Town Council.

Town Council was held from other countries, and do prefer adopting the course pursued in Great Britain to that of any other country. How nearly this accords with the Government's policy our Conservative friends may judge and answer the query as to they Mr. Worts should a pioyoualy take the chieftain and his policy to his arms.

Six John is a sad trickster, as his conduct in regard to the Relief Bill and the report on the Anglin matter show, In the first case it was understood that he would offer no opposition to the bill, which would prove so beneficial to many of his friends, but seeing that the bill would arry and desiring to make a little political capital out of the affair he induced a party vote upon the measure, having succeeded thus far to his desire, he directed his majority in the Senate to allow the Bill to pass. In the latter Listance he agreed that the report of the Angority in the Senate to allow the Bill to pass. In the latter Listance he agreed that the report of the Privileges Committee should not be discussed but simply received. He however, saw a chance to raise a hue and cry and he soon had the whole pack at this heels in good voice. When the report was handed to the motor and cry and he soon had the whole pack at his heels in good voice. When the report was handed to them for consideration that the report of the figure and the conducted has opposition with much credit to him self, but fortunately his tricks have been look transparent to Ideceive.
