Sayings and Articles of Note! Writers
Carefully Condensed.

By GEO. W. STARNAMAN.

It is acknowledged that the prices realized at auction is the basis for the cataloguing of rare stamps, and this being a fact at the present day, it places stamp auctions as one of the foundation stones of the pursuit, and the manner of conducting them one of the greatest elements in the uplifting and spread of the fascinating hobby.—Alvah Davison.

I doubt if, strictly speaking, collecting of the same stamps on the different colors of paper is just in the stamp collecting line; however allowing that it is all right, certainly collecting the different sizes and shapes of envelopes is far beyond the mark.—D. Harlan King.

There is a feature overlooked by those calamity howlers and doubting Thomases who predict the passing into oblivion of philately. That interest in it may wax or wane, as interest in the more important affairs of life exert a more or less powerful influence upon us is certain, but that the love of stamp collecting will ever die out is doubtful and that it can pass into entire forgetfulness is impossible.—Chas. E. Jenney.

Perhaps buying stamps at auction is as good as any to secure good specimens cheap but I still buy from the bargain lists of the dealers who use the advertising columns of our magazines.—H. J. Bradt.

That there are no sales which result directly from the falling off of interest on the part of the persons owning the collections, I do not affirm. It would be a wonderful pastime indeed that no mortal would tire of when he had indulged himself without a curb. Selling out by auction or private sale is a legitimate phase of stamp collecting.—George T. Crowfoot.

We are told that the summer is a dull season; it may be for the dealer. For the true collector, the season commences January 1st, and ends December 31st. On the 4th of July, notwithstanding the great heat (98°) and a national holiday, I hinged a few stamps. The day before (Sunday) was the hottest day in Connecticut in 50 years, the thermometer 106° in the shade to my own personal knowledge.—Henry A. Chapman.

The progressive stamp collector takes no interest in a paper which mouths the good sayings of another. Improvement,—the order of the age—can never be accomplished without originality. Franklin never called down the lightnings by copying after someone else. Then too, this copying confines the genius of our writers and lessens the opportunity of the sale of their manuscript.—S. M. Hamilton.

The danger of loss by abstraction and theft ought not to be considered, but may bear upon the question with some collectors. All persons connected with our delightful study ought to be honest, but alas greed and covetousness crop out from unexpected sources.—Edward H. Hall.

The Literary Circle.

By RAYMOND S. BAKER.

In looking over the stamp magazines of five or ten years ago one is struck with the continual change of actors on the literary stage. It is not that the drama differs very materially but the players with the exception of one or two brilliant "stars," are all new men. While it is true in all walks of life, that the passage of time is forever placing the governing power in new and sometimes inexperienced hands, yet philately in many regards seems to be the acme of mutability. Indeed so various are the vicissitudes, so rapid the departures, that not infrequently is it a strain on our memories to recall the name of one who half a decade ago was recognized as a facile and pleasing writer. There are reasons for this, as there are for nearly everything else under the sun. The principal explanation lies in the fact that stamp collecting has not yet become established as a national recreation and on account of its journalistic limitations, is but made the stepping stone to a higher sphere in the world of letters.

John Devereaux Kirke, if not a very classical, was certainly the most prolific writer of his time. The majority of the readers of this magazine are probably familiar with his name, and remember him as a member of the younger school of philatelic writers. In fact it is only three or four years since he ceased to contribute to our stamp papers. His productions were entirely of an abstract character as he never attempted articles, which in their nature are purely philatelic. As an essayist however he is entitled to credit and his work is certainly worthy of remembrance.

The literary circle has decided that typographically, the PHILATELIC ADVOCATE is the Canadian model. While it is admitted that this statement might not have been made some months ago, yet the Berlin journal has improved with every issue and well exemplifies the saying, "never despise the day of small things." There has however been no small number of despisers, but in spite of all, the ADVOCATE has worked, and is working, out its own salvation. The circle appreciates the better paper, the careful arrangement, and most especially the literary improvement.

One of the highest and most laconic of writers was Walter A. Withrow. In these qualities lay the greater part of his success. His contributions were always read with interest, being popular with all classes of collectors. Mr. Withrow had the happy faculty of coming right to the point and of clothing his ideas in forcible and appropriate language. He said what he had to say and that was the end of it. Philatelic writers as a rule are occasionally guilty of stretching out their article to an undue length. It should be remembered that "reiteration is the thief of space" and that "brevity is the soul of wit."

The literary circle is surprised to learn that the "Pennsylvania Philatelist," which has reached the comparatively ancient age of seven years, will with the September number cease publication. At one time the loss of this original journal would have certainly been felt, but of late years the literary contents has been of so poor a quality that its suspension will hardly be noticed. The "Pennsy" first came into prominence when editor Kissinger waged his vigorous but unsuccessful war for the Presidentship of the Sons of Philatelia.

The editorials at this period were of such a rank and defamatory character that one cannot help smiling now at their rowdy vituperation and coarse invective. Then came the separation from the S. of P. and the formation of the P. S. of A. For two or three years after this the "Pennsy" was a very interesting paper indeed publishing a generous supply of literary matter contributed by the leading writers of the day. Especially with young collectors was it popular and among this class attained a wide circulation. Then for some unaccountable reason the policy of the publisher changed, the journal degenerated into a successful advertising sheet, the brilliant corps of editors gradually ceased work, contributions from distinguished writers no longer appeared, the literary standing of the magazine continued getting lower and lower, and now comes the news of its permanent suspension.

Mr. L. M. Staebler appears to have more than ordinary success in the stamp and publishing business. His "Canadian Collector," of London, Ont., was conceded to be one of the best, and the different handbooks which emanated from that city have always been very popular. The series with one or two additions has been continued and is meeting with a respectable sale. The two latest publications of Mr. Staebler—"The Revenue Philatelist" and "The Antiquary"—although only launched this year are nevertheless already making good returns.

During the hot months of July and August the collector has put away his album, ceased to read the stamp papers, and heartily devoted himself to recreations more suitable and appropriate to the season. But with the advent of September and the cooler weather, when the energies have been revived and the spirits quickened, with great rejoicing and enthusiasm will be heard the old philatelic call. Then let every collector retiring from his or her favorite summer resort, come with the determination to make the year of '98 and '99 the greatest and the best in the annals of philately.

Toledo, Ohio Notes.

By S. A. C.

A collector here mailed two letters, one to himself and the other to a friend, prepaid with 2c Documentary stamps. The one addressed to himself passed through all right, the other with a two cent postage due stamp.

This office seems to have a plentiful supply of Omahas except the 4c which they have not had to date. The stamp clerk does hate to sell plate numbers, but what cares the genuine stamp fiend if he only gets what he wants.

The Revenue office here has collected nearly $200,000.00 war tax. They have 5c Proprietary or 4c Orange documentary stamps. The supply of 1c and 2c postage surcharged I. R. were exhausted some time ago. No inverted surcharges were found.

The above mentioned collector has the 4c, 8c and $1.00 Omaha on the original cover. As they were cancelled by himself through the courtesy of the Registry dept. you may know they are beauties. By the way the $1 Omaha is a beautiful stamp, the black color showing the design to perfection.

Canada Postal System.

Last month we had a cut of the Postmaster General of Canada. This month we give a brief account of his administration.

One of the things that the Postmaster-General set out to do upon assuming office in 1896 was to reduce the deficit, which year by year had been growing larger. It was scarcely reasonable then to suppose that the herculean task could be accomplished in two years, but the accounts of the department for 1897-98, which are now being closed, show that while the deficit has not been entirely wiped out, it has been whittled down to such insignificant proportions compared with its original magnitude that it has practically ceased to exist. When Mr. Mulock took charge of the department there was a deficit of $700,997, that was reduced during the fiscal year of 1896-7 to $586,539. The actual deficit for 1897-98 cannot yet be stated, but a careful and conservative estimate puts it at $74,033. The reduction of the deficit by $627,000 is an achievement with which the Postmaster-General has reason to be satisfied, and one that must give the public confidence in his capability as an administrator.

It might have been possible to present a favorable financial showing by starving the service for the sake of cutting down expense, but a policy the very opposite to to this has been pursued. In all directions the service has been extended and made more useful to the public. New offices have been opened, many of them in the most remote parts of the country. Money has been saved and the service improved by the abolition of many useless inspectorates. By the decentralization of the dead letter office, the staff of clerks has been reduced by fourteen and a concession has been made to public convenience. Another direction in which the department have shown their solicitude for the public convenience is in the establishment of the postal note system, which has recently gone into operation. These few instances show how the Postmaster-General has increased the efficiency of his department and saved the money of the people, but many others could be given. During the year ending June 30, 1897, mail contracts which had been costing $381,237 were put up to tender, and new contracts were obtained for the performance of the same service for a period of four years at an annual cost of $277,300, being an annual saving of $103,936, or a total saving of $415,747 for the full period of four years. As an example of the way in which the preceding Government wasted public money for the benefit of partisan favorites, it may be stated that while the number of miles of daily travel in June, 1897, was 312 greater than in the corresponding quarter of June, 1896 before Mr. Mulock took office, the cost of the service for the quarter of 1897 was $22,000 less.

If the adoption of a two-cent domestic postage rate depends upon the wiping out of the postoffice deficit, it looks as if the people would not have to wait long for that boon. It is estimated that a reduction of the rate would involve a loss of revenue on the basis of the present volume of business of about $600,000, but with the inevitable increase in the number of letters, and a continuation of the wise economical administrative policy of the Postmaster-General there would seem to be no danger of long-continued shortages from the experiment.

Letter from Mr. C. Bailey.

To the Members of the D. P. A.

Ladies and Gentlemen:—

For the benefit of those who were unable to attend the convention and those who are ignorant of the facts concerning the difficulties that have arisen about our President, I will state as follows.

During one of the sessions of the recent convention held at Hamilton, Ont., much dissatisfaction was expressed by many members present at the recent actions of our worthy president A. M. Muirhead, to the extent that they made a motion to the effect that the polls be opened for nominations and the election of a new president. This however was defeated and after a second consideration and to avoid any serious complications, the matter was dropped and we decided to retain Mr. Muirhead as president.

Since the above occurrence, Mr. Muirhead I presume, has been furnished with the facts and has, like a gentleman, promptly tendered his resignation, and notified our Secy-Treas., Geo. W. Starnaman, to call for nominations for the Presidency.

During my stay at the convention many members prevailed upon me to be a candidate should the aforesaid motion be put through. For various reasons I refused, but since being informed of the resignation of President Muirhead and upon the second request of my friends, I have decided to stand as a candidate for President.

To those who will give me their support I wish to say that I have had a clean record since becoming a member of our grand society. I am a charter member and served as Exchange Supt. and Counterfeit Detector. At the last two conventions I have had the honor of filling the position of Chairman. I have been interested in and collected the "wee bits" since 1885 and I think during my thirteen years of active collecting I have gained a fair amount of knowledge of philately to enable me to fill the position of President to the satisfaction of all.

Personally I bear no ill feeling against my friend Mr. A. M. Muirhead, and I sincerely regret that this difficulty has arisen.

If elected I promise to discharge the duties of that office in a straightforward manner—which shall be courteous treatment to all and partiality to none.

Soliciting your support and influence, I beg to remain

Editorial.

Two years ago the first number of the PHILATELIC ADVOCATE was issued and since that time there has not been a month that we have not appeared and, with one exception, always on time. Although working under great difficulties we have kept improving as rapidly as conditions would allow. We call your attention to the testimonial of Raymond S. Baker on page 28. Kind words like these from expert judges like Mr. Baker, S. B.

Hopkins, C. E. Severn and others, more than counterbalances the evil effects of the opinions of those ignorant and unlettered critics who have bored the philatelic public with attempted reviews of our paper. If you are unacquainted with this paper send 2c for a 3 month's trial subscription.

On another page will be found the list of D. P. A. Election. nominations. Regarding the Presidency we promised Mr. Muirhead that we would not favor either candidate through the columns of this paper.

Our choice for U. S. Vice-President is Mr. F. D. Sawyer, who has been an active member for three years. He has secured a large number of members and always has a good word for the society. Mark your ballot for Mr. Sawyer and you will not be sorry.

Are you working for the D. P. A. prizes? One member asks us how we expect him to get fifty members when there are only ten collectors in his town. Our answer is—do as we do—every time you write to a collector enclose an application blank with your name as first reference.

The editor of the Ontario Philatelist says he knows why we defeated him. Certainly he does: we told him the reason at the convention and now he is sorry he did it.

We would like to meet "Philos"—the man who writes "Toronto Notes" for the "Perforator"—just to have a look at his hands. He says that the D. P. A. members in Toronto could easily be counted on the fingers of one hand. There are fourteen paid-up members in Toronto. What a handful of fingers "Philos" must have.

The Auction Manager's report reached us too late for insertion in this issue.

Notice to Exchanges—Publishers running exchange advs are requested to discontinue them until they hear from us by mail.

We have received a neat price list from the Jubilee Stamp Co., South's Falls, Ont. They are giving valuable prizes to those purchasing stamps from them. The list is free. Send for it.

We want a good Ottawa correspondent. Let us know your terms and facilities for obtaining the latest news.

Mr. Chapman, in reviewing our July number in the Perforator, says that we trotted out our "Spanish" rooster. That is where he fools himself. The Spanish were defeated but we were not. Our rooster is a thoroughbred American—and consequently a champion.

The consolidation of the Home Worker with the Tennessee Philatelist was a bad move for the former publication, which was one of the few that could be expected on time. After a brief existence of three months the T. P. has been discontinued.

We have been favored with a copy of the International Philatelic Collectors Directory. It is the best directory we have seen. It is a handsome publication of 160 pages containing nearly 10,000 names, being particularly strong in foreign addresses. Unlike most directories it is not overloaded with advertisements. The price is $1.00 post paid, from A. C. Berlam, 621 H. Bramhall Ave., Jersey City, N. J. (See adv.)

In last issue our U. S. correspondent "Filius" stated that each of the Phillipines would have its own Governor and use surcharged U. S. stamps. This will not come into force until the places named have passed properly into the U. S. possession. He also stated that 2¢ would carry a letter to Cuba. This only applies to soldiers, sailors and others in the employ of the U. S. Government. Mr. S. Allan Taylor, Boston, Mass., has our thanks for these corrections.

The Scott Stamp Co. inform us that their adv. is to be cancelled. Don't answer it.

The Western Philatelist has changed its name to the National Philatelist and its color to true blue. The proper way Mr Cox, would have been to have the first three numbers in their order, red, white and blue respectively.

When you get the best of the bargain in a stamp trade its cunning, when the other fellow gets the best its cheating.

Count. Detector's Report.

Fellow Members:—

I appreciate the honor you have conferred upon me, by electing me your Counterfeit Detr., and will do my best to make this Department a success. If you have any stamps which you are doubtful of, as to whether they are genuine or not, send them and I will be pleased to examine them for you.

My fee is 3c per stamp and return postage. I intend to make a collection of Counterfeits and Reprints for the society, and for this purpose have purchased a blank album to place them in. Any donations of the above will be thankfully received and acknowledged through these columns.

Yours truly,

FRED. J. GARRATY.
