from Judge Savary in the mat-

The following letter is from the pen of Judge Savary, of Annapolis Royal:

Sir.—I wonder why it is that every one who attempts a biographical sketch or obtuary notice of a distinguished Nova Scotian is so particular to assert, regardless or carcless of the truth, that he is of Loyalist descent. In similar notices of Tupper, Haliburton, Simon Newcomb, and recently in some obitaaries of the late Dr. Woodbury, each of these men is put down as of Loyalist descent. The latest offenders in that respect are Drs. G. F. Matthew and Professor E. E. Prince, both Fellows of the Royal Society of Canada, in a notice of their deceased colleague, the noted scientist, Dr. Ells, of whom they say with marked particularity that his ancestors were "United Empire Loyalists, who, with many others, came to Nova Scotia towards the close of the 18th century." To this conclusion they must have come without the least enquiry, just taking it for granted. I wonder if such writers suppose they are exalting their subjects in assigning to them such an ancestry? If so they are very ignorant, for they ought to know that the Loyalists were of the same race, and, with a few official and clerical exceptions, of the same social rank as those who preceded them in the settlement of Nova Scotia. The pedigree of Dr. Ells ignist as honorable as if he had really been from U. E. Loyalist ancestors. This mistake is the more surprising because Rev. Dr. Raymond had recently contributed a paper to the Royal Society, pointing out the confusion of the two migrations which so many writers ignorantly persist in.

Mr. Justice Haliburton got "hauled over the coals," by his offended Bluenose countrymen, for his peculiar speech at the agricultural show. One journalist declared that while the distinguished American confidently and hopefully told of the enormous productive nower of his country, comparing hopefully told of the enormous produc-tive power of his country, comparing its extent of acreage with that of Eng-land, and inviting his hearers when-ever they should find themselves pressed for room, to pay the United states a visit, "Slick," on the other hand, humbly and regretfully spoke of his native land as a "poor country" admitting that, for all he knew, his ancestor may have been a transported convict, and wishing that he himself might be sent back, if it were only as a criminal.

With words that savored of strong With words that savored of strong indignation the Halifax newspapey declared: "we have no imported convict blood among us; our resources are, many of them, the envy of the yankees, as they become better known. In admitting that his forefathers may have been convicts, the ludge will be supposed to represent the whole of his colonial brethren, and it is particularly unlucky to have perpetrated this joke just at present, because the Times is making desperate efforts to persuade the world that the Australians are no worse off in that respect than ourselves."

Many peculiar scenes have characterised the locality of the terminal piers since first the mail steamers forsook Cunard's wharf and went further north. And yet none in the singularity of its features exceeded that which was witnessed a week or two ago when the last outward packets to reach England before Christinas were awaiting departure. What caused the intense eagerness that marked the countenances of the thousands of visitors who througed the vicinity of

The contract was given to Mr. Cunard, and it rested with Sir Robert Peel to cast aside the counter-pro-posels and to inform the British com-pany that as Mr. Cunard had promised to give an all-round service through-out the year, his government would take the full responsibility of accept-ing his scheme.

Mr. Cunard completed the construction of his paddle-wheelers with quick despatch, and sent out his first steamer—the Unitorn—the precursor of a superb line of steam packets.

I have not heard what names it is proposed to substitute for Albemarle and Grafton, but it appears that Barrington street is to become Broadway. What excuse could be given for changing a distinctive and historical name such as it now bears for one which is most commonplace and the reverse of distinguishing?

I commend to your favorable consideration and that of your readers the concluding paragraph of Doctor Hill's essay:

"The modes of commemorating men who have served their country, their king or their God are various; sometimes they affix to the walls of a church tablets of marble or brass; sometimes memorial windows in buildings dedicated to philanthropy or other sacred purposes to remind posterity of their existence and their virtues; sometimes hospitals, asylums, libraries bearing the name of the honored or beloved are built and endowed; but while marble may crumble and institutions die out, the streets of cities and the roads of countries will retain their names so long as the lands themselves shall last, and be known after centuries, as is to-day known the yia Sacra of the eternal city Rome, as is to-day and shall be hereafter known the Fleet Street of London, even though grass should grow upon its adamatine base, by the simple utterance of the illustricus Johnston, "sir, let us take a walk down Fleet street." cept Sunday, 5.00 'Express for Pictou, daily except Sunday, 4.40 " Sunday, Express for Truro (daily) Stellar-ton, New Glasgow, Sydneys, (daily except Sunday) Am-herst, Sackville, St. John, (daily except Saturday), Mixed train from Truro (daily Mixed train from Truro (daily except Sunday),

St. Louis, Dec, 27.—Fire ruined a five story building in the heart of the business section here early to-day, causing a loss of $250,000.

One hundred and fifty guests at the St. Regis Hotel were routed in their night lothes by flames which leaped across the aliey and threatened to attack the hotel. Six firemen were injured, though not fatally, by showers of tarning embers, caused by the collapse of wills and root.

The Adams Stamp Company, the Harris Shoe Company, the Harkis Khok Right Tailoring Company, the Y. W. C. A., and Downtown Restaurant were the principal losers.

CUNARDERS BACK AGAIN. MONTREAL'S WATER FAMINE Steamer Ascania arrives yesterday afternoon. Other shipping news of general interest. Not a drop of water in the hospitals.

There was universal interest in the arrival of the steamer Ascania from Liverpool yesterday afternoon, as once again steamers of the Cunard Line, founded in Halifax, are running regularly between Liverpool and this port. On July 17, 1840, the Britannia, the first steamer of the Cunard Line, arrived at Halifax, and the steamers ran here regularly until 1899, Steamers of the Line have since called here occasionally for coal, but the Ascania is the first of the new service.

The Ascania docked at 6.30 and her 109 cabin and steerage passengers were transferred to a train and at eight o'clock she was on her way to Portland, where she will Ism I II passengers.

The Ascania made the cirip in less than eight days, having been delayed by for the wester was mild and not rough. Important dances and other functions next week.

Charity Ball elaborate Burns' anniversary will hav brilliant celebration.

All the news in Joan's Letter Christmas is over. We can hardly credi that it should have passed away in on brief twenty-four hours after all the rus and bustle and fatigue of preparation And now it is as far off as it was this tim last year. Was it worth all the trouble just for a night and a day, and then noth Vas it really worth while, we ask ou elves, and why did we rush about s serves, and why did we runs about so madly beforehand, through rain and which and slush, when already some of the toys are broken and lying about on the floor flyonly to be swept up and consigned to the dust heap? Was it worth while?

the rest of the year is the main thing. The spirit of Christmas means comradeship helpfulness, and tenderness. To quote well-known writer, "the best kind of the spirit well-known writer," Christmas giving is Christmas living."

As he says, so truly, "hatred and en and contempt are the curse of life, and f these there is no remedy save love:

"Beautiful friendship tried by sun an wind, Durable from the daily dust of life." Are you willing to believe, he asks, that love is the strongest thing in the world—stronger than hate, stronger than ill-will, stronger than death—and that the blessed life which began in Bethlehem mineteen hundred years ago is the image and brightness of Europal Love. If you can been ness of Eternal Love. If you can keep

Christmas for a day—why not always But you can never keep it alone. A "green" Christmas took a certai home celebration of the featival, the hotels featured the day in their usual claborate style, especially around the feative board. In the evening the Aca-demy of Music presented a brilliant spec-tacle in the crowded and handsomely dressed audience that filled every seat. The Scottish societies are preparing for their annual Burne' celebration on January 23rd, which is to be on a more elabor-Academy of Music on that evening. Mrs. G. Fred. Pearson has the programme in sharge, and the artists assisting will include the foremost talent in the city.

The Burns celebration is always one of the most popular events of the year, and there is no more gracious menner of celebrating the appliereary than by an event which is a source of pleasure and entertainment to so many. It would be a splendid idea if the three societies,—St. George's, the Charitable Irish Society and the Scottish, would form a triumvirgite and give a crand mujest feating in hefore and give a grand musical festival in hence of the respective patrons of their con-fratarnities. The affair would be certain of being immensely patronized,

And emphatically comes the answer.

Yes, a thousand times, yes. We couldn't possibly do without the Christmas spirit of festivity and good heer was liberally observed at the links that bind us together during the rest of the year. Why, isn't the warm hand-clasp of your friend worth while, and isn't a single day of generosity ram somed from the dull servitude of the selfah year worth while? Very much so, I take it.

And then, don't we regard every gift as the token of a personal thought—a friend ly feeling, a special interest in the joy of others. For, it seems to me, that's Christmas and factorist the continuous pharticularity described as Ioniowal particularity and good heer was liberally observed at the Queen Hotel, the Christmas solle. On her ride this morning she declared that great things are in store for you. I hope so, too, Mr yon'd better be doing it."

A few minutes later, as I swung along the highway toward the Present Arms, I saw Cecilia Hollister riding toward me at a lively galop. She crossed the bridge without checking ber horse, and then, with a hurried glance over her shoulder, she pointed with her crop to a byway.

I hurried after her and found her She gave me her hand and rode off at a brisk pace, turning over in my mind various projects for controlling the characters now upon the stage in dismounted and seemed greatly dis-turbed as I addressed her.
"I hadu't expected to meet you. I not always run away from him with-out violating the terms of her aunt's stipulation, and it was unlikely that she would attempt further to guide or thought you rode off with your aunt to-ward Mount Kisco." "We did, but on our way home Aunt "We did, but on our way nome Aunt Octavia stopped to call on a friend, and as I didn't feel in a mood for visits this morning, I rode on alone. I was walk-ing my horse in the road beyond Bed-ford, just after I left Aunt Octavia, when who should ride up beside me but Mr. Wiggins. He had evidently been following me." thwart the pointing finger of fate. I relied little upon any arrangement effected among the sulters to stand together. Hume had already found a chance to speak. Lord Arrowood had bitten the dust and turned his face homeward, and Wigglis had been near the brink only that morning. It was unlikely that any of the active candidates remaining would stumble upon the key to the situation, which Heze-She expected me to express surprise, and with the information that Heze klah had given into my keeping.

It was well on toward 2 o'clock when I approached the lan. Before long the suitors would depart for their afternoon call at the manor, which was an noon call at the manor, which was an established event of the day. Just as I was about to enter the gate I was arrested by an imperious voice calling, and John Stewart Dick came running toward me. To my surprise he greeted me cordially, even offering his hand.
