tended to show that the recent_riots here and other places were partly due to political intrigues. Agents of the Government were investigating this charge, and if their inquiries proved it to be well founded, the secret intriguers would have to answer for the lives lost in the recent religious riots. Four thousand pamphlets of an incendiary character were recently selzed in Bombay. Four thousand pamphlets of an incendiary character were recently seized in Bombay. The Pioneer, of Alahabad, an influential paper, says that the leaders of the agitators are spreading broadcast literature urging the natives to rise against their enemies, who have so long abused them. These pamphlets are having marked effect upon the ignorant Hindoos, and as they have been circulated in most of the provinces of India, the danger of a widespread rising cannot be over-estimated. It warns the Government, unless every precaution is taken at once to prevent the spread of the agitation, which can be done only by the seizure of the leaders, the country will suddenly witness a convulsion, in comparison

In the meantime Baron Halsbury, Baron Herschel, Baron Monkswell and the Bishop of Ripon had spoken to half empty benches. After 9 o'clock the scene outside and inside the House livened up as members and visitors began streaming in. The peeresses, strangers' and diplomatic galleries showed few vacant seats. Conspicuously occupying a portion of the area of the House were 22 bishops attired in their capacious robes with lawn sleeves. The Archbishop of Canterbury, the Bishop of London, the Bishop of Oxford and every notable church dignitary were present. Members of the House of Commons crowded the accesses and standing room around the throne.

The debate in the House reached the accessed dullness in the Earl of Morley's maundering against the bill. A number of other peers were on the roll to speak, but a sense of weariness affected them as well as the House garants the bill. He said he felt that there was some satisfaction in occupying the position he occupied as that of the last person to speak against home rule in the course of the present session. But although it was a position of much distinction it had many inconveniences. In particular the ground of debate had been so fully occupied that there was little new left for him to say. Throughout the debate the question constantly present in his mind was why had the Government introduced such a bill? On this point the was why had the Government intro-duced such a bill? On this point the denly witness a convulsion, in comparison with which the serious riots at Bombay, Rangeon and Azimgurn will sink into Instruction in the significance. There is yet time, the paper says, to check the growing danger, but immediate action is imperative.

Fierce Rioting by Miners.

In Mansfield, near Nottingham, hardly less apprehension is felt. A force of dragoons and infantry marched into Dewsburg late this afternoon. The magistrates throughout the district have called for troops.

At Hartley a magistrate was stoned and badly bruised while reading the Riot Act. Many firemen and police who tried to drive back the strikers were cut and bruised. In the neighborhood of Wakefield, west riding of Yorkshire, the mine owners are panic-stricken. Last night the strikers went from pit to pit, wrecking buildings, and often setting fire to the wrecks. The damage done amounts to thousands of pounds. had hated England. Lord Salisbury reminded the House of the opinion the country held before this terrible change occurred when the Liberal party was solely in the hands of deserters. Then, he said, however much they might have disagreed on local and internal questions, he felt sure that on all imperial questions their hearts had beaten true to the empire, as had the hearts of the Conservatives. Meaculay, when he sat with the Conservatives—(laughter)—had said that they would regard the repeal of the union as fatal to the empire, and would never consent to it. If England had told their lordships that she wanted this horror the case might have been different, but he believed that to be impossible. As long as England wastraetoherself she would never allow this atroclous, this mean, this treacherous revolution. Their lordships would be untrue to the duty devolved upon them from a splendid ancestry and untrue to their highest traditions if they failed to reject the bill.

The Lord Chancellor then put the motion or the second reading of the bill. He caused some morriment by crying, "I think the 'contents' have it." A BONAPARTE DEAD.

An American Nephew of the Great Napoleon.

Remantic History of His Parents— Yankee Cash Came in Handy.

Boston, Mass. Sept. 8.—Col. Jerome Bonaparte, the well-known American and French army officer, and a grand-nephew of the great Napoleon, who died the other day at Beverly Farms, was a member of the famous so-called "American branch" of the famous so-called "American branch of the historic Bonapart family of France, his grandfather, Jerome, the younger brother of the great Napoleon, having married Miss Elizabeth Patterson, the daughter of a wealthy Baltimore merchant, Dec. 24, 1803. Jerome was the commander of a French warship and was on a visit to Baltimore at the time when he first met and became enamored of the American belie, who was a woman of great beauty. The marriage was opposed by her parents as well as by the Emperor, the bridegroom's brother, who, although unable to prevent it, was so enraged at a Bonaparte contracting a plebeian union, he ordered that the young wife should not be permitted to set foot on the soil of France. Jerome seems to have been greatly attached to his wife, and for a leng time to have resolved to give up all hope of perferment under the Empire in order that he hight live with her. But the Emperor was obdurate, and finally conquered, in this matter as in others, so that a divorce was at length obtained, though the French Senate had already decreed that Jerome's American marriage was null.

Meantime a son had been born to the bouple, July 7, 1805, named Jerome Napoleon Bonaparte. After the separation his mother, with theehild in arms, returned to America. Young Jerome Napoleon Bonaparte grew up, graduated at West Point in 1848, and in 1854 went to France, where his kinsman, then on the throne, commissioned him a major of dragoons and he served in the Grimean war. While in Europe he met Mrs. Leroy Edgar, who had been left at 26 a widow/with $1,000.000, and married her. She was a granddaughter of Daniel Webster, her father being W. H. Russell, a wealthy New York merchant.

In 1854 Colonel Bonaparte's father, the In 1854 Colonel Bonaparte's father, the second Jerome, was presented with a certificate by the Napoleon then on the throne, certifying that the Patterson marriage was legal, and that Jerome Bonaparte should be "reintegre dans la qualitation and been married a second time to the daughter of the King of Wartemberg. He protested that his American marriage was presently null, but to no avail. In 1855 a consell defamille decided that the American seil de famille decided that the American seel the famille decided that the American seel the famille decided that the American seep the right of succession.

Bonaparte had been for many years a summer resident of Newport, where, with his handsome and striking figure and beering, and his equipages with imperial crest, he always attracted marked attention, This season his cottage "Harrison House" is leased and occupied by Sir Julian Pauncefote, British ambassador, and family.

Pasha's Death Discredited.
Chicago, Sept. 8.—Dr. Carl Peters, the African explorer and German commissioner to East Africa, who has been in the city for several days, last night saw the dispatch announcing the report brought from Ujiji by the Rev. Mr. Swann of the decapitation of Emin Pasha by the Arabs and the eating of his body by caunibals. Dr. Peters was the last white man to see Emin. He met him in 1890 near the Victoria Nyanza, when Emin started on his northwestern route through Africa to the west coast.

"I am not ready to accept the report of Emin Pasha's death," said Dr. Peters.
"Mr. Swann's account differs from the previous ones in that it professes to give details, but to my mind that is no evidence. Since I left Africa last May, which would be about the time that Mr. Swann left Ujiji for the coast, authoritative information had been received that Emin was living peaceably with the Arabs on the borders of the Congo country, avaiting supplies and money to discharge his obligations and return to the coast. The only thing in Mr. Swann's interview that would confirm the report is the fact that Emin is in the Manyema country, and the Manyema are cannibals." in the Manyema country, and the Manyemas are cannibals."

-A motion in favor of compulsory voting in all elections was adopted unanimously at Montreal by the Dominion Trades and Labor Council. The ADVERTISER has long contended that nothing would do more to reduce the corruption that so often attends the "getting out of the vote." There is another argument, as given by the wage-earners of Belgium, namely, that a law making voting obligatory would prevent hostile employers refusing permission and opportunity to

-At the recent meeting of the Pan-American Medical Congress in Washington, Dr. Bryce, secretary of the Ontario Board of Health, read an able and exhaustive paper on diphtheria, tracing the history of the disease. The disease, he said, is due to a bacillus or germ. His conclusions are: First, that diphtheria is an intensely infectious disease. Second, that a mild case in one may lead to a virulent case in another. Third, that air and sunshine have a direct effect on the disease. Fourth, diphtheria generally attacks children under 10 years of age. Fifth, the germs of diphtheria have a capacity for prolonge d existence. Sixth, in free air and sunshine the germs lose their virulence, and in a few weeks cease to be dangerous. Seventh, warmth and moisture assist in keeping the germs alive. Heads of families who bear in mind these facts can do a great deal to prevent an outbreak of the dreaded disease in their households.

RC SEBERY ON "THE CHAMBER OF DEATH."

Lord Rosebery woke up the House of Lords Thursday by a rattling attack on their E arlships. He pointed out that the House of Lords had resisted every previous measure of reform, just as they now opre for Ireland. They sed a le scal legis had talke I about "rash experiments," as in this case, i u connection with every progressive propos al of the past. They called the present bil \ "a leap in the dark." He would call it "a leap in the light"-a leap toward the r econcilitation of two nations too long divio ed. The House of Lords had decided in at lvance to oppose the Home Rule Bill. Th eir discussions were unreal and academic. With stinging epigram, long to be remember ed, he said the House of Lords could not be called a legislative dis secting room so justly as it could be called a Chamber of Douth. This powerful arraignment is only too well deserved by the Upper House of Great Britain, while it is significant of Mr. Gladstone's and Lord Rosebery's intention of making the issue between democracy and unjust privilege a straight fight to the

The House of Lords is essentially prejudiced and retrogred sive, as is shown by the fact that it is to'n to one Tory. So reactionary is its very atmosphere, that a considerable number of those made peers by the Liberals always become reactionaries within a year or two after their entrance into the political Chamber of

The House of Lords should be made elective, or swept out of existence altogether. What can be a greater absurdity than a House of Parliament irresponsible and unrepresentative! Think of some youthful lonkey, with hardly brains enough to train his hair to hide his ears, allowed to thwart the legislation of a Gladstone, a Bright, or a Cobden, merely because the young lordling ts the foolish first son of a father equally coolish! If by accident some of the Lords tre wise, which no doubt is the case, the principle of hereditary and irresponsible tegislators is still at war with common LESSONS FROM NEIGHBORS. The financial flurry in the United States, which has unsettled business and injured industry to a considerable extent, was undoubtedly brought about from a variety of causes, all of which might have been avoided if an ideal system of managing public and private business had been pursued. First in importance in the list of handicapping influences is the money question. Our neighbors have tried to purchase silver bullion and to coin and keep it in circulation at a price greater than its intrinsic value in the markets of the world. They have failed. Then their system of banking is not elastic enough, and it cannot stand keen fluctations in business. The lack of confidence which the silver crisis and the poor banking system engendered undoubtedly brought matters to a head These problems will demand a fair settlement before confidence is fully restored in the neighboring Republic. But Mr. Erastus Wiman, the well-knows writer on industrial and financial problems, in the Canadian Magazine for this month, goes beyond these causes, and confesses that the United States is to-day suffering from a "protective" system of collection of public revenues. The machinery of a great internal commerce has been thrown out of gear. The cities have been enabled to grow at the expense of the country, and not, which is the case in Great Britain, as the result of free trade relations with the whole world. This disparity in growth is comething phenomenal. In the last ten years the growth in cities has been 60 per cent., while the growth of the population of farmers is only 15 per cent. This inequality in growth would seriously disturb supply and demand even if it were the result of natural laws. But Mr. Wiman points out that the rapid growth of the cities has been at the expense of the country, and that this favoritism has so disturbed the mutuality of interests essential to prosperity as to make it impossible to maintain commerce in a healthy condition.

The fact that a vast pational debt, amounting to nearly three thousand millions of dollars, arising out of the late war, had to be paid justified a heavy import tax, Mr. Wiman argues; but whether the country ever really paid the debt, or whether it was simply shifted from the shoulders of the Government to the shoulders of the farmers and miners of the country, is in some minds an open question. The greater misfortune, Mr. Wiman confesses, lies in the fact that the taxation necessary for the payment of this debt was much augmented by the Government enforcing a discrimination in favor of one class as against another, and especially stimulating one class of industry at the expense of another, so that in addition to raising by taxation, within a very brief period, all that was necessary to liquidating the vast indebtedness arising out of the the war, there has been contributed by taxation of one class an immense sum, not for the government, but for the benefit of another class. It so happens that the few in the city and not the many in the country have profited, hence the unequal conditions and incidental troubles that have reacted on the workers in the city to such an extent that a demand is now made all along the line for a change. Mr. Wiman's conclusions are worth recording in full. He says: "But a new and improved condition is about to prevail in the United States. The acute intelligence of this great people has already apprehended the mistaken policy of isolation from the rest of the world, and especially the evils resulting from a pater-nalism in a government never created nalism in a government never created for the purpose of favoring one class at the cost of another. The existing unfortunate collapse shows how impossible it is to get rich by taxation, and it is clear that never again can any party control the policy of the country, whose claim to power is based on taxation, unnecessary, unjust and impolitic. As soon as the temporary trouble arising out of the silver situation is adjusted, as it will speedily be, the djusted, as it will speedily be, uestion of a new scheme of texation question of a new scheme of taxation will occupy a Congress especially created by a mighty mandate from the people for that purpose. The existing financial trouble will not have been in vain if a lesson is taught that nations of the world are as dependent on each other as are individuals, and that selfishness, favoritism and paternalism are inconsistent in a free country, where equal opportunity and an even chance with all opportunity and an even chance with al the world is the essential element of suc-cess and safety."

There was some excuse for the United States over-taxing its people in order to pay off a great national debt. But what shall be said of a Canadian Government which has enormously added to the taxation of the people while at the same time it has piled up the national debt to a stupendous height? Our people cannot too soon learn from the experience of the United States, as well as from their own, that class taxation is ever injurious to the great mass of the people, and that it must be reformed off the statute book, if the Dominion is to make real progress.

-And now the younger Tupper, of Ot tawa, is made a "Sir" because of his con nection with the disastrous Bering Se arbitration ! The elder Tupper, being paronet, his son in Winnipeg [will succeed him. There are now two Sir Tuppersfather and son. The elder Tupper is kicking to be made an earl. It is a question whether acceptance of political rewards from other countries is not calculated to make Canadians less Canadian and less trustworthy as defenders of Canadian rights. Should their acceptance be prohibited by legislation?

Opening of the Opera House Season-The Attraction a Good Cne-Large Attendance.

Attraction a Good One-Large Attendance.

The Grand Opera House threw open its doors last evening, inaugurating the season's business. The attraction was the well known drama, "Held in Slavery," which is making its first tour of Canada.
The attendance was very large in the two galleries, and from the long and continued applause that greeted the different specialties introduced it is certain that the efforts of the members of the company were thoroughly satisfactory.
The troupe is a large one and the production is enhanced by beautiful scenery.
The settings were realistic, especially the opening scene, that of a quay at Baton Rouge. The sail hoat in a storm and the burning of a building are clever pieces of stage mechanism. In the cast are some very competent people. Martin Hayden, the author and leading actor, although suffering from a cold, carried a difficult and very taking part through to perfection.
He was ably seconded by Chas. Robinson as Teddy. The eccentricities of Walter Hawley came in for a large share of applause. The specialties included dancing by the pickaninnies, Nip and Tuck, singing by the Harmonic Tric, and songs and THE CANADIAN CHAMPIONSHIP.
COMOURG, Sept. 8.—The best exhibition of baseball ever seen in Cobourg took place to-day in the first of the final games for the championship of Canada, between the Dukes of Toronto and the Cobourgs. It was a pitchers' game from start to finish, and the honors were evenly divided. At the end of the ninth inning neither side had scored, although the Dukes had the bases full in the seventh inning with no one out, but were unable to make a hit. With two of the Cobourgs out the Dukes went to pieces in the tenth inning. Successive errors by Chambers, Whelan and Benson allowed two of the Cobourgs to cress the plate.

applanse. The specialties included dancing by the pickanimies. Nip and Tuck, singing by the pickanimies, Nip and Tuck, singing by the Harmonic Trie, and songs and dances by Louise Courtney, Chas. Robinson and Walter Hawley. The dancing of Miss Courtney was encored several times.

The Grand looks bright and cheerful after its renovation. Manager Roote has completed his task of making improvements which are agreeably noticeable. The orchestra, under the direction of Mr. Fred L. Evans, rendered a programme of new selections. They had been in rehearsal for some time past and the audience certainly appreciated the really excellent music given. The Grand's orchestra will compare with any in Canada. The company will give a matinee and evening performance to-day. The prices for the matinee are 25 cents for adults and 15 cents for children. Popular prices are the rates for the evening.

Osborn's Sad End.

The body of Mr. Alfred Henry Osborn, who died in Eric, Penn., arrived in the city yesterday. Mr. Osborn left London don fourteen years ago. For some time he kept up a communication with his family defense Eight years since, however, each lost track of the other. Nothing was heard about the silent relative until the telegram, published in a recent issue of the ADVERTISER, was observed. His son, Mr. Albert Osborn, of London West, immediately left for Eric. There he ascertained the facts connected with his father's sad demise. Mr. Osborn, on taking up his residence in Eric some years ago, it appears, worked at his trade as a carpenter. He succeeded well, possessing from the start the confidence of his employers. Two weeks ago, while attempting to meunt an electric cart, he was seriously injured. From that time until the hour of death he never wholly recovered consciousness, and was therefore unable to speak of its relatives. Mr. Osborn came to Canada from the county of Kent, England, in 1868. Until the period of his departure for the States he worked for Messrs. Wright & Durand, this city. His wife, one daughter and five sons are yet living. Mrs. Osborn lives in London West, the woof the boys, Albert and Walter. William Dyson, Dundads street, is married to the daughter. Arthur Osborn, nother of the sons, is resident in Wingham, while the two of the boys, Albert and Walter. William Dyson, Dundads street, is married to the daughter. Arthur Osborn, another of the sons, is residence. London West, to Woodland Cemetery.

Captain Davenal noted for the first time the changing hue of her face, the troubled eye, the shrinking, timid manner. His mood changed to seriousness.

"Sara, what do you mean? Did I marry anybody before I went out, you ask? I mether married anybody nor promised marriage. I—Hellea! you don't meah i am about to have a case of breach of promised marriage. I—Hellea! you don't meah i am shout to have a case of breach of promise brought against me?"

The notion was so amusing to Captain Davenal that he burst into a laugh. Sara shock her head, and when his laugh had subsided she bent her cheek upon her hand, and related to him calmly and quitetly what had occurred. The captain was excessively amused; he could not be brought to regard the tale in any other light than as a joke.

"Catherine Wentworth!" he deliberated.
"I never heard the name before in my life, nover knew any one bearing it. Why, Sara, you do not mean to say this has seriously troubled you?"

"It has very seriously troubled me. At times, what with one dread and another, I seemed to have more upon me than I could bear. I had no one to whom I could tell the trouble and the doubt. I dared not write it to you, lest your wife should get hold of the letter."

Each succeeding day the symptoms grew worse, and the match was therfore declared off.

The spleen, according to physicians, is popularly supposed to be the seat of ill-nature. It is pronounced by some authorities to be the receptacle of all the impurities of the blood. The aucients believed it to be the source of langer, petulance and those passions to which the adjective "splenetic" has been applied. South American Medicine Company.

Gentlemen: I received a letter from you May 27, stating that you had heard of my wonderful recovery from a spell of sickness of six years duration, through the use of South American Nervine, and asking for my testimonial. I will gladly state how It was afflicted and how I was delivered from my pain and suffering. I was near thirty-five years old, when I took down with nervous prostration. Our family physician treated me, but without benefiting me in the least. My nervous system seemed to be entirely shattered, and I constantly had very severe shaking spells. In addition to this I would have vomiting spells, and there would be from eighteen to twenty days at a time that I could not retain anything on my stomach. Many consultations were held by physicians over my case, but they all agreed that I would never leave my bed. During the years I lay sick, my folks had an eminent physician from Dayton, Ohio, and two from spells like spasms, and would lie cold and stiff for a time after each. At last I lost the use of my body — could not rise from my bed or walk a step, and had to be lifted like a child; all the time suffering intense pain, and taking almost every known medicine. Part of the time I could read a little, and one day saw an advertisement of your medicine and concluded to try one bottle. By the time I had taken one and one-half bottles I could rise up and take a step or two by being helped, and after I had taken five bottles in all I felt real well. The shaking went away gradually, and I could eat and sleep good, and my friends could scarcely believe it was I. I am sure this medicine is the best in the world. It was a god-s nd to me, and I believe it saved my life. I give my name and address, so that if anyone doubts my statement they can write me, or our postmaster or any citizen, as all are acquainted with my case. I am mow forty-one years

PETERBORO, Ontario, June 27, 1893.

To the Proprietor of South American Nervino.

DEAR SIR,—I have much pleasure in recommending the great SOUTH AMERICAN NERVINE to all who are afflicted as I have been, with nervous prostration and indigestion. I found very great relief from the very first bottle, which was strongly recommended to me by my druggist. I also induced my wife to use it, who, I must say, was completely run down and was suffering very much from general debility. She found great relief from South American Nervine, and also cheerfully recommends it to her fellow sufferers.

The young are especially subject to it, and the desirability of this Oil as a family remedy is enhanced by the fact that it is admirably adapted not only to the above aliment, but also to the hurst, disorders of the bowels, and affections of the throat, to which the young are specially subject.

—No. 3 committee held an informal meeting last evening to look over the specifications of the proposed city electric light plant.

No weeks was the sad and sudden death last evening of Thomas Horton, an old soldler, who for many years has resided on Ontario at the East End. Mr. Horton had been troubled with a cancer on the tongue, and a couple of months ago he underwent an operation at the City Hospital, when the greater portion of his tongue was removed. He was better after the operation, but the dread disease shortly reappeared at the junction of the tongue and the throat. It was the choking caused by this cancer that caused death, and when Dr. Gardiner drove up he was not surprised. In fact he had been expecting it for some time. No inquest was therefore considered necessary.

The dead man had been in the habit of ing last evening to look over the specifica-tions of the proposed city electric light onsidered necessary.

The dead man had been in the habit of crossing over to a neighbor, Mrs. Bloomer, on Dutierin avenue, to get his supply of milk, and last evening he took up his tin pail and set out as usual. The cow was not home and Mr. Horton was asked to sit down for a few minutes. He sat down in the open air, and in a few minutes Mrs. Bloomer was considerably startled by the screams of her child who ran in crying that Mr. Horton was dying on the grass. Such was found to be the case. Death indeed and St. Thomas, Canada.

A few physicians in the United States now distinguish between malaria and typhoid fever in the early stages of each by what is esteemed an absolutely certain diagnosis. The blood from a pin prick upon the patient's body is smeered on a glass plate and placed under a microscope. If the characteristic bacillus of malaria is discovered the proof is taken as conclusive. This method of diagnosis will be employed more than ever this fall, as city folks are already returning from the country laden with disease germs, and the knowledge of the method is spreading among physicians.

GLASS-MAKING.

GLASS-MAKING.

The art of glass manufacture is probably nearly as old as the world itself. Specimens of glass work of a superior sort have been found in the ruins of the most ancient Egyptian cities, and representations of glassblowers abound in the oldest sculptures. In ancient Rome glassware was highly prized, and its manufacture was carefully studied and cultivated. In the middle ages the great glass center of the world for many years was Venice. The city long kept the glass-making art a secret, but finally it was discovered, and then Venice had to suffer brisk competition from England, France and Bohemia. The latter was for a long time Venice's strongest rival, and up to the time of English fint or lead glass, the Bohemian glass was the finest in the world, according to the American Importer. nerican Importer.

SOME QUAINT EPITAPHS. The following in Penrith Churchyard is afreshing in these days of deceit on account

'Here lies the man Richard and Mary his wife: wife: surname was Pritchard, and they lived without strife. eason was plain—they abounded in

They had no care nor pain, and the wife wore the breeches."

The owner of this inscription, now resting in Hebburn Churchyard, was probably a democrat and had some little opinion of "This humble monument will show, Here lies an honest man; You kings, whose heads are now as low, Rise higher if you can."

Rise higher if you can."

John Dale was a courageous man. This is the epitaph over his remains in Bakewell Churchyard, Derbyshire:

"Know posterity that on the 8th of April, in the year of grace 173", the rambling remains of John Dale were, in the 86th year of his pligrimage laid upon his two wives.

This thing in life might raise some jealousy; Here all three lie together lovingly."

One epitaph in Hiracombe Churchyard ows faith:

"Ween not for me, my friends so does."

ows faith:

"Ween not for me, my friends so dear,
Iam not dead, but sleeping here;
My debt is paid, my grave is free,
And in due course you'll come to me."

Not far from this we have an example of quiet self-glorification:

"Here lies a kind and loving wife,
A tender nursing mother—
A neighbor free from brawl and strife,
A pattern for all others."

Evidently marriage was not a failure in this case.

What follows was formerly on a tomb-stone in St. Thomas' Churchyard, Salisbury:

"Here lies three babes dead as nits,
"Here lies three babes dead as nits,

"Here lies three babes dead as nits,
God took them off in agic fits;
They was too good to live wi'we,
So be took 'em off to live wi''ee."
Who dares utter the foul slander that it requires a surgical operation to get a joke into the head of a Scotchman? Let him or her cast an oge over the following and then sit silent forever. It is on a graveatone in Stonebaven Churchyard:

Stonehaven Churchyard:

"The place whaur Betty Cooper lies
Is here or here about:
The place whaur Betty Cooper lies
There's neen can fin it out;
The place where Betty Cooper lies
There's neen on earth can tell,
Till at the resurrection day,
When Betty tells herse!.

ROMANCE IN THE DIAMOND FIELD. That truth is stranger than fiction is witnessed by the almost incredible diversities or fortune actually experienced in real life that would be regarded as too fanciful to be embodied in a romance. The career of Sir Cecil John Rhodes aftords an instance Sir Ceeil John Rhodes aflords an instance illustrating this axiom once more in a striking fashion, the more noticeable because of the high position he creditably fills in one of England's most progressive colonies. Twenty years ago Sir Cecil—then known, when known at all, simply as "Rhodes"—was associated with two other "pards" in the ownership of certain claims in the Kimberley diamond fields of South Africa. Of these three members of the partnership of two decades ago, one has since been hanged; another has sunk down to the condition of a common pauper, begging on the highway when not in the workhouse; and the third is Sir Cecil John Rhodes, ex-Prime Minister of Cape Colony, and the richest man in Africa.

and the richest man in Africa.
What are the causes and conditions that What are the causes and conditions that lie behind results so diverse? There must be some capalt element in the history of such a case, but just where it abides can hardly be discerned with absolute certainty. Here are torce young men, 'probably of the same race and breading and near enough alike in natural gifts and acquired abilities to join in a common enterpise in a new country where neither would be necessarily hampered or helped by, existing surroundings more than the others, and yet one achieves the highest possible success while the others fall and fall into the extremity of disaster. What was there to favor theone and to crush the life out of the others? Why was it that the two with the same start in life should go down to destruction instead of gaining a strong foothold in the world as their companiend did? They could not be, as he is, severally the richest man in Africa or severally Prime Minister of Cape Town Colony, but they might have He behind results so diverse? There must made respectable positions for themselves and have gained at least an honest living. What lacked they that they should go the wrong way persistently, the one to a dis-graceful death and the other to a hardly less diagraceful life of ignominy? The answer of wisdom and experience will be that they leaked character.

BE TRUE.

Listen, my boy, I've a word for you, And this is the word, "Be true! be true!" At work or at play, in darkness or light, Be true, be true, and stand for the right.

Tis the very same, 'Be true, be true!'
For truth is the sun, and falsehood the night
Be true, little maid, and stand for the right.

Poor little home, I am come back again!
Poor little rooms the mother made so gay!
Ah! what wild! hopes were whirling in my brain, How rich my day dreams when I went away! Poor little home, I am come back again! White is the cover of my baby-bed,

White is the cover of my baby-bed,
And flowering creepers wave a lullaby;
Some heavenly memory of the April's dead,
Whispering in their soft sprays continuall
White is the cover of my baby-bed. And in my heart a slender hope is born

Responsive to those memories of yere;

A touch of higher faith and finer scorn

Curls the mute lips I thought would smile no more, And in my heart a slender hope is born.

So, mother, in the stillness, close by thee,
I drop my head, and feel the old caress;
And as I were a child upon thy knee,
My overmastering troubles I confess,
Here, mother, in the stillness, close by thee,

"And let us part no more at all," I cry. Sole comfort of my sorrowful twenty year
For while I cling to thee, thou knowest why
The ache subsides, the terror disappears. 'And let us part no more at all," I cry.

The air about us draws a sigh of peace,
Making the stars throb in the firmament;
And all the sick creation falls on ease,
The petals close, the noisy winds are spent.
The air about us draws a sigh of peace.

Men gener'ly, to all intents—Although they're apt to grumble some—

And takes things as they come—
That is, the commonality
Of men that's lived as long as me
Has watched the world enough to learn
They're not the boss of this concern.

With some, of course, it's different-I've saw the young men that knowed it all,
And didn't like the way things went

On this terrestrial ball;
But all the same, the rain, some way,
Rained jest as hard on picnic day;
Er, when they railly wanted it,
It mayby wouldn't rain a bit.

In this existence, dry and wet
Will overtake the bost of men—
Some little skift o'clouds'll shet
The sun off now and then.

And mayby, whiles you're wundern

You've fool-like lent your umbreil' to
And want it, out'll pop the sun,
And you'll be glad you hain't got none.

And you'll be giad you hain a go alose

They's too much wet, or too much sun,
Er work, er waitin' round to do
Before the plowin's done.
And mayby, like as not, the wheat,
Jest as ic's lookin' hard to beat,
Will ketch the storm—and jest about
The time the corn's a-jintin' out.

And yet the corn that's wailer'd down

**CAPTURED BY, A COACHMAN.

The mania among some wealthy young women for eloping with coachmen bas spread to Russia. The only daughter of Prince Xernatofeff, of Moscow, has furnished the latest instance of the craze. She has fled from the parcital roof with the young man who drove the family coach, and in order to provide against poverty during the honeymoon she took 100,000 of Papa Xernatofeff's roubles with her. Not one can account for the infatuation, but it can be seen at a glance why she should be anxious to change her name.

**HOW SHE REDUCED HER WEIGHT

A young English girl sflicted with an undesirable amount of adipose tissue has succeeded in ridding herself of a large amount of it, without injuring her health, by following the regimen given below. She began by getting up at 6 o'clock every morning and taking a three-mile walk before breakfast, without considering the weather. At 9 o'clock she has a large cup of coilee, with very little sugar, and a slice of dry bread. Then she occupied herself as she liked until 2 o'clock, when more bread and some vegetables composed her meal. At 4:30 she was off for another long walk, followed by a cup of tos and a few dry biscuits. Ninety days of this regimen reduced her weight from 185 to 145 pounds.

SOCIAL PROGRESS.

SHE THINGS AS THEY ARE. It may be questioned whether the boasted quickening and brightening effects of alcohol are not slways, in a less degree, that same beguiling of sense and exciting of imagination which, in their extreme form, make a man such a pitiable and ridiculous sight. It is better to be dull, ridiculous sight. It is better to be duil, and see things as they are, than to be brilliant and see things largor, brighter or any way other than they are, because we see them through a mist. Imagination set a-going by such stimulus will not work to as much purpose as if aroused by truth. God's world seen by sober eyes is better than resy dreams of it. If we need to draw ur inspiration from alcohol, we had better our inspiration from alcohol, we had better HOME VS. SALOON.

The "liquor traffio" is something we do not need to define. Almost everybody knows what it is, how and why it thrives. Efforts have been made all along the years to regulate and restrict it, and the only reason it has not been prohibited is because its moral and financial waste has not been fully appreciated by the people.

The direct waste of the liquor traffic in 1891 was $1,200,000,000, and the indirect waste even more, so that putting it at low figures the total waste was $2,400,000,000.

figures the total waste was $2,400,000,000.
Who pays this waste? Who pays this waste?
Every person not engaged in the trafflo.
Every drinker pays his nickel, dime or dollar a day to this waste; his wife, though not a drinker, pays toward this waste, not in dimes from her hand, but in dimes that ought to be in her hand, and his children contribute to the payment of this waste by doing without food and clothing that they doing without food and clothing that they ought to have.

The indirect waste is the prosecution of criminals and building of jails in which to retain them; also the building of reformatories and state prisons.

Again, our taxes are paid toward this waste in building and maintaining insane asylume, kouses of refuge and orphan homes, each of them largely inhabited by victims of the legalized liquor traffic.

We are nominally a Christian mation, and ominally a Christian nation, and

We are nominary at the way and the way and in which are the subject to ascertain the fact that the money paid toward the waste far exceeds the revenue derived. If we did investigate we would find that three out of every four deliars of our taxes we pay because we allow the traffic to exist.

The liquim traffic ruins homes, breaks hearts, starves children, makes murderers of wiyes and murderers of children, and is a school of crime in which nothing is too base to be taught. At the judgment bar of God it will appear that not only he who drinks and he who sells shall lose eternal life, but he who permits it to be sold.

O, that this fact might so ring in the ears of all readers that they could not find rest for their bodies nor sleep for their eyes until they all arcse as one man to wipe this abountation from our nation.

Moral masion is good as a preparatory, yet we allow the liquor traffic to exist be-until they all arose as one into whethis aboundarion from our nation.

Moral sussion is good as a preparatory, but we do not expect that alone to "accomplish any other good, or to destroy any other eyil." Someone has said: "Wo shall never have any better moral sussionists than Murphy and Reynolds and the Woman's Christian Temperance Union, but during the lest eight years the statisties of our government show that the manufacture of intexicating liquous has dincreased three times as fast as the population."

The men of this nation know that to prohibit the manufacture of intexicants is while the manufacture of intexicants is eight, and many are praying for prehibition, out they can help answer their own prayers by casting a ballot for "God, home and sative land," and that means for the total shilation of the liquor traffic .- [ Northern Christian Advocate.

LESSON XI, THIRD QUARTER, INTER-NATIONAL SERIES, SEPT. 10.

Text of the Lesson, Acts xxviii, 20-31. Memory Verses, 28-31-Golden Text, Rom, 1, 16-Commentary by the Rev. D.

20. "For this cause therefore have I called for you to see you and to speak with you, because that for the hope of Israel I am bound with this chain," During the three months at Malta many miracles were wrought by Paul In the name of the Lord Jeius, and many must have heard the gospel (verses 1-11). In due time arriving at Roine, Paul was suffered to dwell by himself with a soldier that kept him, and after three days he called together the chiefs of the Jews and made known to them why he was a prisoner and why at Rome. Before Agripa'he he had spoken of the promise made of God unto the fathers as something concerning the 19 tribes (xxvi, 6.7).

21. "And they said unto him, We neither received letters out of Judea concerning thee, neither any of the brether that came shewed or spake any harm of thee." They did not have daily according to the content the terms. 20. "For this cause therefore have I called shewed or spake any harm of thee." They did not have daily papers with the news from all the world in each issue. It may have been some comfort to Paul to know that tongues in this part of the world had not yet opened fire on him. He had been enjoying his share of it elsewhere and had formd some pleasure in it (H Oor. xii+10).

22. "But we desire to hear of thee what theu thinkest, for its concerning this sect we know that everywhere it is spoken against." In chapter xxiv, 5, the followers of Jesus are called the sect of the Nazarenes. If Paul had not been spoken against at Rome up to this time, it would now be evident to him that his Master had, and his fellowship would be sure to come. But Paul was ready, for his prayer was to know shewed or spake any harm of thee." The Paul was ready, for his prayer was to know

Him, and the power of His resurrection; and the fellowship of His sufferings (Phil. iii, 10).

28. "He expounded and testified the kingdom of God, persuading them concerning Jesus both out of the law of Moses and out of the prophets from morning until evening." Having gathered unto him in his lodging a company of Jews. he as his cuslodging a company of Jews, he, as his cus-tom was, preached unto them Jesus as Son of David and coming King from their own Scriptures (chapter xvii, 2, 3; xix, 8; xxiv, 14). Doubtless Acts xiii, 16-41, is a fair sample of his preaching and reasoning. He 14). Doubtless Acts xiii, 16-41, is a fair sample of his preaching and reasoning. He sought to convince them that Jesus of Nazareth was indeed the promised Messiah, that it was all foretold that He should die and rise again, and that now they were to receive Him, serve Him patiently and faithfully and wait for Historius (A. and it and the faithfully and wait for Historius (A. and it and the faithfully and wait for Historius (A. and it and the faithfulls and wait for Historius (A. and it and the faithfulls and wait for Historius (A. and it and the faithfulls and wait for Historius (A. and it and the faithfulls and fully and wait for His return (Acts iii, 19-21: I Thess. i, 9, 10; Titus ii, 11-13). 24. "And some believed the things which

I Thess. i, 9, 10; Titus ii, 11-13).

24. "And some believed the things which were spoken, and some believed not." We are nowhere taught that the good news will be universally received in this age. Some seed will fall by the wayside and some on rocky soil, but a portion will find good ground; some will be saved, and the church shall be completed (Math. xiii, 18-23; I Con. ix, 22; Eph. v, 27). Even in the next age, when satan shall be bound, there will be deceivers who will only yield a feigned obedience and will follow satan when he comes out of the pit (Ps. lavi, 3, margin; Rev. xx, 7, 8).

25. "And when they agreed not among themselves they departed after that Paul had spoken one word, Well spake the Holy Ghost by Esaias the prophet unto our fathers." That it was not the prophets who spake or woote, but God by His spirit through the prophets is everywhere taught. Compare Acts i, 2; ii, 17; 17, 25, and notice who it is that speaks. David in his last words said, "The Spirit of the Lord spake by me, and His word was in my tongue" (II Sam. xxiii, 2). Peter says it was the Spirit of Christ who spoke through the prophets (I Pet. i, 10, 11).

26. "Hearing ye shall hear and shall not understand, and seeing ye shall see and not perceive." It was not very encouraging to the prophet to be told that the people would neither perceive nor understand his message, but Jeremiah and Ezekiel had the

to the prophet to be told that the people would neither perceive nor understand his message, but Jeremiah and Ezekiel had the same prospect before them. "They shall fight against thee." "The house of Israel will not hearken unto me" (Jer. i. 18; Ezek. iii, 7). The messenger of the Lord has only to deliver the message faithfully (Jer. xxiii, 28), sure that it will accomplish the Lord's The messenger of the Lord has only 28), sure that it will accomplish the Lord's pleasure (Isa. Iv, 11), and take refuge and comfort in Luke x, 16.

27. "For the heart of this people is waxed gross, and their ears are dull of hearing, and their eyes have they closed, lest I should heal them." The difficulty is not on God's side, but wholly on the side of man, who will not listen to God. It is written that the Lord hardened the heart of Pharach and also that Pharach hardened his own and also that Pharach hardened his own the Lord hardened the heart of Pharaon and also that Pharaon hardened his own heart (Ex. x, 1, 20, 27; viii, 15, 32). The Lord did it by giving him a command which he would not obey, and Pharaon did it by refusing to obey the Lord's command. God the right stage of fermentation or curing.

fusing to obey the Lord's command. God is always right, but man wrong.

28. "Be it known therefore unto you that the salvation of God is sent unto the Gentles, and that they will hear it." Compare chapter xii, 46, 47. "To the Jew first," was Paul's motto and custom (Rom. i, 16). Had it been continued to this day who can tell what the results might have been? Obedience is our part. Results are with God, and lie will see to it. That God would garher from Jews and Gentiles without distinction and on the ground of simple faith in Christ those who would form the body of Christ was a mystery revealed to Paul (Rom. xvi, 25, 26; Eph. iii, 1-12).

129. "And when he had said these words the Jews departed and had great reasoning it been continued to this day who can tell the Jews departed and had great reasoning among themselves." The word preached does not profit unless it is mixed with does not profit unless it is mixed with faith in those who hear it (Heb. iv, 2). The weapons of our warfare are intended to east down reasonings and every high thing that exalteh itself against the knowledge of God and bring into captivity every thought to the obedience of Christ (H Cor. x, 5, margin). To profit by the word we must receive it with meekness (Jas. 4, 21). 20. "And Paul dwelt two whole years in his own hired house and received all that care in unto him," doubtless accomplishing the will of God and glorifying God as much the will of God and glorifying God as much the will of God and glorifying God as much as when journeying through Asia and Macedonia. Being no longer able to go to people, God brought people to Him, and though he was bound he rejoiced that the word of God was not bound (II Tim, ii, 9).

31. "Preaching the kingdom of God and teaching those things which concern the Lord Jesus Christ with all confidence, no man forbidding him." The adversary cannot hinder beyond God's permission, and it was His pleasure that for these two years the word should have free course. The book opens with Jesus between His resurrection and ascension preaching the kingdom, and with the question of the disciples, "Lord," and ascension preaching the kingdom, and with the question of the disciples, "Lord, wilt Thou at this time restore again the kingdom to Israel" (Acts 1, 3, 6)? It clocks with Paul at Rome in a hird house still preaching the kingdom. After three 1,800 years we are still more or less bound, but preaching Jesus Christ and still waiting for the kingdom while we continue to pray. "Thy kingdom come." If we had more of Paul's spirit and faithfulness, we would do more to hasten the kingdom.

BUILDING A CREAMERY.

More of the Small Creameries Are Successful Than the Large Ones

There's money in a creamery located in a dairy neighborhood when properly built, but the money in it is for the mee who sell milk there and not for the stockholders. Creamery stocks are if anything more risky investments than mining stocks, and it is a good thing for the farmer that they are so. There is only one case where a man would be fustified in investing in creamery stocks, and that is where a neighborhood needs a creamery and the farmers expect and intend to make their profit by selling milk and not by getting dividends on the

No creamery has a right to pay a stock dividend. That money belongs to the farmer. At the same time there are neighborhoods where a creamery is needed, and the proper plan here is to arrange for each patron to take stock in proportion to the number of pounds of milk he sells. One very successful creamery in Pennsylvania requires every patron to own a share of stock for each 10 cows or fractional part of that number. The stock is worth at par $10 a share, and if a man quits furnishing milk and wishes to sell his stock it is bought by funds from the treasury. It pays a small dividend yearly and has a reserve fund, but intends to pay such a price for milk that no profit will be made.

Creameries owned by individuals always are more profitable than stock creameries for the simple reason that creameries for the simple reason that the individual creamery is run on more exact business principles. An old saying holds good here—that "too many cooks spoil the broth." In putting up a building for a new plant there is much more danger of getting it too large than too small. As a capacital thing there is too small. As a general thing there is little danger of crowding in a creamery. The closer the machines are together the fewer steps are required to run from one to the other, and the less fuel is required in winter. At the same time I would not recommend putting the boiler in the icehouse nor the engine on one corner of the butter worker.

There are more successful creameries built for $1,500 than there are for $5,000. With the former sum a building can be put up and furnished, exclusive of the cost of the land, that will do the work for 700 cows, and if every creamery in the country were getting milk from 700 good cows there would be few failures except through gross mismanagement. If there are not 300 cows to contribute to the creamery, the safest plan would be not to build. Build on a hillside, and if ossible near a good spring of water. The hillside creamery can be so arranged as to do away with almost all lifting of milk and butter. Build a good $1,500 creamery, put a good $100 a month man in it, and then try to drown him out with an excess of milk.—R. H. Sharples in Field and Farm.

Fed on Green Cheese.

In the summer home consumption of cheese a great deal of the product is cut up before it is half cured. Country and village storekeepers buy of local factories a few cheeses at a time, and these are cut up and retailed to customers comparatively green. A great deal of such cheese is also retailed from factories, generally only to the patrons. Merchants and others who retail this product would confer a pleasure and a benefit on their customers by having cheese held in the curing rooms of the factories until at least a month old before cutting.

I have heard many complaints on this subject about the difficulties experienced by country consumers in obtaining ma-ture cheese for the table. Cheese of proper maturity is nutritious and digestbut when it has scarcely passed from the curdy state it is poor stuff to put into the human stomach. Many people with weak stomachs complain that cheese does not agree with them at Very old cheese is also as deleterions as that which is very new.—George E. Newell in American Cultivator.

The daisy that has become such a pest in our fields in many places has been utilized at last. It makes an excellent food for fattening beeves, but will not do to feed to milk cows. So it is said.

A young cow must be treated very gently and kindly. The treatment should begin when she is a week old. She can be trained to the long milking habit by keeping her in milk as long as possible after her first calves.

In the island of Jersey none but the native breeding cattle are allowed, yet the inhabitants must send abroad for meat. Hence they let common, vulgar steers from other districts pasture and Envious experts have figured up that he more than half ton of butter made by Signal's Lily Flagg cost Lily's owner not less than 25 cents a pound in feed.

The head butter maker at the World's fair is Mr. Dewitt Goodrich of Fort Atkinson, Wis. A great cow, like a great man, mus

. Breed a heifer in November or December, so that she will drop her first calf in the fall. Thus will you get a good winter milker.

The late Senator Stanford gave orders to his head trainer to knock any mar down that should be caught kicking one of the horses. The same treatment and more of it should be accorded to the fel-low who will kick or otherwise maltreat a cow. He ought to be kicked all round the stable yard.

Carter's Little Liver Pills must not be confounded with common Cathartic or Purgetive Pills as they are extremely unlike then in every respect. One trial will prove them; photo etchings? They are the best.

A reporter of the Express, while being shown through the establishment recently, asked Sister Mary Ambrose if there was any apparent reason for the good health with which the sisters and their pupils are blessed.

The onswer was that particular attention is paid by the sisters in charge to the health and happiness of the students. "Bodily allment," she said, "cannot help but have its effect on the mind. In order to keep the mind bright and active and perfectly clear at all times the student's condition must be as nearly perfect as possible. Some time ago there was more or less ailment noticeable among the sisters and students, which was probably due to and students, which was probably due to atmospheric causes, though, of course, I do not know just what its origin really was. Shortly after this became noticeable a friend highly recommended a medicine called Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People, and so urged upon me to give them a trial that I ordered some of them, and they have been used in the institution ever since. This is certainly a very high recommendation for the medicine, for there is probably no class of people that give more attention to the physical health and welfare of its members than the Sisters of Providence, and they would not use anything in which they did not have unbounded faith.

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are truly one of the greatest medical discoveries of the age. They are the beginning of a more healthful era. Every day brings reports of remarkable cures that have resulted from the use of this wonderful medicine. In many cases the good work has been accomplished after

In many cases the good work has been accomplished after eminent physicisms had failed and pronunced the patient beyond the hope of human aid. An analysis proves that Dr. Williams' Pink Pills contain in a condensed form all the elements necessary to give new life and richness to the blood and restore stattered nerves. They are an unfailing specific for such diseases as locomotor saxia, partial paralysis, St. Vitus' dance, sciatica, neuralgia, rheumatism, nervous headache, the after effects of la grippe, pulpitation of the heart, that tired feeling resulting from nervous prostration; all diseases depending upon vitiated humors in the blood, such as scroula, chronic crystpelas, etc. They are also as specific for troubles peculiar to females, such as suppressions, irregularities, and all forms of weakness. olor and size.

They are, however, pre-eminently "fany fowls," says the Poultry World, from hich the cuts here given are repro-uced. The peculiar formation of their leads, crests, combs, etc., makes them inique and specific in character and juite unlike all other domestic breeds of poultry in this respect. They have been found fairly hardy when past hickenhood, admirable layers of full sized eggs, quite prolific and of average good weight at maturity. In Paris these birds are exceedingly popular at the hoels and restaurants as table poultry, their flesh being juicy, tender and short grained. Some of the best capons to be found in the French city markets are made of young Houdan, Crevecceur and La Fleche cockerels, grown in the suburbs. They average in size about that of the best Black Spanish, and in many respects they strongly resemble that upon the Cochins or Brahmas gives in the progeny avery superior product for family uses—whether for consumption, as layers or as early market chickens. They fatten readily, they breed prolifically, and the hens of the two kinds specially mentioned are nonsitters. It must be confessed, adds the authority quoted, that the chickens are tender and in the coldest weather are not easily Harvesting Wheat.

The time to harvest wheat is when the wheat grains have passed the milk state and are hard and firm. The condition of the straw is not always a good index of the condition of the grain. Farmers who judge by the straw will sometimes and that they make a mistake. An examination of a few heads of wheat will soon convince one as to whether or not the grains are firm enough for cutting, says a writer in a letter to American Cultivator, who adds that wheat ought to be cut when quite ripe, and it should be gathered within three or four days after cutting to prevent its getting very dusty. This will make quite a differ-ence at thrashing time. The dust tends o injure both grain and straw.

Wet weather is apt to make the wheat harvesting long, and sometimes it seems impossible to get the wheat in within a short time. To make this possible it is better to bind in small, loose bundles and not in large, tight ones. The grain and straw will dry quicker in this way, and very often with two good days intervenbetween the storms we can get the theat dried and out of the field.

Where the reaper and binder is used it is always better to let the wheat get very ripe before cutting, for the bundles are tied quite tight by the machines. By letting the grain get good and ripe it can be carted from the field in a very short time, as it will not need so much drying in the sun. When the field is un-creally ripened, it is also better to wait until the field is good and ripe, but not until the grain becomes havil and deed until the grain becomes hard and dead ripe. The green portion as a rule will ripen up well enough in the shock or even in the barn and stack. The dew has very little bad effect either upon the straw or grain, and if the wheat was dry the night before it can be carted in early in the morning with impunity, according to the authority quoted.

Cufting Oats.

When the grain is beginning to harden is a good stage to cut the cats. This will be before the straw is fully ripened. Oats cut at this stage should be cured four or five hours at least before being shocked up. In binding it is not a good plan to make the bundles too large, and they should be set up in small shocks Generally a dozen bundles make a very good sized shock and will lessen materially the danger of molding, says a Prairie Farmer correspondent, who adds: Under ordinary conditions outs should stand in the shock several days to cure before hauling in. At the same time it is quite an item to get them shocked or mowed away without getting wet. Like clayer. away without getting wet. Like clover, if they once get thoroughly wet it is often quite a task to dry out thoroughly; hence care should be taken to haul in as soon as they will do.

THE RAPE PLANT.

As Grown In the United States—Adapta-bility of Soils—Place In the Rotation. There is a season after corn has been harvested and before the advent of winter during which we must depend on grass as the source of food for our flocks and herds; otherwise we must draw upon winter stores to feed them. The need of some useful fodder plant of this season has long been recognized, and now Thomas Shaw, professor of agriculture at the Ontario college, gives the assurance that Ontario college, gives the assurance that the rape plant is adapted to large areas in the United States. In a report to the department of agriculture he says:

The soils of the prairies will doubtless be found suitable for this crop where the summers are not too dry and warm. And in large sections in all parts where the climatic conditions resemble those of On-tario it will doubtless be found that rape will grow readily. This would men that rape can be successfully grown in all the states bordering on the Dominion of Canada and in several of those that lie farther to the south. Whether it would furnish winter pasture in the more southerly states and whether it would grow seed as a paying crop in these can be determined only by actual test. The heat of the sun in such latitudes would doubtless be fatal to its successful growth

THE DWARF ESSEX RAPE. The place that should be assigned to rape in the rotation will depend on many onditions-the use for which it is grown, the nature of the soil and the nature of the rotation. Like other hood crops, it should be grown as a cleaning crop when sown in drills; hence it is peculiarly fitting to grow it upon fields which require to be cleaned. It will therefore more commonly come after a grain crop and ordinarily should be followed by another come account of the company of the company of the crosses and clovers. grain crop sown with grasses and clovers. It may generally be grown with much advantage after a crop of winter rye which has been pastured or cut at the earing stage for hay or in the blossoming stage for the silo.

In climates that are suitable and in seasons that are sufficiently moist it will also make a good growth after early ma-turing crops. As rape feeds ravenously on organic matter, it usually grows well on a freshly overturned sod possessed of sufficient moisture to germinate the seed. It may therefore be grown on land which has been pastured in early spring and on overturned clover fields after the first cutting of the season has been removed. As a catch crop it may be sown at any time when opportunity offers until within, say, eight weeks of the close of the growing season. As a green manure it may also be sown at any time, but for may also be swift at more common to sow it this purpose it is more common to sow it in conjunction with the bare fallow or after some crop of the season has been removed. The Dwarf Essex, or English removed. The Dwart Essex, or English variety, shown in the cut is, according to the authority quoted, the only kind of rape that has hitherto proved a success as a fodder plant in North America,

Sowing Rye.

John Geuld, one of Ohio's progressive farmers, tells, in a letter to Country Gentleman, that for three years he has Gentleman, that for three years he has been sowing more and more rye among the corn at the last working. This year all of the corn is sown to rye, and there will be not only some fine fall feed, but in the excessive Ohio fall and speing rains there will be no washing of the land or carrying away of fertility. Then in the spring one has a field of rye to seed down to clover and save a year in the rotation, or, what is pretty well up the rotation, or, what is pretty well up to clover, a rye sod to turn under for a Pastured Clover For Seed. American Cultivator says that where sheep are kept to eat the clover growth close to the ground there is a constant close to the ground there is a constant checking of the clover growth which pre-disposes it to seeding. It produces a heavier seed crop than does the common practice of allowing the first crop to grow until in blossom and then cutting it close to the ground. But if the clover is fed off, Canada thistles and other biemnial weeds in it should be mown down to the surface with a seythe. to the surface with a scythe.

PROTECTING THE FARMERS.

PROTECTING THE FARMERS.

[Toronto Globe.]

The farmer of Canada' is now giving the protection advocates no end of trouble, though not nearly as much trouble as their system is inflicting on him. They know that the tarlif imposes upon him the burden of maintaining a dependent class. They know that the duty on farm products, oven if it does enable him to increase the price of such as are consumed within the Dominion, affords him no adequate compensating advantages. The bulk of his produce must be exported, and the tarliff has no other effect than to increase the cost of all the things that are to him raw material. And, what seems to be still more distressing, the protection apologists realize that the farmer has found it out. How to argue in the face of this obvious fact is a trouble-some problem, severely taxing the ingenuity of the theorists. It is common for them to ask what free trade has done for the farmers of England, and it may be worth while to explain that it is not the mission of free trade to do anything for anybody. If a government does anything for one section of the community, it must be at the expense of others. Governments do not create wealth; they can only transfer it. And the injury of the transfer must be greater than its benefit. This is in accordance with principles that are elementary to the verge of childisiness. If the Government takes $10 from a farmer and gives the money to a manufacturer, the act is not only unjust is itself, but the farmer's loss must exceed the manufacturer, is ast in the best markets, thereby enabling the manufacturer to perform the taxing act for himself, the case is precisely the same, and the loss and waste are greater cwing to the more complicated process adopted. The farmers are asked to submit to the latter process of exploitation that their exploiters may be able to buy more largely from them—an absurdity which has worn surprisingly well. It is not claimed that free trade would do anything for the Canadian farmer, but it would (Toronto Globe.) which has worn surprisingly well. ot claimed that free trade would do any og for the Canadian farmer, but it would relieve him of the burden of maintaining a class of men confessedly dependent and unable to support themselves.

A HORSE STATEROOM.

How Blueblooded Equines Are Brought Across the Atlantic

The spirited picture below, reproduced from The Breeder's Gazette, shows a high priced hackney on his way to America to his new millionaire owner.

HORSE STATEROOM.

His quarters are much more comfortable than those of the steerage passenger, who comes with nothing but a pair of willing hands to this country and in time develops into a millionaire, or at least the father or grandfather of a president. Oh, yes! The horse has it much better than the steerage passenger.

The illustration is from a photograph and is a fine picture of the beautiful hackney head. You will observe he is tied at each side of his halter rein, so that in a sudden lurch of the ship he may not be thrown against the wall and cut his eye or knock out some of his teeth, as unfortunately happens once in awhile to a human saloon passenger of even first cabin rank.

Mutton Lamb Notes.

The most profit is made from the quickest sale of any product, and especially of such as must be fed expensive ly. And there is no quicker product and none other that is so profitable as the early lamb. One sells for as much in May as two in November, and the farmer not only gets the better price, but he saves twice or even four times the feeding. Any large town or city furnishes the market for them, and the early sale makes it possible to fatten the ewes after the lambs are sold and market them out of the way for another flock in the fall.

The kind of lamb, however, is to be thought of. The best of all is a cross of a Shropshire ram on the native ewes that is, considering the profit, for the pure lamb is to be preferred before the cress were it not that the pure ewes are too costly to be made into mutton, as with the common ones. And the dis posal of the ewes and the less first cost make the larger profit. The ewes should be purchased early in September, so that the lambs may not come later than rebruary, and if the flock is gathered in August so much the better, for the earlier they are in the market the more they bring. In this business one has three dividends and the first cost returned within a year-the lambs, the fleece, the profit on the ewes and the first cost returned. This is a profitable business.—American Agriculturist.

The fattest lambs are a cross of Merino and Southdown. They are not the largest, but the plumpest and heaviest for their size of all early lambs, and the black faces and legs of the sire render them dear to the heart of a butcher, who will readily give more for such lambs than for larger white faced ones. He points to these black marks with pride and calls the special attention of his cus-tomer to them as proofs of their Southdown lineage, "the finest mutton sheep in as he tells his exacting purchaser. The Merino, however, has some thing to do with the fatness and tenderness of these lambs, and its early fleece gives the appearance of fullness and roundness to the plump little carcass.

The Dorset must have the most skill ful attention, and the shopherd who thinks sheep are able to take care of themselves through winter as well as summer will be very much disappointed if he tries the Dorset to experiment with in this direction. The Claristmas lamb is like the Christmas strawberry, a hot-house creation, and those breeders who no not understand this method of force ing lambs will do well to get lambs later and at less cost and yet make quite as much profit out of them. It is quite pos sible to average $8 to $10 for a lamb in March and April, or even in May, and this with the Merino-Southdown cross.

When a lamb is 2 weeks old, it may be taught to eat a little dry food by means of the hand. A mixture of clean, heavy oats, corn and linseed in equal parts, finely ground together and slightly salted and sweetened with smear will be alted and sweetened with sugar, will be taken eagerly and will help the growth very much. At the same time it is advisable to mourish the lambs through the ewes, by liberal feeding of grain, of which a mixture of rye and buckwheat coarsely chopped together will be found better than corn, and if anything else is added it should be bran. This will increase the milk in quantity and quality and so help the lambs. By and by the lambs will take their meal themselves if the proper facilities are afforded by means of a small pen with creeps attached to it and set in the fence.

The creeps consist of openings in the fence just large enough for the lambs to tence just into choose of the core through, and to prevent tearing of the wool the sides of the openings are guarded by rollers fitted into a sliding bar placed in the fence, by which the rollers may be drawn nearer to each other than the control of the control er or widened, as may be necessary to fit the lambs. The food is placed in these pens, and the lambs soon learn to creep through to get the meal. These hints are especially useful for the feeding of market lambs, which need to be forced as much as possible to make a rapid growth and lay on fat.—Henry Stewart.

ts Causes In Horses and Mules—Remedies and Preventives.
Bulletin No. 25 from the agricultural ollege of Mississippi by Dr. Tait Butler treats of the causes and remedies of colic in horses and mules. Its chief points are Nineteen out of every twenty cases of colic are chargeable to irregularity in food or water. The rules for watering Use only pure water. Water before feeding.

Water frequently (from three to five Never give a large quantity at one time, especially if the animal is very warm or about to undergo severe exertion.

The quality and quantity of food and the regularity with which it is given are of the greatest importance. Oats are the best grain for horses or mules, though corn is more commonly used in this state and is a good food if used with discretion. Oats are better because they are more easily digested and possess the essential constituents of a good food in better proportions, and therefore, by throwing less work on the digestive organs, are less liable to cause indigestion and colic. They should be dry, clean and free from must. If cut before they are too ripe, their value is greatly enhanced. While corn is a fruitful cause of colic, yet it is a good food for working stock, but should be fed with caution.

Oats and corn may be fed whole to a grown horse while his teeth remain good. but for colts and old horses they are better if ground. Bran, linseed meal, etc., if fed in small quantities and with other foods, are beneficial in keeping the bowels loose and in good condition. Almost any of the varieties of hay in common use may be fed with safety if they are cut before becoming too ripe, are well cured and free from mold. New hay should never be fed to working stock, as it is very apt to cause derangement of digestion, and so cause colic. The quan-tity of food to be given must depend largely upon the amount of work required from the animal and his individual peculiarities. From four to eight quarts of oats, or from 8 to 15 ears of corn two or three times daily are about the proper limits. The quantity of hav required is usually from 10 to 20 pounds

If a horse is required to do more work than usual on a given day, it is a common custom to give him more food. This is a great mistake. Owing to the fatigne consequent to the increased exertion, the animal is less able to digest a large feed and therefore should be fed less instead of more. Again, it is decidedly improper to give a horse a large feed, espeproper to give a norse a large reed, espe-cially of corn, immediately after under-going severe exercise. If a large feed be given immediately before active ex-ercise, the blood which is required by the digestive organs in order to carry on their proper functions goes to the mus-cular system, digestion is impaired, and colic is a possible result. If a large feed be given immediately after active or prolonged exercise, the animal is weak, and the blood is drawn upon largely for the rebuilding of the muscular waste, and the digestive organs suffer accord-

A change of food should be made with caution. If a change must be made, a smaller quantity of the new food should be given for several days, and the amount increased gradually. In no case should a change of food and work be made at the same time. A good rule is, never give a horse a full feed on a change of work, nor full work on a change of

Instead of feeding a large number of mules together, giving the grain in large quantities and using foul water—and that only when convenient, as is the common practice—if the following method be pursued the great loss of mules by colic now experienced by Mississippi planters would be reduced at least three-fourths: The mule should be watered and then fed at least one hour before going to work in the morning. In the mid-dle of a long forenoon he should again have water. At noon he should be first watered and then allowed to eat hay for a short time before receiving his grain, which should be given him at least one hour before he is again put to work,

In the middle of the afternoon should be watered again, and in the evening his grain should not be given him until he has first been watered and allowed to eat hay for at least an hour. The trouble and loss of time required to water working animals in the middle of the forenoon and afternoon may in some cases render it impracticable, but fre-quent watering will be found advanageous to the stock in all cases and a powerful factor in the prevention of

So long as the animal will drink it no water is considered too foul for either horses or mules. Not only is this neglect on the part of stock owners responsible for many cases of colic, but many other diseases also are directly traceable to impure water. An unlimited supply of good pure water is essential to the health of all animals used for farm work. Pools formed from surface drainage where large quantities of organic matter are carried into them, and wells or pools contiguous to barnyards or manure heaps, are especially to be avoided. Sudden changes of temperature, unduly severe exertion, parasites (worms, etc.) in the intestines and feeding on green grass when the animal is not accustomed to it are frequent causes of

PROPAGATING PLANTS.

Multiplying Fuchias, Begonias, Etc., by

Slips and Cuttings.

Many desirable plants are readily propagated from slips and cuttings. the florist terms "greenwood cuttings" are more commonly employed than those from the mature wood, as they "strike" more quickly. "Slips" are greenwood cuttings, but the term is often restricted to designate those which are made by pulling or slipping off a small side shoot. All soft wooded plants and many ornamental stumps are increased by green-wood cuttings. There are two general classes of greenwood cuttings—those made from the soft and still growing wood, and those made from the nearly ripened green wood, as in azalia, indica oleander, etc. House plants, as geraniums, colensus, carnations, fuchias, and the like, are grown from the soft young wood. Sometimes truly hard wood is used, as in camellia.

In making cuttings from soft growing shoots the first thing to learn is the proper texture or age of the shoot. The test for beginners is the manner in which the shoot breaks. If on being bent the shoot snaps off squarely so as to hang together with only a bit of bark, it is in the right condition for cutting, but if it bends or simply crushes it is either too old or too young for good results.

Soft cuttings are usually cut below a bud or cut to a heel. Cuttings demand for best results a moist and uniform at-mosphere. Cuttings should be shaded for a week or two. Oleanders usually root best when mature shoots are placed in bottles of water. Amateurs who have not the florists' conveniences of propa-gating benches, etc., use wooden boxes, flowerpots, or set out in some protected corner in the garden. Soft cuttings may be started in a deep plate two-thirds full of sand and filled to the brim with water. Great care must be given to shading and watering of the cuttings.

Bagging Grapes.

In regions where the vines are not af-fected by fungoid diseases, and the grapes set and ripen perfectly, bagging the clus ters of fruit may be unnecessary, but wherever mildew or rot prevails bagging is necessary. "What is bagging?" some may ask. It consists in taking common manilla paper bags and placing one over each cluster of grapes just about the time they are out of bloom. The mouths of the bags are closed and folded over and pinned to the branches as you see in the illustration, and they are never unfastened or opened till the grapes ripen. Within these bags the berries swell and mature as well as in the open air, retaining their bloom perfectly. The bags are a partial protection from mildew and rot, and they save the berries from being battered or littered by storms, burnt by

NIAGARA GRAPES IN BAGS. sunscald, picked by birds or injured by early frosts, and while the small boy doesn't hesitate to pluck a bunch of grapes from an open vine he will hesitate to touch the grapes that are in bags.

A firm point in favor of bagging the grapes is the fact that those who grow fine grapes for market are the most pains-taking in bagging them. Well, if these growers for market cannot afford to grow grapes without bagging them—because the bagged grapes are so much finer than the others—can the amateur, grows a few grapes for his own Thanks are due to Gardening for the

The Century, we are informed, has just ome in possession of one of a most unique historical documents. It is a record of the daily life of Napoleon Bonaparte on board the English ship which bore him into captivity at St. Helena, as contained in the hitherto unpublished journal of the secretary of the admiral in charge. The reports of many conversations held by the admiral with the deposed Emperor, regarding his important campaigns, are given with great fullness, and there is much about the bearing and personal habits of Bonaparte during the voyage. The Memoirs of Las Cases contain the story of the Emperor's deportation as told by a Frenchman and a follower; this diary is an Englishman's view of the same memorable journey. It will be published in early numbers of the Contury.

This magazine which as a rule keeps so close to current news, has an occasional suprise for its readers in the nature of an article as remote as possible from the events of the preceding four weeks.
