Best for Either Man or Beast

Nothing for Family Use Can Compare With It.

RUB ON NERVILINE.

When you have been exposed to wet and cold and your muscles are full of pain, nerves are jumping with neuralgia, then you should have ready at hand a bottle of Nerviline. It rubs pain of its tortures, gives relief to all suffering, brings ease and comfort wherever used.

No care or expense has been spared to secure for Nerviline the purest and best materials. It is prepared with a single aim; to restore the sick to health. This cannot be said of the preparation that an unscrupulous dealer may ask you to accept instead of Nerviline, so we warn you it is the extra profit made on inferior goods that tempts the substitutor. Of him beware.

Get Nerviline when you ask for it.

After the Ball;

The Mystery Solved at Last.

CHAPTER V.
 Back from the Dead.
 Still the stalwart man held out his hand, and Sir Fielding grew despairing as he saw the heavy forehead darkened impatiently.

"Well, if you will neither rest nor eat, at least you will wait and see Chudleigh?" he cried.

"I think not," was the reply. "I shall get another opportunity soon, perchance. At this moment I am anxious to be on my road again."

"Where are you going—where will you sleep?" asked Sir Fielding, in utter bewilderment, and feeling powerless before the stern will which proclaimed itself in such gravely musical tones. "The village, Maurice Durant, is a long way; there is no inn on the road, not a single place that will open its doors to you to-night."

"Save one," said Maurice Durant, in a significant tone.

"Which?" said Sir Fielding.

"The rectory," replied the other. "I sleep in my own house to-night."

Sir Fielding shuddered.

"No, no!" he breathed; "you shall stay!" and going to the door, he called out:

"Chudleigh!"

Chudleigh came down the stairs with a promptitude quickened by curiosity, for he had never heard his father's voice raised so loudly before.

"Chud," commenced Sir Fielding, with agitation, but before he could get farther the traveler stepped forward, and laying his strong hand on the baronet's trembling arm, said, in a deep, grave voice, quickened by the rich, foreign accent:

"Chudleigh Chichester, your father would keep me prisoner in his castle, and I am forcing my way out; you are a friend to freedom, and will sympathize. Sir Fielding, it is not right to break one's oath. I have vowed to sleep beneath no roof in England before my own. Good-night!" and raising his cap with a gesture of farewell, he strode to the door, and, before either Sir Fielding or his son could recover from the commanding charm of his manner, he had swung to behind him, letting in a blast of icy wind and a shower of sleet.

Believes She Was Saved From Stroke of Paralysis

All One Side Was Cold and Powerless When She Began Using Dr. Chase's Nerve Food.

A dead nerve cell can never be replaced. In this way it is different to other cells of the human body. But feeble, wasted nerve cells can be restored, and herein lies hope.

In this fact is also a warning to take note of such symptoms as sleeplessness and loss of energy and ambition, and restore the vitality to the nervous system before some form of helplessness results.

Nervous prostration, locomotor ataxia and paralysis are the natural results of neglecting to keep the nerves in healthful condition. The use of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food when you suspect there is something wrong, will soon restore vitality to the nervous system, and thereby prevent serious developments.

Mrs. Merritt Nichols, R. R. No. 3, Dundalk, Ont., writes: "I take pleasure in writing to tell you the great benefit I have derived from the use of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food. I was so nervous I could not sleep, and found it hard to get my work done at all, but, having no help at the time, had to do the best I could. Finally my left arm became powerless and cold, and this continued to get worse until my whole side was affected, head and all. I decided to try Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, and the first box helped me so much that I used several, and believe that this treatment saved me from having a paralytic stroke. It has built me up wonderfully, and I can recommend it most heartily, believing that if more Nerve Food were used there would be much less sickness."

Dr. Chase's Nerve Food cures in nature's way by nourishing the feeble, wasted nerves back to health and vigor. Fifty cents a box, all dealers, or Edmondson, Bates & Co., Limited, Toronto.

lost your way the other night, or got drowned, as you had not come to see us. I don't think Sir Fielding would have been guilty of such unpardonable neglect."

And she shook her head reproachfully. Chudleigh glanced at Carlotta.

"Had I known that you were so anxious to see me, my dear aunt, I should have ridden or walked over without fail. Have you got settled yet? Do you feel at home?" he said to Carlotta.

"Quite," she said; "one could not be otherwise, the house is so beautiful and Lady Mildred is so kind."

"I am glad you like the cottage," he said, eagerly. "Did you hear the storm on Friday?"

"Hear it?" she said, with great surprise. "It was terrible. We thought the house would have been swept away. The old rectory must have suffered much, I should think. I felt a positive relief at seeing it still towering above the old trees."

"Ah, the rectory," said Chud. "By the way, I have quite a piece of romance for you. You remember the history I told you the other morning—"

"Come, Chud," said Sir Fielding. "It is time to get to our pew."

So Chudleigh had to keep the story of Maurice Durant's return to tell at some future time.

Scarcely had they taken their seats than the Folly carriage drove up, glittering with plated harness and magnificent liveries, and Mrs. Gregson, the son and the two daughters, alighted, accompanied by a tall, military-looking gentleman, dressed in the height of fashion, and with the most extreme care, so striking the villagers by his languid manner and filling them with admiration of his golden hair and seal-like coat that they forgot the customary scrape, and stared as if he were some strange animal.

With much rustling of silks and satins, and passing to and fro of dazzling footmen bearing books and hassocks, the Folly settled down; then the mild-faced curate ascended the plain, oaken desk, and commenced in the weakest voice possible, to read the Morning Prayers to his "dearly beloved brethren."

The prayers were finished, the Litany droned through, and the Ten Commandments drearily recited, and Sir Fielding was serenely preparing to wake up for the hymn which the choir had been practicing the whole of the week, preparatory to settling himself again for the sermon, when a half inaudible buzz from the congregation drew his attention to the fact that the little curate, instead of marching off to the vestry to exchange his surplice, had taken his seat in one of the altar chairs, as if he had quite finished his part of the service and was prepared to rest.

Before Sir Fielding had recovered from his astonishment at the unusual proceeding on the part of the curate, the vestry door was heard to close, and the next instant a figure of commanding height and bearing, attired in an old, black-brown robe of time-worn silk, strode across the chancel and entered the pulpit.

The whole congregation was petrified and too astonished to do aught but stare at the grand head bent over the cushion in the introductory prayer, which rang out in a deep, grave voice, as unlike, in its full, rich music, the good little curate's piping as the strains of a cathedral organ are to the squeakings of a church mouse.

Then, when the head was raised, the villagers and gentlemen drew a deep breath, and, fixing their eyes upon the calm, set face, stamped with a true nobility, and marked by deep, heavy lines above the large, stern eyes, waited for the text, all excepting those who remembered Gerald Durant and his son, wondering who it was that had come down upon them with the air of a Roman emperor and the face of a king.

Sir Fielding drew himself up and gazed around, with a look of bewilderment, and, turning to Maud, who was still kneeling, her sweet face turned up toward the pulpit with an expression of wondering awe almost piteous, whispered:

"Maurice Durant!"

She did not seem to hear him, but slowly arising from her knees as the text, "All is vanity and vexation of spirit," rolled through the church, and clinging to Sir Fielding's arm, listened to the sermon with her eyes fixed in an expression half of terror, half of awe and worship, upon the preacher's face.

What a sermon it was! Commencing in slow, measured tones, the man who had fought his way through storm and wind sufficient to appal the stoutest heart, explained the short, curt line, "All is vanity," explained it with unflinching severity—a severity and harshness that were terrible in their depth and eloquence; and then, warming with his subject, poured forth upon the heads of the spellbound congregation a declaration and a denunciation so terrible in its merciless sternness, so bitter in its despair, so touching in its hopeless remorse, that when he had finished, his face lit up with an unyielding austerity that was awful in its rigid lines, and his strong, white hand, resting heavily on the oaken side of the pulpit, as if weighted with a crime—every soul drew a breath of relief, and shuddered as they waited for the benediction. But they waited in vain, for with the same gesture he had used in throwing his cloak around him, he turned, and with the same firm, commanding step, looking neither to the right nor the left, descended the pulpit stairs, crossed the chancel and was lost to sight.

Amid a deathlike silence, the little curate, white and frightened, approached the altar rails, and in faltering accents delivered the benediction, which Maurice Durant had either forgotten or purposely omitted.

Then the congregation hurried out to crowd the porch and path with eager and curious groups, inquiring who the strange clergyman was, to find their curiosity further heightened by hearing those who had remembered him declare that the man who had thrilled them to the heart so wondrously was none other than the long-lost Maurice Durant.

Sir Fielding, with a hurried request that Chudleigh would take charge of the ladies and a reminder that Lady Mildred and Carlotta were to dine at the hall, hastened to the vestry in time to see the curate, still agitated and frightened, remove his surplice, aided by the old clerk, the only other person in the room.

"Where is Mr. Durant?" asked Sir Fielding.

"I don't know, sir," replied little Mr. Hawes, piteously. "He was not here when I came in. Dear me, sir, I am so startled I can scarcely compose myself. Did you ever hear such a sermon—"

"When did you know Mr. Durant was going to preach?" inquired Sir Fielding, cutting short his bleating.

"Only this morning, sir," was the reply. "I was just putting on my surplice, when the door opened, and thinking it was Mr. Price here, sir, I didn't turn around until I heard a voice—such a voice, too!—say: 'Are you the curate?' I turned around, pale and startled, I must confess, and said that I was. 'I am Maurice Durant, your rector,' said he. 'I wish to preach this morning. Have you the key to that cupboard?' and he pointed to the old press where the robes are kept. I told him I had not, and was going to ask him for some proof, some further explanation, but before I could speak he walked to the cupboard, and with a turn of his hand wrenched it open. Then, taking the old silk gown you saw him wear, he said: 'The bell has ceased—go!' and, too confused, Sir Fielding, to offer any resistance," went. Oh, dear, I sincerely hope there is nothing wrong; if so, it is sure to come to the bishop's ears."

The Home Dressmaker should keep a Catalogue Scrap Book of our Pattern Cuts. These will be found very useful to refer to from time to time.

A POPULAR MODEL.

1939—Girl's Dress, with Blouse, and Skirt attached to an Underwaist Sleeve in either of Two Lengths. Serge, gabardine, satin, voile, nun's veiling and all wash fabrics are nice for this style. Corduroy and velvet may also be used. The blouse is full beneath square yoke sections, over the fronts. The sleeve may be finished in wrist length with a band cuff, or with a turnback cuff at elbow length. The collar is deep and square over the back. The Pattern is cut in 4 sizes: 8, 10, 12 and 14 years. Size 12 requires 4 1/2 yards of 44-inch material. A pattern of this illustration mailed to any address on receipt of 10 cents in silver or stamps.

A CHARMING NEGLIGE.

1929—Ladies' Kimono or Lounging Robe. Silk crepe in blue and white, with trimming of blue satin was used for this model. Cotton crepe is equally attractive and pretty, as are also lawn, dimity, dotted Swiss and other lingerie fabrics. For warmth, flannel, flannellette, cashmere or albatross would be good. The fronts fall in graceful folds below the deep collar. The fulness may be confined by the belt, or shirred to fit an inside band. In soft materials, the shirring would be very pretty. The Pattern is cut in 4 sizes: 34, 38, 42 and 46 inches bust measure. It requires 7 1/2 yards of 36-inch material for a 38-inch size. A pattern of this illustration mailed to any address on receipt of 10 cents in silver or stamps.

Doctor Tells How Eyesight 50% Week's Time
 A Free Prescription You Can Have Filled and Use at Home.
 Philadelphia, Pa. Do you wear glasses? Are you a victim of eye strain or other weaknesses? If so, you will be glad to know that according to Dr. Lewis there is real hope for you. Many whose eyes were failing say they have had their eyes restored through the principle of this wonderful free prescription. One man says after trying it: "It was almost blind; I could not see to read at all. Now I can read everything without any glasses and my eyes do not water any more. At first they would pain dreadfully; now they feel fine all the time. It was like a miracle to me." BRITISH AND GERMAN ENGAGEMENT IN NAVAL FIGHT.
 LONDON, Jan. 23.
 In an engagement between British light naval forces and German torpedo boat destroyers in the North Sea last night, a German torpedo boat destroyer was sunk and other torpedo craft scattered, it was officially announced to-night. The sinking of British torpedo boat destroyers in another engagement with German torpedo boat destroyers in the vicinity of Schouwen Bank last night, with the loss of three officers and forty-four of the crew, was also announced. The text of the official communication says: Last night while our light forces were patrolling the North Sea coast from the Dutch coast, they met a division of enemy torpedo boat destroyers. A short engagement took place, during which one of the enemy torpedo boat destroyers was sunk and the rest scattered, having suffered considerable punishment. Darkness prevented the full results of the action from being observed. During the night there was also a short and sharp engagement between enemy torpedo boat destroyers and our own destroyers, in the vicinity of Schouwen Bank. During this engagement one of our torpedo boat destroyers was struck by a torpedo, the explosion killing three officers and forty-four of the crew. She subsequently was sunk by our ships. Details of the victims have been informed. Our ships suffered no other casualties.
 According to a Hague report to the Exchange Telegraph Co., two German ships were sunk and three other vessels damaged in the North Sea last night. Reports from Ymuiden, Holland, received by Reuters' Telegram Company via Amsterdam, say the German torpedo boats last night attempted to leave Zebrugge to avoid ice, which was very thick. They were attacked by a large British squadron. The action opened at short range. Early in the fight, the bridge of the German destroyer V-69 was swept away by a direct hit, the commander and two other officers being killed. The V-69 fired one torpedo and was then hit by another British shell, which knocked the funnel flat on the deck. Still another shell put a hole in the forepart of the vessel. Her guns appeared not to have been damaged. The crew of the V-69 numbered about 60. It would appear from the statements of the men that seven other German vessels were sunk. The V-69 belonged to the home fleet.
 Ymuiden, Holland.—The encounter occurred on Tuesday morning in the North Sea between 14 German torpedo boat destroyers and a British flotilla. Sixteen severely wounded Germans have been landed here by a Dutch trawler which took them off the badly damaged German torpedo boat V-69. The torpedo boat was afterwards towed here with twenty dead aboard. The commander had

Doctor Tells How To Strengthen Eyesight 50 per cent In One Week's Time In Many Instances

A Free Prescription You Can Have Filled and Use at Home.

Philadelphia, Pa. Do you wear glasses? Are you a victim of eye strain or other eye weakness? If so, you will be glad to know that according to Dr. Lewis there is real hope for you. Many whose eyes were failing say they have had their eyes restored through the principle of this wonderful free prescription. One man says after trying it: "I was almost blind; could not see to read at all. Now I can read everything without any glasses and my eyes do not water any more. At night they would mate dreadfully; now they feel fine all the time. It was like a miracle to me." A lady who used it says: "My newspapers seemed busy with or without glasses, but after using this prescription for fifteen days everything seems clear. I can even read the print without glasses." It is believed that thousands who wear glasses can now discard them in a reasonable time and multitudes more will be able to strengthen their eyes so as to be spared the trouble and expense of ever getting glasses. Eye troubles of many descriptions may be wonderfully benefited by following the simple rules. The prescription: Go to any active drug store and get a bottle of Bio-Opto Tablets. Drop one Bio-Opto tablet in a fourth of a glass of water and allow to dissolve. With this liquid bottle the eyes two to four times daily. You should notice your eyes clear up perceptibly right from the start and inflammation will quietly disappear. If your eyes are bothering you, even a little, take steps to cure them now before it is too late. Many love-letters blind might have been saved if they had cared for their eyes in time.

Note: Another prescription for when the above was unobtainable. This is for eye weakness only. The compound is made of the following: 1/2 oz. of pure cod liver oil, 1/2 oz. of pure olive oil, 1/2 oz. of pure almond oil, 1/2 oz. of pure castor oil, 1/2 oz. of pure sweet almond oil, 1/2 oz. of pure sweet almond oil, 1/2 oz. of pure sweet almond oil. forence; second, that Wilson is firmly resolved to keep the United States out of the war."

BRITISH VIEW.

LONDON, Jan. 23. Baron Sydenham, former chairman of the British Air Board, said with regard to the President's utterances: "The strength of President Wilson's address lies in the high ideal by which it was inspired." He sees as in a vision a new world in which there shall be no preparation for war, but a solid union of all peoples acting in a common interest. That is an ideal which all right-thinking peoples of all countries can share. How it can be achieved must remain to be determined when peace returns, and in Wilson's opinion only a peace that suggests no element of victory can pave the way for the application of the glorified Monroe Doctrine in which the United States will play their part. Wilson, claims to speak for the mass of mankind in the old world which sees death and ruin everywhere, but he absolutely ignores the passionate resentment that the allied peoples of all classes feel towards the power which crowned its long career of calculated aggression by forcing Europe into an abyss, by waging war with unparalleled brutality on sea and land. Unless Germany is defeated not one of Wilson's demands can be fulfilled, his roseate vision will fade into oblivion. Reparation and restitution for France, Russia, Belgium, Serbia and Montenegro is possible, only if Germany acknowledges defeat. Can President Wilson really believe the Union could have been maintained if victory had been denied the Federal armies?" Prof. Gilbert Murray, Regius Professor of Greek at Oxford University, said: "President Wilson's address is most important and welcome. In the course of settlement he requires and expresses an ideal to which we should approximate rather than with which we must comply. There will be need for much definition, perhaps some compromise before all his requirements can be translated into fact. But in the essentials it is our ideal he has stated. These are the exact ends for which Great Britain in 1914 took upon herself the gigantic burden of this war, for which we are prepared still to use to the utmost of our strength. Our general aims then laid down by Premier Asquith and Foreign Secretary Grey, have been more closely defined by Balfour's note of last week. These statements and the statement of President Wilson are essentially in accord. The apparent

NO WORD FROM GERMANY.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 23. It was stated officially to-day that President Wilson had received no word from Germany that she and her allies were willing to lay their terms of peace even confidentially before him. The statement was made in response to a recently published intimation that the German terms already had secretly been placed in the President's hands.

THE CHIEF NEWS EVENT.

LONDON, Jan. 23. President Wilson's speech in the Senate yesterday on the participation by the United States in the league of peace, maintained its position as the chief news event. The evening newspapers devote their front pages to the text and comment from the morning papers of London and Paris under headings such as "President Wilson's Millennium" and "The Washington Sensation." The Westminster Gazette asks whether if President Wilson had suffered what the Entente Allies have, would he patiently have listened to a third party telling him he must be content to end the war without winning it and to forego penalties against an enemy who had sprung the war, torn up treaties, and committed unheard of crimes against humanity, and says, "we see no reply to these retorts."

THE BULGAR PEACE TERMS.

UNIONIST VIEW.

LONDON, Jan. 23. C. W. Belairs, Unionist, made the following statement to-day in regard to President Wilson's speech: "To me the most important passage of the whole speech is the dozen words, 'We shall have no voice in determining what the terms shall be.' That sentence definitely established two facts which never before have been made clear from a high authority: first, that the United States does not intend to participate in the peace con-divergencies can easily be reconciled or disappear on closer examination. We consider victory necessary, but neither the people nor the government of Britain ever demanded or desired to impose peace by victory in the sense which the President deprecates. Our aim is a victory for international rights or the defeat of militarism."

Percy Alden, M.P., President of the Mayflower Club, said: "We cannot help admiring the tone and temper of the President's speech, even though we may not agree with the position he takes up. We have to remember in criticising, first that he cannot be expected to note the boast that the German armies everywhere were victorious. I cannot conceive that the President, if I were born in Belgium, would consent to anything less than such victory as would discredit the Prussian military regime. Without this the future seems hopeless. My own view of this important speech is that it results from conviction on his part that the war may probably and will end in the stale mate, and that he desires, with all his heart, that he may entertain the same feeling toward Germany as a suffering belligerent like Britain. Second, he is animated by a sincere desire to save humanity from the horrors of a fight to a finish. Accepting his own interpretation of peace without victory, does he really think the Central Powers, which have not yet stated the terms they would be willing to accept would have proposed negotiations had they not believed themselves con-

WILSON'S ADDRESS CAUSES SURPRISE.

LONDON, Jan. 23. President Wilson's address to the United States Senate furnished the British Government and public with a surprise as electrifying as his mediatory note to the belligerents. With the exception of the Manchester Guardian and London Daily News, which are the only papers in Britain that can be classified as pacifist in policy, the press gives the President's speech an unfriendly reception and engages in much speculation over the meanings which it is considered may be concealed behind certain passages. Public men interviewed began with courteous tributes to the President's good intentions and by supporting Britain's measures. While the Government cannot make any direct reply to the communication from the President to the United States Senate, there is certain to be discussions in Parliament. The usages of the House of Lords give even greater latitude for addresses on any topic, while the question paper in the Commons furnishes an equally good opportunity for the advancement of personal views. It is already foreshadowed by members of the Commons that a discussion will be insisted upon when Parliament re-assembles. Speeches by members of the present and late Cabinet are expected. Possible action by the American Congress in committing the nation to membership in an international peace league is awaited with greatest interest. Both David Lloyd George in his historic maiden speech as Prime Minister, and Viscount Grey, while Minister of Foreign Affairs, stated strongly that the membership of such a league without obligations to force its decrees by arms, would be useless. The effect of President Wilson's policy on the States' Monroe Doctrine is discussed with equal interest. Several British publicists, notably J. J. Mearns, editor of the National Review, suggested recently that Britain is entitled to a weighty vote in the American hemisphere because of the growing importance of Canada as one of the foremost nations of that hemisphere. The voice of the silent masses upon the war was heard at the Labour Party Conference in Manchester to-day, when it endorsed the action of the Labour members of Parliament who entered the war cabinet, by a vote of more than 6 to 1. Most of the small substratum of sentiment favoring a conciliatory policy toward the Central Empires is to be found in the Labor Unionists and a small group of intellectuals. The Central News says that undoubtedly the manifesto has developed a situation of extreme delicacy, and it adds whether or not it was expected by the Allied diplomats in London, it came as a bomb to those outside official circles, and no amount of President Wilson's plain English will convince the rank and file of the members of Parliament or the men in the street that it has no direct bearing on the immediate facts of the war. It is not doing the President an injustice to say that whatever may have been the lofty motives of his speech, the average British member of Parliament and his constituents regard it as an ill-timed interference in matters which can only concern the United States, when the time comes for the settlement of the basis of international peace. The extreme opinion, which in fairness must be stated, is that the President is selling the Allied cause to Germany. A calmer view urges a dignified protest to the President to keep out of the ring till the great round is over.

SUCCESSFUL RAID.

LONDON, Jan. 23. An official from British headquarters in France, issued to-night, reads: We carried out a successful raid during this morning northeast of Neuville St. Vaast and captured some prisoners. In the neighborhood of Fauquissart, bombing activity continued again last night. In addition to that reported in yesterday's communique, two other raids were attempted by the enemy last night, between Armentieres and Ploegsteert. In one case the enemy was repulsed before reaching our lines; in the other he succeeded in reaching our trenches, but was immediately driven out. A hostile party came under our machine gun fire, both advancing and returning, and left a large number of dead in front of our positions. (Continued on 7th page.)

One Man and His Work.

These are days of national effort and sacrifice, uniting all in a common endeavour. Where everyone is on some committee, belongs to some association, or in some other way contributes his labour or his capital to the cause which is the cause of all, there is felt to be no need to draw particular attention to any of the work that is being done, or to give to come particular achievement praise which must be shared among so many. Occasionally, however, not only some certain achievement but some certain individual stands out conspicuous among all rivals and compels an especial admiration. Such an instance we have before us to-day.

Yesterday we were able to announce that the goal which Private Phil Jensen set himself last year, voluntarily and unaided, to attain has been reached and passed. Through his efforts more than the splendid sum of $5,000 which was that goal has been subscribed to different Red Cross purposes. The idea was unique; its performance was unique; above all, the man himself was unique. He returned to this country wounded and broken in health from the horrors of Ypres, in which he played himself an heroic part. He had been ready to give his life to the cause; it was saved to him by the tender care of the Red Cross. The loyalty that underlay the one remained with him and grew stronger; gratitude for the other inspired him with the purpose that has been so finely fulfilled. He might have retired to enjoy an honourable rest and recuperation, conscious of having given greater service already than most; instead he chose to enhance it by devoting himself to the cause and support of the great organization which had saved his life and awakened in him an enthusiasm rare and unsurpassed. The untiring, incessant labour which has accomplished this task would have been admirable in a sound man, trained to the vocation of travelling and lecturing. Private Jensen was inexperienced in such matters, and it is well known that his health, which constant rest, has suffered under the constant strain. It is the spirit that infected every audience which he addressed that has sustained him. Measured by merely material standards, the results of his lecturing have been a wonderful achievement for one man. He has won hundreds of dollars for the Red Cross Society and others for the Cot Fund, added nearly $3,000 to the Red Cross Fund of the W.P.A., and built the camp for tubercular soldiers and sailors that bears his name. In doing so he has spoken on many platforms in many parts of the Island, to all kinds of audiences, with a manner of speaking that is always fresh and always appealing. Never consciously seeking it, he derives eloquence from his one true source, sincerity.

"Private Jensen's Lectures" have been for months regular topics of the papers and an attraction looked forward to wherever they have been announced. They were the example that set on foot many other lectures that have done good in every branch of patriotic effort. They were not confined to the main purpose that inspired them, for Private Jensen won not merely money to the cause but many men to the ranks. He has been the most convincing and successful of all our recruiters. With the attainment of his goal he is now enjoying a long deferred rest, and it is less than his due that he should enjoy with it the thanks and admiration of his fellow-countrymen. They should be extended also to his indefatigable co-worker, Mrs. John Browning, than whom none can feel more gratification over his success. It is not generally known how far Mrs. Browning has made his object her own and how assiduously she has assisted him with her efforts, her sympathy and her counsel. Those who know it, however, will agree that she is equally to be congratulated with Private Jensen upon the success of his endeavour, which is such as few would have attempted and none could have more splendidly carried out.

Citizens' Committee

Pass a Resolution of Sympathy to the Relatives of Two Prominent Citizens Now Dead.

Chairman Mr. A. Soper, who for several meetings past was unavoidably absent from the meetings of the Citizens' Committee, presided last night. The minutes of the previous meetings were read, and before proceeding with the regular business of the evening the Chairman drew the attention of the committeemen to the great loss the citizens of St. John's had sustained in the death of two of its prominent citizens in the persons of the late Mr. John Dwyer, M.H.A. for St. John's East, and Mr. M. I. Kennedy, M.F.A. for St. John's West. Vice-Chairman, Mr. W. A. O'D. Kelly, moved that the sympathy of the Citizens' Committee, representing as it does the people of St. John's, be tendered the relatives of the deceased. The late gentlemen took an active part in all things pertaining to the best interest of their native city, and in brief Mr. Kelly portrayed their many sterling qualities. Mr. Jonas Barber (architect) in a few well chosen words spoke of the loss to the community of such trusted representatives. Secretary, Mr. W. Smith spoke of the great loss to the Citizens' Committee, as both the departed gentlemen were the movers in calling that committee into being.

The Chairman in speaking on the motion indorsed the sentiments expressed by the previous speakers. On the motion being put to the meeting it was passed unanimously, and as a tribute of respect the committee stood in silent and respectful assent. The Secretary was directed to convey to the bereaved families the sympathy of the committee. A copy of the same to be sent to each of the daily papers. The Deputation to the Select Committee made their report, which was followed by a general discussion on various matters in connection with civic affairs. The Committee will strongly oppose the granting of certain powers to officials of the Council, which they consider should be only dealt with by the Council in session. Certain streets or playgrounds should be set aside for children to slide on. Sections 211 to 226 inclusive, were again gone over. One of the Committeemen suggested that a board of control be appointed to regulate rents, which was followed by a general discussion on the housing problem. This board would deal with houses renting under $100 only. Several instances of the overcrowding of tenement houses was given and of exorbitant rents being charged. The one room tenement is on the increase in this city, and another instance was given where a man, his wife and ten children lived in a part of a shack consisting of two rooms, 12 x 12 and 10 by 12 for which the landlord demanded $50 annual rent. This huddling together of all members of the family was responsible for the present high rate of mortality. The meeting adjourned and will meet again at the call of the chair.

Murder Charge.

A week ago, it will be remembered, William Gill gave himself up to the authorities. He was charged with having fired at, with a loaded gun, one Dalton, a rival of Gill's, at Conception Harbor, with intent to kill. The accused was remanded for eight days and is now at the Penitentiary. A preliminary enquiry into the case will begin in the early part of next week. The principal witness in the case will be Mrs. Gill, wife of the accused, who avers that she drove him to what he did.

No Mail From Bell Island.

The mail steamer from Bell Island, having on board fifty passengers and some important mail, arrived at Portugal Cove at the usual hour this morning, but owing to there being a slight sea the captain refused to expose his ship to danger and therefore would not haul into the short landing place. Do the Government intend doing anything in the matter or are they waiting until the eve of the coming election when they may find it necessary to vote a few hundred dollars for worthless repairs? Some fifteen times within the past twelve months the mail steamer has not been able to tie on to this wharf, while on several occasions passengers were known to fall in the water when getting ashore on planks. Will the Government explain the reason why?

LLEWELLYN MYSTERIES.—The Llewellyn Mysteries held their first practice in Canon Wood Hall last night under the direction of Mr. H. Stirling. Judging by the success of their first practice the Mysteries will eclipse any of their performances held last winter.

Annual Meeting of Nfld. Board of Trade.

Annual Report Discussed and Adopted—A Good Year—Mr. W. B. Grievé President for 1917—Daylight Saving Resolution Adopted by Large Majority.

The eighth annual meeting of the Board of Trade was held yesterday afternoon and was fairly well attended. In the absence of the President, Mr. R. B. Job, the Vice-President, Mr. R. F. Horwood, acted as Chairman. The Secretary having read the minutes of the last meeting, which were confirmed, the accounts of the year were read and adopted on motion of Mr. G. C. Fearn. Hon. J. Anderson, seconding their adoption, spoke of the gratifying improvement they showed in the financial standing of the Board.

The annual report, which had been printed and circulated, was taken as read. Mr. W. G. Gostling, who moved its adoption, congratulated the Councillors on the report, and referred in terms of praise to several of the items it contained. The export figures, amounting to very nearly $19,000,000, were a splendid showing in view of the difficult times. He was glad to see that such matters as tonnage, insurance and marketing had been so well handled, and that through the efforts of the Board the much-needed Weights and Measures Act had been passed. The Hon. M. G. Winter seconded the adoption of the report.

A short general discussion followed, led by Mr. G. C. Fearn. In a brief clear-cut speech he sounded a note of sober warning. We were more like a neutral country than a belligerent, and we really had nothing wanting. As a result we seemed to lack a true appreciation of the nature of the struggle. There was a danger that we would trade in the after peace times with the glamour of the war prices over us. We had been very fortunate, for, considering the greatly advanced cost, the consumption of our fish had been remarkable. A quintal of fish, that before the war was carried to Italy for fifty cents, now cost $4.00. The rates were almost certain to advance still further and the prospect was serious. Monday should have been a true day of thanksgiving. Referring to particular matters of the report, he hoped the inspection of fish would be extended to every branch of the industry, and scored the Government over its neglect of the shameful conditions of the telephone service. He hoped to see an improvement there and also in the readjustment of the tariff, which is irremediable and unscientific. He praised the Government's bonny on shipbuilding, which was already productive of good results.

Mr. W. A. Munn also warned his audience against the reaction after the war to the present apparent prosperity. He thought a most necessary step was the institution of fishery schools, in which pupils could be scientifically trained in fishery matters from their early youth. He spoke of the great movements on foot in England, which we should take advantage of, specifying the national bank, which had been founded for the special purpose of encouraging commercial enterprise, and which should have a branch here.

Hon. John Anderson spoke generally of the fine report of the Board. He hoped to see England eventually taking all our lobster output, which the United States buy largely now, and thought we could sell more fish to Spain and Italy. Referring to the recent scarcity of silver, he considered the issue of smaller notes, say of $1 and $2, would be a good policy. He thought the export figures remarkably good and was glad they were now correctly stated.

Mr. F. Moore, replying to Mr. Munn's suggestion of fishery schools, thought instruction in the culling of fish more important. The problem of getting hard cure was an important one, and there should be driers established around the coast.

The Chairman thanked the meeting for its appreciative reception of the report. He spoke of the good services rendered by Mr. Job in the matter of shipbuilding, and intimated that the difficulty of obtaining certified masters and mates was receiving practical attention. He considered that adverse criticism of the Board of Trade was unjustified, and that its good work had more than justified its existence. The report was then adopted.

The election of officers for 1917 was announced by the Chairman. Mr. W. B. Grievé was elected President, and Mr. Geo. R. Williams 2nd Vice-President, by acclamation. Mr. R. G. Winter becomes 1st Vice-President automatically. The four Councillors to be elected are Messrs. Jas. Ayre, H. R. Brooks, C. A. C. Bruce and J. J. McKay. Mr. H. R. Brooks moved a vote of thanks to Mr. Horwood for so ably filling the chair; it was carried by acclamation and amid applause. The meeting then adjourned.

DAYLIGHT SAVING.
There then followed a discussion upon the question of Daylight Saving, for which the meeting was specially re-convened. The Chairman put the following resolution before it for adoption or rejection: "That this meeting approves the principle of Daylight Saving and would welcome its adoption by the Legislature."

Mr. H. E. Cowan, while not specifically opposing the motion, considered that the principle itself had not been clearly stated and asked for an exposition. He did not think the innovation would be of benefit to all parts of the Island. He cited the cases of Bell Island and Grand Falls, where already different times obtained and where the confusion would be made worse by the measure. Mr. W. A. Munn seconded the resolution, and spoke generally of the wisdom of the good old adage, "Early to bed and early to rise." Mr. G. R. Williams, in answer to Mr. Cowan, said he thought the principle of the proposed bill plain enough to everyone. He pointed to the case of England, where actual experience of its working encouraged its advocates in hoping the law would be made permanent. The matter was under the consideration of the local Legislature, who would like the indorsement of the Board. The question should be taken seriously. He spoke briefly upon the great benefits to the health of the people contained in the adoption of the scheme.

Mr. F. Moore objected to the motion on the ground that it would interfere with the curing of fish, when so many fine evenings would be lost and so many mornings prove unsuitable. Hon. M. G. Winter answered Mr. Moore's argument conclusively. He pointed out that most of the fish drying is done only in the later weeks of the operation of the scheme, and that fish driers already pay little attention to the clock and are governed by the sun. He referred to the last bill introduced on the subject which was only defeated on a particular ground which is of no real force. He could see no possible objection to the plan but many advantages in it. No one would be the least the wiser or notice its effect save in the extra hour of daylight gained. Hon. John Anderson spoke briefly of the very great support the bill had obtained in previous years and detailed the few specific sources from which objections had come. He pointed out, in answer to Mr. Cowan, that the adoption of the scheme would turn Bell Island and Grand Falls time into Colonial time. We would never go back to the old state of things, he said, if once we gave the new a trial. Mr. W. S. Monro also answered Mr. Moore by stating that if fish driers found the hours inconvenient they would merely alter their own working hours and no one would be harmed. The outports would not be at all affected, but would continue to do their work in their own way. Mr. Brooks showed that the outports had already in effect adopted the system, and spoke of his own experience and the value it showed him the early hours of the morning contain. Mr. Griffiths, of the Eastern Trust Co., stated that in Canada the time was altered from May 1st to October 1st and that all the anticipated difficulties were found to disappear in practice. The Chairman then put the resolution to the oral vote of the meeting, when it was favoured by an overwhelming majority. He accordingly pronounced it carried. The opinion of the Board will be communicated to the Legislature and it is expected that the bill will become law. The meeting closed at 6 p.m.

TO-DAY'S Messages.

ENGLISH COMMENT ON WILSON.

LONDON, To-day.

Possible action by the American Congress on committing the nation to membership of the International Peace League is awaited with the greatest interest. Both David Lloyd George in his historic maiden speech as Prime Minister and Viscount Grey, while Minister of Foreign Affairs, stated strongly that membership of such a League without the obligation to force its decrees by arms would be useless. The effect of President Wilson's policy on the States' Monroe Doctrine is discussed with equal interest. Several British publicists, notably I. J. Maxse, Editor of the National Review, suggested recently that Britain is entitled to a weighty voice in any International movement in the American hemisphere because of the growing importance of Canada as one of the foremost nations in that hemisphere. The voice of the silent masses upon the war was heard at the Labor Party Conference at Manchester to-day, when it endorsed the action of their labor members in Parliament who entered the War Cabinet by a vote of more than 6 to 1. Most of the small substratum of sentiment favouring a conciliatory policy toward the Central Empires was to be found in the Labor Unionists and a small group of intellectuals. The Central News says that undoubtedly the manifesto has developed a situation of extreme delicacy. It adds, whether or not it was expected by the Allied diplomats in London. It comes as a bomb shell to those outside the official circle and no amount of President Wilson's plain English will convince the rank and file members of Parliament or the men in the street that it has no direct bearing on the immediate facts of the war. It is not doing the President an injustice to say that whatever may have been the lofty motives of his speech, the average British member of Parliament and his constituents regard it as an ill-timed interference in matters which can only concern United States when the time comes for a settlement of the basis of international peace. The extreme opinion, which in fairness must be stated, is that the President is selling the Allied cause to Germany. The calmer view urges a dignified protest to the President to keep out of the ring till the great round is over.

FRENCH STATESMEN RESERVE COMMENT.
PARIS, To-day.
The leading French men reserve public expression of their judgment upon President Wilson's address to the Senate until they have further studied its contents. The Associated Press requested the various Ministers and Statesmen outside the Cabinet for their opinions but without exception they refused to be cited. French newspapers comment freely on President's speech. Some of them praising the President's idealism, some of them treating it as not relevant to the present situation of the belligerents.

WILL BE DISCUSSED IN SENATE.
WASHINGTON, To-day.
An opportunity for open discussion of President Wilson's sensational peace address will come in the Senate to-morrow through the consideration of a resolution proposing that all next week be set aside for a full debate on the subject. Whatever may be done with the resolution eventually before the day is over there probably will be many speeches voicing the favourable and unfavourable opinion of the President's address expressed in the cloakroom and corridors of the Capitol since yesterday.

MAYOR OF DUBLIN.
DUBLIN, To-day.
Alderman Lawrence O'Neill was unanimously elected to-day Lord Mayor of Dublin. O'Neill was arrested at the time of the late rebellion and kept in jail for some days. He was then released without any charge having been made against him. In an impassioned speech after the election to-day referring to those indignities, he declared as Lord Mayor he would (not?) receive any man or regiment

A later Reuter despatch from Ymuiden reports that Commander Boehm of V. 69 was not killed as was first believed, but that the death of Captain Schultz is confirmed. The two other officers killed were Lieuts. Faust and Hannover. The V. 69 is the flagship of 12 vessels.

The most severe cold of the present winter is gripping Central and Northern Europe. German newspapers report four degrees below zero in East Prussia and several deaths from cold. Railroad difficulties have been increased by frost, broken rails and wheels. The deficiency in coal at some places is said to be serious and there is much suffering. There is a bitter cold wind blowing in Great Britain.

Sweet Charity.

By RUTH CAMERON.

RUTH CAMERON

Every human being has many sides. Get at the people from a different angle, and you will find them utterly different people. One of the best ways to do this is to try to collect for some charity. It is a really worth doing as an education in character, if for no other reason. Be sure to go among people that you know, else you will not be able to appreciate what a different side you are seeing.

At First You Are a Friend, Later— You go into a house where you are known. You are greeted cordially and urged to join the family circle. You state your errand. When your host or hostess answers there is the most marvelous change in his or her voice. A queer fatness and aloofness come into it. You have changed their relationship to you. Before you were a friend; now you are a stranger attacking a vital part—the pocketbook.

Of course, I do not mean that this happens in every case, but often enough to be a typical experience.

"There Have Been So Many Calls." "I should like to give more, but there have been so many calls this year." "Was ever a more invaluable phrase invented than that? I can't tell you how many times I heard it, especially among people of comfortable means." At first it impressed me. Later I was talking with a woman who has done a great deal of this sort of work.

"My dear," she said, "that's what some of them say to everyone, whether it's true or not. That's just their way of justifying some mean little contribution."

Another method of justifying a small contribution or a refusal to give is to argue that the cause or person for which you want money is un-derstandably worthy. I would rather be refused outright, myself.

Those Who Gave Generously. Do not infer from this that in my own experience I did not meet with some generous people. My heart still glows with the remembrance of those who have generously and said graciously, "I wish it were more." Or of my experience with the woman who, after giving more than her much wealthier neighbors, said, "Come back to me if you need more," and later redeemed that promise.

Or, again, of my experience with a man who, without any change of voice, said promptly, "Surely, how much do you want?" And then added, "I set aside a certain proportion of my income for charity, and so it doesn't hurt me a bit to be asked for money. It's the only way to do, I've found; because if you don't, you have all your money planned for, and it upsets your plans to be asked to give any of it away."

And I agreed with him.

Everyday Etiquette. "When a young man becomes engaged to a young lady, is it the young man's mother's duty to call on the young lady without an invitation?" asked Jack.

"It is the duty of the young man's mother and of his nearest relatives to call without an invitation," answered his uncle.

In Memoriam

Ewart Gladstone Horwood, Died January 22nd, 1917.
 Parents, you've no need to weep For your departed son. He is not dead, he lies in sleep Watched by the Heavenly One. The tears above his hier you shed He does not need them now. His spotless soul to God has fled, While to His Will you bow.

You'll miss the boy you loved so dear, 'Tis natural that you should. Don't grieve, while he was dwelling here. His heart was true and good. And though sincerely was your love. To-day you have to own The Master needed him above To dwell beside His Throne.

'Tis true that you had looked to fate In future years to see Your boy a soldier of the State. God willed it should not be; He with the lowly Nazarene Your son was called to go; He shows to-day a golden sheen And a soul like spotless snow.

The One who in the olden days Sent manna from on High We must obey His many ways. His Will we can't defy. Brief is our portion on this earth 'Mid sorrows, grief and pain, But death gives us a Heavenly birth, God's blessings to obtain.

Weep not then father for your son, Dear mother dry your eyes, He now is with the Heavenly One In His mansion in the skies; Your boy was kind and good and true And fondly you did love. And daily he will pray for you In God's fair home above. JAMES MURPHY. January 22nd, 1917.

Killed in Action

Another Newfoundland has sealed his devotion to the Empire in the person of W. C. Norman, whose name appears in a recent Canadian Casualty list, as having been killed in action. He belonged to Clarke's Beach.

There is no comparison between the flavor of a fresh chicken and one that has been killed for some time. The fresh chicken is known by its bright full eye. If the eye is sunken it is not fresh.

Van Dyke Portraits Sold by Lord Denbigh.

A New York Man Purchases Art Treasures Which Have Been in England For Generations.

London, January 12.—The Times says: "We understand that a well-known firm in New York has at length succeeded in persuading Lord Denbigh to part with portraits of Van Dyke, which for generations have adorned Newham Paddock, Warwickshire. Two of these portraits, those of Charles I. and Queen Henrietta Maria, are of special interest, because they were painted by order of the King and presented to him by a local adherent in 1639. Another famous picture represents the Duchess of Lennox in full length blue silk, with a dwarf attendant, said to be Mrs. Gibson, the well-known dwarf artist. Another depicts her husband in a black costume resting his hand on the head of a greyhound. There are also two important pictures of unknown ladies. The Denbigh pictures are understood to have already reached New York."

What a Gas Range Means for You, Mrs. Housekeeper.

The gas range is a muscle saver and a step saver. Think of the many foms of coal you used in that coal range, and how you have had to handle it all twice; first, carrying it up out of the cellar; then, from the kitchen to the ash barrel.

No more soot to wipe away; no more ashes to cart away; no more wood to fetch; no more coal dust; no more smoke and no more reason why the kitchen cannot be kept as clean and as orderly as the parlor. The gas range means just this.

Saves 50 Per Cent. of Kitchen Cares. Half of the labor in the house is caused by dust from the coal range. Every time it smokes, no matter how good the draught may be, clouds of ashes rise and settle on the furniture.

It Eliminates Hard Work. Use a gas range and you will live better, you will play better, and you will work better because the use of the gas range eliminates the drudgery of carrying coal, ashes and the chopping of kindling, as well as the drudgery of cleaning up a lot of dirt, and, best of all, for the cook it makes it unnecessary for her to stand over a hot stove from two to three hours a day.

Your Boys and Girls.

Do not think that your little one can be strong by merely getting plenty of sleep and fresh air. He needs to get plenty of exercise indoors and out. If you are busy with your housework and want to guard your child against harm, make him a creeping pen.

It is merely a fence made in four sections eighteen inches high and four feet long. They are hinged at three corners and latched at the fourth. The pen can be covered with a netting and the baby may be an old blanket to keep him from getting bumped.

In Milady's Boudoir.

THE BEAUTIFUL FIGURE.

No woman whose chest is flat and in whom the bust is in consequence poorly developed can make any pretension to beauty of figure. She is accordingly driven to rely on art or science to make up for the deficiencies of nature. Not that nature has been the chief sinner in the production of a figure that is lacking in a most important detail. Nature always aims at the production of perfection in all she attempts, but when the human factor intervenes to thwart her intentions the result is invariably the spoiling of what might have been a finely achieved example of femininity.

But all hope of beauty need by no means be abandoned by the flat or hollowed chest. Flatness can be overcome by scientific expansion of the lungs, which, in consequence, develop the chest, and also by development of the pectoral or chest muscles, which cover (or should cover) the ribs in front. The combined effect of this development and filling out both from within and externally is often very considerable and, sometimes quite astonishing. It is all a question of deep breathing in conjunction with specially applied exercises. Specific foods also help to develop the requisite degree of roundness of the bust.

Bunions and their accompanying distortion of toes, corns, aching of the feet and ankles, cold feet and chilblains are among the penalties inflicted upon wearers of footwear that encompass the feet not wisely but too well. There is little harm in the moderately elevated heel, but the exaggerated high heel is the cause of much misery not only to the foot itself, but to the wearer's lumbar muscles. Badly fitting boots and shoes, therefore, exercise a profound effect on the health, they militate against beauty of form, carriage, feature and complexion.

Bodies Found and Interred.

Minister of Marine Piccott had a message last evening from the British Consul at St. Pierre to the effect that three bodies, supposed to be those of the crew of the schooner Hesperia, of St. Jacques, which was recently lost with all hands in that vicinity, had been recovered and buried at Langley. The message did not give the names of the bodies and it is assumed that they were too badly decomposed for identification.

LABOR CONFERENCE.
NEW YORK, Jan. 23.
A News Agency despatch from London, published here to-day, says the most momentous conference in the history of British labor opened to-day at Manchester. It was a conference of the Labor Party. Peculiar interest will attach to its deliberations because of the fact that President Wilson's speech, published here to-day, accentuated the importance of the discussion expected on the various resolutions already submitted demanding immediate peace negotiations. There were three factors which combined to make the meeting of intense interest throughout England. First, the party was expected to go on record as to the peace propaganda; secondly, it was to decide whether to grant support to its Parliamentary leaders in joining the Lloyd George Government; thirdly, the party is scheduled to make sweeping pronouncement on various post-war problems.

NORTHCLIFFE'S VIEWS.

LONDON, Jan. 23.
Lord Northcliffe, owner of the Times, Daily Mail and other newspapers, speaking of President Wilson's address before the Senate, said: "I have expressed my opinion in my papers this morning. I might add that our democracy is excessively puzzled as to why President Wilson does not begin operations by the pacification of little Mexico. We are all for limitation of armaments. We had not much more of an army than the United States before the war, and we had offered the Germans to reduce our invincible Navy, without effect. Our democracy is all for peace, but the horrors of Armenia, Serbia and Belgium, and the enslavement of the French and Belgian women, now taking place, does not encourage with an atmosphere such as that of the White House. Americans who have seen these gigantic tragedies talk a good deal about Lincoln, but the presence of Americans in the Allied armies here, who know the facts is some proof that the President's laudable attitude is not shared by those who are close to the situation. I regard the President's misunderstanding of the situation as due to the German propaganda and the geographical distance."

THE PEACE ELEMENT.

MANCHESTER, Jan. 23.
At the opening of the session of the annual meeting of the Labor Party here to-day, there was enthusiasm when George J. Wardle, Labor member in the House and President of the Party, mentioned President Wilson's name in connection with peace. "Recently," said Wardle, in his speech, "there were put forward overtures for peace, but the Germans used the language of victory and assumed the role of dictator. Since then President Wilson"—(at this point many delegates rose and waved hats and handkerchiefs and cheered President Wilson)—"We shall know better before the end of the war what this means," continued Wardle. "We are fighting for the free development of peoples." (Cries of "what about Ireland?" "Germany had not renounced her war aims," "what about Russia?" "until she does, peace is impossible.")

Shannahan on the Good Old Times.

Tucker says there were no times like the "Good old times." Nowadays, Tucker says, writers for the Christmas Numbers write of "the good old times" in a room nicely heated and lighted by the latest brand of electric light, whereas in "the good old times" a sputtering junk sent forth the warm flava and a "penny dip" shed its flickering rays over his manuscript. In the present age the workman is decked in a thirty dollar suit, while in "the good old days" he sent his eldest daughter in quest of a loan of a black pants to go to a neighbour's funeral. Just now "the toiler" spends five dollars and sixty cents every winter for low rubbers while in the "good old time" he spent his evenings rubbing goose grease into the veins of his "three quarters" in the hope of keeping out an inch of snow-water to his ramps on the following day. The "toiler" to-day trudges in dungas, in the "good old days" he passed his evenings trying to dislocate his instep with a sudden jerk of a boot jack. To-day the wife of the bread-winner has no opportunity of getting up her muscle endeavouring to separate her husband's leg from the close embrace of a side of leather. In the "good old times" this stunt in the home at night time passed many a dull hour. The cent generally took to the roof when this stunt was on, and the children offered up silent prayers for the safety of ma while the operation was in progress. In this age the "hard-workin' man" goes to the nearest "phone and whisps in the ear of the coal clerk his order for a cart load of round coal, in the "good old days" he tied himself off to borrow a catamaran and a blunt hatchet and started at dawn accompanied by two weeping-eyed dogs in the hope of striking the main patch of var sometime before nightfall. He usually returned with sufficient "firing" to boil the kettle on the following morning, and also brought home an appetite that cleared up all the loose food in the cupboard. The wife and children leered on and seemed greatly interested and when da was loaded to the hatches, they blew out the light, proceeded to bed and shivered 'til 'twas time to get up at the dawn of a peaceful morn. The "Hard drag" of to-day draws his salary from a pigeon hole in a nicely heated office and loses the fun of "the good old times" when his ancestors pumped with the cold while waiting the arrival of a long-whiskered, very important individual who condescended to fire their wages at them thro' the side of a caubose. In the "good old days" many an interesting hour was spent breaking the ice in a well, and many a buxom young creature managed to corner a first class dose of the mumps while awaiting her turn, no such opportunity is afforded us now, but an anxious winter is spent by the housewife in trying to remember that if water is not let run it is liable to congeal. In the "good old days" we got a letter from America

ANNOUNCEMENT.
"OVERLAND" SERVICE FOR 1917.

We are pleased to announce that the "OVERLAND" SERVICE STATION will again be managed by Mr. J. Cocker, of the Anglo-American Garage, AND THAT WE HOPE TO GIVE OUR MANY FRIENDS EVEN BETTER SERVICE THAN IN THE PAST.

A large stock of SPARE PARTS arrived by the last "Florizel" and we now have a pretty full line on hand and further lots on the way.

Mr. Cocker left a few days ago for Toledo, where he will have an opportunity of going through the Overland Factory, the largest single automobile factory in the world, where the output is 1,000 cars a day. Mr. Cocker will have a splendid chance to become conversant with the new models and thus enable us to render more valuable service to all "Overland" owners in Newfoundland.

Yours for service,

on the wharf and earned sufficient to purchase a bullock's head for his Sunday dinner. Nowadays he is so well fed that he thinks 'tis about time some one told him he had indigestion. In the "good old days" the popular sport down at the corner was a hop-step-and-a-lead, young men put in the best part of a life time at it. Now that treat is also denied the young bucco and he lies himself to the club and takes all the loose change that his chum may have in his vest pocket. In the "good old days" the Firemen did not reach a fire 'till 'twas well underway, thus no disappointments were experienced and a fire drew an immense concourse of spectators. To-day no such opportunity is afforded sight-seers and the popularity of "going to a fire" is dwindling down to such an extent that outside the firemen no one thinks of going except a new policeman.

Household Notes.

Vegetables to retain their flavor should be put to cook in boiling water. A small amount of salt added to milk will make it more easily digested.
When a housekeeper has no help she should insist on a kitchen cabinet. Bone stock can be made from bones alone, with vegetables to flavor.
A kitchen sink 34 inches from the floor is apt to be the most comfortable. The ironing board which is thickly padded is the easiest to iron on.
It is a mistake to soak fowl of any kind in water. It will destroy the flavor.
Mutton broth with barley and dried lima beans in it is a nutritious winter soup.
Cream dried beef served with fried mush makes a good winter breakfast dish.
Cabbage cut and served with French dressing makes a very dainty winter salad.

INVITED TO GRAND FALLS.

We understand that on invitation of Manager Scott, of Grand Falls, some of the ladies and gentlemen who took part in the celebrated comedy "The Ladies" will visit the Inland Town soon and give a series of plays and playlets for patriotic purposes. It is hoped for twofold reasons that the proposed tour will be successful. The performers were originally invited during the New Year season, but owing to the outbreak of infantile paralysis at the paper city the trip had to be postponed.

NEW THEATRICALS COMING.

At Rossley's British Theatre the Scotch Act is in full swing and last night the audience who braved the elements were well repaid for doing so. The public certainly do enjoy the Scotch and on Burns night there will be an extra attraction. Coming, the best performers now in vaudeville, Edmund Fox and Caroline Carr, who will produce many clever dramatic and comedy sketches different to anything seen here. "The Habitant," taken from the works of the late Dr. W. H. Drummond, Canada's well known author. This is their great French-Canadian act; and a great novelty: "The Lunatics," an English farce comedy, with a laugh in every line. "It That Was," a comedy and positive novelty. "A Taking Way," "The Bishop's Candisticks," scenes from "Midsummer Night Dream," "Merchant of Venice" and many others. They were booked twelve weeks in Halifax, fourteen weeks in New Glasgow and twenty weeks in Boston.

Mamma! Don't You See Your Child Is Sick, Constipated

Look at tongue! Move poisons from liver and bowels at once.

Mother! Your child isn't naturally cross and peevish. See if tongue is coated; this is a sure sign its little stomach, liver and bowels need a cleansing at once.

When listless, pale, feverish, full of cold, breath bad, throat sore, doesn't eat, sleep or act naturally, has stomach-ache, diarrhoea, remember, a gentle liver and bowels cleansing should always be the first treatment given.

Nothing equals "California Syrup of Figs" for children's ills; give a teaspoonful, and in a few hours all the foul waste, sour bile and fermenting food which is clogged in the bowels passes out of the system, and you have a well and playful child again. All children love this harmless, delicious "fruit laxative," and it never fails to effect a good "inside" cleansing. Directions for babies, children of all ages and grown-ups are plainly on the bottle.

Keep it handy in your home. A little given to-day saves a sick child to-morrow, but get the genuine. Ask your druggist for a 50-cent bottle of "California Syrup of Figs," then look and see that it is made by the California Fig Syrup Co.

THE COW

The cow is a placid domestic animal which controls the output of butter, but has nothing to say about the price.

It is hard to understand why our laws are so arranged that the cow can regulate the amount of butter produced each year without having a word to say about the market price. With her kind and generous nature the cow would not permit her product to be sold in the dead of winter at a price which causes every housewife to weep salt tears over her check-book.

When this country was young it was the fashion for every family to keep a sweet-faced cow and have the butter churned by a small boy who wore a gingham apron and an air of deep disgust. But people have now become too proud to mingle with the cow, and nine-tenths of the barns once so useful to mankind have been turned into garages. Yet why should anybody prefer the automobile, with its violent temper and balky habits, to an industrious cow which is capable of supporting an entire family single handed and never has to be hauled in for repairs?

The cow is now kept in large herds and milked by a merciless mechanical device. This is done in order to soothe life's rugged pathway for the debonaire hired man. Every cow that amounts to anything also has a family history running back to Old Testament times. A good, hard-working cow with blue-blooded ancestry is worth more money than a retail grocery store which does a wholesale credit business. It is discouraging to a man who has been in business for thirty years and has nothing to show for it except public confidence and a bald spot to see how much people are willing to pay for a champion milk cow which is unable to read or write.

If we would all keep a cow the corner on butter would collapse with a noise like a dog fight in a tin shop.

PATRIOTIC ADDRESS AT CLARKE'S BEACH.—Last night the people of Clarke's Beach were privileged to hear an interesting address on the Gallipoli campaign, ably delivered by Private M. Bradbury, a veteran of Caribou Hill. There was a large gathering of people and the proceeds, which were for some patriotic purpose, amounted to a handsome sum.

Hockey Notes.

All the hockey teams now have had one practice each and are gradually getting in trim. One more practice, it is expected, will take the kinks out of the players.

Last evening the Terra Novas had a try-out at the Prince's Rink at 8.30. They showed up well, but Ralph Stick, the dashing rover for the Terra Novas last year, will be sorely missed. He will not be playing on account of eye trouble.

Carl Trappell is in his usual strong form on the left wing. Watts, the industrious cover, will again be seen in that position. Under the guidance of Capt. Tobin the T. N.'s hope to retain their laurels.

The Victorias went on for a spin at 10 p.m. From the viewpoint of the casual onlooker they are the heaviest team and are looked upon as likely winners.

Amongst the "has beens" to get into harness this year will be our genial friend "Plus" Parsons, who will cover for the Vics. with Charlie Ford as point.

Arrangements are now being finalized regarding the hockey match between the Regiment and the City. President Higgins and the Captains of the respective teams will select the City team to-night. Capt. Strong has his Regimental team picked. They had a practice at the Rink yesterday morning and again this morning.

The game takes place next Tuesday night and in view of its patriotic object should be largely attended.

Household Notes.

Rub brittle nails with vaseline. Coarse breads are a great aid to health.

Fermented ketchup will polish brass articles.

Vegetables to be tender should be cooked slowly.

Cottonseed oil, if of good quality, is not unwholesome.

An important addition to any kitchen is a rest corner.

If linoleum is varnished twice a year it will last for years.

A little grated cheese in the chicken soup will improve the flavor.

THE HUNGRY HEATER.

My furnace has an appetite that passeth understanding; I shovel coal by day and night, and more it is demanding. I'm always writing soulful odes, indorsed by leading thinkers, that I may buy me endless loads of coal and slate and clinkers. And when I lay my lyre aside—it isn't that I want to—down to the basement I must slide, and feed that furnace, pronto. When I sit down to read some books sensational and silly, my wife remarks, "Gee whiz! Gadzooks! The house is growing chilly!" The furnace never takes a rest, it is the worst of gluttons; I shovel coal at its behest until I bust my buttons. I lay me down to take a snooze when I have boiled dinner—for weary hearts and faded thews, such catnaps are a winner. But ere I've fairly closed my eyes, I hear Mirandy wheezing, "The fire is out—you'll have to rise—we all are simply freezing!" All winter long I shovel coal, to make the old shack hotter, and when spring comes I lack the roll to buy myself a swatter.

Here and There.
