Jury Find Unanimously For Conviction After Being Out Four Hours.

PRISONER'S WIFE BROKE DOWN ON HEARING NEWS

Finding a Severe Shock to Ex-Policeman — His Counsel Will Appeal in Montreal — Deed One of Most Brutal in Years.

New York, May 22.—Twelve men decided today for the second time that Charles Becker was the arch conspirator responsible for the Rosenthal murder, which nearly two years ago awoke New York to a realization of corruption in the police department and opened a new era of police reform. Becker, once a police lieutenant, was found guilty of murder in the first degree. Only a pardon or interference again by the Court of Appeals can save him from following to the electric chair the four gunmen who shot Herman Rosenthal, the gambler, early on the morning of July 16, 1912. The jury decided that the gunmen were Becker's agents.

Jury Unanimous for Conviction.

One ballot decided Becker's fate. It was taken almost immediately after the jurors returned from luncheon at an uptown hotel, where they went as soon as Supreme Court Justice Seabury finished his charge. It was unanimous for conviction. Tears streamed down the foreman's face as he announced the decision, and tears stood in the eyes of several other jurors, but sympathy did not warp their judgment. They had agreed that the corroboration which the district attorney failed to present at the first trial to support the stories of Rose, Vallon and Webber, the three accomplices who turned informers, had been furnished by the new witnesses at the second.

ACADIA WINS TRACK EVENTS FROM MT. A.

Carry off Honors in Intercollegiate Sports at Moncton by Comfortable Margin — St. John Man Did Well.

Moncton, May 22.—By a total of fifty-six points to thirty-four, Acadia defeated Mount Allison in the intercollegiate sports on the Moncton athletic grounds this afternoon. One record went by the board. Higgins of Acadia broke his own record of 10 feet, 3 3/4 inches in the pole vault by going 11 feet, 3 1/2 inches. Higgins was the top scorer for Acadia making 15 points while Grant Smith of St. John headed the list for Mount Allison with exactly the same number.

The time in the sprints was slow owing to the track being soft. Smith was the star runner of the day and it is understood that he will represent St. John in the annual C. A. A. U. championships in Charlottetown this year.

AVIATOR HAS ARMS BROKEN AND SERIOUSLY HURT DURING FLIGHT

Forced to Make Sudden Landing is Badly Smashed up — Passenger Jumps and Escapes.

Hamburg, May 22.—Another serious accident occurred today in the Prince Henry aviation contest, started on Sunday from Darmstadt, in which three aviators were killed in the first two days.

Lt. Kraft, while flying today near Northern, was compelled to make a sudden landing, in doing which his two arms were broken and he also suffered severe injuries to his head and legs. A passenger with him escaped unhurt, having jumped from the aeroplane before it reached the earth.

Von Thunau won the first prize in the reliability contest, flying the total distance of about 1,100 miles in 1,035 minutes. Lt. Werner von Beaulieu was second in 1,060 minutes, and Lt. Waldemar von Buttlar was third in 1,065 minutes.

ITALIAN DIES ON SCAFFOLD FOR MURDER

Bernardi Pays Penalty for Killing Compatriot in Montreal—Deed One of Most Brutal in Years.

Montreal, May 22.—Tomasso Bernardi was hanged at six minutes to eight at Bordeaux jail this morning for the murder of Luigi Scroli committed over a year ago. As Ellis, the executioner pulled down the black cap the condemned man shouted three words in Italian interpreted as meaning "grace, grace, pardon."

Rev. Father Garceau, the priest of the jail, who had been with Bernardi all night, stood by him on the scaffold. Just as Ellis was adjusting the noose the priest murmured in the ear of the condemned man "courage brother."

Then Ellis completed his work and the slip knot was placed beneath the left ear. Immediately afterwards the trap was sprung and Bernardi was dropped to his death.

The priest remained standing by the vacant space in the door where a live man had stood a moment before and murmured a last prayer for the departed. Bernardi spent a troubled night, frequently starting up. This morning he asked for an egg and a cup of tea and after breakfast he prayed. Then, contrary to general custom his feet were tied in the cell and he was carried by guards to the scaffold two yards away from his door. It was feared he would collapse and make a scene.

Bernardi's crime was a brutal and daring one, committed on one of the busiest thoroughfares in the city during the lunch hour, at the corner of McGill and Notre Dame streets. Scroli and an Italian woman, Angela Regiani, with whom Bernardi had formerly been living, were walking quietly along the street when Bernardi ran up and shot both.

The man died almost instantly while the woman after several months in hospital recovered and appeared as the principal witness against the slayer. Miss Regiani said she had come from Italy to his boarding house, but after a few days she became convinced that he did not intend to marry her. She left him then, and had sought the protection of Scroli, against whom Bernardi swore vengeance.

Montreal, May 22.—If Jose Vasconcelos, said to be a representative of the Mexican constitutionalists and en route for Niagara Falls, Ont., to attend the A. B. C. conference there, is or has been in Montreal, he has succeeded in keeping well under cover. The United States consulate and the Mexican consulate have heard nothing about his visit to Montreal except information contained in press dispatches, while financiers handling Mexican business know nothing of his whereabouts. He is not registered and has not been registered at any of the hotels.

INQUIRY INTO CHARGES IN N.S. LEGISLATURE

Royal Commission Will Investigate Matter of Halifax and Southwestern Ry. Lands Negotiations.

Halifax, May 22.—Premier Murray in the House of Assembly today made the following statement: "In view of the discussion which has taken place in this house in respect to the Halifax and Southwestern Railway lands so-called, the government has determined to make the entire matter, in so far as it concerns the public interest or the conduct of any person or persons concerned in the transfer of such land the subject of such judicial inquiry by royal commission as we believe will be satisfactory to the people of this province."

The premier's statement, evidently came as a complete surprise to the opposition who had refrained from making any direct charges. The premier contented himself with the brief announcement and the opposition made no response.

HON. MR. HAZEN SCORES EX-MINISTER FROM ST. JOHN

Pugsley Got More Than He Bargained For in Tilt With Minister of Marine.

DRAGS THE GUTELIUS CONTRACT INTO HOUSE.

Ex-Minister of Public Works Tries to Place Onus For His Own Misdeeds and Neglect on Mr. Hazen.

Special to The Standard

Ottawa, Ont., May 22.—Hon. Wm. Pugsley tried to make political capital against Hon. J. D. Hazen in the house today, dragging in the Gutelius agreement and endeavoring to make Mr. Hazen responsible for his own sins and short comings while a member of the Laurier cabinet. The effort failed. Mr. Hazen is too good a campaigner to be caught at disadvantage by Mr. Pugsley and he dressed down that gentleman in such fashion that he aroused the enthusiasm of the Conservatives. He described Mr. Pugsley as a most unfair opponent.

The tilt began in this way. The bill regarding dry dock subsidies was read a second time and in committee. W. F. Carroll of Sydney, N. S., urged that the new rate of four per cent, be given to all docks irrespective of size. The present law, he said, discriminated against small ports.

This suggestion was supported by Hon. William Pugsley and Hon. Robert Rogers replied that if any cases arose where a smaller dock could not be financed he would be glad to take the matter into consideration.

Mr. Rogers moved an amendment to declare that the old rate of three one-half per cent, should continue applicable to dry docks for which contracts are already signed.

Mr. Pugsley objected that the amendment would take the government's hands and prevent the enlargement of the dry dock at St. John. He hinted that Hon. J. D. Hazen's influence with his colleagues in the capital had declined.

The Premier pointed out that Mr. Pugsley himself had authorized the amendment would be the government's hands and prevent the enlargement of the dry dock at St. John. He hinted that Hon. J. D. Hazen's influence with his colleagues in the capital had declined.

News of Safety of U.S. Consul Helps Situation

U. S. Vice Consul Silliman is Safe at Mexico City — Most Serious Aspect Cleared Up — Peace Mediators Held Three Conferences Yesterday.

Niagara Falls, Ont., May 22.—Three separate conferences between the three South American envoys and the American delegates today constituted the work of the mediation conference here. The Mexican delegates were not called into consultation.

While the subject of constitutional participation in the mediation was a subject of absorbing interest to all in the negotiators, the Mexican delegates, however, in their statement tonight emphasized that they had no official word on the subject as yet.

Originally, it is understood, the Huerta government had no objections to the entry of the Constitutionalists in the negotiators. The Mexican delegates, however, in their statement tonight emphasized that they had no official word on the subject as yet.

Between the conferences of the day, while the telegraph wires were transmitting communications to and from Washington the mediators and the American and Mexican delegates went sightseeing about the "falls."

The night conference between the mediators and the American delegates adjourned at midnight. It was declared afterwards by one of those present that the progress being made was very satisfactory.

U. S. Consul Silliman Has Been Heard From

One of the most threatening complications to mediation was removed today when definite word reached the state department that Vice-Consul John R. Silliman, arrested at Saltillo and long sought for, had arrived safely at Mexico City, accompanied by the British vice-consul at Saltillo, Mr. McMillan.

Silliman's personal safety relieves the situation of its gravest aspect, but the other difficulties, if officially verified by inquiries going on, remain to be solved in the ultimate settlement.

New York, May 22.—Jose Vasconcelos, the special agent of Carranza, who, it had been reported, has been chosen as a constitutionalist representative to the Niagara conference, emphatically denied in a statement tonight that he was to receive such an appointment or that Carranza would ever consider mediation as a solution of Mexico's internal affairs.

"As long as the Huertistas are at Niagara we shall not be represented there," said Mr. Vasconcelos. "The only way my party meets Huerta is on the battlefield."

HINDUS TO BE KEPT OUT OF CANADA

Party Which Have Arrived at Vancouver Will Not Be Allowed to Land on Canadian Soil.

Special to The Standard.

Ottawa, May 22.—Orders have been issued from the immigration branch of the department of interior here that the contingent of Hindus which has just arrived at Vancouver shall not be allowed to land on Canadian soil. Quarantine inspection will be instituted on the vessel and the intending settlers will not be allowed to disembark.

The prohibition of these immigrants is based upon the order-in-council recently passed by the Dominion by which none but agricultural laborers and domestic servants shall be allowed entry to British Columbia until such time as the present serious labor conditions are overpast. It is further contended that the immigrants in question have not come by direct passage from the land of their birth.

Malcolm Reid, immigration agent at Vancouver, has been entrusted with the responsibility of dealing with the new arrivals.

THUGS SHOOT CASHIER AND MAKE BIG HAUL

Opened Fire on Him When He Entered Office with Money for Payroll—Escape Across River on Raft.

Calgary, May 22.—John Wilson, cashier of the Canada Cement Company at Exshaw had his head blown off by thugs this morning at 10 o'clock as he was about to enter the works with the sum of $2,314 in cash to pay the hands.

The robbers opened fire without warning and the bullets entered the unfortunate man's head. They then grabbed the bag and escaped across the Bow river on a raft, making for the bush, where it is reported they are surrounded by a force of one hundred men who started on their trail within a short time of the incident.

The robbers cannot get away without coming into the open country and it is believed their capture is only a matter of hours.

EXPECT THIS TO BE RECORD SEASON AT PETEWAHA CAMP

Largest Mobilization in History of Canada Looked For — Twelve Thousand Men Under Canvass Next Month.

Ottawa, May 22.—Combined training of troops in large numbers will be carried on at Petawawa Camp under the Militia Department during the latter part of June, when it is expected that the largest mobilization in the history of Canada will be gotten together. The department anticipates that by the end of next month there will be gathered at the big training grounds upwards of 12,000 cavalry, infantry and artillery.

This large force will unite for several days in combined training. Hitherto there has been little of this kind of training, the various branches of the militia usually coming separately to the camp.

Coy. Hughes believes that all the necessary facilities for such a mobilization with the least possible cost, exist at the Petawawa Camp, and that much experience will be derived by the various units from tactical manoeuvres in combination with other arms.

Mr. Hughes will personally supervise the manoeuvres and it is expected that His Royal Highness, the Governor General, will be present.

Submitted to Criminal Indictment for Fear Blow Would Kill Aged Financier.

CROWD MOVED BY STORY OF HIS SELF SACRIFICE.

Tells Court of Inquiry that Morgan Took an Active Part in Grand Trunk Negotiations on Which He Himself Was Indicted by Grand Jury.

Washington, May 22.—A dramatic climax marked the close of the sensational testimony of Charles S. Mellen, former president of the New Haven railroad, before the Interstate Commerce Commission, when with evidence of deep emotion Mr. Mellen declared the late J. Pierpont Morgan was cognizant of the Grand Trunk negotiations, on which he (Mellen) was criminally indicted for violation of the Sherman Anti-Trust Act, and that he "took the indictment that belonged to him, (Morgan), believing it would have killed the aged financier if he had been indicted."

Mr. Mellen spoke with intense feeling as he recited his efforts to shield the elder Morgan. This turned quickly to a show of resentment, however, as he told how the present J. Pierpont Morgan had suggested a "change in the presidency of the New Haven," at which suggestion, Mr. Mellen declared with emphasis: "I called his attention to the fact that I had been suffering under the humiliation of an unreserved indictment to protect his father."

STEAMER SUNK IN COLLISION ON LAKE HURON

The W. H. Gilbert and Caldera Struck in Fog—Crew of the Sunken Steamer are Safe.

Port Huron, Mich., May 32.—Steamer W. H. Gilbert, owned by the Pittsburg Steamship Company, was sunk early today as the result of a collision with the steamer Caldera about fifteen miles below Thunder Bay Island, in Lake Huron. The vessels came together in a heavy fog.

Captain Cummings of the Gilbert, succeeded in getting all his crew on board the Caldera before the Gilbert went down. They were landed here tonight.

The Caldera, which is owned by the Croton Steamship Company, of Cleveland, was badly damaged about the bow. She will proceed to Cleveland for repairs, being bound down without cargo. The Gilbert was upbound with coal.

The Gilbert is a steel steamer of 2,829 gross tons, 328 feet long. She was built in 1892.

DR. MILLS APPOINTED LIBRARIAN OF RAILWAY COMMISSION BOARD

Hon. Dr. Reid Announces that Hon. Mr. Nantel Will Not Be Appointed to the Railway Commission.

Special to The Standard.

Ottawa, May 22.—Dr. James Mills, one of the railway commissioners, has been appointed librarian of the board. His term of office expired last January and the term being ten years and his salary will be $3,600. His salary as commissioner was $5,000.

The announcement was made in the commons this evening by Hon. Dr. Reid in reply to questions by Mr. LeMieux who asked if successors to Dr. Mills and Hon. N. E. Bernier had been appointed. He said that Hon. Mr. Nantel was to go to the railway board. Dr. Reid replied that the recommendations would be made by Hon. Mr. Cochrane. However, he said that Mr. Nantel would not be appointed to the board. When asked if Mr. Price of St. Thomas would be one of the appointees he assured the house that he knew nothing of the matter.

MELLEN SHOULDERS THE BLAME TO SHIELD MORGAN

"What part, can you tell, if you know?" asked Mr. Folk.

"I did not know that Mr. Morgan knew there was negotiation on until he came into my office when I had an appointment with Mr. Smithers and Mr. Chamberlain, and Mr. Morgan and what he thought they ought to do in order to have peace between the New Haven and the Grand Trunk interests.

"This negotiation, he said, was with Mr. Smithers' predecessor, Sir Charles Wilson. He thought it was a great mistake that they had not kept faith with him, and he was quite emphatic in thinking they had not done as they should do—ad not kept faith with him.

"Mr. Morgan retrieved and left Mr. Chamberlain and Mr. Smithers myself to continue the conference. I told Mr. Chamberlain and Mr. Smithers that we would continue the conference on the basis that they should give no further attention to the question of surrendering the New London Northern road; they might do so as they pleased with me, I did not care.

"I was asked to put my views in the form of a proposition, or in a letter, and within a week the grand jury proceedings commenced in New York and I was indicted."

"I did, and I did it for the sole purpose of shielding Mr. Morgan."

"At whose instance did you write the letter?"

"I wrote that letter at the instance of Mr. Lewis C. Ledyard and Mr. Edward D. Robbins."

"I dictated a letter, which was redrafted by Mr. Robbins and corrected by Mr. Ledyard, and sent it to the United States district attorney, and I nearly killed everybody in the office to keep Mr. Morgan's name out of what?"

"Out of the whole proceeding, I had Mr. Morgan subpoenaed in that matter."

"I had learned through my counsel that he was subpoenaed and his subpoena was quashed, or nolle, what ever your legal term is for that action."

"I did you have any conversation with the present director of the road, Mr. J. P. Morgan, Jr.?"

"The present director?"

"Yes, sir."

SECOND TRIAL OF BECKER ENDS IN MURDER VERDICT

Becker's counsel announced that he would appeal, and gained a week's stay for the preparation of his future case. The defendant was granted a short meeting with his wife and his brothers, and then taken back to his cell in the morning.

Becker and his wife were talking shortly before five o'clock in a room adjoining the sheriff's office when a court attendant from the judge's chambers announced that the jury had reached a verdict. Mr. Becker was not permitted to accompany her husband to the court room.

When the little group in the court room had found seats a door at the back was opened and the jury, twelve men who alone knew the line of the understanding he was to have the New London Northern for the New Haven road, and that they never had carried out their agreement.

"The negotiation, he said, was with Mr. Smithers' predecessor, Sir Charles Wilson. He thought it was a great mistake that they had not kept faith with him, and he was quite emphatic in thinking they had not done as they should do—ad not kept faith with him.

"I did you have any conversation with the present director of the road, Mr. J. P. Morgan, Jr.?"

"The present director?"

"Yes, sir."

"At the time Mr. Morgan called upon me and thought the change in the presidency was desirable, I called his attention to the fact that I had been suffering under the humiliation of an undesired indictment, which he cleared of my father. He seemed quite affected; he turned to the window to compose his feelings, and returned to the conversation with the remark that his father's condition of health at that time was such that it undoubtedly would have killed him if he had been indicted. That was the condition I understood he was in when I took the responsibility upon myself and took the indictment that belonged to him."

HON. MR. HAZEN SCORES EX-MINISTER

This ally was loudly cheered by the government supporters and Mr. Pugsley looked less smiling than usual.

Mr. Hazen further declared that Mr. Pugsley should be the last man to blame the government for the Gutelius contract. The government had agreed to refer that contract to the railway commission and although Mr. Pugsley was counsel for the St. John Board of Trade, he had yet taken no action to bring it in front of a hearing.

Mr. Hazen retorted that the initiative did not rest with the government but with the St. John Board of Trade. At the afternoon sitting Hon. Dr. Pugsley continued to urge reconsideration of his decision that the dry dock at St. John should not be more than 300 feet in length.

Situation Becoming More Acute — Provisional Government As Soon as Home Rule Bill Passes, Nationalist Organ Says.

London, May 23.—News from Belfast shows that the situation is becoming extremely acute there, so much so that the Ulster Volunteers in rural districts have been warned that hostilities are practically certain to open within a fortnight.

A sensation was caused in Belfast by the publication in the Irish News, the Nationalist organ, of a secret order emanating from Carson's headquarters, the tone of which suggested that the provisional government will be put in operation immediately the bill is given third reading in the House of Commons.

The text of the order runs:—"In view of the possibility of the passing of the Home Rule bill divisional commanders are authorized to take whatever steps they deem necessary to preserve peace and prevent disorder, and to use force if necessary to suppress any disturbance or other provocative displays to be staged in Ulster territory."

As regards the government's precautions no official orders have been published but it is generally understood that the military authorities are fully prepared to deal with any disorder in Belfast district. The torpedo destroyer Porpoise has arrived at Lough Swilly, where she is ostensibly awaiting an oil steamer to fill her tanks. The Times' Belfast correspondent states that the imperial troops there are being reinforced on Monday, but General Gough's assertion that this has no significance.

In denying the story of an alleged plot on the part of the Ulster volunteers to seize Derry the Times expresses regret that such a story should be given currency at this juncture while earnest efforts are being made on both sides to deal with any disorder in Belfast district. The bill on Tuesday next.

Situation Becoming More Acute — Provisional Government As Soon as Home Rule Bill Passes, Nationalist Organ Says.

London, May 23.—News from Belfast shows that the situation is becoming extremely acute there, so much so that the Ulster Volunteers in rural districts have been warned that hostilities are practically certain to open within a fortnight.

A sensation was caused in Belfast by the publication in the Irish News, the Nationalist organ, of a secret order emanating from Carson's headquarters, the tone of which suggested that the provisional government will be put in operation immediately the bill is given third reading in the House of Commons.

The text of the order runs:—"In view of the possibility of the passing of the Home Rule bill divisional commanders are authorized to take whatever steps they deem necessary to preserve peace and prevent disorder, and to use force if necessary to suppress any disturbance or other provocative displays to be staged in Ulster territory."

As regards the government's precautions no official orders have been published but it is generally understood that the military authorities are fully prepared to deal with any disorder in Belfast district. MRS. W. N. KELLY.

"I can highly recommend 'Fruit-a-tives' as they did me an awful lot of good and I cannot speak too highly about them. About four years ago, I commenced taking 'Fruit-a-tives' for a general breakdown and they did me a well spent because they did all that you claim for them. Their action is so pleasant, compared with other laxatives, that I found ONLY pleasure, as well as health, in taking them. They seemed to me to be particularly suited to women, on account of their mild and gentle action, and I trust that some other women may start taking 'Fruit-a-tives' after reading my letter, and if they do, I am satisfied the results will be the same as in my own case."

A blood purifier, a general tonic, a builder of health and strength, 'Fruit-a-tives' is one of the great discoveries of the century in curative medicine. One of the valuable properties of 'Fruit-a-tives' is its marvelous cleansing powers. When these tablets are taken, they act on the three great eliminating organs of the body—the bowels, kidneys and skin. 'Fruit-a-tives' keeps the system free of waste matter, prevents the formation of uric acid, and insures the blood being pure and clear. 'Fruit-a-tives' sweetens the stomach, increases the flow of the digestive juices, makes digestion complete, and enables the system to absorb and assimilate to a abundance of nourishment from the food eaten.

'Fruit-a-tives' builds up, invigorates, strengthens the whole system. As a general tonic, there is nothing else quite so good. And these tablets are so mild in action, so pleasant to take, that they are particularly suited to women.

THE GOLDEN JUBILEE OF ST. JOSEPH'S UNIVERSITY

Observance of Fiftieth Anniversary of the Founding of the Institution to be Held June 16, 17 and 18 — Half Century of Progress in Educational History of New Brunswick.

ST. JOSEPH'S UNIVERSITY, WITH NEW WING RECENTLY ADDED.

The celebration of the golden jubilee of Saint Joseph's University, which takes place next month is attracting considerable attention on the part of the old students throughout Canada and the friends of the institution as well. It is expected that Alumni from the different parts of Canada and the United States will be present to take part in the celebration. The secretary of the committee in charge of the arrangements has received acceptance from a large number and plans have been completed for the programme to be carried out. The jubilee events will continue for three days, June 16th, 17th and 18th, and include class reunions, Alumni arrangements have been made for a cheap fare on the I. C. R., whereby the round trip can be made to College Bridge for $3.35 (one way fare). Visitors must, however, secure from the ticket agent here standard certificates on presentation of which to the agent at College Bridge they are enabled to return to their homes. The actual president of Saint Joseph's is the Rev. B. Lecaualier, who during the few years he has been in office has done much to make the university progressive and put it on a level with other institutions of the kind in the Dominion. During the past year a new wing has been added to the main building and other improvements made. The curriculum of studies has been adjusted so as to provide the best possible opportunities for students in Arts and Sciences or Commercial careers.

At the public exercises His Grace Archbishop Casey and members of hierarchy will be present, while every sphere of professional life will be represented. The programme will be inaugurated on Tuesday evening, June 16th, at 8 o'clock with a reception in Lefebvre hall and the following two days are crowded with events which promise to make the gathering the most notable in the history of Saint Joseph's.

Plans are already being made for a large number from this city to attend the anniversary gathering and special interest of the Maritime home for girls. His efforts have been attended with good success.

McCormick Theological Seminary, Chicago, has recently graduated a class of 50 students, the largest for several years.

Lumbermen's Day in the Church. The delegates of the Forest Products Exposition, at Chicago recently, were guests on Sunday morning, May 3 in First Presbyterian Church of St. John. A special sermon was preached on that occasion. It is in this church that a memorial window to the founder and editor of the "American Lumberman," was placed several years ago.

Memorial to Dr. Robert Murray. At its recent meeting, the Synod of Hamilton and London, passed a resolution to establish a lectureship in hynology at Knox College, Toronto, as a memorial to the late Dr. Robert Murray, late editor of the Presbyterian Witness and composer of several well known hymns among which the best known are: "From Ocean Unto Ocean," and "Our Blessed Bond of Union."

Death of Our Senior Canadian Missionary. A cable received by Dr. McCurdy, Halifax, last week, announced the death, in Darlington, England, of Dr. H. A. Robertson, who was on his way home to Canada on furlough from the New Hebrides. Sent out to New Hebrides in 1871, he was the senior foreign missionary of the whole Canadian church. In his report to the general assembly of 1913, he writes thus: "I left Halifax on 7th Nov., 1863, in the 'Dayspring' the first Presbyterian mission ship that ever left British North America," when Revs. Morrison, McCullough, and Gordon sailed away as missionaries to these far off isles. Young Gordon, only eight years after, fell a Christian martyr on this very island, where I now sit and write in the most perfect safety, I am surrounded by respectful and quiet natives who come daily to their mis-banquet, formal opening of the new building, which has been added to the college, the unveiling of a bronze statue of the Rev. Camille Lefebvre, founder of the university; the presentation of an endowment fund from the old students and a number of other equally interesting events.

The story of Saint Joseph's is one of progress and the magnificent buildings, which have been erected during the fifty years of its history, testify to the energy and zeal of the members of the Holy Cross congregation who are in charge, as well as to the loyalty and generosity of those who claim Saint Joseph's as their Alma Mater.

In different parts of the Dominion committees of old students have been at work arranging for the fund to be presented at the jubilee and in Saint John the committee in charge of the work is meeting with success. for counsel, advice and instruction, and who seem to have implicit confidence and trust in his judgment and wisdom. In all their sorrows and trouble they come to us. What a change has taken place on this island, but throughout the whole group since Mackenzie, Annand and I came over forty years ago.

He had been employed as a young man, with a business firm in Pictou, N. S., and when the "Dayspring" was ready to sail, he went partly for his health and partly to see other countries than his own, especially the "Isles of sunny skies and tropical seas." He became New agent of the Island of Asylum for a cotton company, whose headquarters were in Glasgow, Scotland. In 1868, a letter to him from the Foreign Mission committee of the Kirk Synod of the Maritime Church of British North America, requesting him to undertake the work of a missionary in the New Hebrides and be their first missionary. After careful consideration of the request, he resolved to consecrate his life to the work of a Christian missionary, and returned to N. S. to prosecute his studies. In a letter written to the Presbyterian Witness on his way home, dated March 5, he said: "I am anxious to be present at the meetings in May, of the Scottish assembly, at Edinburgh, as I have never had that pleasure hitherto. This will deprive me of the pleasure and profit of being at the Canadian assembly in June."

His wife, who was Miss Dawson, Little Harbor, N. S., survives him. She and his eldest daughter were his companions on his way home. He has written a story of the New Hebrides mission in his book entitled "The Martyr's Isle." With his passing the church mourns a faithful and devoted servant and our mission in the New Hebrides will be undertaken entirely by the Presbyterian Church of Australia.

Caring for the Children. The W. H. M. S. of the western section of the Presbyterian church in Canada, recently appealed to the children of the church for funds to establish and name children's wards in the hospitals of our church in Western Canada. A generous response was given to the appeal and a ward in each of three hospitals will be named at a cost of $1,000 each. In each of the wards named will appear the following inscription: "This ward is the gift of the children of the Presbyterian Church in Canada." The ward in the hospital at Toulon, Man., will be named after Rev. Robert Murray, author of hymn, "From Ocean Unto Ocean." That at Canora, Sask., after Dr. James Robertson, "Great Superintendent." Another ward in the hospital at Grande Prairie, Alberta, has still to be named.

A NEW HOPE FOR THE BALD HEADED MAN. Budapest, May 20.—A method of sewing hairs to the human scalp in cases of baldness has been successfully used by Dr. Szekely at the hospital of Saint Stephens in this city. The number of hairs grafted in the head of one patient has been as high as 50,000. One hundred hairs are drawn through punctures in the scalp in every square centimeter and as both ends are left free this makes over 1,000 hairs to each square inch. In the operation very fine gold wires are used, one five hundredths of an inch in diameter, and fine as an anchor, which after sterilization is introduced into the subcutaneous tissue, where it is lightly twisted, thus holding the hair in permanent position. It is claimed that five hundred hairs can thus be planted in three-quarters of an hour. A special instrument has been designed by Dr. Szekely for planting the gold wires which are so fine that after the work is completed for planting 50,000 hairs, there is only one gramme of gold left in the scalp. The hair becomes perfectly natural after a capsule of tissue forms around the gold knot. The inflammation entirely disappears within ten days after the operation and no evil results have ensued from any of the establish and name children's wards in plants.

MR. PUGSEY'S ATTACK

Apparently it is not the intention of Mr. William Pugsley to permit his colleagues in the ranks of the Liberal party in the House of Commons to forget that he still has aspirations to succeed Sir Wilfrid Laurier as the leader of that party. He returned to the capital on Wednesday morning, and at once assumed charge of the Liberal opposition to the Canadian Northern proposition. On that occasion he was severely dealt with by Hon. Arthur Meighen, but he does not appear to have profited from the lesson. Yesterday he was back on the job and more than usually inclined to be truculent. This time Hon. Mr. Hazen was the subject of his attack. With utter disregard for the facts, or for his own record, the ex-minister of public works charged that Mr. Hazen had lost influence with his colleagues in the cabinet, that he had not advanced the interests of St. John in the matter of the Cunelins agreement, that because the Empress liners went to Halifax last season the trade through this port declined, and that the Minister of Marine had turned a deaf ear to the requests and protests of his constituents. Mr. Hazen, in his reply, was courteous and dignified but he gave Mr. Pugsley plainly to understand that he was quite prepared to discuss the Cunelins agreement with him before the people of this city on any occasion. Incidentally, he paid some passing attention to the record of Mr. Pugsley as a promoter of development for this port.

Perusal of the account of the happenings at Ottawa, as contained in The Standard's news columns this morning, might lead a person, unacquainted with the character and achievements of the two men, to the opinion that in Mr. Pugsley St. John had a representative whose whole being was so permeated with the desire to accomplish good for his constituency which he had not in Mr. Hazen. It is high time to relegate to the scrap heap such partisan trash as Mr. Pugsley's yesterday glib utterances. That gentleman had his opportunity to work for St. John, and his achievements were mostly confined to his own pocket. The question to be considered by St. John now is the question of future business, and Mr. Hazen has already given evidence that he has our interests very much at heart in that regard. Mr. Pugsley's outbursts may be received with acclamation and jubilation in the offices of the newspapers which support him, but they have ceased to have effect with the people of this city. St. John and Promises are at a discount, and if the ex-minister of public works has not already realized that fact it is his only additional evidence that his mantle of political wisdom no longer clothes him.

CANADA AND THE EMPIRE.

Yesterday was generally observed in the city schools as Empire Day, and it is altogether refreshing to note that while the children of this city were singing patriotic songs and listening to, or reading, essays of high imperial tone, those of the adult population who read the Telegraph were able to find additional inspiration for the day in a cynical, sarcastic editorial, apparently the product of a dyspeptic, which had for its theme the failure of the Borden Government to liquidate Canada's debt to the British nation, whose sacrifice has made the Empire possible.

It is true that the pledge of the Government to give aid to the British navy was not carried out but was this the fault of the Government? Must not the blame rather rest upon the shoulders of those senatorial puppets who placed the bidding of Laurier above the wishes of the British Admiralty? The Borden pledge that we should bear some portion of the Empire burden was well understood by the Canadian people during the last election campaign. Mr. Borden was returned to power with instructions to pay that debt and in accordance with the policy of common sense he requested from the Admiralty suggestions as to the form the payment should take. Back came the message in terms unmistakable that if Canada desired to aid in solving the problem of imperial defence it was desirable that the assistance should take the form of the largest and finest ships "that science could build or money could buy." And it was pointed out that the assistance would be more effective if promptly given.

What course was open to the Government? Science could not build, at this time in Canada, such ships as would be of most service, but money could buy them in the great yards of Britain, and the Premier's measure, designed to meet the Admiralty wishes, called for a grant of $35,000,000 to be used for that purpose. It was not a permanent policy. Just a gift to Britain to be bestowed when Britain most needed it, and by the giving the Canadian people would have taught the world the lesson that this daughter nation could be depended upon to come to the aid of the mother land, not in years to come when we had learned to build ships of our own, but at the time the assistance would have been of most value. But the proposals of the Canadian Government, reflecting the desire of the Canadian people, were defeated. How? By the disapproving voice of the people? Not at all, but by the unjustified, unwarranted and partisan act of the Liberal majority in the Canadian Senate. The Telegraph complains that there has been no naval proposal on the programme of the Government this session. Why should there be? The Liberal majority in the Senate, though smaller than it was during the Naval debate, is still as hostile as ever in its attitude toward such a measure. Canada's senators once had the opportunity of holding this country up to the scorn and the derision of Britain's enemies. They shall never get it again. When the Naval Bill in next session is brought before the Senate it will pass. They will Canada's debt be liquidated. Then will the children of this city of the Loyalists be able to introduce into their essays and their songs a new note and it will be that Canada's bill has been paid. Then will Empire Day have a new and a better significance.

When the city appealed to Mr. Pugsley for grain conveyors, some years ago, that gentleman referred them to the C.P.R. A similar appeal to Mr. Hazen brought the conveyors. Mr. Hazen has ever been zealous in his efforts for the port of St. John, and that is proven by the fact that greater expenditures for harbor development have been made here in the two and one-half years of the Borden Government's tenure of office than during the whole term of the Liberal administration, even with our friend Sweet William in control of the Department of Public Works. Mr. Pugsley intimated in the course of his attack that Mr. Hazen was responsible for the decline of business handled through this port last winter. This is the veriest pretense and sham. Sensible men know that owing to general depression business declined in all ports last winter, and to attempt to throw the responsibility for a condition which was world wide upon the shoulders of the Minister of Marine, only illustrates to what petty depths Mr. Pugsley has fallen.

HISTORIC DAYS IN CANADA

On this date in 1632 Samuel de Champlain arrived in Quebec to begin his second administration of the affairs of New France. From 1612 to 1629 Champlain had governed strongly and well, with assiduous purpose to make New France a mighty New World empire for his country and his people. This great ambition seemed well on the way to accomplishment when in 1629 he increased Champlain's authority, formed the Company of the Hundred Associates, pledged the company to send out 10,000 settlers in fifteen years, gave the company two battle-ships, and granted it a charter of trade and power over New France, Newfoundland, Acadie, and Florida. Then came a war with England, the shutting off of supplies, the reduction of Canadian colonies to poverty and starvation, and the blasting of their high hopes of empire. In 1629 Admiral Kirke sailed up the St. Lawrence, captured Quebec and hoisted the English flag over its ramparts, and carried Champlain away a prisoner to England. In 1632 a treaty was made by which New France and Acadie were restored to France, and Champlain was released and returned to his post on May 23, 1632. Peace, prosperity and progress hovered over the Dominion of the hearts of the colonists again beat high with hope. For a little over two years all went well, many savages were converted to the Christian faith. Sudden disaster again came upon New France, when, on Christmas Day, 1635, Samuel de Champlain died. The passing of Champlain was the beginning of the end of New France. From that day of his death began that decadence of the power of France in America, which ended with Wolfe's victory.

THE HUMAN PROCESSION

MME. NAZIMOVA 35 TODAY.

Crime, the scene of the European war of 1854, when England, France and Turkey, combined against Russia, was the birthplace of thirty-five years ago today of one of the most popular of modern actresses, Mme. Alla Nazimova. It was in the little town of Yalta, on the black and barren shores of the Black Sea, that Alla Nazimova— to give her true Russian name—first saw the light. Her father, a musician, spent in Geneva, Switzerland, where she received her early education and learned to play the violin. At the age of twelve she returned to Russia, and it was in her native village that she made her first public appearance as a violinist.

While in Switzerland the girl had mastered French and German, and upon returning to her native land she soon became proficient in the Russian language. At thirteen she entered the conservatoire at Odessa, to take up the study of the violin. She had great natural ability as a violinist, and it expressed itself in the playing of the greatest of Russian success. At Odessa she soon determined to become an actress, and she followed a dramatic course, which she completed in three years, winning the gold medal, and, what was of greater import, the approval of Staines Ioffsky, the celebrated Russian stage director.

She was only seventeen when she became leading woman of a stock company at Kostroma, in northern Russia, and during her first season on the stage she played nearly 200 different star roles in productions ranging from the heaviest tragedy to the frothiest musical comedy. It was hard work at Kerson, in southern Russia, and Vilna, Poland, and in 1903 she made her first metropolitan appearance in St. Petersburg. In the Russian capital she played Camille, Zaza, Trilby, Hedda Gabler and other stellar parts, and with such success that she was hailed by the critics as one of the greatest of Russian actresses. Except for her devotion to principle Mme. Nazimova might never have been known outside of Russia. Ten years ago she planned to produce in St. Petersburg a play entitled "The Chosen People," but the racial views it expressed were objectionable to the censors of the czar's government. With Paul Orloff, a distinguished Russian actor, Mme. Nazimova went to London to produce the play. The beautiful actress was the sensation of the German capital and she met with such success that she was engaged for a London season, during which she produced not only "The Chosen People" but also several realistic plays by Russian authors.

Following her success in London, Mme. Nazimova was induced to visit New York, where she was engaged for a season, during which she was even more successful than she had achieved in London. In May of 1906 she contracted to play "Hedda Gabler" in English at the New York play house the following November. When she entered into the contract her stock of English was limited to a dozen words, but by November she

FIRST THINGS

Victoria.

The first appearance of the city of Victoria, B. C., in the pages of history was as the gathering place of the Songhees, who assembled on the site of the future aleface municipality to celebrate their tribal feasts. Victoria became the capital of the colony of British Columbia on May 24, 1868, and of the Province when it entered the Dominion in 1871. The Indian name of the place was Camosun, and this name was adopted by the adventurers of the Hudson's Bay Company who made it their sunset post. English settlement on Vancouver's Island was made in 1781. The Spaniards seized the island in 1780, but it was soon restored to Britain by Capt. Vancouver, whose name was given to the island. The modern city of Victoria was founded in 1857, and it early attained some importance through the discovery of gold on the neighboring mainland. After the gold rush subsided Victoria became a sleepy old

30,000 School Children

In New York City alone need glasses. Now New York, Chicago, and many other cities employ experts to examine the eyes of school children because very many of the apparent stupidity, backwardness in studies, nervousness and other physical troubles in children are due to defective vision which glasses will correct. Glasses are necessary in order that many children may have a fair chance in life. Slight defects in refraction, if neglected, often result in permanent injury to sight and health. You can have your child's eyes or your own, tested scientifically here, and if any defect in refraction is found, secure glasses properly fitted to correct it.

AGRICULTURAL EXHIBIT FOR THE BIG SHOW

Secretary Porter receives interesting communication from director of Experimental Farms, Ottawa

The secretary of the Exhibition Association yesterday received from the office of the Director of Experimental Farms, Ottawa, further particulars regarding the exhibit to be made by that department at the St. John exhibition in September next, reference to which has already been made in The Standard.

This exhibit is to be of a very comprehensive nature and the department has forwarded Mr. Porter a blue print depicting an exhibit some 72 feet in length, divided into twelve divisions, one of which will be devoted to each of the following subjects:—Animal husbandry, field husbandry, cereal, botanical, horticultural, poultry, chemical, forage plants, bees, publications; the other two panels will be reserved for general exhibits from the branch farm at Fredericton and probably also from that at Nappan.

An official of the Department of Agriculture will be in charge of the exhibit and prepared to give information to those seeking it; a number of pamphlets are also to be specially prepared to accompany the exhibit and will be distributed to those interested, in addition to its educational value, which should be of the very highest order, the exhibit promises to be of value to possess strong artistic attractiveness as well as the educational value of the agricultural section of the exhibition.

The exhibit will be placed in the horticultural building.

THE BOARD OF TRADE COUNCIL MEETING

At a meeting of the council of the Board of Trade yesterday morning, the delegates who recently visited Ottawa to place the trade requirements of the port before the government submitted reports on the trip. A committee which is to remain permanently in existence, consisting of Messrs. W. E. Foster, Manning W. Doherty, H. P. Robinson, P. W. Thomson, H. C. Schofield and J. M. Robinson, was appointed.

It will be the duty of the committee to visit the work in progress at Carleton at least once monthly and to take whatever steps are found to be necessary to hasten the completion of the work. The committee was also instructed to communicate with the city commissioners urging them to send representatives to Ottawa as early as possible to endeavor to induce the government to commence the work of filling in behind the wharves at Carleton and the erection of sheds.

The secretary was authorized to send a telegram to Sir Thomas

EVANGELINE HOME DOING A GOOD WORK

Caring for destitute women and deserted children whose parents never return—Heavy expenses.

The rather unusual case of child desertion at Rothesay and the fact that the ten-day-old infant has been placed in charge of the Salvation Army has directed attention to the work being done by the Maternity Hospital and Evangeline Home, maintained here by the Salvation Army. When Major Taylor was asked about the work of this institution yesterday he said he had observed recently in a maritime paper a report to the effect that there was no home in these provinces for Protestant girls in trouble. He pointed out that the Salvation Army maintained institutions at both St. John and Halifax where girls in children were given a home many of them without charge, for long periods.

Adjutant Beeson who has been in charge of the institution on St. James street for about a year has recently made a report of the work done while she has been matron.

Report for Year

During the year from April 23, 1913, to April 23, 1914, there were admitted to the hospital fifty-nine girls and five babies. A large percentage of these girls were destitute, when they entered the institution. When Major Taylor was asked to pay them are charged for care and medical assistance during sickness, from $20 to $30 but many girls with their babies remain in the home from nine to twelve months and are maintained free of charge.

During the year ending April 23, 1913, seventeen girls from St. John entered the institution, of whom ten were absolutely destitute and seven were able to pay a small sum. Two girls from Halifax entered the institution without money and were cared for free of charge. Amongst sent one girl to the home, and she no money. Prince Edward Island sent five girls, all of whom were able to pay a small sum towards their hospital fees. Chatham, Sussex, Havelock, Gagetown and Port Elgin each sent a girl to the home during the year and none of them had any money. Four unfortunate from Fredericton sought refuge in the institution without money. From St. Stephens there came five girls who paid a small fee. Westfield, Glace Bay, Gondola Point and Carleton county each sent a girl who was able to pay a small fee. Ten girls from St. John were given temporary help.

FRUIT TREES IN CONDITION

S. L. Peters looks for banner year—Apple orchards stood the winter well.

S. L. Peters, dominion fruit inspector, who was in the city yesterday, told The Standard that he has never seen the apple orchards in a better condition than they are at present. Trees are late in blossoming, but they are budding out well and it is said to be better to have the trees backward than to frost early only to be nipped by frost.

The latest bulletin of the fruit commissioner's branch of the dominion department of agriculture, says: "In the province of Nova Scotia fruit trees have come through the winter in good condition, with no apparent injury to either buds or branches. The conditions during last winter and this spring coincide almost exactly with those which preceded the season of 1911, when the crop of Nova Scotia was harvested. The weather still remains cool and the trees are somewhat late in coming out."

PRESENT SPECIAL FLAG TO HONORARY COMMODORE THOMSON

There was a large attendance of members of the R. K. Y. C. in the rooms, Germain street, last evening, when a most address Commodore Wetmore presented to Honorary Commodore Robert Thomson the flag which the club has recently adopted for him. Commodore Thomson received the gift amid loud applause and made a brief reply of thanks for the honor that the club had bestowed on him.

A short address was also given by R. E. Armstrong, the secretary of the Board of Trade, after which there were vocal solos by H. R. Dunn, Wm. E. Holder and Mr. Cummings. Steve Hurley was heard to advantage in a few readings and D. B. Robillard presided at the piano. Refreshments were served by an efficient committee and a couple of very pleasant hours were spent by all.

Interment was in Cedar Hill cemetery. As a mark of respect to the deceased the flag on the Carleton car barns was being at half-mast.

The funeral of Mrs. Joseph Cosman took place at 2.30 o'clock yesterday afternoon. Mr. Dennison officiated at the burial services. Interment was in Fernhill.

Motor Cycle Outing.

The St. John Motor Bicycle Club will hold their run on Monday, May 25. They will leave King square at 10 a. m. for the Barker House. Watch the big Indian.

DESERTED BY PARENTS

At the present time there are in the home twenty-four women and thirty babies. According to the matron's statement all these women and children are kept in the home on an average of twelve months. Among the children in the home at present are six who have been deserted by their parents.

The charitable work of the Evangeline Home is not confined to looking after unfortunate girls and illegitimate children. Women whose husbands have died or deserted them frequently leave their children there to be cared for on the understanding that they will pay a fee of $5 a month, and after paying for a few weeks disappear. Men who have lost their wives take their children there to be cared for, and some time disappear too. In such cases the officers of the home are left in an awkward position, for unless the parents sign a deed of gift it is not feasible to place the children in private homes where they would be cared for, and the children have to be kept in the home until their parents appear again and put in a claim for them. In the home at present there are children deserted by their fathers whom the army has been endeavoring to trace for some time.

None Traced So Far.

Many unfortunate girls arrive at the institution not only without money but with only a few rags on their back. The matron states that during the year she has been in charge of the home she has not had to turn away one unfortunate girl, though some have come from other places without giving her a cent and without more than the clothes they stood in and a few cents in their pockets.

One surprising thing is that of the girls who have come to the home during the past year to give birth to illegitimate children, none have been able to secure help from the father of their child, so far as the Army officials know.

At present there is a girl in the home hardly more than thirteen years old who is about to become a mother.

Maternity Hospital.

In connection with the Evangeline Home the Army maintains a maternity hospital which is a boon to many people, an additional tax which enables it to care for the indigent girls and children thrown upon its care. The total number of children born in the institution last year was 100, and of these about 35 were illegitimate. It is stated that the number of unfortunate girls from St. John looked after during the past year was nearly double the number cared for in the preceding year.

The institution gives nurses from the General Public Hospital training in maternity work, and this puts an additional tax upon the regular officials at the nurses from the public hospital change every three or four weeks.

With the increasing demands made upon the institution by unfortunate girls in a destitute condition from all parts of the provinces, and by the cases of child desertion, the Army officials are finding it very difficult to finance the home.

WARNING TO ALL SKIN SUFFERERS

It seems about time for sufferers from eczema to become posted on the nature of the disease.

There is just one standard remedy used for 15 years with thorough success, and we'll explain to you here why this simple wash cures. We tell you—be aware of experiments.

D. D. D.—The Standard.

Make no mistake—get the standard remedy, established and used and proven for many years. Moreover, we dare say probably in all cases where directions were followed. D. D. D. cures. Even if you have only a slight skin blemish, a bite of an insect, a rash or the like, do not neglect, but call at the drug store today and ask for D. D. D. Prescription.

Itch Gone at Once.

The very first drops will take away that itch—cool and soothe the skin—your money back if you say it does not—you alone to judge. This is the guarantee of the D. D. D. Laboratories and we stand back of that guarantee.

D. D. D. Prescription as well as D. D. D. Skin Soap, best for the tender skin, is for sale by druggists generally and especially by E. CLINTON BROWN, Druggist, St. John, N. B.

WAS TROUBLED WITH BOILS AND CARBUNCLES.

There is no more frequent source of illness than that arising from bad blood, for when the blood becomes impure, it is only natural that boils, pimples or some other indication of bad blood should break out of the system.

Boils in themselves are not a dangerous trouble, but still at the same time are very painful, and the only way to get rid of them is to cleanse the blood of the impurities. Cleanse it thoroughly by the use of Burdock Blood Bitters, that old and reliable blood medicine that has held on the market for nearly forty years.

Mr. James Wilds, Plaster Rock, N.B., writes:—"I was greatly troubled, a few years ago, with boils and carbuncles, and the doctor told me I was in a bad condition. My appetite failed me, I began to lose strength, and was pretty well run down when one of my friends recommended Burdock Blood Bitters. After using three bottles I began to feel like another man. My troubles soon passed and to-day I can certainly give Burdock Blood Bitters a high recommendation to my friends."

THIN? PALE?

And do not know what to take? Then go to your doctor. Ask his opinion of Ayer's Sarsaparilla. No alcohol, no stimulation. A blood purifier, a nerve tonic, a strong alterative, an aid to digestion. Let your doctor decide.

J. C. Ayer Co., Lowell, Mass., Canada.

A LEAN DAY ON NEW YORK 'CHANGE

Business the Smallest of Any Day So Far This Year.

LACK OF CONFIDENCE THE CHIEF REASON

Only 93,000 Shares over-turned; Five thousand less than Mar. 2, the next poorest day.

New York, May 22.—Business on the Stock Exchange today was the smallest of any day so far this year, the total over-turned 93,000 shares—

The causes which have made for these conditions have been accented recently by the Mexican imbroglio, the state of general trade and the financial situation abroad.

Opening prices were a mixture of important advances and declines, from which there was little chance as the session progressed.

Local monetary conditions show no change, chiefly because the demand has fallen below normal proportions.

AROUND THE CITY

NO STANDARD MONDAY. ON MONDAY, VICTORIA DAY, THE STANDARD WILL NOT BE PUBLISHED.

Brings Prisoner Back. Detective Killen returned yesterday morning from Winnipeg, bringing with him George F. Menies, wanted here on the charge of embezzlement from the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company while in their employ last year.

Refused to Stop. Harry Lynch has been reported to the police for operating a motor cycle on the Marsh Road and refusing to come to a stop when requested to do so by Mrs. Percy, who was driving a horse. In refusing to stop when requested Lynch violated the traffic law.

Settlers Coming. Superintendent Gilchrist of the immigration department was busy yesterday making arrangements for the disposition of a party of new settlers being brought out by S. L. Harrison. 'Moncton who was sent to Great Britain to do special work. The party landed at Quebec yesterday and are expected to arrive here today.

Police Court News. In the police court yesterday afternoon five drunks, who had previously been remanded to jail, were fined $8 or two months in jail each. William Travis and John Levine were found guilty of fighting together and were fined $20 each. John Ryan who has been remanded to jail for some time on the charge of stealing cans of coffee, was allowed to go on suspended sentence.

H. P. Timmerman Here. H. P. Timmerman, industrial commissioner of the C.P.R., arrived in the city yesterday and registered at the Royal. He is accompanied by his wife. Speaking to a reporter Mr. Timmerman said the object of his visit here was to open his summer cottage at Duck Cove. Mrs. Timmerman will stop at Duck Cove during the summer. In regard to his department on the C.P.R. Mr. Timmerman said there was nothing new of public interest.

A Presentation. There was an interesting little ceremony at the meeting last evening of the Pioneer Lodge I. O. O. F. Among the visitors to the lodge was Mr. White of Cornwall, Ont., who had been an active worker in and presiding officer of, Oriental Lodge of that place, but who has come to St. John to reside. As a testimonial to his good work in furthering the cause of Oddfellowship, his brethren of Oriental Lodge forwarded to Deputy Codner of this city an officer's jewel to be presented to Mr. White. The presentation was made by Mr. Codner at last evening's meeting of Pioneer Lodge. Mr. White responded fittingly and was heartily welcomed to this city.

Intentionally Set. It has been learned that the fire in an old shed near the Indian town mill, which on Thursday evening gave the fire department a run to the foot of Indian town and which resulted in the horses and driver of No. 5 engine meeting with a bad accident, was intentionally set. This is proven by the discovery of some oil which was found in a can outside the shed. Shortly after responding to the alarm, Sandy McBeath of the North End Salvage Corps found a can partly filled with oil outside the shed. There was some oil in the can which could not be poured out owing to the way in which the cover of the tin had been removed.

SCHOONER ASHORE IN ST. JOHN RIVER

The schooner Abbie B. Stubbs is experiencing an adventurous trip on her sail up river to the capital. After meeting with much difficulty in making her way through the Reversing Falls the Abbie B. Stubbs proceeded on her way up the river and the latest report received from Fredericton is that she has been grounded this side of Gagetown. The schooner which left here on Wednesday last is carrying a cargo of anthracite coal from New Jersey to Fredericton. It will be remembered that the tern schooner in charge of Captain McLean had quite a battle in the reversing falls.

The schooner proceeded to Fredericton in tow of the tug G. K. King but the craft grounded this side of Gagetown. The tug which had the Abbie B. Stubbs in tow with the assistance of the tug Ouzans tried to pull her off but were unable to succeed and it will be necessary to lighten the cargo before she can be floated.

CELEBRATE EMPIRE DAY IN SCHOOLS

Stirring music and addresses at High School—Appropriate exercises in other institutions.

Empire Day was celebrated in the different city schools yesterday by special exercises of a patriotic nature. Speeches from well known citizens on patriotic themes were features of the exercises in the schools. In the High School the programme was of an interesting nature. There was music by the school orchestra. John McIntosh of Grade XI, read an essay, Celia Amdur sang a solo and Dora Corbett gave a recitation. Marion Marchmont read a short history on the life of Lord Strathcona and Charles O'Regan gave a recitation. Fred McKeown as heard in the patriotic song "Canada All." A song written by David Waterbury, and set to music by D. Arnold Fox in collaboration with Ralph A. March.

W. J. S. Nyles acted as chairman and in introducing the speakers referred to the world wide celebration of the day and the interest taken in patriotic subjects throughout the empire.

Rev. R. A. Armstrong, rector of Trinity church, pointed out that two important factors in the nation's greatness were peace and righteousness. Peace was particularly desirable. He showed what England had done for South Africa and Egypt and he urged the pupils to become worthy members of the Empire.

Mayor Frink thought that it would be a good plan for the churches of the Canadian Club, was announced in a brief speech. He urged the pupils to prepare themselves to become useful members of the great population of the Empire by attending to their studies and other duties.

G. S. Mayes. G. S. Mayes was next called upon. He said: On behalf of St. George's Society I have to thank you for honoring it, by inviting its president to participate in your "Empire Day's" celebration.

When your president, Mr. Hayes, wrote me to be here this afternoon he incidentally or accidentally, asked me to speak to you. I was absent from the city at the time, but upon arriving here, I immediately wrote him, thanking him for the honor, but I particularly stated that I would not promise to speak, therefore, you cannot expect but a word from me.

This is Empire Day, and of all the days of the year, it is the one that none that have attained to such greatness as our own British Empire. Your young men and women, who are studying here daily, and are most conversant with ancient and modern history, yet you cannot discover any that have been as great or are as great as our own.

Take the Roman Empire, during the reign of Augustus when it was at its zenith and yet 70,000,000 people was its population, while today our empire has over 420,000,000, or six times as large a population. The extent of land ruled over by Augustus was about 1,500,000 square miles, while our King George rules over 11,000,000 square miles, or over seven times as large a territory.

Today there are about 23,000,000 tons of shipping in the world, of all flags and nations, and out of that there are about 14,000,000 tons or nearly two-thirds of the whole shipping of the world under our flag, the good old Union Jack. Is that not also something to be proud of?

Now in a few brief years you young people are going out into the world and some of you before me, who cannot be leading citizens, and possibly in control of both civic and government affairs, and what are you going to do about these questions. Are you not going to do your might towards keeping the glorious Union Jack flying over at least as much territory as at present. See to it that our Empire will "Hold what we have."

In closing let me prevail on you to do as your superintendent, my good friend Dr. Bridges, advised, the Albert school boys and girls last year, by asking them to stay in Canada and not go and build up other countries. We have a great country, the finest in the world, and if you mean to work and win, stick to the land of your birth. The exercises came to a close with singing of the National Anthem and the saluting of the flag.

LEAVES CHILD ON VERANDA WITH PATHETIC MESSAGE

Unknown and deserted mother places ten day old male infant at entrance to residence of Rev. A. W. Daniel, Rothesay—Now in Evangeline Home.

A sad case of child desertion which is enshrouded in mystery has aroused much interest throughout the city and county, and engaging the attention of the authorities at Rothesay. Efforts are being made to trace the parents of the child, which was left deserted on the veranda of one of the dwellings.

The child in question, which is a male about ten days old, was found early yesterday morning on the veranda of Rev. A. W. Daniel's residence Rothesay, and there was no clue which would lead to the finding of the parents as nothing could be done to clear the matter up, and there was no place at Rothesay where the baby could be properly cared for.

Particular interest is attached to the case as a message which was left with the infant child tells of a very deplorable condition.

"I am only a poor orphan girl, and the father of the child promised to marry me, but has now deserted me," was the pathetic message scrawled on a piece of rapping paper, folded about some clothing near the tiny body. These few words convey the trying position in which the mother of the baby was left, and every effort will be made to search out the father. The baby had apparently been left on the veranda of the house some time during Thursday evening, for early Friday morning the little body was discovered twitching about on the floor of the veranda near the front entrance.

A sister of Mrs. Daniel, who resides in the same house, was sleeping with her bedroom window up, and some time during the middle of the night she heard a sound on the side which seemed to her like someone crying. She went to the window, and looking out saw a black form on the floor of the veranda which she at the time thought was that of a dog. She presumed that the sound she had heard was nothing more than the whimpering of a dog so she returned to bed, thinking nothing more of the matter.

When the puny child was found it was scantily clad, with just sufficient clothing to keep the tiny body warm, but lying on the floor of the veranda was a bundle which contained some child's clothing. It was on the wrapping paper which was folded about this clothing that the pathetic message was written, informing the finder that the mother of the baby had been deserted.

There were no peculiar marks about the body of the child which would distinguish it from that of any other baby. The baby was kept at the Daniel home, and as neither the parents could be traced the authorities at Rothesay decided to turn the child over to the Evangeline Home. Yesterday the matron of the home, Adjutant Besson, received a communication from the poor commissioners at Rothesay, Christie Vincent and James Mullett, relinquishing all claim to the child, and yesterday afternoon the baby was brought to the Evangeline Home where it is now being cared for.

The indications point to a fine day for the holiday and citizens in general will take advantage of the relax from work to spend the two days in the country. Innumerable fishing parties have been organized and from all indications the fish will have the time of their lives. Besides the visits to the haunts of the fish many people will visit their relatives in the country and it is likely that there will be a general onslaught on the good things produced on the farms.

The different parks will be thrown open to the public. There will be a band at Seaside during the afternoon and the other parks will likely receive their fair share of the crowds. Two baseball games have been arranged for the North End grounds where Moncton will battle with the Rocklands in the morning and in the afternoon the Mars team will meet the team from the railway town.

The different theatres have arranged for bumper crowds and special performances will be the order of the day. Pleasant Sail on the River. The steamer D. J. # THE ADVENTURES OF KATHLYN

By HAROLD MACGRATH.

SYNOPSIS

Kathlyn Mare believes her father, Col. Mare, to be in dire peril in Allah, a principality of India. The King of Allah has recently died, and because the Colonel had once saved his life he names him as his successor. Umballah, pretender to the throne of Allah, loves Kathlyn and has forged a message summoning her to her father, whom he has thrown into prison. She leaves her home in California to go to him.

On her arrival in Allah she is informed by Umballah that her father is dead and that she is the queen. An elaborate durbar is arranged, the central figure of which is Kathlyn, protesting and grief-stricken. When the crown is placed upon her head Umballah announces that she is to be married to him forthwith. Her refusal infuriates him, but as Kathlyn's beauty and spirit have made a strong appeal to his people he yields the joint for the time being. A priest announces that no woman may rule unmarried with the laws of the state she will be given seven days to decide.

When Kathlyn reiterates at the expiration of the week of grace, her refusal to marry Umballah she receives sentence from the supreme tribunal that she is to undergo two ordeals with wild beasts. If she survives, she is to be permitted to rule without hindrance.

Through the pluck and resourcefulness of John Bruce, an American and fellow passenger on the boat which brought Kathlyn to Allah, and who has come to her assistance, she escapes unharmed from the ordeal. With Bruce she flees from Allah. The elephant which carries her becomes frightened and runs away, separating her from Bruce and the rest of the party. After a ride filled with peril she takes refuge in a ruined temple. The holy men and villagers, believing her to be an ancient priestess risen from the tomb, allow her to remain as the guardian of the sacred fire. But Kathlyn's heart is not so the abode of a lion, and she is forced to fly from it with the savage beast in pursuit. She escapes and finds a retreat in a band of slave traders, who bring her to Allah to the public mart. She is sold to Umballah, who, finding her still unsubmitive, throws her into the dungeon with her father.

Bruce and his friends effect the release of Kathlyn and the colonel. Umballah, with a company of soldiers, starts in pursuit. Shots are exchanged when the opposing forces meet, and Kathlyn is struck by a bullet.

CHAPTER XI

Three Bags Of Silver

(Copyright, 1914, By Harold MacGrath)

It was the shock of the bullet rather than the seriousness of the wound that had toppled Kathlyn into the river. In the confusion, the rattle of musketry, the yelling of the panic-stricken pack coolies who had fled hither-and-thither for the jungle, the squealing of the elephants, she had forgotten to crouch low in the howdah. There had come a staggering blow, after which sky and earth careened for a moment and became black; then the chill of water and strangulation, and she found herself struggling in the deepest part of the ford, a strange deadness in one arm. She had no distinct recollection of what took place; her one thought was to keep her head above water.

Instantly the firing ceased; on one side because there were no more cartridges, on the other for fear of hitting the one person who had made this pursuit necessary.

Kathlyn struggled between the elephant which carried Ramabai and the boat or barge, which held the eager Umballah and his soldiers. The mahout, terrified, had slid off and taken to his heels ingloriously. Thus Ramabai could do nothing to aid Kathlyn. Nor could the elephant ridden by the colonel and Bruce be managed.

Umballah was quick to see his advantage, and, laughing, he urged his men toward the helpless girl. The colonel raised his rifle and aimed at Umballah, but there was no report, only a click which to the frantic man's ears sounded like the gates of hell closing in behind him.

"Forward!" shouted Umballah. She was his again; he would have the pleasure of taking her under the very eyes of her father and lover. His star never faltered.

Bruce stood up in the howdah, ready to dive; but the colonel restrained him.

"Don't waste your life! My God, we can't help her! Not a bullet in either gun. God's curse on all these worthless stones men call guns! . . . There, he's got her! Not a shell left! Kit, Kit!" The colonel broke down and cried like a child. As for himself, hot tears could not have wrung a tear from his eyes; but Kit, in the hands of that black devil again!

"Colonel," said Bruce, "I'm going to get some cartridges." He realized then that Kathlyn's future depended upon him alone. The colonel was a broken man. So he struck the elephant, which lumbered ashore. The moment Kathlyn was safe in the barge Umballah would probably give orders to resume firing. He could do so now with impunity. The soldiers drew Kathlyn into the barge. Umballah saw that she was wounded in the fleshy part of the arm. Quickly he snatched off the turban of one of the soldiers, unwound it, and began to bandage Kathlyn's arm. The man, for all his oriental craftiness, was still gullible enough to expect some sign of gratitude from her; but as he touched her she shrank in loathing. His anger flamed and he flung her roughly into a seat. "Suffer, then, little fool!" Meantime the colonel and Bruce dismounted and tried to stem the tide of fleeing coolies out. It was no more effective than blowing against the wind. They found, however, an abandoned pack containing cartridge cases, and they filled their pockets, calling to Ramabai and Pundita to follow them along the river in pursuit of Umballah's barge, which was now being rapidly poled upstream. They might be able to pick off enough soldiers, sharpshooting, to make it impossible to man the barge. They were both dead shots, and the least they could do would be to put Quite unknown, quite unsuspected by him, for all the activity of his spies, a volcano was beginning to grumble under his feet. All tyrants, the petty and the great, have heard it; the muttering of the oppressor. Perhaps the fugitives had gone thirty miles when suddenly the jungle ended abruptly, and a desert opened up before them. Beyond stood a purple line of rugged hills. Ramabai raised his hand, and the elephants came to a halt. "I believe I know where I am," said Ramabai. "Somewhere between us and yonder hills is a walled city, belonging to Bala Khan, a Pathan who sometimes styles himself as a rajah. He has a body of fierce fighting men; and he lives unmolested for two reasons; looting would not be worth while, and his position is isolated and almost impregnable. Now, if I am right, we shall find shelter there, for he was an old friend of my father's, and I might call him a friend of mine, since I fell asleep for him occasionally." "Bala Khan?" mused Bruce reminiscently. "Isn't he the chap who has a sacred white elephant?" "Yes, the same," answered Ramabai. "We can reach there before sundown. It would be wise to

The rim of the sun was sinking rapidly as Bruce drew his elephant to a halt before the gate of the walled city. The guard ran out, barring the way. "I am Ramabai, a friend of Bala Khan. I am come to pay a visit. Direct me to his house or his palace." The authority in Ramabai's voice was sufficient for the guard, who gave the necessary directions. The party continued on into town. It was an odd place for a walled city. There wasn't a tree about, not a sign of house, except some miles away where the hills began to slope upwards. Bruce wondered what the inhabitants fed upon. It was more like an Egyptian village than anything he had ever seen in India. Bruce asked for his rifle, which he laid carefully in the crook of his arm. One never could tell.

Freshly they came upon a group in the center of which were the dancers at their vocation. They ceased their mad whirling at the sight of the two elephants. There were nine of these men, fierce of eye and built muscularly. No effeminate Hindu here, mused Bruce, who did not like the looks of them at all. The surrounding natives stared with variant emotions. Many of them had never seen a white man before. Their gaze centered upon the colonel. Kathlyn was almost as dark as Pundita, and as for Bruce, only his European dress distinguished him from Ramabai, for there was scarcely a shade difference in color. But the colonel, having been weeks in prison, was as pale as alabaster and his hair shone like threads of silver.

Say to your master, Bala Khan, that Ramabai, son of Manoh Singh, his old friend, awaits him with friendly greetings." "Kit," whispered Kathlyn's father, "this chap Ramabai wouldn't make a bad king. And look! excitedly "There's the sacred elephant, and if he isn't white I'll eat my hat!" Kathlyn sighed gratefully. That her father could be interested in anything was a good sign for the future. A few days' rest and wholesome food would put him half way to his legs. Her own vitality was an inherent quality of hers. She had never known the family was well known for its recuperative powers.

The servant ran back into the compound and spoke to a dignified man, proved to be a high caste Brahmin, having in his charge the care of the white elephant. He disappeared and returned soon with the Khan. The pleasant face, though proudly molded, together with the simplicity of his appearance, conveyed to Kathlyn the fact that here was a man to be trusted, at least for the present. He greeted Ramabai cordially, struck his hands and ordered out the servants to take charge of what luggage there was and to lead away the elephants to be fed and watered.

Courteously he asked Kathlyn how she had become injured, and Ramabai acted as interpreter. He then ushered them into his house, spread rugs and cushions for them to sit upon, and mildly inquired what had brought the son of his old friend so far.

Col. Mare spoke several dialects fluently, and briefly told (between sips of tea and bites of cake which had been set out for the guests) his experience in Allah. "The rulers of Allah," observed Bala Khan, "have always been half mad." "Ah, that Durga Ram whom they call Umballah! I have heard of him, but fortunately for him, our paths have not crossed in any way." He blew a cloud of smoke above his head. "Well, he has shown wisdom in avoiding me. In front of me, a desert; behind me, verdant hills and many sheep and cattle, well guarded. I am too far away for them to bother. Sometimes the desert thieves cause a flurry, but that is nothing. It keeps the tulwar from growing rusty," patting the great knife at his side.

Bala Khan was muscular; his lean hands denoted work; his clear eyes, the sun and wind. He was in height and build something after the pattern of the colonel. "And to force a crown on me!" said the colonel. "You could have given it to this Umballah," wisely. "That I would not do." "In each case you showed forethought. The Durga Ram, when he had you where he wanted you—was the walled city, so seemingly impregnable, and a little incerted with that it was only human that its guardians should eventually grow careless."

When the keepers, staggering under the fumes of the drug, returned near daybreak, first to find the gate open second to find their sacred charge gone, they tried in terror; for it would be death, involving and painful for them to stay and explain how and why they had left their post.

The wild and lawless brigands knew exactly what they were about. There were several agents of European and American cruises after this white elephant and as it could not be purchased there was no reason why it could be stolen. When the Brahmin arrived at sunrise to find his vocation gone he set up a wailing which awakened the household. The Khan was furious and ordered a general search. He vowed death to the foul hands which had done this sacrilege!

Kathlyn and the others were genuinely sorry when the Khan announced what had taken place. "Said he," "Come, you are all skilled hunters. Find me elephant and these guns and newer and surer ones shall protect you from Durga Ram, should he have it into his head to come this way." The colonel, Bruce, and Ramabai set out at once. After they had gone a camel rider entered the compound and sought audience with Bala Khan. Kathlyn and Pundita were in the compound at the time and the former was greatly interested in the saddle bags, attached to one of which was a binocular case. Kathlyn could not resist the inclination to open this case. It contained an exceptionally fine pair of glasses, such were used in that day in the British army. No doubt they were a part of some loot.

Suddenly an idea came to her. She asked permission (through Pundita) to ride the camel outside the town. After some argument the servant in charge consented. Upon a kniv outside the city—a hillock of sand glass. From this promontory she had a range of something like fifteen to twenty miles. Back and forth her eyes roved and suddenly paused.

"Somewhere between us and yonder hills is a walled city belonging to Bala Khan."

hasten, however, as this desert and those hills are infested with lawless, nomadic bands of matterless men—brigands, you call them. They would cut the throat of a man for the sake of his clothes. "Let us go on," said the colonel. "I don't care where. I am dead for want of food and sleep." "And I, too," confessed Kathlyn. "My arm pains me badly." "My poor Kit!" murmured her father gloomily. "And all this because I told you half a truth, because in play I tried to make a mystery out of a few plain facts, I should have told you everything, warned you against following in case I failed to turn up." "I should have followed you just the same."

"Shall I remind the arm?" asked Bruce, turning. "No, thanks." She smiled down at him. "This bandage will serve till we reach Bala Khan's." "By the way, colonel, is there a pair of binoculars in the howdah?" "Yes. Do you want them?" "I have seen many unbelieve things here in India," replied Bruce reluctantly. "Think of yesterday and today, Miss Kathlyn." "The natives would not permit him to be killed because they held that, being unique, he was sacred. A sacred white elephant! Poor simple minded fools!" The colonel felt in his pockets, then dropped his hands dispiritedly. How long since he had tasted tobacco? "Bruce have you got a cheroot in your pocket? I think a smoke would brace me up."

Bruce laughed and passed up a broken cheroot, which the colonel lighted carefully. The weariness seemed to go out of his face magically. "This Bala Khan should be Mohammedan," said Bruce. "The Pathan despises the Hindu." "There are Hindus in yonder city, quite as many," said Ramabai, "as there are Mohammedans. Even the Pathan respects that which he cannot understand."

"Isn't that the wall behind that sand hill? Let me have the glasses a moment, colonel. . . H'm! A white elephant! I'd give ten thousand this minute to own it. There, he's entered the gate. Well, well, well! And I've lived to see it! Poor old Ramabai, to have carried around a dented pachyderm! He waltz and any elephant flesh could be. These dancing chaps are going in, too. What caste would those dancers be, Ramabai?" "Pariahs, quite possibly; probably brigands."

"The rim of the sun was sinking rapidly as Bruce drew his elephant to a halt before the gate of the walled city. The guard ran out, barring the way. "I am Ramabai, a friend of Bala Khan. I am come to pay a visit. Direct me to his house or his palace." The authority in Ramabai's voice was sufficient for the guard, who gave the necessary directions. The party continued on into town. Bala Khan was muscular; his lean hands denoted work; his clear eyes, the sun and wind. He was in height and build something after the pattern of the colonel. "And to force a crown on me!" said the colonel. "You could have given it to this Umballah," wisely. "That I would not do." "In each case you showed forethought. The Durga Ram, when he had you where he wanted you—was the walled city, so seemingly impregnable, and a little incerted with that it was only human that its guardians should eventually grow careless."

When the keepers, staggering under the fumes of the drug, returned near daybreak, first to find the gate open second to find their sacred charge gone, they tried in terror; for it would be death, involving and painful for them to stay and explain how and why they had left their post.

The wild and lawless brigands knew exactly what they were about. There were several agents of European and American cruises after this white elephant and as it could not be purchased there was no reason why it could be stolen. When the Brahmin arrived at sunrise to find his vocation gone he set up a wailing which awakened the household. The Khan was furious and ordered a general search. He vowed death to the foul hands which had done this sacrilege!

Kathlyn and the others were genuinely sorry when the Khan announced what had taken place. "Said he," "Come, you are all skilled hunters. Find me elephant and these guns and newer and surer ones shall protect you from Durga Ram, should he have it into his head to come this way." The colonel, Bruce, and Ramabai set out at once. After they had gone a camel rider entered the compound and sought audience with Bala Khan. Kathlyn and Pundita were in the compound at the time and the former was greatly interested in the saddle bags, attached to one of which was a binocular case. Kathlyn could not resist the inclination to open this case. It contained an exceptionally fine pair of glasses, such were used in that day in the British army. No doubt they were a part of some loot.

Suddenly an idea came to her. She asked permission (through Pundita) to ride the camel outside the town. After some argument the servant in charge consented. Upon a kniv outside the city—a hillock of sand glass. From this promontory she had a range of something like fifteen to twenty miles. Back and forth her eyes roved and suddenly paused.

THE LATE RUBE WADDELL WAS THE GREATEST PITCHER IN THE GAME

George Edward Waddell, the famous "Rube" as he was known wherever baseball is played, died at a sanitarium in San Antonio, Texas, on April 1st, a victim of tuberculosis, after a long fight for life. Waddell, once one of the greatest baseball players, came to Texas four months ago, already weakened by pulmonary trouble, but buoyant and hopeful that a few months would see him restored to health and "back in the game." He located on a ranch near Boerne, but instead of getting his strength back, he died steadily until he died.

Waddell shared with Fred Glade the strike-out record of the American League. On July 29, 1908, while pitching for the St. Louis Americans, of whom he had just been released by Mack, he fanned 16 of the Athletics, his former team mates.

Waddell was born in Butler, Penn., Oct. 13, 1876. When 20 years of age or in 1896, he pitched his first professional ball with the Oil City, Penn., team and the next year after a brief career with the Volant College (Penn.) nine, he entered "big league" baseball as a member of the Louisville National League team. The pace in such company with (Detroit) he returned to his native State and joined the Hamestead team.

In 1899, a scout for the Columbus team recommended him and he was drafted by that organization. The next year he was attached to the Louisville club, but when the Louisville players were transferred to Pittsburgh he went along. The American League war, signal for a general period of players "jumping" save Waddell the opportunity for another change, and he became a member of the Milwaukee club in 1900.

Waddell joined the Chicago Nationals in 1901 and pitched a few games for the team under Jack Doyle. In 1902 he jumped the Chicago to the Los Angeles "Outlaws," but returned again to organized baseball joining the Athletics. From 1902 to 1908 he was one of the Mack's team and then was sold to the St. Louis Americans.

A flash of his famous smile helped the Browns on the great battle they made for the American League pennant in 1906 but at the end of the next season he was released to Newark.

The Minneapolis club bought Waddell in 1910 and he was two years with that club. Illness began to get the better of him, and last spring he was added to the roster of the Minneapolis Northern League club.

A remarkable tribute was paid Rube Warrell by Connie Mack when the manager of the world's champions was informed of the famous Rube's death. His statement follows:

"He was the greatest pitcher in the game, and although widely known for his strength, he was the best hearted fan on our team and every man with whom he came in contact will verify my statement.

"When a comrad was sick Rube was the first on hand to see him and last to leave, and if he had money it went for some gift or offering for the sick man. He made my team and every follower of the White Elephant banner in the Quaker City knows that in his heart. He came to Philadelphia, a stranger, but entered into the spirit of the city and tried with all his heart to bring pennants there. He may have failed us at times but to him I and the other owners of the Athletics' ball club owe much.

"The pennants of 1902 and 1905 were won for us mainly through the efforts of the Rube, and if he had not been injured in that straw hat incident at the close of the later season we would have won the world's championship from the Giants in a walk. And he was badly injured too. Many fans have figured him as having quit in the face of the heavy guns of the McGraw outfit. They wronged the man who if he was anything was a courageous pitcher. His shoulder was injured and never regained the strength which had made the Rube such a terror to opposing batsmen.

"I cannot say how sorry I am to hear this news. I received a letter this morning from Waddell's sister telling me that he was sinking, but assuring me that he would live for some time. In the letter she sent a message from the great outpav, it wished to be remembered to all his teammates and the younger men who are now upholding the name which he practically made. He expressed sorrow to his sister that he had acted in the ready manner he had during his baseball career and wished to see his first wife.

"Above all did he want to see his manager," he said, "and I was moved to make the trip but for the condition that made it impossible. In his entire career, Waddell was his own worst enemy. Never did he harm a man intentionally and many are the men who can testify to his generous heart. Truly am I sorry and from every point do I regret the passing of the great southpaw."

The eccentric "Rube" More stories have been told about Rube Waddell about an other player ever engaged in professional baseball, and most of them are true. Seldom a month went by that Rube did not "pull" something that caused his name to be printed in the papers from one coast to the other. Usually his stunts were enjoyed by everybody except one man, and that man was the manager of the team on which Rube happened to be playing at the time.

The best remembered stunt of the Rube as far as Boston is concerned happened one day on the old Huntington Avenue grounds Rube was pitching for the Athletics at that time and was at his very best, while the predecessors of the Red Sox, the Puritans they were called, had fallen from their former glory of world champions and were rapidly slipping. Anyway this day the Rube had the Bostonians completely at his mercy. They couldn't touch him and for eight innings went scoreless. They came up for their turn in the last half of the ninth, hopelessly licked but determined to cross some plate at least once. But the Rube added insult to injury by calmly waving all his infield and outfield to the bench. The members of the Athletics hesitated but Connie Mack saw that Waddell was determined to have his way and didn't interfere. So there Rube was with nobody behind him and only Schreckengost the catcher in his position. Then he let loose for all that was in him and three Boston batters struck out in short order. The Rube had proved that he was king.

Schreckengost, by the way (his name was changed to Schreck by the scorer to save space), was in his way almost as big a "nut" as the Rube and Connie Mack had a strenuous time managing the pair. But like the genius he is he finally hit on the right idea. He appointed Schreck guardian over Rube and gave Rube a similar office over Schreck. This plan worked except on those occasions when no living power could keep either one or the other in line.

Schreck was no great catcher but he could handle the Rube's delivery as no other man ever could. With the Athletics he always caught Waddell, except on those occasions when he was "missing." The comparatively few times that the lamented Mike Powers, a much greater catcher than Schreck ever thought of being, was behind the bat for Rube the famous southpaw never seemed to deliver his best goods. Rube liked to have Schreck catch him, but it must not be imagined that they formed any mutual admiration society. During the progress of a game when things were not breaking just exactly right for the Athletics the verbal compliments that were shot back and forth between the pair were hotter than any ball Waddell ever delivered. The remarks could be heard in the grandstand and bleachers and would hardly be tolerated nowadays according to B. Johnson's code of baseball etiquette. If the Athletics finally put out a winner and they generally did when Rube was twirling, Schreck and the Rube would be the greatest chums after the game if not well some thing generally happened.

Mack was the only manager who could ever handle Waddell and it kept him pretty busy. Rube was intricately in-

We mean the impossibility of finding a car at any price which renders motoring more restful to mind and body. We mean that quality of clinging to the road, while skimming over it, which is an expression of the perfect distribution of weight in an essentially light car.

We mean that absence of noise, and struggle, and strain, in the motor, which proves its perfect balance—that nice co-ordination which enables the engine to pick up speed without imparting a particle of tremor or vibration to the car. We mean the freedom from swaying and swaying—the steady, straight-on sensation—the sense of inexhaustible power—the "give" and accommodation of springs to every road variation. We mean a dozen different evidences of scientific design and scientific manufacturing—all of which combined null the nerves into complete relaxation and comfort. ## Salads Their Preparation And Use

A salad makes an acceptable dish at any time of the year, but is especially valuable during the summer months, when salads may be so easily prepared and yet form a wholesome, nutritious and refreshing part of a meal.

A few years ago salads seldom appeared on the table. Then it was only a dish of green herbs dressed with vinegar and oil. Now, however, salads are now made in an endless variety of ways and nowadays it is considered an important part of the dinner—even by families of moderate means. We use eggs, many kinds of meats, fish, fruit and almost all kinds of vegetables cooked as well as raw, and combined with a salad dressing containing oil, butter and cream, and other nutritive ingredients. This increase in the use of salads is very encouraging for a number of reasons. They may be easily prepared and if the dressing be on hand are quickly prepared. They add variety to the diet on account of the number of ways in which they can be prepared. It is a splendid way of preparing and using up "left-over" vegetables. Then, as said before, salads are refreshing, appetizing and stimulate the appetite.

Salad Dressing.

Three tablespoons flour, three tablespoons sugar, one tablespoon mustard, one teaspoon salt, three tablespoons butter, or olive oil, Cayenne, three eggs, one cup vinegar (weak), one cup milk (or cream).

Method: Measure and mix dry ingredients. Add eggs slightly beaten. Mix well. Add vinegar. Add milk very slowly. Blend well. Cook in double boiler until thick. Add butter just before removing from fire. Strain and cool.

The ways of making Salad Dressing are numerous, but the one given above seems to meet with general approval, and if the method for making this is carefully followed and all the measurements are level, the result will be a thoroughly blended dressing.

How many are careful to clean out the shells when using eggs? If you fail to do so you are losing the most nutritious part of the egg, called the yolk, which lies nearest the shell.

A common mistake is made by adding butter at time of combining. This should not be done as the heat causes the butter to decompose and this, of course, lessens the keeping quality of the dressing. Butter should never be added until just before removing dressing from stove. Otherwise this dressing may be kept for considerable time in a glass jar. Instead of butter, olive oil may be used.

Olive Oil.

Olive oil has a very high food value, but I fear its qualities are not generally known. It is obtained from the olive, a stone fruit much used in the south of Europe and the East. Pickled olives are relished very much as appetizers. (The taste for pickled olives is decidedly an acquired one.) Olive oil is obtained from the lime seed olive, by pressure; the seeds give a light green oil. This oil occupies first place among vegetable oils. It never gets rancid, does not dry, nor does it freeze at ordinary temperature, and might be used in this country altogether to the exclusion of Cod-liver Oil. It should be kept in a dark place, as long exposure to light causes it to become cloudy.

By Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound—Their Own Stories Here Told.

Edmonton, Alberta, Can.—"I think it is no more than right for me to thank you for what your kind advice and Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound have done for me."

"When I wrote to you some time ago I was a very sick woman suffering from female troubles. I had organic inflammation and could not stand or walk any distance. At last I was confined to my bed, and the doctor said I would have to go through an operation, but this I refused to do. A friend advised Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and now, after using three bottles of it, I feel like a new woman. I most heartily recommend your medicine to all women who suffer with female troubles. I have also taken Lydia E. Pinkham's Liver Pills, and think they are fine. I will never be without the medicine in the house."—Mrs. FRANK EMBLEY, 908 Columbia Avenue, Edmonton, Alberta.

The Other Case.

Berwick, N.B.—"Just after my marriage my left side began to pain me and the pain got so severe at times that I suffered terribly with it. I visited three doctors and each one wanted to operate on me but I would not consent to an operation. I heard of the good Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound was doing for others and I used several bottles of it with the result that I haven't been bothered with my side since then. I am in good health and I have two little girls."—Mrs. R. B. CHILD, Berwick, N.B.

Flour trial is essential but—it is not your work!

Flour varies from time to time in baking quality. This is because wheat continually varies according to soil conditions, etc.

Therefore, if baking results are to be constantly high, baking tests are essential. It is unreasonable to expect you to make these tests at your expense.

So from each shipment of wheat delivered at our mills we take a ten pound sample. This is ground into flour. Bread is baked from the flour. If this bread is high in quality and large in quantity, we use the shipment. — Otherwise we sell it.

By simply asking for FLOUR bearing this name you can always be sure of more bread and better bread.

High River, Alta.—"My baby was a sufferer from an itching and burning on chest and back. The pimples spread until his whole chest and back were covered. Some of them itched and on some the top looked clear. He was fretful and cross and was always rubbing. His clothing irritated him. The trouble caused itching, burning and loss of sleep. His chest and back grew worse and worse;
 they were a mass of itching pimples. The trouble had lasted two or three weeks and we tried remedies but they failed. Cuticura Soap and Ointment afforded relief in about ten days. I washed the eruption with hot then used the Cuticura Ointment and in three weeks he was well again. He owes it to Cuticura Soap and Ointment."

Hints About Shearing

Up like most farm animals the sheep produces a double source of revenue, its annual fleece practically paying for its keeping during the winter. The ewe flock, while providing nourishment for the growing lambs, has been steadily adding length and weight to their wool covering as well as in the spring the removal and sale of this, which has provided warmth and protection throughout the winter, brings a handsome return.
 In all the large sheep-raising countries where flocks of several thousand are kept the shearing season is one of the busiest. All the work must be accomplished in a short time for each particular district, hence in many cases the work is handed over to experts. These men do the work by contract or charge a flat sum for each animal. They begin in the earliest districts and travel to the cooler sections as the season opens up.
 Large shearing sheds are often erected for the purpose of shearing and storing the wool. Every precaution is taken to insure quickness, cleanliness
 and thoroughness in the work. The intelligent methods practised at shearing time in such countries as Australia, New Zealand and Great Britain
 add greatly to the quality and price
 of their wool. Every precaution is taken to insure quickness, cleanliness
 and thoroughness in the work. The
 intelligent methods practised at shear-
 ing time in such countries as Australia, New Zealand and Great Britain
 add greatly to the quality and price
 of their wool when placed for sale in the large wool markets of the world.
 Conditions in the Dominion of Canada and the Province of Quebec particularly are very different. Small flocks of from ten to one hundred in number are scattered here and there throughout the country, some sections having more, others less. Very little thought has been put into any particular division of the sheep industry and practically no thought whatever into shearing. The work has been performed in a haphazard manner, a few men being proficient in the work but the larger majority unskilled. Many farmers with a small flock of ten to fifteen ewes do their shearing on the ground, others in a stall of the cow
 stable, hence the wool is contaminated
 at this time with materials that might easily be avoided. While it is true that our conditions will not allow us to undertake such elaborate buildings as are used for shearing in those countries where sheep alone are kept,
 there are a number of principles which apply in a small as well as in a large way.

When to shear.
 Where the object of having the ewes lamb on grass prevails, shearing usually takes place before the really hot weather sets in. Some men prefer to delay shearing until rather late,
 hoping to gain greater weight of wool
 owing to an increase in the oil or yolk.
 There is little to be gained by delay,
 because considerable wool is likely to pull out and be lost, and, moreover, sheep lose flesh very rapidly if not shorn before hot weather arrives.
 There is also danger of the lambs eating some of the wool, which is likely to require four or five weeks of the stomach and consequently in-loss by death. Good dry weather should be selected for shearing. If the flock has been washed, time should be given for the wool to become thoroughly dry. It is always advisable to tag the ewes before shearing. Clean wool is assured as well as cleanness to the operator. Shears used for this tagging should be cleaned before being used for other work. No attempt should be made to remove the dirty wool or tags with a shearing practically no thought whatever into shearing. The work has been performed in a haphazard manner, a few
 men being proficient in the work but
 the larger majority unskilled. Many farmers with a small flock of ten to
 fifteen ewes do their shearing on the
 ground, others in a stall of the cow
 stable, hence the wool is contaminated

Hotbeds And Cold Frames

Gardeners are accustomed to the use of hotbeds and cold frames which in some cases are used very largely.
 There are many other persons, however, who might profitably use one or more if they knew how easy they are to handle. Of course they require constant attention and watching to keep the plants from being drawn by too much heat or to keep them from being stunted by too cold weather.

In a hotbed the heat is supplied by manure which should be, preferably, fresh horse manure. The manure requires to be piled in a fairly compact pile to allow of heating, and as it heats it is desirable to turn it or replace it so that the heating takes place uniformly throughout the pile.
 It requires from one to two weeks to get fresh stable manure ready for the hotbed. The quantity of manure required depends on the time at which the bed is made and also to a certain extent on the plants to be grown in the bed. About one foot to ten inches
 of freshly heated manure is quite sufficient from the twentieth of April
 on.

In putting up a hotbed the work must be done as rapidly as possible to conserve the heat in the manure, and as soon as the frame is placed on the manure about three inches of good soil should be put in and the glass immediately placed on the frame. It is well to have the manure extend to a foot all around the frame and banked up somewhat, as this tends to keep a uniform temperature in all parts of the frame.

The size of the frame is immaterial.
 It is usually made to fit the sash.
 A standard sash is 6 ft. x 3 ft., and a standard frame is made large enough to require four sashes. However, the frame may be just large enough for one or more sashes, or the sash may be made to fit the frame. It is occasionally storm windows are made use of, but of course a standard sash is the most serviceable, and these cost about $2.25 to $3.75 apiece. The frame should be made of inch boards, and the back should be three or four inches higher than the front. The side of the frame should be set facing the south. This allows more sunlight to enter, and also the water will then run freely outside. There should be no large cracks or holes in the frame or glass as this will let in cold from the extent on the plants to be grown in the bed. About one foot to ten inches
 of freshly heated manure is quite sufficient from the twentieth of April
 on.

In a cold frame we have no heat, except that supplied by the sun, and the frame and sash are for protection to the growing plant. In a cold frame the heat is not so high as in a hotbed, but it is twelve degrees higher than outside. Cold frames should be well banked up with earth on the outside.
 They are used late in the spring
 and principally for hardening off

The Proper Way To Set Hens

Setting hens is an important matter where the poultry-man depends on the hens for incubating. The location of the nest is the first thing to be considered; it should be in a fairly secluded spot away from the rest of the flock, and where no one except the attendant needs to go. The hen wants to feel that she is alone, and if she is allowed to steal her nest she generally selects a spot where there is little or no danger of being molested.
 The nest should be so situated that it can be kept sweet and clean, and where the hen can exercise and dust while off her eggs. It should be about 12 inches square, the sides, bottom, top and back solid, with a four to six-inch board along the bottom and a slatted door should be put on the front part. A slatted door should be put on to shut the hen in during the time that the attendant is not around, in order to prevent her from leaving the nest.

If set on a floor, an upturned sod
 or a shovelful or two of fresh earth should be placed in the box and formed into the shape of a nest. These cover with short cut hay, straw, or shavings, shaping it with the hands into proper form. Place a nest with two in this and see that everything is ready for the hen. At night place the broody hen gently on the nest and close the door, leaving her alone until morning. In the morning open up her box and place some feed before her. If she refuses to leave the nest within a reasonable time, shut her up and leave her alone until the following morning. If she refuses to leave her nest the second morning lift
 her off gently and destroy her nest.
 She is feeding and see to it that she is put back on her nest if she does not egg. Give her a setting of eggs while soon of her own accord. Provide her with plenty of good fresh drinking water and see that she has plenty of good food before her. Corn is one of the best grains because it keeps her satisfied and she will eat it. This can be prevented by giving her fat-forming food. It is also a good food to keep up the heat of her body.
 While the hen is setting the nest should be examined. Remove all broken eggs, if any, and wash all the soil and dirty eggs in warm water.
 If the nesting material is soiled, it should be replaced with fresh material. This is very important, for if the nest is left in a filthy condition it will soon be swarming with lice; the pores of the egg shells, also, may become stopped up with the filth, and this will interfere considerably with the vitality of the chick or embryo. Before placing the hen on the nest it would be well to dust her with some good lice-destroyer, and once a week
 afterwards, dusting her the last time
 just a day before the eggs pip.

If more than one hen is set at the same time the eggs should be tested on the seventh day and the fertile eggs placed under as few hens as possible. The other hens may be given a fresh supply of eggs or sent back

High-Pressure Bee-Keeping For The Spring

The object of keeping bees is to produce honey as everybody knows.
 To produce honey it is necessary to have populous colonies at the commencement of the honey-flow, strong with vigorous worker bees so that they may be pushed to the utmost. Beekeepers of practical experience make use of various methods of forcing their bees to breed artificially in the spring
 so that when the crop-producing honey-flows begin, their bees will be in the best possible shape to take advantage of them. The most practical and successful of these methods is to stimulate a natural honey-flow
 by feeding sugar syrup in the spring
 before the usual spring honey sources begin to produce. White granulated sugar is dissolved in warm water in the proportion of 1 to 1 by bulk and is fed daily to the bees in such quantities as they can take up in the twenty-four hours. The ideal time to begin stimulative feeding would be just previous to the time when pussy willow or soft maple comes into blossom.
 The pussy willow and the soft maple are about the first to furnish the bees with the pollen necessary for feeding the young bees. When pollen is not coming into the hive from some source it is not advisable to practice stimulative feeding as honey and pollen are the two prime requirements in brood rearing. By stimulative feeding the queen is induced to lay more eggs than in the natural course of the season. In the first week the hive with an ever increasing number of young bees, vigorous and strong to take care of the surplus-producing honey-flow, which most localities

 begin during the latter part of June.

It is not necessary of course to continue this stimulative feeding after the time when the bees begin to secure honey from natural sources, of which apple blossoms will be the earliest of importance. The object of stimulative feeding is to hasten brood rearing instead of waiting for the natural sources to begin.

UP-TO-DATE NEWS OF THE MOVING PICTURE WORLD

BIG FEATURE FOR THE STAR'S HOLIDAY BILL

The North End house has strong film stories for Victoria Day.

A two-reel Kalem drama of Irish pioneer days with three other bright subjects have been secured for the Star for Victoria Day. The story of the picture is as follows:

Bryan O'Sullivan, an Irish lad of humble birth, rescues Lady Geraldine from drowning as her boat capsizes, thereby meriting her lasting gratitude. Forfeithful of his station, Bryan falls madly in love with Lady Geraldine, who momentarily listens to his pleadings. Her acceptance of attentions from O'Rourke angers Bryan and he upbraids her for falseness. The nobleman draws his sword, but Bryan wrenches it from his hand and breaks it to pieces. Knowing that he cannot now remain, Bryan bids farewell to Lady Geraldine and sails for America. Bryan O'Sullivan, Irishman, becomes John Pierce, colonist of Jamestown, Virginia. Years later Lady Geraldine suffers many vicissitudes; her castle is besieged by the Cromwellians and she with many others is sent to Jamestown to be sold to the colonists as wives.

John Pierce is startled to see Lady Geraldine, but she fails to recognize him because of a heavy beard. Seeing that he is an honest man, she offers to become his wife. He takes her to his cottage and steps into another room shaves off his beard, and begins to play the flute, which he so loved in days gone by. Lady Geraldine, who is about to end her life, hears the music and stumbles to the door recognizing John Pierce, her husband, as Bryan O'Sullivan, her lover, and love claims its own.

A STRONG INDIAN STORY RE-TOLD

"The Severed Thong" has real Indian actor who has made himself famous.

The faith in God of an educated Indian and his force in leading others to see the light are strongly exemplified in Frank E. Woods' two reel Mutual "The Severed Thong," which Jack O'Brien now is producing under the Majestic brand. Dark Cloud, who D. W. Griffith says is the world's greatest Indian actor, plays the leading role. The remainder of the small but competent cast consists of Mary Allen, George Seligman and Earle Eye. These who have produced the done to death Indian stories will be pleased with Dark Cloud's feat of marksmanship in the second reel.

Little Kathie Fischer, the four-year-old niece of Margarita Fischer of "American Beauty" Mutual fame, will be in the Memorial day parade at Santa Barbara, Cal. She will march with the Boys' Band, carrying a sash.

"Our Mutual Girl" Rescues Her Protegee's Brother

"OUR MUTUAL GIRL" and ADA TAYLOR HER PROTEGEE

On the morning after securing Ada Taylor's release from Blackwell's Island Margaret, "Our Mutual Girl," awoke bright and early. Ada was still sleeping.

"I'll let her stay there," thought Margaret. "A regular bed must seem very restful to her after those hard coals."

So "Our Mutual Girl" and her aunt went down to the spring fashion display at Stern Brothers' palatial new store, Forty-second street and Sixth avenue. There the beautiful models paraded a bewildering display of gowns. Margaret could not curb her enthusiasm over the wonderful advance exhibition of the clothes well dressed women will wear.

While "Our Mutual Girl" was away Ada Taylor awoke. Then began a mental struggle with herself as to whether she should further accept Margaret's generosity. Finally she decided to slip quietly away. Ada got out of the house easily enough, only to run into the arms of "Kid Joseph," her tough former sweetheart, who had heard of her release. He persuaded Ada to go back to the east side.

As Margaret and her aunt were motoring up Broadway they noticed a great commotion in front of a store. A ragged fellow whom "Our Mutual Girl" recognized as an old acquaintance, the burglar, Ada's big brother, was pursued by a crowd. Seeing Margaret, he jumped into the automobile.

"Save me, miss," he pleaded. "I just heaved a glass through the window to grab some of the money they've got on show there."

"Our Mutual Girl" for the second time saved the man, on this occasion by speeding the auto and leaving the pursuers far behind.

Arriving at home, her maid told Margaret of the disappearance of Ada Taylor. Her brother immediately seized the situation.

"Those tough mugs from the east side have got her to go back," he said. "Now I'm going to go to it and get her away from them."

"Oh, do let me go with you!" said Margaret, but her aunt sternly put her foot down on that idea.

However, "Our Mutual Girl" was not to be denied, and a little while later she quietly disappeared to go in search of Ada Taylor.

All this may be seen by the public on or after May 25 in a coming chapter of the "Our Mutual Girl" fifty-two reel serial.

AL. JENNINGS HAS BEAT BACK IN LIFE

The famous outlaw has become candidate for Governor of Oklahoma — A national figure.

Al J. Jennings, now candidate for governor of Oklahoma, former bandit and train robber, is the central figure in a six reel feature motion picture now in production by the Thanhouser Film Company. The title of the picture will be "Beating Back," under which name the story of the one time outlaw's life was published in The Saturday Evening Post, written by Will Irwin in collaboration with Jennings himself.

Jennings is a modern Jean Valjean. Sentenced to a life term in a federal prison for train robbing, he was pardoned by President Roosevelt and restored to citizenship. How he reformed and "beat back" into society it was forced to admit him and recognize him to the extent that he may be the next governor of Oklahoma, is the subject of the photoplay. His adventures as a bandit will also be shown on the screen. In fact, the film is a picture narrative of the life of one of the most remarkable figures in modern America.

A SCENARIO WRITER ON BLOODY CEMETERY HILL, THE GETTYSBURG OF MEXICO

Thomas H. Inch has staged a play which will soon be seen in New York.

It is no new thing for players and producers of the speaking stage to invade the motion picture field, but it is seldom that any one who has made a success in motion pictures care to enter the theatrical field, where the risks are greater and the profits apt to be smaller in proportion. However, Thomas H. Inch has written a play called "Mr. Aladdin." The play opened with a very successful premiere a few days ago at the Lyric Theatre, Los Angeles, Cal., whence it will be shifted to Broadway, New York city, upon the opening of the theatrical season next fall.

"Mr. Aladdin" was produced with the assistance of W. H. Clifford, chief scenario writer for the film company. It is Mr. Inch's first venture in the play writing line, as far as speaking productions are concerned, although he is the author of more than 200 produced photo plays.

The cast at the Los Angeles opening was a notable one. Florence Malone played on Broadway in "The Talker," headed by feminine contingent, aided by Aileen Flavin, who has played in Belasco's "The Lily" and many plays at the Lyric Theatre, New York city, under the opening of the theatrical season next fall.

"Mr. Aladdin" was produced with the assistance of W. H. Clifford, chief scenario writer for the film company. It is Mr. Inch's first venture in the play writing line, as far as speaking productions are concerned, although he is the author of more than 200 produced photo plays.

VILLA'S SHARPSHOOTERS IN AN OUTPOST FIGHT

Cemetery Hill, where the bloodiest fighting of the Torreón-Saltillo campaign in Villa's war against Huerta took place, is shown here while a hot outpost fight is going on. The site got its name from the number of soldiers killed in the various engagements fought here in the Madero-Diaz and the Villa-Huerta revolutions.

Cemetery Hill is located just outside of San Pedro. It was here that Villa trained his fine French artillery on the federal forces under Velasco, ending in the capture of Torreón by the Constitutionals.

The loss of life in the fighting around Cemetery Hill was extremely heavy in these ten days of fighting. The illustration is one of the most remarkable war photographs ever taken. It shows one of Villa's outposts "picking up" the federalists. In the center foreground is a dying Constitutionalist, his body just falling in the death throes. Around are wounded and dead, and the dreary setting is itself one of death and death's abodes.

Exclusive motion pictures of these battles were taken by Mutual camera men who worked under the special sanction of General Villa, himself a partner of the Mutual Film Corporation in this wonderful war film. It has just been put on at the Lyric Theatre, the big Shubert house in New York, in seven reels, under the title, "The Life of Villa."

HOLIDAY PICTURES FOR THE GEM THEATRE

For the holiday at the Gem Theatre a terrific bill has been arranged to begin at 1:30 o'clock with an Essanay drama "L. N. No Man Escapee" as the feature of leading interest, supplemented by other entertaining, spectacular features and a pleasing programme by the orchestra. The Essanay feature is in two parts and deals with a young man wrongfully accused of a crime and made to suffer by exile from his friends thereby. He removes to new territory in the west where he makes a name for himself, and where he and his daughter are living happily until the man who has caused him trouble arrives. Then it is that the efficiency of the police net is shown, and a remarkably strong story is heard of true love, and a fascinating climax.

For the mid-week show the Selig-Hearst news pictorial will be featured in a list of current events. There will also be shown a Selig drama of submerged society in New York, the story of a young Irish-American girl and her adventures in the heart of a big city. It is entitled "The Salvation of Nance O'Shaughnessy," and as the same implies shows how she was brought to the right path from what would have been a life of degradation. It displays the force of true love, for into her life came a young country lad by whose influence she was eventually turned from the dance hall and caused to see things in a better light.

The week-end bill will have another of the Marx-Mercant series, "The Man Who Disappeared" by the Edison Co., entitled "The Haunted Animal," which is replete with exciting adventures. This is the second in this series which is being given in collaboration with the Popular Magazine. In this feature one of the most thrilling scenes is where Perriton, supposed criminal, shot at by a detective falls overboard from his skiff and swims for his life. Though handcuffed, he escapes, and breaks the handcuff chain by lying along a railway track and letting an engine crash it.

Actors Win The Scribes on the North End diamond yesterday before the biggest crowd of the season.

The game was a good exhibition on the part of the Actors. The match was the second in a series of three. Each team has won one and the next one will likely be played next Friday afternoon to decide on the supper, which the losers will provide.

"Doc" McCullough and Thomas Burns of the Royal Hotel were the umpire and their work was all that is desired. Seven innings were played.

Weak, Nervous Condition After Baby's Birth

Tried Tonics, and Doctor's Medicine in Vau, and Found in Dr. Chase's Nerve Food the Means of Restoring Health and Vigor.

The womanly system calls for an abundant supply of rich, red blood. As related in this letter, many a woman finds after the birth of her child, that her system is entirely run down, and for lack of red blood she is unable to regain strength and to supply proper nourishment to her baby.

Dr. Chase's Nerve Food taken in moderate doses has proven a great blessing under these circumstances. It sharpens the appetite, restores digestion, and gradually and certainly rebuilds the wasted system. Being mild and gentle in action, this Food cure does not upset the natural functions of the bodily organs, but certainly insures their healthful working.

WAS POPULAR ON THE STAGE YEARS AGO

Jennie Lee, an actress well known to theatre goers of twenty-five years ago, was recently recognized by an old friend at the studios of the Reliance and Majestic concern at Hollywood, Cal. Miss Lee made a great hit a quarter of a century ago as Little Joe in the dramatization of Charles Dickens' book "Bleak House."

A prominent California judge, who was visiting the studio, recognized the former stage favorite in an elderly woman who was playing a very small part for Director Edward Morrisey. He remembered having seen Miss Lee in "Bleak House" and when he questioned her she admitted her identity.
