarb Jelly.—Use the very green sour stalks of rhubarb, cutting quite fine. Add as little water as possible and cook slowly until the rhubarb is soft, then strain through cheesecloth bags, but do not squeeze. Measure the juice and put back into the kettle and allow three-quarters as much sugar as juice. Boil hard for a few minutes, then pour into glasses or a square mould and set in the sun with a glass cover over it. It should be a clear amber.

A Summer Tale.

"You look irritated this evening."
"I am—on warm days like this I always suffer from heat rash."
"I am liable to heat rash, too, but it never irritates me; it never has since I began to use Zylex, which at once allays the irritation, physical and mental. And I find Zylex Soap with the Ointment go far to prevent heat rash altogether."
Zylex sells at 50 cents a box;
Zylex Soap at 25 cents a cake, at your Druggist.
Zylex—London.—Jyls,ood,tf are other people who always have a little preliminary cough or a gasping or persistent "Er-er," every few words—how they irritate us! A voice to be beautiful must be clear and free from evident breathing, and those who suffer from bronchitis or asthma or catarrh, very rarely have pleasing voices. So if we want to keep our voices clear and deep, we must prevent all the respiratory ailments.

Preserve Hints.

Showing How One May Make Jams All the Year Round.
"I can't possibly come to a cinema show," I said to my friend Connie, with my mouth full of something sweet. "I'm making jam."
Connie forgot the cinema show. She stayed to tea, and ate home-made scones with date jam, and new bread with banana jam, and before she left begged all the recipes.
Here they are exactly as I wrote them down for her:

APPLE AND TOMATO JAM.

Wipe five pounds of apples with a clean damp cloth, and cut them into quarters. Do not peel them. Put them in a preserving pan, and barely cover with cold water. Simmer until they are quite soft, and strain through cheese muslin.
Put some tomatoes into boiling water for one minute, and then take them out and skin them. Slice them thinly. Add the sliced tomatoes to the apple liquid, and weigh. To every pound of liquid and tomatoes put a pound of preserving sugar. Then colour with a little cochineal. Simmer until a little of the jam put on a saucer gets firm. Pot while hot.

BANANA JAM.

Slice up a dozen large bananas. To every pound of the fruit allow three quarters of a pound of preserving sugar. Take the juice and pulp of five lemons, and add them to the bananas and sugar. Add a little water. Then chop up half an ounce of preserved ginger and add. Simmer very slowly for fifty minutes.

DATE JAM.

Buy the dates by the pound. Remove the stones from three pounds and put the fruit in your preserving pan. Add about three breakfast-cupfuls of water. Let the fruit just get hot, and then add a pound and a quarter of preserving sugar, a sprinkling of ground cinnamon, and a tea-spoonful of fresh butter. Stir until the jam begins to thicken, and pot while steaming hot.

PINEAPPLE AND FIG JAM.

Buy a tin of pineapple and a pound of dried figs. Cut the pineapple and figs small. Put in a basin and add the pineapple juice, and leave all night. The next day weigh the fruit, and to each pound add three-quarters of preserving sugar. Put the sugar in the preserving pan, and add enough water to melt it. When dissolved, add the pineapple and figs. Stir over the fire until it thickens, and pot.

APRICOT JAM.

This is delicious when made from the well-known dried apricots. Buy three pounds of apricots. Wash them well, cut up each apricot into four, and put to steep all night in three pints of water. Measure out ten breakfast-cupfuls of water, and into them squeeze the juice of three lemons, and add a pound of cooking apples cut up small.
Simmer this for ten minutes, and then measure the pulp, and for each breakfast-cupful allow three-quarters of a pound of preserving sugar. Put this into the pan, and add an extra four pounds of sugar. Cook again for a few minutes, then stir in the apricots and the water they have been soaking in, and cook until the jam gets thick. Rhubarb can be used when in season instead of apples.

FRUIT SALAD JAM.

Buy two pounds of dried fruit salad, and cut the fruit up after well washing it. Then put it to soak covered with water. The next day put the fruit into the preserving pan, and cover with water to which you have added some essence of vanilla. Simmer gently for fifteen minutes, then measure out the fruit pulp, and to each breakfast-cupful allow a pound of preserving sugar. Simmer gently until it thickens.

DAINTY DESKS

for
"My Lady's Room."

NEVER was furniture of any kind, or at any period, more beautiful, comfortable, thoroughly attractive and well-made, or more eminently adapted to its own special use, than is the furniture of to-day. This is remarkably noticeable in some of the elegant articles that are made for the refined woman's use. We are showing examples in the handsome Writing Desks for Ladies we have on view this week.

These Desks are specially designed for daintiness and comfort, they are of Bird's-eye Maple, Mahogany, Circassian Walnut, Quartered, Fumed and Weathered Oak, also in early English finish; all have chairs en suite.

These Desks are suitable for drawing-room, boudoir, or sitting-room, in fact, used in any room they make writing a pleasure.
