A FIGHT WITH BANDITS

Glencoe people will be interested in a news item contained in Detroit papers last week telling of an experience had with burglars by Dr. Murray of that city, whose wife was formerly Miss Myrtle Walker, daughter of Isaac Walker now of Alaska, Sask. Two men came into the office of Dr. Murray and demanded his money. On his refusing to comply a tussle ensued. The doctor proving a little too much for the men, one of them whipped out a revolver and fired a shot which struck the doctor on a rib and glancing failed to reach a vital part. The two men made their get-away in an auto which was in waiting at the door. Dr. Murray was rushed to the hospital, where the bullet well located and removed, and there are not likely to be any serious effects.

SING A SONG OF SPRING-TIME

One of our bright little public school pupils entirely disregards an editor's distaste for "poetry" and hands us the following effusion, which is timely at least:

Come, boys and girls, from here and there
And fetch a spade and hoe;
To make the old town nice and rare
We'll start in one straight row
And scrape and scratch up all the dirt.
I'll make it worth your time
And if you're not afraid to work
I'll give you each a dime.

By William H. Doull.

Rub it in for Lame Back—A brisk rubbing with Dr. Thomas' Electric Oil will cure lame back. The skin will immediately absorb the oil and it will penetrate the tissues and bring speedy relief. Try it and be convinced. As the liniment sinks in the pain comes out and there are ample grounds for saying that its touch is magical, as it is.

Crops for Dairy Farms.

The milk producer must not forget that he is a farmer as well as a dairyman, and plan to bring every acre of his farm under a remunerative system of crop production. Possibilities of increasing profits along this line depend upon the amount of study and thought that is put into the work. So long as one is satisfied with a yield of six tons of silage corn, thirty bushels of oats and one ton of hay to the acre the cost of his supply of feed will eat largely into the profits of the business. In the first place, a proper crop rotation must be selected and such a choice of crops and methods of growing them, made as shall tend to place every acre of the farm in a productive crop, and give suitable variety for feeding.

In planning crop rotations it is safer to avoid growing crops of doubtful value that do not fit well into a fixed rotation. A few standard crops properly handled will prove more satisfactory than too wide a variety. Clover, alfalfa, corn and a small grain crop make an efficient and simple rotation. Some dairy farmers grow catch crops for silage purposes, but the better way is to carry over silage for summer feeding and depend upon such field crops as oats, peas, green corn and alfalfa for silage. If we can get the soil favorable for the growth of clover, alfalfa, corn and small grain crops, it is about all we can do toward producing a balanced ration for dairy cattle and building up the soil without resorting to outside sources of supply.

By growing corn, wheat, clover, or clover and timothy mixed, a four-year rotation, and seeding a part of the farm with alfalfa, we have a nearly ideal system of crop growing for a dairy farm. Some dairy farmers omit timothy and practice a three-year rotation, which is all right if they have a field of alfalfa to depend on in case the clover fails; but as a general proposition it pays to allow the land to remain in grass two years. Clover is a more active soil builder, but the timothy thickens the soil and furnishes more humus. And, after all, one is on the safe side when he has a few acres of mixed meadow to depend upon in case the clover fails.

In harvesting and feeding these crops a large part of the corn crop should go into the silo and be fed out along with the clover or alfalfa hay. Such a roughage ration, supplemented with reasonable quantities of purchased concentrates, will produce milk at a minimum cost and maintain the breeding stock and young cattle in condition to breed regularly and command good prices. Whether one should grow the wheat crop or oats and peas in the rotation is a debatable question. It depends upon the conditions under which one is working and how far one has to haul the wheat to market. The cutting and harvesting of hay crops has a great deal to do with the feeding value. We may cut our clover, alfalfa or timothy too soon or too late to secure maximum feeding value. One of the advantages of seeding timothy with clover is that of properly curing the mixed hay. There is less trouble in cutting, curing and handling the clover crop if it contains one-fifth timothy. The breeder who has good pasture land is fortunate, although it is possible to establish pasture by seeding with a variety of good grasses that will yield feed throughout the season. Such a pasture will require several years to become well established. The weeds and undesirable growths must be kept down and grass seeds sown on wet and thin spots. Where the seeding is thin and run out in spots, lime and acid phosphate thoroughly disked into the soil will encourage some of the desirable grasses to make a good stand. It is usually cheaper and better to seed the grasses several times than to apply all of the seed at one time.

Alfalfa helps out wonderfully in balancing up the rations. It will succeed almost anywhere that red clover will. Lime, drainage and humus will overcome most of the troubles and put the land in good shape for alfalfa. With a few acres of alfalfa on his farm the dairy farmer has made a long step forward.

One should strive to improve the standard feed crops before he looks about for new crops to take their places in the rations and the crop rotations. There is as much difference in the quality and value of home-grown foods as in the feeds of commerce, and it should be his aim to grow, harvest and feed these crops in the best condition. The crops should be grown on the farm to produce a class of feed to balance up the ration are the very ones needed to build soil fertility. In short, we must provide some kind of succulent feed, reduce protein costs and increase the fertility of the soil. If we are to build up the soil and improve the rations we must grow better clover, alfalfa, corn, small grain and grasses.

This brings up another question. Our home-grown feeds are too bulky to produce the best results. There is a limit to the capacity of an animal to digest and assimilate bulky feeds. If we choke the machine we cut down its capacity. To reach the maximum digestive and assimilative capacity of the cows they must be furnished with proper quantities of fats, carbohydrates and protein and in about the proper proportions. The excessive amount of dry matter contained in all the standard feed crops renders it impossible without the use of protein concentrates, like cottonseed meal, linseed oil meal and gluten feeds, to reach the digestive and assimilative capacity of the cows and enable them to produce a maximum flow of milk.

On breeding farms where cows are fed for advanced registry records it is desirable to grow root crops, such as mangels, carrots and sugar beets, to furnish succulent and variety to the rations. Experienced feeders prize these crops highly because they act as a stimulant to the cow's digestive system and make it possible for her to consume more grain feed than is the case when her ration contains too much dry matter. A small plot of ground will suffice to produce all the roots needed for feeding for advanced registry records, and save trouble and expense of buying roots to feed when needed.

Poultry

Gradually poultry breeding is becoming more like live stock breeding. It will not be many years until every buyer of a cockerel to be used in the breeding yard will insist on knowing the sire and dam of the cockerel before he buys the bird. The buyer will also want to know how many eggs the dam of the cockerel produced, and how many eggs were produced by the dam of the sire of Curing a Cow by Wire.

Doctor Taylor, the veterinarian, was cranking his car to go to the country, when his wife appeared at the door and called: "Telephone!"

"I've got a sick cow," said Frank Jensen when the veterinarian answered the call. "She's most too weak to stand. She has quit chewing her cud, breathes hard and seems to have a high fever. Can't you come out?"

"Notice anything wrong when she walks?" asked the veterinarian.

"She walks with a straddling gait, and is stiff in her hindquarters. When she stands she puts her left foot way back."

"How does the milk look?"

"Yellowish blue in color and stringy. It curdles soon after it is drawn. She doesn't give much out of the left side; that side of her udder is red and swollen."

"From the symptoms you give the cow has garget," said the veterinarian. "You can treat it yourself."

"But where'd she get it?" interrupted Frank. "None of the other cows has it."

"That's hard to say," was the reply. "It might have come from a blow on the udder, or maybe you skipped a milking. Careless milking will cause it. It might have come from the cow lying with her udder on a cold floor, or from hurrying her when her udder was distended, or from exposure to wet, cold weather, or a sudden change from a bulky, laxative ration to a more concentrated one. Keeping a cow too fat may cause it."

"What shall I do for her?"

"Reduce the grain to one-third the usual amount. Give her about a pound of epsom salts. Get some nitrate of potassium and a small graduated measure from your drugist and give a half ounce of the nitrate in the drinking water twice a day."

"Shall I do anything to the udder?"

"Milk it carefully and bathe with hot water several times a day. Rub it with olive oil containing three per cent. gum camphor several times daily. Do not use any strong liniment on the udder; and avoid any of the possible causes of the trouble—cold floors, etc."

"I almost forgot to ask about using the milk," said Frank.

"Don't use it. Milk the left half of the udder into a separate pail and bury the milk. The right side probably is not affected. Generally not more than half of the udder is affected at one time. Disinfect the barn with coal-tar disinfectants, so the infection won't spread to the other cows."

A week later Frank's cow was again doing her share of work at the milk pail. Except for Frank's careful observation which caught the trouble in time and for the veterinarian's help, the trouble might have developed into a case of chronic garget.

When Saving Becomes a Loss

Many farmers throughout the country are not erecting necessary buildings because price of lumber and shingles has advanced.

In every section of the country in late fall and early winter implements are left in the field where they were last used. This refers to plows, harrows, seeders, binders, mowers and other agricultural implements. They lie in the field exposed to wind, rain and snow and remain exposed to these conditions until they are again required for use. The hardware stored in the manufacture of wooden parts soon shows the result of this mistreatment, as also the iron parts in a lesser degree, and in a few years these implements are eligible candidates for the junk pile.

Comes a time these implements must be replaced, and the price of one binder would cover the cost of the building large enough to protect and prolong the life of all necessary working equipment for the farm. Doing without that shed looks like saving money, but it certainly does not save implements. Implements cost good money. Implements and tools destroyed through lack of care is equivalent to destroying money. Commence to save or save more. Build a shed for the implements. Do not make it necessary to have the junk call on you too frequently. It does not pay.

Good Advice.

An Irishman presented himself before a magistrate to seek advice.

"Sor," he said, "I kapes hens in my hen house, but the wather pipe is bust an' me hens is all drowned."

"Sorry I can't do anything for you," said the magistrate; "you had better apply to the water company."

A few days later Pat again appeared.

"Well, what now? What did the water company tell you?" queried the magistrate.

"They told me, yer honor," was the reply, "to keep ducks."

Sore Throat.

Besides the throat (pharynx) the soft palate, tonsils and vocal chords are generally included in any inflammation. When this is acute, the cause lies generally in exposure to cold and wet, especially in weak folk, those of sedentary habits or who have a tendency to tuberculosis, gout or rheumatism or other systemic diseases. And there is septic sore throat, of germ origin. Such a sufferer has pain on swallowing, a sensation of dryness or as if a foreign body were stuck in the throat, tenderness, hoarseness and oftentimes impairment of the senses of taste, smell and hearing. The pharynx is reddened beyond the natural and angry looking; and the back of the mouth is swollen. Such a sufferer should be treated as for acute bronchitis—rest in bed, a hot mustard foot bath, a purge, an ice bag to the throat, small pieces of ice dissolved on the tongue. Local applications within the throat and such medicines as aconite, quinine and sodium salicylate must be prescribed by the family doctor.

Chronic sore throat (chronic pharyngeal catarrh) may follow a neglected acute Pharyngitis, or be due to continual and excessive straining of the voice (Clergymen's sore throat), to the influence of such constitutional disease as I have mentioned, or to the constant inhalation of irritant vapors, as in certain dangerous trades. Many such cases are part and parcel of catarrh of the upper air passages, from the nostrils down to the bronchial tubes; and when the latter are reached we speak of pharyngitis. There is hoarseness, the voice is easily fatigued and may be entirely lost; there is hacking cough with pain or swallowing. Here again there is a sensation of a foreign body in the throat; and thick, tenacious, maybe blood-stained mucus, is expelled.

People prone to the diseases and constitutional conditions mentioned should especially guard against the development of sore throat. The proper use of the voice, saline laxatives when necessary (say a teaspoonful of epsom salts in a tumblerful of water piping hot on rising), tonics and other medication, with local applications, by the physician, with treatment of the underlying factor (rheumatism, tuberculosis or other disease) are the right measures. Where nasal catarrh exists no cure can be hoped for until that organ is attended to. And many a case of chronic pharyngitis gets well of itself as soon as the nasal catarrh has been cured.

Questions and Answers.

I have what I think is called hammer-toe. That is, the tip of my great toe is spread out too much in proportion to the other parts of my toe. Is there any way of correcting this?

Answer—Hammer toe is the doubling up of the toe by reason of a contraction of certain sinews. Slight cases give little trouble but sometimes the toe feels as though it were being twisted painfully. Its full length, no matter what shoe is worn. The toe, however, is not generally sore to the touch. A good surgeon may be able to relieve the trouble.

Is the sugar treatment for tuberculosis beneficial to any appreciable extent? Would any harmful results follow its use?

Answer—Although the treatment would do no harm, I am myself skeptical as to its efficacy. I am mailing you further information regarding the treatment of tuberculosis.

Fisherman's Luck.

A minister, with two lovely girls, stood entranced by the beauties of a flowing stream. A fisherman happening by, and mistaking the minister's occupation, said:

"Ketchin' min, pard?"

"I am a fisher of men," answered the preacher with dignity.

"Well," replied the fisherman, with an admiring glance at the girls, "you sure have the right bait."

The Devil's Dice.

The discussion grew animated as Edward McLean and his brother Robert discussed the arrest of a noted criminal who had made an apparently foolish oversight in covering up his trail. Edward maintained that it was nothing but sheer carelessness on the part of an overconfident criminal grown bold in crime. Robert maintained that it was the Nemesis that follows all wrongdoing, and held that the odds are against every criminal because the world is arranged for moral ends and must in the end frustrate evildoers. They appealed to their father, who had been an interested listener to the debate.

"It is a significant fact, boys," said their father after pondering a moment, "that they are very few successful criminals. It nearly always happens that a great offender is caught by his own carelessness. If you saw the situation staged you could almost scold him for his foolishness. But the fact that he does not take precautions against his own carelessness argues that we are here dealing with something like a moral law. It seems to be one of the peculiar qualities of evil to delude the wrongdoer. The Bible says that God gives up the evildoer to believe a lie."

"We believe that the three angles of a triangle make two right angles, that bodies fall downward, that nature abhors a vacuum. We need to believe just as surely that justice is as inevitable as gravity. Let a man believe that by his sharp wit he can elude or defy a moral law, that he can transgress a moral law with impunity; then in his view of life virtue may be a mistake, wrong may get the upper hand and all things may work together for the good of the ungodly. But in such a universe life would be intolerable. The world is against the wrongdoer. That is what is meant by the old proverb, 'The devil's dice are always loaded,' and 'He who sows with Satan needs a long spoon.'"

"Do you remember what Emerson said about that? It runs like this: 'The league between virtue and nature engages all things to assume a hostile front to vice. The beautiful laws and substances of the world persecute and whip the traitor. He finds that things are arranged for truth and benefit, but there is no den in the wide world to hide a rogue. Commit a crime, and the earth is made of glass. Commit a crime, and it seems as if a coat of snow fell on the ground, such as reveals in the words the track of every cartridge and fox and squirrel and mole. You cannot recall the spoken word, you cannot wipe out the foot track, you cannot draw up a ladder, so as to leave no inlet or clue. Some damning circumstance always transpires. The laws and substances of nature—water, snow, wind, gravitation—become penalties to the thief.'"

"You are both right. It is carelessness on the part of the criminal. But that very blindness is part of the moral order of the universe. 'The stars in their courses fought against Sisera.' They fight against everyone who does wrong. That is the tragedy of every evildoer: he is fighting the stars."

Improve Permanent Pastures.

The next few months is the desirable time of the year for the improvement of pastures. Large areas of permanent pasture would respond to proper methods of improvement which might include the following:

Keep the pastures clean by cutting off brush, briars, and weeds. Large stumps, stones, and dead trees should also be removed.

Those areas used for pasture that would permit harrowing and disking at the time of reseeding, applying lime, fertilizers, and manure, etc., may be greatly benefited. In some sections terracing may be practiced with satisfactory results.

The application of lime, acid phosphate, and manure can always be relied upon in most sections as a means of adding the necessary increased fertility.

Reseeding, particularly in the bare spots, is to be recommended. As a rule reseeded pastures should be lightly grazed the first year. At all times it is advisable to keep the cattle off the grass in the spring until well started. Closer grazing during the rest of the season may be practiced where this has been done. It is also advisable to turn cattle off the pasture earlier in the fall than is commonly practiced.

The Latest News.

A travelling man one night found himself obliged to remain in a small town on account of a washout on the railroad, caused by the heavy rain, which was still coming down in torrents. The travelling man turned to the waitress with, "This certainly looks like the flood."

"The what?"

"The flood. You've read about the flood, and the ark landing on Mount Ararat, surely?"

"My mister," she returned, "I ain't seen a paper for three days."

We read in The Messenger of Melbourne that at a rest camp back of the lines the men of a Highland regiment were holding a concert, to which drifted in, lured by the sounds of revelry, a Cockney motor driver of the A. S. C. He, too, could sing a Scotch song, he intimated. After a whispered consultation, the pianist, amid applause, struck up the famous patriotic tune, the A. S. C. man advanced to the edge of the stage, and began:
Scots wha hae on porridge fed,
Scots wha's hair is awfu' red,
Scots wha suffer frae awfu' head—
Gang and wash yer knees.
He made his escape in good time, but the maddened kilties are still hoping to pick up his trail.

THURSDAY, MAY 8, 1919

Do you know of some small indus-try that might be established to give employment to say 5 or 10 or more hands? Cities, towns and villages are in a good many cases heaving men of spirit and dash to locate within their bounds and open up shops or factories whose output will supply a need and fill a want among the human family. Glencoe might be a centre for a flax mill, salt business, furniture factory, brick and tile manufactory, lime kilns. Hydro power should set many a wheel in motion and make en-terprises prove of real value to the locality as well as to the promoter who usually desires to see such things go. Talk it over with the Industrial Board.

A diplomat is a man who can suc-cessfully make a business engagement that takes him out of town for house-cleaning week, and at the same time keeps on speaking terms with his wife.

THE SITUATION

If no one works, none can eat. That is a condition of human life. The less work is done, the less there will be to eat.

Canada owes more money as a na-tion than she ever did before.

She has to carry obligations of hon-our arising out of the war of a kind and to an amount never before dreamed of.

War conditions have been accom-panied by a riot of expenditure.

The money was first borrowed be-fore it could be spent. Now the in-terest must be earned if it is to be paid.

Production must pay all bills—whether for interest, wages or further expenditure.

The volume of before-the-war pro-duction cannot carry the load of after-the-war burdens.

Production must be increased or the country cannot pay interest and wages and provide for necessary expendi-tures.

Production must be relieved of all possible burdens, and must be expand-ed by the more efficient application of industry or Canada will cease to be a country.

Canada can only be saved by the in-creased industry and better directed efficiency of her citizens.—Edmonton Bulletin.

Last Sunday evening the service in the Methodist church was in the interests of the Y. M. C. A. in war work. Returned soldiers T. A. Craig, Arnold Irwin and Harry Hicks gave interesting addresses on behalf of this helpful institution. Private contributions are being taken by the pastor from any who want to help this good work.

Rev. Mr. Lloyd was at Cook's church, Caradoc, on Monday evening and at Delaware on Tuesday evening addressing meetings in connection with the forward movement. He will also speak at North Elfrid on Thursday night and at Appin on Friday night of this week, when lantern slides will be used to illustrate the forward movement propaganda.

Nursing Sister Mrs. Nellie Malone of the American Red Cross, who recently returned from France, addressed a meeting of ladies at the town hall on Thursday afternoon, relating many interesting experiences in her work at the war front. At the close of the meeting an invitation was extended to all those present to the I. O. D. E. rooms, where luncheon was served.

Mrs. R. Clannahan and Mrs. M. Knox attended a meeting of No. 9, Mosa, Red Cross Society Thursday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Godfrey McMurchy. A bright and cheerful gathering of excellent workers was present. Donations of cash were sent to Byron Sanitarium and the Salvation Army at London for the wounded soldiers. The meeting closed with the National Anthem. Mrs. McMurchy served tea.

Farmers everywhere are finding out the value of newspaper publicity. A few years ago it was the custom to get a big bunch of sale bills printed. Today conditions have changed. The farmer has rural mail and telephone. He doesn't spend so much time at hotels and blacksmith shops. The way to reach him is through the local newspapers. And farmers have found that publishing their full sale lists in their local paper costs only a few dollars but puts them in touch with a score of interested buyers for every one reached by the bills. But the two together make a combination that spells success with a big capital "S."

TRANS-OCEAN FLIGHT STILL DELAYED

Mid-Ocean Winds Still Unfavorable to Waiting Airmen

St. John's, Nfld., May 4.—Harry G. Hawker and Capt. Frederick P. Raynham, the British aviators contending for first honors in a transatlantic flight to the Irish coast, were compelled to postpone their "hop off" again to-day when meteorological reports from mid-ocean, in face of perfect flying conditions here, once more showed adverse winds and weather far at sea.

Official prediction of rain for England for the next two days was received here, and is accepted as indicating a delay of more than forty-eight hours.

The inauguration of daylight saving in Newfoundland to-night, when clocks will be set ahead an hour throughout the country, brought a revision of calculations for the flight, although it has not seriously altered plans.

Cornillon was acquainted with Emile Cottin, who recently shot M. Clemenceau. He met Cottin in 1918 in some of the studios in Paris. Cornillon had been in Venay.

CANADA BARS "UNDESIRABLES"

Order-in-Council Prohibits Immigration of Doukhobors, Mennonites and Hutterites.

A despatch from Ottawa says:—Until further order, immigration of Doukhobors, Hutterites and Mennonites is prohibited. An order-in-council to this effect was signed by the Governor-General on Thursday. It was passed under the provisions of the existing Immigration Act which gives authority to this end.

The order recites that "owing to conditions prevailing as a result of the war, a widespread feeling exists throughout the Dominion, and more particularly in western Canada, that steps should be taken to prevent the entry into Canada of all persons who may be regarded as undesirable because, owing to their peculiar customs, habits, modes of living, and methods of holding property, they are not likely to become readily assimilated or to assume the duties and responsibilities of Canadian citizenship within a reasonable time."

The order adds that numerous representations have been received that Doukhobors, Hutterites and Mennonites are of this class and character.

FRENCH ACE FONCK CHAMPION OF AIR

Canadian Aviator, Lieut. Col. Wm. Bishop, Comes Second.

London, May 4.—The Air Ministry has decided that so far as can be ascertained the champion British aviator of the war was the late Major Edward Mannock. Lieut. Col. William A. Bishop, the Canadian aviator, who won the Victoria Cross, comes next. Major Mannock brought down 73 enemy machines and Lieut. Col. Bishop 72. Of all the allies, Lieut. Colonel Rene Fonck, the French ace, holds the record with 78.

The late Baron Richthofen, of German circus fame, claimed to hold the world's record for the number of machines he had destroyed, but the Germans worked on a different system respecting official confirmation of each victory, and his record has not been confirmed.

Major Mannock was born in India of British parents, thirty years ago, and was considered the greatest aerial tactician the Royal Air Force produced. Among his awards was the War Medal of the Aero Club of America. He was finally shot down by fire from the ground.

FORESTS TO BE PLANTED

England is Preparing for Task at Cost of $17,000,000.

Two hundred thousand acres of forest land in Great Britain are to be replanted at a cost, for planting and maintenance the first ten years, of $17,000,000, according to an announcement by the government. The trees will replace some of the heavy timber cut down during the war and provide additional forests, so that the country may be independent of other timber sources in cases of emergency.

Foresters are being trained and the necessary saplings are being prepared. If the experiment is successful it is proposed to increase the acreage of reforested land to 1,770,000 acres within the next forty years.

The Nurse Who Stayed Home

We have hailed with adoration our nurses overseas. And their worthy deeds of valor justly brought us to our knees; But there's still another ideal—and we haven't far to roam— 'Tis the girl who nursed the old folks and the babies here at home.

Hers the task to heal the aged or the children left behind; Hers the lot to render comfort unto those of feeble mind; Hers to serve in ward and household in this land from sea to sea. While her sister nurses served the cause in winning victory.

And she had no thrill of battle to excite her to her task; And she had no dream of glory—ah! what honors could she ask? It was naught but simple goodness—love of home, of life and art—That has kept her at the bedside in her vigils with the chart.

Oh, the never-ending story of our womanhood in war! The imperishable glory that is heralded afar! Here's a health to her that ventured far beyond the ocean foam, And a double health forever to the nurse who stayed at home.

The Front Line

Mr. Philip Gibbs, the famous war correspondent, recently told a London audience a good story. It was at the time of the Huns' first precipitate retreat to the Hindenburg Line, when it was dangerous to go in pursuit of the enemy. Mr. Gibbs was out with an officer, and, not knowing where the line ran, approached a sergeant who was standing by a ruin smoking a cigarette. "Can you tell me where the line is, sergeant?" queried the officer. The sergeant took the cigarette from his mouth and calmly replied: "As a matter of fact, sir, I am the front line."

BRINGING UP FATHER

THE WORK OF THE PIT-SINKER

HIS CALLING IS FOUNDATION OF Coalmining.

Describing the Methods of the Pioneer, Whose Duty it is First to Find the Coal.

At a moment when the troubles of the coal trade fill so large a space in the newspapers, it may not be inappropriate to sketch the life and work of a man of whom little is heard, yet whose calling is the very foundation of coalmining, says a London newspaper. This is the pit-sinker—the man who digs the shaft, who first bores and hews and eats his way three-quarters of a mile beneath the surface of the earth to prepare the way for the miner. And, as we shall show, his is a calling invested with a good deal of romance, and often ennobled by rare courage and self-sacrifice.

Let us imagine that a company has been formed to exploit the coal beneath an estate. They want a big capital. A million dollars is the smallest; they may even require two and a half millions.

For from the day when the first sod is turned until the day that coal is actually raised for sale, two years, three years, and sometimes five and six years, must elapse, and all that time money is simply running away without a single penny being received in return.

Coal is found in curious places. The writer remembers one pit shaft being sunk in the centre of a forest. As a matter of fact, coal-mines now operate on the very edge of Sherwood Forest, the scene of Robin Hood's exploits, and there is coal actually beneath the historic "Dukeries," but the landowners are not anxious to annoy the shades of Robin and his merry greenwood men by planting coalpits where these famous outlaws held their revels.

Coal-mines may be situated even in little spa villages, in the stretching parklands of belted earls, and at least three cases could be cited where they are found at the gates of ancestral mansions, and grimy pitmen walk through villages where a generation ago the only diversion was the meet of the local hunt. The coalowner, once he has determined to dig, is no respecter of the amenities of rural life.

He is Always in Danger.

On a given day the sod is turned in the presence of the public. Three or four operations begin simultaneously. A railway is cut to the new main-line. Powerful winding engines are brought and bolted to concrete foundations. A great engine-house is erected. Pumps are put up to deal with the water. Electric light is installed so that the work can go on day and night. A huge circle is drawn on the grass, the sods are removed, and the pit-sinker gets to work.

It is the pit-sinker who bears the brunt of the first two or three years. He follows a calling which is one to itself. There is nothing quite like it. He has to bore his way down a hundred yards, probably a thousand yards—this article is written near a coalmine 257 yards deep—through shale, marl, clay, rock.

At first he goes down by a ladder. As the shaft deepens he is lowered in an iron bucket. When he can no longer see, electric cables are laid down, and he works with his glittering aid. The shaft is circular, and as he goes further down bricklayers follow him to encase it in brick.

Danger threatens him every day. Sometimes the sides of the shaft cave in, and he is buried beneath tons of earth. Sometimes a huge rock is displaced, and falling, it carries death to all below. Always there is water—dripping, dripping, dripping, so that he has to work in oilskins, and even then he is often wet to the skin.

Occasionally he taps a well, or even a subterranean river, and, despite all the pumping of the machinery, it is impossible to master the water and keep it back.

How does modern science deal with water? A sheathing of cement is too weak; bricks are hopeless; even iron fails. In that case the earth and water are frozen by chemicals. Then, when the side of the shaft is a mass of ice, iron tubing is put round it, the chemicals are abandoned, and the ice thaws; but the iron holds up the water and the flood is stayed.

At last coal is reached. The company celebrate the event. The pit-sinker is withdrawn. He migrates to another scene and starts again. The pit has left is ready for development. Engineers make passage-ways, engines and ponies are carried down, and soon the miner is at work sending up coal for public consumption.

Bigger Than They Thought.

"Huh! England is a small country." "Yes." "I could walk over it in a few weeks."

"Maybe you could, but 70 million Germans tried for four years to walk over England and failed."

Taking His Chance.

"Just to think," said the Sweet Young Thing on the piano stool, "all these pretty faces once belonged to an elephant."

"And now," replied the gallant man, "they belong to a dead."

THE FOUR NEW STATES OF EUROPE

ONE OF THE TASKS OF PEACE CONFERENCE COMPLETED.

Out of the Maelstrom of War Emerge the New Nations of Poland, Roumania, Jugo-Slavia and Czech-Slavia.

One of the most onerous tasks of the Peace Conference has been the erection in Europe of four new nations, viz.: Poland, Roumania, Jugo-Slavia and Czech-Slavia. To those who believe that the Allies have been wasting their time on highly idealistic problems in trying to set these four nations upon their feet it may be answered that the interest of the Allies is by no means altruistic. They are impelled, if not by wholly selfish motives, at least by the practical consideration of self-defence. For instance, in the late war Germany and Austria were in control of a manpower estimated at 30,000,000, made up of subject races that were no more racially akin to Germany than are the French. These millions were Poles, Czechs and Slavs who had been ruthlessly misgoverned by Germany and Austria for generations. When the opportunity occurred these forced soldiers surrendered in great numbers to their nominal enemies, who were their racial kin, as for instance when the Czech-Slavs threw down their arms to the Russians and later volunteered for service against Germany in France.

The Allies are determined that it shall be taken out of the power of Germany and Austria for all time to come to employ these millions as cannon fodder. The intention is to attach them permanently, if informally, to the Allies. They will be the buffer between Germany and Western and Southern Europe.

Poland is Buffer State.

Poland is re-established as a buffer state between the militarism of Germany and the anarchy of Russia. Poland has a couple of sweet neighbors. As all the world knows, the Poles have never lost their race identity whether under German, Russian or Austrian domination. They formed a solid block of about 20,000,000 people in the heart of Europe. But when the task came of drawing up the new Polish frontier a grave problem was encountered, and that was the presence of a tier of German nationality along the Baltic. These two and a half millions are the most German of Germans. They shut off the new state of Poland from the sea outlet on the Baltic and Poland without a sea coast would be in economic slavery to Germany. On the other hand, one of the Wilson fourteen points seemed to forbid the annexation of so great a number of aliens as the Baltic Germans by the Poles.

At one time the suggestion was made that Poland should be given a corridor through Germany to the Baltic. The objection to this course was that it would force on Poland two boundary lines that she could not defend against Germany. So now it appears to have been decided that the Baltic Germans will have to become citizens of the Polish state or move.

The new state of Jugo-Slavia will comprise 55,000 square miles and a population approximating 11,000,000. Poland, with her 24,000,000 population, and her 98,000 square miles, represents a loss to Germany and Austria of some 50,000 square miles and 12,000,000 subjects; all of Czech-Slavia is made up at the expense of Austria. New Roumania will be made up of almost half enemy land and population, and Jugo-Slavia will cost the enemy 45,000 square miles and more than 5,000,000 population. In all cases the other kind donor is Russia.

In 1915 prices in Great Britain for first quality milkers ranged from £24 to £28 10s per head, as contrasted with £50 to £70 per head now.

The wombat, or "pouched rat," of New South Wales and South Australia, is a marvellous animal. In appearance it resembles a little bear, and is sometimes classed with the badger, because of its burrowing habits. It is two or three feet long, plump, with a thick coat of long, grayish-brown woolly hair. The head is large, wide, flat, and rabbit-like, with upper lip cleft, and small eyes and ears; its legs are short and nearly equal in length, and the feet are five-toed. The tail is about half an inch long, nearly bare. The wombat is easily domesticated. Australia's flesh is preferred to that of many other animals.

Decolouring the Cow.

Frances and Agatha had been very carefully reared. Especially had they been taught that in no circumstances must they tell a lie—not even a "white lie."

One day, during a visit made by these little girls to an aunt in the country, they met a large cow in a field they were crossing. Much frightened, the youngsters stopped, not knowing what to do. Finally Frances said:

"Let's go right on, Agatha, and pretend that we are not afraid of it."

But Agatha's conscience was not slumbering. "Wouldn't that be deceiving the cow?" she objected.

"This is My Own, My Native Land."

"I was under the impression," writes a correspondent of the British Week, "that America had secured the copyright of the term 'God's own country,' and had definitely applied it to the United States. But I find that our Colonial troops have pirated the phrase, and are applying it unblushingly to whichever corner of the Empire they happen to hail from. The other day in 'his soldier with a red hand round his wide-awake hat was explaining to his neighbor how pleasant it was to be going back in a few days to God's own country. 'Why, I didn't know you were an American,' remarked the neighbor in an accent that left no doubt on which side of the Atlantic he was at home. 'Who said I was?' complained the other. 'Well, you claimed God's own country as your home, and that's America sure.' America," repeated red-hand. 'Yes, I daresay God had something to do with the making of it. But New Zealand is His masterpiece, and don't you forget it.'"

The Canadian Trade Commission believes that buying Canadian-made goods at home, together with more exporting, will solve the war-debt problem.

Our national debt has run from $46 a head in 1914 to $270. The C. T. C. suggests the best way of meeting obligations is by exporting more and importing less.

It Works! Try It

Tells how to loosen a sore, tender corn so it lifts out without pain.

Good news spreads rapidly and druggists here are kept busy dispensing freezezone, the other discovery of a Cincinnati man, which is said to loosen any corn so it lifts out with the fingers.

Ask at any pharmacy for a quarter ounce of freezezone, which will cost very little, but is said to be sufficient to rid one's feet of every hard or soft corn or callus.

You apply just a few drops on the tender, aching corn and instantly the soreness is relieved, and soon the corn is so shriveled that it lifts out without pain. It is a sticky substance which dries when applied and never inflames or even irritates the adjoining tissue.

This discovery will prevent thousands of deaths annually from lockjaw and infection heretofore resulting from the suicidal habit of cutting corns.

Home Again.

The same dull town, the same dark street, The market square where women meet. The same old church, where people pray And worship in the same old way. The same—O God!—it cannot be. The same again to men like me! Through mists of blood I've seen the skies.

While anguish gleamed from human eyes— And scorched within the fires of hell, Have gazed on deeds no tongue can tell. Heaven's highest peaks, too, have I trod, And seen, in man, the face of God— And all the time, walk in the street. The ghosts of those I used to greet— The same! Ah, no! 'Twill never be The same again to men like me.

The oldest good story is the one about the boy who left the farm and got a job in the city. He wrote a letter to his brother, who elected to stick to the farm, telling of the joys of city life, in which he said:

"Thursday we auto'd out to the country club, where we golfed until dark. Then we motored to the beach, and Friday there."

The brother on the farm wrote back:

"Yesterday we bagged to town and busheled all afternoon. Then we went to Med's and poked until morning. To-day we muled out to the cornfield and grubbed until sundown. Then we suppered, and then we piped for a while. After that we staid up to our room and bedstead until the clock fived."

Not in His Class.

Sergeant (surprising sentry)—"Why didn't you challenge that man who just passed?"

"Why are you so sure your husband is an optimist?"

"Because," answered Mrs. Crossroads, "he is always absolutely confident that what we raise in our garden is going to look exactly like the pictures on the seed packages."

Not His Choice.

A Metropolitan matron once ventured to ask James Lane Allen: "Are you a bachelor for choice?"

"Yes," came the answer promptly. "But isn't that—er—rather ungracious and ungallant?" protested she.

The novelist smiled. "You must ask the ladies," he suggested gently; "it was their choice, not mine."

Genius Overlooked.

She put down the book with a sigh. "What is it, darling?" he asked.

"Ah, dearest, I'm so happy," she replied. "But you had such a sad look in your eyes just now."

"I know. I've been reading about the unhappiness that the wives of men of genius have always had to bear. Oh, Herbert, dear, I'm so glad you're just an ordinary sort of fellow!"

What He Called Her.

"What is your name?" asked the mistress of her new Chinese cook.

"My name is Wang Hang Ko," was the reply.

"Oh, well, as I shall not be able to remember that I shall call you John," remarked the lady.

"Velly good, ma'am," acquiesced the Chinaman. "And what is your name, ma'am?"

"My name is Mrs. Swankton de Vere."

"Me no remember that," quoth the Chinaman, "me call you Sally."

LEMONS WHITEN AND BEAUTIFY THE SKIN

Make this beauty lotion cheaply for your face, neck, arms and hands.

At the cost of a small jar of ordinary cold cream one can prepare a full quart of the most wonderful lemon skin softener and complexion beautifier, by squeezing the juice of two fresh lemons into a bottle containing three ounces of orchard white. Cure should be taken to strain the juice through a fine cloth so no lemon pulp gets in, then this lotion will keep fresh for months. Every woman knows that lemon juice is used to bleach and remove such blemishes as freckles, sallowness and tan and is the ideal skin softener, whitener and beautifier.

Just try it! Got three ounces of orchard white at any drug store and two lemons from the grocer and make up a quart of this sweetly fragrant lemon lotion which manages to daily into the face, neck, arms and hands. It is marvelous to smoothen rough, red hands.

MOSA

The Red Cross Society of No. 9, Mosa, met at Mrs. G. McMurchy's on April 30th and donated $50 to the Byron Sanatorium for wounded soldiers' comfort and the Salvation Army for wounded soldiers' comfort.
The next meeting will be held at Mrs.
Duncan Graham's on Friday, May 30.
At the conclusion of the meeting the members of the society presented Miss Annie May Walker, who has been secretary of the society since its organization, with a gold necklace and an address. Mrs. D. C. Graham read the address and Mrs. J. C. Graham made the presentation.

Mrs. Dougald Gillies, who has been seriously ill, is recovering.
There was a happy gathering at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Dugald G. Mc-Phail a few evenings ago when many friends and neighbors came in to welcome their son, A. D., back from the war after having served in many fierce engagements. During a pleasant evening spent in music and games, A.
D. was made the recipient of a wellworded address and a gold watch and chain, and a purse containing $78, a gift from Maple Ridge Red Cross Society. Mr. McPhail replied in a few words, expressing appreciation of the gifts and assuring that he had made his sacrifices cheerfully in the cause of Liberty. He left on Saturday morning for London where he will undergo further treatment for his injuries.

A Standard Medicine.—Parnelle's Vegetable Pills, compounded of entirely vegetable substances known to have a revivifying and salutary effect upon the digestive organs, have through years of use attained so eminent a position that they rank as a standard medicine. The ailing should remember this. Simple in their composition, they can be assimilated by the weakest stomach and are certain to have a healthful and agreeable effect on the sluggish digestive organs.

CRINAN

Crinan, May 6.—A. J. McMurchy held a successful auction sale yesterday. Auctioneer M. A. McAlpine conducted the sale.

The last meeting of the Crinan Farmers' Club was addressed by Mrs. A.
Hammett of Newbury. Mrs. Hammett, who is an organizer for the Women's Institute, made a splendid address, congratulating the ladies present upon joining the local farmers' club, as she felt that now the franchise had been given to the women of Ontario they would find greater strength in the mixed organization.
She also emphasized the fact that the women of Ontario must take steps to make themselves familiar with election law and the laws now in force in Canada affecting women. Mrs. Hammett's address was much enjoyed by all present. Miss Edna Markham also gave a recitation urging farmers to unite. D. D. Johnston furnished violin music. It was decided to hold a social evening, at the next meeting, which will be held on Friday, May 16, when Corp. J. M. Kelly, who was a prisoner in Germany, is to address the club. The ladies will serve refreshments and there will be a good musical program. A number of ladies have joined the club and the following very able officers have been elected by them:—President, Miss Bessie Currie, vice-president, Mrs. J. Zoller; secretary, Mrs. T. W. Dykes.
A large acreage is yet to be sown as the farmers have been kept off the land by the continual rains.
The cheese factory is now in operation.

No better protection against worms can be got than Miller's Worm Powders. They consume worms and render the stomach and intestines nu-turable to them. They heal the surfaces that have become inflamed by the attacks of the parasites and serve to restore the strength of the child that has been undermined by the draughts that the worms have made upon it, and a far operation is altogether health-giving.

Relieves Asthma at Little Expense.
—Thousands of dollars have been vainly spent upon remedies for asthma and seldom, if ever, with any relief. Dr. J. D. Kellogg's Asthma Remedy, despite its assurance of benefit, costs so little that it is within reach of all. It is the national remedy for asthma, far removed from the class of doubtful and experimental preparations. Your dealer can supply it.
