CHAPTER XXVI
THE HOME OF WEALTH.

She walks in beauty like the night
Of cloudless climes and starry skies,
And all that's best of dark and bright
Meet in her aspect and her eyes.—
BYRON.

Carnarvon House was one blaze of light. The windows were like so many stipes to a lantern, all startlingly, dazzlingly brilliant against the dark sky and dun trees of Hyde Park.

It was eleven o'clock, and the crackle of the fire was performing at the countess's that evening had commenced Mozart's Sixth as Reginald Dartmouth entered the first saloon.

He was alone. Sir Charles, having waited at his chambers for him two hours beyond the appointed time, then started without him, concluding that the languid captain had not felt in the cue for the soiree, or else that something had happened to prevent his coming.

As Reginald Dartmouth paced slowly up the stairs he had leisure to note the wealth of costly Turkish tapestries that lined the marble steps and the above-price statuettes which gleamed from the rose-tinted niches of the frescoed corridor.

Priceless exotics were grouped at every available corner, which added their perfume to the subtle scent that pervaded the atmosphere.

Reception saloons opened out from the right, glistening with crimson satin and gold, black ebony and silver, and lighted up by carefully shaded, soft-tinted lights, cunningly up and arranged among groups of delicate statuary—the masterpiece of the dead and gone Roman sculptors, Brasini, Flator, and Perroni.

On the left of the softly-lighted corridor hung a wealth of pictures, old and new—here a Rubens, red and glowing; there a stately Van Dyck, and farther on a Carlo Dolci, soft, melting and ethereal.

With a keen glance of his quick eyes, Captain Dartmouth took in these evidences of extraordinary wealth and smiled.

"Princely, indeed, must be the Countess Vitzarelli's fortune," he muttered.

Then he passed through the arched entrance, draped with lace and hangings of crimson and gold, into the brilliantly-lighted saloon.

It was crowded, and Reginald Dartmouth saw that the crowd consisted of the best and choicest of the upper tier.

Here was the Duke of Tynsel, there the Marquis of Clifden, and, talking with a pleasant voice to the beautiful hostess, the Prince of Flamingo, covered with orders, that sparkled upon his breast as the dew glistens on the morning blue-bells.

Reginald Dartmouth was a well-known man, and nods and becks and smiles welcomed his tall, lithe figure as he made his way to the countess.

The prince walked away as he came up, and Madam Campani, to whom the countess was speaking, said, loud enough for him to hear:

"Captain Dartmouth approaches, Lucille."

Then she turned and held out her hand.

"It is good of you," she murmured, musically. "I had given you up. Sir Charles assured me that you were detained. I felt disappointed, for I like to count upon my friends."

Reginald Dartmouth inclined his head.

Making Better Cakes

There is nothing better for making cakes than Freeman's Egg Powder, which is not merely a substitute for eggs but actually an improvement upon them—being lighter and more digestible. It is also much more economical in use than are eggs.

Freeman's Egg Powder,
One of Freeman's English Foods.

"The Countess Vitzarelli may always count on me as her most devoted slave."

"Slave!" repeated the beautiful woman. "We have no slaves now, Signor Captain, or if there be slaves it is we—the women."

"Then to what depth must we descend as we, perforce, must be so infinitely the lower?" he replied, with his rare smile. "If you are slaves we—"

"Are the chains that bind us!" she put in, with a low ripple of laughter. "Come, Captain Dartmouth, I will not argue—in mercy—for I never knew man or woman that could match me for perversity or stubbornness. What say you, madam?"

"That I agree with you, Lucille, and advise Captain Dartmouth to take the warning," was the response.

"It comes as a command," said Reginald, "and I obey. If the countess should be pleased to say the moon's the sun I'll move to its shadow and grumble at its heat."

The countess laughed.

"Come, sir, that is slavery indeed," she said; "most abject and complete. I will not be so exacting. You shall keep your moon cold and irreproachable. And now give me your escort to the balcony, if you will. I have promised to decide between two chess-players who have thrown the responsibility of a judgment on my shoulders, for the best of all reasons: that I know nothing at all about the rules of the game."

"Then the judgment will go as usual, for most decisions are fixed and given on the same delicious principle. Allow me!"

And with the beautiful countess on his arm he made his way to the chess-players.

Leaving her at the table, where she was immediately surrounded by an eager crowd of courtiers, Reginald Dartmouth went in search of Sir Charles Anderson.

He found him seated in a recess talking with a little, white-haired old gentleman with a decided Roman cast of face and two restless gray eyes that flashed here, there, and everywhere, settling, with a questioning gaze, upon the captain's face.

"Hello!" said Sir Charles; "here you are at last! I gave you up. Count, allow me to introduce you. Captain Dartmouth, Count Vitzarelli."

Reginald Dartmouth scanned the wrinkled face beneath his brows. There was not the slightest resemblance to the beautiful countess. Could he be her father?

They got into conversation. The old count was a republican, bound heart and soul to his dear "Italia."

He commenced talking politics immediately, and Captain Dartmouth, much to Sir Charles's astonishment, listened attentively, carrying on the discussion with energy and displaying a slumbering volcano. Presently there lit.

The young baronet, lounging against one of the carved pillars of the recess, was filled with wonder, and with a sigh concluded that his friend, Captain Reginald Dartmouth, was one of those individuals no fellow could understand.

"Who'd have thought Regy would have known, much less cared, anything for this sort of thing?" he muttered, as the captain said, with emphatic distinctness, in reply to an observation of the old count's: "Italy is reposing on the crater of a slumbering volcano. Presently there will come the explosion, and in the flame and fire the coming man will be revealed."

The republican count was delighted.

"Sir," he exclaimed, "you speak the sentiments and belief of my own heart."

And he held out his long, thin hand, which Reginald Dartmouth pressed with respectful eagerness.

The next moment the prince came up, and the count, stopping to express a sincere wish that he might meet with "Capitaine Dartmouth" again, went off on his highness's arm.

Sir Charles threw himself down on the seat with a comical groan.

"Heavens, Dartmouth, you are as good as a play! One continual surprise! By Jove, you talked like an Italian politician. Surprised me and the old boy, too!"

"To command the surprise of the first is not a difficult task," retorted Reginald Dartmouth, with the sarcastic infection of his voice that made men's hearts writhe and grow hot.

Sir Charles's face flushed, but he only said:

"You're not in good temper, old fellow, although you made an easy conquest of the count. Come, let us have a hand at cards; Dalton and some of the other fellows are at it in one of the card-rooms."

"I am with you with all my heart," said the captain, and arm in arm the two made their way to the card-room, a small saloon tapestried with purple velvet and furnished in buhl and or-molu.

It was well into the small hours before they rose. The captain had had bad luck—some said he had shown bad play, throwing chances away with a careless indifference that was strange in him.

Perhaps his thoughts were not confined to the cards. In any case, it was with a wearied and bored look that he rose and, still accompanied by Sir Charles, returned to the principal saloon.

It was nearly empty, only half a dozen or so remaining chatting in corners.

As they were descending the stairs Sir Charles pulled up short.

"By Jove, Dartmouth," he exclaimed, looking annoyed, "I forgot to give you a card. Look here; you go on and I'll run back and find him. Confoundedly stupid of me! I will not be a minute. Meet you at the other door."

He had gone before Reginald Dartmouth could remind him that he was a stranger to the place and did not know where to find the other door.

And the captain, with a shrug of contempt at the baronet's forgetfulness, sauntered slowly down the board staircase.

His mind was hard at work as he trod the marble hall, and he was wondering what nameless charm the Countess Vitzarelli possessed which kept her face and form, her smile and liquid voice haunting his mind and heart.

He had seen many beautiful women—some more beautiful than she—but none had possessed the power to hold his thoughts in bondage as this woman—this countess had done.

"Which and where is the other entrance?" he asked of one of the officials, a footman, decked out in the most resplendent of liveries and blissing with gold lace and plush.

That Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound made Me a Well Woman.

Los Angeles, Cal.—"I suffered with female troubles for years, was sick most of the time, was not able to do my own housework, and I could not get help from doctors. I saw Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound advertised in the newspapers, and took six bottles, and am a well woman. You can use my name to tell the world the good your medicine has done me as I shall praise it always."—Mrs. A. L. DeVane, 447 St. Paul Avenue, Los Angeles, Calif.

Women who suffer from any form of weakness, as indicated by displacement, indigestion, ulceration, irregularities, backache, headaches, nervousness or "the blues," should do as Mrs. DeVane did, and give Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a thorough trial.

For over forty years this famous remedy, which contains the curative, strengthening properties of good old-fashioned roots and herbs, has been correcting just such ailments. If you have mysterious complications write for advice to Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., Lynn, Mass.

Extension of Trade Relations

CANADA-WEST INDIES AGREEMENT.
OTTAWA, June 10. The Canada-West Indies Conference has practically completed its work. Tentative agreements, it is understood, have been reached between the Canadian and West Indies delegates looking to a wide extension of trade. The agreements, it is stated, provide for, o.s., extension of Preferential Tariffs between Canada and British West Indies, two, increased steamship service between Canada and West Indies ports, both by private and Canadian Government lines; there, increased cable facilities.

REDS THREATEN TEHERAN.
PARIS, June 10. The Russian Bolshevik are rapidly extending their operations in Persia, according to advices received by the French Foreign office to-day. Teheran, the capital, is threatened and in danger of falling in the hands of the Bolshevik in two or three days should the Reds attack, it is declared. The Persian Govt. is organizing resistance to the Bolshevik menace. The British, the advice states, have retired to Manjil fifty miles South of Resht under Bolshevik pressure.

CONCEDED MEN'S DEMANDS.
GLACE BAY, N.S., June 10. The threatened tie-up of the Pumping Station and Electric Power plant did not materialize this morning the town Council conceding the demands of the men.

VANITIE DEFEATS RESOLUTE.
NEWPORT, N.Y., June 10. The Vanitie defeated the Resolute for the second time to-day in the fifth of the races held to decide which shall defend America's Cup. It was a fifteen mile thrash to Windward and return in a ten knot breeze with the Vanitie leading at the finish by two minutes.

Legislative Council.

THURSDAY, June 10.
The House opened at 4 o'clock.

The following Bills passed the third reading: "An Act Respecting the Issue of Certain Debenture Bonds of the Colony;" "An Act to Amend the Business Profits Tax Act, 1917;" "An Act to Amend Chapter 10 of 9.10, Geo. V., entitled "An Act with respect to Existing Tenancies and the Ejectment of Tenants therefrom." The report of a select committee on Bill entitled "An Act Respecting Certificates of Masters and Mates" was tabled. Recession was taken awaiting His Excellency the Governor, who arrived at 5 p.m. and gave his assent to the Profiteering, Food Control, Standardizing of Codfish, and Legislative Disability Bills. The order of the day being resumed, the Act respecting Certificates of Masters and Mates went to committee.

Hon. W. B. Grieve objected to the procedure, and after some debate the Leader of the Government decided that the matter could be left to take the usual course. The bill will again be in committee next session. The select committee yesterday made some alteration in the bill, viz., that two members may be sufficient for the Board. That the rules laid down by the Board must have the approval of the Governor-in-Council. The life of the Board is extended to June 30, 1921.

The Exportation of Salt Codfish Bill was deferred. "An Act to Authorize the Montreal Trust Co. to do business in the Colony" passed the committee stage without comment. The Postal and Telegraphic Service Bill passed the committee stage without amendment, Hon. Geo. Shea explaining the section dealing with limiting the liability of the Minister. The bill gives the Minister of Posts and Telegraphs statutory powers to limit the liability of the department for non delivery, delays or errors of telegrams.

The Preservation of Beavers Bill passed the second reading. This bill gives the Minister of Marine and Fisheries all power over beavers dead and alive.

As Hon. Dr. Campbell was out of town the second reading of a bill entitled "An Act Respecting Licenses to Cut Hard Woods" was deferred. The Bill entitled "An Act concerning Former Enemy Aliens" passed the second reading and will be considered in committee to-morrow. "The Prosecution of the Sealishery" and the "Pilots" Acts were read a first time.

The House adjourned at 5.30 p.m.

LABOR UNION FIGHT ON.

MONTREAL, June 10.
The American Federation of Labor in its annual convention here to-day wiped out the color line and warned its affiliated International Unions that Negro workers must be given full membership. The one big union organization of Canada made its first open assault on the Federation to-day when an appeal was sent broadcast throughout the city to all "fellow-workers warning them that the satillites of Craft Unionism are in the midst." The circular recalled the Steel, Coal and recent Railroad strikes to support its claim that the delegates of the Federation now in Montreal have been co-operating with the bosses and Governments and altogether have railroaded and jailed representatives of our class.

ELIMINATING COLOR LINES.

MONTREAL, June 10.
After a bitter debate marked by fiery oratory, the American Federation of Labor adopted a resolution requesting the Brotherhood of railway clerks to eliminate "color lines" from its constitution and give the Negro full membership.

SINN FEIN ISSUES BAN ON EMIGRATION.

MONTREAL, June 10.
A cable to the Montreal Star from Dublin says the Sinn Fein has issued a ban on Emigration on account of the increasing number of young Irishmen leaving the country for the United States.

RATIONING SUGAR.

NEW YORK, June 10.
Rationing of sugar as in war time will go into effect in hotels and restaurants all over the country on June 21, A. W. Wiley, special assistant to the Attorney General, announced here to-day.

With the Rod.

(Western Star.)
The alluring reel music incident to the sport of kings is once again being played along our rivers, and although the Crabbes and Highland Rivers are rather low at the present time, yet three salmon have already been taken from the first named stream by local enthusiasts. The first fish was taken by Isaac Fortune about the first of June, the other two were captured by Allan McIsaac and Richard Chaffey on the 4th, all three catches we understand being made at the head of idewater.

As we have already stated the rivers at present are rather low, but with the coming of some rain there promises to be good doings with the rod. Our reason for holding this belief is that salmon are reported more plentiful by netters on the shore the past few days than they have been for several seasons.

The Highland River is always a late one for the salmon run, but this stream is a splendid one for trout, and in this respect it has fully upheld its reputation of late. Only to mention a few instances of the trout fishing enjoyed there lately, we may Obituary.

MRS. J. T. CANNING.
We record this morning the passing of a well known and generally esteemed lady in the person of Mrs. John T. Canning. The deceased was daughter of the late Michael Tobin, some time representative for Placentia and St. Mary's in the Legislature, and prominent in business circles. Mrs. Canning has been practically invalid for the past three years, but bore her illness with surpassing cheerfulness and resignation, due to her proverbial good nature and devotion to her family. She leaves to mourn besides her husband, one son and four daughters, a sister, in New York, and Mrs. Arthur Hiscock of this city, to all of whom sincere sympathy is extended. The funeral took place from Mr. Canning's residence, 58 Cochrane St., at 3.30 this afternoon.

ROOTS PLANK ADOPTED.

CHICAGO, June 10.

A rescuing party, by an eleventh hour compromise from the threatened split on the League of Nations issue of the Republican National Convention to-day, adopted a platform and then then adjourned to nominate a candidate to-morrow. Harmony on the League was reported after many hours of heated negotiation revolving about the sub committee on the resolutions, but bringing into the consultation, first and last, virtually all the big men of the party. In the end irreconcilables and mild reservationists accepted the treaty plank drafted by Elihu Root, before his departure for Europe several weeks ago, but revised in some details to meet the views of contending elements. After impatiently marking the all day for the resolutions committee to complete its work, the tired convention received with cheers the reading of a platform by Senator Watson of Indiana, Committee Chairman, and adopted it was a great chorus of cheers. The relative chance of the Presidential candidates, apparently was little affected by the platform agreement and on convention eve there was in evidence no development which changed the situation, with Wood, Johnson and Lowden leading, but without any of them having delegates to nominate them.

RADICAL SUGGESTIONS.

TORONTO, June 10. Union of the Roman Catholic and Protestant churches was suggested as a possibility at the Toronto Methodist Conference, by T. W. Duggan, a law delegate from Brampton. Mr. Duggan had other rather radical suggestions to offer, among them being the proposition that Sunday nights at church should be made as attractive for the masses as a week night at the movies.

"PORT SUNLIGHT" STRIKE.

LONDON, June 11. Nearly five thousand workers at Lord Leverhulme's "Port Sunlight" Soap Works are on strike through a dispute between rival unions, concerning which should represent the workers in wage negotiations. The strike is being conducted with good temper, a good many of the strikers going away on holidays.

UNOFFICIAL SEIZURE.

NEWARK, N.J., June 11. Three men, whom the police say, posed as government agents, and by displaying badges held up and seized two trucks transporting twenty thousand dollars worth of whiskey Wednesday night, were arrested here yesterday on charges of larceny. The men followed the trucks from Baltimore, according to the police.

RETURNED MANDATE.

BERLIN, June 11. The Inter-Allied Plebiscite Committee in Eastern Silesia has returned its mandate to the Supreme Council on the ground that the task cannot be fulfilled under prescribed conditions, according to a report here yesterday. The Commissioners are understood to have made known the impossibility of taking a plebiscite in Eastern Silesia for a long time.

WHO WILL BUY?

WASHINGTON, June 11. Bids for the sale of the Leviathan, the largest ship in the American Merchant Marine, will be opened on June 30th by the Shipping Board.

WHAT A COME-DOWN.

BERLIN, June 11. It is understood that the reduction of the German Army to two hundred thousand men has been accomplished. This is in accordance with the Versailles Treaty.

UP AGAINST IT.

OTTAWA, June 11. While stocks of Canadian newspaper companies are soaring as much as ten points in a day, reflecting unprecedented prosperity of the Canadian newspaper industry a group of Canadian publishers is still in Ottawa struggling to prevent the extinction of their newspaper properties, through inability to get newspaper supplies in a country that is exporting six times as much newspaper as it requires for domestic consumption.

RENEWAL ACCEPTED.

HONOLULU, June 11. The Japanese Diplomatic Council has accepted the terms of the renewal of the Anglo-Japanese offensive and defensive alliance, a complete agreement having been reached in the negotiations at Tokio, according to a Tokio cable to Nippon Jih, Japanese language newspaper here.

TO BE RETURNED.

MEXICO CITY, June 11. All property seized by the Government during the previous administration will be returned on the simple presentation of title to property confiscated, according to newspaper reports, quoting General Alvarado, Acting Secretary of the Treasury.

GERMANS IN COMMAND.

PARIS, June 11. Polish troops are pursuing retreating Bolsheviks between the Dvina and Upper Beresina Rivers, according to a Havas despatch from Zurich, which says there is confirmation that Bolshevik shock troops, which won local successes since May 14, were exclusively commanded by German officers.

AUSTRIAN CABINET RESIGNED.

VIENNA, June 11. The Austrian Cabinet, headed by Dr. Karl Renner as Chancellor, which has been administering country affairs for the greater part of the time since the armistice, has resigned office.

LINGUAL DEFIANCE.

DUBLIN, June 11. A manifesto, pledging support for Dublin railwaymen and dockers in their refusal to handle munitions, has been issued by the Executive of the Irish Labor Party and Trade Union Congress. The manifesto defies the King and the British Government, saying "Not all the armies in the Empire will compel us to become traitors to our own nation: we will not shrink from the consequences of that view, although the whole fabric of the commonwealth be convulsed."

Why Dogs' Noses Are Cold.

When your faithful old dog pokes his nose into your hand, even your affection cannot prevent a little shiver, because the nose is so cold. Why is it? When the body of a dog is so warm, why should this one spot be different from all the rest of him? The old fable tells us when Noah tried to get all the animals into the ark some of them were troublesome, and he had to get a dog to help him drive them in. Because of this the dog was the last to enter the ark. There was no room left, so he had to stand in the doorway, with his nose outside in the wet, and it has never been warm since.

Science gives quite another explanation of the matter. The coldness of a dog's nose is due to the fact that it must be kept moist all the time in order to sharpen his sense of smell. And, of course, as the moisture is evaporating all the time, it keeps his nose cold.

A dog depends a great deal on his powers of smell, especially in the wild state, and it is because of his keenness of scent that he is valuable to man for hunting purposes. In addition to the olfactory or smelling nerves inside a dog's nostrils, the whole black membrane around the nose is very sensitive, but this sensitiveness can only be retained by moisture. Thus it is when a dog's nose is dry and warm he is ill and needs doctoring.

Supreme Court.

BEFORE JUSTICE JOHNSON.

Fisherman's Union Trading Co. vs. Evening Telegram, W. J. Herder and C. T. James.

A special jury consisting of Thos. Andrews, Geo. Rideout, J. B. Mercer, S. E. Garland, R. Simms, J. T. Nelder, A. H. Prowse, Chas. McKay Harvey, Alex. Morris were empanelled to try this case.

Mr. Mews for the prosecution opens the case by reading the libel complained of (Jan. 9) and calls Mr. Stirling, First Clerk of the Colonial Secretary's office. This finishes the case for the plaintiff. No witnesses were called for the defence. Mr. Mews addressed the jury pointing out that the charge was made in a paper widely circulated and when it sets out to check profiteering it has the whole world to make it to. In this case it picked out a company doing business in Newfoundland and the paper should be able to come to Court and prove the charges.

Howley, K.C., for the defence, addressed the jury briefly pointing out that the Libel has not the meaning which the plaintiff places on it. Justice Johnson charged the jury, and asked it to decide "does that article defame the position of the Trading Co. Do the words used refer to the plaintiff. Do the words mean what is set out in the statement of claim? What constitutes a libel was then explained by references. The jury retired and after a half hour's deliberation returned to Court with a verdict of $500 for the plaintiff.

Exaggerated.

The big seizure of "booze" referred to in this morning's News did not assume the huge proportions ascribed to it, nor did it possess the importance which naturally attaches to a raid. It is true that the police searched a certain house in the East End, but after making a thoroughly exhaustive examination of every room in the building, including the roof and cellar, the net results showed but two bottles of whiskey, which were for purely legitimate purposes, as were subsequently proven. It appears that a "dead set" is being made on a certain person by individuals who, having a grudge, give the police erroneous and misleading information.

A German Opinion of the British Navy.

The washing of dirty linen participated in by Secretary of the Navy Daniels, Admiral Sims and others at Washington, together with the disclosure of President Wilson's confidential correspondence in respect to naval matters, reminds one of the squabble which followed on the heels of the Spanish-American war. The difference being that this time the British navy is more or less personally interested, in view of the fact that the President expressed himself as being dissatisfied with the manner in which Britain's Sea Lords were conducting affairs. All of which makes doubly interesting a recently published volume by Commander Georg von Hase, the chief gunnery officer of the German battle cruiser "Derfflinger," which vessel was in the thick of the fight at the battle of Jutland and which battle it will be remembered was reported an out and out victory for the Germans.

The book has received some editorial mention by the "Scientific American" and it from that publication I quote. In writing of the British gunfire at the battle of Jutland, Commander von Hase says:— "The British shot effectively and at a fabulous speed. So effective was the British gun fire that we stood powerless before the enemy, unable to return his fire!" The best work of the Germans was done in the earlier phases of the action, when the Queen Mary was sunk. To quote him again: "About 8.30 p.m. the Queen Mary met her doom. For two minutes our salvos had been straddling her repeatedly, and ten seconds after the last had fallen, we saw a huge red flame shoot up from her forepart. Then followed two prodigious explosions, and amidst the smoke we saw her great masses of debris rise in the air." After the loss of the two battle-cruisers Queen Mary and Indomitable, he remarks: "We were fighting an enemy at the second stage of the action, inferior in num-

"Do you think old age is always venerable just because it is old age?" a letter friend wants to know.

Perhaps you can get some idea of my letter friend's age by the question. Yes, she is very young, only 15, and she says her aunt says that it doesn't matter what old sapling. It can be broken, but not bent. And of course no younger person should ever permit himself or herself to quarrel with an old person. That is an undignified and unchivalrous thing to do.

Bad Taste to Make Fun.

Nor is it either mannerly or decent to make fun of an older person, no matter what he may do.

Sometimes some of the younger people at the hotel did make fun of the crotchety old man or scrap with him. And when they did, much as we disliked the old gentleman, the general sympathy always went out to him.

One cannot make young people venerate all old age, and I think the attempt to do so only produces impatience and a sense of hypocrisy in the younger generation. But one can, I think, make them see the weakness and pathos of old age and rouse in them the chivalrous, considerate spirit toward old age which is one of the surest hallmarks of true breeding.

A Kitchener Story.

(From the Westminster Gazette.)

One of the good stories that are to be found in Sir George Arthur's "Life of Lord Kitchener," which Macmillan's published in three great volumes, packed full of matter of the deepest interest—concerns his adventures as a "poilu"—though the name had not been invented when he, a Woolwich cadet, took service with a companion who is now Sir Henry Dawson to fight for France against "les Prussians."

The end of the campaign came, for him, when an ascent in a balloon gave him a chill which induced pneumonia, and left him such a physical wreck that "his one fear was that he would never have the strength to be a soldier."

But "K." trouble did not end here. When he got back to England, Sir George Arthur says, "he found his alleged breach of military discipline"—which, he always maintained, was no breach at all—"had been taken seriously, and he was told to report himself at the Horse Guards. Brought in the presence of the Duke of Cambridge, he was severely scolded, informed that he had behaved abominably, and threatened with the forfeiture of his status and the refusal of a commission. The Commander-in-Chief, having administered this fierce rebuke, passed a moment, and then murmured: 'I am bound to say that in your place I should have done the same thing!'"

Age Should Revive Tolerance. But though one would not expect people to venerate him, one would expect them to treat him with courtesy and tolerance. Age does not necessarily command respect, but it should command gentleness and tolerance.

There is never any use trying to change old age, because it can't be made any more than you can bend a young old tree as you would bend a

THE DISMAL DAY.

WIM MASON

The day is dark and chilly, and nasty showers descend; the winds are sad and silly, their walling has no end. The men have quit their hoing until the weather's d r y; the women drop their sewing, and gaze outdoors and sigh. On such a day a fellow is willing to believe that all the world is yellow, this life designed to peeve. The cheerful words of Browning that all the world is well, can't stop his heavy frowning, or soothe him for a spell. He feels that all the sages and bards who sing of hope can never earn their wages by springing sunshine dope. The weary winds are blowing, it is a beastly day; no cheerful crows are crowing, no blithesome roosters neigh. But all the out-door critters are wet and cold and blue; no wren or robin twitters and makes a howdydo. But hold, the ducks are joyous, the he ducks and their wives! The rain storms that annoy us bring joy to their young lives! So let's resume our grinnings and caper round again; the ducks must have their innings as well as hens and men.

THE JEWEL CASE.

Thieves broke into a house one day and took some silver plate away. A few loose coins, a ring or two, then promptly disappeared from view. Next day the paper bore this line: "Thieves miss a veritable mine! They take the trinkets from a place but overlook the jewel case."

A friend called on a friend one day. He needed money right away—He must have "twenty" there and then. Which he would promptly pay again. In such an hour the friend was glad to share the silver that he had; But when the little debt was due, The friend had disappeared from view.

Of him since then he's had no trace, Nor even seen him face to face. For twenty dollars he had sold The friend whose love was good to hold. Now from his side he stays away, Keeping the coins he took away. Not knowing, in his petty mind, He left the "jewel case" behind.

He overlooked the kindly heart Which down through life would take his part. He overlooked the friend in need Who'd give whenever he came to plead. The trifling sum which he obtained Was small to what he could have gained. Cheats take the trinkets that they find, But leave the "jewel" case behind.

Correct Way to Use An Electric Iron.

Are you quite sure that you know the correct way to use your electric iron? It seems and it is a simple enough matter to attach an electric flatiron for service; but in this as in everything else there is a right way of doing it.

For quick, light work, such as the smoothing of a single blouse or a few handkerchiefs, it is permissible to screw the plug into any convenient lighting socket; indeed, one of the great advantages of the electric iron is that it can be used in any desired room or even on the porch in summer, with absolute safety and satisfaction.

But for the regular ironing it is more convenient and the cord will last longer, if provisions are made for suspending the cord upon a light coil spring. Such a spring can be purchased at any hardware store for a few pennies. The correct suspension is very simple.

Keep the cord of your flatiron free from kinks, twists and knots which wear upon the insulation and finally result in its breaking. It must be understood that the cords supplied with electric appliances are made as strong as it is possible for them to be and still retain the necessary flexibility, but no insulation can possibly be made which will not wear and break in time if it be strained and chafed and bent continually back and forth at one point. That is exactly what happens to a kinky twisted wire.

Make it a habit never to leave the ironing board while the current is turned on your iron. You may think you are going to be away only a moment or two, but many things may intervene to make you forget. If your flatiron is left connected so that it gets hotter and hotter as each moment passes, it will soon be overheated and ruined. Remember, too, that an overheated iron may scorch a valued garment or the ironing cover and pad. Actual fires very seldom occur as a result of a flatiron overheating.

Increasing the Burden!

The voters of the District of Bay-de-Verde will do well to bear in mind that there is a possibility of still further taxation being imposed upon them. All the signs point to hugely increased estimates for the fiscal year 1920-21, and when the long delayed Supply Bill is brought down to the House, which it should have been long ago, it will show colossal advances of sums required to meet the expenditure of the Dominion for the period named.

The estimates of expenditure on the part of the Government for the coming financial year are said to exceed those of the late Government for the current annual financial period ending on the thirtieth of this month, by the staggering sum of over A MILLION AND A HALF OF DOLLARS, a sum equal in excess of present taxation, to roundly SIX DOLLARS PER HEAD of every man, woman and child in Newfoundland.

pense. Economy was supposed to be the watchword of the Liberal-Reform Party, according to the Manifesto of its Leader. Retrenchment and the pruning down of public expenditures were freely discussed in that remarkable and lengthy document.

But there is not such obvious willingness to put these economies into execution, now that the Government is in the hands of the men who made these promises on the hustings last fall. The order of the day seems to be, "pile it on. We have the Government, and for the next four years we will get all we can out of it. After us the deluge."

Forest Fires.

The forest fire which started a couple of days ago near Cochrane Pond on the Ruby Line, has been put out. The smoke now enveloping the city, is coming from the Great Northern Pond fire on the Salmonier line.

A forest fire raging on Crabbe's River, St. George's, has spent itself out, after destroying thousands of dollars-worth of splendid timber.

Bay L'Argent, Fortune Bay, reports fierce fire raging just inside St. Bernard's and Jacques Fontaine, and the inhabitants of these two places are uneasy of being burned out. The fire has been raging in this section the past three weeks.

The fire at Hillview, T.B., is being kept under control, and some good spots of timber have been saved.

A message to the Dept. of Agriculture, from Mr. A. Hicks, of Salmonier, says that fires are raging near Riverside, Salmonier, and that many houses are in great danger of destruction. Mr. L. R. Cooper, Secretary of the Fire Patrol of Grand Falls, sent the following message to-day: "Very serious fire all around here during the last few days. The Howley fire has been checked but a bad fire at Millertown Branch is still in progress. Fire fighters from Millertown are working in shifts, and so far have kept buildings from destruction. Between Grand Falls and Badger the fires were extinguished yesterday, but started again to-day. A very bad fire is in progress near Bishop Falls, and Norris Arm. Section is being fought by men from both places, aided by parties brought by motor boats from Botwood. Norris Arm saved except a few buildings."

From Carbonear the following message was received this morning: "Heavy dew and no wind helped fire fighters to save half way house at Victoria, Carbonear. The fire in this section nearly under control." A fire of some proportion is still raging in Portugal Cove, C.B., having started there yesterday.

Cadiz Strike Still On.

Messrs. Bowring Bros. received word from Cadiz, Spain, last night, stating that the Longshoremen's strike was still on. The strike, which began on May 1st, is a sympathy one, having been called through some misunderstanding between two sets of workers. Four steamers have been waiting there for salt since the 4th of May.

Salt From Liverpool.

The steamer Iris, 9,000 tons, left Liverpool to-day for here with 6,000 tons of salt. She will arrive tomorrow week. The steamer Terra Nova left St. Pierre to-day for here with about 650 tons salt. The vessel General Jacobs, with salt, is in the stream. She is consigned to A. E. Hickman. It is not known what will be done with her cargo—although it has been stated that she will go to Port Union.

Baseball Executive Meets To-Night.

The Executive Committee of the Baseball League meets to-night at 9 o'clock in the office of Mr. W. J. Higgins to decide the date of the opening game. This date was set for next Wednesday, but since then it has been discovered that St. Bon's College is holding sports on Wednesday. It is likely, therefore, that the opening date will be set for Thursday evening.

H. B. C. Steamer Arrives.

A Jolt for the Ministers.

Editor Evening Telegram. Dear Sir.—What has become of the motor car, recently added to the Post Office outfit, for the object, it was said, of making the handling of mails more expeditious than under the old system?

On a recent Sunday, the S.S. "Meigle" arrived at 1 a.m. and 9 o'clock the same morning the motor had not distributed the first bag of mail at the East End Post Office, though the officials were there waiting, ready to distribute.

This morning the Express arrived at 4 a.m., and at 9.30 a.m. distribution at the East End Post Office was just commencing, a fact due, I am sure, to the delay in bringing the mail to the Post Office, as the ladies who attend that office are always on hand, and prompt in their duties.

It is about time somebody gave the Minister of Posts and Telegraphs a jolt which will wake him up, as the postal service is getting worse instead of better.

Yours truly, POSTAL.

McMurdo's Store News.

FRIDAY, June 11. Will the person who may have picked up a small box of tablets, wrapped in white paper and bearing our label inside, lost between our store and Beck's Cove Hill by way of Water Street, kindly return the same to our store?

If your hair is not as luxuriant as you could wish, especially if the scalp is full of dandruff, try the Cantharidine treatment. It is usually wise to begin by giving the scalp a thorough shampoo, which can be done by means of our Shampoo Powders, and afterwards applying the Cantharidine Hair Tonic at night, say three or four times a week. This plan will keep the scalp free from accumulations of dandruff or scurf, stimulate the growth of the hair, and act as a first class dressing. Price 35 and 60c. a bottle. Shampoo Powders 7c. each.

The Woman Suffrage Bill.

Legislation may be divided into two broad classes—that which prohibits and that which confers. The Woman Suffrage Bill which was thrown out of the House for six months yesterday, falls into this second class. It is easy to see why a member should wish to consult his constituents when a Bill comes before the House which threatens to remove some right or privilege which is already enjoyed (Bills of a prohibitory nature have, however, been known to pass without such consultation) but it is difficult to imagine any body of people refusing to accept legislation which would give them more power and more interest in the country.

By the Woman Suffrage Bill no privilege would be lost, and those women who object will not be forced to vote themselves. Even those who do not desire the vote would not I am sure, deny this right to those who do, particularly when other countries have shown the beneficial results of woman suffrage. It has been said that women will be stepping down from the pedestal upon which men have placed them by mixing in politics. Within the last few weeks we have discovered the nature of this pedestal. It supports a pretty piece of statuary which can be ignored at will. Letters requesting answers have been rudely disregarded, appointments have not been kept, promises have been lightly broken. Our pedestal has, it seems, grown so high that it has removed us altogether from the sphere of men's consideration, so we are quite willing to descend to the level of those whose votes count for something in the political world.

Masonic Installation at Carbonear.

On Wednesday last Hon. T. K. Cook, and a large number of brethren from St. John's visited Carbonear to attend Lodge Carbonear, No. 1043, A.F. and A.M., S.C., for the annual installation of the Right Worshipful Master and the investiture of subordinate office bearers. Many brethren from Hr. Grace, Bay Roberts and other points were in attendance. R. W. Bro. Robert Duff was installed as R.W.M., and is surrounded by an active and capable board of officers. The installation was conducted by R. W. Bro. T. K. Cook, assisted by R. W. Bro. H. E. Cowan, D.G.S., S.C. R. W. Bro. W. J. Edgar, D.G.S., E.C. After the ceremony a most enjoyable banquet was tendered the visitors. The St. John's brethren returned by motor yesterday and were loud in their appreciation of the hospitality extended them.

Fire Companies Busy.

At 7:15 last night an alarm of fire was rung in from Plank Road. The Central and West End Fire Companies responded in quick time. On arriving they found the home of Mr. R. Waddleton ablaze, with flames bursting through the roof. The Western chemical engine was put to work and in less than five minutes the fire was extinguished. Considerable damage was caused the premises.

At ten minutes to twelve last night, the Fire Companies were again called out, this time to Cabot Street, a slight fire occurring in the house of Wm. Belbin, caused by the igniting of drapery of a bedroom window with a candle. The blaze was extinguished with a few pails of water and the services of the firemen were not requisitioned. Very little damage was done the premises.

Bodies Picked Up.

The bodies of two men were picked up on the shore, thirty yards apart, about four miles west of Port Saunders. The intelligence conveyed by a message from William Garland to Absalom Wells yesterday morning. They are thought to have been driven there on ice. No doubt they are those of John and Thomas Wells, who have been missing since 10th May.—Western Star.

Bonfires Would Endanger City.

The attention of the Inspector General of Police is drawn to the fact that St. John's Day, the 24th of this month, is one on which bonfires are usually lighted on Signal and South Side Hills, and that boys are said to be now collecting debris and material for such fires. With the town in its present dry state such fires would be a source of considerable danger.

"IT IS UP TO ME TO TELL FACTS," SAYS LUSH

"When a Man Gets Relief From 15 Years of Indigestion and Rheumatism He Ought to Tell Others What Did It," He Declares.

"When a man gets complete relief after fifteen years of chronic indigestion and rheumatism, and gains fifteen pounds in weight in the bargain, think it is up to him to tell all hands about the medicine that did it," declared James Lush, of 51 Springdale Street, St. John's, and formerly of Greenspond, Newfoundland.

"I simply can't put into words all that I've suffered on account of stomach trouble," continued Mr. Lush. "After a meal my food would seem to lie on my stomach like a hot lump of lead that burned like fire. And then it would ferment and I would have pains that doubled me up like a jack-knife, and so bad I could hardly breathe. I believe I tried every known remedy in my efforts to get relief, but never a bit of help did I ever get from any one of them until I got Tanlac. To make matters worse I had an awful lot of rheumatism especially in the knees which at times was so bad that I could hardly hobble around."

"One day a friend of mine said to me, 'Jim, why don't you try Tanlac? It's done me a lot of good and I believe it would help you.' I doubted if anything could do me any good so I didn't take his advice at the time, but when I saw by the papers that so many people were getting such wonderful results from the medicine I decided to give it a trial, and the way it put me into good shape gave me the surprise of my life. I soon began to eat much better without suffering any pain or distress afterwards and began to get new strength and energy, but I never realized how much good it was doing me until one day I stepped on the scales and found that I had actually gained fifteen pounds in weight. The rheumatism has all gone out of my knees and I can get about as well as ever I could. Everybody who suffers as I did ought to know about Tanlac, and I'm glad of this chance to tell what it did for me."

Tanlac is sold in St. John's by M. Connors; by Reg. Sullivan, Pouch Cove; Sound Island Store, Sound Island; Dennis Flynn, Avondale; J. J. O'Brien, Cape Broyle.—adv

Doings at Trinity.

Note:—The s.s. Neptune from St. John's arrived on Monday, June 7th, and left again for Blanc Sablon during the evening.

The coming and going of the s.s. Neptune at this time of year, is always marked by a busy day during her stay in port, and then by a corresponding quietness after she leaves, for she takes with her to the Straits several of our people whom we can ill afford to lose in connection with our summer activities at home. The event, however, has much to do with our general prosperity, as from the manager, Mr. Edwin Grant, down to the boy or girl who forms a part of this annual summer enterprise, each and all hope to derive from it financial returns, sufficient to provide the necessities of life during the coming winter.

Amongst the many changes that have come to us during the comparatively recent past, has been that in connection with the games that years ago formed a real part of the daily life of our young people. I often wonder if the same changes are being experienced in other places in Newfoundland. I have been in Trinity since last November, and to date I have not seen our young men or boys or girls engaged in any kind of games. The national game of "Cat," than which no other winter game ever supplied so much physical exercise or real sport, is practically unknown in our midst, and nothing has taken its place.

Who amongst the men of this generation in Trinity does not recall the games in John Cross' meadow, by the boys and young men of Mr. Collis' winter school? Then every man and boy played 'Cat' an hour before school, and on a fine frosty day the whole field was a moving picture show of real sport and good temper, till the school flag was lowered. Then we all filed in under the eagle eye of James Collis, ready and fit (because of the exercise) for the the daily time-table—from the opening prayers and hymn on to the enumeration and multiplication tables, which we learnt and retained in our memory, by the whole school shouting them in unison.

Then in summer we had cricket, for evenings that were all too short for the enjoyment, and the Trinity Cricket Club was one of our select village institutions. Then, too, remember there were enough shoemaker apprentices in Trinity to form a cricket club of their own, and we were strictly exclusive when necessary. To-day the sons of St. Crispin are represented by one man in action, and he is about to leave. No change in our industrial life has been greater than that in connection with the shoemaking trade, for which Trinity was justly famous some forty years ago.

Then the girls had for their pre-school hours and recess exercises, a number of games, such as "Sally Saucer," "Jolly Miller," "The Farmer in the Dell," etc. Each not only supplied physical exercise and provoked good humour, but the little sing-song to a catchy tune as the game was played, often taught the children a fundamental virtue, or suggested a graceful action. These games are still sometimes played at children's pic-nics, but they are practically unknown in connection with the day schools, whilst I do not believe a dozen girls of to-day in Trinity could play a decent game of "jack-stones."

It is all a fatal mistake, and an omission of the things that have much to do with fundamental principles; and it is to be hoped that with the wonderful improvement (?) that we are promised in connection with the schools to the future, the teachers will realize the importance of those games, and by their precept and personal supervision, revive them as things absolutely necessary to the physical and mental development of the children entrusted to their care. Wellington said that the Battles of England were fought and won on the Eton cricket fields. We know what he meant, and we accept the truth underlying the statement. I do not hesitate to say that the school games to which I have referred, had no small part in the securing of that education which forms character—the character that has produced in this generation those leading men in Church and State, of whom Trinity to-day is justly proud. Will the next generation, with its elimination of religious teaching, and scant attention to our national games in the school curriculum, produce a greater, or even a corresponding number of such men? We shall see! but I have my doubts.

The changes, however, that have come to Trinity and its surroundings during the last thirty or forty years, have not, by any means, been all retrograde. Several are decidedly favourable and progressive. No greater change for the better has come to any part of the suburbs of Trinity than that which has come to the settlement in the North West Arm. Years ago it consisted of a few sod-roofed huts, where a half-dozen families lived in the poorest of circumstances. It was not so much their fault as it was their misfortune, for there was no industry in their immediate neighbourhood to help them to improve the situation. The settlement was then unofficially known as "Piddletown." Then one David Locke, with a vision beyond that of his neighbours, thought of the abundance of small timber near the settlement and the power that was running to waste in the waters of the North West Arm Brook. He built a mill and harnessed up the power, and presto change! the old order passed away and a better one began. Now the settlement is officially known as Lockston, and with its group of well built and clean-kept houses and its little school-chapel, it is one of the many points of attractive interest in connection with Trinity.

Those who are improving the appearance of Trinity just now, and who at the same time are adding to their healthfulness, are those who are coating their fences and outhouses with lime. Nothing adds more to the appearance of a property than does the generous use of lime, and several of the properties in town are now ideal in their clean surroundings; and "still there's more to follow." Some people think that any fool can lime a fence, and yet, it is in reality a fine art to do so properly, without bespattering yourself and the ground, and leaving numberless "holidays." The person who can do it properly is an artist, and the person who does it generously is a public benefactor.

Garland Hotel (Mrs. Jenkins, Proprietor), has just been carefully repaired and renovated. There are several things about this Hotel that cannot be improved, and there are many of the travelling public who, speaking from experience would express their opinions of it in the words: "I have been there and still would go."

We heard with deep regret of the sudden death, at St. John's, of Mrs. Barbara White, (widow of Dr. Arthur White). She came to Trinity as a bride some years ago; all her children were born here; she was one of our talented and useful people; we missed her when she left us. May she rest in peace.

Mrs. Ethel Lockyer is spending a week at St. John's.

In my last notes I referred to the wonderful surface measurements of some of the boards taken from the old Britt store. To-day I measured one of those boards and found it to be 40 feet long, and 12 inches wide; other shorter lengths are eighteen inches wide.

The motor yacht F.P.U., from St. John's to Catalina, came into port on Wednesday morning having been prevented by ice from getting to Catalina.

Messrs Jennings and Guppy Fathers of the "Hoist" Motion-- Government Members Vote Solidly Against the Measure.

—June 10.
The House met at 3.45 p.m. Petitions were presented by Messrs. Abbott, Walsh and Sullivan, the latter for modification of the Prohibition Act which he claimed should be amended as promised in Mr. Squires' manifesto. Mr. Walsh in support felt the petitions of over 13,000 people should be taken notice of. The Maintenance of Public Roads Bill was read a third time and the Commemoration Day and Local Affairs Bills went through Committee. The Elections in the Present Year Bill was deferred and Protection of Animals Bill was read a second time. Minister of Finance Brownrigg gave notice of supply to-day. In dealing with the Elections Bill Mr. Squires pointed out it was intended to allow the use of lists used before, with certain amendments in the Bay de Verde section. At request of Messrs. Cashin and Higgins he finally agreed to defer it till to-day but not before both had shown they were not unacquainted with the Bill and had scathingly refuted his statement that they only intended obstruction. The Bill might easily have been introduced the previous day and it was only that the principle of the thing might be considered that postponement was asked for.
Mr. C. J. Fox (St. John's East) moved the second reading of the Women's Suffrage Bill, outlining the principle of and need for such a law. The honorable member's speech was both eloquent and unanswerable. To give Newfoundland's women the privilege to vote is not a courtesy. It is only right and justice. They are entitled to that right exactly as are men. No argument is advanced against the principle. Lots of cant is. We must regard women as co-workers. They obey the same laws as we, pay taxes, fulfil the duties of citizenship the same, and are without unrepresented in the House of Assembly. We pay much attention to matters of material moment but are absent when matters of moral importance receive consideration. It is because we do not know how to discuss them. The women do. They should be the ones to handle such subjects.

Mr. J. R. MacDonnell (St. George's) supported the second reading of the Bill, considering that the suggestion that women be entitled to voting privileges was a splendid one.
Mr. W. B. Jennings (Twillingate) opposed the measure on the plea that he had had no request to support it from his district, and moved the amendment that it be deferred for six months.
Mr. John Guppy (Trinity) seconded the amendment.
Mr. P. Moore (Ferryland) supported the Bill.
Mr. Fox said that he was not surprised at the attitude of the Government in opposing the Bill, and Messrs. Jennings and Guppy had played their part as had been expected of them.
Two other members of the Government who had previously supported the Bill now refrained from attendance and he wondered if it were deliberately he had not thought Mr. Jennings would play the part he did, but was glad to see that he and Mr. Guppy so clearly displayed their dependent position when the voice higher up says "jump." He was sorry that the lack of independence on the Government side did not allow more to favor the Bill. It was certainly in keeping with Liberal Reform when they would not support the greatest reform movement ever brought before the Government. Mr. Jennings would like people to think he did not disagree with the principle but was still weak-kneed enough not to see it through and was contradicted by his own argument. Agreement with a principle necessitates seeing it passed and no argument could be adduced for the six months' hoist which in other words meant the measure was of no importance and the Government had no time to deal with it. Only 6 or 8 hours altogether, however, were spent in legislation last week when the Act could have easily been passed. There is no time! Could hypocrisy go further. Do the Government think the people are blind? He had always thought the pre-election protestations of reform sincere but fully realized it now. The day will come when the Government will rue their attitude. He had no thought that the Prime Minister was so blind to his public duties as to say NO to the request of the women of the country and tie the knot that will hang him on the political gallows of Newfoundland. The day was coming when those, now deliberately insulted would have power placed in their hands and be able to be revenged on those who denied them their reasonable demands.

Does Mr. Jennings think the women of his district cannot formulate a demand?

mand without his consent or that the country must do without the vote because he was not consulted. It was only burking the issue when he played the part he was told to. As to Mr. Guppy, he had given no reasons for his conduct and Mr. Fox would not cross swords with him. The vote for women is bound to come as sure as that we got responsible government.

Mr. A. Targett stated that he was not lead in anything by the Prime Minister. "Of course not," retorted Mr. Fox. "Everybody knows that Mr. Coaker is boss."

Mr. Targett went on to say that he intended to vote for the measure, and didn't know why Mr. Jennings had opposed it.

The Prime Minister declared that Mr. Fox had made the measure a party one, and that his remarks anent the absence of Messrs. Small and LeGrow were dirty and insinuating.

Mr. Fox flatly refuted the imputation pointing out that Mr. Squires was misconstruing his statement from a query as to their absence into a definite charge. He had not said they stayed away deliberately but asked did they. He had not said Government members were a mass of hypocrites but that their action was hypocritical.

The Prime Minister stated that, as far as he was aware, no one had asked Mr. Jennings or Mr. Guppy to oppose the Bill and no arrangement had been made by the Government. The suggestion that the Government had decided to oppose the measure was not a fair one.

Mr. Fox: "I was informed yesterday by a Government member that it would be given the 'six months' hoist.'"

The Minister of Justice, Mr. Warren, considered the time inopportune to introduce it.

Mr. W. J. Higgins (St. John's East) could not appreciate the excuses for delaying the Bill. The matter was now in the House for discussion, and the only thing to be decided was whether or not the principle was right. If it was right now it would be right six months hence.

Mr. Jennings said that he had not been told to oppose it and asked Mr. Fox to retract his statement. He had volunteered to move the amendment.

Mr. Fox accepted the statement, particularly as, he pointed out, Mr. Jennings had confirmed his belief of the opposition being arranged because unless it was discussed how could Mr. Jennings volunteer for the work. The latter affirmed his belief in women having the vote to which Mr. Fox retorted he should give proof of his principles.

Mr. Walsh considered that the opposition to the Bill was nonsensical and it should be dealt with at once.

Mr. Sullivan wished to consult his constituents on the measure and felt that it should have been introduced earlier. He hoped to see it go to committee. The measure was defeated by a party vote of 13 to 9, the Government voting solidly against it.

The House adjourned at 6.45. The many ladies present expressed their disgust of the Government's tactics with unmistakable emphasis.

Lady Harris Opens Child Welfare Centre.

The following address was delivered by Lady Harris, wife of His Excellency the Governor, at the opening of the Child Welfare Centre at St. John's, which ceremony took place 3 o'clock yesterday afternoon, at the offices of the Board of Health, Duckworth St.

LADY HARRIS.—This is a great event! The opening of our first Centre in Child Welfare work. I think I may say "first" because certainly it is the first effort of the Women's Patriotic Association in this direction. But just before I came down here I received a letter from Miss Kendall in which she states that a Child Welfare Centre was opened here two years ago and has been running ever since. If so, it would have been better if my attention had been called to it. At any rate I gladly open this present Centre. May it be the forerunner of further developments and good for the mothers and children of the Colony.

We have to thank Miss Haslam and Miss Kendall for their efforts in bringing this about and we owe a debt of gratitude to Dr. Brehm who has throughout shown his sympathy with us in as practical a way as was in his power. Social development is uphill work and the spirits sometimes flag, and no wonder when they come up against walls of pessimism and the disheartening response to brave efforts. You will never succeed and no one will attend your meetings. It was not in this spirit that the "contemptible little Army" throw back the German hordes at Mons and the Marne.

We who are out to better the conditions of things want all the encouragement and inspiration we can get. I should like to take this opportunity of thanking Dr. Fraser, Dr. Rendell, Dr. Fallon, Dr. Macpherson and Dr. John Murphy, who have all been most kind in giving their help and encouragement in our Child Welfare work, either in one branch of it or another. We appreciate and value their co-operation very much and I know there are other medical men in this city who have also shown their interest and sympathy with us, but whom I have not yet had the pleasure of meeting.

And now Mothers, I want to say just a few words to you. You and your children will always find a welcome and more than a welcome, at this Centre, or any other Centre we may start in the future; the object of these Centres is to help mothers and those who are hoping to be mothers, with advice regarding the health, management, food and clothing of their babies. The mothers who wish it will have the chance of consulting a doctor at the Centre regarding her own or her child's health; she can come and have a friendly chat and rest with Miss Haslam or the nurses, have a cup of tea and be relieved of her baby for a time (for we have kind voluntary helpers who will take charge of the babies, to rest a tired mother). When I return from England in September, we will have a 'Baby Show' and prizes for the 2 best babies; but remember, it is not always the fattest baby that is the healthiest! The baby with nice firm flesh, showing wise feeding at regular times, plenty of fresh air, and sleep, and opportunity to kick its little limbs freely and so strengthen its muscles, is the baby that will come out on top.

Personal.

Mrs. (Constable) J. Simmonds and Mrs. N. H. Goss left by yesterday's express for Halifax and New York on a visit to friends.

Mr. John Mercer, watchmaker and photographer of Bay Roberts is at present in the city.

Mr. Raymond Harvey, brother of the late Hon. John Harvey, and who has been here on business, leaves on Sunday en route to New York. While here Mr. Harvey renewed old acquaintanceship with many.

Journalism in Newfoundland.

Those who have read Mark Twain's sketches of newspaper editing in the early days of the American West, probably carried away the idea that Ziark was stretching it a bit. Perhaps he was, but in any event he has nothing on the editors who hold forth in St. John's, Newfoundland. A reader Saturday Night sends along some specimen copies of recent editions of various St. John's papers, with the suggestion that perhaps it is the codfish which so excites the editors. "In any event," he says, "the pace is truly magnificent, and the strange part of it is they can keep it up all day."

The "Plaindealer," which certainly lives up to its name, has in its May 8th issue a double column editorial entitled "The Hell Cats of the Star." It leads off as follows: "The tactics and the antics of the Squires wing of our present so-called rulers prove to the mind of every intelligent citizen that Newfoundland is cursed to-day with the most despicable gang of public gentry that ever its political history produced."

Squires, it may be explained, is the Premier of Newfoundland. But what he and the editor of the "Star," together with his "henchmen, scavengers, base and ignoble, with low minds, shrunken hearts, and filled with canker," and so on for two columns, did to the editor of the "Plaindealer" is not clear. However, here is another note out of the St. John's "Telegram" of the same date. (Mr. Welsh in the House of Assembly—Ed.) concerning the aforesaid editor of the "Star":

"Only a diseased, contemptible mind—a low, debased cur—could write such. The proper place for such a cold-blooded reptile is in the polluted waters of a dead sea, swimming around with the other reptiles and snakes like him!"

Then along comes P. T. McGrath, in his paper the "Evening Herald." Either McGrath was not in form, or perhaps the editorial was not from his well-known pen. In any event, while castigating the editor of the "Star," as well as the Prime Minister, who does not appear to have many friends, his statements really suffer in comparison with those quoted above. The best he does is to say that the writing outfit of the "Star" is a "nondescript crew," fellows with low morals, no better than they should be, if as good, and lets it go at that.

No one can ever say that the Newfoundland does not take his politics seriously.—Saturday Night.

Hiram Johnson a Menace.

If the "Literary Digest's" poll is a clear indication that this is to be a Republican year and that the eight years of Democratic control at the White House is to end next March, the favorite among eight Republican possibilities is General Leonard Leonard Wood, with Hoover and Hiram Johnson almost paired for second choice, but considerably in the rear. Johnson seems to have been more successful than either in the primaries as so far reported, but with the tens of thousands of voters who are responding to the "Digest's" enquiries he is slightly behind Hoover and far below Wood.

The success of Hiram Johnson in securing pledges has even inspired Democratic leaders with hope. They feel, says the New York "Times," that if Hiram Johnson can rush the Republican convention as Bryan rushed the Democratic convention in 1896, then the Democrats may be able to snatch victory from what looks like almost certain defeat, because there are innumerable Republicans who will never cast a vote to put the Senator for California in the White House. The San Francisco "Argonaut," the most authentic voice of traditional Republicanism on the Pacific coast, holds him in abhorrence as a dangerous demagogue and Chauvinist, whose election to the presidency would be productive of international and domestic mischief. There must be many hundreds of thousands of Republicans in other states who agree with that view. It is one of the ironies of politics that Hiram Johnson would never have been either a party or public menace if it had not been for the tactics of Henry Cabot Lodge. When the Massachusetts Senator organized the fight against the Peace Treaty he was credited with presidential aspirations of his own. Johnson, by going him several points better in obstinacy, and adding truculence, insult to other nations and demagoguery to his battery of oratorical explosives, cut the ground from under his floor leader's feet. Hiram Johnson is Senator Lodge's Frankenstein, and the question that is now agitating moderate men is how his hopes may be slain.

Johnson has the assurance to label all his many undesirable attributes "Americanism." He denounces the abilities that have made Hoover a world figure, as un-American. But there are many Americans who are prouder of the silent, efficient kind of Americanism embodied in Hoover than of the voluble and familiar variety typified by Johnson. Thus speaks a Hooverite: "He is as American as corn on the cob; as a straw ride in the country; as buckwheat cakes and sausage for breakfast."

We Canadians do not care which party wins so long as the next president is a man who will keep the peace on this continent and be tolerant in his attitude toward other peoples. Either Hoover or Wood would be popular with us, as would some other possibilities not so much in the limelight. But we all sincerely hope that the Republican convention at Chicago will make an end of such a bad neighbor as Hiram Johnson.—Saturday Night.

Katherine of Aragon.

Katherine of Aragon, whose wedding with Henry VIII. took place on June 11, 1509, is familiar to most of us as the first wife of that British Bluebeard, the Spanish consort from whom he was divorced to marry her Protestant lady-in-waiting, Anne Boleyn. Before she came to England, Katherine had had an eventful and ever romantic career. She was born at Alcalá de Henares (on the way from ramparted Toledo to sunny Granada), and was the daughter of Ferdinand of Aragon and of Isabella of Castile—the famous couple known in Spanish history as the "Reyes Católicos," who drove the Moors out of Spain. In fact, they were besieging Granada, the last stronghold of the turbaned hosts of Mohammedans, about the time of Katherine's birth. The royal children lived with their parents in the town of tents the Spaniards had raised near the beleaguered city, and one day the Moors made a sally, forced their way into the camp, and fired Ferdinand's "canvas palace," from which the little princess was rescued with some difficulty. But Granada was finally captured and she spent a happy childhood among the pomegranates and myrtles of the Alhambra, the beautiful hilltop which a poet has styled "Aladdin's Palace of Delight." When she grew up, she came to England to marry Arthur, elder brother of Henry VIII, and her dress in the latest Madrid fashion caused some sensation. Her magnificent mantle was studded with gold and pearls, some stones, and she had a farthingale (or crinoline, as we should now call it) "certain round hoops bearing out the gown from the waist downwards—a novelty which speedily became popular. She was then barely sixteen. Arthur died soon after her marriage and Henry VIII. appears to have married his brother's widow in accordance with the death-bed request of his father, Henry VII.

FLEMING IN LIGHTWEIGHT CLASS.

Montreal, June 3.—Frankie Fleming's failure to make the required weight for Johnny Kilbane, the featherweight champion, automatically forced him into the lightweight ranks. He fully realized that it was next to impossible for him to make the weight and still do himself justice. Thursday night he makes his debut as a lightweight and he arrives to-day from Toronto to put on the flashing touches to his training. The vital question, as far as the Canadian boxer is concerned is, is he good enough? Georges Papin, lightweight champion of France, will be his trial horse. Papin is a real lightweight, weighing at the present moment between 133 and 134 pounds. Fleming, on the other hand, is about 132, so that there will be little difference between them in this department.

This is a crucial struggle for both of them. Fleming has to make good to show that he is deserving of bouts in the lightweight ranks, while on the other hand, Papin is fighting his second bout on this side of the Atlantic and, like Tommy Noble, who was recently here under the same promoters, he knows that the fans will have to be shown. Noble undoubtedly showed them a few things, and the fans went home tickled with the bout. There is no reason to believe that Manager Descamps, that shrewd little chap who has guided the destinies of Georges Carpentier and Georges Papin to the pinnacles of success in Europe, has brought other than a real star as his protegee in the American invasion of the lightweight ranks and Papin's record across the pond is convincing in this respect. This is the first time that Montreal, the largest French city in America, has ever seen a real French champion in a real bout. Manager Descamps will be in Papin's corner and Fleming will be the target of his hypnotic eye.

FOREIGN BOXERS ARE GOOD BUSINESS MEN.

New York.—What foreign pugilists lack in fistic skill, says the Evening Telegram, they make up in business acumen. Papin was destitute of punch and cleverness, yet he was shrewd enough to hoodwink the American public out of a tidy sum by playing the anvil to Tendler's southpaw sledge.

Jimmy Wilde is first, last and all the time a business man, although in every instance he has given full value for every dollar received. Carpentier could give most of our native pugilists cards and spades and take the financial pot every time. Now Joe Beckett comes forth to show that he, too, is a mental sprinter, as he begins his quest for American dollars.

Beckett was matched to meet Frank Moran in London. The bout stirred widespread interest in the British capital where Moran has long been popular. Beckett relished the prospects of fat receipts.

But Moran came fast. Where he was expected to blow he showed exceptional form. He stepped into Journe's, and slew him with a load of dynamite plumb on his Roman bugle. He walked up to Godard, of England, and dealt him a similar charge on the crest of the brow. It was murder in the first degree.

That was enough for Josephus. A chill shot down his spine and frapped his feet. He developed a sore hand. The Moran match was called off. Beckett awaits the day to depart for this country.

THAT WE MAINTAIN WAS GENERALSHIP ON THE PART OF BECKETT.

That we maintain was generalship on the part of Beckett.

TO FIGHT FOR TITLE.

Chicago.—Benny Leonard, lightweight champion, has signed, it was announced to-day, to defend his title against Charlie White, of Chicago, in a ten-round contest at Benton Harbor, Mich., on July 5. Leonard will receive a guarantee of $15,000. The weight will be 135 pounds at 10 o'clock.

JOHNSON UNPOPULAR.

New York.—If Jess Willard actually intends to come back, says the Evening Telegram, he should drop all idea of meeting Jack Johnson. Willard's fistic stock is at the muddy bottom now. If he undertakes to meet Johnson it will vanish altogether.

Talk of Johnson returning and being accepted by boxing is ridiculous. It might have been possible in the dead era of prize fighting. But in this enlightened period boxing has no place for such as Johnson. The negro is through—as dead pugilistically as any one of a thousand salt herring crammed into a barrel.

As for Willard, devotees of the ring are curious. Doubtless they would welcome him back. There is no demand for his return. He has few admirers. The months of circling and inactivity turned the public against him. And Dempsey added the finishing touches when he reduced him to a juicy portion of potted beef in that sun-tortured arena at Toledo last Independence Day.

But there is room for Willard.

WILDE LIKES AMERICA.

New York.—Jimmy Wilde, England's wonderful midge boxer, says he has changed his ideas about America now that he has been over here long enough to become acquainted. Wilde is going to write a book on American sportsmanship when he returns to England. When he made his first appearance in the ring here, and got licked by Jack Sharkey, thereby losing the chance to fight at the opening of the International Sporting Club for a record purse, Wilde was sore, and he planned to put his burning thoughts into his book.

But now that he has made good, and he finds the Americans have nothing but praise for his great work in the ring, the little Englishman has reached the conclusion that the fight fans in this country are not such bad fellows after all. Instead of roasting promoters, managers and fighters, he is going to have a kind word to say for all.

WEIGHT FAKERS.

When boxing begins in New York State every boxer should be made to register his weight when he takes out his license. That would give the sporting public a line on who is who in the various divisions. It goes without saying that some startling revelations would be made. It probably would result in a complete new set of champions for the lighter classes.

If Pete Hermann, the bantam title holder, ever makes 116 pounds, ring-side, he will surprise every one connected with the sport. When Hermann makes weight at all he scales 118 in the afternoon and weighs about 120 by fight time. That is only two pounds less than the limit of the class above. It is obvious that a two pounds difference between the classes is a joke.

Featherweight champion Kilbane is the most unsportsmanlike of all the champions in this matter of weight. Kilbane recently took a forfeit from an opponent who weighed less than he did himself. It is Kilbane's habit to force his opponents to make weight while he comes in at catch weights, so that he always has a substantial advantage in that respect. However, Kilbane may be able to make 122 pounds if he trains hard enough. He did not grow much bigger as he grew older.

It would be intensely interesting to see Lightweight Champion Benny Leonard on the scales. Leonard's poundage is a profound secret. Ever since he won the title it has been charged that he really belongs in the welterweight division. These charges have hurt Leonard's prestige greatly. If they are not true it would be the easiest matter in the world to refute them. All he would have to do is get on the scales in public the first time he trains for a fight. But he will not do that.

Back in 1916, when Leonard was a rather slimly built strippling, his weight was announced at 136 for one of his bouts with Johnny Dundee. Since then he has filled out to such an extent that he now possesses the back and shoulders of a middleweight. Leonard always did have rather heavy legs and they have grown in proportion to the rest of his body. What he actually does weigh, is, of course, merely a matter of guesswork. Some of his closest friends say he cannot make 140 pounds, no matter how hard he trains. He certainly looks like a 146 pounder.

A Tactical Error.

A major of marines had his battalion out in the brush in Cuba for a problem in observation. He detailed a private to go to a small hill about a quarter of a mile away and conceal himself. The battalion would then try to locate the private with field glasses as a training for finding enemy scouts and snipers during actual battle conditions.

The private trotted off and, at a signal from the major, flopped to the ground. The major turned around to explain the problem to the battalion but, upon turning again, was much incensed to see the private standing again in full view of all. Seizing a pair of signal flags from a sergeant, the major wig-wagged wrathfully: "Why don't you lie down as I ordered?"

Upon which the private on the sky line wig-wagged back respectfully but with great emphasis: "Sir, why did the major order me to lie down on an ant hill?"—The Home Sector.

Those Ads---Oh, Boy!

(By P.O.D. in Saturday Night, Toronto.)

On our desk we have just found a copy of "Vogue." We don't know how this copy of "Vogue" happens to be lying here—our purchases of magazines are limited to the "Police Gazette" and "Snappy Stories"—but we take advantage of the opportunity to plunge into the advertising page. Before doing so, however, we have locked our door. We would hate to be caught gazing upon those wonderful realistic portraits of lovely young ladies clad only in shimmering "undies," with which the advertising pages of women's magazines are now filled. It would be far less embarrassing if Father Murphy should drop in and find us reading an unexpurgated edition of "The Decameron"—we could at least tell him we had reviewed it.

Two or three years ago it used to be the corset-ads which aroused our unhealthy interest. You may remember the portraits of ladies—ideal heavy, ideal slim, ideal short-waisted, ideal large-busted, and all the other stock sizes—who were shown wandering about palatial rooms in the sort of harness which laces in front. Sometimes they were seen answering the phone, sometimes presiding over the chafing-dish. We even recall one beautiful blonde who was feeding the gold-fish in straight-fronted abandon—we have always thought gold-fish had a lot to put up with.

We used to think that advertising frankness could go no farther without bringing upon the magazine the vengeance of the Police Court and having the whole edition seized. We had some thought, in fact, of writing a hot letter to the authorities ourselves. But nothing was done. No fashionable clergyman was done in the pulpit and delivered an impassioned sermon against such goings-on. The Mothers' Meetings which were working so hard to remove moral stumbling-blocks from our feet—those of us who are not mothers—took no step to make the ladies in the advertisements put, on a kimono, at least, before they had their pictures taken. They might petition the government to have the reproduction of the Venus de Milo in the local museum draped, but then, of course, Venus is not engaged in boosting a new style in brassieres or anything of that vital sort.

Encouraged by their immunity, the advertisers and the women's magazines have naturally gone to farther lengths—or should we say "shorts"? Certainly the garments displayed with such photographic fidelity seem to become more and more simplified and abbreviated. If they go one step farther there will nothing left on the ladies in the pictures to sell. Even the pear necklaces have been laid aside—as savouring of over-dressing, no doubt. And the corset—but, of course, that has been discarded long ago. So far as we can learn of feminine customs from the advertising pictures, the corset is as obsolete as the suit of chain-mail. Nothing remains but the envelope. Possibly the corset is concealed under the envelope, like a cheque in a letter, but we would rather than seek information on the subject. We may be a poor, ignorant newspaperman, but we have our delicacy.

The first thing that meets our eye as we open this copy of "Vogue" is a picture of a shapely young woman coming out of church in a garment very difficult to describe if our articles are to go on being read aloud in Christian homes. If you were to take a suit of overalls and cut the legs and arms entirely off and replace the upper story with a couple of narrow strips of baby-ribbon, you would get some idea of the shape and extent of it. As for the material, the "ad" explains that it is made of "sheerest nainsook." Now we don't know what nainsook is, but we are blushingly aware of what the word "sheerest" implies. It usually means that you have to look twice to be sure the darn thing is there at all.

Possibly the reader will regard our statement that the young lady is coming out of church in this most un-Sabbatical garb as a piece of blasphemous exaggeration on our part. In that case, we can only suggest that the reader should take a good look at the picture for the reader's self. If the architecture of that huge doorway isn't ecclesiastical, we are willing to eat our words or our hat or a section of one of the pillars.

But suppose it really isn't intended for a church. Suppose she is just leaving the art-gallery or the head-offices of a bank—they are all like Grecian temples these days—is the effect on public morals any less deplorable? Possibly the poor girl had just gone in to draw a little money to pay for the rest of her costume, but what is to become of the religious principles of our younger bank-clerks if this sort of thing goes on?

The explanation, which accompanies this overwhelming picture only accentuates one's shocked bewilderment. "Lithe as a dancer's limbs," it says, "soft as a maiden's lashes. They fit so softly, they give a new freedom to the walk. They may be had in textures snowy white or of a dainty peachbloom hue."

Obviously it is not intended that the possessors of these extraordinary garments should wear corsets, for the modern corset, as everyone knows, is equipped with a block-and-tackle outfit for purposes of hose-support which would eventually take away any freedom of walk which might otherwise be gained. The thing that puzzles us about the modern woman is how in the world she has avoided acquiring a gait like that of a thoroughbred hackney. But this is now all a thing of the past, we presume. Nothing but unfettered freedom from now on.

Seriously, though, can you imagine the sensation that would be caused if the young lady in the pictures were to step lightly out of a bank entrance in the costume she wears—say one of "dainty peachbloom hue"? Can you see the terrific and immediate congestion of traffic, the police reserves hurriedly called out, the indignant guardians of public morals sternly clubbing middle-aged financiers back into their offices—that is, if the cops didn't stop to gaze and marvel themselves.

And if the architecture shown in the photograph is really ecclesiastical, as we still insist it is, what a solution this Arocadian costume would be of the problem of deserted churches! With what eagerness would men rush to perform the duties they have notoriously been neglecting for years! The lines of the waiting congregation would stretch for blocks—they might even sit on the curb all right as they do for hockey finals—and speculators would scabably be holding the best pews for fabulous prices. Only the other day we read a sermon by a distinguished clergyman, who said that the future of the churches was in the hands of the women. We trust, however, that he had nothing like this in mind.

Turning over a few pages from this remarkable work of art, we come upon another quite as singular and significant in its way. Like the first,

It depicts a comely young person in the same scant costume, except that she has on a pair of silk stockings, portrait study, however, was apparently made in the privacy of the home. What is interesting about the picture is that it shows the young lady coquettishly displaying the lower section of the garment, while her maid kneels before her with clasped hands in an attitude of absolute adoration. The kneeling woman is just as pretty and graceful as the other; but we know at once she is a servant because she has most of her clothes on—the lower classes still seem to retain some primitive preference for covering themselves up.

The picture—incidentally, it is a very charming camera-study—throws a flood of illumination, a regius search-light, on the feminine attitude towards dress. We have long felt that women really worship pretty clothes, but never before have we seen them kneeling before mere raiment with the enraptured expression of a devout soul of the shrine of a favorite saint. Now if, instead of the pretty maid on her knees, it had been a gallant in brocaded silk and lace ruffles—or even in a morning-coat and spats—well, that would be another matter entirely. Besides, he probably wouldn't be thinking much about the young lady's rather intimate little frock—men are so stupid about such things, you know.

The set of directions which go with this picture are also very interesting, and afford an answer to certain questions which have bothered us for a long time. We have often been puzzled, for instance, as to how ladies got into and out of such garments. Owing to our stern celibacy and pious upbringing, we have never had an opportunity of finding out for ourselves. Nor have we ever had the face to ask, in spite of the habitual spirituality and blandness of our countenance. Men are so easily misunderstood in this wicked world. But the omniscient advertising writer—where do these chaps get their information, anyway?—explains the whole thing to us.

"Since buttons will not stay buttoned or nor snaps stay snapped, why have them at all?" he pertinently inquires. "With this lithe step-in envelope, you will get the delightful feeling of being well put together."

There is a simple solution of all our difficulties and bewilderment—they simply "step in"! Could anything more obvious? The only thing that astonishes us now is why we never thought of it before. But perhaps we are not altogether to blame for this. All our childhood recollections in such matters are connected with ladies dropping their clothes on over their heads, as is done with the harness of fire-horses. Never do we recall seeing our aunts or grown-up female cousins stepping into anything. We always thought it was only men who stepped into their clothes—obviously one cannot drop a pair of trousers over one's head with any sober expectation of getting them on. But it is clear to us now that a great many changes have taken place since those distant days when we were admitted to the intimacies of the boudoir.

"You may have this little envelope," the wise ad-writer reminds us, "with the bow-knot just where it shows elusively through a sheer blouse, or you may have it plain."

Just where it shows? And here we have been thinking all along that such displays were in the nature of an accident, something unforeseen at which a perfect gentleman was not supposed to look! Every time our eye has inadvertently fallen on just such an "elusive" little bow, we have turned blushing away. And now it is clear to us now that a great many changes have taken place since those distant days when we were admitted to the intimacies of the boudoir.

There is one question we would like to ask, and that is... (Oh, Reader, an awful thing has just happened! The person who owns the copy of "Vogue" on our desk has just come in for it—he's a fat middle-aged widower and he works on a church paper. He muttered something about having been in to see us, and we weren't in, and he forgot it, and it's for his daughter, and he never looks at the thing himself, and we don't believe a darn word of it—do you?)

Curious Tenures.

The householder of to-day who has to pay an exorbitant rent for his suburban villa will find little consolation in the knowledge that many of the lordly pleasure-houses of our nobility are held at rents ridiculously less.

Thus the Duke of Wellington holds Strathfieldsaye on condition that he presents a flag annually to the Sovereign; while Blenheim is held by the Duke of Marlborough on a similar tenure. A less familiar fact is that the Marquis of Aylesbury holds his estate only on condition that if Royalty should visit him, he presents to the King an ivory drinking-cup.

Bury House, in the New Forest, the property of the Mill family, is held under a tenure similar to that under which the Aylesbury family hold Savernake. The occupant must present the King, whenever he enters the New Forest, with a brace of milk-white greyhounds. And a white rose is the rent the Duke of Atholl must pay for Blair Atholl whenever the Sovereign visits there.

The Manor of Broughton, with its 2,200 acres of land, was formerly held by one of the most extraordinary tenures on record. Every Palm Sunday a man from Broughton had to visit the village church with a long gab or goad whip, which he cracked three times in the porch. At the beginning of the second lesson he had to approach the clergyman, kneel down opposite to him, and, holding the whip and a purse attached to the handle, wave it over his head three times. This purse contained thirty pieces of silver, and was afterwards given to the church. The curious ceremony was only dropped in comparatively recent years.

A Most Trying Time In A School Girl's Life

"Nothing is more common with physicians" writes Hon. Dr. W. H. Roberts, Minister of Health, New Brunswick, "than to find that during the few weeks preceding the closing of the school term, we are visited by mothers having with them their daughters who have been cramming for final examinations and in the majority of instances the story related is something like this—'Doctor! I have brought Mary to you to see if you cannot do something for her. You know she has been leading her class nearly all of the term; she is competing for the Governor-General's Medal, and we are so anxious that she be successful; but of late it is so hard for her to study, her head aches, she has no appetite, we cannot force her to partake of food, her bowels are constipated, she is so nervous, Doctor, she cannot get to sleep, sometimes for hours after she retires.'"

"She is so white and frail looking. We also notice her twitching her face, eyelids and mouth a lot, and of late tossing her head to and fro and we are fearful, if something is not done, she will not hold out and we do, so much, want her to take the honours she has worked so hard for all winter."

"We take a look at the girl and find that in almost every particular the word picture of the mother quite correctly describes the condition found. We find she is truly very anemic in appearance, tongue quite heavily coated, generally far below the average weight. We notice, too, the nervous symptoms spoken of by the mother, simulating a beginning chorea, or St. Vitus' dance. Upon examination of the heart, which she complains about as beating rapidly at times, there is revealed a functional murmur, and suspecting from her headache some possible eye complications, we have her see an oculist, who reports severe condition of astigmatism. At the same time, bear in mind, nature is doing her best to shapen and perfect her scheme of physical economy."

Such remarkable results are being obtained by the use of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, under conditions so well described by Dr. Roberts, that it becomes a duty as well as a pleasure to tell others about it.

This letter from Mrs. Parks of 72 Picton St., Hamilton, Ont., is very very interesting in this connection. She writes:—"Five years ago my little girl was taken ill with St. Vitus' dance, and for four years we doctored her, trying several doctors and different remedies without curing her. She could not walk or get around at all, and we had to feed her, as she was unable to hold a spoon in her hand. Her tongue was affected so that we could scarcely understand her when she talked. One day a friend of mine who knew of the benefits of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food advised me to give my little girl some. I acted upon her advice, and soon could notice a difference. She was quieting down and commenced to eat better. I continued the treatment for some time, and she gradually got stronger and healthier. She recovered from her nervous trouble and was able to get around nicely. We are very grateful to Dr. Chase's Nerve Food for the cure it effected for our daughter."

Notes From Brigus.

Mr. J. F. Hearn, who had been on a surveying trip at Bonne Bay, arriv- ed home by Thursday night's train.

J. W. Hiscock's schooner "Vickery- Vimy" (formerly the "Turian"), left for St. John's on Monday evening to load supplies.

On Monday the 7th inst. a very en- joyable concert was held in the C. of E. schoolroom. The programme con- sisted of songs, choruses and recita- tions and was entirely carried out by the school children. Ice cream was served during the interval.

The schooner "Clarence B." Par- sons master, arrived on Monday evening with a cargo of coal to C. A. Jer- rett. The "Emile M. Morrissey," H. Bartlett master, arrived, coal laden the same night. Both vessels were placed on quarantine upon arrival. In the absence of the M.D., the services of Dr. McCleod of Bay Roberts, were secured to release the crew of the "Clarence," but as the "Morrissey" had not arrived at that time, her crew were forced to remain on board till the arrival of Dr. Gill on Tuesday's noon train.

The surrounding hills have been shrouded in smoke for the past week, which is startling evidence of the ex- tensive and destructive fires which are raging in the interior. We have heard of various conflagrations at sev- eral wooded localities not very far distant.

The schooners "Clarence" and "Morrissey" commenced discharging their coal cargoes on Tuesday and Wednesday respectively. The price per ton is $18.00, plus sixty cents for cartage, but Mr. Jerrett offers a re- bate of 5% for cash payment.

A very pretty wedding took place at 8 a.m. in the Methodist church, on Wednesday, when the Rev. Oliver Jackson united in the bonds of matrimony Mr. J. Butt of the Cable Office at Placentia, and Miss Mildred Rabbitts, daughter of Mr. J. No. Rabbitts, pro- prietor of the Cabot Hotel. After the ceremony the bridal party returned by motor to the Cabot, where break- fast was served, whence they entrain- ed to spend the honeymoon. We wish Mr. and Mrs. Butt many years of wedded bliss.

Mrs. Thos. Chalker, who has been spending a time with relatives here, returned to town by this morning's train.

British Pastor Raps Prohibition.

The 116th anniversary festival of the Licensed Victuallers' School was celebrated with the customary ban- quet at the Connaught rooms, says the London Daily Telegraph.

Proposing the toast of the "Imperi- al Forces," the Rev. B. G. Bouchier, whose recent protest against prohi- bition at a meeting at the Hampstead Garden Suburb, attracted a good deal of attention, said that at this critical moment of our national history, there was an obvious danger that we might barter away the freedom won at so great a cost. He had ventured to take a tiny stand on behalf of one of our greatest liberties.

Prohibition was a determined and considered attempt to destroy one of the most cherished liberties of a freeborn people. The national char- acter, of which we were so proud, had its roots, surely, in good cheer and convivial company. Generous hospitality was an inherited instinct of the British people, and he could conceive no greater injury to our nation at this critical time than the introduction of a measure, against the will of the people, which was bound to embitter and divide the nation, and he had been charged by his opponents with having said that prohi- bition played into the hands of the Bolshevik and agitator. He repeated that charge. (Cheers.) To introduce a prohibitionist measure when we were harassed by economic and po- litical problems of unprecedented magnitude, would be to do the dead an intolerable wrong. Our national indebtedness stood at £7,000,000,000. What was the good of trying to stir up the working man to do his ut- most for the country, and then to take from him that which was first his right, and secondly, not only his drink but his food? (Cheers.) He had not lived in centres of industry for nothing, and he felt that it was contemptible to try to take away from the workers that which he believed was essential if they were to do their utmost. "We may have our faults and habits that need to be corrected," said Mr. Bouchier, "but if they are to be revised and corrected, by God only Britons shall do it." (Cheers.) He urged them to use all the means in their power to defeat this soul- destroying tyranny.

Will You Risk Twenty Dollars

On a "flyer" of only $20.00 (or any other higher amount if desired)? We can suggest a marginal stock purchase to you that should, in our opinion, show exceedingly good profits within say three months.

If interested, it costs you nothing to get all the details, and you can then accept or reject our plan, just as you wish.
