

COMPLETELY FREE OF CONSTIPATION

Tried for Years to Find Relief

"FRUIT-A-TIVES" GAVE IT

Chronic Constipation or insufficient action of the bowels, is one of the great causes of disease. Some authorities even claim that Constipation cannot be permanently corrected. This is a great mistake, because here is the proof that constipation can be cured and the bowels made to act regularly and naturally.

YARMOUTH, N.S.

"For years, I was troubled with Constipation, and had to take laxatives and purgatives all the time. If I neglected to take these, the bowels would refuse to do their work."

About two years ago, a friend advised me to try "Fruit-a-tives", which I did. The first box helped me so much that I obtained further supplies of the remedy and continued the treatment. After using about eight boxes, my bowels were able to perform their particular function without aid.

The relief in my case has been lasting, as up to date, I have never had any further trouble. I can recommend "Fruit-a-tives" to all suffering as I did and I am sure they will derive equal benefit."

A. W. FRANKLIN.

"Fruit-a-tives" are sold by all dealers at 50c a box, 6 for $2.50, trial size 25c., or sent postpaid by Fruit-a-tives Limited, Ottawa, Ont.

Singing Band Coming

A keen observer says Ralph Dunbar is surely an innovator, for he did the "impossible" when he produced "The Nine White Hussars," who will appear at the Chautauqua. He developed the highest possibilities in band music with nine, just nine—not five times that many—men. Of course, he secured young men of musical ability, and best of all, with real personalities. To do this would have been an achievement, but to find men who really sing well, and also are artists at playing the necessary band instruments, was a master stroke in the organizing of musical forces.

The point is, it was done; and the Hussars, now eight years old, are one of the most talked of musical organizations in America today. They have appeared during the past season in every important American city.

Their engagement means plenty of real band music, that is as if a Sousa or a Santelmann were wielding his baton over half a hundred players. It means unusual ensemble singing—splendid timbre, shading, studied tone, quality, real artistry. It means occasional solos that really get somewhere, are not just endured but enjoyed. It means some clean, clever fun that will bring a laugh from the kindergarten on the front row to the grown-ups further back, and all between. In short, it's worth while.

Backache

Backache is the outstanding symptom of kidney disease. Women often make the mistake of attributing other causes and overlook the derangement of the kidneys until serious developments have made it difficult to obtain permanent relief.

This letter points to a treatment which has been so thoroughly tried and proven so effective in the great majority of cases that you cannot afford to overlook it when cause arises for its use.

Mrs. Albert Brunet, R.R. No. 1, Ottawa, Ont., writes:

"I have used Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills for the past two months, having been afflicted with kidney trouble. I used two doctors' medicine previous to this, without any good results. A friend told me to use Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills, and the second box made me feel a good deal better. I have now used about six or eight boxes, and am completely relieved."

BATH STILL IN THE LEAD

On Wednesday evening, July 19 the Village of Bath was again the centre of attraction. The reason and cause was the unveiling and dedication of a practical and useful Soldiers' Memorial. The Kent and Wicklow Soldiers Memorial is somewhat different to the usual form of public monument, in that the concrete base is fitted with an automatic waste-preventing water supply, for man and beast. On this stands a polished granite monument, on which, in two parallel columns, stands out in bold relief the names of the twenty four men from the Parishes of Kent and Wicklow, who died for Home and Country in the Great War of 1914-1919.

Superimposed on this is another piece of granite on which a symbolic design is carved—crossed guns and laurel wreaths—signifying that through the gates of death they gained the victors crown; and though the entrance fee was high, it gained for them initiation into the glorious company of those immortals, who through all the ages, have fought, bled and died, so that freedom, truth and justice should not perish from the earth.

Bath honors itself by thus erecting in respectful and grateful memory of those who helped to make the blessings of peace possible, this unique Memorial to the dead which supplies a vital necessity of the living, to the greatest good of the greatest possible number. Owing to the heavy showers, part of the program was abandoned.

We regret that the base ball game was not carried out, for the reason stated. Nevertheless the other important events were carried through. Just before 7 p.m. a procession was formed, headed by a band of young girls in charge of Women's Institute, which paraded to the speakers stand on Main Street, where a very large audience was assembled to hear a number of speeches by prominent public speakers.

The proceedings opened with the choir singing "O Canada." A letter was then read regretting the inability of Rev. W. M. Donohoe of Johnville to be present, but the message breath a spirit of devotion to the principles of justice and right for which our men went forth to win. Enclosed was a donation which we are glad to acknowledge.

After which Misses DeMerchant and Davenport performed the ceremony of unveiling, with some idea of the meaning of the act.

Then followed an eloquent address by Rev. C. O. Howlett, formerly of Bath, but now residing in Victoria County. The hymn "Lead Kindly Light" was sung, after which Rev. Mr. Wasson invoked the blessing of the Almighty Father of all. Then another address by Rev. Mr. Chown of Florenceville. "In Flanders Field" was the next item, splendidly recited by Jackson Giberson. Then followed in succession, able, earnest and patriotic addresses by T. W. Caldwell, M. P., P. C. L. Ketchum, Hon. J. K. Flemming and Charles F. Gallagher.

It was plainly evident that the spirit of patriotism is not dead in this section. On the contrary, it is very much alive and ready to burst into flame, at the first sign of aggression on the part of any nation which dares to test it.

The memorial service closed with the presentation by the chairman to J. N. Drost, G. W. Perry and Hugh G. Tweedie of the title deed to the land and premises on which the Memorial stands, to be held by them and their successors in office, forever, in trust always, for the perpetual use and enjoyment of the public.

While this was being done a silent tribute to the memory of our dead was placed on the monument—a wreath contributed by Mrs. Gideon Gray, the wife of a returned man.

The National Anthem was then heartily sung by the audience. This event will long be remembered as one of the most important in the history of Carleton County.

While the public Memorial service was in charge of the Finance Committee, the entertainment at Brennan's Hall later in the evening was in the charge of the Women's Institute, the members of which co-operating with us in providing sufficient funds to pay the expenses incurred in the erection of the Memorial. The children of the Village of Bath, dressed in the patriotic colors, red, white and blue, marched from the Monument to the Hall, followed by a vast crowd.

While the audience gathered, the Summerfield Orchestra played several selections.

The first number on the program was the Glenagarry Flag Drill nicely done by nine little girls.

Then the ladies of the Women's Institute presented the play "The Old Maid's Convention" to a house filled to its capacity.

As the players went forth all the efforts in their power to please, the audience responded by enthusiastic applause and generous donations.

Credit is due both to the players and to the Summerfield Orchestra, for the excellency of their performance. At ter the sparkling comedy was over, then came the Basket Social, and the eyes of the ladies sparkled when the baskets were eagerly bought up by the hungry bachelors and others present. When the contents were properly disposed of, all went their several ways, well content.

We are pleased to announce to all that the financial results is that the proceeds amounted to the satisfactory sum of Two Hundred and Two Dollars and seventy cents, which enables us to further announce that we will be able to present the memorial to the public, for their use and enjoyment forever, free of debt, together with the land on which it is erected.

Our sincere thanks are tendered to all who helped us on this occasion.—W. H. B.

In addition to the above The Observer has received the following:

"I am aware that W. H. Bramley is sending you in a report of the Soldiers' Memorial unveiling event of last Wednesday for your paper to print. The report is good but I would like to add that it does not do half justice to W. H. Bramley's own part in the transaction. Mr. Bramley has been head and shoulders to the whole matter, even in its origin three years ago. He has patiently and patriotically kept pounding the way to the final glorious finish and whatever glory in the affair which might not be entirely absorbed by the names of the dead heroes on the monument should be reflected in the halo which this community owes to W. H. Bramley. He is all right!—M. E. Connors, M. D.

Do You Like Poetry? If You Don't You Will

Many people don't like poetry—or think they don't. Of course, there's a reason for what they think they think—they haven't heard or read the right kind. And yet, if you ask the man in the street to tell you the names of any six pieces of literary composition which are a possession of his memory, it will be safe to wager that four of them are poetry.

There is poetry and poetry. Some of it is mere words, full of sound and fury, signifying nothing. But there is also some poetry, which puts into catching and striking and holding verse the little happenings and mis-happenings, the daily vexations and misadventures. Are you going to turn a contemptuous back on the kindly criticism and the gentle satire, the homely truth, the lesson that goes straight to the point, the wit and the wisdom, the fun and the earnest—because it rhymes?

But there is a man who is a master of this kind of expression, who sees all human things in all kinds of lights and relations that escape you, and knows how to put them into verse with a snap to it.

Edmund Vance Cooke. He sings songs for everybody, at all seasons and in all moods; always sound and wholesome, full of good, common sense, or brimming over with healthy fun; "Impertinent Poems" to prick our vanity and laugh us out of our dearest weaknesses—"Rimes to be Read" by everybody to their great pleasure and profit—tender love songs, poems for and about children, such as few poets have written or can write.

It is hard to say in which vein Mr. Cooke is at his best. You will have a chance to judge for yourself, for he will appear at the Chautauqua.

The two letters which follow clearly show the broad field covered by this well-known medicine. Women from every section—you know some in your own neighborhood—praise Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound as a wonderful medicine for troubles women often have.

From Prince Edward's Island—East

Miscouche, P. E. I.—"I had female troubles for two years. I always had a headache and a pain in my side and sometimes I felt so weak that I could not do my work. A friend advised me to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and I have taken six bottles of it. It has done me a lot of good and I am still taking it. I will tell my friends of your medicine and hope they will try it."—Mrs. CAMILLE DES ROCHE, Miscouche, P. E. I.

From Saskatchewan—West

Wadena, Saskatchewan—"A friend in Rose Valley recommended Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to me and it has been a great help to me. I recommend it and you can use this letter as a testimonial if you wish."—Mrs. PERCE NORDEN, Wadena, Saskatchewan.

Critic On Jubilees

Clay Smith, the well-known musical critic of Lyceum and Chautauqua circles, says this about Buckner's Dixie Jubilee Singers, who will be the last night attraction at the coming Chautauqua: "There is perhaps no name in the lyceum or chautauqua better known than 'Buckner'." In the old independent chautauqua days, no program was complete without a Jubilee Company. In those days 'Buckner's Dixie Jubilee' was the criterion for all such companies, and it remains so today. Year after year, they were returned to standard assemblies for a three or four day stay, just as regular as a meter reader, and were always looked forward to by a great majority as one of the big events. "Why, of course, we must have Mr. and Mrs. Buckner, with their plantation singers, for at least three of our days," was the common expression of committee men sparring with representatives for their next summer's program. It is because of this fact that I am going to let you know what a Real Jubilee Company consists of and how they are made. I want you to know what is back of these years of service. This company consists of seven high-grade vocalists, three women and four men, and it isn't a thrown together affair from season to season. It didn't just happen. Nothing worthwhile ever does. There is no race that has made the rapid strides in music in the short space of time and with such limited opportunities as the American Negro, and this, in spite of the great handicap they labor under. The Dixie Jubilee Singers have had only one change in the personnel in the past seven years. Is it any wonder their ensemble is noted for its perfect phrasing and blending? It takes years to get this teamwork in a company. I say with perfect understanding of the broadness of the statement that W. C. Buckner has done as much and possibly more for his race, musically, as any living member. Like his old friend, Paul Lawrence Dunbar, he is an artist, and is dead in earnest, and his whole life is wrapped up in his work. Some one has said: "The greatest single factor that goes to make success in any walk of life is the love and personal interest you have for your work." No one who has ever met Mr. and Mrs. Buckner can doubt their sincerity and singleness of purpose, and there is no one who has ever listened to their carefully planned and executed program but will immediately realize they are listening to the best. Yes, "Jubes" may come and "Jubes" may go, but the Dixies are a standing emulation of Tennyson's brook. We are all for you, Buck.

HARTLAND, N. B., JULY 28, 1922.

ANNOUNCEMENT

The Edmundston Observer was started on March 17 of this year under what appeared to be the brightest auspices. The entire population of the town seemed highly enthusiastic over the new paper and merchants readily agreed to guarantee sufficient support to warrant its up-keep for a year. During the first six weeks the advertising patronage averaged $100 per week, and many subscribers were secured. Practically the whole English-speaking population have enrolled as regular subscribers and there are many among the French population. But since the first of May there has been a heavy falling off of advertising, many merchants entirely disregarding their signed contracts.

The cost of producing the 18 issues of the paper that have been printed is right around $1,600, and to date the cash receipts have not come up to a total of $700. This cannot continue. If the people of Edmundston really want an English paper they must "pay the piper," who is the printer. Possibly they imagine the owner is reaping a more or less rich harvest from The Edmundston Observer, when in reality he has been contributing $50 per week to its support during the past 18 weeks. As a matter of fact the publisher has a big heart and is foolishly generously nature and therefore easily imposed on—until, often at a disastrously late moment, he discovers he is the "goat".

The publisher at the outset promised the people of Edmundston a fair deal. He believes he has given it—and quite reached the limit. During the present month and during June the advertising—the lifeblood of every newspaper—averaged $35 a week, and during June its cost of production was still $100 per week. In July an economy, which made the paper no less useful was put into effect that reduced the cost to $60 per week; but even this left a deficit of $20 a week—which is just that much more than the publisher can afford to lose.

We are indeed sorry to note the ephemeral quality of enthusiasm the people of the town possess, particularly when we view with dismay the state of our finances since the enterprise was started. First off, by the defection of a single employee, the publisher lost more than $1200. Add to this a deficit of $900 in operating expenses and the reason why we must announce still further retrenchment is readily arrived at.

The Observer has a circulation of about 500 copies weekly in Edmundston, but the reading matter that is prepared by its editor is also run in the Carleton Observer and the two papers have a combined circulation of 2500 copies weekly, and the two of them reach over the whole of Canada, into hundreds of other newspaper offices, hotels, to manufacturers, Boards of Trade, and hundreds of interested individual subscribers. Edmundston has been heard from in the past four months in such a way as it never has been before—and it will not soon again be heard from if, perforce, The Observer must make its exit.

A still further economy will be put in force with the first issue in August, we hope without in the least curtailing our service to the people, to be able to bring the cost of production down to the level of the revenue.

It may interest readers to know that at the Ottawa Convention The Edmundston Observer was adjudged the best-printed weekly paper in all Canada, and was acknowledged to be one of the best edited. The first statement is a compliment to The Observer Limited, which prints the paper, while the second compliment goes entirely to that versatile and all-round good parson-editor, the Rev. John Hardwick, who in every sense has the welfare of the town at heart. His work for The Observer is not in its quality the work of an amateur, but the real production of the born and trained and seasoned veteran journalist. It is sincerely hoped that the people of the town realize what his work is doing among and for them.

There are many conspicuous examples of steadfast support given The Observer by local business men; and their names are in plain type in this issue of the paper. We appreciate their efforts to maintain the paper and we thank them for it. Plainly they are the outstanding figures in the business life of the town.

In future all changes of ads for the Observer must be sent in on Tuesday, as the paper will hereafter be issued on Thursdays instead of Fridays. All news matter must likewise reach the printing office on Tuesdays.

C. Douglas Dickson, a former principal of the Hartland school was in town a few days last week. He is on his annual tour of inspection of school gardens and home plots.

During the past fortnight some fine salmon have been caught at Hartland pool. Probably the largest was one landed by Fred J. Boyer of Victoria early on Thursday morning.

The Observer regrets to report the demise of the Aroostook Daily News which has been published at Houlton during the last year or two. The last issue appeared on Friday. Insufficient revenue is ascribed the cause of its cessation of publication.

"The road on either side of the St. John river between Hartland and Florenceville is extremely bad, and our esteemed contemporary The Carleton Observer rightly is not backward in finding fault about it." Is the comment of the Fort Fairfield Review.

Rev. John Hardwick, editor of Edmundston Observer, was a recent guest of Fred H. Stevens. His reverence had heard of Hartland salmon pool and came equipped to capture one of the fish beauties. He tackled the job at 4.30 and succeeded in getting a fish of size.

John Emmerson left for Green River over a week ago on a fishing trip and returned on Tuesday. He reports catching over two hundred fish, some of them weighing up to four pounds. Mr. Emmerson said there is a great deal of game in the woods.

There is a false report current that Dr. Lockhart, who recently located here, is not a licensed practitioner. Not only is he licensed to practice medicine in this province but he has the honor, which is comparatively rare, of being able to practice medicine anywhere in the Dominion as he holds a Dominion license and Edmundston is an exceedingly lucky place to have the benefit of his learning and skill.

A party of young people left Edmundston on Sunday afternoon for St. Jacques where they had a very enjoyable picnic. The party consisted of the Misses Eva LeBlanc, Isabel LaChance, Eva Ringette, Stella Berube, Lucie Sirols, (Estcourt), Eva Belanger, Annie LaJoie, Mrs. Louis Dugal and Messrs. Felix Dugal, Fred LaChance, John LaJoie and J. B. Michaud and Louis Dugal, jr. Five automobiles carried the party. Supper was eaten on the grass and afterwards the young folks enjoyed themselves communing with nature until they returned at about 10.30 spending the rest of the evening at Mrs. L. A. Dugal's where another lunch was served before the party dispersed.

Mrs. Hunter and Mrs. Fred Simmons of Sheffield are visiting Mrs. T. J. Taylor.

Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Upton of Avondale visited Mrs. Watts Stickney several days last week. Mrs. Upton and family resided in Florenceville many years.

Thomas Boyer lost a valuable cow last week from eating paper bags that arsenate of lead had been taken to the field in.

Mr. Simms seems to think Carleton county has been used more than fair in the expenditure of money on our highway. We think if Mr. Simms would take a trip over some of our back roads he would certainly change his views. Yes even our river road from Florenceville to Simonds especially through Connell, is a disgrace and no hope for better under the present administration.

RICKETS

It's a fact little recognized that rickets in some degrees is one of the most prevalent diseases of childhood, and that it accounts for nearly all the irregularities of growth and development met with in later life—the bow legs, knock knees, bumpy foreheads, curved spines, etc., are all lasting tokens of this insidious blight. Children are attacked chiefly from the age of three months to three years more especially those children fed with artificial foods or cows milk. The disease is marked by deficiency of calcium in the bones, allowing them to bend easily. The cause of this deficiency is somewhat obscure but seems to be due to an inability to absorb fat and protein from milk.

The symptoms appear gradually somewhat as following: Head sweating, irritability, sleeplessness, constipation, paleness. There soon is added diffuse soreness of the whole body, weakness, soft flabby muscles. The child cries if taken up, and is hurt by every movement. The stomach protrudes and the lower half of the back curves backwards when the child gets up. On account of the weakness the child's head nods and the eyes are apt to show irregular jerking. The child cannot walk at the usual age of sixteen months. The teeth are very late in coming and irregular. The head looks "square". The breast bone protrudes. There is a transverse constriction just below the nipples due to the bending of the softened bones by the wall of the diaphragm.

At the junction of the ribs with the cartilage of the breast bone (an inch or two to either side of it) may be felt a row of lumps called the "rickety rosary". The ends of the arm and leg bones are enlarged and tender and when the disease has gotten under way bending begins to take place. Sometime the bones are fractured through ordinary handling. The disease is one of the chief causes of convulsions and spasmodic croup and frequently attended with bronchitis. It is thought that any prolonged period of indigestion by checking fat absorption may cause rickets, others have attributed the disease to lack of certain elements called vitamins.

Bad hygiene, overcrowding, lack of fresh air and sunlight predisposes to it. The disease is readily curable in three or four months by persistent treatment.

Treatment: The child should be kept in the fresh air day and night; a daily warm bath given in a warm room followed by dipping into cool water for a few moments. The muscles all over the body should be rubbed well, once a day for fifteen minutes. While the back is so weak the child must not be allowed to sit up as it causes increased curvature of the spine, neither should it stand or walk for several weeks after beginning treatment.

If the limbs are much curved manipulation and appliances may be used to arrest their deformity.

Feeding: The Mother should nurse the child if possible until the eleventh month. If necessary to use cows milk it should not be sterilized, but properly diluted and modified. At the age of six months, along with fresh cows milk diluted with one-third water, six ounces to the feeding, five times a day, add vegetable broths, and chicken broth, puree of spinach and carrots, orange juice, prune juice, apple sauce, tomato juice, all in small quantities of about one ounce to the feeding. Starchy foods are to be avoided as indicated above, because so frequently they cause indigestion. At one year of age give 1 1/2 pints of fresh milk daily with 3 oz. raw meat juice (1 part of water is added to four parts of finely chopped steak and after allowing to stand in a cool place for an hour the juice is expressed through a cloth.

Small amounts of oatmeal and wheat gruel are allowed, also eggs boiled 2 1/2 minutes in quantities proportionate to the child's age. To increase the amount of fat in the body cream is added to the feedings as much as the digestion will bear.

Of the drugs which have been used cod liver oil is the one which is of proven usefulness. It may be given plain or as an emulsion or mixed with malt extract in the proportion of one to four and should the oil cause diarrhoea, it may be given with twice the quantity of lime water. The dose of oil for child of 1 year is twenty drops, three times a day after food. In very severe cases phosphorus is of value, but its administration must be under medical supervision.

Also in certain very anemic cases appropriate preparations of iron are of benefit as well as other tonics. Certain of the more serious complications require more or less complex medical or surgical measures not here indicated.

Ralph Dunbar's Bell Ringers

It is doubtful if any musical feature has ever been presented to the American public which has won greater favor or obtained a wider following than that of musical bell-ringing. The art was brought to America first in the forties by the late P. T. Barnum. While touring England, he heard a group of a dozen church bell-ringers practicing upon hand bells, and he conceived the idea of using a larger peal of bells and playing more elaborate music. These bells were made in England, as the world's best bells always have been; but in conformity with his unflinching originality as an advertiser, he dressed the players, both men and women, in the costumes of Swiss peasants, and called the company "The Swiss Bell Ringers." For many years this company toured the United States in wagons before railroads were at all general. The art at that time was so successful that our grandfathers recall most vividly the visit of the Swiss Bell Ringers to their native towns.

It seems that thereafter the art fell into disuse, and it was not really perfected or revived in any worthy way until 1898, when Ralph Dunbar and his brother founded the famous Dunbar Bell Ringers at St. Joseph, Mo. These brothers went to Europe, and, seeing the really artistic possibilities, they went to England and had made under their personal supervision a peal of 200 bells, which are undoubtedly the most complete and most perfect set of bells which were ever cast. These bells were made under their own personal supervision by the same bell founders that cast the great bells of Westminster Abbey and St. Paul's Cathedral in London, as well as practically all of the well-known church bells of the world. The peal embraces more than five octaves chromatic, and through the middle register there are as many as six bells of the same note. The voice of the Dunbar Bell Ringers is the most notable of any similar company which has appeared on the American concert platform. They gave more than 2800 concerts up to 1912, when both Harry and Ralph Dunbar resigned their places in the quartet to others. The company up to then had traveled 490,000 miles in America and Europe. The Dunbar brothers have collected hundreds of pages of newspaper, material published regarding their tours, but the patrons of this Chautauqua system are sufficiently familiar with this widely known concert company to recall the marvelous musical effects which this quartet of players obtains from this splendid peal of bells.

It may be interesting to know that the largest of these bells weighs twenty-five pounds and measures sixteen inches in diameter. The size of those proceeding upward in the scale, diminishing until the tiny bells of the upper registers are reached. In selecting the repertoire due attention is paid to the selection of music which is really appropriate for bells. There is none of us but what has thought of the important place which bells play in our mental activities due to their association with so many epoch-marking events in our lives. Perhaps no contributor to our literature has so vividly brought out this fanciful use of bells as has Edgar Allan Poe in his poem entitled "The Bells."

The feature which characterizes the programs of the Dunbar Quartet is the absolute blending of their programs into the complete whole. There is a consistency in these programs which have distinguished them among all Chautauqua attractions of the last double decade. No feature will be remembered longer than the beautiful chimes and harmonies which are introduced in their sacred selections.

Two Musical Centuries In An Evening

The concert of the Great Lakes String Quartet at the Chautauqua will be vitally interesting, not merely when viewed from its absolute musical excellence, but, taken from a historical and educational standpoint it comprises an evening of rare enjoyment for the music lover as well as the layman.

During the course of the recital the listeners are transported through more than two centuries of musical development, beginning back in the days of the classic school—a period which may be said to represent the time of materialism and philosophy in music. Then is introduced that period of charm and poetry, the romantic school of the nineteenth century, when Schumann, Schubert and Mendelssohn gave to the world their immortal works.

One of the acknowledged works of a great master, representing a certain musical period, is performed on every program, which in the latter part includes compositions of the modern and futuristic school of today. In these latter is disclosed the trend toward tone coloring, painting, fantastic description and vivid impression.

Many of the quaint, old-fashioned and charming melodies with which we are all familiar have been arranged for the quartet of strings, demonstrating in a delightful manner the beauties of the four instruments.

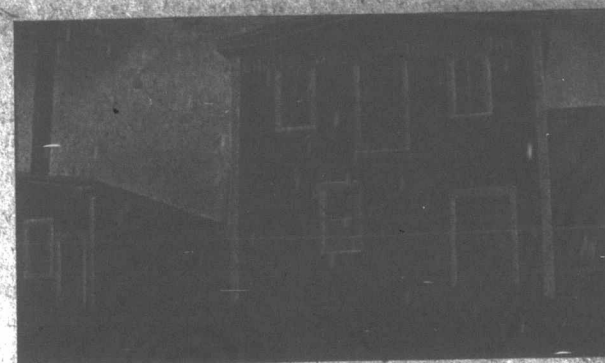

Although the program is of the highest artistic essence it is primarily planned to reach the heart of every one.

MCKENZIE SAYS IT PUT HIM ON THE JOB AGAIN

HALIFAX CITIZEN DECLARES
TANLAC ENTIRELY OVERCAME
STUBBORN STOMACH TROUBLE AND HELPED HIM MAKE BIG GAIN IN WEIGHT.

"Tanlac came to my rescue just in time for I was almost down and out from a case of stomach trouble of eight years standing," declared Richard McKenzie, 52 Longard Road, Halifax, N. S.

"My trouble started with indigestion. My food would turn sour in my stomach and hurt me so I had to go on a milk diet. I would bloat up with gas terribly and seemed to have inflammation of the stomach for I had an awful burning sensation just below my breast bone. I also suffered from a dull pain across my back that hurt me so at night that many times
I had to get up and pace the floor.
I fell off to one hundred and thirty-two pounds and got so weak I had to lay off from work eight months.

"But the way Tanlac pulled me around was amazing. I soon had a good appetite and haven't had a bit of indigestion or pains since. I now weigh one hundred and ninety and am on the job every day. I'll be glad to tell everybody what a fine medicine Tanlac is."

Tanlac is sold by all good druggists.

LUMBERING ON THE ST. JOHN RIVER, PAST AND PRESENT

By J. Fraser Gregory, President of Murray and Gregory Ltd.

The tendency of the times is to manufacture as close to the stump as possible, so in recent years one tributary after another has been dammed and manufacturing plants established so that logs no longer come into the main river where this is done. Over half a century ago Alex Gibson closed the Nashua. Since then the Madawaska, Becaguine, Arrostook, Big Madawaska and Fish Rivers have been closed. Only a portion of the cut from the Tobique comes into the main river and it would have been closed if it were not a salmon spawning ground for the bills authorizing the building of a great dam on this river have been introduced in the Legislature from time to time, but always thrown out by that body.

Conditions on the river are continuously getting harder, the cost of getting logs to St. John continuously going up, and year after year the quantity getting smaller. The time will come when no mills will exist in St. John.

Now let us get back to the booms. The shears at the booms skim everything that floats off the surface of the water and when the drives are in the whole cut of logs are jammed between the piers and the shore like nails in a keg mixed up with shingles, refuse from the mills up river, old trees and any culch that will float. To sort them out and raft them, each mark by itself so that they may be delivered to their owners, is quite a task. Each lumberman has filed with the Log Driving Company a list of his marks and the separations he wants.

From the statements the mark book is compiled and carefully studied by the catch markers, who must be young active men with experience, and to whom is entrusted the work of remarking the logs with a marking iron with marks that will designate into what joints they are to be put.

The sorting works consist of two long flat booms, say one quarter of a mile, on which men can travel, arranged parallel with the bank of the river, say 40 or 50 feet apart, and at the down river end narrowing for a considerable distance to about 40 or 50 feet spanned by foot bridges at intervals. At the lower end the loading machine is placed.

Now we will go back to the boom full of logs. Between two jam piers or just below a taut line is stretched four or five feet from the water and forty or fifty feet along, above and below it at a convenient distance, stages are arranged from which the logs can be easily poled along. The catch markers stand on the moving logs that are being sorted, turning them over with their calked boots, their left arm over the taut rope to prevent their falling into the water. In their right hand they hold their marking iron. Immediately they see the woods mark they stoop down and cut in it with their iron a new fresh mark and that is quickly made and designates where it goes.

Along the long flat booms that I have mentioned men are stationed at intervals called "hitchers" who watch the logs coming past them and pick out the logs with the catch mark they have orders to look after, drawing them in sideways to the boom they are standing on. With a mall, a wooden wedge is driven into the log about the middle. A small line is fastened to the boom and hitched to the wedge, a second log outside the first, then a third and so on until about 40 lie orderly side by side, a small line holding them together and in their place.

Marks that are running thick are hitched close to the sorting gap and farther down, the marks that are not so frequent. As the logs run down this quarter mile stretch that I have mentioned they get fewer and fewer and by the time they get to the end, all the logs are sorted. Probably there may be a stray mark for which no provision is made among the hitchers. This would run in to the grab all to be assorted later. The culch passes on through the works, being hurried as quickly as possible by the men. As soon as thirty or forty logs (enough for a joint) have been hitched they are cast off from the boom and they are allowed to float down to the bottom markers. Here two men quickly drag two boom poles 25 to 30 feet long across the hitched logs, one at each end and as far as they will go, which will be five or six short of the whole number on the line. Immediately the poles are cut off an even length and long auger holes are bored through the boom poles and into the log below; then hardwood pins are driven through the pole and into the log, tying them together. As soon as this is complete they pass to the next crew who quickly take off the line and in the water is a complete bottom with five or six loose logs of the same mark beside it. On they go to the loader.

The loader is the machine used to put the tier of logs on the joint above the boom poles, called the riggers.

donkey-engine on a scow securely moored alongside the boom does the work. From a high pile at the end of the scow a wire cable leads to the shore with a pretty sharp down grade. On this cable is mounted a travelling block that is attached to the drum of the engine by a line that will haul it up the grade. On the opposite side two chains are fastened, the ends being secured to a float with an apron on one side, anchored securely in the channel down which the bottom is coming. The bottom is pushed to the side of the float under the apron that extends well out over the joint, the block is let go from the drum, it slides down the inclined wire until it and the chains are submerged. The loose logs that are to be the riggers are pushed to the side of the submerged chains. Immediately the engine is started pulling up the running block and rolling the logs over the float and apron into the bottom in the chain parbuckle. Men with peevies straighten out the logs to evenly distribute the weight and the joint is complete.

It is now scaled or measured. The length of each piece is measured, the diameter at the top taken and from a table authorized by the Government the superficial feet are made up. The number of the joint and the number of the pieces in it are cut in with a marking iron.

The rafting is now complete as far as the Log Driving Company is concerned and the freighter takes charge of it.

In addition to the logs that come through the booms, many logs are rafted by farmers along the river as they pass their homes and run to Springhill where the Log Driving Company pays for the rafting and hands them over to the freighters. Springhill is also the market for bank logs cut above Fredericton, that is, logs that have been cut by farmers along the river, rafted at the landings and run to Springhill for sale.

In the logs coming through the booms are quite a number of logs that have no mark, or the marks have been obliterated by pounding on the rocks coming down river that they cannot be read. These logs are rafted together, sold at public auction and the proceeds divided pro rata among the operators having logs in the boom.

Before the days of steamboats, logs, stumps and timber were brought down the river by hand, the men propelling the rafts by scull-oars and logs sweeps. They tented on the rafts and cooked on them. Their progress was slow, for they had to tie up if there was any head wind, and in the Reach they could not work their rafts against the flood tide.

Steamboats have been in use for towing on the river ever since the formation of the Boom Company and probably a few years before. It is the duty of the freighter to take the single joints from the boom, bracket them into the large rafts you see on the river in the summer, and deliver them to the mills at Indiantown, St. John, or to the holding booms there. Since the very beginning of freighting with steamers the Glasiers and Tapleys have been identified with it. It was begun by Duncan Glasier, his first steamer being named "The Transit", a small boat that was built and operated for a short time in St. John as a ferry, but on account of the difficulty there was in starting and stopping the boat she was not a success and was chartered or purchased by the Glasiers. The second boat owned by the Glasiers was named the "Taratine" and I understand that some portions of her engines are still in use in the tug Lilly, of the Glasier fleet.

Six or seven years later David Tapley went into business with the steamer "Magnet". In 1868 he was succeeded by the firm of Tapley Bros. who previously had been only surveyors and care takers of lumber. They combined the freighting of the lumber with the business they then had. Up to the present time all the towing of the booms had been done by these two firms, although the pioneers and founders of the firms have passed away.

(Next week, how the expression of "The Main John Glasier" came into being.)
