The Wonderful Watermelon Patch.

"Eminent beneficiaries of the system of concealing and dividing enormous railroad profits continually assert that the issuing of water-ed stock is none of the public's business. If that be true, then, as clearly shown in the experience of the people of Spokane, the prices you pay for the commodities you daily consume, for food, for clothing and shelter, are none of your business, and you have, in fact, no busi-ness except to furnish the tribute extorted by these watered stock issues and to hold your passe."

ness except to furnish the tribute extorted by these watered stock issues and to hold your peace." These are the closing sentences of an article in the June number of Hampton's Magazine, entitled: "The Story of the Wonderful Wa-termelon Patch," contributed by Charles Edward Russell. It narrates certain disclosures made in the cause instituted before the interstate commerce commission of the U.S. by the citizens of Spo-kane, Wash, against the Northern Pacific Railroad Co. and its associated companies, for the purpose of securing relief from what the complain-ants contended was an unjust discrimination in rates. The railroads had for years made the rate from the east to Spokane equal to the rate from the east to the Pacific coast (345 miles further) plus the rate back from the Pacific coast to Spokane. Against this and as redress could not otherwise be obtained, Spokane revolted and appealed to the interstate commerce commission. Interstate Interstate commerce commission. The defendant railroads combined and supported their rates to Spokane on two chief grounds—the effect of water competition, and secondly they claimed that the value and capitalization of the rail-roads were such that if rates to the Spokane region were reduced the roads word such that if fates to the Spokane region were reduced the roads would not be able to earn a just and reasonable profit; such a profit as the courts had decided a railroad was entitled to make. In order to show the reasonableness of the total revenues drawn by them from the public the railroads stated their capitalization at $250,120,-989.39, and produced an expert witness who put the value of their property at $415,000,000. On this the annual income, after the ne-cessary deductions for depreciation, left for profit no more than a piticessary deductions for depreciation, left for pront no hore than a par-able 3 65-100 per cent. For Spokane the leading counsel were Brooks Adams and Fred-erick O. Downes of Boston. The latter is described as endowed with an extraordinary gift for financial analysis and research and upon him devolved the task of tracing the history of the defendant railroads and the stock operations of J. J. Hill and his associates who controlled them. It is the discoveries made by Mr. Downes in the course of the described form the main portion of Mr. Bussell's article them. It is the discoveries made by MI. Downes in the out of the starticle this investigation which form the main portion of Mr. Russell's article —perhaps a little overcharged in some respects, but, forming as a whole the most powerful and scathing exposure of the railroad situa-tion in America that has yet been submitted for the enlightenment of the public

'You have always believed the railroad business to be the carrying the public. "You have always believed the railroad business to be the carrying of freight and passengers," says Mr. Russell. "To the real purpose of a modern railroad FREIGHT AND PASSENGER TRAFFIC IS BUT A NECESSARY BLIND. The real business is to ISSUE, MANIPULATE AND POSSESS RAILROAD SECURITIES. Other persons have as-serted this; Mr. Bowles proved it." Mr. Hill and his associates started off in 1879 by acquiring the of st. Paul and Pacific Rallroad from the receiver then in charge of that property. They got it without expending a cent of their own and issued upon it $8,000,000 of new bonds, with which they paid the purchase price estimated at five or six millions. By this operation the syndicate secured a good money profit, 565 miles of completed rail-road and 2,580,606 acres of fertile land. "Mr. Hill and his associ-ates," Mr. Russell goes on to say, "next proceeded to issue the $15,-000,000 of stock which they divided among themselves, and $8,000,000 of second mortgage bonds. We have therefore at the start of these operations $31,000,000 of new capitalization, of which $15,000,000 went straight to Mr. Hill and his associates without the payment of a cent therefor. * * Here then were the first watermelons from what was to be the most prolific garden of the kind in the world: Specimen number one, about $3,000,000 profit on the bonds; number two, the number one, about $3,000,000 profit on the bonds; number two, the railroad and the land grants; number three, $15,000,000 of stock. All from an investment of nothing. And leaving still to be considered the unascertained profits on the second mortgage bonds. I doubt if imagination has conceived anything more romantic." That, however, was only a beginning of the watermelon harvest. From 1882 onwards at short intervals other stock and bond issues were made after the most approved manner of "high finance." The Great Northern Railway Company was organized as a holding company, transaction providing the opportunity for c thereafter the old processes went merrily on. Mr. Russell notes each crop in detail and also presents the net result of the operations in a table taken from Mr. Downes' report to Mr. Adams. The table gives each stock issue and shows the proportion going into the treasury of the railroads and what Mr. Hill and his associates got as extra pro-The respective totals are $181,875,000 for the treasury and $407. 375,000 to the syndicate. "Four hundred and seven million dollars'worth of watermelons in twenty-seven years. That eclipses all records," remarks Mr. Russell. "But yet," he continues, "all this, overpowering as it seems, is but a prelude to the whole story. $407,000,000 and all these dividend and erect charges are only a part of the profits made by the men that in 1879 secured for nothing the St. Paul and Pacific Railroad and those that purchased the various securities." During these busy years the company in addition accumulated (chiefly from its earnings and what are known as "secret reserves") properties of various kinds, the greatest acquisition being a vast area of iron-ore land in the Mesaba County of Minnesota. It cost the shareiders nothing, having been paid out of earnings on acquired from land grants or in other inexpensive ways. Experts have reported the ore covered by the certificates issued to the stockholders at between 400,000,000 and 600,000,000 tons. Mr. Hill believes it to be more. If it is 600,000,000 tons the yield to the certificate holder will be considerably over one billion dollars. Taking into account the value of the G. N. R. "as given by Mr. Hill's witnesses on the stand, the various securities owned, the present value of the Northern Pacific and Chicago, Burlington and Quincy holdings, the value of the ore lands based upon reasonable calculation of product; the present total extent of this property (excluding the Colorado and Southern) is $1,846,952,553. From this is to be subtracted the total actual investment, $320,935,932. This leaves the total actual profits (achieved and in sight) of this syndicate $1,526,016,621. Before this stupendous fact there is no appropriate comment. This is what Mr. Downes revealed to Mr. Adams." In his briefs laid before the interstate commerce commission Mr. Adams argued for these doctrines: That a representative government exercises its functions as a trustee for the public and cannot divest itself of its trust. 2. It can and does employ a railroad company as an agent to build and administer a highway, but the agent cannot lawfully exercise sovereign power except as an agent. Railroad rates are a form of taxes levied to maintain the highways and compensate those that operate them, but all taxes are an exercise of sovereign power which our govern-ment holds as a trustee for the public. Therefore railroad rates must always be subject to the decision and supervision of the government. There can be no such thing as a private highway. All highways are public. The railroads do not own the highways they operate but rather administer them as agents of the government, which merely executes a public trust. This possibly epoch making cause was considered for nineteen months by the interstate commerce commission, when a decision was rendered, based chiefly upon the question of valuation, in favor of the people of Spokane and against the railroads. If, says Mr. Russell, the courts shall uphold the decision there must needs be a new and unprecedented basis of railroad rates in the United States. Yet there are newspapers in Toronto who profess to see no harm to the public interest in the issue of watered stock, and maintain that over-capitalization does not increase the tribute levied by the public service corporations from the people.
