WHOLE WORLD JOINS KING EDWARD'S SUBJECTS IN MOURNING DEATH OF REVERED MONARCH

KING GEORGE V TO BE PROCLAIMED RULER THIS AFTERNOON

Royal Widow Bearing Up bravely and Personally Directs Matters in Death Chamber—Funeral Not Likely For Ten Days—Nations' Tributes in Messages of Sympathy

London, May 7—The king is dead. King George V. will be proclaimed late this afternoon.

The privy councillors will meet at 4 o'clock to bear the imperial oath and immediately afterwards heralds will announce the new succession. In the meantime popular interest in the new ruler is overshadowed by universal grief over the death of Edward VII.

The beloved monarch succumbed to pneumonia, which followed a bronchial attack at Buckingham Palace at fifteen minutes before last midnight in the sixty-ninth year of life and the tenth year of his reign. The grief of the dowager queen at the death of her royal husband is pathetic. Since early morning she has been in and out of the death chamber directing everything, personally placing the wealth of flowers that have been received, and giving her directions with stately dignity, but at the same time inconceivable. She cannot be persuaded to remain in her own room to take the rest of which she is so much in need.

Burial Not for Ten Days
The funeral arrangements are not yet announced, but the expectation of court circles is that the body of his majesty will be buried at Froggery, near where were buried the bodies of his father, mother and son. The burial will probably be delayed for ten days to allow time for the arrival of foreign deputations.

Towards noon the members of the royal family began to arrive at Buckingham Palace. King George, who had been occupied throughout the morning, arrived at luncheon time in company with Queen Mary. Throughout the morning there was a constant stream of callers. Several wreaths from personal friends of King Edward were sent to the death chamber.

Before the palace was a great crowd watching those coming and going, until sharp thunder and snow storm drove away all but a few stragglers who remained to see the changing of the guard, which ceremony was effected today without the accompaniment of a band of music.

A special service was held in St. Paul's cathedral this afternoon and was of a national character, despite the hurried preparations. The Lord Mayor of London attended in state, while at the departments of state, the navy and army were fully represented. High officials in all ranks of society were in the congregation. The service was the usual on the occasion of Queen Victoria's death.

At the day progressed, the sentiment expressed in the familiar phrase, "the king is dead, long live the king," seemed to sweep the street crowd and early in the afternoon thousands who had remained for hours within the vicinity of Buckingham Palace shifted to the streets adjoining St. James' Palace. From then on, popular interest from the standpoint of the street centred in the anticipated arrival of King George and the privy councillors and the ceremony of proclamation giving the empire a new king.

King George, Queen Mary and two of their sons, Prince Edward and Prince Albert, the former of whom is soon to become the Prince of Wales, spent an hour at Buckingham Palace. They are the only members of the family who have yet seen Alexandra. All other callers of the royal family had been received by the Princess Victoria. It is announced that the court will move to Windsor Castle next Tuesday.

King George V. found himself so occupied with a rash of state affairs requiring immediate attention that he was unable to leave Marlborough House this forenoon even to go to see his mother and sister. The officials responsible for the state functions marking the accession of the new king and the funeral arrangements for the great monarch, came and went from Marlborough House at brief intervals throughout the morning. Nothing, however, had been given out at noon regarding the funeral plans.

ST. PAUL'S BOOMS OUT THE NEWS OF SORROW
Many in London Thus Learn of Blow to Nation—Queen Bearing Up bravely—In London's Churches

London, May 7—The tolling of the great bell in St. Paul's at minute intervals between 9 and 10 o'clock this morning, an office performed only for the sovereign and the Archbishops of Canterbury and York, conveyed to countless thousands of Londoners and suburbanites the first intimation of the death of King Edward VII. Great crowds coming into the city on early trains proceeded toward Buckingham Palace and by 10 o'clock an immense stream of people was slowly filing past the front of the building with blinds drawn round to the west end of the palace to gaze on the windows of the chamber where the body of the dead king was lying.

whom seemed determined to read with his own eyes the official announcement. Over the palace the royal standard was half masted, but except for this and the frequent coming and going of officials and attendants at the palace, there was little outward evidence of the passing away of the great king.

Queen Alexandra is bearing up bravely. She had breakfast as usual in her own apartments today. Members of the royal household attended a special service in the private chapel of the palace at an early hour.

The death of His Majesty has caused a general suspension of business and the abandonment of all race meetings and other sports, public games and private entertainments. The theatres have been closed. The stock exchange and other markets were closed today, and the law courts took a recess as a token of respect. Everywhere throughout the country flags were placed at half-mast, on public buildings, warships and other shipping, while church bells sounded the doleful news.

Early today it was announced that George V. would be proclaimed king from the steps of the royal exchange at 3.30 o'clock this afternoon. It was subsequently found impossible to get the privy councillors together so early as was first intended, so the meeting with the new king in the throne room of St. James' Palace was postponed until 4 o'clock. Summons have been sent to all the councillors, but it is probable that only a small proportion of them are near enough to the city to attend a ceremony of bearing the king's oath, and declaring their allegiance to the new monarch.

Following the meeting of the privy councillors with the new king, the proclamation of the accession of George V. will be publicly made by the heralds and pursuivants to the accompaniment of a fanfare of trumpets in the quadrangle of the palace, repeated in Charing Cross, the Royal Exchange, Temple Bar and Chesham.

The morning services in the churches are more largely attended than usual today. All the congregations were in deep mourning. A notable change in the service was the substitution of the words "the queen, the king dowager, and all the royal family," for the familiar phrase "the queen, the Prince and Princess of Wales and all the royal family."

The most of the population of the country have donned mourning garb in some form. The women are wearing black, and the men are dressed in black. Streamers of crepe hang from the whips in the hands of the cabmen. The shop fronts bear mourning shutters.

SOMBRE BLACK IS LONDON'S GARB TODAY

The Grief of the People of Every Day Life is Shown in Marked Manner—Incidents of the Streets

(Times Special Cable)
London, May 7—Londoners are fond of bright colors but today sombre black was the garb. A large majority of workmen, unable to afford an entire suit of black, had as an emblem of mourning a black necktie. No monarch ever stood so high in the affection and love of his people as the late king. Sorrow-faced people gathered in front of Buckingham Palace. Two workmen meeting, one remarked in sorrowful tones: "He was a loss. One of the very best was Teddy."

The people speak in subdued tones as they linger in front of the palace. While the blinds of the palace are drawn, the royal standard flies at half-mast in mournful folds. About the palace there is an air of solemnity. People hastening by on their way, do so bareheaded until they have passed the palace railings. A stranger would have at once recognized that some great calamity had fallen on the nation, owing to the air of grave, quiet demerit prevailing.

Scenes of grief at the loss of the monarch are frequent. A woman on an underground train, while she read the newspaper account wiped the tears from her cheeks. Another young woman, after vainly endeavoring to get close enough to the railings to read the notice posted on the Mansion House gave up the attempt and, retiring, stepped into a shop entrance, and tearing some bright colored flowers from her hat, crushed them into a newspaper and with tears in her eyes hurried away.

THE PEACEMAKER AND PEACE PRESERVER

(Times Special Cable)
London, May 7—King Edward held a place in the hearts of the people such as was given to few rulers of men and every year which passed since his accession only deepened and strengthened those feelings of personal loyalty and esteem.

European sentiment is deeply stirred. "King Edward is England," says the Paris Temps which paper hails him as the restorer of Franco-British friendship. This note "the king as peacemaker and peace preserver," is sounded all over the continent. The Berlin Zeitung admits (Continued on page 3, third column).

SIGNS OF MOURNING EARLY SEEN IN THE LOYALIST CITY

Government to Meet But Session of Legislature Not Necessary—Action By the Council This Afternoon—Flags At Half Mast, Churches and Stores Being Draped

All over the city this morning there was evidence of the deep sense of grief felt by the community in the death of the sovereign. Flags are flying at half-mast from all the public buildings, hotels, banks, clubs and the principal business houses, as well as the shipping in the harbor. In many of the stores the windows have been draped in purple and black, and in some cases where there has not been time to make an appropriate mourning display, the blinds have been drawn.

Among the windows which are particularly in keeping for the occasion are those of Manchester, Robertson, Allison, Ltd., their entire King street front being draped in purple and black, with the late king's portrait in one of the windows; Macaulay Bros. & Co., W. H. Irving and Waterbury & Rising were also preparing special mourning displays. F. W. Daniel & Co. and others announced that their windows would also be draped this afternoon.

In practically all the city churches tomorrow there will be references to the death of the late king and in most cases the church altars are being draped in purple and black as a tribute of respect and love for the monarch. Special memorial services will be held in many of the churches on the day of the funeral, the services being timed to take place at the same time as the funeral service in England.

In the City Churches
A party of descendants went this morning to St. John's (Stone) church and draped the interior in royal mourning, but with a certain amount of restraint and taste. Wm. L. Robson, of the employ of this firm, and who is an authority on such matters, said this morning that custom was for the use of purple and black as mourning colors on the death of royalty.

Memorial Service in Synagogue
The first service in St. John as a memorial to King Edward, was held this morning in the Hazen avenue synagogue, this being the Jewish Sabbath. In addressing his congregation, Rabbi Amdur said that the Jewish people felt the loss of King Edward, for as a race, their mission was peace, and he had been a great peacemaker. The rabbi read from the 21st Psalm, and from King George's words between the life of King Edward and that of King David. He also referred to a coincidence that last night, the occasion of King Edward's death, was also the anniversary of the death of Rabbi Alshab, some centuries ago, a great man of his day and revered by his race, who had done much in promoting peace.

William Hawker's Anecdote
William Hawker, the Prince William street, druggist, related to the Times-Star this morning an incident that illustrates one of the characteristics of the late king that endeared him to his subjects. While Mr. Hawker was a surgeon in the British Army and the late monarch was a soldier, he was in one of the British regiments, the forces were stationed near Kildare, Ire., and Sir George Broome, a noted marine, was in command. It was a field day and there were alternate thunder showers and fine spells. The troops were kept out all through the downpour of rain and it was anything but pleasant for the men. After the morning had passed in this way, and aide-de-camp rode up to the regiment, which the then prince was stationed and said: "Sir George presents his compliments to Your Highness and says you may retire to your quarters." The prince, who was thoroughly soaked through replied: "Present my compliments to Sir George and tell him my place is with my regiment until it is ordered from the field." And he remained with the troops until 4 o'clock, that afternoon, when all left the field.

GOVERNOR TWEEDIE ANNOUNCES PROCEDURE

Following a meeting with Premier Hazen and J. Howe Dickson, clerk of the executive council, Lieutenant Governor Tweedie announced today that as soon as he receives the official announcement from the secretary of state, concerning the death of the king, and the accession of King George V., a special issue of the Royal Gazette will be sent out with a proclamation similar to that issued in Ottawa by the governor-general. This will be followed by other proclamations concerning the funeral and ordering a time for mourning, and also calling on all officials to take the oath of allegiance to the new sovereign.

Some time next week a meeting of the provincial government will be held in Fredericton when the members will be required to swear allegiance to the new king. The lieutenant governor will be sworn in by the chief justice and the members of the executive council will then be sworn in by the governor. The oath in all cases will be administered by J. H. Dickson, the clerk of the executive council.

The common council will meet at 3 o'clock this afternoon in the council chamber at the court house, and a resolution expressing sympathy with the bereaved queen and members of the family and assuring them of the loyalty of the citizens of St. John, will be drawn up and passed. It is also expected that the mayor will issue a proclamation to the citizens calling upon them to fittingly observe the death of the king and to be loyal to his successor.

Sung God Save the King

There was a touching scene in the Nickel Theatre last evening when the announcement was made that the king had passed away. Pictures depicting scenes in the life of the late monarch were being thrown on the screen and announcements were made from time to time as to his condition. When the word of his death was received, Manager Golding ordered the operator to stop the picture machine, which was then presenting a stirring comedy film, and, stepping upon the stage, to make the announcement that His

The Dowager Queen Alexandra

Majesty had passed away. As the significance of the statement was realized, there was a "sublime 'Oh'" among the audience. Mr. Golding said he thought it fitting that the entertainment should cease and while the orchestra played "God Save the King," the audience stood with bowed heads, many joining their voices in the national anthem. The crowd then quietly dispersed. It was a most dramatic scene.

When the King Was in Fredericton
Fredericton, N. B., May 7.—(Special)—The city council will meet this afternoon to take action in regard to the king's death. Many citizens recollect the late King's visit to this city in 1892. He arrived here on Saturday, August 4, and remained until Tuesday, at the Government House. On Sunday he attended service in the cathedral and heard a sermon by Bishop Medley. On the following day he received an address from the executive council and both branches of the legislature, to city council and the municipality of York. On Monday evening he was the guest at a ball in the legislature building.

NEW KING WELL INSTRUCTED BY HIS ROYAL FATHER

(British and Colonial Press.)
London, May 7.—The pathetic and inexpressible bewilderment and grief of the crowd before Buckingham Palace last night well represents public feeling today. The nation is appalled by the suddenness of the unexpected event, which is recognized as a calamity to the world. A prominent Russian's declaration, "A universal misfortune," represents practically the feeling of all nations. The Germans admire him because he energetically supported his ministers in guarding British interests.

A typical German view is that the king seriously bent on maintaining peace, and was far from disliking Germany. The community regarded him as a man enjoying life restfully, including their own announcements, putting duty above convenience, and extending his genial consideration equally to both parties.

The Duke of Connaught will probably open the South African parliament instead of the prince, now king. The Queen of Norway is on her way to England. The Kaiser at Wiesbaden cancelled all festivities on the grave news. He will probably attend the funeral. The premier and speaker are hurrying back to England for an immediate session of parliament when the oath of allegiance to the new king will be taken. Herald proclaimed the accession at St. James' Palace this morning, the proclamation also being made on the Royal Exchange steps, the Lord Mayor attending.

The new king, who will probably be called George V., has been much taken into his father's confidence in state affairs, and is expected to show complete familiarity with them in consequence of such apprenticeship. Other subjects are almost blotted out of men's minds under the dark clouds of imperial bereavement.

GEORGE V. WILL BE TITLE OF NEW KING

Will Be Sworn In at Meeting of Council This Afternoon.

London, May 7--The official bulletin announcing the king's death is as follows:

"May 6, 11.50 p. m.--His Majesty the King breathed his last at 11.45 tonight, in the presence of Her Majesty Queen Alexandra, the Prince and Princess of Wales, the Princess Royal, the Duchess of Fife, Princess Victoria and Princess Louise, the Duchess of Argyle.

[Signed] LAKIN. REID. POWELL. DAWSON."

(Associated Press.)

London, May 7--King Edward VII died at 11.45 o'clock last night. The Prince of Wales is King, assuming the title of George V, and will take the oath before the privy council at 2 o'clock this afternoon.

London, May 7--King Edward VII, who returned to England from a vacation ten days ago in the best of health, died at 11.45 o'clock tonight in the presence of his family, of illness of less than a week, which was serious hardly more than three days.

The Prince of Wales succeeds to the throne, according to the laws of the kingdom. His first official act was a despatch to the Lord Mayor of the announcement of his father's death, in pursuance of custom. His telegram read:

"I am deeply grieved to inform you that my beloved father, the king, passed away peacefully at 11.45 tonight.

[Signed] "GEORGE."

The physicians soon afterwards issued their official bulletin, which was as follows:

"11.50 p. m. His Majesty the King breathed his last at 11.45, in the presence of Her Majesty Queen Alexandra, the Prince and Princess of Wales, Princess Royal, the Duchess of Fife, Princess Victoria and Princess Louise, the Duchess of Argyle.

[Signed] "LAKING, REID, POWELL, DAWSON."

Pneumonia the Cause of Death.

Pneumonia, following bronchitis, is believed to have been the cause of death, but the doctors, thus far, have refused to make a statement. Some of the king's friends are convinced that worry over the critical political situation which confronted him, with sleepless nights, aggravated, if it did not cause the fatal illness.

Besides the nearest relatives in England, the Duke of Fife and the Archbishop of Canterbury were in the death chamber. The king's brother, the Duke of Connaught, with his family, is at Suez hastening home from Africa; the king's daughter, Queen Maud of Norway, will start for England tomorrow.

The intelligence that the end of King Edward's reign had come was not a surprise at the last. The people had been expecting to hear it at any hour since the evening's bulletin was posted at Buckingham Palace and flashed throughout the kingdom. The capital received the death news without excitement, but sadly, for the king was unquestionably one of the most popular rulers in the world. They regarded him as one of the strongest forces making for the stability and peace of the empire.

The fashionable restaurants were just emptying and a few groups of late theatre-goers were making their way homeward through the rain, while a small crowd still hung about the palace, when the streets were filled suddenly with newsboys shrilly crying: "Death of the King."

The papers were quickly sold, and the people discussed the momentous event and soon dispersed. The streets were deserted by 1 o'clock.

Within a few minutes after the death of the King, the home office telegraphed the intelligence to the heads of other governments and British diplomats and colonial officials throughout the world.

Subject to Heart Trouble.

All who knew the King anticipated that his death would be sudden, and it would not have occasioned great surprise if it had occurred without warning at some social function, as a result of heart trouble. Almost to the end he refused to take to his bed, and was sitting up yesterday in a large chair, so the palace stories go.

"I Think I Have Done My Duty."

One of the last utterances attributed to King Edward was: "Well, it is all over, but I think I have done my duty."

The Queen and others of the royal family and four doctors had been constantly in the sick room throughout the day. Several hours before death the King was in a comatose condition, but he rallied slightly between nine and ten appearing to recognize his family. Then he lapsed into unconsciousness, which ended in his passing away.

Experts were held irresolute to administer an anesthetic, but there was a fear that the weakness of the king might result in a fatal issue, and an operation was not made as a last resort.

The body lies in the king's chamber in the northwest wing of the Buckingham Palace, which is brilliantly lighted, while the rest of the great gloomy building except Lord Knollys' office is entirely darkened. It was half an hour after the king breathed his last when Lord Knollys walked into the office and said to the waiting reporters:

"His majesty is dead."

The people outside the palace learned the news only when boys appeared with papers. In the meantime the Prince and Princess of Wales had taken leave of the other members of the royal family at the main entrance, soon after midnight. They drove direct to Marlborough House, Princess Victoria, who is her mother's constant companion, remained with the queen. The others of the family followed the Prince and Princess of Wales.

ST. JOHN RECEIVED NEWS WITH PROFOUND SORROW

Bells of Churches and Fire Department Told to Announce the King's Death

Sad Tidings Quickly Spread Over the City, and Many Amusement Places Were Closed--Expressions of Sorrow from Prominent Men--Special Meeting of Common Council Called for This Afternoon at 3 O'Clock.

The news of the death of His Majesty King Edward VII, struck St. John like a blow.

The Loyalist city, which had been troubled by the day's bulletins and which waited in dread anxiety, fearing that worse tidings were to come, received the evil news at a few minutes past eight o'clock.

It seemed that the message spread almost instantly throughout the city, and everywhere there were enquiries in hushed, expectant voices, from hundreds, anxious to know if it were really true.

The telegraph wires brought the confirmation all too soon, and then the bells of the dark city tolled out solemn proclamation that the Peacemaker had indeed been gathered to his fathers.

The fall news affected the city of St. John as with a sense of deep personal bereavement, for not only is St. John a Loyalist community, but many citizens still living had vivid recollections of the visit of the late King, when he was Prince of Wales, and recalled with pride the magnificent impression everywhere made by him on the occasion of that memorable tour of his mother's dominions.

Whatever public enjoyment had been going on in the city, instantly ceased. As the bells kept tolling, and the message struck home to the hearts of the people, the theatres dispersed their audiences, and the crowds, who but a moment before had been gay and thoughtless, turned sadly home, whispering together that death had stricken down the great central figure of the British Empire.

The Telegraph presents herewith some expressions of sorrow from the leading men of the nation, the city and the province, together with facts concerning the late King's visit to St. John, the leading events of his career and some illustrations which seem in place at this time.

OFFICIAL MESSAGE OF REGRET

Lieutenant-Governor Tweedie, who was at the Royal, upon hearing with profound sorrow of the death of His Majesty, sent the following: St. John, N. B., May 6, 1910.

To His Excellency The Governor General, Ottawa: Will Your Excellency please forward the following telegram: (Signed) L. J. TWEEDIE.

St. John, N. B., May 6, 1910.

On behalf of my government, myself, and the people of the province, I beg to tender most heartfelt sympathy to the Queen and Royal Family in their bereavement, and to assure them that in no part of the British Empire will the death of His Majesty be more sincerely deplored.

(Signed) L. J. TWEEDIE, Lieutenant Governor of New Brunswick.

Lieutenant-Governor Tweedie, when he heard the deplorable news, expressed the deepest sorrow at the untimely death of His Majesty who, he said, "was one of the most illustrious kings that ever ruled over the British Empire."

"No monarch," the Lieutenant Governor continued, "in the world commanded the respect and love of the people as he did."

"It required a ruler of remarkable qualities, of tact and good judgment, to so successfully succeed his illustrious mother, Queen Victoria.

"The world has lost its greatest peacemaker, and one whose influence was always exerted for the benefit and uplifting of mankind.

"In view of what is transpiring in the British Empire at the present time, his death is more especially to be deplored, as there has been no time in the history of the Empire when his influence could have been more beneficially felt.

"All Canada mourns for Edward the Seventh, whose memory will ever be cherished by the loyal subjects of the Crown.

"With the example of Queen Victoria and his noble father to inspire him there can be no doubt that the present King will be true to the traditions of the Empire, and, supported by the intense loyalty of the people, will prove himself a worthy successor to the King for whom today all the Empire is sorrowing."

Premier Hazen said:

"I regard the sudden demise of King Edward VII. as a calamity, not only to the British Empire, but to the world at large.

"Even under ordinary circumstances the death of a great nation cannot be regarded by his subjects otherwise than with feelings of emotion, but under the existing conditions of British politics and the relation of the European nations to one another, the removal of a wise, prudent, experienced and public monarch, is an event that may be attended with consequences of most serious import to the nation and the world.

"King Edward's reign was a comparatively short one, but the verdict of history will undoubtedly be that he was one of the wisest and greatest rulers that ever sat upon a throne.

"He took a most keen and active interest on all his country's institutions, endeavoring at all times to promote the well-being of his subjects, and his appreciation of the British dominions beyond the seas was shown, when soon after his accession, he sent his son, the heir to the crown, upon a mission to Canada and other parts of the empire.

"This was one of his first acts after ascending the throne, and the loyal greeting which the Prince everywhere received in Canada demonstrated how warmly by the people of the dominions appreciated His Majesty's thoughtful and tactful action. His popularity was unbounded, and he enjoyed to a greater extent than any British sovereign, with the exception of his sainted mother, the confidence and esteem of his people.

"That his son, who succeeds him upon the throne with the universal approval of the loyal people of the British Empire, has inherited the wisdom, patriotism, and other qualifications of Edward VII. and Queen Victoria in a marked degree, will be the heart-felt prayer of every loyal Britisher, and of everyone who desires well for the welfare and prosperity of the world at large."

KING EDWARD VII

The King is dead. After a brief but splendid reign, marked by the constant manifestation of the highest kingly qualities, Edward the Seventh has passed out of life, and his career into history. Wherever Canadians met last evening the King's dangerous illness was the topic of discussion, and when news of his death was flashed over the cable the expressions of sorrow were universal and profound. The whole empire mourns a loss that is great and irreparable. The ablest monarch of his time, and the one most beloved of the world, his passing leaves the empire and a thousand speculations concerning the effect it may have upon the constitutional crisis in the United Kingdom and upon the affairs of the empire at large. The unexpected suddenness of the calamity makes it the more distressing. It was but yesterday the world learned that the King's condition was alarming, and the end had come before the day was done. In a moment of time the aspect of imperial affairs had changed and a new epoch had begun.

It is not, however, as if a dictator had fallen. The genius of the British people for self-government survives all shocks and surmounts all difficulties. Britain has lost a sane and safe adviser and a great and splendid personality, but the nation lives, and the King's example and the traditions of the race survive.

Throughout Canada the people mourn with their fellow citizens in all parts of the empire, and recall with keen appreciation the lively interest displayed at all times by King Edward in the welfare and progress of this Dominion. As Prince of Wales he was beloved, and as the successor to his revered mother upon the throne he fully realized the highest anticipations of his Canadian subjects. His reign was all too short; for the world respected him and treated him, and had honored him with the title of "peacemaker." He assumed a heavy burden when he took up the sceptre wielded for so many years by Victoria the Good; but during the period that has since elapsed he has encountered no harsh criticism, nor departed from the path of royal duty while his personality has been a living factor alike in home affairs and in the foreign relations of the government.

King Edward's relations with the people of Great Britain were of so intimate a nature for so long a period that their loss is personal to a degree that would be paralleled at the death of any monarch now living. His people spoke of him in terms of affection and relied on his judgment in state affairs. In all the turmoil of politics there was never an unkind word concerning the person or conduct of the King, but many times his generosity, his tact, his judgment and discretion were the subject of the highest praise. His brief reign was peaceful, but was marked by a great development and closer drawing together of the states of the empire. In Canada, in Australia, in India, and especially in South Africa the growth of autonomy has been accompanied by a marked development of imperial sentiment and devotion to the welfare of a united empire. In the affairs of Europe King Edward exerted a greater personal influence than any other ruler, and invariably used it in behalf of peace among the nations. He leaves the world at peace, the empire stronger and more united, and the crown unsullied. He who witnessed the passing of so many of the great and good of earth has now joined them in the silent halls, leaving to his people the example of a life of noble service, and to the world the memory of a just man and sagacious counsellor.

"I think I have done my duty," the King is reported to have said, in the last moments of conscious life. These simple words deserve to live and to be cherished. Great duties bring great responsibilities, and only he who makes the performance of duty his uppermost thought, whether he live in palace or in hovel, may hope to be held in loving remembrance by the world.

KING GEORGE V.

The King is dead. Live the King! A great burden of responsibility rests upon him who yesterday was Prince of Wales and is today the King of Great Britain and Ireland and Emperor of India. He comes to the throne at a comparatively early age, but not without such training as should equip him for his great task. He has for his guidance the example of his father and his grandmother, the two greatest monarchs of modern times, and again on his return from India were those of a man who could take a broad grasp of imperial questions, and such as to inspire the hope that with able advisers he will remain true to the best traditions of the last half century of British rule. He has at the outset the loyal support of the people of the whole empire, and though at the moment there are grave constitutional problems at issue in the United Kingdom the supremacy of the monarchical form of government is not in question. Canadian have kindly recollections of the Prince and Princess of Wales, and will extend to the new King and Queen the same loyal devotion that marked Canada's attitude toward their predecessors.

A LESSON FOR NEXT YEAR

There is nothing surprising or worthy of special remark in the fact that people are willing to accept something for nothing. That is what happened in St. John yesterday. Citizens were given an opportunity to get rid of rubbish at no expense to themselves, and some availed themselves of it. One enterprising grocer saved his own team a trip to the dump, and doubtless there were many other instances of this sort. Beyond question the rubbish is better on the dump than in the back yards, and to a slight extent the city is the gainer, small as was the response of the people at large.

But such a proceeding must not be dignified by the name of "a clean-up day," which is an entirely different thing. There was a fine opportunity to enlist the cooperation of all the citizens and make the day a notable one. This opportunity was lost. No good purpose can be served by calling the attempt anything else than a failure. We may hope for wiser counsels next year, and less cause for the criticism of the civic and school authorities concerning lack of organization and a competent heart to the movement. Then it will be a general movement, aiming more to develop a civic spirit than to dispose of a few loads of rubbish.

ROOSEVELT ON PEACE

A wider application of treaties of arbitration, a further development of the Hague Tribunal, and a check to the growth of armaments are Ex-President Roosevelt's suggestion to advance the cause of universal peace. He recognizes the folly of a general disarmament under existing conditions, and that the advance must be made step by step. The following paragraph from his speech before the Nobel prize committee sets out very clearly the difficulties to be overcome:

"We must ever bear in mind that the great end in view is righteousness, justice as between man and man, nation and nation, the chance to lead our lives on a somewhat higher level, with a broader spirit of brotherly good-will one for another. Peace is generally good in itself, but it is never the highest good unless it comes as the handmaid of righteousness; and it becomes a very evil thing if it serves merely as a mark for cowardice and sloth, or as an instrument to further the ends of despotism or anarchy. We despise and abhor the bully, the braver, the oppressor, whether in private or public life; but we despise no less the coward and the voluptuary. No man is worth calling a man who will not fight rather than submit to injury or see those that are dear to him suffer wrong. No nation deserves to exist if it permits itself to lose the stern and virile virtues, and this without regard to whether the loss is due to the growth of a heartless and all-absorbing commercialism, to prolonged indulgence in luxury and soft effortless ease, or to the delinquency of a warped and twisted sentimentalism. Moreover, and above all, let us remember that words count only when they give expression to deeds or are to be translated into them. The leaders of the Red Terry party of peace while they stepped their hands in the blood of the innocent; and many a tyrant has called it peace when he has scourged honest protest into silence. Our words must be judged by our deeds; and in striving for a lofty ideal we must use practical methods; and if we cannot attain all at one leap, we must advance towards it step by step, reasonably content so long as we actually make some progress in the right direction."

HIS GLORY

He never made a fortune great.
He never heard the world's applause,
He never rose to rule the state,
Or lead a fight in any cause;
He merely plodded on his way
With never any wish to roam
Contented with his lot each day
And loved by all the folks at home.

No deed of note stood out to mark
The years thither he had lived and toiled,
To him the outer world was dark
And from the throng his soul recoiled;
He lived and died—a simple life—
With none to praise him or condemn;
But two small children and his wife
Said he was O, so good to them.

And after all is done and said
As down the lane of Time we go
When we are numbered with the dead
That is enough for me to know
'Tis all the epitaph I crave
'Tis all I ever care to do.
To have it written over my grave
That I was good unto a few.

—Edgar A. Guest.

A PSALM ON STILL LIFE

Tell me not in warehouse numbers
Storage life is but a dream;
For the soul is dead the slumberer,
And fowls are not what they seem.

Trusts are real, trusts are earnest
And the public is their goat;
Frost thou wert to frost returned
'Ne'er was spoke of table d'hoie.

Lives of storage eggs remind us
We can make our lives as long;
And, departing, leave behind us
Curses on false innocence.

Let us then be up and doing
With a heart for any fate;
Still deceiving still pursuing,
Learn to molder and to wait.

—Percy Shaw in New York American.

IN LIGHTER VEIN A TOAST

A cheerful mind,
A loving heart,
Some work and strength to do it,
A bit to eat,
A place to sleep—
That's life for me—here's to it.

WANTED HIS SHARE

A Highlander fell into a river and after desperate efforts managed to reach the bank in safety. His wife, who had been a distressed onlooker, exclaimed, as soon as her anxiety was relieved, "Ah, Donald, ye should be verra thankful 'as Providence for saving your life!"

Donald was somewhat aggrieved at what he deemed an unequal appropriation of the credit. "Yes, yes," he replied, "Providence was very good but I was fery clever too, what?"

WEDDING STOPPED AT ALTAR, BRIDE FIXES ANOTHER NUPTIAL DAY

New York, May 6.—After an exciting chase half-way across the continent Cupid met with a temporary defeat in New York city when Miss Emily Keith, of Kansas City, Mo., said to be one of the most beautiful young women in Missouri and betrothed to a large fortune, was kidnapped practically at the altar of the chapel in the natural residence of the Church of the Holy Cross by her relatives just as she was about to be wedded to William Fairlie, of St. Joseph, Mo.

Yielding to the pleading of her sister, Mrs. Henry Koehler, and her uncle, Robert Keith, both of Kansas City, Miss Keith agreed to postpone the marriage for two months, and accompanied by her relatives, she left New York on the Kronprinz of the Red Star line for Europe.

Just as the steamship left her pier at 11 o'clock Miss Keith's relatives, as well as her disappointed fiance and said—
"My love cannot change. I would give my bride on June 29!"

NERVOUS HEADACHE and Muscular Rheumatism Disappeared when the Nerves were Restored by DR. CHASE'S NERVE FOOD

Feeble, wasted, starved nerves often make their condition known by nervous headaches. This is one of the first and most marked symptoms.

If you are at all subject to rheumatism you have noticed how much worse it gets when the system gets run down. Both nervous headache and muscular rheumatism disappear when Dr. Chase's Nerve Food is used to rebuild and revitalize the wasted and weakened body.

Mr. James Riley, moulder for the Watrous Engine, 46 Jarvis street, Drantford, Ont., writes:—"I suffered for years with muscular rheumatism and I also had frequent and severe attacks of nervous headache. I concluded that the trouble came from the nerves, and using Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, as I continued this treatment the rheumatism was gradually driven out of the system, my nerves got stronger, my headache and the headache disappeared. I consider Dr. Chase's Nerve Food a splendid nerve regulator and health builder."

You can possibly make a mistake in using Dr. Chase's Nerve Food when the nervous system is run down, for by forming new nerve blood this great food cure builds up the nerve cells as nothing else can.

When you have made up your mind to test this treatment, go at it in earnest and keep at it regularly until you feel again the joy of health and vigor. 30 cents a box, 6 for $2.00, all dealers; or Edmondson, Bates & Co., Toronto. Write for free copy of Dr. Chase's Recipes.

MOTHER AND CHILD CAUGHT SHOPLIFTING

New York, May 6.—A well dressed woman in black, accompanied by a child of ten years, attracted the attention of a store detective in a Sixth avenue department store, the girl slipping valuable articles from the counter and passing them to the woman, who secreted them in a large pocket in her skirt.

An arrest was made and the search which followed disclosed goods worth $21 which had not been purchased. The woman said she was Mrs. Mary Schmidt of Passaic, and the child was her daughter.

Letters found on the woman, however, seemed to show that her real name was Mrs. Mary Holton, of No. 8 Second street, Clifford, N. J. The little girl when questioned alone, confirmed this, saying that she was Florence Gieser, a daughter of Mrs. Holton by a former marriage. She said her step-father was Patrick Holton, employed in the Ereka Mills, at Atlanta, N. J.

"I did not teach the child to steal," declared Mrs. Holton to Police Lieutenant Becker, "but when she began to pass me things it seemed too easy and I hid them." The woman was held by Magistrate Corigan in $500 bail, and the daughter was turned over to the Children's Society, Ball for the mother was furnished by Ernest Wagner of No. 124 University place.

that hatred of Germany was far from his mind and adds: "It therefore is natural that human sympathy for the fate of this noble-minded princely prince is in no respect minimized in Germany by political considerations."

Sympathy also comes from Austria, while Italy, Russia, the American states and other countries pay their tribute of respectful regret.

His brother sovereigns all tender their affectionate sorrow for the greatest of them all.

The true import of the king's death cannot be appreciated, its significance is so numbing but it is realized with heavy dismay that the experience and judgment of the country's greatest statesman is no longer at the service of the state at a time when there being political changes in the air, its effect on the government's struggle with the House of Lords, must affect agitation to the collapsing point. It will be difficult for the Liberals to get up steam again and thus the general election fixed by all for June will probably be postponed indefinitely.

Asquith, McKenna and Lloyd-George who were holding on the continent are hurrying home. While the king's statecraft, brilliance, diplomacy and the value of his efforts towards the preservation of peace in the armed camp, which is Europe all receive their due praise his personality is given the most affectionate notice. In every department of British activity we are told with truth that he took the warmest and most unflinching interest, he added new splendor to state ceremonies, he played an immense part in all the social life of his country and not one of his subjects worked harder than he did for he made it a point of honor that no great event should pass without his personal participation.

His sympathy with the poor and suffering was intense; he shared the nation's joy as well as its anxieties; he lived in sight of all and not in remote retirement. Edward's memory will be sincerely cherished, his figure will grow in men's minds as the significance of his reign becomes more clearly realized and better understood. For Alexandra the most agonizing emotion suffused the nation. She sat for hours at the king's bedside, and never relaxed her loving vigilance until he had arrived from the Mediterranean only on Thursday adds to the tragedy of her position. The king's sudden death was made known soon after midnight, where there was still a considerable crowd around the palace. They silently dispersed into the streets of the sleeping city.

London, May 7.—King Edward, after witnessing the Chanter performance in Paris or on the train journey thence to Biarritz on March 9, caught a chill which developed into bronchitis. At Biarritz it was found necessary to confine him to his bed for several days, but apparently he completely recovered after several days in doors, and indulged in much outdoor exercise, motoring, picnicking and tennis. He was in the best of health apparently when leaving Biarritz, and told the mayor to himself.

The king reached London on April 27, and fulfilled several engagements prior to spending week-ends at Windsor. He returned to London on Monday, 11, and the fact that he was unable to meet the royal family at breakfast on Tuesday, 12, was announced as the cause of his illness inevitable. The home secretary has been summoned to Buckingham palace.

Proclaiming the New King

(Times Special Cable)

London, May 7.—The king and queen are being rapidly made at St. James' Palace for the great function of proclaiming His Majesty, King George V, Duke of York, on Saturday afternoon at Charing Cross and the steps of the Royal Exchange. No arrangements have yet been made in regard to lying in state.

One report says that King George will be proclaimed at 2.30, another says the privy council will meet in St. James' Palace at 4 o'clock to make arrangements for proclamation.

Quebec Legislature Adjourns

Quebec, May 7.—(Special)—Probably in no city was the death of King Edward accorded a more sympathetic tribute than in this city and respect than in the ancient capital. Premier Gouin announced the adjournment of the legislature for Tuesday afternoon out of regard to a monarch whose death is a world loss.

The Royal Family

London, May 7.—With the accession of the Prince of Wales, Queen Alexandra becomes the dowager queen, the first the empire has had since 1857, when the death of William IV, who was survived by Queen Adelaide, occurred.

Alexandra is a princess of Denmark, the oldest daughter of the late King Christian IX. She was born on December 1, 1844. As dowager queen, she will receive an annuity of $20,000 for her maintenance.

The new queen is Victoria, only daughter of the late Francis, Duke of Teck. She was born on May 28, 1857, and married Prince George, Duke of York, on July 6, 1883. Six children—five sons and one daughter—bless the household of the new monarch. The eldest, Prince Edward Albert, now the heir apparent to the throne, is a manly lad who will be sixteen years old in June. At present he is serving as a naval cadet. Prince Albert Frederick, the second son, and heir presumptive, also is a naval cadet. He is fifteen years old. The other boys are Prince Henry William, Prince George Edward and Prince John Charles. The daughter is Princess Victoria Alexandra Alice Mary. She was born in 1897.

The Prince of Wales and His Brothers and Sisters places of amusement and all the shops were immediately closed.

London, May 7.—Since earliest morning a flood of messages have been pouring into the palace from the chiefs of foreign lands. One of the first was a sympathetic telegram from Emperor William.

Ambassador Reid and Secretary Phillips of the United States in station were early callers at Buckingham Palace and Marlborough House. Later other members of the diplomatic corps called. Mr. Reid also left cards for Sir Edward Grey, secretary of state for foreign affairs, while attaches of the embassy paid a similar duty at the war office and at the admiralty. The flags at Marlborough House and the embassy are at half mast.

The American feeling regarding the death of King Edward was expressed this afternoon to Sir Edward Grey by Ambassador Reid in the following letter:

"My government instructs me to express to you and through you to the British government and people, the sincere and profound sympathy of the president, the government and the people of the United States in the loss, by their British kinsmen, of a ruler so beloved and so justly distinguished among all the nations of the earth for his wisdom and kindness and for the influence of those high qualities in behalf of all that is best."

"I have the honor to be, with the highest respect and esteem, and with the sincerest sympathy, Sir, your most obedient and humble servant."

WILLIAM LAW REID.

Washington, May 7.—The question of appointing a special representative of the United States to attend the funeral of the king is being discussed here. It is suggested in official circles that Theodore Roosevelt may be named in case the state funeral is held before the degree of England. If he is not named Ambassador Reid will probably be delegated.

"On the sad occasion of the death of King Edward I offer to your majesty and to you, his illustrious consort, the most profound sympathy of the president of the people, and of the government of the United States whose hearts go out to you in your great loss."

GEORGE V WILL BE TITLE OF NEW KING

George V, to be proclaimed today. The high and mighty Prince George is now by the death of our late sovereign of happy memory become our only lawful and rightful heir.

His Career. When Edward VII breathed his last there came to a close the life of a unique personality. He was loved almost universally, first of all as a man, whose natural gifts made him dear to the hearts of his subjects, and next as a monarch whose ability to fulfill the role which he assumed with so much grace and dignity was demonstrated conspicuously.

Edward VII, by the grace of God of Great Britain and Ireland, Defender of the Faith and Governor of India, to whom we do acknowledge all faith and constant obedience beseeching God, by whose kings and queens do reign, to bless the royal prince, George V, with long and happy years to reign over us.

The new king will address the council and promise to reign as a constitutional monarch. At the conclusion of the meeting King George will issue his first proclamation requiring all officers to proceed with their duties.

The court will go into mourning for six months and the day after tomorrow that the great bell of St. Paul's shall be tolled throughout the day. So sudden was the king's death that most of the government officials were absent.

It is the duty of the members of both houses of parliament to meet without adjournment as soon as they can assemble, to take the oath of allegiance and receive the message of condolence from the monarch. Speaker Lowther, of the house of commons, however, is in Constantinople.

Bulletin Gave Little Hope. Just twenty-four hours after the first news was broken to the public as from a clear sky, that the King was suffering from bronchitis by the physician's statement that his condition was some what better, came the official announcement that "His Majesty's condition is now critical."

The public immediately interpreted these significant words to mean that the King's case was very hopeless. That conviction pervaded London and the entire Kingdom. The bulletin was transmitted to all the royal relatives before it was made public and the rapid sequence and arrival of royalties at the palace within the next hour confirmed, so far as confirmation was needed, the most alarming news.

The Prince and Princess of Wales, who had left the palace shortly before the issuance of the bulletin, both showing marked signs of grief, soon hastened back. Princess Victoria and the Duke of Pife followed.

The Duke and Duchess of Connaught, who today arrived at St. James from Africa, and the Duke and Duchess of Devonshire, who were notified by telegram that Queen Maud telegraphed from Christiania that she would start for London tomorrow.

The Archbishop of Canterbury, who visited the Queen in the morning, paid a second and call before the King. He talked with the Prince of Wales and hurried away with signs of great emotion, to preside over a service at 10 o'clock in the evening.

All religious and social services, had been arranged for tomorrow for intercessions for the King.

The Archbishop of Canterbury, who presided this morning at a large charitable meeting between the King and Queen, said impressively: "Sickness and sorrow and the great issues of life and death level all earthly barriers. I ask you as Christians to stand for a moment and lift your prayers for our sovereign hanging this moment between life and death."

The audience rose and after a minute of silence joined in the Lord's Prayer. Special services were held this evening at St. Dunstons, Wolv-ton and other churches on the King's estate.

An incident occurred this afternoon which, under ordinary circumstances, would have given the King the greatest of pleasures. His horse, "Witch of the Air," in which he was keenly interested, won the spring two year old stake at Kempton Park amid the cheers of the race-goers.

The official Gazette tonight by a coincidence published the first programme of the court levees.

Even after evening passed into night groups stood about the gates and hung to the iron railings of the big gold-plated fence, watching the comings and goings of the royal family, the physicians, officers and other notable persons until the police shortly before midnight, with a view to clearing the streets, announced that no further bulletins would be issued until morning. Then the stragglers reluctantly left their posts of vantage and sadly started homeward, filled with apprehension.

At the same time, a steady stream of callers passed through the diplomatic entrance to sign the visitors' book and make inquiries.

The more intimate friends and members of the royal family were received at the entrance to the palace, and then the King's apartments are situated.

The crowd outside was an ever-changing one, the early arrivals coming in groups who stopped for a brief moment on their way to work.

When the morning bulletin, which long had been given to the press and circulated in special editions, was posted on the fence, the square was crowded so that police reserves had to be called to make a passage for the moving traffic.

The coronation, originally set for June 26, 1902, and postponed until August 9, was a pageant of almost unparalleled splendor and the occasion of celebration throughout the world.

His short reign was a peaceful one, after the conclusion of the Boer war, which was in progress when he became king.

ST. JOHN RECEIVED NEWS WITH PROFOUND SORROW

His Worship Mayor Frink said: "The announcement of the death of our sovereign the king will cause great sorrow to the British race. At this crucial period, when political unrest in the island is at high tension, the personal strength and force of his late majesty inspired confidence in the people that all would be well. The power and skill of the nation's guide has departed. We deplore the loss, but hold fast and firm in the belief that God has charted out the course of the British empire and its rulers, and we bow to His will."

British Empire is plunged at the news of the death of its great and good King, there are no more sincere mourners than the millions of his Catholic subjects," said His Lordship Bishop Casey. "I recall my visit to Ireland about five years ago. There I met many strong and intelligent Irishmen declaring their tender affection and great admiration for King Edward. In his public career, he was always the lover and promoter of peace, and I can recall many instances in which he desired most admirably to make his Catholic subjects feel at home. In this, we cheerfully testify, his success was admirable. His gracious and memorable answer to the cabined greetings to the bishops assembled in the first Primacy council in Quebec will ever be tenderly cherished by the Canadian Episcopate. In the midst of our bereavement, we find much consolation in the fact that he left us such a worthy and promising successor. Our profound sympathy goes out to her Majesty the Queen, and we will ever pray that Divine protection and guidance may not be wanting to the royal family."

Archdeacon Raymond said: "Only a little more than nine years have passed since the good Queen Victoria lay down the sceptre, she so worthily had borne, for more than sixty years. One readily recalls the spontaneous expression of grief that came from the confines of the earth at what was felt to be a common loss. For many long years her son and successor, who has now in turn been called to rest, gave ungrudgingly of his time and strength to lessen the burdens and the cares of his beloved mother. He was never known to be impatient in his subordinate capacity, much less to show anxiety to wear a crown. And when the queen mother was dead, among the countless tributes to her memory none was more sincere or touching than that of the king. We sometimes speak of 'Victoria the good.' When she speak of the sovereign's task, her resolve was 'I will be good.' When Edward the peacemaker assumed the like task his words to his people were: 'It will be my constant endeavor to follow the great example that has been bequeathed to me. Confident in the love, support and sympathy of my people and of their representative assemblies, I will, with the blessing of God, solemnly work for the promotion of the common welfare and security of our great empire over which I have now been called to reign.'"

CANADIAN STATESMEN'S APPRECIATION OF LAKE KING

In Ottawa society was greatly enjoying itself at the horse show, which opened with great brilliancy Wednesday night and was to have continued until the end of the week. Tonight was to have been the most brilliant of the week, it having been announced that the governor-general and Sir Wilfrid Laurier would be present. The sad news from the capital of the empire put a definite end to the horse show, and this is the first of a number of functions which will be called off.

Hon. Mr. Pugsley.
Hon. Mr. Pugsley said: "King Edward's death will be regretted throughout the world and mourned throughout the empire. Nowhere will grief be deeper or more genuine than in Canada. By Canadiana King Edward was loved both as a monarch and as a man. His personal interest in Canada has been shown on many occasions since his visit to the dominion fifty years ago and we have grown to feel that he had a special interest in us and we in him. Because of this our grief will be all the greater."

Hon. Mr. Fielding's Tribute.
Referring to the death of the king to-night, Hon. Mr. Fielding said:
"The news of the death of King Edward came with startling suddenness, and I need not say will be received with universal sorrow. In these days of the development of democratic government one may be led to think that kings are not the figures they were in earlier times. But King Edward was such a great personality that he retained the power attaching to the sovereignty in a remarkable manner. His visit to Canada as Prince of Wales, in 1860, made him personally known to the Canadian people through his noble and advanced age will recall the appearance of the youthful prince. The Canadian people were, therefore, attached not merely by ties of loyalty to King Edward. Those who met him personally know how deeply he animated the souls of his subjects in his dominions. The sorrow over his death will be universal. Throughout the empire he will be mourned by his people for his service as a constitutional monarch and throughout the world generally he will be remembered as Edward, the peace maker."

Hon. Mr. Lemieux.
Hon. Mr. Lemieux, postmaster general, said:
"The death of His Majesty comes, I am sure, as a great blow to all his subjects in Canada. As a peace maker and as a constitutional king, he had no equal in the history of modern times. It was his special endeavor to unite all the various sections of the empire and to issue to all his subjects, in Canada, Quebec, or elsewhere, the same laws and to insure to all the same rights. His personal interest in Canada, and especially in the Dominion of the Maritimes, was well known to all his subjects. His visit to the Dominion of the Maritimes, in 1860, made him personally known to the Canadian people through his noble and advanced age will recall the appearance of the youthful prince. The Canadian people were, therefore, attached not merely by ties of loyalty to King Edward. Those who met him personally know how deeply he animated the souls of his subjects in his dominions. The sorrow over his death will be universal. Throughout the empire he will be mourned by his people for his service as a constitutional monarch and throughout the world generally he will be remembered as Edward, the peace maker."

Hon. Mr. Borden.
The tidings of sorrow which have just been flashed across the ocean across to the people of Canada with startling suddenness, words of foreboding, have hardly reached us before the last message came. God's finger touched him and he slept. To the people of the Dominion his death is a crown upon the dignity and majesty of the whole empire and through all those who are linked to the other and to the Motherland. Thus the sovereign's death makes a thrill of the empire and today's untimely tidings bring to the people of Canada the sense of a still deeper and more solemn bereavement. They gloried in their King's title of 'Peacemaker' and they believed him the greatest living force for right within the empire. In him died the greatest statesman and diplomat of Europe, and especially those of the Motherland. The words uttered in his latest moments of consciousness came to us with a peculiar pathos but also as an inspiration for the daily life of the humblest. It is all over—but I think I have done my duty. He who can solemnly and truthfully say in his last moments need not and will not fear death to be king or peasant."

Hon. McKenzie King.
Hon. McKenzie King said:
"Since the announcement of Victoria's death, no word had come fraught with so much sorrow to so many hearts. The loss is not to the British Empire alone but to the whole world. All subjects revered all nations honored Edward VII. His conception of the duties of a monarch has been a noble one and in his position he has done his duty as a king and as a man. He has identified himself with his people by innumerable acts of kindly thoughtfulness and has made it a life purpose to promote friendly relations between nations and to further the peace of the world. By his broad and generous sympathies his interest in the welfare of the masses and his constant regard for constitutional usage and practice, King Edward has maintained the throne of Britain on strong and enduring foundations and has won an abiding place in the deepest affection of all his subjects. He was the most constitutional of monarchs and the most democratic of sovereigns. In no part of the empire will the loss of the king be mourned more than in Canada, which has prospered under his late majesty's reign as never before in its history."

Hon. George P. Graham.
Hon. Geo. P. Graham said:
"Canadians of all sections and races and creeds most receive the startling news of the death of 'Edward the Peacemaker' with a sense of almost irreparable loss. In common with the rest of the empire the people of Canada were bound to him not only because he was the head of the empire and as such stood for all its traditions, its ideals, its power and its liberties vouchsafed under constitutional government based upon his people's will, but they were also bound by ties of personal affection to a king who worthily filled the place held by the revered Victoria. His part in the growth and increasing solidarity of the empire, in matters of defence, of trade, of common effort for the common interest most built large in history. Since his assumption of the throne there has been a steady growth in Canada's loyalty to the sovereign, based on esteem for his personal character, confidence in his judgment and steadfastness, and pride in his commanding position among world sovereigns. Through the force of his personality and unerring instinct to do the right thing making for the unity of the empire and the peace of the world."

For Health And Economy Eat More Bread

TEN cents will feed an ordinary family a day on first class bread. This does not mean ordinary bread. For there is an important difference between ordinary bread and first class bread. It isn't a difference of looks or methods of making or baking. It is a difference of nutrition, food value, healthfulness. And this food value depends on the flour used. For there is a wide difference between flours.

Ogilvie's Royal Household Flour

If all flour were the best flour, then all bread, properly made, would be good bread. But all flour is not first class because all wheat is not first class. Wheat, you know, varies in quality almost as much as apples or potatoes; there are as many different grades of wheat as there are grades of butter—or wool. And every difference in grade represents an actual difference in nourishing value, food elements, wholesomeness. Flour made from a low grade of wheat is by no means so healthful as flour made from high grade wheat. Now the wheat that goes into OGILVIE'S ROYAL HOUSEHOLD FLOUR is of the best grade. It contains the highest possible percentage of nutritive value. The makers of 'ROYAL HOUSEHOLD' maintain expensive laboratories and testing departments where skilled men scientifically analyze each day's milling. Note but the very best of Fyfe wheat—rich in nutrition and healthfulness—can pass. For this reason bread made from ROYAL HOUSEHOLD FLOUR contains the maximum of food value and furnishes the maximum of energy and strength. And for the same reason 'ROYAL HOUSEHOLD' makes the finest pies, cakes, biscuits, muffins, rolls, and pastry of all kinds. It is the one flour that a housewife should use in order to have her household baking strictly first class.

"Ogilvie's Book for a Cook" with 125 pages of Recipes that have been tried and tested will be sent free to your address if you mention the name of your dealer.

Toronto Restaurants Raise Rates Because of High Prices
(Toronto Exchange)
The recent increase in meat prices has had the effect of raising prices for meat orders in the majority of the restaurants of the city. Meat orders which last week cost 25 cents, now cost 35 cents, an increase of 40 per cent. Meat orders at many of the smaller lunch counters have been cut down in quantity, which is another way of increasing prices.

Between Good Flour and Flour That's Good Enough

THE DIFFERENCE between good and bad, Madam? Just as great as between eggs fresh from the "cackle" and others of more ancient vintage.

Just as great as between "all-well" and "arf and arf." Might add that good flour and poor flour are divided by a price difference and, incidentally, a baking difference.

Which explains why you would gladly pay just a little more to get FIVE ROSES certain.

Because it's worth more, and practically all cheap flours are fault-floors.

FIVE ROSES, Madam, is worth the money. We are convinced that nothing so rich in the dear-to-the-taste flavor of the ripe, red Manitoba spring wheat berry, so entirely different in general merit has ever been offered to discerning housewives.

Even if all other millers were to get the same quality of ripened, wholesome berries of course, merely a supposition, you know, and they had the same facilities for receiving and storing the grain, to prevent possible spoiling before reaching the mills.

And they had millage perfect as the Keweenaw Pure-Flour plant to grind this prime grain.

Yet their product would not begin to compare with FIVE ROSES.

Because FIVE ROSES, Madam, is all of these plus the scientific know-how, expert skill and long-continued care which no other flour contains.

You must expect to pay for something more than raw material. It is to explain to some measure why you pay more for FIVE ROSES flour.

They have declared this flour really "good enough" for them and the business goes around the board.

It is well known to connoisseurs of fine flour that once FIVE ROSES enters a home, that family is forever spoiled for any other flour.

You know how hard to please your own folks are, Madam. They'll off the FIVE ROSES.

Prisoner Arrested on Theft Charge Shoots Constable Fortin Dead in Street and Badly Wounds Fellow Policeman—People in Terror

Montreal, Que., May 7.—(Special)—Constable Fortin was shot to death and Constable O'Connell badly injured last evening by a man whom they arrested for suspected theft. O'Connell had made the arrest and the prisoner was resisting when Fortin passed and assisted his brother policeman.

They were in St. James street, and as soon as the second policeman came along the man stopped resisting, and seemed to submit. The two constables with their prisoner were within 100 yards of the station when the man suddenly drew a revolver and shot Fortin through the head, killing him instantly.

He then turned and shot O'Connell in the stomach and ran away. Although there were many people in the street at the time none dared interfere with the man as he still had the revolver in his hand, and he got clear.

Chinese Pigeon Case

Sir.—In referring to Chinese plucking pigeons alive, that is not a rare case, for I have stood and watched them in Chinatown in Vancouver, B. C., take heavy tongs, hang them up by the head and pluck them alive, and a Chinaman will not buy a fowl out west unless it is alive.

SOLD LIQUOR TO YOUNG GIRLS, HE IS FINED $50

St. Catharines, Ont., May 7.—Perhaps the first case of its kind ever tried here, and of a kind which has been extremely rare in Canada, came up in police court when John Sullivan, a bartender at the St. Catharines House, was charged by Chief of Police Greene with selling liquor to minors. The minors in question were three young girls who were served with liquor in an upstairs room in the hotel. Sullivan fought the case with a lawyer, but the evidence against him was so direct that Magistrate Campbell found him guilty, fining him $50 and costs or one month in jail.

YOU CONTROL THE USE OF YOUR FUEL IF YOU USE A GAS STOVE. Considerable fuel is wasted in cooking the old way. It takes time to get a fire and during that time fuel is being burned. Not so with a Gas Range, you turn on the gas and your fire is ready, when you are through cooking you turn it off and that's the end of it; you burn fuel only when you want it; you will save money by starting to cook this way now. Don't delay.

ALL CASES POSTPONED IN POLICE COURT

Judge Ritchie Pays Tribute to the Late King and No Business Is Transacted

There was a clean sheet this morning in the police court, and out of respect for King Edward no court was held. Three cases were slated to be dealt with and all were postponed.

In the case of Charles Ward, charged with refusing to allow Policeman Lucas on his licensed liquor premises in the Marsh Road on Sunday last, J. B. M. Baxter, K. C., appeared for the defense and Geo. A. Henderson prosecuted. Mr. Baxter opened by suggesting that no court be held owing to the death of the king, and Mr. Henderson said he concurred with the opinion of Mr. Baxter and thought a postponement would be in order.

Judge Ritchie replied that he had been thinking of the matter himself and was of the same mind. He then paid a tribute to the late sovereign, "His word seems to be not inappropriate, but proper," said his honor, "on the opening of a first court after the announcement of the death of our revered king that, as presiding judge, I should refer to the sudden and lamentable event. Today there is universal grief, not only in every part of Great Britain and Ireland, but throughout the entire world.

"We are taught to obey the laws, and respect the public authority. We know there is no authority but from God; we must fear God, love the brotherhood, honor the king.

"In the British Empire the source of all power and authority that courts exercise has its origin at the foot of the throne of our sovereign lord, the king. Millions of loyal subjects in Canada, and in the realm—that means throughout the civilized world—sincerely and keenly mourn the sudden death of a constitutional king, a wise sovereign, our beloved Edward, the Peacemaker. The king is dead—long live the King, George.

The case against Chas. Ward and that against "Jack" Whelpley were then postponed until Monday next. D. Mullin, K. C., is acting for Whelpley.

Han Wah opened wide his mouth and emitted a series of unintelligible "yah-yahs," when charged with cruelly treating a pigeon by plucking its feathers while it was alive, and his case was also postponed until Monday at the same hour, when an interpreter will be present.

Words,—mere words—cannot voice the grief of the British Nation! They are idle! They are powerless to express the depth of feeling that saddens the hearts of the people over whom King Edward VII. so wisely ruled.

From pole to pole, from sea to sea, wherever civilization holds sway, the message of sympathy is sent to the British Empire in her loss.
