Opinion Divided as to Whether House Will Meet in November or in December. Many Important Matters Millitate Against an Early Session

OTTAWA, Sept. 9.—The evening session in discussing the work to be taken by the cabinet council now that Premier Borden has returned to Canada, says: After the tumult and demonstration incident to the return of the prime minister yesterday, the cabinet council, without delay, will get down to the accumulation of work which awaits its attention. One of the first things will be a survey of the situation to determine what date is preferable for the assembling of parliament. Then a great budget of legislation for presentation to it must be prepared. Opinion seems somewhat divided as to whether the house will meet in November or in December. The question has not yet been considered but will be at once.

SIR THOMAS SHAUGHNESSY GIVES OUT STATEMENT WITH REFERENCE TO STOCK ISSUE AND POLICY OF THE BIG ROAD

Says New Stock Issue is Made Necessary by the Increasing Scope of the Operations of the Canadian Pacific

WINNIPEG, Sept. 8.—Sir Thomas Shaughnessy, president of the Canadian Pacific Railway, arrived in the city by special train tonight on his annual inspection tour of the system.

Sir Thomas and his party were met at the station by Sir William Whyte and A. M. Nanton, George Bury, vice-president and general manager of the road, Grant Hall, general superintendent.

Interviewed later, Sir Thomas made a full statement of the Canadian Pacific policy with regard to the new stock issue, the issue of stock below the market quotations, freight rate jurisdiction and other matters of much interest concerning the Canadian Pacific Railway.

He stated that the increasing scope of the company's undertakings, and was in no way affected by the fact that large dividends have been paid.

He was full of optimism concerning the outlook this fall. "Last year fearful things were predicted," he said, "but everybody came out all right. It will be just the same this time. You can't keep the rates down; and it is impossible to discount it."

Discussing the proposed stock issue of the Canadian Pacific Railway, Sir Thomas said: "The policy and affairs of the Canadian Pacific are proper subjects for discussion and criticism by the public and the press of Canada."

"Most people forget or do not know that the cash subsidies, large amounts received from the sale of land and the proceeds of land grant bonds, all of which were applied to the construction and equipment of the railway, play no part whatever in the accounts of the company, the cost of the property being recorded in the balance sheet."

"The land grant has proved to be a most valuable asset, but if we go back to 1888 we find that $15,000,000 of land grant bonds, secured by the entire land grant of the company and fortified by a Dominion government guarantee of interest, only realized about 90 in the market."

"In 1901 the average selling price of the lands was a shade over $3 an acre. In 1902 the first real activity in land sales commenced, due in considerable measure to sales in large areas given to colonization agents at a very low figure, but in that year the average price an acre realized was only $3.28. Since then the price has steadily advanced, and the railway company, the farmer and the owner of farm lands of any other description in Western Canada has reaped the benefit of enhanced values. So that for seventeen years after the completion of the railway the land grant in that vast wilderness was not covered by anybody, and it was only after 1902 that stupendous efforts and the vast expenditures of the company to attract attention and bring people to the country commenced to bear fruit and the land grant became an important feature in the company's financial affairs."

"Sir Thomas passed on to a consideration of the proposed control of rates by parliament after the company pays 10 per cent. dividends. "I notice," he said, "that frequent reference is made to what is known as the '10 per cent. clause' in the company's contract with the Dominion government. Briefly stated, the contract provided that the company's rates for carrying traffic should not be subject to parliamentary supervision until such a time as the company was earning 10 per cent. annum on the capital actually invested in the work. Dividends played no part, you will observe. It made no difference whether the company was paying 20 per cent. 10 per cent. 5 per cent. or no dividend at all. The determining factor was the earnings resulting from the operation of the railway. For a long time we have not pleased that we were not earning 10 per cent."

"Our rates and tolls have been submitted to the railway commission and are dealt with in exactly the same way as those of any other railway company in the country, excepting the Intercolonial, which does not come under the jurisdiction of the commission. So that the '10 per cent. clause,' as it is called, has been a dead issue for a considerable period, the lowest on the continent but the subject of rates is under consideration, and, therefore, I do not think it proper to enlarge upon the subject. It may be taken up at any time, whatever the decision of the commission may be, the '10 per cent. clause' will not be a factor, directly or indirectly. As I said before, it was a condition of the original contract that the company's earnings and the growth of the company's assets should not be pleaded nor even if the company desired to do so."

"The home rule bill will therefore pass through the House of Commons before the end of this year, but I take it that after that measure has become law, wish that strong common sense that characterizes northern Irishmen, our present opponents will rapidly change their attitude."

MASQUERADING WOMEN POSE AS COWGIRLS

Denizens of Underworld Mis-Lead Public Into Believing They Were Performers

Episode Productive of Much Chagrin to Visiting Participants in Stampede

Three women from the "Couteau" Friday night stirred themselves as cowgirls and posed themselves off as participants in the Stampede and entered into a drunken debauch along Ninth avenue, one of them attempting to climb the sprinkling wagon near the King George Hotel.

For a time there were those who believed they were members of the Stampede contingent, but the delusion was dispelled when they revealed their true colors.

The episode has been productive of much chagrin on the part of the cowgirls and cowboys who resent this attempt to cast a stigma upon them.

Possibly no gathering has been charged with a more orderly and dignified and good natured assemblage than the several hundred cowboys and cowgirls who gave their best for the entertainment.

The young women in particular have been made in department and, despite the physically rough side of their profession, they are the bravest and clearest people. All come from good families in the cattle country, many are highly accomplished and "soft stage" live among refined surroundings, and like the true western type are accepted for their intrinsic worth rather than for unnatural veneer.

It is said for the cowboys that whatever drunkenness or disorder occurred in the city did not include any of their number and no matter what the visitor could be asked for than these men.

As to the cowgirls, they stood out prominently as the bravest, clearest and most daring women that have ever appeared before the public, always trying to please and proud to uphold the prestige attained by their sex in the most strenuous to which woman-kind has been fured.

BATTLE FOR HOME RULE HAS BEEN WON

Irish Leader Writes That Only Opposition Comes From a Section of Ulster

Philadelphia, Sept. 9.—Michael J. Ryan, of this city, president of the United Irish League of America, today received a letter from John R. Redmond, the Irish home rule leader, stating that his brother, William Redmond, would sail from Ireland on Thursday of this week to attend the national convention of the league to be held in Philadelphia the latter part of this month, and declaring that so far as Great Britain is concerned, the battle for home rule has been won.

"Our only embarrassment," he said, "is in the attitude taken by a section of the people of Ulster." Continuing, he says: "This attitude will, of course, prevent the passage of the home rule bill, and my own strong belief is that after that measure has become law, wish that strong common sense that characterizes northern Irishmen, our present opponents will rapidly change their attitude."

"The home rule bill will therefore pass through the House of Commons before the end of this year, but I take it that after that measure has become law, wish that strong common sense that characterizes northern Irishmen, our present opponents will rapidly change their attitude."

Weather Conditions of Southern Alberta Yesterday Could Not Have Been Better

Lethbridge, Alta., Sept. 9.—In Southern Alberta between fifty and sixty per cent. of the grain has been cut. Recent rains have not caused much damage, if indeed any, to uncut grain, nor has grain in the stock suffered to any extent. The frost damage has been very slight and calls for no serious attention. The weather today has been magnificent, being very warm with a nice breeze fanning the grain. The farmers are optimistic and predict a spell of warm weather which will put the crop in safe condition. There are no signs of frost, and the outlook is excellent.

CANADA AND THE SUFFRAGETTE

Recent interviews with several provincial premiers indicate that the threat of an invasion of Canada by the militant suffragettes holds no terrors for some, at least these gentlemen. Premier Gouin, of Quebec, was canny and refused to be drawn, leaving himself open to the suspicion that he may be a trifle nervous. Premier Murray of Nova Scotia, was chiefly concerned to show that Mr. Borden, in the famous interview with the shrieking sisterhood in London, was not half so brave as we thought him. It is charged that Mr. Borden did show the white feather after all, trading upon their ignorance of the Canadian constitution and persuading them, contrary to the facts, that the matter was one in which the federal government was powerless to act. The acting premier of Prince Edward Island was almost defiant in his hostility to female suffrage. To the interviewer he made the original observation that "the hand that rocks the cradle rules the world", deducing from this great truth the absurdity of any desire on the part of that hand to share in the government of any part of the world.

Most defiant of all, however, was the gallant knight, Sir Robin of Manitoba. Was it because he felt himself to be more secure than his brother premiers who are nearer the port of landing, where Chrissy and her cohorts would make their first call? Is he hopeful that he may be able to make a dash for the Pacific coast while they are making official calls on the premiers of the Maritime provinces or wreaking upon Mr. Borden with a hatchet their vengeance for the deceit which his timidity dictated when they cornered him in London? Or is the gallant knight of Manitoba at last convinced that the end of his government is approaching and, secure in this coming freedom from responsibility, gaining a reputation for courage by defying an enemy who cannot arrive before he has relinquished his command.

It is true that Sir Rodmond is careful to declare that his uncompromising opposition to the female vote is dictated by his profound devotion to the sex. This is a ruse, however, which has not only ceased to disarm criticism but actually irritates the members of the belligerent sisterhood. In fact, it is to be feared that Sir Rodmond is a little unfortunate in his statement of the case. When he says: "I think too much of woman to have her entangled in the mesh of politics," it will not be likely to soothe the ruffled feelings of the Pankhurst party, but when he adds: "She would be stooping from the pedestal on which she has sat for centuries," one can almost hear their shrieks of fury as they grasp their hatchets and prepare to swoop down upon that luckless knight. We can understand the desire of any woman, regardless of her political predilections, desiring to break something when she is told that her sex is a graven image that has been sitting upon a pedestal for centuries. The prospect of passing centuries on a pedestal, even with the assurance that a succession of such gallant knights will bow the knee before it in adoration, is not precisely thrilling. Sir Rodmond's statement invites the retort that after centuries of life on a pedestal woman feels a desire to descend and seek a sphere in which there is a little more movement and excitement. The Manitoba premier's position would undoubtedly have been much safer if he had rested content with rhapsodies about the power of "the hand that rocks the cradle."

Only the conviction that the militant methods will find no favor even with the most enthusiastic supporters of the movement in Canada relieves us of a serious concern for the safety of Sir Rodmond's person.

PEACE AND WAR PREPARATIONS

It is time that a protest was entered against the argument reiterated with such tiresome monotony, that "the best way to ensure peace is to prepare for war." To declare that it is unsound is not to assert that such preparations are unnecessary but merely to call attention to the very obvious truth that here are a hundred influences more potent in ensuring peace.

Preparation for war is inevitable so long as war must be regarded as a possible danger. The necessity for such preparation must be recognized even when it is most deeply deplored. It will find sufficient ground for support in this necessity without resort to the hypocrisy that it, above all other influences will ensure peace. So far is this from the truth that, however ready we may be to acknowledge the necessity for these preparations, we must see no less clearly that they act as an irritant rather than as a sedative. This should be clear to anyone who has watched the competition in armaments between Germany and Great Britain. Each "crisis" in the seemingly interminable series precipitated by an addition to the armament of one or other of the two parties, rather than by any legitimate ground for quarrel.

The moral is sufficiently obvious. We do not want war though we are forced to prepare for it. Such preparations themselves constitute a danger as tending to arouse suspicion and induce nervous tension. Avoidance of ostentatious display lessens their force as an irritant. Where arms are carried the chief danger lies, not so much in their presence as in the inclination on the part of some who carry them to finger the trigger too frequently or even to flourish the gun in the face of the peaceably disposed. If we must carry the gun, let us carry it in the hip pocket rather than in the hand. Above all, let us turn a deaf ear to the fools who tell us that the best way to ensure peace with a neighbor is to thrust a loaded gun into his face.

If those who prate most of "the best means of ensuring peace" would discuss questions of international relations with reasonable moderation the sincerity of their professed desire for peace would be more convincing.

THE WEST AND TARIFF REFORM

While the naval question fills the horizon for the present, the time is not far distant when the demand for tariff reform will receive that attention which belongs to it by right of the growing force of public opinion behind it. Looking into the not very distant future, with the assurance of increased representation for the West, The Toronto Globe has the following to say:

"It is scarcely to be doubted that of Saskatchewan's sixteen members in the new house fifteen will be Liberals pledged to tariff revision, and that Alberta will send ten Liberals out of a total representation of twelve. The utmost ingenuity of Hon. Robert Rogers in 'redistributing' the vote will not secure a Conservative delegation exceeding four members from Saskatchewan, and Alberta. In the present parliament Manitoba does something to lessen the Liberal majority from the prairies, but there are signs of a storm there, and a very small swing of the pendulum would make Manitoba as strongly Liberal as the other provinces. Leaving Winnipeg out of the count, there were cast in the nine other Manitoba constituencies last September 27,602 Conservative votes and 26,732 Liberal. By a popular majority of 870 votes the Conservatives carried seven seats to the two carried by the Liberals. A swing of a thousand votes might make rural Manitoba solidly Liberal. There is evidence that such a swing is in progress. Winnipeg, which is likely to have three seats out of Manitoba's fifteen in the new house, is growingly Conservative, but it is not unreasonable to suppose that Manitoba as a whole will be represented in the next parliament by a majority of Liberal members. The Roblin government weakens steadily, and were it turned out of power before next federal election the strength of Manitoba Conservatism would be gone."

EASTERN IMPUDENCE

For downright impudence of the most irritating sort a recent article in The Montreal Financial Times will win easily in any competition among the many examples of hostility to the West that may be found in the Eastern press. With a degree of effrontery which is positively astounding, this journal suggests in all seriousness that the claims of the West for fair treatment in the matter of freight rates should be disregarded. The reason urged is not that the existing rates are fair to the West, but rather that Westerners are so wealthy that they can suffer little by the acknowledged extortion. Let this journal, however, speak for itself. The following is an extract from the article referred to:

"One point about the agitation concerning high freight rates in the West which seems to escape the notice of the agitators almost entirely, is that 'the West is exceedingly well able to pay them.' We are far from upholding the doctrine of 'all that the traffic will bear'; but when we know perfectly well that every class of resident in the Western provinces is making money hand over fist and living in a condition of prosperity which is granted to only a small proportion of the population of the East, we do find it hard to summon 'up tears over the fact that a somewhat larger share of their expenditure goes into transportation charges than is the case in this part of the country.'"

"Freight rates in the West are high, there is no denying it. A member of the railway commission has declared that there is a prima facie case for their reduction; and that reduction will undoubtedly come in the not distant future. In the meantime, they are not as high proportionately as the earning capacity of both human energy and invested capital in the free and virgin fields of the prairies. The people of the West are rich. They are rich because they have been presented with vast areas of the best farming land in the world, free, gratis and without price (latterly without even the price of the perils and difficulties of 'pioneering,' by the older inhabitants of Canada, 'to whom those lands belonged.'"

The significance of this article is revealed in the following comment by The Winnipeg Free Press:

"The article calls for no refutation. It is valuable simply as a revelation of what is in the mind of those who resist and resent the demand of the people of the West for just treatment in the matter of freight rates; in the mind, apparently, of others who do business in the West. They have not the vaguest conception of the West as a free country, occupied by men having the same rights as Canadians in the East. Not at all; we are a subject and inferior race who have been set up in profitable business, by our philanthropic masters in the East, for the purpose of being periodically relieved of our accumulations. The West is a milch cow, turned into luscious pasture and fed with bran mashies, in order that, at milking time it may yield foaming pails to the owner whose brand is burned on the rump. Truly a 'noble, nation-building conception of the relationship which should exist between the East and the West!'"

EIGHTEEN ARMED NEGROES

GUARD OIL KING'S ESTATE

Black Hand, Which Has Operated for Years Against Italians, Now Threatens Family

Five Savage Great Dane Dogs Supplement Efforts of Black Guards

NEW YORK, Sept. 8.—The secret of the present action upon an alarm at John D. Rockefeller's estate in Pocantico Hills, where for weeks disorder and crime have been rampant, has been learned for the world.

To preserve order on the Bedford Road estate the ordinary force of four private watchmen has been increased to eighteen, all negroes, armed with repeating rifles and revolvers and accompanied by five savage great Dane dogs. There are three deputy sheriffs in command of Under Sheriff's posse of watchmen on the estate, and six of the most trusted operatives of the W. J. Burns Agency in command of Detective A. J. Boyd.

Revealed Against Black Hand. Announcement has been made from the Rockefeller estate that this sudden engagement of an armed force on duty night and day had been done solely in the interest of the five hundred or more Italian laborers employed on the place.

Yet for years these same Italian employees have been forced at pistol point and otherwise to pay tribute, and when they revolted against the Black Hand, and some were killed, neither the master of the great estate nor his son was ever moved to take the martial measures that have been taken now in the form of a caseless armed patrol.

Their Lives Threatened. The truth is that the eighteen armed negroes, the deputy sheriffs and Burns detectives also armed, have been called into action because the Black Hand clique that has so long gone immune in its operations at Pocantico Hills has become so emboldened as to threaten the lives and property of Rockefeller himself and of his son and his grandsons.

Some of the letters which come by mail. One went to the oil king who mailed from Palermo, Italy, where he is residing, to the New York City police, was numbered white, with a view to expose and rout the auxiliaries in Italy of the Black Hand clique in the sum of many dollars.

Following this letter came a bombardment of threats and while as already stated, some of them came otherwise caused the Black Hand clique to be ordered to discontinue their operations.

Dunson as he would go on duty at the quarry in the mornings has found the threatening letters awaiting him along the rocky ledge where he usually stands to direct the men at work. It was when these vanishing eluded the negro guards and the deputy sheriffs that young Rockefeller decided to call in the aid of the Burns Agency men.

John D. Rockefeller himself is not at Pocantico Hills, and has been there for only a few days at a time this summer. He is in his usual quarters in Ohio, which his wife much prefers. The reason has been that he is just taskmaster, stony placed upon his Tarzanyton mansion, and his work has been in progress all summer. It is now nearing completion.

But it is doubtful if the present bombardment of threats continues, because an attempt to come to Pocantico for his usual autumn season of golfing.

Got Even With Di Marco. More effectively even than the mysterious delivery of the letters through an entrance and doing sentinel duty around the houses did the Black Hand clique show its steel and cunning in the movement of reprisals that was made against an Italian foreman in the employ of Di Marco. Di Marco discovered that these were agitators among his laborers who were preaching discontent to the men, and he had them arrested and kept in a day that the Rockefeller estate pays for ten hours toll. The foreman feared the fomentation of a strike, and, singling out the men, he asked Supt. Briggs if he should disarm them. Briggs, in his hearing of the men in question, told Di Marco to go ahead and use his own judgment.

Burned House Down. The foreman then demanded the assistance of the police and the men shook their fists at him and told him they would be revenged. A few days ago nothing happened and Briggs and Di Marco had about dismissed the matter from their minds when, about a few days ago, a fire broke out and his family weakened to find their cottage home on the estate on fire. In the night men had come and dug a hole through the foundation, poured oil in gallons into it, and set a flame to the oil.

Briggs admittedly was frightened, and Di Marco was so completely terrorized that he absolutely refused to continue another day in the employ of the Rockefeller estate, and before nightfall had moved his family and effects away from the place.

He has completely disappeared, hiding all trace of his movements in the fear that vengeance might follow him even after his complete surrender to the police.

Of the eighteen negroes, the largest detachment is stationed around the Kent house nursery where Rockefeller children are confined, ill of the measles. It is not believed that the Black Hand group would attempt to murder the Rockefeller children, but the kidnapping of the children or the dynamiting of the $2,000,000 mansion is what is most greatly feared.

Blind to Black Handers. The first superintendent, Hemmaway, an old personal friend of Rockefeller, had direct charge of the laborers. He does not carry a gun on his shoulder, but has a hand behind the brick pillars of the gates. In addition there is a revolver in his pocket.

When Hemmaway died he was succeeded by N. C. Allee, a man of determined character, who would not submit to the blackmailing of the Black Handers among the working-men and drove them away. The Black Handers order to hold their victims in the woods near by.

Three men were found inside the adobe in a condition of grog and one dead; a fourth man was found wounded in the woods near by.

Not long afterwards a little Italian known only by the name of Tony was in his hut beside the railroad of which he was an employee when two men, Detective Petrosino of the New York City police, was numbered white, with a view to expose and rout the auxiliaries in Italy of the Black Hand clique in the sum of many dollars.

The letter, as has been all the while, was written in Italian with a black ink, which is not unusual, and also until Sept. 1, when he was ordered to discontinue his operations.

Following this letter came a bombardment of threats and while as already stated, some of them came otherwise caused the Black Hand clique to be ordered to discontinue their operations.

Sidewalk Sketches. By HOWARD L. RANN.

THE name of Noah Webster is gratefully remembered by thousands of stenographers as the author of that pleasing work of fiction, Webster's Unabridged Dictionary. This was a work of inspiration, requiring a good command of spelling, but it is rather monotonous when published in serial form, as it has no plot to speak of.

Noah wrote this book between meals, as it were. Whenever he thought of a word which had not occurred to anybody else, he would jot it down on his cuff and weave it into his romance later. Every once in a while he would think of a new way of spelling some word with which everybody was perfectly satisfied and rush into the house and transfix it on the typewriter before it got away.

Noah was a very unexcitable man, as he was always correcting somebody's spelling or finding fault with their pronunciation. He seldom went to church, because it pained him to hear an illiterate clergyman pronounce some of his best words with the accent on the peanut instead of coming in on the third beat of the measure. Noah's book is a handy work to have about the house, as it makes a pleasing substitute for the baby's high chair and will hold down one corner of a refractory rug with perfect ease. Many a girl has learned to play the reed organ as the result of uneasy contact with Noah's book.

There is a good deal of sameness to Noah's writing, and at times he becomes quite wordy, but he has a graceful, six-syllable habit of spelling "seize" as "seizee," "wield" and "separate" without taking a scoring start. It was a popular diversion at social gatherings to back Noah up against the wall, underneath a crayon portrait of Brother Henry in a string of snatches, and ask him to spell himself down!

Noah's book is issued in vest pocket form, containing nine pounds of Russian calf and eighteen pounds of fascinating prose. It could be in every home.

The Relief of Pain. After day the sun rode high, all brazen in a brazen sky, and all the weary sons of men stood round and kicked, and kicked again. The farmers, coming into town, said all the crops were wilting down. Oh, we had trouble in our hearts; we hung around the changing mats discussing politics all day. "Old things," we said, "must pass away; old grafts no longer can us fool; they'll have to let the Peapal rule. Our woes all come from Politics, from ringlers' palls and statements ticks, and we shall put that crowd in chains and let the Peapal hold the reins." And then one day the rainclouds came, obscuring all the spangled frame, the torrest poured, hand over hand, and brought new life to all the land. You should have seen the fellows hump! We sought no more the village pump to kick like some old fretful mule, and talk about the Peapal's rule. 'Twas not the government that made our bosoms sore and tempers frayed, or kept 'neath the collar warm—we needed rain and not reform. And then it is with half the men who kick and snort and kick again about the way the country's run; their cups are wilting in the sun; their cows are dry; their hens' wont lay, poll evil has attacked their hay, their biddies will not hatch out chicks—they take it out on politics!

Ideas of a Plain Man. BY DR. FRANK CRANE. THE basis of quarreling is conscious knowledge. The basis of friendliness is conscious ignorance. Two learned scientists will dispute over the atomic theory with venom; two blacksmiths will not argue the matter at all. If the days when men were quite positive upon the subject of Transubstantiation they fought over it and tortured heretics; in these days, when men suspect they know nothing, orthodox and heretic mingle at banquets. A boy graduated from college is ready for contention at the drop of the hat; he knows what he knows. When he reaches fifty he is peaceable, for he does not know what he knows. A young married couple live in blissful unity; they do not know one another; each to the other is a fascinating mystery. After some years they get to quarrel; they have found each other out. They know. All our attachments, our loves and friendships are born of the enveloping infinite of the concealing unknown. Certainty is cold, hard and dead. It is ignorance, mystery and uncertainty that is alive and pulsing with love.

Carrot Color is Stylish Now. London, Sept. 9.—A strange shade never before seen in fashionable society has flared up like a flame colored exotic among the whites and blacks and grays which have so far been the fashion in this dreary summer.

It is neither black red nor vermilion nor any conceivable pink, and the dressmakers have reluctantly agreed to call it simply "carrots." And carrots has inflated into sudden notoriety as the fashionable shade.

The last few weeks at Goodwood there were stockings of carrot hue flashing under the inevitable blue coat and skirt. Carrots parasols bloomed in the intervals of sunshine and here and there an entire costume of this striking if somewhat bizarre shade drew considerable attention.

ADVERTISING CLUBS ASK CALGARY TO EXHIBIT

Meeting in Toronto for Purpose of Comparing Notes on Publicity Work... Hope to Discover Methods That Appeal Most to General Public and Results

The Calgary Industrial Bureau has been asked to participate in the exhibit of the advertising clubs of Canada, which will be held in Toronto in October. It is the plan of the advertising clubs to have displays of all municipal and other industrial advertising with a view to ascertaining which is the best method of placing a community's advantages before the public. Each city will be asked to furnish data showing what results have been obtained by various forms of advertising. In this manner it is hoped to ascertain what class of advertising appeals most to the public. The advertising men will first meet at Washington, D. C., and an investigation has been received for Calgary to participate.

Increase of Farm Laborers. Ottawa, Sept. 9.—That there is an increase of 15 per cent in the number of immigrants now coming into Canada, as farm laborers was a statement made by the immigration department today, and is one which would cheer the hearts of the western farmers who are in such crying need of help to get in this year's bumper crop. This class of immigrants is allowed in without any restriction as to the amount of money carried, as long as the conditions in regard to health are observed. This is the heaviest year yet for this class of immigration.

Manitoba's Good Weather. Morden, Man., Sept. 9.—Better harvest weather than that witnessed today could not be wished for by the farmers of this district, and if the weather continues fair several threshing outfits will be at work in this district tomorrow morning. The sky is cloudy this evening, but with the wind blowing from the west, rain is not likely to fall.

WHOLESALE MURDER IN CHICAGO MAY BE DISCLOSED BY STORY OF VAMPIRE WOMAN

CHICAGO, September 9.—The discovery of a wholesale murder of victims lured to notorious resorts of West Hammond, may follow in the trail of an amazing story, said to have been told county officials today by Frankie Ford, the "Vampire Woman." She is to be charged with complicity in the death of John Mesamaker.

The arrest of the young woman, in whose company it is said Mesamaker died a victim of drugs, was accomplished through the efforts of Miss Virginia Brooks, Chicago society woman, who has become the reformer of the hamlet.

Corner Peter M. Hoffman and Assistant County Attorney Thomas J. Johnson are said to have heard the astounding charges of crime, graft, vice and murder made by the woman.

At the end, Johnson prepared to hold the "Vampire Woman" on the charge of complicity in order that the alleged vice ring of West Hammond could not affect her release.

The woman said to have told of her connection with the death of Mesamaker. Then she is said to have told Mesamaker's death and the unfortunate woman whose names cannot be found on the pages of the health department or the coroner's sheets.

It is said that possibly 21 violent deaths occurred in the dives which Miss Brooks is fighting to drive out of West Hammond. But three of these are matters of record, and the facts concerning them are shrouded in mystery.

"The story told by this woman," said Miss Brooks, "has scarcely any parallel in the history of the Middle West. It shows that crimes innumerable have been committed in West Hammond by vicekeepers and their men and women slaves, while the police looked on and winked."

Another slugging, it is said, occurred last night at Burnham, adding another chapter to the history of the war against vice in that village and its neighbor West Hammond. Two men were attacked. They were J. L. Darling, Clerk of the Burnham School Board, and William A. Schroeder, both of whom have been working with Miss Virginia Brooks in her crusade.

Francis Ford, after being taken to dinner at a downtown hotel by detectives, became ill. Physicians found she was near collapse from nervous exhaustion. She was removed to the Bellevue Hospital.

BANKER MORSE BACK AT WORK IN NEW YORK; TAFT HEARS AND IS VERY MUCH DISPLEASED

WASHINGTON, D. C., September 9.—The story that Charles W. Morse was once more back in Wall Street, working to make another fortune, was read with a lot of interest today at the department of Justice and the White House. It cannot be said it was pleasing reading. President Taft and the other officials concerned in the commutation of the sentence of Morse feel about like a man who has been handed a gold brick.

Inquiry was made today whether the army surgeons concerned in the diagnosis of Morse's condition prior to the commutation had been asked for an explanation. It was denied at the department of Justice that any explanation had been asked. President Taft commuted Morse's sentence January 18 last, to expire at once. No indication is given that any move is to be made in the case from this end. Morse has not been allowed the restoration of civil rights that sometimes accompanies pardon.

It was stated today in administration circles that President Taft fought off the commutation of the sentence as long as he could and yielded only when the examinations of physicians and others seemed conclusive that Morse would die if not released. It would not be fair to say that anybody here hoped he

MORE BIRDMEN TO FLY THAN THERE ARE MACHINES

Profession of Aviation is Already Overcrowded Because Flyers Are So Numerous Public is Weary of the Sport Unless Aviator is Willing to Flirt With Death

NEW YORK, Sept. 9.—With the development in the last five years of the aeroplane and the great increase in the number of flying machines, the profession of aviator is a well recognized one, and it is already overcrowded, strange as that may seem to "the man in the street"—or on the ground.

Five years ago the men in the world who were capable of piloting heavier than air machines could be counted on one's fingers and toes. Those credited to the United States could almost be counted on one hand. The big development in aviation has come within the past half decade. Each year has seen more and more birdmen added to the ranks. Today a conservative estimate places the total number of aviators in the world at about 5,000, fliers and pilots, with fully two-thirds that number of aeroplanes. America's quota of flyers will reach close to the thousand mark, if not well beyond it, with the number of aeroplanes running closely behind these figures.

So rapid has been the influx to the ranks of the professional and amateur aviators, and so quick has been the distribution of machines that the public is still thinking in figures of least two years old. The people of New York, for instance, vaguely realize that there may be a dozen or more machines down around Mineola and Hempstead Plains and perhaps a dozen more scattered around the country.

That is because they rarely see and almost never hear about the other machines and the men who pilot them. They know vaguely that the aeroplanes are very dear abroad. From both sporting and military standpoints; but they have no figures by which to judge aviator's present scope.

More Aviators Than Machines. The aviators in fact have outstripped the manufacturers. In the past two years in this country which ought to be still thinking in figures of least two years old, the number of aeroplanes has increased to the point where the number of machines is now in excess of the number of aviators.

The profession is so far in advance of the instruments, the aviators so far advanced over the manufacturers, that the profession is choked. The game has lured many by the promise of excitement, novelty and remuneration. The novelty is wearing off, the excitement is becoming minimized, and the remuneration has shrunk.

Out of all the aviators in America not more than ten per cent are making aviation profitable. Ten per cent more are earning by occasional engagements only barely enough to cover their actual expenses. The other 80 per cent are either chronically jobless or living on promises that probably will not be realized.

Leonard Bonney, who has been flying ever since, as a youngster, he built his first machine, and who for two years worked steadily with the Wrights as an exhibition flyer, now has taken up the monoplane.

"More flying in a plane no longer draws attention," he said in an interview. "The public has become so blasé about aviation that unless a flyer is in known danger to his neck the plan will not turn out to be an engagement to save his soul."

Aviation in Disfavor. Nothing can wholly relieve the present congestion except an extraordinary awakening in favor of aviation, and that is highly improbable, at least for the present. The Aeronautical Society has endeavored to mitigate the woes of the jobless as far as possible by conducting an employment bureau which brings aviators into quick touch with such engagements as may be open throughout the country.

The Aero Club of America has endeavored to conserve the interests of the "observing" flyers as against those of uncertain quantity and unknown reliability or proficiency by the establishment of an "expert aviator" grade, to qualify for which aviators must demonstrate their ability beyond doubt. But these arrangements can take care of only a few, and many are still shivering in the cold of disappointment.

Capt. Thos. Baldwin, who has been tried many a poor, struggling, poverty-stricken, but ambitious and worthy aviator, has purchased a large tract of land on the shore front of Staten Island. Here he will chip in his mite to help the game by taking in a few of the friendless, homeless flyers, and giving them a hangar and flying room at his field and beach, where they can experiment with ever land or over water machines.

"Some one's got to help the boys along," he said, "and it might as well be I. Goodness knows they have enough to discourage them. There's more money in being an ordinary mechanic than in being an aviator these days."

Ties Horse to "Live" Train. Cincinnati, Ohio, Sept. 8.—Fred Volkmer, a farmer, drove to Cleveland, Ohio, to get the election returns and make some purchases. He tied his horse to the most convenient hitching post, which proved a freight car. Later Volkmer hiked back to where he had left his horse, and discovered old Dobbin several hundred feet down the track, galloping alongside the moving train with the buggy bumping along behind. Volkmer proved a runner of the Marathon type, sticking up with the train and releasing his property before damage had been done.

Pope Receives French Workmen. Rome, Sept. 8.—The pope received in audience today hundreds of French workmen under the leadership of Leo Harmel, who for twenty-five years has conducted the pilgrimage to Rome. It was expected that the pope in answering the address of devotion might allude to the possible re-establishment of good relations with France but the pontiff dealt entirely with religion.

Stabbed in a Row On A Farm. Hutchinson, Kan., Sept. 8.—A threshing machine row resulted in the death of one man on the farm of Fred Siedel, near Bloom, Kas., this afternoon. John Abendshend, a thresherman is dead. Clayton Bloom was taken to the county jail in Ashland, charged with his death. The crew says Bloom and Abendshend had quarreled before a bout some business deals. Today Bloom came to the farm and just before the men went to work after dinner stabbed him with a pocket knife. Bloom is a business man at Turon, Kas. Abendshend was 25 years old and leaves a wife and two children, the youngest only two months old.
