DOUBTS SOVIET RULE IN RUSSIA NEAR COLLAPSE

Allied Observer Sure Bolsheviks Will Retain Power For Ten Years.

BATTLE LOOMS AT HAGUE Litvinoff Unlikely To Adopt Conciliatory Attitude at Parley.

The Hague, June 27.—Soviet Russia will have its first tussle with the representatives of Western Europe at The Hague conference this afternoon, when M. Litvinoff and his associates meet with the sub-commission of credits.

The Associated Press has obtained a copy of a private report on Russia which will be distributed to the chiefs of the delegations from non-Russian countries.

This report embodies the view of a prominent and competent European observer of Liberal tendencies, who recently came from Russia, after making a thorough investigation of the political conditions there. The report contains ten paragraphs, remarkable for its brevity. The name of the investigator is withheld by agreement.

The "ten points" follow:

First, barring unforeseen events, the soviet regime is not near collapse, their most ardent adversaries the Socialists, think they may continue in power for another ten years.

Second, the economic exhaustion of Russia is complete, and admitted by the soviet. All power of purchase has disappeared.

Internal Strife Begun.

Third, the soviets are divided among themselves, and internal struggles have begun.

Fourth, hatred of the old regime is general among the people.

Fifth, blockade and foreign military aggression have maintained the soviets in power, but resumption of contact with Europe will destroy them and accelerate their evolution in the direction of conservatism.

Sixth, the soviets recognize without hesitation that only the foreigner can reconstruct Russia.

Seventh, for the moment the intransigent faction of the soviets triumphs.

Eighth, Litvinoff does not arrive with conciliatory intentions.

Ninth, the Russian Socialists would adhere immediately to sovietism if they could obtain the right to vote, the secret vote and liberty of speech and the press. But the Socialists are inclined to refuse the franchise to the bourgeoisie.

Tenth, the blockade and foreign military interventions have developed very powerful nationalism and xenophobia in Russia.

"The world," says the report, "must keep these facts in mind."

POLICE FIRE ON BERLIN CROWDS

Berlin, June 27.—One man is reported to have been killed and ten others wounded in disturbances which followed a big demonstration in Hamburg last night over the assassination of Foreign Minister Rathenau.

While the crowds were dispersing they found fully armed police standing at strategic points, and understood to be under orders to shoot anyone who loitered. The disturbances followed, and at one point where the demonstrators refused to move the police fired.

HON. P. C. LARKIN IS NOT RESIGNING

London, June 27.—Canadian Press.—Hon. P. C. Larkin says the rumor that he may resign as Canadian high commissioner is preposterous.

Dispatches have been sent out of Ottawa to the effect that Hon. Mr. Larkin had intimated to Premier Mackenzie King that he would resign the high commissionership within the next month and return to Canada, as he was out of sympathy with the immigration policy of the Dominion government. Mr. Larkin entered upon his duties as Canadian high commissioner on April 1 last.

LOYD GEORGE IMPATIENT AS TERROR REIGNS

Intimates Britain Will Act If Dublin Cannot Restore Order.

WINS CONFIDENCE VOTE

Provincial Government Jails Director of Boycott Against Belfast.

London, June 27.—Premier Lloyd George has at last lost patience with the tide of lawlessness and bloodshed which is sweeping the Emerald Isle, and as a result a stern warning has been sent by the British cabinet to Dublin, intimating that unless prompt measures are taken by the provisional government to allay at once the unrest and rebellion there, the British government will be compelled to resort to armed force to restore order on Irish soil.

Assailed on all sides by enemies of the coalition, who eagerly seized upon the assassination of Field Marshal Sir Henry Wilson as a means of attack, the prime minister and Colonial Secretary Winston Churchill have, apparently, however, again stemmed the tide of defeat.

A virtual vote of confidence was given by the House of Commons last night when it defeated, 342 to 75, a motion proposed by the "die hards" for a reduction in the salary of the chief secretary for Ireland in disapproval of the government's policy and failure properly to protect Field Marshal Wilson.

Capt. George Uister.

The secretary for the colonies made it clear in his statement that Southern Ireland would not be allowed to coerce Ulster, and that the provisional government in Dublin now must assert complete authority, the alternative being that the imperial government would resume complete freedom of action.

The prime minister, again outlining the policy toward Ireland, said the elections had shown that the provisional government had the Irish people behind it, and that it now must prove whether it was fit to govern.

Mr. Churchill's warning has met with widespread approval, the majority of the newspapers this morning declaring the country will endorse the line the government has taken.

CAPTURE COMMANDANT.

Dublin, June 27.—Commandant Henderson, director of the boycott against Belfast goods, has been arrested by the provincial government authorities, and removed to Mountjoy Prison, says an announcement issued by the headquarters of the army dissidents in the Four Courts.

Counter action has been taken by the Four Courts irregulars. Last evening they captured Lieut.-Gen. O'Connor, assistant chief of staff of the regulars at Beggar's Bush, and are holding him prisoner.

The executive officers of the irregulars at the Four Courts telephoned the Beggar's Bush officials that Lieut.-Gen. O'Connor was being held as a hostage for the release of the regulars, and of the irregulars, recently arrested at Drogheda.

Observe Golden Rule When Touring Canada By Auto

MOTORISTS in Western Ontario who have come to rely on their own devices for shelter and food when touring are keenly aware of the importance of suitable camping places.

To insure a maximum of comfort and convenience, the camping site should be high, dry and preferably located on a gently sloping hillside to permit of proper drainage in the event of a sudden deluge. The site should be partially shaded, but not so densely wooded as to shut off cooling breezes.

The proximity of pure water is absolutely essential as much of the pleasure of camping may be marred by the necessity for carrying water for long distances across rough ground.

Since many campers do their outdoor cooking on gasoline or kerosene stoves, the need for firewood is not always acute. Nevertheless, a camp fire is often desirable, if only to keep off mosquitoes and provide light.

In starting the camp fire it is best to scrape away dead leaves and mold, as the latter may smoulder for days and come to sudden life in a windstorm, possibly causing great damage.

Every camper should try to observe the Golden Rule to the extent of leaving the camp site clean and above all, avoid all possibility of starting forest fires by thoroughly extinguishing camp fires and using up before departure, and even in great care with matches and other places far from human habitation inflammable substances.

JAIL TWO SUSPECTS AS KENT COUNTY THUGS AT BRANTFORD

Provincial Police in London Believe "Robbery" Car Was in Downtown Area of City On Saturday.

Believing that the four masked gunmen who were responsible for three robberies along the highways of Kent County Sunday night were Londoners, provincial police are still continuing their investigations in the city and district, and arrests are momentarily anticipated.

Members of the provincial squad informed The London Advertiser Tuesday that Saturday afternoon last they could not avoid noting four young men in a Cadillac machine, such as described by the Kent County authorities, driving about the downtown area, frequently stopping along the curb in prominent places.

The officers explain that their suspicions were instantly aroused by the action and general appearance of the men, and although they had no valid reason for interfering with them at the time, they state that they were not at all surprised when the news of the hold-ups west of London reached them late Monday afternoon.

The identity of all four men in the car in question is known, the police state, and while none of them have been seen in the neighborhood since Saturday, their descriptions and names have been wired in all directions from the city.

All four are said to be local residents.

CLAIMS ARREST OF FOUR.

Chatham, June 27.—According to County Police Chief Peters, word was received from Windsor that four suspects had been arrested in connection with the series of hold-ups in Kent County reported Sunday evening, and one of the victims of the four masked gunmen, a Mr. Wilcox, was sent to the border early Tuesday morning to try to identify them.

Windsor, June 27.—Inspector of Detectives William Reid at noon Tuesday denied that the border authorities had made any arrests in connection with the recent robberies in Kent County. No man by the name of Wilcox was arrested.

TAKE EXCEPTION TO LIQUOR CHANGE

Ottawa, June 27.—(Canadian Press)—The House of Commons this morning refused to accept the Senate amendment, made by the Senate to the Canada Temperance Act. The chief amendment to which exception was taken was that which prohibited private importation of liquor into the province of British Columbia. L. J. Ladner spoke in support of the motion of Hon. D. R. McKenzie to reject the Senate amendments, and it was carried without dissent. The house accepted the amendments made by the Senate to six other bills.

JAILS FOUR ON WAY TO RACES

C. P. R. Constable May Face Action For False Arrest in City.

Deprives Carload of Horses of Guardians On Way to Windsor.

Indignant at treatment accorded them by a C. P. R. constable, David Tomlinson, race horse owner; William Ryan and Richard Smith, jockeys, and Arthur Taylor, a Londoner, are in cells at the city police station charged with trespassing on the railroad.

Meanwhile a carload of race horses is on its way to Windsor, with no one in charge of it.

According to Tomlinson, he came from Toronto with the car, in which were some of his own horses and some owned by a man named Stewart. When he arrived in London the two jockeys and Taylor, who had been instructed to meet him in London, arrived from Windsor. Tomlinson had just finished feeding the animals Tuesday morning and had left the car when he and his jockey, Stewart's jockey and their helper, Taylor, were arrested.

The men claim they were not asked for an explanation by C. P. R. Constable Weller, who arrested them, but were hurried to the police station.

They have engaged Albert M. Judd to act for them. He is seeking their immediate release. Action for false arrest may follow, it is stated.

Canadian Clubs to Celebrate Dominion Day In Park

MILITARY TO ASSIST.

MEN'S and Women's Canadian Clubs of the city are to combine in an official celebration of Dominion Day, to be held in Victoria Park Saturday morning, July 1, and marked with an impressive military display and community singing.

The Dominion Day celebration was inaugurated last year as a public ceremony by the combined Canadian Clubs, and at a joint meeting in the public library Monday afternoon it was decided to continue the happy precedent and mark another milestone in national progress by a fitting demonstration.

Speakers of prominence are to be secured, and civic officials will take part in the ceremonies. General King, D.O.C., who was present at the meeting, has promised the full co-operation of the officers and men at Wolseley Barracks.

The celebration will be brief, lasting only from 11 to 12 o'clock, but it is to include the impressive "feu de joie" and the royal salute of 21 guns, used only to mark events of national importance. The Royal Canadian Regiment will parade, and the men of the 12th Battery, under Major Kenneth Ingram, as well as a detachment of the First Hussars, and it is expected that the Boy Scouts, Boys' Naval Brigade and the Girl Guides will each have a share in the ceremonies.

Community singing will augment the military display. Dominion Day is of a purely Canadian character, and the Canadian national songs, with "God Save the King," will form the program.

Montreal, June 27.—John Cummings, former ship's steward, condemned to death for the murder of his wife in November, 1911, and whose sentence was commuted to imprisonment for life was released from St. Vincent de Paul penitentiary yesterday after serving a ten year's sentence. A life sentence means twenty years under the Canadian system, but good conduct by the prisoner cuts it in half.

Cummings had been separated from his wife and meeting her one day in the street in company with a man he shot her dead.

WILL VOTE ON NEW BRIDGE FOR SOUTH LONDON

Ratepayers To Decide On Question at Next Election.

MAYOR FAVORS PLAN

Brazier Will Close Old Traction Structure to Pedestrians.

Ratepayers of London will likely be called upon to vote on a bylaw authorizing construction of a bridge connecting Richmond street with South London at the next civic election, according to Mayor Cameron Wilson and Ald. J. T. May.

While the "Traction" Company bridge, which was acquired by the city, serves pedestrian traffic across the River Thames at this point, City Engineer Brazier announced Tuesday that this bridge will be closed in the near future, as it is becoming unsafe.

"I am going to bring up the question of a new bridge across the river at Richmond street south before the city council," declared Ald. May, who represents South London on the city council. "It will then be put to a vote of the ratepayers at the next civic election."

Bridge Badly Needed.

"Some years ago a bylaw to construct a bridge at this point was defeated by the ratepayers. It is badly needed, and opens up a residential district, which is rapidly growing."

Mayor Wilson has declared himself to be in favor of this proposed bridge, but doubts if it will carry on a vote of the people, in view of the fact that it serves but one portion of the city. He points out that Richmond street is one of the main thoroughfares, and should have a bridge connecting it with South London.

"It is bound to come," he informed The Advertiser. "But it is difficult to obtain a favorable vote of the people on a thing like that, because it is local, and the citizens take the view that it affects only the district which it serves."

With Aid, May.

"However, I am with Ald. May on this thing, and will support it when brought up before the city council. It will be submitted to the ratepayers at the next civic election."

In all probability the property owners will also be permitted to vote upon the question of a new city hall, and the feasibility of the present site for the new building at the election next December.

Declaring that the old Traction Company bridge, which crosses the River Thames between Clarence and Richmond streets to Carfax Crescent, will be closed to traffic.

NATIONAL COUNCIL URGES REFORMS

Seeks Legislation Compelling Production of Health Certificate Before Marriage.

Fort William, June 27.—Following the election of Mrs. C. E. Carmichael of New Glasgow, N. S., provincial vice-president for Nova Scotia, as president, the convention of the National Council of Women passed a resolution yesterday urging that the certificates of health be issued previous to marriage. The social hygiene movement introduced by the council, it is hoped, will do much toward ameliorating conditions, and in time make health certificates possible.

"The talented woman has been legislated against, but what of the woman who has become a lifelong sufferer after marriage?" asked Mrs. Torrington in her address. She stressed the necessity of a "social clean-up." The council also endorsed proposals for the mental inspection of schools, classes for sub-normal children, inspection of mental hospitals, commitment to mental hospitals through psychiatric clinics wherever possible, remedial punishment for crime, qualification of women physicians, psychiatrists, and discontinuance of annual examinations in schools where the vitality of both teachers and pupils is at the lowest ebb.

CLAIMS COMMUNIST PLOT TO KILL PREMIER POINCARÉ

Paris, June 27.—Accusing the communists of plotting the assassination of Premier Poincaré, and demanding that a law be passed immediately authorizing the minister of justice to place the most violent members of the communist party under arrest, Leon Daudet, royalist member of the parliament, caused an uproar in the chamber yesterday afternoon. The debate developed into invectives against the premier from the communist benches, in which the cry, "Poincaré means war!" was flung at Poincaré by Deputy Ernest Laffont.

Springing from his seat and pointing a warning finger at Laffont, Premier Poincaré shouted indignantly: "Do you take the responsibility for that remark?"

Laffont retorted something about "explaining the charge before public opinion."

POLICE THINK FUGITIVE FLED TO U. S. HAVEN

Identity of Thug Concealed at Time of Robbery by Black Mask.

WORE CHECKERED COAT

American Authorities Take Hand in Search For "Mystery" Man.

Who was the fifth man in the party of gunmen who, on the afternoon of Oct. 29 last held up and robbed of $11,000 cash the Wyoming branch of the Bank of Toronto?

Was he the mysterious figure, attired in a checkered coat, who, while the robbery was in progress, stepped back and forth over members of the bank staff as they lay prostrate in the manager's office and whose description at the subsequent trials of alleged members of the gang was missing, as the clerks acknowledged that they were unable to describe him other than the fact that his face was concealed by a black mask, which he never removed?

Members of the provincial police department, together with representatives of secret service agencies, who have been actively interested in the Wyoming robbery, freely admitted to The Advertiser late Tuesday night that with the arrest of the four London men, one of whom, William Ayers, has already been adjudged guilty, their investigation was by no means complete.

Five Men Participated.

That five and not four men actually participated in the Wyoming affair is their assumption and has been, they explain, since they first commenced operations in this district, and at this very moment it is intimated a search is still being maintained throughout the state of Michigan for the missing bandit, the fugitive whom they believe made up the party of five.

They do not believe, however, that he was the man, whom reputable residents of the village of Wyoming swore uncurled himself from among the rugs on the back seat of the bandit car and set the machine in motion as his comrades fled from the bank with the money, blazing away incidentally in all directions with "six-guns."

They are rather inclined to conclude that he was one of the two men, whose activities in the bank were not evidently directly accounted for by any witness who testified at the preliminary hearings and trials that followed.

Kept In Background.

These two men, one in the checkered coat, kept well in the background throughout the robbery, and none of the employees were able, they said, to get a proper view of them, and could not swear as to their identity or general appearance, other than they did little or no talking and never once removed their masks from their faces.

The officers do think, however, that before the ultimate arrest of his alleged associates, the fifth man, whether prompted by fear or by direct warning, fled the neighborhood in the general direction of Michigan and naturally has not since returned.

They explain further that two or three other Londoners, whom while not believed to have been actually connected with the Wyoming robbery, were known to have been associated from time to time with the alleged gangsters, have not been noticed in this vicinity during the past few weeks.

American federal police as well as the police of certain cities throughout Michigan, where a man answering the description of the suspected bandit has been seen within the past three weeks, have been asked to co-operate with the Canadian authorities, while a strict watch is still being maintained at border points, east and west.

Washington, June 27.—Realizing that the deadlock existing between mine operators and union mine workers will not voluntarily be broken, the federal government has prepared today, responsible officials stated, to offer a plan for negotiating the differences which, it was believed, could not be rejected by either party to the strike.

Herrin, Ill., June 27.—Removal to safety from "bloody" Williamson County and the Southern Illinois coal fields of wounded non-union men now in the hospital, in the wake of last Thursday's mine massacres. Twelve wounded survivors of the forty-seven guards and workers, who were sent on the death march out of the Lester strip mine, are lying on their hospital cots, their wounds swathed in bandages. Some of the wounded say they sense danger, and express fear of further violence if they leave the hospital unprotected.

TWO SUSPECTS HELD.
Branford, June 27.—Two suspects in the Kent County holdups of Sunday night, Edward Corran and H. C. Wilson, are being held by Branford police.

Both were remanded for a week, the former on a charge of carrying a loaded revolver and the latter on a charge of holding a motor car into Canada without permission of the immigration authorities.

The men were driving a car bearing a description similar to that one used in Kent, when they were arrested.

When Constable Lower, a new man on the force, became suspicious of the pair on Peel street Monday night, he accosted them, and then telephoned Sergeant Wallace. Two officers brought the men and their car to the police station. The revolver was found under the cushions of the seat.

WILL VOTE ON NEW CITY SOUTH BRIDGE

to be rapidly deteriorating, City Engineer H. A. Brazier has announced his intention of closing it to pedestrian traffic in the near future.

Used by Hundreds.
This bridge was purchased from the Traction Company along with a portion of the right-of-way of this railway when it ceased operation, and is several hundred feet in length. The portion formerly utilized for the railway cars has been allowed to fall into disuse, but a foot bridge at one side, maintained by the city, is used by hundreds of residents of South London daily.

The nearest bridges across the south branch of the river on either side are those at Wellington and Ridout streets and the Traction bridge serves materially as a short cut for South Londoners to the downtown section of the city.

It is understood that the timbers in the bridge, which are about fifteen years old, are becoming decayed, and are a menace to the safety of those who travel on the bridge. For this reason the bridge will be closed by the city engineer this summer.

The bridge proper over the river is of steel construction, but several hundred feet of trestle work connects it with Carfrae Crescent, and it is this section that is to be pronounced unsafe.

Alkali In Shampoos Bad For Washing Hair

Don't use prepared shampoos or anything else that contains too much alkali. This is very injurious, as it dries the scalp and makes the hair brittle.

The best thing to use is just plain Mulsified coconut oil shampoo, for it is pure and entirely greaseless. It's very easy to use. The hair dries quickly and evenly, and is soft, fresh looking, bright, fluffy, wavy, and easy to handle. Besides, it loosens and takes out every particle of dust, dirt and dandruff. Be sure you get Mulsified. Beware of imitations. Look for the name Watkins on the package.—Adv.

Will Devote Proceeds of Ball Game, Friday, To Kiwanis Camp For Boys

The whole proceeds of the baseball game on Friday, between Bay City and London, has been generously donated to the boys' work of the London Kiwanis Club.

The money will be devoted to the boys' camp, which will be held the last two weeks in July and the first two weeks in August on the Thames River on Elmer Sage's farm. Arrangements have been completed to provide for a camp for 125 boys, who would otherwise not be able to secure such privileges. Some 55 boys will be sent from London, and the remainder will be sent by the Kiwanis Clubs of St. Thomas, Galt, Kitchener, Ingersoll and other Western Ontario Kiwanis Clubs.

The members of the Kiwanis Club and their friends will attend the game in a body, and the general public are invited to attend in order to help out its worthy work.

WOULD GIVE LABOR SPENDING POWER

Frederick Jowett Addresses Opening Session of British Convention.

Edinburgh, Scotland, June 27.—In his presidential address to the 22nd annual conference of the British Labor Party, which opened here this morning, Frederick W. Jowett said the party not only stood for self-determination for Ireland, India and Egypt, but it also desired to relate these claims to the economic facts so that the world might profit. He said the steady economic pressure at home, caused partly by the loss of foreign trade, had produced stagnation.

Mr. Jowett declared that capitalism, more powerful than ever, was using its power to destroy the defenses of organized labor. He denounced the high rates of interest on the country's debts and the wasteful extravagance of the wealthy at race meetings and royal functions.

"By a capital levy," he declared, "by a graduated income tax falling heavily on the largest incomes, and by the abolition of all taxes on food and necessary commodities, the labor party hopes to transfer the spending power to the workers whenever the opportunity comes."

BRITISH EMPIRE STEEL CO. ELECTS DIRECTORS' BOARD

Adjourned Annual Meeting of Shareholders Held Tuesday in Montreal.

Montreal, June 27.—The adjourned annual meeting of the shareholders of the British Empire Steel Corporation and its subsidiary companies was held here this morning. In his address Roy M. Wolvin, the president, referred to the meeting of the shareholders of the corporation held two weeks ago for the purpose of permitting further discussion on the subject of the corporation's new financing plans. These plans, he said, have not yet been completed. Despite rumors of important changes in the directorate, including the appointment of two or three prominent business men to executive positions, no announcement in connection with this was made.

The following board of directors was elected: Hon. C. P. Baughen, Rt. Hon. Viscount Furness, Sir Trevor Dawson, Major-General Sir Newton Moore, Hector McInnes, K.C., D. H. McDougall, Dr. W. L. De Gaulle, Frank Rees, W. D. Gross, H. B. Smith, R. M. Stewart, G. L. Stone, Benj. Talbot, J. P., and R. M. Wolvin. The above names constitute the first permanent board since the incorporation of the company less than a year ago.

RAILWAY OFFICIAL PASSES ON TRAIN

Windsor, June 27.—A Stuart Baldwin, 61 years old, of Chicago, vice-president of the Illinois Central Railroad, died suddenly of heart trouble on a Michigan Central train last night, the crew reported on arrival here this morning.

Mr. Baldwin, accompanied by his wife and daughter, had only returned from a three months' visit in Europe on Monday morning.

The train had just entered St. Thomas when Mr. Baldwin was stricken. Trainmen summoned a physician at St. Thomas, but the railroad executive was dead before medical assistance reached him. The body was taken on the train to Chicago.

SEARCH IS MADE FOR MURDERERS

The German government has requested the authorities at Helsinki, Finland, to detain three men who embarked on the steamship Rugen at Stettin Saturday afternoon representing themselves as English sailors.

Will Care For Green At County Jail Instead Of New London Golf Links

Police court seemed "what it used to be" Tuesday morning, when a drunk who has been in jail scores of times made his first appearance since last October.

"What have you to say?" asked Deputy Magistrate P. H. Bartlett. "Guilty, I guess," said the ancient inebriate.

"Where did you get your liquor?" interposed Chief Birrell.

"I didn't have any liquor," replied the prisoner. And police concluded it was Florida water that had

TUBERCULIN TESTS TO BE MADE SOON

Arrival of Dominion Veterinary Expected by Health Officer.

Following a request forwarded to the federal government by the Board of Health at its last meeting, urging immediate action, Dr. W. S. Downham, medical officer of health for London states that a government veterinary will arrive in this city soon to conduct tuberculin tests on herds of cows which supply milk for London homes.

The tuberculin test is a means of detecting the presence of tuberculosis in cattle, and serves as a protection to milk consumers.

"After the inspector has gone over the herds, all dairies supplying milk to London will be divided into two classes," said Dr. Downham. "The first class or class A will consist of those herds which have been tested and found free from tuberculosis. The other class or class B will consist of those herds which have not been tested, and will have to be pasteurized before being offered for sale here. The people would sooner have raw milk free from tuberculosis than the pasteurized variety, and therefore dairies in class A will be in the greatest favor."

It is understood that the staff of the veterinary surgeon-general at Ottawa is depleted at present, which explains the delay in arrival of an inspector at London. Need of the tuberculin test is urgent in this district in order to protect patients at Victoria Hospital and Byron Sanatorium, who are kept largely on milk diet.

PROPOSE GERMANY TO BUILD CHANNEL TUNNEL

French Minister of Public Works Submits Plan For Reparation Commission.

Paris, June 27.—A huge war reparations plan under which the Germans would reconstruct France and also build the long planned tunnel under the English Channel, has been submitted by the minister of public works, M. Le Troquoer, Premier Poincare, who has laid it before the French member of the reparations commission.

The plan involves the use of German labor and materials to the extent of twenty billions of francs. The newspapers, publishing the details, approve the project, declaring that Germany cannot refuse to pay. They say if she is able to carry on the construction of railways and telegraph lines in Germany she is able to reconstruct the war-torn areas in France and also to help build the canals, electric power plants and railways, which are needed in France and which are now under partial construction.

FINDS DELORME UNFIT FOR TRIAL

Dr. Bellefeuille Presents Technical Evidence At Montreal Hearing.

Declares Accused Does Not Realize Gravity of His Position.

MONTREAL, June 26.—A day of expert evidence was all that was offered in the court of king's bench today in the case in which a jury is to determine whether or not the Rev. Father Adelard Delorme is in a fit mental condition to stand trial on the charge of having murdered his half-brother, Gaston Bellefeuille, assistant medical director of St. Jean de Dieu Lunatic Asylum and assistant professor of the chair of mental diseases at the University of Montreal, was the sole witness, and his cross-examination had not been completed by Crown Attorney Walsh when the court adjourned until tomorrow.

After much technical evidence as to the mental status of close relatives of the accused, Dr. Bellefeuille made the definite statement that the prisoner is not in a fit state to undergo a trial; that he does not understand the gravity of the case and that he cannot act properly in his own defence.

When the trial was resumed, jurymen of the petty jury panels not yet sworn and released last Monday crowded the court early in response to their instructions to report again today.

Excludes Women.
The Delorme sisters, with their aunt, were in place early and were followed by several other ladies who are witnesses in the case postponed until today. When Judge Monet, apparently well on the way to recovery, took the bench, the room was not too uncomfortable due to the police barrier thrown around the court.

The petty jurymen not sworn were released until July 10, Judge Monet telling them that, although the Delorme case might not last until that date, the crown would require the period for work before it.

As "Adelard Delorme" was called by the clerk of the court, Judge Monet remarked that, despite his instructions, he noticed ladies present. He was informed that they were witnesses in cases called for today. As those cases were postponed, he ruled that the female witnesses must leave the court, and they withdrew.

The jury appeared in good spirits, having spent a good deal of the week-end in the open air, through arrangements made by Sheriff L. J. Lemieux. On Saturday they took an automobile trip through St. Vincent de Paul to Terrebonne. Yesterday they attended mass at Bonsecours church.

His Mental Condition.
Gustave Monette, senior counsel for the defense, called Dr. Gaston Bellefeuille to the witness-stand with reference to the prisoner's mental condition. He had visited the accused about 60 times in Bordeaux Jail between May 19 and June 12, and on two occasions his visits had been in company with lawyers for the defense. His conversations with Delorme had lasted from one and a quarter to two and a half hours each.

Dr. Bellefeuille explained that in making an expertise of persons of mental condition, it was not enough to consider his present status, but his past life must be considered, and his "personal antecedents."

"The influence of heredity, he continued, could not be ignored in connection with mental diseases."

"Heredity," said Dr. Bellefeuille, "renders an individual predisposed to mental disease. The individual may be of normal intelligence until a certain point is reached—perhaps an accident, loss of money, extreme grief may be responsible—he may fall into degeneracy or mental alienation."

Wants Leek Blazoned In Canada's Armorial Bearings

OTTAWA, June 27.—That the leek should be included in the Canadian coat-of-arms as the national symbol of Wales, was the request made in the House early this morning by John Evans, Progressive member for Saskatoon.

"The symbols of four of the greatest races of the world, the English, Scotch, Irish and French, have been included," he said, "but the leek of my native Wales, which gives its name to the heir to the throne, has been omitted."

Premier King promised consideration to Mr. Evans' request, at which the House laughed heartily.

CITIZENS RUSH TO AVOID FINES BY FILING RETURNS

Heeds Warning Of Assessment Commissioner Grant—Court Action Impends.

Warned by publication in The Advertiser that Assessment Commissioner Stephen Grant would prosecute for failure to file income tax returns, still more delinquents in this regard turned in the necessary information.

Mr. Grant states that several citizens who ignored notification to file income tax returns have done so since the publication of threatened police court proceedings, but several more who have neglected to do so will be summoned.

"The returns of those who delayed filing them are coming in nicely now," said the assessment commissioner Tuesday, "but not sufficient to boast about. We will summons to court those who persist in ignoring the warning."

"It has been suggested that the names of the delinquents be published, but that might not be right. Any of those who have not yet received assessment notices should let us know, and we will send them notices."

Mr. Grant points out that there is a penalty of ten dollars a day for delay in filing income tax returns. There are about ninety citizens liable to this penalty, the majority of whom are assessed in ward one.

Many other noted public health experts will deliver addresses at the conference, and selection of Dr. Hill to take his place on the program with these specialists is regarded as a tribute to his ability and an honor to London and Western University.

DOES NOT BELIEVE SCHOOL SITE CAN BE PURCHASED

Alderman States That Owners of Trafalgar Street Property Do Not Wish to Sell.

While deploring the fact that but little or nothing has been done by the board of education this year to provide further school accommodation in Southeast London, Ald. Gordon B. Drake expressed the belief Tuesday that in any event the trustees would not be able to purchase a second site for a public school as suggested in place of the Dakin street location.

The councillor explained that he now understood that the owners of the new site in question, on Trafalgar street, did not wish to sell their property at this time. He feels, however, that the school trustees would be exercising poor judgment should they persist in their original intention to construct a new edifice at Dakin and Price streets.

SHIP NOTORIOUS WYOMING CAR

Officers Leave For Detroit With Alleged Property of Insurance Company.

McMullen Is Safeguarded From Loss by $3,000 Bond.

Bearing Ontario license number 69-561, the Oldsmobile touring car in which Edward A. McMullen, alleged Wyoming bandit, was riding when arrested, and which he claims as his property, leaves Tuesday afternoon for Detroit, Michigan, in charge of American officers.

The machine is claimed by the Mercantile Insurance Company, the attorneys here for which concern that the car was stolen soon after manufacture, from in front of the Motor Sales Company, Flint, Michigan. The insurance company paid the cost of the machine, and now claims the machine as theirs. A bond of more than $3,000 has been furnished to safeguard the interests of McMullen, who, while now awaiting trial in the Lambton County jail for alleged complicity in the Wyoming bank robbery of October last, claims, through his counsel, McEvoy and Judd, that he purchased the machine from a reputable garage in Toronto.

As it has been definitely established that a McLaughlin master six was employed by the Wyoming bandits, there is no claim by the authorities that the contested machine was used in the robbery.

FINDS INTERESTING RELICS AT OLD INDIAN FORT NEAR LONDON

Government Archaeologist, Excavating On Farm of Ray
Lawson, Able To Reconstruct Mode of Living Used By Attawandaron, a Tribe of Aborigines Existing 300 Years Ago.

Excavations made during the past two months at the buried Indian fort on the farm of R. Lawson, lot 29, concession 4, London Township, have enabled W. Wintenburg, archaeologist of the department of museums in Ottawa, to reconstruct the lives of the aborigines of 300 years ago better than from observations at any other historical site in the province of Ontario.

The attention of the government was first attracted to this site, cited as the headquarters three centuries ago of the Attawandaron, an unwarlike tribe, by Dr. S. Woolverton of this city, who had long taken an interest in it historically, and who had a collection of relics from the spot.
Difficulty Was Encountered.

Last year when the government first took up the work considerable difficulty was encountered by the develpers with the owners of the property, which has since changed ownership.

During the winter Mr. Wintenburg and his party ceased operations, awaiting the government renewal of the grant for the work. It has since been renewed, and two months ago Wintenburg again commenced his investigations. From what he has uncovered it is evident that the tribe of the Attawandaron perished by fire and tomahawk. And, it is declared, well for the excavators that fire entered into the extinguishing of the tribe, for carbon or charcoal is valued to have the facility of preserving itself against time.

Skulls, caches of Indian corn, evidences of the domestication of pumpkins and peas have been uncovered. In those days each tribesman had his own cellar, a hole in the ground, which he used for his private food preserve and refrigeration combined. These and many other archaeologically interesting things have been unearthed.

On the first of July the London Historical Society hope, with the permission of the owner, to visit the fort, and hear from Wintenburg the results of his work.

Considerable publicity was given to the fort a year ago, the notice of Rowland Hill, an official of the National Museum at Ottawa, being drawn to the place by a sketch or map which appeared in The London Advertiser, which outlined the fort as it had once stood in the forest, palisades and all.

Negotiations are at present underway between the London Historical Society and the federal government, to bring about the establishment of the two most interesting points historically in the county of Middlesex, Battle Hill on Longwoods road—the only place in Middlesex where a battle is known to have taken place —and the Indian fort. The Historical Society has received word that the government will consider a grant for the decoration of these places.

BROUGHT TO LONDON from the Chippawa Canal undertaking the two rotary converters now being installed in the Horton street hydro power station, will be ready for use July 1.
The new equipment is intended to care for the increased demand for electrical current by the London and Port Stanley Railway, which is increasing remarkably, the officials state, more particularly on holidays and Sundays.

EARLY NEXT WEEK the special committee of the Ontario government chosen to investigate hotels and the improvement of the tourist service will arrive in London. The committee will tour Middlesex County and consider the question of improving the tourist and the service given the traveling public. Persons desiring to forward suggestions on the matter will be received by the committee, of which Edgar Watson is chairman.

mens at the park.

THE WEEKLY REPORT covering diseases in London, as issued by Dr.
W. S. Downham, medical officer of health shows the city to be comparatively free from communicable diseases. The only new cases of such diseases reported here last week were three chickenpox, one diphtheria, and twelve of whooping cough, which report Dr. Downham described as "light."

Gives Up Airplane Flights For Year

PETITE LILY LEITZEL, world-famous aerial gymnast, will make no airplane flights this season. Her contract with Riefers Brothers specifies that she that she is to go no higher off the ground than the dome of the circus main tent.

To most girls the experience of flying about at the end of a rope fixed in the very top of a circus tent, where the slightest miscalculation might result in serious injury, would furnish thrills enough to last them for an ordinary lifetime. Not so with the darling Lillian. She regards her occupation as a rather tame one.

Last summer she varied the "monotony" by making a dozen flights in half as many different style planes. On more than one occasion she all but drove the circus managers to despair with her madcap undertakings. So when this season's contract was drawn, a special "no flight" clause was inserted.

Lily Leitzel has the reputation of being the most widely known and best remembered of all circus stars and the Ringlings do not propose having her risk her neck in the clouds.

"I suppose that if I did all my flying over a net it would be quite all right," pouts the dainty aerialist, "but just wait until the circus tour ends; then I'll show them."

This season's mammoth double circus offers more stars than ever before, and these have been "varied" by the introduction of Europe's most sensational wild animal acts displayed in a trio of steel arenas. All will be seen here

PLAN PROGRAM OF WORK FOR "Y" BOYS

Officials Outline Institution's Activities For Summer and Fall Terms.

A conference of Y. M. C. A. officials in progress all this week for the purpose of completing the summer program and to make preliminary arrangements for fall and winter work.

The men's, boys' and assistant boys' secretaries and the physical director are engaged in drawing up the fall program for their departments, and will submit them to Edward Jenkins, general secretary, before the end of the week.

A athletic program for the fall and winter, it is said, will be the best ever instituted by the London Y. M.
C. A. as the new physical director,
George Sinclair, of Moncton, N. B., has had a wide experience in this particular field.

Mr. Sinclair has intimated that it is his intention to endeavor to associate the "Y" with all branches of sport in the city.

The boys' department of the Y. M.
C. A. will close at the end of this week for the summer months and camp will be held for the "Y" junior and senior boys during July.
The attending conference are:
Edward Jenkins, general secretary;
George Sinclair, physical director;
Lloyd Houlding, boys' secretary; Robert Liddle, men's secretary, and Wilfred Spearman, assistant boys' secretary.

GIVE DELIGHTFUL RECITAL AT MUSICAL ART INSTITUTE

Lengthy Program Of Instrumental and Vocal Numbers Proves Cleverness Of Pupils.

One of the season's most delightful and interesting recitals was that given at the London Institute of Musical Art Monday night by pupils of the Misses Margaret Coleman, Rowena Weld and Ulah Kennedy, assisted by Mrs. Hulbert, vocalist, and pupil of Mr. Charles Percy, and Beth Harkness, and Barbara Gibberd.

The lengthy program showed throughout cleverness and excellent training and greatly delighted the audience.

The following took part: "Airy
Fairies," Jean Weber; "Rowing Song," Vera Tinning; "Melody," Veronica Scott; "Fairies," Vera Tinning; Alfred Kalmanson; reading, "The Man in the Moon," Beth Harkness; "Robin's Lullaby," Mary Percy; "Cradle Song," Mary Buchner; "Come for It's June" and "A Fat Little Fellow," Mrs. J.
Hulbert; "At the Carnival," Margaret Craig; "Robin's Lullaby," Bobbie Pilgram; "Auf Wieder," Reid Evans; reading, "She Displeased It," Barbara Gibberd; "Valse," Jessie Little;
"At Evening," Velda Rodda; "Break
o' Day," Mrs. J. Hulbert; "Tarantella," Gordon Jackson; "Long, Long Ago," Sydney Lawton; "Menuet," Mary Acres; "Shepherd's Tale" and "Prelude," Clara Jones; "La Scin-tilla," Gordon Jackson.

In various parts of the city, were issued by Inspector A. M. Piper Monday, E. Cooke will erect one of these dwellings on Elgin street at a cost of $1,100. J. E. Harris will construct such a house at 921 William street, costing $1,400, and J. Morgan will build one at 122 Simcoe street at a cost of $600. A total of 199 building permits have been issued in London this month, the aggregate estimated cost of these permits being $282,600.

WHILE IN VICTORIA PARK
three weeks ago, one of London's police constables left his revolver in one of the lavatories. When he returned the same night for it, it was missing. Since that time trace of it has not been found. Unless the party who took it, returns it at once, Chief of Police Robert Birrell stated
he would take action. The gun, which is police positive Colt, is worth $30, and unless the weapon is recovered, the officer who lost it will be assessed that amount by the police department.

ANNOYED OVER ELLIS' DELAY

Housing Commission Wants Letter Written To Hurry Inspector.

Will Deduct Cost of House
Repairs From Contractors' Accounts.

Echoes of the alleged defects in dwellings erected by the London Housing Commission, and indignation of the commissioners at the delay in the visit of a provincial inspector to investigate these houses, were the salient features of a meeting of the above body held Monday night.

The commission decided to write a letter to Provincial Housing Director Ellis at Toronto, in an effort to speed up the inspector's visit to London, and also directed Building Inspector A. M. Piper to remedy any defects in the homes, where the contractors fail to do so after being notified. Cost of these repairs will be deducted from the account due the contractors on the houses.

W. J. Wilds, who purchased a home on Madison avenue from the commission, was present at the meeting and complained of defects in his house.

"What about these defects?" he asked. "When are we going to get them fixed up?"

"Aside from the fact that your roof leaks there are not many defects are there?" asked Inspector Piper.

"The windows and lights are not right," said Mr. Wilds, who explained that only one window in his home does not leak water when it is raining, and that the electric lights are not working properly.

"Hayman & Willis have been instructed to repair the defects," stated J. W. Cunliffe, referring to the minutes of a previous meeting. "If they do not do it, the work will be done by the building inspector, and charged to Hayman & Willis."

The latter official pointed out that there is $2,000 only owed to the contractors, and he doubted if this amount would cover the cost of the necessary repairs.

R. Hessel, who presided at the meeting, explained that a provincial inspector would visit London to inspect houses in the Pine Lawn development in the near future, delay in his arrival being due to the fact that he is busily engaged with inspections elsewhere.

"He has been so long in coming that I move that the clerk write to Mr. Ellis to push him on," said J.
W. Cunliffe. "He said he would be here in two weeks, and the two weeks are up." The motion carried.

"Before we go any further," continued Commissioner Cunliffe, "producing a copy of The Advertiser of last Saturday's issue, 'I see that The Advertiser is here. I want to know if this report of the court of revision with remarks credited to Mr. Swift of Pine Lawn is correct.'"

"It is," replied the reporter.

"Then I want that recorded in the minutes of this meeting," requested Commissioner Cunliffe. "That is as far as we will go just now. The statements which Mr. Swift is reported as making are absolutely incorrect, although the report may be a true one."

Several accounts were also passed at the meeting.

Airplane Carrying Mail Delayed By Accident

IT IS learned at the postoffice that disaster overtook the airplane which attempted to institute the mail service between Ottawa and Lethbridge, Alberta, with London as one of the stopping places in its schedule.

While it is not known locally where or how the plane came back to earth, postoffice officials think that their information concerning its coming to grief, must be authentic as the plane is long overdue.

INDIANS GRATEFUL FOR SQUARE DEAL

Grand Council Sends Congratulatory Letter to Hon.
Chas. Stewart.

Evidence that the bitterness and unrest stirred up within the heart of the Indians throughout the country by high-handed and inconsiderate treatment received from the Meighen government, has already been mitigated by the sympathetic understanding shown by Hon. Charles Stewart, minister of Indian affairs, and the actions of the Liberal government as a whole, is contained in a letter of appreciation sent from the Indians of the Croker Reserve on Walpole Island to Mr. Stewart.

It read as follows:
"Hon. Sir:—In today's press we have noted with pleasure your noble stand on the Indian question, with regard to amendments to the Indian Act now before the Parliament of Canada."

"We tender you hearty congratulations for the humane policy you are advocating, and for your splendid appreciation of the Indian question."

The letter was signed by Pete Altiman, president of the Indian branch of the G. W. V. A. of Walpole Island, Ontario.

The proposed amendments to the Indian Act were read before a meeting of the Grand General Indian Council at Cape Croker last week by Mr. Parker, representative of the Indian department.

He explained carefully the amendments to the enfranchisement clause relieving the Indians of the necessity of becoming enfranchised unless they so desired.

The council passed a vote of thanks to Mr. Parker, to the Government and to F. O. Left, president of the League of Indians, who has long fought for the repealing of the act.

LEAVES TO TALK RAIL WAGE CUT

Joseph Corbett To Represent
No. 4 Division At Montreal.

Would Not Give His Opinion
On Possibility of Strike Vote.

Joseph Corbett of this city, office representative of the Grand Trunk carmen in Canada, will go to Montreal early next week, where negotiations between the Canadian Railways' Association and the executive of division No. 4 will be re-opened for the purpose of discussing the proposed wage cut among the federated sh-trades.

A week or so ago the various union of the shop crafts throughout the division were notified of the proposed cut in wages, and as considerable dissatisfaction was manifested by uni-officials all over the country, the Canadian Railway Association through the chairman, Grant Ha-nnoted the executive of division No.
4 that negotiations would be opened.

More than 1,000 shop craft men of the Canadian Pacific and Grand Trunk railways in this district, at approximately 33,000 men in Canada are affected by the proposed wage cut.

Must Give Notice.
If the negotiations next week are not successful, said Mr. Corbett, the all the union officials will have meet to decide what action to take.
We will have plenty of time to this, as the railroads must give three days' notice before any wage cut can be enforced.

"However, I am not in a position yet to know whether a strike vote possible in the advent of the Canadian Railways' Association attempting enforce the cut.

The United States railway board slashed millions of dollars from the pay rolls of railway men in the United States, and since that time strike votes have been circulated over the country to determine whether or not a nation-wide strike would be resorted to.

Favor Strike.

The strike votes will all be in the July 30, and latest reports from Chicago state that on July 1, 1,200,000 union railroad employees will walk out, as the vote of eleven railroad unions affiliated with the American Federation of Labor has been overwhelmingly in favor of a strike.

Preference to acceptance of wage cuts and working rule revisions in the United States railroad labor board.

Mr. Corbett would not state whether he thought it probable that a sympathetic strike would be instituted in Canada, but pointed out that the situation in the United States was far more serious than in the country.

The members of the executive of Division No. 4, who will assemble in Montreal next week for the conference, are: R. J. Tallon, president of the division; Charles Dickie, general secretary; Frank McKenna, vice president of the Brotherhood of Railway Carmen; T. Rogers of Moncton representing the Machinists, District
No. 2; Joseph Corbett, London, Ont.
Brotherhood of Railway Carmen, and French Harrison of Montreal, represents the blacksmiths.

Dual Purpose Law.

COLLECTING from Germany on a reparation account, and at the same time providing protection against German labor are two things accomplished by the British "safeguarding of industries act" which has been operative for some time in Great Britain. The name of the act does not imply any beating about the bush, and the operation of the act has been found to be direct and comparatively simple.

A correspondent of the Montreal Gazette, writing under date of June 13 gives the following case to show how the measure performs in actual practice on a given article:

"The reparation tax on German goods coming into this country is 25 per cent, which we pay to our customs before goods are released from docks, at port of importation. For this we get a reparation receipt for the amount paid. We then forward this reparation receipt to the German manufacturer, together with our check for the remaining 74 per cent, thus clearing the transaction so far as the German manufacturer is concerned. Over and above this tax, we have to pay ad valorem duty of 33 1/3 per cent of the whole invoice value, and also on the German shipper's charges and freight, for example:

"A piano ordered from Germany costing £100 ex factory: 25 per cent payable to customs; 74 per cent payable to German manufacturer, together with reparation receipt. Ad valorem tax is charged on total of the next three items, viz. £108.

Cost of piano £100
Shippers' charges 6
Freight 2

Plus 33 1/3 per cent 108
£144

It is an ingenious plan, and seems to work satisfactorily. Every deal that goes through makes it certain that Germany is paying that much more on war account due to Britain.

No Troops Needed.

A FEW days ago a number of the points in the United States where the coal strike is being carried on. It was stated at once that there would be action, and those responsible for the shooting would be brought to justice.

Several days have passed, and the first intimation of an investigation comes in the word of MAJOR GEN. FOREMAN that he sees no need for troops in this part of the country.

He goes on to say that one of the mine owners there is to blame for the trouble, because he brought in some gunmen to disturb the peace of the community.

And did the state know anything about it? Apparently, for this same officer states in his report: "He (the mine owner) refused to withdraw his gunmen, although urged to do so by his state and county officials."

Now, if these reports are correct, there must be a strange, weird way of doing business in the coal mining areas. Gunmen brought in with the express purpose of kicking up a rumpus, and miners shooting down non-union workers. And on top of it all the calm assurance that no troops are needed to handle the situation.

Certainly not—the undertakers have it all well in hand.

Another Bluff.

NOW along comes Oshawa with a story that a rooster, apparently in his right mind, is looking after a brood of sixteen week chicks, although it does not say whether this rooster sat on the eggs for the required three weeks in the first place. The chances are that he did not, and could not. No rooster could perform that trick of patience. In that long-distance sit he would not last.

But now that the chicks are out, along he comes and takes possession. Just like a rooster—just like a man. No doubt he even feels so chesty as he leads his 'steer around that he may imagine at times that he laid the eggs and then squatted upon them until the turning of the point between eggs and chickens.

Or it may be that this rooster has heard that the head of many a seven-pound bird was being amputated this season, and looking at his own generous drumsticks, decided that as a meal for a large family he'd be a decided success. So, in order to save his own frame and wishbone, he goes over and grabs this young army of chicks and starts to sit on them, scratch for them, chuckle for them, and all the rest of the things that a speckled hen should do under ordinary circumstances.

It may look spectacular on the face of it, but we don't place much stock in it. This old bird will not be able to tell the young things the secrets of laying double-yolked eggs, nor how to make shells for the things when sand is scarce. No, sir, someone will come along and call his bluff, and then all that will be left will be to wring his neck and eat him.

Dodging the Tax.

S. THOMAS had a case in which a local man was fined $100 for having a quantity of cigarettes shipped to him by some friend in Windsor, the inference being that they had been smuggled across the border. The real offence was, no doubt, that they did not bear the excise stamp of the Canadian government.

The tax on cigarettes was put on to provide revenue for the carrying on of the business of the Dominion, and for the purpose of trying to pay our share of having helped to carry the last war to a successful conclusion.

This tax is noticeable and more abrupt than if collected by indirect methods.

When people start in to import cigarettes they start in to defraud the government out of the money due it under the laws of this country.

Cigarettes have not been prohibited, and there is no need for any person starting in to bootleg this form of smoking.

Coming Down.

GALT had a cat up a tree, and the firemen and hydro linemen had to come along to get puss out of the tree after a three-day stay up near the top of it. Nothing strange about this, and it is a farther fact that if they had not taken the cat out of the tree, it would probably have died there, for cats do not come down after being treed for any length of time.

After all, human beings make the same mistake, perhaps from different motives. Conditions and circumstances force them to the top of things for a short while, and there they try and stick.

They know they ought to come down a bit, but they are afraid or ashamed. Probably fear that someone will say they have not as much money as they used to have.

There are lots of good safe branches down a little lower, but they don't dare to come down to them.

And so instead of a fire department and hydro men we get a bailiff to bring them down.

LITTLE 'TISERS

Rumania owes Canada some $25,000,000 in principal and interest. We must try and interest them to pay the principal.

Folks can't understand the spread in price between hides and boots. Yes, but look what the eyelets and shoestrings cost!

Do you notice that most places in this province have taken down the "Don't Spit on the Sidewalk" signs? People around here being mostly too dry to spit.

About the time editorial writers are discussing who owned the treasure in the chest that they were going to get from the bottom of the River Wye, word came that the bottom of the creek was going to hang on to it.

A story is going the rounds of the Conservative papers: "Six Months of Mr. King," by which it is made to appear that the present government has been a fizzle and a shallow failure from first to last. We were just wondering who was paying for the sending out of this sort of slop. Is it possible the MICHEN people have a little green oil left out of the election fund?

The editor of the Almonte Gazette has had a busy week sifting out the wheat from the chaff. The Gazette tells the story thus: "This week the Gazette has sifted to the bottom about sixteen wonderfully fine stories that would have made Page 1 a hummer, but like most of the stories we hear week after week, they turned out to be simply kitchen gossip and lively imagination. Wonderful how fertile some imaginations are when people want to slime up their neighbors."

Are the lady teachers coming to the point where they can skim off the cream in their profession? The Collingwood Bulletin seems to think so, for it has been casting its eye over the bay toward Midland, and writes: "Midland High School is to be in charge of a lady principal, Miss Boyle, having been appointed at a salary of $2,400. Another lady, Miss Robins, is an assistant at $2,300. — Thus are the supposedly weaker sex shoving aside lordly man."

LEARN A WORD EVERY DAY

TODAY'S word is HYPOTHESIS. It's pronounced — hi-poth-e-sis, with accent on the second syllable.

It means—something not proved, but conceded for the sake of argument, a supposition provisionally adopted to account for certain otherwise unexplained facts, and to serve as a guide for further investigation.

It comes from a Greek root meaning "foundation" or "supposition," a combination of two words signifying "under" and "to put."

It's used like this:—"The suggestion that Mars is inhabited is regarded by most scientists as a rather interesting hypothesis, but few are yet prepared to accept it even in theory" (a "theory" being, in general usage, a "hypothesis" which has received some verification).

HOUSES ON INSTALLMENT PLAN

Opinion of Brantford Realtor on the Housing Question.

THAT a substantial cash payment is the proper starting point from which to start the purchase of a house is the claim of S. G. Read, who has been handling real estate in Brantford for 51 years.

Mr. Read states:

We have been about 51 years in the real estate business in Brantford, and have large experience with selling on the installment plan, and although we have sold a large number of houses on this plan, amounting to hundreds of thousands of dollars, yet no one has lost a dollar of principle or interest in collection of their moneys in this plan. Prior to the war, when houses were a great deal less in value, our plan was to accept 10 per cent down and 1 per cent a month, and we have always been successful in our work.

Since the war conditions have changed so much in real estate, houses have become so much greater in value, which is now 200 per cent because of the increased prices in building materials and labor, that instead of taking 10 per cent down, we take 20 per cent or 25 per cent down and 1 1/2 per cent a month. So far it has worked well. Of course, in dealing on this plan we see that the properties are not beyond a reasonable increase in value, and when they are extraordinary we have to do differently.

Secondly, in the matter of vacant lots and building houses, we insist always that a man shall own his own lot free of encumbrance, and afterwards we build the house for him upon the terms stated.

I do not think housing commissions are successful as a rule, because they have not taken this plan. They have purchased the lots themselves and allowed the people to make payments on the lot and the house afterwards without any good cash payment down, and their plan of principal and interest with long-term payments is not successful in this country. We compute the interest quarterly, and deduct the interest from the installments and credit the balance to principal account. One can see that this is reducing their liability.

As to corporations assisting their employees, that would be a very good plan, and I think that corporations should have sufficient interest in their employees to build houses for them if they can possibly do it. It is quite true that most of them need all their money in their own industries, and in such cases the firm should recommend their employees to a good agency or to a corporation that is doing the business of loaning money, and also to aid them in securing the money to build a home.

Renting a house. Good properties in central locations are very difficult to get just now. Our experience is, however, as for an investment, we collect rents from 100 houses and apartments, etc., and 15 per cent of these are in outlying districts, and from these we have had the most difficult time in getting the rents in, but the rents from central locations have been paid up promptly.

To sum up the whole position in one paragraph, we would say that our experience from 51 years in business is that it is far better for a real estate agency or corporation, organized for that purpose, to conduct the business on behalf of the people who want to buy houses, rather than for a housing commission to try, because the commission lacks the experience, other and more urgent requirements. The scheme, however, wisely been in abeyance, there is time now for more mature consideration. It has been urged as a means of providing employment, but the chances are it might involve a future sinkhole for labor. Meantime we have miles of streets, some of them at times almost impassable to business traffic, where men and materials can be employed to the city's advantage beyond experiment or question. If London would maintain a desirable position for industries, trade and homes, then adequate street maintenance, sufficient school room and a more reasonable tax levy are three, among other prime essentials. In these directions the authorities will find the good judgment of the city backing them. Ratepayers are not entertaining the illusion that some municipal Santa Claus would present them with a $10,000,000 dam, to say nothing of trustworthy assurance of safeguards from an aggravation of river calamities and burdens involved. The experience of London with fads and ill-advised projects during recent years is a sufficient warning to all spending bodies serving the public. W. THOMPSON.

Q.—The development of hydro-electric power in recent years in Canada has been remarkable. To what extent?

A.—Over 90 per cent of the prime motive power of Canada's central electric station industry is hydro power. On January 1, 1922, there were over 800 central electric stations in the Dominion.

FIRST EUROPEAN IN CANADA.

Q.—Who was the first European to set foot on the part of North America that afterwards became Canada?

A.—The first European to set foot on the part of North America that afterwards became Canada was John Cabot, in the summer of 1497, who, however, did not remain, but returned immediately. A monument in the city of Bristol, England, commemorates Cabot's voyage of discovery.

RESTFUL SLEEP

HE days are coming — or rather the nights — when many a heat sufferer will find himself unable to sleep.

"It's too hot to sleep," he'll say, and believe it, too.

Now, sleeping in warm weather is more or less a matter of keeping the mind cool. By this is meant that no matter how exhausting the day has been, nor how hot the night, one should try to banish worry when one climbs into bed. Lie back on the pillow with mind and muscles relaxed. Soon sleep will steal over you.

Oddly enough, a person who has worked himself into a state of mental hysteria because of the heat can too sleep successfully by means of

The BOOKSHELF

AFoot in England By D. H. Hudson, New York, Alfred Knopf, Publisher.

MANY persons think of W. H. Hudson solely as a chronicler of birds and beasts, of adventures or strange fancies in imagined territories.

But there never was a writer who could more definitely and surely paint for you the men and women and children he has observed, with whom he has mingled, friendly and interested, in the gentle English country, or met elsewhere in wanderings further afield.

He is a keen student of the human being as well as of the animals and the birds he loves so well, and his style loses no whit of its exquisite fineness when he describes an old farmer, a pair of little girls playing, a sad widow struggling in a small hamlet to keep body and soul together, or the vicar of some lonely, ancient church, playing wildly on the organ to soothe, perhaps, a stirring of the spirit he would not otherwise allow.

His books are books to be enjoyed at leisure, and particularly is this so of the present volume, which is confined to rural England, to long, slow days by the sea or on the wheel, to the sea or among the summer fields, to quiet talks in little cottages and charming experiences in villages and small towns where something lovely tempted to a longer stay.

The papers cover the first decade of the twentieth century, and were published long ago in England. But Hudson had to wait for the appreciation that belonged to him. Reading this book, you cannot but wonder where these articles and stories were first printed and why it was that their rare charm was not instantly recognized. But it was not, and in one of the chapters of this book the author alludes to the difficulties he had in getting published at all. He tells us that these walks of his—and often he had with him his wife—were almost the only pleasure the two knew, so hard-pressed were they by poverty and ill-health.

A Novel Ride

(Peterboro Examiner.)

IF Warden J. S. Strickland and Mr. E. R. Tate of Lakefield, proved nothing else in their feat of yesterday, they at least showed that the vigor and endurance of the Canadian of the pioneer days have not entirely died out. It was a "freak" wager, no doubt, but it was gallantly and effectively carried out, and it establishes a record in novel transportation.

To wheel a man in a barrow over ten miles of not too good road in a little over three hours is an achievement not to be underestimated. Few people who heard of the attempt imagined that it would be successfully completed, and fewer still thought that it would be possible to finish the journey in such good time.

Messrs. Strickland and Tate, however, are evidently of the calibre of men from whom the leaders of forlorn hopes come. In their bright lexicon there was no such word as "quit," and having put their hand to the handle of the barrow, they did not turn back. "Foolishness" was the description applied to the exploit by more than one critic yesterday, but at least it provided the people of Lakefield and Peterboro with a novel sensation, gave Mr. A. E. Dawson a unique ride, and showed a characteristic Canadian ability to triumph over obstacles and to deal with unusual conditions. And if the journey convinces the warden that the Lakefield-Peterboro road requires official attention, the traveling public will also gain by yesterday's exploit.

DEFEAT TORIES' PLAN TO AMEND RATES PROGRAM

Bill Based On Crow's Nest Pass Agreement Gets Third Reading.

LEADERS OUT OF DEBATE

Sir Henry Drayton Fails With His Amendment To Report.

OTTAWA, June 26.—(By Canadian Press.)—After five hours' debate the house tonight adopted the report of the special committee on railway transportation costs recommending further suspension of the Crow's Nest Pass agreement with the exception of the rates on grain and flour. Conservatives who broke from the committee in protest Saturday night again contested the report on the floor of the house. They had an amendment, moved by Sir Henry Drayton, that the railway commission be empowered to suspend the Crow's Nest Pass agreement, "such suspension to be followed immediately by submission to the governor-in-council of a new schedule of rates as reduced by the commission."

But the Conservative amendment did not provoke the long battle expected. Curiously enough not one of the three party leaders spoke on it, and it finally went down to defeat on the remarkable vote of 168 to 43, a majority against the amendment of 125. W. M. German, Liberal, voted for the amendment. Two Conservatives, T. L. Church of North Toronto, and W. F. MacLean of South York, voted against it. Otherwise, Conservatives voted for the amendment, Liberals and Progressives voted against it.

Division on the amendment was preceded by an episode which convulsed the house with merriment. Hon. J. B. M. Baxter was speaking, when W. F. MacLean interrupted him to ask if he would move abrogation of the agreement. Mr. Baxter accepted the challenge. He moved abrogation as a sub-amendment. The house was amused, but gave the sub-amendment no support. Mr. Baxter and Mr. MacLean were alone in voting for it.

Following the adoption of the report, events moved rapidly. A bill based on the committee's recommendations was introduced on second reading. The prime minister and the leader of the opposition participated in a brief debate.

Church Moves Hoist.

T. L. Church (Conservative, North Toronto), moved the six months' hoist of the bill, but his motion was declared lost without the house dividing. The bill then quickly passed committee stage and received third reading. It now goes to the Senate.

The Conservative amendment was worded as follows:

That the report be not now concurred in, but that this house express the views and make the recommendations which follow:

1. That while the board of railway commissioners remains as it is now a tribunal constituted by parliament to fix railway rates without discrimination and in accordance with changing conditions and to meet the needs of the country as a whole, it should be left free to perform such duty without dictation from this house and subject only to review by the governor in council as in the railway act provided.
2. That large and general reductions of freight rates particularly on basic commodities, are not only obviously demanded in the national interest, but are admitted by all concerned to be possible and to have been possible for several months and action to that end by the railway commission has only to await the decision of the government and of parliament as regards the Crow's Nest Pass agreement.
3. That to enable the railway commission to carry out its duty as defined above such board should be empowered to suspend the said agreement, such suspension to be followed immediately by submission to the governor-in-council of a new schedule of rates as reduced by the commission, the suspension to be revocable if such condition is not approved by the governor-in-council, but otherwise to continue for one year within which time the will of parliament may be again expressed.

Consideration was opened by Hon. A. K. MacLean, chairman of the special house committee on railway costs, who moved that the report of the committee be adopted. The report recommends that the Crow's Nest Pass agreement be further suspended, with a proviso that the current rates on grain and flour come into effect next month. The general question of rate reductions is referred to the railway commission. The report also contains a proviso that the Crow agreement may be suspended for a second year at the option of the government.

In moving concurrence in this report, Mr. MacLean said that some matters referred to the committee belonged to the realm of speculative economics, and he doubted whether the parliamentary committee was competent to deal with them.

Sir Henry Drayton: "Hear, hear!" Among these was the question of the effect of railway rates on industry. There were competent authorities who said that railway rates were a vital factor in trade recovery, and equally competent maintained that they played a small part.

It must be borne in mind that railway service was merely a commodity to be bought and sold, said Mr. MacLean. The railways had their costs of living to face as well as everybody else.

Considers Rates a Puzzle.

Canada that body was the railway commission.

"Freight rates are much like the Divine Decree—they pass understanding," said Mr. MacLean.

The concrete and important question which the committee was required to answer was whether or not the Crow's Nest Pass agreement should again come into force. Railway witnesses had argued in favor of continued suspension, the railways had voluntarily offered to submit themselves to the railway board in making certain freight reductions on basic commodities.

The judgment of the committee had been that the Crow's Nest agreement should not be brought back into effect except in regard to wheat and flour.

Mr. MacLean explained that the offer made by the railways was on the understanding that the agreement would be suspended in toto. Under the report of the committee which recommended the adoption of the Crow's Nest rates on grain, the estimated loss to the railways would be $14,000,000.

The committee was divided largely, Mr. MacLean believed, because members wanted an immediate reduction of the rates on basic commodities. It was his opinion that the objection to the Crow's Nest Pass rates on grain would not have been heard if the recommendation had been accompanied by a reduction on other commodities. One member of the committee had moved for the Crow's Nest Pass rates on grain and the application of the reduction offered of the railways to other commodities. The committee had divided evenly on this proposal, and Mr. MacLean had settled the matter by voting against it. He had taken this course because there was no way of knowing that the railways would submit to the reduction proposed, and he also objected to it because it appeared to be an effort of a parliamentary committee to fix reductions of freight rates.

Reached Deflation Period.

The committee realized that they had reached the period of deflation both for railways and for cost of operation, the latter fact being as much for the public as the railways. One of the greatest dangers today was the belief held by sections of the public that railways were run under a sort of supernatural agency which required nothing from the public in return for service rendered.

Sir Henry Drayton congratulated the Progressive members on having secured what he believed they wanted, but wished he could congratulate members from sections of the country other than the West. He congratulated the Western grain growers, but wished he could have congratulated the Western stock-raisers and producers of farming commodities other than grain. He would also like to have been able to congratulate workmen in other sections of the country on an absolutely necessary general reduction in the rates on basic commodities which formed the product of their labors.

It was unfair to charge the farmers in Eastern Canada more for transporting their grain than was charged the grain growers in the West. Mr. MacLean was in the position of the lady who was convinced against her will, but still held to her original opinion. Every one of his arguments was against the report.

Sir Henry thought the report was the result of a desire to deal with a political exigency rather than to promote the best interests of agriculture. The value of field crops over the whole of Canada in 1921 was $1,326,233,000. Of this total the three Western provinces had produced approximately $870,000,000. Why should discrimination be shown against agriculture in all the other provinces and in favor of Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta?

The report discriminated against every kind of agricultural activity in Canada save the production of grain on the prairies, although potatoes had been allowed to rot in the ground in New Brunswick because the freight rates were too high to ship them. Agriculture in Ontario had produced $441,415,000. Was this not of some importance, and deserving of consideration when railway rates were being fixed? It was important that the West should have lower freight rates on grain, but these should not be gained at the expense of all other parts of the country.

Premier Asks Explanation.

The report contained a "pious wish" that there should be general reductions, but the farming interests in the province, other than the three prairie provinces, would not get much more than this wish. Mr. MacLean was right in saying that the committee was not qualified to deal with the rate question, but yet it assumed to do so. Sir Henry reminded the house that the country spent $115,000,000 on the National Railways last year. This was more than could be raised through the income tax and excess profits tax combined. No one would say that railway rates should be fixed on the basis of the Canadian National Railways, but admittedly the country was deeply interested that the deficit on those lines should not be multiplied.

Sir Henry concluded by moving his amendment, which was seconded by C. H. Dickie of Nanaimo.

After the Speaker had read the amendment, the premier asked Sir Henry what the amendment meant by saying that the railway commission should be left free to fix rates "without dictation."

Sir Henry replied that he did not know there was any fault to be found with the word "dictation." On a previous occasion when a member of the opposition had asked the meaning of the word he had been told to go to the dictionary or a school book.

Sir Henry did not propose to take that attitude, but would point out that Parliament was binding the commission by the Crow's Nest agreement.

The premier pointed out that after July 6 the Crow's Nest Pass agreement would come into force unless Parliament enacted otherwise. Did Sir Henry say that Parliament should not take action?

"Certainly take action," replied Sir Henry, "and unshackle the board."

No one rose from the Liberal or Progressive benches to reply to Sir Henry Drayton, and the debate was continued by T. L. Church (Conservative, North Toronto). Mr. Church said he had always been opposed to the appointment of the committee. This was a business question in which Parliament should not interfere. The railway commission had been discussing it for years. He wanted to protest against the way the committee had conducted its business. The appointment of the committee was illegal. The railway commission had sole jurisdiction over railway rates independent of this house.

In the committee municipalities which had fought against railway rates increases had not been invited to appear. He regretted that the so-called farmers' government in Ontario had not thought fit to appear in defense of the interests of the farmers of that province.

Reviews Report.

Mr. Church reviewed the report at considerable length and declared that the "joker" was found in the paragraph which said that the railways and the government should get together in an attempt to make reductions all along the line.

The board of railway commissioners should be reorganized once and for all. Results would never be secured until this was done. A board patterned after the interstate commerce commission of the United States should be set up.

W. F. MacLean (South York) argued that the Crow's Nest Pass agreement should be allowed to go into effect. It had the sanction of parliament about it. When something was done for only a small section of the community, for the farmers of the West and nothing for the farmers of the East, it was doing a wrong.

Mr. Crerar was a party to the Crow's Nest Pass agreement and now and the government should get together allowing the Canadian Pacific Railway to get out of its solemn agreement.

"I am against the report and not altogether in harmony with the agreement," Mr. MacLean stated. Mr. MacLean said that he had been informed that the report would give the Canadian Pacific Railway the greatest wallop it had ever received.

"I almost looked to see the minister of justice rise up and oppose it, even to the point of resigning," he said. "The arrangements made through he would not be surprised to see the Progressive party join up with the Liberals."

Give It to Them—

This trial tube—watch their teeth improve

If you prefer, let your children make this test. Let them brush their teeth a few days in this modern way. Then look and see what film removal means.

This is a way to whiter, cleaner, safer teeth. Millions now employ it. Leading dentists everywhere advise it. Let someone in your home this week show the benefits it brings.

Why teeth look dingy

Your teeth are coated with a viscous film. You can feel it with your tongue. It clings to teeth, gets between the teeth and stays. It dims and may ruin teeth.

Ordinary tooth pastes do not effectively combat it. So film-coats have been almost universal.

Film absorbs stains, making the teeth look dingy. Film is the basis of tartar. It holds food substance which ferments and forms acids. It holds the acids in contact with the teeth to cause decay. Germs breed by millions in it. They, with tartar, are the chief cause of pyorrhea. Thus most tooth troubles are now traced to film, and, despite the tooth brush, they have constantly increased.

Must remove it daily

Dental science has long been seeking a daily film combatant. Now two effective methods have been found. Authorities have proved them by many careful tests.

A new-day tooth paste has been perfected, to comply with modern requirements. And these two film combatants are embodied in it. The name of the tooth paste is Pepsodent.

Millions of people of some forty races now employ it daily, largely by dental advice.

Two other new effects

Pepsodent brings two other effects which authorities now deem essential. It multiplies the starch digestant in saliva. That is there to digest starch deposits on teeth which may otherwise ferment and form acids. It multiplies the alkalinity of the saliva. That is Nature's neutralizer for the acids which cause decay. Every application gives these great tooth-protecting forces multiplied effect.

Real protection now

Now you can know what really clean teeth mean. Pepsodent fights film-coats, starch and acids—all the great tooth enemies. Then it leaves the mouth in normal alkaline condition. The glistening teeth you see everywhere now show something of the benefits it brings.

New beauty in a week

The Pepsodent effects are quickly seen and felt. This test will be a revelation to you.

Present the coupon for a 10-Day Tube. Note how clean the teeth feel after using. Mark the absence of the viscous film. See how teeth whiten as the film-coats disappear. Note the refreshing taste it leaves.

It will bring you prettier teeth, and quickly. But, more than that, it will bring you safer teeth. Cut out the coupon so you won't forget.

Arthur Holman Scores Success—Old Holman Opera House Now Advertiser's Home.

Growing reports have been received in the city of the success of a former Londoner in meeting in Springfield, Mass., as director of the Poli Players, the summer stock company operating in the Court Square Theatre. The name of the Londoner is one to conjure with in the theatrical and operatic field of America (which also means Canada). Arthur Holman, third generation on this continent of the famous Holman family, who boasted not only a very famous opera company, but theatres up and down in Canada and the United States. One Springfield paper, referring to the production of "The Nightcap" by the Poli Players says: "Mr. Holman, the director, who is responsible for the good productions Court Square patrons are enjoying, has an important part in this play."

Down in the New England States and others of the sea coast, Mr. Arthur Holman, actor and director, is following in the footsteps of his famous grandfathers, Mr. and Mrs. George Holman, who founded the Holman Opera Company, and also of their talented family, of whom his father, the late Mr. "Albie" Holman of this city, was a member. Mrs. Holman, mother of the young actor-director, still makes London her headquarters. Also a member of the Holman Opera Company in its heyday of prosperity, she recalled this week presentations of grand opera given in the city.

"That was the time when London had grand opera just like New York or other big centers," she said. "And by the way, the Holman Opera House was in the very place where the Advertiser is being edited and published today. The opera house, belonging to my father-in-law, Mr. George Holman, occupied pretty nearly half of the block. The auditorium was upstairs and below were stores and business houses. Right on the south side of your main offices, on the first floor, where the manager of the Advertiser is now, was once Jerry McLaughlin's bar. We used to have to go along the side of the opera house, down York street, in order to get upstairs to the dressing-rooms."

ARTIST PUPILS PLEASE AUDIENCE

A number of talented pupils in singing of Mr. A. D. Jordan gave a most pleasing recital Monday evening in Wesley Hall, assisted by Miss Mabel Stevens, A. T. C. M. and Miss Marion Miller, pianists, pupils of Vezgo Kihl.

Miss May Clarke, Exeter, who has a sweet and clear soprano voice, opened the program with a double number, "The Birth of Morn" (Franco Leoni) and "The Spring Has Come" (Maud Valerie White). Mrs. Nyneck-McLean, Stratford, a lyric soprano, sang "The Dawn" (Wake) and "Less Than the Dust" by Amy Woodford-Finden. Denzla's "May Morning" was a real piece of joy as rendered by Miss Kathleen Crawford of Ilderton, soprano.

Miss Josephine McCarthy, whose mezzo-soprano voice is particularly rich and rounded, gave "Sing, Break into Song" by Albert Maltby, and "The Spring" (Harriet Ware). Miss Olive Jameson (St. Mary's), possessor of an alto voice of fine quality, gave "Forlorn" (Amy Woodford-Finden) and "The Eyes of Fireweed" by the same composer. Miss Ruth Betzner (Kitchener) delighted with a group of three numbers, by Russian composers, which revealed to advantage the quality and extensive range of her voice, as well as her interpretive ability. These included "A Dissonance" (A. Borodine), "Lilacs" (Rachmaninoff), and "Kopak" (Moussorgsky). Miss Hilda McMillen, Ingersoll, brought the recital to a triumphant conclusion with the aria, "Ah, Like a Golden Vision" (Il Trovatore), G. Verdi.

Among the masculine voices was that of Charles Auld of Appleton, a young tenor of much promise, who gave "The Serenade" (Denza), and "Songs My Mother Taught Me" (Dvorak); C. E. Discher, Brantford, who revealed nice dramatic feeling as well as a tenor voice of good quality in "Total Eclipse" (Samson) and "Where E'er You Walk" by G. F. Handel.

George Sweet, tenor, of Brantford, afforded much pleasure with his singing of "The Sing Three Songs of Araby" (Frederick Clay) and "If

WANTS BONNET PATTERN.

Dear Miss Grey—Well, here goes my first letter to your Cosy Corner. I think the letters are splendid, and I take quite an interest in them all. I would like very much to get some bonnet patterns, as I think they are very nice. Perhaps some of the Bonnetes will have one? SUNSHINE.

I am sorry, Sunshine, but there isn't a pattern like you want in the Mail-Box just at present, but if any of the Bonnetes have one I am sure they will send it to you. The bonnets were sent in by Cinnamon Vine as a means of raising funds for our Cynthia Grey cot, so if you will send in 10 cents next time for them I will be very grateful, as they really aren't mine to give out, but as you are anxious to get them planted, I have sent them on to you.

WANTS SWEATER PATTERN.

Dear Miss Grey—This is my first time to come to your Box for help. I have often got help from your page, though. Could you please do me a favor, do you suppose?

I have a silk sweater of my own, and wish to make a sweater for a little girl about two years or a little better out of it. I wondered if you could get a pattern for me. I would willingly pay what it is worth as I want to get this sweater made.

SWEATER.

Maybe some of the Bonnetes could give you a pattern for a sweater for your little one. I have not a pattern on hand or would be pleased to send it to you.

WHERE IS MAY?

Dear Miss Grey—I saw in your column where May was so lonely, and as I am writing Mother said she would write to her, if you would please send her address.

If you have any tating patterns I would be very pleased to receive some. I will send them back as soon as I take them off. Inclosed you will find mite for S. C. H. fund. FARM GIRLIE.

May did not give her name and address, although she was anxious to hear from some motherly soul, and many have offered to write to her. We do not know who she is, and until she writes, those wishing her address will have to wait. I have mailed you some tating patterns, which I hope you will like. Many thanks for the mite for our hospital fund.

BUSY WITH GARDEN.

Dear Miss Grey—I see a request for my address in the Advertiser, so I am sending it on; also I saw where you sent me a cinnamon vine, but I did not get it, so will you kindly send me another, for which I inclose 10c. I received some lily roots from a Mail-Boxite at Inwood, and offers of more from A. Peat and A. Real Lancashire Lass, and lovely letters they were, too, and so prompt. I sent slips to them all. I am so glad the fund is gaining steadily. I am very busy with the garden and strawberries just now. In fact, always seem to be busy. Best wishes to the Mail-Box. PHONE.

Thank you for sending in your address. Phone, as so many were asking.

With All Your Heart" (Elizah), Mendelssohn. Luther Jackson, possessor of a mellow baritone voice, resonant and under excellent control, sang with fine effect "Blow, Blow, Thou Winter Wind" (J. S. Bach), Carman. Learn, baritone, gave with fine style and finish a couple of Italian numbers.

Miss Mabel Stevens played brilliantly the first movement of the Mendelssohn Concerto, Op. 25, and Miss Marion Miller a charming group, "Arabesque" (Debussy), "Troika en Traineau" (Tschalkovsky), and Allegro moderato movement of Sonata, Op. 7, Edward Grieg.

A voluntary offering was taken at the door in aid of work to be undertaken by group three of the Ladies Aid Society of the First Methodist Church.

WANTS VINES FOR PORCH.

Dear Miss Grey—We have taken The Advertiser most of the time since we started out in married life, which is nearly three and a half years, and I have enjoyed your letters so much. Friend hubby wrote for me nearly two years ago, and we thought we would like to send another bit in now. We think it is quite wonderful the good work you are doing, and wish that we could help more.

We moved into our new home on May 1, and I have been trying to spunk up courage ever since to ask for some of those cinnamon vine bulbs, but possibly it is too late by this time. My porch is seven feet wide, and I thought I would like to put a row across the south end. If too late for them perhaps someone who offered another kind some time ago and said it was something that everyone admired, would send hers. I hope by next year I can have some sweet peas and nasturtiums, as those are the two kinds of flowers I have longed to have in a garden of my own. Will sign my old pen name, with best wishes for the S. C. H., and our shipplaster, and thanking you in advance. As ever, ARABELLA.

Thank you, Arabella, for the generous mite, both for the hospital fund and the cinnamon vine. The latter seems to be very slow, but maybe someone will give us a large donation towards it. We have on hand $2.25. I am mailing you the address, pattern and cinnamon bulbs. Won't you write soon again, now that you have made the break?

FINISH ELECTION.

WITH THE BRIDES

BUTT-ARMSTRONG.

A very pretty wedding took place Wednesday, June 21, in St. Barnabas Church, Toronto, when Mae, youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Armstrong of Milton, was united in marriage to Mr. Luther B. Butt, youngest son of the late Rev. W. H. Butt, formerly of London. The church was decorated with palms and marguerites, and the guests' pews were tied with bouquets of marguerites. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Frank Powell, assisted by Rev. Gordon W. Butt of Kintore, brother of the groom.

The bride, who entered leaning on the arm of her father, was radiantly lovely in her gracefully-draped gown of white crepe, and carried a train of white tulle. Her veil was of point lace and was draped, and fell from a coronet of lily of the valley. She wore a string of pearls, the gift of the groom, and carried a shower of Ophelia roses and lily of the valley. Miss Bertha Knox was bridesmaid, and wore a chic frock of pink tulle, and hat to match, and carried a sheaf of American Beauties. Miss Hilda Young of Toronto, was maid of honor, and wore white tulle, and carried a sheaf of American Beauty roses. Mr. William Smith of Detroit, cousin of the groom, was best man.

During the signing of the register Mrs. Kenneth McIver sang most affectively, "O, Promise Me," accompanied by Miss Jessie Duncan.

Following the service in the church a reception was held in the home of the bride's mother, Mr. Frank Armstrong, 13 Hewitt avenue. The rooms were beautifully decorated with palms, ferns and marguerites, and a buffet luncheon was served.

The bride's going-away costume was a sport outfit of black and white. After their honeymoon at points in Michigan and Ohio, Mr. and Mrs. Butt will reside in Detroit.

SAVITZ-WATCHER.

A quiet wedding was solemnized at the home of the bride's sister, Mrs. Jas. A. Hamilton, Theford, when Miss Jennie Watcher was married to Mr. Ernest Savitz, a prosperous young merchant of that town. Rev. Mr. McGinnis of the Presbyterian Church officiated. The bride was given in marriage by her brother, Mr. C. R. Watcher of Alisa Craig, was unattended, and entered the parlor to the strains of Lohengrin's Bridal Chorus, played by her niece, Mary Hamilton. During the signing of the register, Mrs. C. R. Watcher sang "O, Perfect Love." A dainty wedding dinner was served, after which Mr. and Mrs. Savitz left by motor to Detroit. On their return they will reside in Theford.

A pretty wedding of last week was the marriage of Geanette, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. T. Stunden, to Mr. J. Hill of this city, which took place Wednesday, June 21, at the home of the bride's parents, 623 Hamilton road, Rev. D. Mass officiating. The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, was lovely in her gown of white canton crepe. She wore the groom's gift, a handsome diamond ring. Miss Edith Stunden, sister of the bride, was a charming bridesmaid, wearing frock of pale blue organdy and corsage of sweet peas. Mr. Bert Smith acted as best man. Mrs. George Lewis played the wedding march. The groom's gift to the bridesmaid was a rope of pearls, and to the best man a silver cigarette case. Following the ceremony, the guests, numbering 40, sat down to a tempting wedding supper. Mr. and Mrs. Hill are taking up their residence in London.

A very pretty wedding took place at the manse, Hyatt avenue, on Saturday, June 24, when Miss Lillian May Muriel, of Broughdale, became the bride of Mr. J. Albert Purcell of London.

The ceremony was performed by Dr. D. L. MacRae. After a short honeymoon trip, Mr. and Mrs. Purcell will take up their residence on Dundas street east this city.

SCARAMOUCHE

by Rafael Sabatini

BEGIN HERE TODAY.

The first orator had been killed and a second pistol bullet flattened itself against the bronze figure as ANDRE-LOUIS MOREAU, young lawyer of Gavrilac, began to address the citizens of Rennes square. He was speaking in the cause of the people because of the oath taken as he held in his arms the body of his dearest friend, PHILIPPE DE VILMORIN, a divinity student, who had been tricked into a duel and then killed because he possessed a "dangerous gift of eloquence." The slayer was the powerful MARQUIS DE LA TOUR D'AZYR. Not only had the Marquis murdered Andre-Louis' dearest friend, but the prodigal noble was suing for the hand of the beautiful ALINE DE KERCADIOU, niece of the gruff QUENTIN DE KERCADIOU, who is popularly believed to be the father of Andre-Louis. Andre-Louis decided to place the case before the throng of citizens already angered by the refusal of the nobles to follow the royal order and dissolve the Estates.

GO ON WITH THE STORY.

Instantly there was turmoil in the crowd, most intense about the spot whence the shot had been fired. The assailant was one of a considerable group of the opposition, a group that found itself at once beset on every side, and hard put to defend him.

From the foot of the plinth rang the voice of the students making chorus to Le Chapelier, who was bidding Andre-Louis to seek shelter. "Come down! Come down at once! They'll murder you as they murdered La Riviere."

"Let them!" He flung wide his arms in a gesture supremely theatrical, and laughed. "I stand here at their mercy. Let them, if they will, add mine to the blood that will presently rise up to choke them. Let them assassinate me. It is a trade they understand. But until they do so, they shall not prevent me from speaking to you, from telling you what is to be looked for in them."

And presently, when some measure of order was restored, he began his tale. In simple language now, he tore their hearts with the story of yesterday's happenings at Gavrilac. "The Marquis de La Tour d'Azay said of him that he had too dangerous a gift of eloquence. It was to silence his brave voice that he killed him. But he has failed of his object. For I, poor Philippe de Vilmorin's friend, have assumed the mantle of his apostleship, and I speak to you with his voice today." It was a statement that helped Le Chapelier at last to understand, at least in part, this bewildering change in Andre-Louis, which rendered him faithless to the side that employed him.

AND THEN HE FOUND HIMSELF CHALLENGED BY A WOMAN'S VOICE.

And now in a terrible voice, with an eloquence that amazed himself, he denounced the inertia of royal justice where the great are the offenders. It was with bitter sarcasm that he spoke of their King's Lieutenant, M. de Lesquiere.

Again a great roar. He had wrought them up to a pitch of dangerous passion, and they were ripe for any violence to which he urged them. If he had failed with the windmill, at least he was now master of the wind.

"To the Palais!" they shouted, waving their hands, brandishing canes, and—here and there—even a sword. "To the Palais! Down with M. de Lesquiere! Death to the King's Lieutenant!"

"Ah, wait!" he bade them. "Is this miserable instrument of a corrupt system worth the attention of your noble indignation? Precipitancy will spoil everything. Above all, my children, no violence!"

My children! Could his godfather have heard him! Out of the silence into which they had fallen anew broke now the cry

ASPARAGUS

(WITH MOCK HOLLANDAISE.)

(This recipe has been tested and proved right in laboratories.)

ASPARAGUS stalks should be scraped, and the tips cut about four inches from the top. The remainder of the stalks may be cut in small pieces and cooked fifteen minutes in water to cover. Then add the tips, tied in bunches, or place tips in a steamer set over the boiling stalks. Cook until tender. The stalks and water remaining are to be saved for a cream of asparagus soup.

HOLLANDAISE SAUCE.

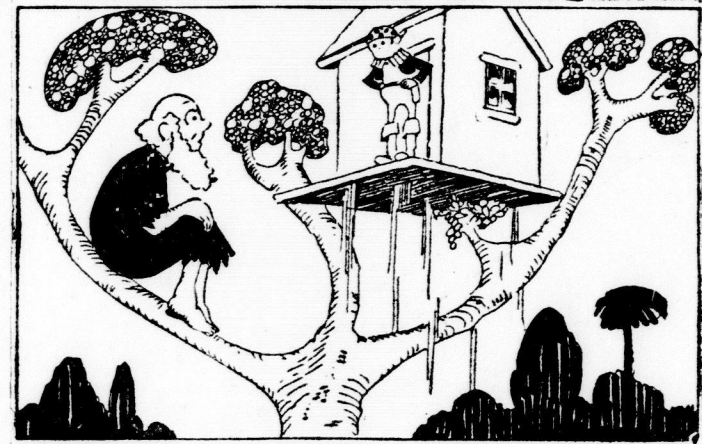

Two tablespoons butter. Half cup milk. Two tablespoons flour. Two tablespoons lemon juice. Half teaspoon salt. Yolks two eggs. Few grains cayenne.

Melt butter. Add flour. When smooth, add the milk, salt and cayenne—cook, stirring constantly until the mixture is smooth and thick. Add lemon juice and yolks of eggs slightly beaten and mixed with a little hot sauce.

ADVENTURES OF THE TWINS

Here's What Happened To the Man-in-the-Moon

[By Olive Roberts Barton.]

There was a funny looking house of old boards.

NOW, of course, my dears, you'll wonder where on earth Mr. Peersabout was after he got pushed off the Moon.

Well, that's where he was—on earth. Not quite on it, either, for after turning up my little somersaults, the poor soul fell plump into the apple-tree in Old Orchard.

But by the time Nancy and Nick had reached the earth and begun to search for him he had gone again. So no wonder the people of Bright Meadowland and Whispering Forest and Ripple Creek, and even Old Orchard itself hadn't seen him.

When the Moon-Man landed in the top branches of the apple-tree he was so shaken up and so breathless with his great fall he didn't move for a minute.

Then he sat up and rubbed his eyes, and felt over his bald head for bumps and looked to see if his clothes were torn. Then he had time to look about and see what sort of place he had landed in.

There in the tree-top was a funny little house of old boards and in the doorway stood a queer little fellow with enormous top-boots and a spotted hanky on his head.

"Howdy," said the little fellow, "where did you blow from?"

"Blow?" cried Peersabout indignantly. "What do you think I am—a dandelion? Or a soap-bubble? I'm Mr. Peersabout from the Moon!"

"Oh, then," said the other, "you're like the poem, aren't you—the one that says the Man-in-the-Moon came tumbling down and asked the way to Norwich."

"Well, sir, I'm sorry. I don't know where Norwich is. My name's

LLOYD GEORGE AGAIN UPHELD ON IRISH POLICY

Government Survives Keen Attack in Commons by Unionist "Diehards."

HOUSE DIVIDES 342 TO 73

Banbury Resolution To Cut Secretary For Ireland's Salary Defeated.

LONDON, June 26.—After a debate, which was not so heated or acrimonious as had been expected, the government won tonight a virtual victory on its Irish policy, when a "diehard" resolution proposed by Sir Frederick Bantury (Unionist), for a reduction of the chief secretary for Ireland's salary as an expression of disapproval of the government's policy and failure to afford protection for Field Marshal Henry H. Wilson, was defeated. The vote was 342 to 73.

Winston Spencer Churchill, secretary of state for the colonies, in his statement on Irish affairs, made it clear that the imperial government would expect the provisional government, now that it had secured the people's mandate, to take the necessary steps to assert its complete authority, and with equal frankness emphasized that the British government would not allow the coercion of Ulster by the South—in fact, that failure to observe the treaty would mean the British government resuming complete freedom of action.

Must Observe Treaty.
Premier Lloyd George, in a brief speech winding up the debate, reviewed the familiar arguments in support of the government's policy, and contended that the Irish provisional government now had the people of Ireland behind it, and what it did or failed to do would be the real test of whether it was fit to govern.

The question of Field Marshal Wilson's murder did not figure in the debate as largely as might have been anticipated. Home Secretary Short-was able to show that the ministers and others from whom police protection had been withdrawn had acquiesced in the withdrawal.

Loud cheers greeted the announcement of the result of the vote, giving a substantial majority for the government.

Will Support Ulster.

He said the situation on the Ulster frontier was easier as a result of the triple arrangement made between the British, the Provisional and Northern governments, whereby a neutral zone four miles wide was to be established in the Pettigo and Belleek districts. The Sinn Féin, Mr. Churchill declared, had to realize that they would never win Ulster except by their own free will, and that the more they kicked the worse it would be for them. He said the imperial government would endeavor to stand between the antagonists and prevent the loss of life and the destruction of property, and by so doing make it absolutely clear that any attempt from Southern forces to break into the territory of Northern Ireland would be met and repulsed by imperial power.

Having regard for the fact that there had been an assassination of a prominent man in England, Mr. Churchill declared that for generations, and even in the height of the Irish struggle, no attempt had been made upon the lives of public persons in this country, and that it was monstrous to make the tragic event and distasteful outrage which had just taken place the ground for an attack upon the police authorities or upon the home secretary.

Must Observe Treaty.
Such things as the occupation of the Four Courts building in Dublin by the Irish republican army must come to an end, Mr. Churchill declared.

He said the Irish government would be told that it must observe the Anglo-Irish treaty or the imperial government would not legalize its further stages. Now that the northern government had been so greatly strengthened, he added, it became all the more its duty to prevent unlawful reprisals however great the provocation. With the election over, there was no excuse, he said, for the provisional government's failings.

Pastor Dismayed at Suggestion of a Heaven With Pearly Gates

WHITBY, June 26.—"I don't believe in a Heaven of pearly gates peopled with angels playing eternally upon harps—the very suggestion of such an existence fills me with dismay," declared Rev. Samuel Fallis, D.D., of the Methodist Book Room, Toronto, in the course of a stirring ordination sermon delivered at the Methodist Tabernacle, Whitby, upon the solemn occasion of admittance of Lloyd MacDonald into the ministry of the Methodist Church.

"The teachings of Christ have been misinterpreted and misunderstood throughout the ages," said Rev. Mr. Fallis, in developing his theme that "The kingdom of this world shall become the Kingdom of Christ in which He shall rule for ever and ever." We perish without this vision," declared the speaker. "The power of man depends upon his ability to dream dreams and to see visions. If we do not possess this power we live passive, confined existences, not militant, confident and aggressive lives. Man may be classified according to his vision. While some still believe in Heaven," Rev. Mr. Fallis said, "we are thinking more and more of this earth and every day less of Heaven."

INSPECT RAILWAY LINES IN ONTARIO

Toronto, June 26.—A party of 100 railway men, members of the Detroit Passenger Club, passed through Toronto this morning on the completion of their annual outing, which took them this year to the Lake of Bays. The principal railway lines of the United States were represented. Detroit men being joined by passenger traffic officials from many points in the southern section of the United States.

The Detroit Passenger Club has, during the past ten seasons, visited the various sections of the United States, and it was the desire of the members this year to inspect the development that has taken place in the Highlands of Ontario and observe the new facilities that have been created to attract tourists.

The party left Detroit on Saturday and traveled over the lines of the Grand Trunk railway system, reaching the Lake of Bays on Sunday morning. Special steamboats were in readiness and complete tour was made of the chain of lakes in the Lake of Bays district.

The leading hotels in the region were visited and the party lunched at the Bigwin Inn, the largest of the Canadian summer resorts hotels. The transportation men were greatly impressed with the enterprise displayed by Canadians in the upbuilding of tourist traffic.

RAILWAY SHOP CRAFTS TO DISCUSS WAGE CUT

Delegates Will Attend Conference With Association in Montreal Next Week.

MONTREAL, June 26.—Wage schedule changes involving negotiations on the subject of the proposed wage cut for shop crafts will open probably next week between the Railway Association of Canada and the executive of Division No. 4.

Members of the executive, including R. J. Tallon, president of the division; Charles Dickie, general secretary; Frank McKenna, vice-president of the Brotherhood of Railway Carmen; T. Rogers of Montreal, representing the machinists; District No. 2, J. Corbett, London, Ont.; Brotherhood of Railway Carmen, and French Harrison of Montreal, representing the blacksmiths, are assembling in the city next Monday for the purpose. The wages schedule for the purpose. The wages schedule for the purpose. The wages schedule for the purpose.

"The proposed wage cut is viewed with considerable indignation by the federated trades," Mr. McKenna said today, "especially as the number of hours per month worked by the shopmen is less than one hundred, owing to the regular closing-down of shops on Friday and Saturday, and the last few days of every month."

COMMONS MAY CLOSE TONIGHT

OTTAWA, June 27.—(By Canadian Press).—Prorogation will probably take place on Wednesday, but an effort will be made to reach it tonight. This statement was made by the premier in the House of Commons this morning just before adjournment. He said that the house order paper was practically clear of government business, but that it was doubtful whether the Senate could deal with all the bills before it in time to prorogue this evening. One of the last items before adjournment was the passage of a supply bill of $175,000,000 for the current year. This completes the estimates for the year, including the supplementaries.

ADVISE ONTARIO TO "CLEAN UP" LOOSE METHODS

Riddell-Latchford Timber Commission Presents Report to Government.

ASSAILS IRREGULARITIES

Plays Bookkeeping System As Disgrace "To a Country Store."

TORONTO, June 26.—Reorganization of the Ontario department of lands and forests and a number of changes in the departmental methods of securing and checking up the returns which are the basis of the payment of dues to the province and in dealing generally with the timber resources of Ontario, are outstanding among the recommendations of the Riddell-Latchford timber commission report which was presented to the government late today.

The commission's findings regarding the department generally are embodied in the main report, while special reports dealing with four specific companies' transactions are submitted with recommendations covering these particular cases.

The main report goes exhaustively into the methods employed by the department in controlling the timber resources of the province and the operations of the various companies which have secured timber limits.

The report quotes former Deputy Minister Grigg as stating that the system of book-keeping in the department would be a disgrace to a country store.

"As to reorganization generally," the report says, "the evidence does not enable us to make recommendations covering the general principles to be followed, but it is apparent that a complete reorganization of modern and scientific lines should be effected. There are efficiency experts whose advice could be had, with a view to the organization of the department on business lines so as to obtain a handsome money-making."

In its concluding paragraph, the report, however, takes note of the human element that affects the success of even the best of organizations.

"In conclusion," says the commission, "we would say that to have a proper and adequate return from the timber resources of the province the department must be conducted on business principles."

"Reorganization will be useful, but in the end success must depend upon the personnel of the officials. Competent men should be secured and should have security of tenure of office and not be removable except for inefficiency or dishonesty, rendering them independent of pressure from any source and of influence, political or otherwise, however and by whomsoever exercised."

While not undertaking to advise as to the general principle which should be followed by the department the commissioners submit a list of recommendations on certain specific matters. The report criticizes the failure of the department efficiently to check up the work in preparing returns of the men in the woods, and suggests that "it is important that those in charge of returns to the department should be more than mere routine entry clerks."

Dealing with the conduct of sales the commissioners remark: "None of the timber resources of the province should be disposed of except by public competition."

The commissioners "see much to recommend a practice offering for sale at the same time limits of different sizes, great and small, whereby the less wealthy operator is more likely to receive encouragement by Bridgen Boy Severely Cut by Mowing Machine.

Special to London Advertiser.

BRIDGEN, June 26.—Alvin Turner, 10-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. James Turner of Bridgen, met with a serious accident on Saturday afternoon while playing in the hayfield at the back of Benjamin Allen's farm.

He, in the company of Mr. Allen's two children, Donald and Jean, was playing in a tree, and Alvin unfortunately fell in front of the mowing machine just as Mr. Allen passed under the tree, the knife of the machine severing the cords in the back of his right leg above the ankle. Mr. Allen carried him to his garage and drove him to Dr. Walker's office, where the wounds were dressed. It is expected that he will be laid up for a long time, but they hope to be able to save his foot.

being enabled to buy limits within his means.

Calls Practice Illegal.

The report continues: "A very objectionable as well as illegal practice has been followed of granting permits in large areas without competition of any kind. The crown timber act gives power to the minister to grant licenses to cut timber 'subject to such conditions, regulations and restrictions as may from time to time be prescribed by the lieutenant-governor-in-council.' March 7, 1914 the lieutenant-governor-in-council prescribed regulations, one of which requires that the 'limits shall be offered for sale by public competition at an upset price after public notice and that they shall be awarded to the highest bidder.' This regulation was not respected by the late minister, who acted 'regardless of that regulation.' This course has in the Sheelin-Clarke case been judicially declared to be unauthorized and illegal.

Continuing, the report cites 13 limits disposed of in this way in the full months of 1919, totaling about 992 square miles, while three similar cases earlier in the same year involved 163 square miles.

Further on the report observes: "We are of the opinion that no officer, minister or otherwise, should have the power to grant rights over large areas of the public domain at will without regard to regulation. Such an arbitrary power subject to no control is obviously open to abuse."

Careful supervision of the letting and carrying out of agreements, under which timber is sold with a view to securing the fullest possible value from such timber, is recommended, as is also a careful survey of all limits disposed of in this way, and the taking of such proceedings as the facts justify.

Criticizes Ferguson's Methods.

Section 63 deals with interests and says: "The practice of allowing payments to be in arrears is wholly vicious and contrary to elementary principles that the province should act as bankers for its debtors in this way; if credit is given at all it should be given on ordinary banking terms."

Section 64 deals with the public documents. It recites the fact that Mr. G. H. Ferguson, while minister of the department, had private files, and there were also official files in the department.

It reproduces the evidence of C. C. Heale, Mr. Ferguson's private secretary, who was also secretary to the department, and at times acting deputy minister in connection with the use of these files. After reproducing this evidence, the report (section 65) says: "We think such a practice as Mr. Heale describes unwise and unbusinesslike."

The report recommends a careful examination of all the legislation, orders-in-council, regulations, etc., concerning the timber of the province, that they should be co-ordinated and, where necessary or advisable, amended to make a consistent code of the law governing the matter. This code should be printed and furnished to every agent, cutter, and other officers of the department, as well as to every concessionaire.

Returns by cutters were found to be unreliable, and the report remarks that the system followed in the department would not be tolerated in any business institution.

The report cites a list of those implicated in irregular practices in regard to the matters under inquiry, two being found to have made untrue affidavits; 43 were alleged deponents who did not actually swear; the names of seven were affixed to affidavits which were not signed by them, while ten commissioners were listed as omitting to swear alleged deponents.

Advices Further Probe.

"The province must realize," continues the report, "that loose methods in respect to our timber resources should not be permitted to continue. The revenue to be derived from our forests must, under the present system, be expected to diminish; and in any case, the expense must be expected to increase."

In concluding their report the commissioners advise that further investigation should be carried on. "We would suggest," they observe, "a careful perusal of the evidence before us as to various persons and companies concerning whom we have not made full inquiry and have therefore not reported. There are some instances of alleged settlements which invite close scrutiny; certain trespasses apparently not paid for, and several instances of returns not wholly satisfactory."

"The irregularities in the practice of companies of apparent good standing lead to grave suspicion of others—who may be innocent. It is time for a cleaning up."

CHILD TORN FROM MOTHER BY WIND

WINNIPEG, June 26.—The report just received of the death in Friday's storm of the 15-month-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. S. Coates of Stenwall, Man., raises to five the list of fatalities.

The tremendous wind crumpled up the Coates residence, and Mr. Coates and his nephew were pinned beneath the ruins. Mrs. Coates in the midst of the terrific storm had to set out for help, carrying the child, battling against the driving hail and rain and the tremendous wind which eventually tore the child from her arms. She sought in vain for the child, and when neighbors found it next day the little girl was dead of exposure.

The loss through destruction of three elevators and mills in Portage la Prairie by fire during the storm is placed at $400,000, it is announced today.

DOCTORS STATE MARGARET DENT TOTALLY INSANE

May Remove Wife of Alleged Brantford Slayer To Asylum.

NO CONFESSION TAKEN

Woman Did Not Appear To Be Bearing Up Under Court Strain.

BRANTFORD, June 26.—Mrs. Margaret Dent, wife of Harry Dent, alleged murderer, both of whom are held on a charge of murder, is insane. Medical men who examined the woman at the county jail Saturday night declared her to be entirely out of her mind, and it is likely that she will be taken, under guard, to an insane asylum.

Mrs. Dent's insanity adds a sensational feature to the Egopian murder case. The woman was arrested along with her husband, following the brutal murder of a young man, well-known local Armenian, on April 25 last. Dent was found with parts of Egopian's hacked body in a suitcase, and though he protested his innocence and the innocence of his wife, the pair came before Magistrate John R. Blake in the police court, and were sent up for trial at the fall assizes.

Dent and his wife were sent to the county jail to await their trial. Mrs. Dent, ordinarily a healthy-looking woman, did not appear at any time to be bearing up under the strain of the police court proceedings, and at the last session of police court, when she was committed for trial, she was wan and pale. All the time she was murmuring pitifully, and it is reported that from time to time she wept bitterly.

No confession of any sort was taken, and Mrs. Dent was never questioned in police court.

The turn of events provides a new sensation in the case. Mrs. Dent will probably be confined in an asylum, and in no way will statements made by her affect her husband's trial.

FARMHOUSE NEAR BLYTH DESTROYED

BLYTH, June 26.—Excitement was caused in town today when word came over the telephone that Christopher Netherly's farm house in East Wawanosh had caught fire. A number from town went out in cars, and with the assistance of neighbors they were able to save most of the furniture, but the house, almost a complete loss, with some insurance.

By what can be learned, the fire started in some cedar rails near the shed and sparks flew on to the shed, lighting it, and on account of not having any water supply and the fire getting such headway, the loss is considerable.

INTER CANADIAN MEMBER OF A. E. F.

Body of Raleigh Hero Brought Home From Fields of France.

SPECIAL TO LONDON ADVERTISER. BLENHEIM, June 26.—Perhaps the largest funeral cortege that ever entered Evergreen Cemetery passed through the gates yesterday afternoon, when the remains of the late Emory Brady of Raleigh, son of Mr. and Mrs. James Brady, were interred after being brought from the battlefields of France, where the deceased passed away in 1918, having served in the American expeditionary forces.

The procession was several miles in length. The casket was draped in British and American flags, and many beautiful wreaths of flowers were in evidence.

The Kent regimental band, led by Captain Foubister, played appropriate military funeral numbers. The firing squad fired a parting salute. Rev. G. W. Murray of Buxton conducted the funeral services.

On the arrival of the cortege in Blenheim the local war veterans, led by Capt. Peter Ryan, marched in the procession, paying a last tribute of respect to a parting comrade-in-arms.

Long before the arrival of the cortege the cemetery was crowded with people, and the road all around was a complete line of parked autos. The service was very impressive.

WILL SEEK EXTENSION OF TIME ON SEWER PAYMENTS

Residents of North End to Make Request of No. 2 Committee.

When No. 2 committee of the city council meets Tuesday night, the members will be greeted by a delegation of citizens residing on St. George, Richmond, Regent, Huron and Victoria streets, who desire that the sewer debentures, covering the cost of sewers on their streets be extended over a period of thirty years instead of the usual ten-year term.

In addition these ratepayers will ask for an extension of the term on debentures for a pavement constructed on Richmond street north of the local war veterans' hall. No. 2 committee has already recommended that the sewer debentures be extended ten years only, but the delegation will urge that further concessions be considered.

Ratepayers of Front street will also appear at the meeting Tuesday night to view City Engineer Bradley's report on the costs of breakwaters to protect their property from flooding. However, the engineer states that this report will not be completed by Tuesday night, and hence no action on this question is contemplated.

No. 2 committee will meet at 8 o'clock Tuesday night.

ARGUMENT LEADS TO CHAMPIONSHIP

Simcoe Street School received the best of an argument with Wortley Road on Friday, June 9, thus winning the championship of the City Schools Baseball League.

The game was protested in the fourth inning, when Charlie Smith of Simcoe Street wanted Braund to run for him because of being hit in the leg with the ball while catching for Grayson. A slight argument ensued, and the game was called.

Having four runs to Wortley Road's none, and also three men on bases, a delayed decision gave Simcoe street the best of the argument and they are now champions.

SCHOOL SCARES WANDERING BOY

Windsor Youngster Afraid of Examinations, Runs Away From Home.

Tells Lurid Tale When Captured by Officer of Children's Aid.

Because he was afraid of public school examinations, which loomed up on the horizon of his young life, a 14-year-old Windsor boy ran away from home, only to be taken in custody in London Monday night by an officer of the Children's Aid Society.

After departing from Windsor, and subsequently arriving in the Forest City, the young runaway felt the pangs of hunger, and presenting himself to the proprietor of a downtown cafe Monday night, asked for "something to eat."

Small for His Age.

The proprietor of the establishment readily served the penniless youngster, who is declared to be small for his age, but while his charge was busily engaged stowing away the good things, he noticed officers of the Children's Aid Society.

A representative of the above organization immediately visited the cafe and questioned the boy. He told a lurid story to the effect that his father had deserted him and mother two weeks ago, and that his mother had then moved to London.

Continuing, he said that his mother later deserted him and a home she made in South London, and being alone and hungry he had presented himself to the cafe proprietor.

Further questioning by the Children's Aid Society officer as to why his father had deserted him and his mother, elicited an unbelievable story from the youngster that "his mother was too high so father thought he would do better boarding by himself."

Not satisfied with the youth's explanation the officer took him to the Children's Aid shelter for the night, no resistance being offered when an appetizing breakfast was promised.

On arrival at the shelter the boy admitted that he had run away from home, as he was afraid of approaching public school examinations. He declared that he had been in London for ten days, but a clean white blouse, which graced his slim form, rebuked that statement.

Pay Fare To London.

He further stated that the police, from sale of newspapers in the border city netted him sufficient cash to pay his fare to London.

Tuesday morning the Children's Aid Society at Windsor was communicated with and notified of the "find." A reply states that contrary to the 14-year-old boy's story, his parents are living happily together in comfortable circumstances and want their son home regardless of the school examinations.

The young runaway will be returned to Windsor Wednesday.

ELECTORS OF ST. THOMAS HEAR BYLAWS EXPLAINED

Will Vote Thursday On Gas and Technical School Propositions.

ST. THOMAS, June 26.—The technical school and gas bylaws, which will be voted on by the citizens next Thursday, were explained by speakers at a public meeting Monday night in the city hall.

Interesting details of the increase in school attendance and the necessity of providing some accommodation which will give to students an opportunity to follow trades as well as professions, were presented by Dr. Foad, principal of the Collegiate Institute.

The gas bylaw received the attention of Ald. Frank Lemon and F. E. Elock of the Ottawa Gas Company. Ald. Lemon said that after the initial expenditure there was a great saving in the operating cost. He pointed out that vertical retorts had been found vastly superior to the old horizontal type, and remarked that not a little of the saving was due to the ease with which cleaning could be done and repairs made in the former.

HARDING WILL NOT MUZZLE U. S. CABINET

Makes Known Stand in Answer To Senator Capper's Attack On Weeks.

FAVORS FREE SPEECH

Will Not Reprimand War Secretary For Criticizing Volstead Law.

WASHINGTON, June 26.—President Harding feels that every member of his cabinet has a right to express himself on any subject without necessarily committing the administration to his view. This attitude, made known at the White House, is regarded as the administration's answer to the recent utterance of Senator Capper of Kansas, who suggested that Secretary of War Weeks ought to resign because of his speech suggesting modification of the Volstead law and criticising the direct primary.

D. J. McLEAN, Postoffice Inspector, 67c-y

The president has noted the speeches in Congress and elsewhere commenting on Secretary Weeks' addresses, but has not felt that Mr. Weeks was expressing any official administration opinion, but was giving simply his own comments.

Mr. Weeks, as a former member of the United States Senate from Massachusetts and before that as a prominent member of the house of representatives, has had the opportunity to make his own observations of modern tendencies in government, and although his speeches have aroused a storm of protest there is every evidence now that Mr. Harding will not take him to task for them even though he may disagree with Mr. Weeks.

For Convention System.

It so happens that on the question of the ill-effects of the direct primary system, President Harding is in accord with his secretary of war. Mr. Harding has openly advocated a return to the convention system of nominations. As for modification of the dry laws, the president hasn't discussed that phase of prohibition at all, except to insist that he favored rigid enforcement of present statutes.

Senator Capper of Kansas, however, has accomplished something by his attack on Mr. Weeks. He has forced the White House to take a new view and that of the administration. Sometimes the members of a presidential cabinet take offense if it is pointed out that they are not spokesmen of the administration to which they belong. In one case at least, that of Secretary of War Weeks, a resignation followed the inference that a member of the cabinet might hold one view and the administration approve the adoption of another policy in Congress.

Wilson's Viewpoint.

Former President Wilson always sought to have his cabinet members confine their utterances to things that would not embarrass the administration. Under the present regime, Will Hays, who until recently was postmaster-general, used to take his speeches to the White House and read them to Mr. Harding, so as to make sure that he was reflecting accurately the administration view.

The president doesn't feel that he should act as censor over the utterances of his cabinet officers. If they wish to bring their speeches to him beforehand he gives them the benefit of his counsel, but the Harding idea is that a democratic system of government is best developed by permitting freedom of speech inside as well as outside the official circle.

The presumption is that Mr. Harding does not mean to be taken literally, but that his idea embraces only the discussion of subjects which are not under consideration officially. It is not deemed probable that the president would sanction, for instance, speeches favoring the bonus by his secretary of the treasury while he opposed the grant of a bonus.

When Mullinder suggested that the affair "could be fixed up for $2," Renaud told him he "couldn't be bought for $2 or for $50," he testified.

Prominent Industrial Leader of Ontario Passes in 70th Year.

TORONTO, June 26.—One of Ontario's industrial chiefs, Robert Harmer, died at his home here tonight in his 70th year. He was president of the Sawyer-Massey Company of Hamilton; president of Canada Furniture Manufacturers Company, Woodstock; president of the Seaman-Kent Company, Toronto; and a director of the Gray-Dort Company of Chatham, Ontario.

Mr. Harmer was ill 18 months, suffering from pernicious anemia, the malady having become acute two months ago. Born in England, he came to Canada at an early age and entered the service of the Massey-Harris Company, about 50 years ago.

His ability was such that he won rapid promotion, and at the time some years ago when he severed his connection with the company to take up other interests, he was general sales manager, the company's foreign business having been built up largely through his efforts.

He is survived by his widow, formerly Miss Emily A. Richardson of England; two sons, Dr. Charles Harmer, Paris, France, and H. R. Harmer, Montreal, and three daughters, Mrs. T. A. Hunt, Winnipeg; Mrs. E. A. Johnson, North Gower, Ont.; and Mrs. H. K. Patterson, Winnipeg.
