INSPECTION of the Gillette Safety Razor by mechanical experts and men of judgment shows clearly WHY seven million shavers prefer it.

The thin, flat blade is tempered to a uniform hardness impossible in an ordinary thick-backed razor. As a natural result, it takes an edge unequalled for even keenness.

The curved holder supports the blade close to the shaving edges, preventing all that vibration which makes hollow-ground open blades and other safeties pull and irritate when they strike a stiff beard.

Then there's the adjustable feature, exclusive to the Gillette.

By a simple turn of the wrist you can regulate a Gillette shave to a nicely—light, medium or as close as you like.

The toothed guard ensures safety, and permits such free and rapid strokes that a smooth, clean Gillette shave need take no more than three minutes.

Inspect the Gillette and you'll buy it—and shave in comfort thereafter. Go to it! Your Druggist, Jeweler or Hardware Dealer will gladly parade the Gillette Line before you.

nurse were thinking, the fools, that I was unconscious, I've been doing what I've carefully avoided doing all my life up till now—thinking. Put—put some eau de cologne on my lips; I can smell the filthy medicine. Don't let that fool of a doctor give me any more; I hate smelling like a chemist's shop—thanks. Yes, it was very good of you to come, Clive. I wonder whether you would oblige me by remaining until I have made my exit? Don't promise, if it would bore you too much to stay."

"Of course I shall stay with you, father," said Clive.

"Thank you very much," said the old man, with an attempt at his courtly bow. "It is more than I deserve." There was another pause, during which Clive persuaded the stricken man to assume a lower and easier attitude in the bed; then the earl said in a feebler voice:

"There is something I wanted to say to you, Clive—it has escaped me or the moment; but I dare say I shall remember it before I go. I feel sleepy. I have your promise to remain, and as a boy you always kept your promises."

Clive pressed the old man's hand, and he seemed to fall into a stupor. Clive remained beside him for some time, then went down and sent a wire to Adolphus. The reply came very quickly:

"Extremely sorry to hear news; hope things are not so serious as you imagine. Am too unwell to travel; most complicated case."

ADOLPHUS.

Clive, flushing for shame for his brother, returned to the sick-room and watched through the night. The earl's condition did not change, and in the morning Clive sent his telegram to Mina. In doing so, he felt some relief of his anxiety on her account, and was free to devote himself in heart and mind to his stricken father.

For some days the earl lay in this state of stupor. There was little to be done but wait, but what little there was, Clive did. He took up as well as he could the tangled threads of the household affairs, and as far as he was able took the place of the eldest son, Adolphus. And all the time his mind was divided between his father and Mina. He had written to her a long and loving letter, telling her that he would come to her as soon as possible, and asking her to write to him, if only a line or two.

He was surprised and disappointed at not receiving any reply, but he was not alarmed, his faith in her and her love was too strong for doubt or fear.

There was, of course, a great deal to do; and Clive did it thoroughly after the fashion of his kind. The funeral was a large one; for, now that he was dead, a great many persons found that they had entertained a great affection for Dandy Rafterborough and were anxious to be present at his burying. No one was surprised at the new earl's absence, for all knew his character; nor was anyone surprised at the way in which Clive filled his brother's place, for all knew Clive's.

When the guests had departed and Clive had had his last interview with the family lawyer, he asked for the carriage to take him to catch the evening train; he had done his duty by his dead father, more than his duty by his brother, and he was now free to go to the girl he loved.

He reached his rooms in the early morning, weary but buoyed up by the thought of soon holding Mina in his arms. He went to his bedroom and lay down for an hour or two; then he dressed for outdoors. On his way down the stairs, it occurred to him that a letter from Mina might be lying among the others on the table; but he did not go back, he should see herself in a few minutes.

He went to the Reits and, early as it was, found the inhabitants stirring; the door of the house in which Elisha lived was open and Clive walked up the stairs and knocked at the sitting-room door. No response came and he listened intently, his heart beating fast with the expectation of hearing Mina's voice, but there was no sound; the place struck him as lifeless; he tried to open the door; it was locked.

The poor little slavey of the house had been watching him round the stairs and she now called up to him in her shrill voice:

"Wot is it, mister?"

"I want Elisha—Mr. Burrell," said Clive.

"Wot them? They've gone. Been gone ever so long."

Clive came down the stairs slowly "You mean they've gone out?" he said.

"No; I don't. I mean they've gone for good," she said emphatically.

"They went away for a holiday, I believe; but they must have liked the place they went to precious well, for Mr. Lisha and Tibby, they come back after a day or two or two sold the furnicher."

Clive was silent for a moment, telling himself that this sinking of the heart was absurd and ridiculous.

"Indeed?" he said. "Where have they gone?"

"I'm blessed if I know; an' nobody else," replied the girl, beginning to move away. "They've sloped, an' that's all I can say, as I told the gent with the wax-work's face as came to inquire the other day. Thank yer, sir," as Clive put a coin in her hand.

"I'm much obliged; but if you was to give me the Bank of Hengland, I couldn't tell you no more; they've just gone, clean gone, an' that's the long an' the short of it!"

"ECHOES of the Past;

OR,
The Recompense of Love!"

CHAPTER XVIII.

Clive was driven quickly to the Hall. It was a beautiful old place, surrounded by some of the finest timber in England; an old-world place, rich in historical associations. It was architecturally imposing, but it was very much out of repair and ill-kept, and it had the appearance of all such places when the owners lack ready money to maintain them. Clive, of course, loved it, and even at this moment, when his heart was heavy with anxiety, he was conscious of a feeling of pride and admiration as the carriage swept up the avenue of magnificent beeches, and a turn in the road disclosed the ancient house and home of his race.

The butler met him with a face as grave as the coachman's. "The doctor says that you are to go up directly you come, sir," he said. "His lordship is about the same."

Clive went up the great stairs, and the doctor came into the dressing-room to meet him.

"I am glad you have come, Mr. Clive," he said. "The earl has been asking for you, fretting. Yes; it was a paralytic stroke. He is conscious and understands what is said to him, but he speaks with difficulty. He knows that you are here, he heard the carriage. I scarcely need ask you to keep him as quiet as possible."

Without a word Clive entered the bedroom, a nurse glided out and Clive went to the bed. He was grieved and startled by the change in his father. Rafterborough had not been called "Dandy" Rafterborough for nothing; he had been young for his years, and had looked, when Clive saw him last, little more than middle-aged; and Clive could scarcely believe that the shrunken form with the drawn, twisted face and hollow cheeks, could be his sprightly, youthful father. They had removed his wig, there was no rouge on his cheeks, deep lines had been suddenly graven at the corners of his drooping mouth and about his eyes; but though the outer shell was a wreck, the indomitable spirit that must have kept him young still smoldered within Dandy Rafterborough, and he flamed up feebly at sight of Clive. He nodded his already shaking head and tried to smile with his twisted lips.

"So you've come," he said. He spoke slowly, forming each word with difficulty, but Clive, by bending low, could hear. "I thought you would come, though I should not have been surprised if you had wired and told me to go to the devil. You're an awful fool, you know, Clive; but 'pon my soul I've a suspicion that you're the best of the bunch. I've nearly got to the end of my tether. It's a stroke. Extremely annoying! Why on earth couldn't I die in a decent manner? I must look like a figure in a wax-work show, I know. They're taken my wig away—the fools. I wish you'd give it to me and stick it on."

Clive found the thing on the dressing-table and put it on the shaking skull.

"Thanks!" said his father. "I've no objection to dying, but as I said, I should like to do so decently. So you've come; you don't bear any grudge for what passed between us?"

"You know I do not, sir," said Clive.

"You're very good; deuced sight better than I deserved, for, after all, what did it matter if you did turn Radical and stump-orator? You've been a better son to me than Adolphus or Bertie. They sent for Dolph, but he's got one of his imaginary maladies and is at a private hospital or somewhere. He's too busy nursing himself to come to his father. And Bertie—Bertie's in another scrape. A serious one this time, I believe; had to make a bolt for it, gone to Canada, I think; not sure. We're a pretty family to round on you! Gad, I fancy you're the only decent one among us; and I was a fool to cut you on account of politics. I suppose you fancy you're doing some good; if you are, you are the first Rafterborough that has ever done any, so far as I know."

There was a pause. Clive moistened his father's lips with the restorative that stood on the table, and, holding the palsied hand, waited sorrowfully.

"You're like your mother, Clive," the labored voice went on again; "the only one who is like her; you take after her in these quixotic notions of hers; she was all for 'doing good,' and fussing about the poor; funny how these weaknesses get handed down to one member of a family while the rest are passed over! There's Dolph, who wouldn't stretch out his little finger to save the whole of his fellow creatures from drowning; and there's Bertie—well, you know what Bertie is. You're thinking that it's rather late in the day for me to recognize and dilate on your good qualities, Clive; but while I've been lying here, and the doctor and the

Clive, grieved and shocked, would have withheld it, but the nurse whispered, "He will not see," and brought the silver hand-mirror from the dressing-table still laden with rouge-pots, face-washes and cosmetics, and held it up before the fading eyes. Dandy Rafterborough, his ruling passion of personal vanity strong in death, gazed at the glass with a complacent smile.

"No one would take me for more than forty," he murmured; "not a day more than forty!"

He put up his shaking hand and smoothed the side curls of his wig; then, with a little chuckle of self-satisfaction, fell back and closed his eyes. Suddenly he looked up and met Clive's gaze. A change came over his face, it grew grave, almost solemn; he raised himself on his elbow and said earnestly:

"Remember! I rely on you—Clive—the only one—"

Clive was terribly cut up by his father's death; all the more cut up because of the temporary estrangement. Adolphus again wired to say he was too unwell to travel, and requested Clive to make all the necessary arrangements for the funeral. He signed himself "Rafterborough."

There was, of course, a great deal to do; and Clive did it thoroughly after the fashion of his kind. The funeral was a large one; for, now that he was dead, a great many persons found that they had entertained a great affection for Dandy Rafterborough and were anxious to be present at his burying. No one was surprised at the new earl's absence, for all knew his character; nor was anyone surprised at the way in which Clive filled his brother's place, for all knew Clive's.

Salves Can't Cure Eczema.

In regard to skin diseases, medical authorities are now agreed on this: Don't imprison the disease germs in your skin by the use of greasy salves, and thus encourage them to multiply. A true cure of all eczematous diseases can be brought about only by using the healing agents in the form of a liquid.

WASH THE GERMS OUT.

The D. D. D. Prescription is a new skin discovery which is becoming famous throughout Newfoundland and Canada. It is a simple wash, compounded as a scientific antiseptic remedy for Eczema, Bad Leg, Ulcers, Sores, Pimples and all skin eruptions. This wash penetrates to the disease germs and destroys them, then soothes and heals the skin as nothing else has ever done.

Don't delay—this wash will cure. Get a bottle of D. D. D. Prescription to-day. Sould everywhere.

YOUR BOYS AND GIRLS

Children should be taught from the beginning the great moral law of cause and effect; not to look for wealth without work, for honor without honesty. Teach them that character stands above surroundings and that esteem should be bestowed where it is due, whether for mental endowment or material wealth.

It is not all of morals to moralize, and less precept and more example is to be commended. The living realization, the quiet suggestion, the favorable opportunity are the efficient teachers. Ignorance is responsible for a great deal of wickedness, but evil example and parental neglect are responsible for vastly more.

A sense of right and wrong should be cultivated early in a child's life and much may be accomplished in this direction before the child leaves the mother's nursery training.

Novelty pockets continue to be a feature—even on separate waists. Fox furs of all kinds—black, red, white and silver—are the leaders. Silver and gold lace figures among the attractive evening trimmings. There will be a great deal of fur trimming used on collars and cuffs. Linen frocks are the most popular for the little girl's school dress. Lots of new belts have novel pocket arrangements attached to them. asking for you, fretting. Yes; it was a paralytic stroke. He is conscious and understands what is said to him, but he speaks with difficulty. He knows that you are here, he heard the carriage. I scarcely need ask you to keep him as quiet as possible."

Without a word Clive entered the bedroom, a nurse glided out and Clive went to the bed. He was grieved and startled by the change in his father. Rafterborough had not been called "Dandy" Rafterborough for nothing; he had been young for his years, and had looked, when Clive saw him last, little more than middle-aged; and Clive could scarcely believe that the shrunken form with the drawn, twisted face and hollow cheeks, could be his sprightly, youthful father. They had removed his wig, there was no rouge on his cheeks, deep lines had been suddenly graven at the corners of his drooping mouth and about his eyes; but though the outer shell was a wreck, the indomitable spirit that must have kept him young still smoldered within Dandy Rafterborough, and he flamed up feebly at sight of Clive. He nodded his already shaking head and tried to smile with his twisted lips.

"So you've come," he said. He spoke slowly, forming each word with difficulty, but Clive, by bending low, could hear. "I thought you would come, though I should not have been surprised if you had wired and told me to go to the devil. You're an awful fool, you know, Clive; but 'pon my soul I've a suspicion that you're the best of the bunch. I've nearly got to the end of my tether. It's a stroke. Extremely annoying! Why on earth couldn't I die in a decent manner? I must look like a figure in a wax-work show, I know. They're taken my wig away—the fools. I wish you'd give it to me and stick it on."

Clive found the thing on the dressing-table and put it on the shaking skull.

"Thanks!" said his father. "I've no objection to dying, but as I said, I should like to do so decently. So you've come; you don't bear any grudge for what passed between us?"

"You know I do not, sir," said Clive.

"You're very good; deuced sight better than I deserved, for, after all, what did it matter if you did turn Radical and stump-orator? You've been a better son to me than Adolphus or Bertie. They sent for Dolph, but he's got one of his imaginary maladies and is at a private hospital or somewhere. He's too busy nursing himself to come to his father. And Bertie—Bertie's in another scrape. A serious one this time, I believe; had to make a bolt for it, gone to Canada, I think; not sure. We're a pretty family to round on you! Gad, I fancy you're the only decent one among us; and I was a fool to cut you on account of politics. I suppose you fancy you're doing some good; if you are, you are the first Rafterborough that has ever done any, so far as I know."

There was a pause. Clive moistened his father's lips with the restorative that stood on the table, and, holding the palsied hand, waited sorrowfully.

"You're like your mother, Clive," the labored voice went on again; "the only one who is like her; you take after her in these quixotic notions of hers; she was all for 'doing good,' and fussing about the poor; funny how these weaknesses get handed down to one member of a family while the rest are passed over! There's Dolph, who wouldn't stretch out his little finger to save the whole of his fellow creatures from drowning; and there's Bertie—well, you know what Bertie is. You're thinking that it's rather late in the day for me to recognize and dilate on your good qualities, Clive; but while I've been lying here, and the doctor and the

Salves Can't Cure Eczema.

In regard to skin diseases, medical authorities are now agreed on this: Don't imprison the disease germs in your skin by the use of greasy salves, and thus encourage them to multiply. A true cure of all eczematous diseases can be brought about only by using the healing agents in the form of a liquid.

WASH THE GERMS OUT.

The D. D. D. Prescription is a new skin discovery which is becoming famous throughout Newfoundland and Canada. It is a simple wash, compounded as a scientific antiseptic remedy for Eczema, Bad Leg, Ulcers, Sores, Pimples and all skin eruptions. This wash penetrates to the disease germs and destroys them, then soothes and heals the skin as nothing else has ever done.

Don't delay—this wash will cure. Get a bottle of D. D. D. Prescription to-day. Sould everywhere.

YOUR BOYS AND GIRLS

Children should be taught from the beginning the great moral law of cause and effect; not to look for wealth without work, for honor without honesty. Teach them that character stands above surroundings and that esteem should be bestowed where it is due, whether for mental endowment or material wealth.

It is not all of morals to moralize, and less precept and more example is to be commended. The living realization, the quiet suggestion, the favorable opportunity are the efficient teachers. Ignorance is responsible for a great deal of wickedness, but evil example and parental neglect are responsible for vastly more.

A sense of right and wrong should be cultivated early in a child's life and much may be accomplished in this direction before the child leaves the mother's nursery training.

Novelty pockets continue to be a feature—even on separate waists. Fox furs of all kinds—black, red, white and silver—are the leaders. Silver and gold lace figures among the attractive evening trimmings. There will be a great deal of fur trimming used on collars and cuffs. Linen frocks are the most popular for the little girl's school dress. Lots of new belts have novel pocket arrangements attached to them. The foot wearing the patent leather shoe will be foremost this winter.

Latest From the Front.

Messages Received Previous to 9 A.M.

OFFICIAL.
LONDON, Oct. 15.
The Governor, Newfoundland:
General French reports enemy trenches attacked southwest of Hulloch as far as Hohenzollern Redoubt. We gained a thousand yards near Hulloch, but abandoned the position, owing to the enemy's shell fire. Enemy's trenches were captured and held near Vermelles, on the Hulloch Road, and near the Quarries, also the main trenches of the Hohenzollern redoubt. Elsewhere in France there is heavy artillery fighting.

Russia reports further obstinate fighting on the Dvinsk front and in Galicia, where the Russians have returned across Strypa.
BONAR LAW.
GREECE JOINING THE ALLIES.
MILAN, Oct. 15.
The Greek Government is co-operating with the Quadruple Entente by sending its army mobilized, and by this action alone is warding off a possible Bulgarian attack on the base of operations of the expeditionary forces. An Athens despatch says that in exchange for this assistance the Entente will furnish Greece with funds for keeping up its armament, and that the National Bank of Greece has already received a credit of 30,000,000 francs from London and Paris.

BULGARIAN MOVEMENTS.
MILAN, Oct. 15.
Navigation of the Danube has been normally closed, says a Despatched despatch. At Lem Palanka the Bulgarians seized seven barges and three men sent up the Danube by Russia with wheat for Serbia. Bulgaria has laid mines all along the banks of the Danube, thus closing the river. In effect the Roumanian side is not navigable. Roumanian papers stated that there are only 150,000 Bulgarian troops on the Serbian frontier. The remainder are held in reserve, partly in preparation for some diversion by the Allies. Bulgar troops are actively entrenching and fortifying themselves along the Debrudja border and at Rustichin. It has been learned that there are now five German submarines at Varna.

GERMANS ATTACKING IN GREAT FORCE.
PARIS, Oct. 15.
The Germans are attacking in great force near Passarowitz, which commands the Moravia Valley, according to a Nish despatch to the Matin. The Serbs are resisting stoutly, and it is expected that the invaders have not advanced more than four miles south of the river at any point. On the Danube front the Bulgarians have been held in the Timok Valley, where a new action is in progress along the entire front. Mayors of villages along the Macedonia frontier have been made officers in the Serbian army, and have been instructed to organize bands of irregulars, who will be armed with Mauser rifles.

SERBIANS WELCOME THE ALLIES.
LONDON, Oct. 15.
The present plan of attack on Serbia, says a Nish despatch to the Daily Telegraph, was prepared by the German staff, and differs essentially from the Austrian plan of last year, which provided for the taking of Serbia from the west. In accordance with the new plan the Austro-Germans have started to occupy the head of the railway line from Belgrade to Nish, and the Valley of Moravia mostly by frontal attacks, sacrificing men by tens of thousands in order to save time and penetrate quickly and deeply into Serbia. As the success of this enterprise depends on Bulgarian assistance, the Austro-German Generals began their campaign only after Bulgaria had mobilized, thus obliging Serbia to defect part of her troops as a protection against any sudden Bulgarian attack. The most dangerous feature of the Bulgarian situation is the presence of Turkish troops under German command, on the Serbo-Bulgarian frontier. News of the landing of the Franco-British troops at Salonika has caused great enthusiasm at Nish, which is decorated with Allied flags and prepared a hearty welcome for the foreign troops. Serbian reports of fighting place great emphasis on its sanguinary character and the heavy German losses. One commander reported that the banks of the Save before Deljaya, were literally covered with dead bodies.

GERMAN LOSSES.
PARIS, Oct. 15.
Losses amongst the Austro-German forces on the northern front of Serbia total 20,000 killed, and 40,000 wounded, according to latest reports received at the Serbian headquarters at Nish.

THE FORMAL DECLARATION.
LONDON, Oct. 15.
The British Foreign Office has announced that in view of the fact that Bulgaria has announced that she is at war with Serbia, and is an ally of the Central Powers, the Government has informed the Bulgarian Government, through the Swedish Minister in London, who is in charge of Bulgarian interests, that a state of war exists between Britain and Bulgaria from 19 p.m.

THREATENING ROUMANIA.
BERLIN, Oct. 15.
Roumania must decide quickly, and without hesitation, says the Lokal Anzeiger, referring to a report that Russia had asked permission to march troops through Roumania to Serbia's assistance. What will Roumania do in such an event? asks the Lokal Anzeiger, adding that if she imitates Greece and only registers a protest against Russia's marching through the Central Powers cannot remain indifferent.

MILNER'S SUGGESTION.
LONDON, Oct. 15.
Viscount Milner suggested in the House of Lords to-day that in view of the need of all available troops on the western front, there was but one course for the Allies to pursue, and that was the withdrawal of 10,000 or 200,000 French and British soldiers from the Gallipoli Peninsula; to give up the long drawn out campaign against the Dardanelles altogether, and transfer the men with all speed to the aid of Serbia before that country is completely crushed by the Germans. In reply to this suggestion, which was taken up and reiterated in the form of an interpellation to the Government, Lord Lansdowne was wholly non-committal. He said that it was impossible for any member of the Government to give any assurance whatever as to operations at the Dardanelles.

LOAN AGREEMENT SIGNED.
NEW YORK, Oct. 15.
The contract covering the flotation of the five hundred million Anglo-French credit loan was signed to-day by Lord Reading, Chairman of the Anglo-French Commission. He signed the document on behalf of Britain; Homberg and the Allied French Commissioners signed for France. J. P. Morgan signed on behalf of the American syndicate of bankers.

ASQUITH TRUSTS SCOTT.
LONDON, Oct. 15.
Asquith's faith in the ability of Rear Admiral Sir Percy Scott, who is in charge of London's aerial defences to counter the raid attempts, is based, presumably, on knowledge of the preparations he is now making. This was evidenced by the answer in today's parliamentary papers to an inquirer, who was anxious regarding the safety of Westminster Abbey, St. Paul's Cathedral, and other landmarks. It is hoped, said the Premier, that the service presided over by Sir Percy Scott will deal effectively with any further attempts at indiscriminate destruction of property.

BRITISH SUBS AT WORK.
COPENHAGEN, Oct. 15.
Despatches in the evening newspapers say that a second German torpedo boat was sunk by the British submarine E-19. According to the telegrams, the German flotilla, one boat of which was sunk on Wednesday, returned yesterday with reinforcements. The fishermen heard another explosion, and saw a torpedo boat disappear, thereupon the flotilla hurried away.

GERMAN TORPEDO BOAT SUNK.
LONDON, Oct. 15.
A despatch from Copenhagen says that a British submarine has sunk a German torpedo boat.

CLEARING THE BALTIC.
LONDON, Oct. 15.
British submarines have now cleared the Baltic Sea and Gulf of Bothnia entirely of German merchant ships, says a despatch to the Star from Copenhagen. Every German ship which was south bound from Sweden, when the submarines started the campaign, has either been sunk or run ashore. It adds that of fifty German ore carriers thirty-seven are interned in Swedish ports.

GERMAN TRAWLERS CAPTURED.
LONDON, Oct. 15.
That thirty-four German trawlers have been captured and taken into Grimsby since Sept. 15th, is disclosed in an official statement printed in the London Gazette to-night.

HEAVY CASUALTIES IN DARDANELLES.
LONDON, Oct. 15.
British casualties at the Dardanelles up to October 9th, according to official figures given here to-day, were 36,899. Of this the total number of killed was 18,957 of whom 1,185 were officers. The casualties of the Australian contingents were 29,121.

FRENCH SCHOOL TEACHERS.
PARIS, Oct. 15.
Since the beginning of the war 2,000 French public school teachers have been killed on the battlefield, and 8,000 put out of service. The number of mobilized teachers was 30,000 and 700 of them have been cited in army orders.

NO RUSSIAN WARSHIP SUNK.
PETROGRAD, Oct. 15.
An official denial was issued to-day to the statement in German newspapers that a Russian cruiser had been attacked and sunk in the Baltic by German vessels. It is stated that no Russian warships have been seen either sunk or attacked.

BRITISH STEAMER SUNK.
LONDON, Oct. 15.
The British steamer Salerno has been sunk. The crew was saved. The Salerno was a Wilson Line steamer, built in Glasgow in 1912.

CHOLEERA AT KIEL.
BERLIN, Oct. 15.
Reports that a serious epidemic of cholera is raging at Kiel, the German naval base are denied. It is asserted that only three cases are there.

CANADIAN CASUALTIES.
OTTAWA, Oct. 15.
The growing list of casualties from the front indicates that the Canadian divisions are doing their bit in the advance movement of the Allied forces. In the overnight list there are twenty dead and twenty-three wounded. In a recent report by Eye-Witness mention was made of the explosion of a mine by the Germans opposite the Canadian lines. The casualties which have been coming in since, have told the tale of this explosion. About fifty have been reported killed, although all did not lose their lives from this cause. It is also evident, that this week Canadian artillery has suffered from similar causes, eight men in the 5th brigade being wiped out. Meanwhile fighting is going on systematically. All the battalions, both of the first and second divisions are now right up in the firing line. The aggregate of casualties is upwards of 10,500, divided roughly into 3,000 dead, 6,500 wounded and 1,000 classed as missing or known to be prisoners of war.

When making chipped beef and cream, put the beef into a hot buttered pan and stir it constantly until the beef looks dry and rather crisp, then dredge it with flour, stir until the flour is distributed evenly, then pour in the cream and allow it to come to a boil. ### Sick and Wounded Soldiers and Sailors

Arrangements have been made throughout the Empire for a collection to be taken up on Trafalgar Day in aid of the funds of the Red Cross Society and the St. John Ambulance Association, who are doing such a great work in looking after the sick and wounded soldiers and sailors on active service. The appeal has been sent out by Lord Lansdowne, and arrangements have been made for the people of Newfoundland to avail of the opportunity of alleviating the sufferings of the brave boys who fall while fighting for us. This collection is quite apart from the effort which is being made by the local branch of the St. John Ambulance Association to provide a ward of 25 cots, and which is being liberally supported, and it is also quite separate from the efforts of the excellent work of the Women's Patriotic Association, who are collecting funds and sewing and knitting to provide comforts for our fighters, and it is intended that it shall interfere as little as possible with the collections of these patriotic workers. But the object is so commendable that it is felt that an opportunity should be afforded to the people in Newfoundland to participate in it. His Excellency the Governor and Sir Edgar Bowring have given the fund a good start and subscriptions will be received up to and including Thursday next, October 21, October 21st is the anniversary of Trafalgar. Trafalgar Day with its glorious tradition has been set apart for a special effort. It is probable that the ladies who have been so active in the past will be foremost in collecting and may institute something in the nature of a Tag Day. Arrangements are also being made by a committee, consisting of Messrs. Shea, Hepburn, Reuben Horwood and W. J. Higgins, for the holding of a Patriotic Concert at night, at which in one or two short addresses The Traditions of the Day and Our Duty to the Wounded will be aptly set forth. We have no doubt that the Appeal will commend itself to the good feeling of the community.

A Query.

Editor Evening Telegram.
Dear Sir,—I trust you will have space in your valuable paper to insert this little matter which needs after consideration. Well, sir, as you know any young man of EIGHTEEN years of age, can go into any of the liquor stores here and buy a drink, or two, if he wants it, but, it seems, that for a man to be able to vote in the Prohibition cause he must be twenty-one years old. The point I want to get at is this: If a man of eighteen is allowed to buy intoxicating liquors, why is it he is not allowed to vote? Can any of your correspondents give a satisfactory answer to the above query? If so, the public in general would be deeply grateful.
Hoping I have not intruded too much on your space, and in anticipation of publication,
I am, you, sincerely,

Can any of your correspondents give a satisfactory answer to the above query? If so, the public in general would be deeply grateful.

A Reply to "Terra Nova."

Editor Evening Telegram.

Dear Sir,—In looking over your paper of October 15th, I saw a piece written by Terra Nova. As I am in favour of Prohibition I would like to ask why Terra Nova employs sober servants? If this liquor traffic is the backbone of trade, commerce and taxation why does not the drunkard get the best jobs that Terra Nova can give? This reminds me of what I heard a person talking about a few years ago, viz., that the liquor could not be stopped from coming to the country, as some of the merchants who export fish used to take liquor in part payment for the fish, and so a trade is being done, and by stopping the liquor you were likely to hurt the trade with other countries. I will say this much be it known unto the liquor traffic, we will serve thee no longer. We have had enough of what you can do. Again Terra Nova says it may force Confederation on us. Well, I would rather go under Confederation sober, as a man does know a little while he remains sober, but when he is drunk no person will trust him. If Confederation was such a shocking thing, as some people would like us to believe, why do so many people go to these provinces that are under Confederation to spend the remainder of their days. As this is a free country why do they not remain where they made their money. This is very near a free country for some, but if every dollar was taxed alike and not for the consumer to pay all, we would have revenue enough. Thanking you for space, and wishing the Prohibition every success,
I am yours,

Obituary.

MR. ROBERT BREMNER.
A familiar figure of the city as been removed in the death of Mr. Robert Bremner, who died at his residence on Military Road, Friday morning, at the ripe old age of 85. He was one of the old school which is fast passing away, this year being extraordinary for the many deaths of those over eighty. Born at Catalina, and business there at first, Mr. Bremner later went to Ridley's employ at St. John's with Job Bros. This gentleman had been in excellent health, and able to take his daily walk on Water Street, and take his usual interest in the doings of the day. He is the oldest but one of St. Thomas's congregation, and is one of the oldest if not the oldest member of the Masons. He leaves one son, Donald, and two daughters, Mary and Margaret. The funeral takes place on Sunday at 2.30 p.m.

Private Gus Keating.

From letters received in the city recently we learn that Gus Keating, of this city who was wounded while fighting with the Canadians at Ypres, will not be able to go on active service again, and will likely be engaged at recruiting in England. Gus was attached to a gun squad, and took part in the engagement which won imperishable fame for the Canadians. One of his officers, we are informed, stated that it was such men as Keating that "saved the line" on that memorable day.

RED ROSE TEA "is good tea"

438th Day of the War TO-DAY'S Messages.

11.00 A.M.

SERBIANS ATTACK BULGARIAN FRONTIER POINTS.

(Official). The Serbians last night attempted incursion at several points in the region of Clu Bosnegrad and Kustendil with view occupying Bulgarian strategic points which defended the road to Sofia. Their attempts were frustrated. This afternoon our troops succeeded in driving of the Serbians, but in certain districts the fighting continues. Bulgarian losses so far as is known are 18 killed and 190 wounded.

SERBIANS MOVE SEAT OF GOVERNMENT.

MILAN, To-day. The seat of the Serbian Government has been transferred to Mitrovitza near the Montenegrin frontier, according to a despatch to the Secolo from Bucharest.

THE LONDON BUDGET.

LONDON, To-day. From all the main battle fronts comes the news of continued fighting, but from none of them has been received any indication of victories or reverses, which would make a marked change in the situation. The Austrians, Germans and Bulgarians are proceeding methodically with their invasion of Serbia, which according to neutral reports is costing them a very heavy price in the lives of their soldiers. The hardened veterans of Serbia are taking every advantage of a difficult country to inflict the greatest possible losses on the invaders. The Germans, however, have been able to occupy Pozarevac, Southeast of Semendria, and claim their campaign is proceeding according to their plans. The Quadruple Entente Allies are perfecting the preparations to assist Serbia. Every day sees additional troops landed at Saloniki, where the French General Sarrail arrived to take command of the Allied forces. What steps Russia and Italy have taken to render assistance have not yet developed. The political situation remains unchanged; Greece having formally announced that she would not intervene on behalf of Serbia, and at present Roumania, although she is being urged by Germany definitely to define her position has not made any move. Along the Western front there has been heavy fighting in Artois, Champagne, and the Vosges regions. The attacks were made by both sides but the gains and losses are described as being of little importance. In the East the Russians have turned on the offensive in the region of Dvinsk, and although the Germans claim that they have repulsed most of the Muscovite attacks, they admit the Russians penetrated their line at one point. Except for hostilities in this region, things are somewhat calmer in the east. Lt. General Ivanov, the Russian commander, after the victory in Galicia and the subsequent check by the Germans, having for the moment shown himself satisfied with what he has achieved. The Italians again have been on the offensive and claim to have gained successes against the Austrians. The Austrians however deny this statement. Outside the Balkans, campaign England is watching with most interest the operations of her submarines in the Baltic. Here after having driven the German merchantmen from the sea, they have sunk one and probably two German torpedo craft. One is reported to be a torpedo boat destroyer, the other a torpedo boat which would convey other laden steamers. Activity of the British Navy is also shown in the North Sea. The record shows twenty-four German trawlers have been captured and taken into Grimsby during the past month.

BRITISH IMPROVE THEIR POSITION.

LONDON, To-day. The British official report received under date 9.45 last night from Field Marshal French says with reference to the German official statement, today the only change in the situation south of the La Bassee Canal, is that we have further improved our positions in the Hohenzollern redoubt. We hold all the ground gained on the 13th.

ENGLISH WOMAN EXECUTED BY GERMANS.

LONDON, To-day. The Foreign Office has been notified by the American Embassy that Miss Edith Cavell, lately the head of a large training school at Brussels, who was arrested on August 5th by the German authorities at Brussels was executed on Oct. 12th, after a sentence of death had been passed upon her. It is understood the charge against Miss Cavell was that she harbored fugitive British and French soldiers and Belgians of military age and assisted them to escape from Belgium in order to join the colors. Thus far the Foreign Office is not aware that any charge of espionage had been brought against Miss Cavell.

PROPOSE REPRISALS FOR AIR RAIDS.

LONDON, To-day. The proposal for reprisals in regard to Zeppelin attacks meets with approval of several newspapers from a moral standpoint. The Pall Mall Gazette points out that the German public as a whole gives hearty assent to the aerial barbarities and that bestiality of race is not confined to one sex. The Times concurs in reprisals if any military advantage can be gained. The theatre managers decided to maintain evening performances, but the question is whether the public will support them. It appears hundreds of seats have been cancelled for the next few days. In order to conceal this fact, free tickets have been given for these seats. One West End theatre has decided to hold matinees only next week.

CIVILIANS WILL TAKE OVER RECRUITING.

LONDON, To-day. Recruiting is to be taken entirely out of the hands of the military authorities, and entrusted exclusively to civilian organizations, in a nutshell, is the scheme by which the Earl of Derby, director of recruiting for the army, hopes to secure a sufficient number of voluntary enlistments to render recourse to conscription unnecessary. He described the new system at a private conference with the Parliamentary Recruiting Committee and the Joint Labor Recruiting Board, yesterday afternoon. The change that I propose making, said Lord Derby, has not been necessitated by any shortcomings on the part of the recruiting staff, but by the exigencies of the present situation, which to my mind require entirely new methods of dealing with the subject. In the past recruits have been found by military authorities, assisted by civilians. I propose to make civilians responsible for the bringing in raw material, in the shape of recruits, to the military authorities for them to enlist, equip and train. This can only be done, if some thoroughly representative civilian body will be willing to make itself responsible for the work, and my most grateful thanks are due to the two bodies, the Parliamentary Recruiting Committee and the Joint Labor Recruiting Committee, who have made themselves jointly responsible. The much discussed "pink form" will be used in canvassing, but in conformity with instructions prepared, which Lord Derby declared would result in canvassing being conducted with the utmost tact and discretion, all existing recruiting committees will be utilized and various municipal and civil authorities be asked to co-operate. Every eligible man will receive a letter signed by Lord Derby, stating briefly the situation, which makes an inducement in the army necessary, in order, explained Lord Derby, that he may have a direct appeal and be unable to say in future that he was not called upon to join. At a recruiting meeting in the Vice-Regal Lodge at Dublin, which was attended by Baron Wimborne, Lord Lt. of Ireland, and John Redmond, Nationalist Leader, it was decided that the Lord Lieutenant should form a department for recruiting for Ireland, he himself to take the position of director, and a chief organizer being appointed to work in co-operation with the military. Earl Kitchener, Secretary of State for War, in a letter which was read at the meeting, paid a tribute to the bravery, gallantry and exploits of Irish soldiers, and expressed confidence from his close association with the country, that Irishmen never would leave them without reinforcements. It was stated the number of Irish recruits was 31,000, exclusive of those enlisted in England and Scotland and the Irish reservists who are mobilizing.

STOUT RESISTANCE.

ROME, To-day. A despatch to the Giergale Italia from Cettinje, capital of Montenegro, says the Montenegrins made such a stout resistance to the Austro-Germans all along the front, that the latter were compelled to retire and send for reinforcements.

ROUMANIA TO REMAIN NEUTRAL.

BUCHAREST, Wednesday. The Cabinet after again going over the war situation today made a pronouncement in favor of Roumania maintaining neutrality. All the necessary military precautions have been taken on each Roumanian frontier. The presence of German submarines at Varna, Bulgaria's chief seaport on the Black Sea, has been confirmed.

LOOK FOR ATTACK ON SOFIA.

BUCHAREST, To-day. A military office of the Universal an article yesterday expressed the belief that the British and French troops landed at Saloniki will not go to aid the Serbians at Nish, which is 250 miles from their base, but will make a direct attack on Sofia from the Serbian frontier, thus cutting Bulgaria in two and also stopping the Austro-German advance by one of the principal railroads to Constantinople. The writer adds however that the Anglo-French forces must be strong and that Italy must co-operate with them.

2.00 P.M.

WANTS BLOCKADE DECLARED.

LONDON, To-day. A naval correspondent in the Times, reviewing the successful British submarine activity in the Baltic and in the Sea of Marmora, says he thinks the successes warrant the reconsideration of the British position towards neutrals in connection with the naval construction of Germany. He contends that there is no reason why American susceptibility should not be approached. With British submarines which maintain their pressure in the Baltic and the Sea of Marmora we are in a position to make the blockade quite as effective as that which was executed on the Confederate States during the Civil War in America, says the correspondent. It should be possible to declare a blockade which would fulfil all requirements of International Law, and be both impartial and effective. A concession of this character would make no difference to the work of the fleet and would come at the propitious moment when the Germans have declared their intention to modify their policy in regard to the sinking of merchantmen.

2.30 P.M.

DUTCH HOLD UP NEWS OF ZEPPELINS.

LONDON, To-day. How regulations in the Netherlands prevent England from getting timely warning of the approach of Zeppelin airships was explained today by the Times Amsterdam correspondent, who also refers to the insolent violation of Dutch neutrality perpetrated by Zeppelins returning from a raid on Great Britain. The Dutch Government regulations, says the correspondent, forbids the telegraphing to England of any warning, unless the Zeppelins actually pass over Dutch territory or territorial waters. When they are only seen from the coast over the high seas, all telegrams are detained for six hours, a sufficient time to make a friendly warning to England impossible.

UNREST IN BULGARIA.

MILAN, To-day. The Bulgarian Government have been obliged to resort to stern measures of repression, as a result of unrest among the people, says a despatch to the Secolo from Sofia. The officers of pro-Russian sentiment have been retired from the army and it is asserted that reprisals are being taken against the subjects of the Quadruple Entente nations.

VENIZELOS' GOOD WORK.

PARIS, To-day. Ernest hope for the success of the Allies was expressed by former Premier Venizelos of Greece when asked by the Athens correspondent of the Mail to express his opinion of the refusal of the new Greek Government to send an army to the assistance of Serbia. "It was because I foresaw the new Government would take this attitude that I made the speech I did in the Chamber on the 12th. I have nothing to add to it but none hopes more fervently than I for speedy and decisive success for the Allies. I am more deeply convinced today than I was yesterday of their final triumph."

People are now busily engaged at digging their potatoes, although the weather is anything but suitable for such work. Potatoes are said to be very good and fairly plentiful, although in some places the dreaded "canker" is much in evidence. Turnips are good, but not so plentiful as in former years, the price now ranging from $1.40 to $1.50 per barrel.

Mr. William Peddle of the Archibald Bros. Factory left for Boston with his family on Tuesday evening. Mr. Peddle has secured a good position in the big city and will reside there in future.

The Horwood Lumber Co.'s branch business at Western Bay is now in full swing, and Mr. Chesley Butt, of this town has charge of its affairs.

Our entire town was saddened on Wednesday evening when a wire was received announcing the death at Cairo, Egypt, of one of our young soldiers, L. C. Ruppert, K. Watts. A message to his mother on the 1st October announced that our young friend was dangerously ill. As time passed on, the sad word of his condition was received, we were all hopeful that our young soldier, one of the bravest of our boys, was on the way to recovery. But, alas, shortly before 6 o'clock on Wednesday the sad news was flashed along the wires that Mr. Watts had passed away at the age of 27. It is a sad, sad word, the death of one who had taken such a deep interest in Brigade matters generally; the Brigade prayer was then said, and after singing that touching hymn, "Nearer My God to Thee," the lads who were all sorely grieved at their loss, retired to their homes. The friends of Lance Corporal Watts have the sympathy of the whole community.

"Set a Thief . . . ."

By RUTH CAMERON.

RUTH CAMERON

"Set a thief to catch a thief," is an old and well-proven proverb, but I sometimes wonder if we realize to the full its meaning and possibilities.

A friend of mine has a neighbour who is a kind-hearted person, but possessed of a weakness for gossip. She has a watchful eye which never misses any of the doings of the neighbourhood, a busy mind which never forgets them and a tongue which is ever ready to pass them on.

The other day my neighbour's daughter wanted to do a certain thing which, while not in any sense wrong, was unconventional. "I wouldn't mind at all," said her mother, "if I didn't know that Mrs. . . . ."

"My dear," said the other woman, "shouldn't let that bother you a particle. You know you're doing nothing wrong and that's all there is to it."

"Never," said her daughter. "It could be fatal to try that. You leave it to me. I'll show you how to manage her."

She went straight to the lady in question and in the course of a little had mentioned what she wanted to do. "Of course you and I know it's perfectly all right," she said. "But some people are so quick to think ill."

"My dear," said the other woman, "shouldn't let that bother you a particle. You know you're doing nothing wrong and that's all there is to it."

Archbishop Roche at Renew's.

Sunday evening at 4.45 the Archbishop's party—His Grace Archbishop Roche, Very Rev. Fr. McDermott and Father McGrath—arrived at Renew's, unfortunately the weather was very unpropitious, rain coming in torrents preventing the gathering of the people to give expression of welcome. At the station His Grace and party were met by the venerable pastor, Rev. W. P. Doutney, P.P., who expressed the welcome which all the people desired to His Grace on this his first visit to the Parish since his consecration. His Grace was greatly pleased to find so many arches erected, all having very appropriate mottoes and decorated with numerous flags of various nationalities, commemorating the late victory of the French. The principal arch at the entrance to the Presbytery was surmounted by a very large flag of France, the Red, White and Blue and alongside flew the flag of Belgium.

Next morning Mass was celebrated at 8.30 by His Grace at which great numbers attended, and immediately after Mass the people's address was read by Mr. Arthur O'Leary. To the address His Grace made a very gracious reply, thanking all for the royal reception given him, expressing his deeply felt feelings of thankfulness for this "Caud Milles Faulthe" welcome. Notwithstanding the inclement weather His Grace went to Riverhead, Fermeuse, where he was the guest of Mr. John Morry, and to Admiral's where he addressed the good people thanking them for the whole-hearted reception accorded him. In each place the Church and School was visited the people were addressed by His Grace. The Archbishop's party then left amidst volleys of musketry and hearty cheers for Renew's, where they remained the guests of the rev. pastor until 11 p.m. where they joined the incoming train for St. John's.

Applied for Commission

We understand that Lance Corporal Stan Lumsden has applied for a Commission as Second Lieutenant with the Newfoundland Regiment. Stan, it will be remembered, was wounded at the battle of Neuve Chapelle while fighting with the Princess Pats. He was invalided to England and after some time in hospital was attached to the clerical staff at the War Office. On seeing the Newfoundland Regiment at Aldershot he resolved to return to active service. Stan is a son of Mr. A. K. Lumsden, buyer for James Baird, Ltd.

Prohibition Campaign.

A meeting of the General Committee was held at the Prohibition headquarters, Smallwood Building, last night. Dr. H. M. Mosdell presiding. The Chairman gave a stirring address and the report of the Canvassing Committee was received with much enthusiasm. Meetings will be held every night at headquarters and on Monday and Wednesday nights public meetings will be held in the T. A. Armoury which has been placed at the disposal of the Committee by the T. A. and B. Society.

Girls! Girls! Try It! Stop Dandruff and Beautify Your Hair

Hair stops falling out and gets thick, wavy, strong and beautiful.

Your hair becomes light, wavy, fluffy, abundant and appears as soft, lustrous and beautiful as a young girl's after a "Danderrine" hair cleanse. Just try this—moisten a cloth with a little Danderrine and carefully draw through your hair, taking one small strand at a time. This cleanses the hair of dust, dirt and excessive oil and in just a few moments you have doubled the beauty of your hair. Besides beautifying the hair at once, Danderrine dissolves every particle of dandruff; cleanses, purifies and invigorates the scalp, forever stopping itching and falling hair. But what will please you most will be after a few weeks' use when you will actually see new hair—fine and downy at first—yes—but really new hair growing all over the scalp. If you care for pretty, soft hair and lots of it surely get a 25-cent bottle of Knowlton's Danderrine from any druggist or toilet counter, and just try it.

BOYS' STRIKE—The S. S. Pallika is discharging flour for the Furness Withy Co., and some twelve of the boys engaged rolling the barrels from the side of the ship into the sheds knocked off, demanding more wages than they were getting. In about a quarter of an hour the trouble ended.

Questions for Prohibition People.

Editor Evening Telegram. Dear Sir:—May I be allowed to use your column to ask the Prohibition people a few questions?

First and foremost may I say that I have a perfectly open mind on the Prohibition question—am neither for nor against—and have no particular, personal interest in the result of the ballot. I have, however, as a Newfoundland, the ultimate interest of my country at heart, and it is with this in view that I ask for enlightenment. To continue: (1) Allowing for the sake of argument that the Revenue, as the Temperance advocates claim, will not be affected by Prohibition—a somewhat doubtful allowance, I think—if the Prohibition measure is carried it is only going to be a farce if smuggling is rife and the "shebeen" prevalent. This certainly will be the case unless both the Customs and Police forces are not greatly added to. Extra officials mean extra salaries, and in this instance many extra salaries. We are taxed as highly as we can be at present, and where, may I ask, is the money coming from to pay the additional salaries of the many extra officials it is going to be necessary to appoint?

(2) Will the embarrassment of the Government by the loss of duties and additional salary expense make Prohibition mean Confederation? (3) Are we really such a hard drinking community as some of our Temperance friends would have us believe? A very large portion of our "bone and sinew" are at present fighting the battles of our country. Could these men have passed the strict medical test and the subsequent hard work if we were a drinking country? Certainly not. I doubt if there is a seaport town in the world where there is a less proportion of drunkenness than there is in Newfoundland. Allowing that there are some whose families will be benefited by the abolition of the saloon, how do you propose to prevent these men from filling up on Bay Rum, Florida Water, Medicated Wines and such concoctions which may be bought almost anywhere? A man intoxicated from Bay Rum is very much more to be feared than a man suffering from an overdose of rum.

(4) We notice that over $4,000 has been collected for the Temperance Campaign. How is it proposed to expend this money? Would not this money be better expended in the temperance cause by the brightening of some of the poorer homes of the city with provisions and coal this winter?

(5) In many houses in the island a little brandy is kept in case of sudden illness or weakness—especially in the case of women. What substitute, in the event of Prohibition, is it suggested to provide? In many settlements it is impossible to obtain the services of a doctor at short notice to provide the necessary prescription, and many people cannot afford the services of a doctor for a slight illness. How is it proposed to "bring to" a woman suffering from sudden weakness? Read her a little temperance tract? I intend signing this letter with a "nom-de-plume" because, as I mentioned at the start, I am open to conviction either way on the matter of Prohibition being to the best interest of Newfoundland, but I am not anxious to have my name associated publicly with either party to the question, but in conclusion, I claim the questions I ask are ones that any thinking man might well ask himself, and all that is asked for is enlightenment. Yours truly, NEWFOUNDLANDER. St. John's, Oct. 14th, 1915.

Schooner Lost.

A Word to the Wise.

Why pay more for less satisfactory results? Incandescent gas is at once the cheapest and the best form of illumination. It is the cheapest not only on account of its low initial cost, but also because by keeping the air in a room constantly moving gas is a powerful ventilating agent and therefore a foe to doctor's bills. Moreover, being "artificial daylight" it does not exercise a deleterious effect upon the eyesight. Children can work or read with perfect safety and comfort in a gas-lit room, and parents may thus avoid laying up for their youngsters the headaches and general "lack of tone" which eye-strain causes. Gas may claim aesthetic as well as hygienic value. Modern gas fittings have been brought to a very high standard of artistic merit, and can be designed to harmonise with any period of decoration or furniture. Gas means household health, economy and beauty.

THE THOUGHTS OF THEOBALD.

PROHIBITION.

To vote for Prohibition, place the X against the "Yes."

Are you in favor of prohibiting the importation, manufacture and sale of spirits, wine, ale, beer, cider, and all other alcoholic liquors for use as beverages?

WHO CAN VOTE?

Every male who has reached the age of 21 years is resident in the Colony for two years and also a bona fide resident of the electoral district in which he proposes to vote.

OUR POSITION.

The leaders in the Telegram lately are timely. Now that the Empire is at war, with quite enough of her own affairs to look after, it is more necessary than ever that we should not have to bother the Mother Land about our comparatively puny affairs; it is the highest patriotism on our part to see that we manage our own affairs and thus assist rather than impede her.

The discussion of our position has a right to our attention. That we are in a bad way financially is no secret. The war has not brought us to the wall. The cause is common knowledge even among the staunchest supporters of the present Government.

The Railway Policy, Tariff tinkering and general mal-administration of financial affairs can be reasonably laid at the door of the Government, and are responsible for our position. No business man would ever dream of embarking on such a policy and it is not perhaps the intentional fault of the Morris Government as much as their utter incapability to grasp financial problems. They may mean well, but we cannot afford to let the country suffer through stupidity and ignorance, however well-intentioned.

And now that we are in the mess, what are we going to do about it? The enormous, back-breaking load of interest has to be paid at the end of the year. Where are we to get it, with our loans still unnegotiated? I firmly believe that we are on the brink of danger.

The rumors and movements of sundry individuals have been too insistent for anyone to doubt that ways and means are being sought to bring us into Confederation. And is Confederation the only way out? Is it a desirable way out? For instance, is the political family of Canada any better than the worst of our crowd? Do the recent revelations of "graft" in Canada serve to draw us towards her? Hear what the Primate, Archbishop Matheson, said at the recent Church Synod in Canada: "There must be a cleansing of the springs of our political life or else our whole character and ideals as a Canadian Nation will be imperilled."

And in Canada taking over our debt do we not then partake of the whole debt and have to shoulder our portion? And where would the Reid Nfd. Co. figure in Confederation? They have large interests here and they would want a say, perhaps too big a say for some here.

HONEST GOVERNMENT.

As the editor says, what we need now is a Government with the confidence of the people. A Government that the people could trust and that would co-operate with them in developing Newfoundland for Newfoundlanders and helping Newfoundland to "paddle her own canoe." Without this confidence people will not invest in their own country. With this confidence, there are resources of money that could be available and the advantage of local loans is that the interest is kept in the country. For instance if a loan of two million were raised locally, in twenty years the principal ($2,000,000) would have been paid in interest and gone into circulation in the Colony, instead of being sent out of the Colony.

And from any point of view, this confidence cannot be held in the present Government. They have had opportunities and they have taken every advantage of them to waste money in reckless prodigality. Their term of office has produced not statesmen, but politicians in the unsavoury meaning of the term.

HONEST MEN.

It is to some extent true that the very failures of the present Government have saved many a man from wishing for political power for the sake of the accompanying means of graft and self-advancement. The past five or six years have been perhaps a very necessary "chastening" for the country and the result is going to be a rebound from the tactics of the past years to better government and more democratic government. A few years ago one could meet men who looked complacently on politics as a game where one party was pretty well as bad as any other. But the past administration has opened their eyes to the result and the serious possibilities of bad government, and one will hear these men discuss the welfare of the country with far more interest than ever they did.

Out of our adversity will come our emancipation. And the time is ripe for new ideals and selfless enthusiasm for country and for the welfare of every man, woman, and child in it.

Every lover of Newfoundland should rejoice in the new spirit that has been abroad during the past decade, with its democratic tendencies and its aims for real, direct service to the people, and in as far as a Party will honestly labour along these lines and keep its hands free from any interest in Government funds except what is allowed as salary, so far will it have the confidence of the people, and thus be able to help the island upward.

DOCTOR WANTED.

There was a pathetic appeal in the columns of the Telegram not long ago from Hermitage. It asked for a Doctor, as their own "beloved Physician" had died, "full of years," and a large stretch of coast was left unattended. Surely this is something that the Government ought to be interested in. Just imagine, you in the City and who only have a few minutes to walk to get a doctor, what would you have done, if there was no doctor within twenty or thirty miles? There is no profession which we can spare less than the medical. We are not taught much about our bodies, and it is left to the doctors to have a monopoly of the remedies for the ills of disease.

It seems to me that it ought to be one of the duties of Government to see that all our coasts are adequately served by doctors. There must be hundreds of lives lost, in the outports, every year, through lack of attendance and proper treatment.

DAN CARROLL.

There are few of our local poets who can touch the strings of imagination like Dan Carroll. His latest in the Telegram this week on the death of Private Blyde shows how musical his lines run and how easily one follows his idea. There seems no striving after effect, or use of any but simple language, and like a true artist, there seems no "effort" in the smoothness of his rhythm.

Too many of our budding poets imagine that they must use high sounding phrases and big strange words, which only add obscurity to the poem. It is easier to use big words, and the art is in using simple language correctly, an art in which Ruskin, one of the greatest prose writers of all times, excelled.

D.C.'s collected poems ought to make an interesting and valued volume and would compare favorably with amateur productions of any land.

GAMBLING.

Gambling is always wrong, and wrong in itself. It gives one the chance of winning property or value, without paying for it. Instead of inspiring one to earn what is obtained, gambling plants the hope of getting it for nothing. The fever of expectation lures men to the stock exchanges, where fortunes are made at a single stroke; but where one wins, scores go away ruined, with nerves made unsteady and body unfitted for any honorable exertion. Here it is possible to dabble in stocks in a small way and much money has been won and lost by business men, accountants, and men of leisure. For instance, if they have an idea that C.P.R. stock is going up, they can go to a stock-broker's office and buy so many shares "on margin," and await developments. If C.P.R. stock goes up, they can sell out and pocket the gain; if, however, the stock happens to go down, they have to pay up and look pleasant!

Now we have laws against lotteries and raffles, which generally do not mean much outlay in money, but this is a huge gambling scheme, where thousands of dollars sometimes are won or lost, which is unmolested.

There are business men here who acknowledge that most of their money has been made through stocks, and who, through this money, have gained positions in Church and State.

Could not the same influence, which had raffles stopped, step in and examine this gambling on margins, and find why one should be stopped and the other allowed to continue?

Giving Thanks.

A little strength was lost each day,
Little hope dropped by the way;
The feet dragged slowly up the road,
The shoulders bent beneath the load,
Courage seemed dying in their heart,
The will played, but a feeble part.

Night brought no ease,
Day no surcease,
From heavy cares or weary smart,
Then why give thanks?
Somehow strength lasted through the day,
Hope joined with courage in the way
The feet still kept the uphill road,
The shoulders did not drop their load,
An unseen power sustained the heart
When flesh and will failed in their part.

While God gave light
By day and night,
And also grace to bear the smart,
For this give thanks.

Thanks for the daily bread which feeds
The body's wants, the spirit's needs;
Thanks for the keen, the quickening word
"He only lives who lives in God."
Whether his time on earth is spent
In lordly house or labor's tent.

Thanks for the light
By day and night
Which shows the way the Master went,
And he gave thanks.

WAR NEWS.

MESSAGES RECEIVED PREVIOUS TO NINE A.M.

BRITAIN AND SERBIA.

LONDON, Oct. 15. Britain is giving Serbia all the help in its power, freely and unconditionally. In view of the treaty between Greece and Serbia, said the Foreign Secretary, how can there be any other attitude on the part of Greece towards assistance offered through her to Serbia? In the steps taken we have acted in closest co-operation. Russian troops are promised as soon as they can be made available. All military measures adapted to meet the requirements of the new situation are the subject of continuous attention by the military authorities of the Allies, and they will be taken in close consultation with each other. It is not my province to make public any disclosure of military plans, and I can only say I believe they will be based on the principles of sound strategy. Serbia is fighting for her national existence. With her the struggle is just now intense and acute, but territory should not suffer. This situation whatever theatre of war fighting is taking place all the Allies are fighting for national existence, for all are fighting the same issues. It is a fight for the right to live not under the shadow of Prussian militarism, which does not observe the ordinary rules of humanity in war, and to leave us free from the menace of oppression.

THE BALKAN PROBLEM.

LONDON, Oct. 15. The diplomatic rather than the military side of the situation was the subject of Grey's eagerly awaited statement relative to the Balkan situation which he delivered to-day in the Commons. I propose to confine myself, Grey said, to a resume of our diplomatic objects since the war. At the outset we desired war should not spread. In common with our Allies, we assured Turkey that, if she remained neutral, Turkey and Turkey's territory should not suffer. This situation was completely changed by the entrance of Turkey into the war. All obligations on the part of the Allies then ceased. We and our allies then concentrated upon securing an agreement among the Balkan States. We used all our influence to secure an accord. Unfortunately feeling in the Balkans is not one of union, but of divisions. It was clear that nothing but a decisive and preponderating advantage for the allies would have enabled us to secure a policy of union. We were given to understand in the course of the negotiations that the Central Powers had offered Bulgaria more to secure her neutrality than the Allies could in fairness offer. Promises which induced Bulgaria to declare war were given by the Central Powers at the expense of her neighbors without any corresponding advantage to them. We have remained throughout in friendly relations with Roumania, who favored the policy of the Balkan union. This policy has resulted in bringing about the Balkan war, that the sovereign governments of Germany, Austria, Hungary and the Bulgarian Sovereign and government have succeeded in carrying into effect. We were given to understand in order to secure Balkan union there were concessions Bulgaria would require, especially in Thrace and Macedonia. The allies were ready to do all in their power to secure these for Bulgaria, but to obtain the consent of Serbia and Greece was an essential preliminary to Bulgaria taking sides with the allies against Turkey; in other words if Bulgaria would realize her hopes, as to her actions towards the other neighboring States engaged, it will be enough to say their reasonable hopes and aspirations were in the main founded upon the opportunity, for perhaps those of the same race, same sentiments, and same religion to join themselves to the States under the government most akin to theirs.

Premier Asquith, in the Commons, declined to grant a day for a debate on Sir Edward Grey's statement on the Balkan situation. He concluded of Lords, Marquis Crewe also spoke on the Balkan situation. He concluded by saying that this attack on Serbia will only make sterner and fiercer the determination of the Allies to carry the war through to a definite victory at whatever cost. Nothing has occurred in any part of the world to weaken that resolution. We will maintain it.

During the discussion which followed Marquis Crewe's statement Viscount Milner suggested the withdrawal of troops from Gallipoli and their transfer to some other theatre of war. Lord Lansdowne, in reply, said it was impossible for any member of the Government to give an undertaking that the troops would continue the Dardanelles operations, or would be withdrawn from them. It would be unpatriotic and improper, he said, to force the Government to make fuller disclosure of its operations in which the country was engaged at present. The situation, he declared, was a grave and critical one. There were new developments, new factors. In addition to the entrance of Bulgaria into the struggle, the attitude of Greece, at the present moment, had not been quite fully defined. That was another factor in the calculations.

Do you suffer from Nerve Troubles

Our nerves are like an intricate network of telegraph wires. They are controlled and nourished by a portion of the brain known as the nerve centres. In such cases there is nothing to equal "Wingarnis," the "Wine of Life." "Wingarnis" is a powerful nerve food which acts directly upon the nerve centres and gives them new life and new vitality. The result is wonderful.

Forty Per Cent. Are Paupers

Amongst every 1000 men who reach the age of 65, there are 400 who depend on public or private charity—of the remaining 600, the great majority live on the border between poverty and decent comfort. Think what a blessing to every one of these a regular monthly income would be.

From this working of the law of averages you have no escape unless it be by early death or by providing yourself with some unfailing source of regular, periodical income for your latter days.

You can do that to-day by means of a Canada Life Monthly Pension policy. It will guarantee you a monthly income for life, beginning at age 65, and from the day your first premium is paid it will, as straight insurance, protect your life in favor of your dependents.

SEEING ZEPPELINS.

It is one thing to talk and read about Zeppelins, it is another unforgettable thing to see one over your neighbors' roofs. The papers say the Zeppelins are coming, there is deeper darkness than usual, people are watching out or forming Zeppelin parties and climbing the nearest hill—as for you, you go to bed. What happens is this. A huge rumbling and crackling noise comes from beyond the ridge that divides you from the Germans' objective. You jump out of bed, and looking out of the window at first sees nothing but staturesque trees against the starry sky. Then a broad, bright searchlight swings across the sky and fixes itself on a little cloud. Against this cloud, comparatively low in the sky, is a small yellow object. It begins to move across to the left, pointing slightly upwards as if making for another higher cloud. All this time a series of sharp explosions is going on, and you see little spurts of red flame, sparkling like Guy Fawkes-day rockets, in the neighborhood of the Zeppelin. Reaching the cloud, the Zeppelin is for a moment caught in the brilliant glare of the searchlight, so that you can see the ribs of its anatomy. It hovers for a minute, and then as you watch the nose tilts upwards until the thing seems nearly upright, and then—this is the great moment—it is so plain that you can make out little stains upon its golden body, the two black cages, and it comes home to you with an extraordinary thrill that they are full of Germans. The Zeppelin moves slowly upwards, the guns growling at it all the time, and the firework display becomes more lively, and then it slides out of sight. The cloud closes over it, the searchlight dies out, and you go back to sleep. You hear next morning that a bomb wrecked an empty villa half a mile from your bed. It has all been a sort of incredible peepshow in which there was one stabbing moment of reality—the moment when you saw the black cages full of Germans slinking up into the sky after their murderous work.

QUOTA SYSTEM OF NATIONAL SERVICE.

Advocates of the quota system of National Service, the most powerful of whom is freely alleged in political circles to be in the cabinet, in the bough. The windows are crammed with battle relics, a collection constantly brought up to date. Bombs are delivered fresh the morning after a raid, and there are enough odds and ends in the way of German belongings to fit out a company of "Huns." A prisoner at Dohertiz has just sent over a comic coat-of-arms for the division with the motto "Always merry and bright."

WOMEN'S CAMPAIGN FOR THRIFT.

The suffragists are taking up the question of thrift, and a special campaign throughout its many hundreds of branches is to be one of the most important features of the autumn session of the National Union of Women's Suffrage Societies. Almost every afternoon groups of organizers, whose business it will be to preach thrift on scientific lines to the 50,000 women of the Union, to say nothing of others who will attend the lectures, gather together in Parliament Street, where they are being drilled by the well-known authority on household economies, Mrs. McKillop, M.A. The students, who will in turn become the teachers, are going into many unfamiliar phases of the economy problem. Attention is being directed, for instance, on the changes in the national supply of food since the war began and to methods of large scale cooking and co-operation generally. There were also lectures on the War Loan and taxation by the same authority, while Dr. May Thorne will deal with civic health, Mrs. Chamberlain with the productive planting of small gardens, and Mrs. Bertrand Russell on how to start a school for mothers, subjects which may appear to be far removed from one another, but are all part of the domestic and national economy scheme.

WAR ECONOMY AT THE LIBRARIES.

It is expected that the war economy of the local authorities will take the form, among other things, of a cutting down of expenditure on public libraries. The recent Local Government Board circular suggested the libraries as one of the departments on which there might be a saving. The Library Association at its recent meeting here had a discussion which showed that many people are afraid that economy will have the effect of seriously injuring the educational value of the libraries, and this at a time when the importance of literature, both as an escape from an overmastering obsession and as helping people to take wider and sounder views on the problem of the war, is greater than ever. The Lambeth Libraries Committee has just decided not to buy any novels during the war, and it is probable that this example will be widely followed. The argument is, of course, that fiction in war-time is a luxury. What are called "useful books" will continue to be bought at Lambeth. It is notorious that the public libraries are still far too much used as disseminators of novels, although this is much less the case than is supposed, especially since the libraries have been brought into closer co-ordination with the work of schools. It is likely that many library committees will adopt the sensible course of cutting down expenditure on ephemeral fiction while still buying the works of the first-rate novelist. It is improbable that there will be any retrenchment on books on the war, which are being eagerly read at the moment. Many committees may think it advisable to cease buying the more expensive books of general literature.

HISTORY IN POSTAGE STAMPS.

Even in postage stamps is the history of the war being written. Every keen collector will wish to have in his album specimens of those which have been specially marked as having been adapted for service in war areas. Issues of German colonies which have passed into Allied hands are as interesting as any I have seen. The Cameroons German stamps, for instance, have been utilized by the Cameroons Expeditionary Force, and boldly marked with its initials, C.E.F., in black prominent letters. A 3-pennige stamp has been converted into one of the value of a halfpenny, while a penny is the sum attributed to one of 5 pennige. Some of the stamps which are now being used in Togoland are British Gold Coast issues, with the words "Togo-Anglo-French Occupation" superimposed in big black type. New Zealand has supplied Samoa with its issues, and here again the added inscription in black identifies the temporary war use of the stamp. Of course Germany also is extending her postal issues over the territories occupied by her armies. The stamps of the "Deutsches Reich," familiar to all collectors, made their appearance in Belgium with the word "Belgien" marked upon them simultaneously with the incursion of the Huns last year.

urbs, but the delivery of letters is essentially work which women can do as well as men. Women are now being employed as sorters, which again is a duty they can do equally well. There is not much skill required for sorting letters, and a few days' instruction is usually sufficient to enable the women to be "passed" for employment. Since war the deliveries in London suburbs have been reduced as a rule from eight to four per day.

THE FRENCH COLONIAL ARMY.

The news that the French Government is taking steps to enlarge its colonial army draws attention to the enormous latent potentialities of the French territories in Africa. These possessions cover four million square miles—about four times as large as Europe, excluding Russia—with a population of twenty-five million natives and a potential man-power which may be put at about five millions. In recent years the French have made great strides in the organization of their colored army. About three years ago the Government decreed a system of conscription for Algeria and French West Africa, in which latter possessions alone the French have a very large population to draw upon. Since that time natives have been regularly drafted into the army and trained. Whereas in 1907 the Senegalese force was about nine thousand, it had been raised shortly before the outbreak of war to something like a hundred thousand men. It was only about two years ago that Senegalese appeared for the first time on a parade ground in France, as part of the French Army. In 1914 it was reckoned that the French were in a position to draw upon 250,000 colored troops in Africa.

JAPANESE TOYS FOR CHRISTMAS.

There will be no shortage of toys for the Christmas market, though they will not all be of British make. The home manufacturers have made highly satisfactory progress, particularly in making that German speciality the metallic toy, and there will undoubtedly be very many more British toys in the nursery this Christmas than was the case last year, particularly if one includes under this description the toys that have come from Canada. America is sending us a good many toys, too, but the country that has made really enormous preparations for meeting the Christmas demands of British children is Japan. The Japanese output in this and other directions is literally staggering the wholesale trade in the City, our Ally of the Far East having shown a remarkable alacrity in capturing the trade lost to Germany. Naval and military toys, as might be expected, are the leading lines for the coming season, and there are plenty of novelties among them, such as searchlights worked by electric batteries, anti-aircraft guns, and the "torpedoed battleship." The last is an ingenious production with a strong spring in its hold, and when a torpedo sent by a submarine touches a certain little button away into the air go deck and guns. Needless to say the "battleship" is a German.

A little slice of slander will do no end of harm. Alexander has a got a wooden arm. The chap who hears you tell it, will note the story down, and then he'll go and yell it, with frills, throughout the town. He'll peddle here and yonder, all up and down the line, the tale that Alexander has got a wooden spine. Then Johnsing will meander, and tell his neighbour, Gregg, that poor old Alexander has got a wooden leg. And Lyman tells Leander—this way such stories spread. Then Alexander hears it; a tear streams from his eye; he brands it and he sears it as a confounded lie. He says, "It is no puddin' to wear a scandal wreath; I've nothing that is wooden about me but my teeth. And now I'll take my claymore and spoil the liars' plans; I'll cripple up or slay more than forty scandal fans." The town is full of scurrying because that story spread; we hear the wounded yapping, we count the mangled dead. The morgue is full of corpses, the jail is full of jakes; oh, reader, hold your horses, and pass along no fakes!

The Greatest War Picture Ever Issued "THE GREAT SACRIFICE."

"Greater love hath no man than this, that a man lay down his life for his friends."

REMARKABLE TRIBUTES.

Her Majesty Queen Alexandra has been graciously pleased to write as follows:—

"It is a lovely picture which must appeal to the feelings of the whole Nation."

His Eminence Cardinal Bourne.

"It is a picture full of meaning, and one that should bring consolation to many a sorrowing heart. I hope it will have a wide circulation. There could not be a more appropriate frontispiece than this to the wonderful Pastoral Letter by Cardinal Mercier, whose burning words were immediately brought back to my mind when my eyes fell on the picture of our crucified Lord with the stricken soldier at His feet."

The Bishop of Lichfield.

"I think the picture of 'The Great Sacrifice' very beautiful and touching. It cannot fail to do good to those who see it and consider its meaning."

We beg to announce that we have obtained the selling rights in Newfoundland for this celebrated picture and that samples of the various styles are now on exhibition in our window. Orders may be booked at the following prices:—
