

FATAL WRECK ON GRAND TRUNK--ENGINEER KILLED; A LONDONER SERIOUSLY INJURED

Mixed Train and Fruit Special Meet on a Curve Near Guelph Junction--Harry Andrews, of This City, Among the Injured--Driver Crushed in Cab.

Gourcock, a flag station four miles south of Guelph Junction, on the Wellington, Grey and Bruce division of the Grand Trunk Railway, was the scene of a fatal wreck at 6 o'clock this morning.

Engineer Thomas Farley, of a mixed train running from Palmerston to Harrisburg, was the victim of the crash. Three other trainmen were seriously injured. They are: Engineer Reid, of Hamilton. Fireman Cecil Bright, of Hamilton. Brakeman Andrews, of London.

Met on Curve. The trains in collision were the regular morning mixed, from the north, and a fruit special bound from the Niagara district to London, via Harrisburg, Guelph Junction and Stratford.

CITY HALL VERIFIES REPORT OF BETTER G. T. R. PROPOSAL

Rejection of Ald. Booth's Resolution on Wednesday Night a Wise Move.

The announcement that the Grand Trunk Railway is now willing to give the city a much better bargain than was contained in the proposed agreement of last spring, was officially made at the city hall today.

The resolution offered by Ald. Booth, seconded by Ald. Matthews, that the city reopen negotiations with the Grand Trunk for the elevation of tracks through the entire city, on the basis which came to grief some months ago, appears to have been anything but a wise one, and it was in the interests of the people that it was voted down on Wednesday night.

Had the council accepted the resolution, it would have meant that the city would have tied its hands so that it could not ask for the concessions which the company is willing to make. William Street Again. For example, Clarence street, which

MINISTERS ON STRIKE JOHN TOLMIE FOR NORTH BRUCE

Enthusiastic Liberal Meeting at Tara.

NO OTHER CANDIDATE NAMED

Hon. C. S. Hyman Deals With the Government's Record and Country's Finances.

Tara, Sept. 21.—Without a dissenting voice, and without another name being proposed, Mr. John Tolmie, ex-M. P., of Kinross, was this afternoon selected by North Bruce Liberals as their candidate in the coming bye-election, occasioned by the death of the late Conservative member, Mr. L. T. Bland.

There was such a feeling of unity among the delegates assembled in Tara as had never before been witnessed in the riding. It was seen at the outset that Mr. Tolmie was the choice of the timber men from the peninsula, as well as the prosperous farmers from the more southern townships. Seldom has such enthusiasm been displayed in behalf of any candidate in this county, unmistakably indicating that detestable effort will be made to record a Liberal majority. As soon as Mr. Tolmie's name was mentioned the hall rang with cheers, and when Dr. A. H. Hough, of Warton, chairman, asked if there were any more nominations, loud cries of "No" were heard, accompanied by more applause.

MR. GREENWOOD'S POLICY

He is a Liberal Arnoldi Charged With Malicious Untruth

Vancouver, B. C., Sept. 22.—Hamar Greenwood replied to Mr. Frank Arnoldi yesterday afternoon. He said: "When Mr. Arnoldi says I took seven years to decide what political party in England I would belong to, he says I know it is an untruth, and so he knows it is a malicious untruth. The day I landed in England in 1895 I stood on the Liberal platform in the county of Radnorshire, and spoke in support of my friend, Frank Edwards, then and now Liberal M. P. for that county. I have been on the same Liberal platform ever since, and in the general election of 1901 I was invited to be the Liberal candidate for the Borough of Grimsby, Lincolnshire. During the whole of my residence in England I have been an energetic Liberal, and never once wavered in my belief that the salvation of the homeland depends upon putting on the statute book those Liberal measures in reference to the land, to housing, to education and to other great problems, all of which in so far as they have been problems in Canada have been solved on what is understood in England as Liberal ideas."

TROPHIES PRESENTED

Interesting Event at Regular Meeting of Cigarmakers' Union.

The Cigarmakers' Union was visited last night at its regular meeting by a number of the members of the Labor Day committee of the Trades and Labor Council, for the purpose of presenting the trophies won on Labor Day by members of that union.

Chairman James McCormick, of the committee, congratulated the union upon winning both the Canadian Club trophy, given for a one-mile relay race, and also upon having a member of their own body win the tankard donated by the cigarmakers for a two-mile foot race.

Opening of Hyman Hall to Extend Over Three Days

Will Take Place Before the First of November--Premier Laurier Unable to Attend.

A rousing meeting of Liberals from all quarters of the city was held in the splendid new quarters, Hyman Hall, last night, when a committee was appointed with power to arrange for the formal opening of the hall some time before the 1st of November.

Great interest was manifested in the opening. Many of those present voiced their opinions as to how it should be conducted. The great majority were of the opinion that the opening should be extended over at least three days, and that Hon. Mr. Hyman, and one or two cabinet ministers should, if possible, be secured as speakers.

It was pointed out that the conference with provincial premiers opens on Oct. 8, and extends to the 15th, during which time Premier Laurier and Mr. Hyman will be very busy, and will not be able to come to London.

KICKED, TRAMPLED BY VICIOUS HORSE

W. L. Mitcheltree, a Market House Butcher, Severely Injured This Morning.

Mr. W. L. Mitcheltree, a butcher, whose place of business is in the market house, was severely injured this morning by a horse belonging to Douglas McIntyre, a farmer, of Yarmouth Township.

Mr. Mitcheltree was carrying a basket of meat to a wagon at the northeast corner of the market house, when McIntyre's horse, which was hitched to a double rig, kicked over the traces, one of its hoofs striking Mitcheltree squarely in the face, and knocking him down. While Mitcheltree was lying prostrate on the ground the vicious animal trampled on him several times.

Cuban Situation Serious; Uncle Sam May Intervene

Government and Insurgents Will Not Negotiate--Taft Sends Gloomy Message.

Washington, Sept. 21.—The advice from Havana today only confirm the belief that the differences between the Government and insurgents are irreconcilable, and that even if the President's commissioners should succeed in making a settlement of the difficulties, it could only be temporary, and that a crisis must result sooner or later. In accordance, therefore, by the United States is bound to occur at any moment.

Havana, Sept. 21.—It is understood here that Secretary Taft has sent a gloomy message to President Roosevelt, saying that private reports received by him from the insurgents are to the effect that a state bordering upon anarchy prevails throughout almost the entire islands, exception being made of sections on the coast.

HEPBURN OUT FOR EAST ELGIN

A Stronger Candidate To Be Chosen by the Liberal Party.

[Special to The Advertiser.] St. Thomas, Sept. 22.—For personal reasons which are entirely convincing to the working Liberals of the riding, Mr. W. F. Hephburn has withdrawn from the bye-election contest in East Elgin.

The Liberal will at once summon a convention to nominate another candidate. It is believed their choice will fall upon Mr. Grenville Haight, of Sparta, one of the most substantial farmers in the county, and a man who enjoys the highest respect.

PUSHING G. T. P. WORK

Good Progress Made Between Portage and Saskatoon.

Edmonton, Sept. 22.—Messrs. Hays and Morse have arrived after a drive over the right-of-way from Portage to here. They state 80 per cent of the grading between Portage and Saskatoon is already completed. Thirty per cent is done between Saskatoon and Edmonton. All heavy work will be completed this fall, and little left for next summer, except to iron the track. They would not state definitely what route the road will take through the mountains, but said an announcement might be expected when the survey parties returned this fall.

THE WEATHER

WILL PRESS FOR RECOGNITION OF ITS HONORARY DEGREES

Senate of Western University Will Bring Matter Before Department of Education.

The senate of the Western University held a largely-attended meeting yesterday afternoon at which it was decided to ask the department of education for Ontario why the department does not recognize the honorary degrees conferred by the university.

It was pointed out that the Western, with its three new professors, Dr. Alexander, Mr. Patterson and Mr. Wallace, is now on a strong educational footing, and has five professors on university work—namely, teaching classics, mathematics, moderns and languages, English and history.

TALK ON TEMPERANCE

In General Conference--The Committee's Report Amended.

Montreal, Sept. 21.—Realizing that the principle of church union has been approved by Methodists, Presbyterians and Congregationalists, the conference tonight soon disposed of the subject by endorsing the action already taken, and asking that negotiations be further continued.

Not so kindly a fate awaited the report of the committee on temperance prohibition and moral reform, which was recommended, in view of the importance of the work as it had developed during the four years, since it was begun, that the general conference appoint an associate secretary, and that the board be authorized to employ additional agents whenever in their opinion the circumstances require it and the financial conditions permit.

Mr. Alex. Mills and Dr. A. D. Watson, Toronto, submitted an amendment that conference authorize the board to appoint one or more field secretaries when the circumstances require it and the financial conditions permit. This was approved.

Plays, Players and Playgoers.

THE GRAND. Della Fox, in Vaudeville. Today (matinee and night) ... Monday "Out in Idaho" ... Tuesday "Out in Idaho" ... Friday First-class Vaudeville ... Saturday First-class Vaudeville

When Fitzpatrick & Stewart guaranteed the quality of the vaudeville which was given at the Grand last night they knew well enough that they were taking no chances. They knew the merits of the different acts, and consequently had nothing to fear.

She is still a tremendous favorite, and when she sang her famous song from "Wang," she was applauded to the echo. "The Marble Arch," one of the neatest sketches seen in London in many a day, was produced by Miss Charlotte Townsend and company, composed of Miss Bessie Johnston, Mr. Homer Durand, and Mr. Fred Kirby.

Walters and Prouty, the well-known travesty artists, are up-to-date fun-makers, who make good with the audience. The singing of Walters is the feature of this act. Lew Hawkins is a very funny man. He has a brand-new line of talk-barring one or two pardonable offenses.

Shorty and Lillian Dewitt have a funny act. Shorty is about as big as a minute, and is as full of talk as a phonograph. The couple were uproariously applauded last night.

Bennett's Theater in this city, which will be thrown open to the public on Oct. 8, will be sure to surprise everyone who knows something of the Bennett class of enterprise, and who are looking for big things.

It is the intention to have a ladies' parlor, with telephone connection, etc., where the ladies can meet and talk. There will also be a gentleman's smoking and lounging room, where the men may gather for a chat, without disturbing the house.

The night of the opening of the theater (Oct. 9)—a banquet is to be tendered to the representatives of the Montreal, Ottawa, Hamilton and London, and all the house managers; Mr. Albee and Mr. Jule Delmar, of New York, general business representatives of the United Booking Agency of America; professional friends, etc.

pal part in Hartley Manners' new play, "A Marriage of Reason." Charles Richmond is to be starred by the Will J. Block Amusement Company in "The Senator's Vindication." Blanche Walsh is to begin her road tour in "The Kreuzer Sonata," in Philadelphia about the middle of the month.

So great has been the pressure for seats for the final two weeks of David Warfield's engagement at the Bijou Theater in "The Music Master," that the management has felt compelled to arrange two extra matinees, one for Thursday of the current week, and the other for the same afternoon of the last days of Warfield's triumphant stay on Broadway.

Ellis Jeffrey's new play, "The Dear Unfair Sex," is spoken of as another variant of "The Taming of the Shrew." Percy Haswell is to be in the cast of "The Measure of a Man," which is to be produced in Philadelphia the first of October.

Lillian Russell's new comedy, "Barbara's Millions," is by Paul Potter, and is founded on Francis de Croisset's "Le Bonheur Mesdames." Ida Conquest, who is now playing in "The Judge and the Jury," is to be the leading lady with Kyrie Bellew in his production of "Brigadier Gerard."

H. B. Warner, the son of Charles Warner, Reuben Fax, Hassard Short, and Ada Dwyer have been engaged for Eleanor Robson's company. "Nearly every visitor who comes in to my dressing room," says George H. Primrose, who is now in Washington, "wants to know how we ministers black up. Well, I'll explain. Even the toilet secrets of Lillian Russell are public property, and I suppose mine are no longer sacred."

Wallace Eddinger, who plays the part of Hon. Cecil Stanford in "Man and His Angel" was the Little Lord Fauntleroy in Mrs. Frances Hodgson Burnett's play of that name in 1888-90. At 14 Master Eddinger had saved sufficient money to educate himself, and entered Columbia Institution in New York. Seven years later he was graduated from Columbia University with high honors.

It will perhaps be interesting news for London theater-goers to learn that during the coming season, Mr. Robert Hilliard, the former co-star with Blanch Bates in David Belasco's great play, "The Girl of the Golden West," will be seen as an extra attraction at Bennett's, and also Miss Rose Coghlan, the well-known dramatic star, and favorite sister of that famous actor so long identified with "The Royal Sox," Charles Coghlan.

Murderess Saved From Execution. Woman Who Gave Birth to Child in Prison to Remain Convict for Life. Berlin, Sept. 22.—The Berlin Post announces that the death sentence on Frau Bloemers has been commuted to imprisonment for life.

The first performance of Hall Caine's drama, "The Bondman," took place at Drury Lane Theater, London, on Sept. 13. As four of Mr. Caine's successful novels were brought out on the 13th of the month, he is not at all superstitious about that date.

Among the first productions recently are those of John Drew in New York, in Piner's "His House in Order"; Henrietta Crossman in "All-of-a-Sudden-Peggy," in Newburgh, N. Y., and Thomas Ross in George M. Cohan's piece, "Popularity," in Rochester.

Virginia Harned is said to have scored a decided success in the Sardou farce, "The Love Letter," with which she opened her season a week ago in Pittsburg. The role of Florence Revillon, which she takes, was originally created by Madame Rejane. The translation of the farce is by Ferdinand Gottschalk.

David Belasco has received the rights to "The Dragon Fly," the play of Texas and Mexico, by John Luther Long and Edward Childs Carpenter. The play had a brief but unsuccessful run last season. The production that is to be brought out by Mr. Belasco has been materially changed, and is to be used as the vehicle in which Bertha Galland is to be starred.

SMASHUP AT DAYTON. Engine Had Lantern for Headlight—Training the Victims. Dayton, O., Sept. 21.—As a result of a wreck between a train of empty passenger cars and a northbound freight train on the Cincinnati, Hamilton and Dayton Railroad near here about midnight, Engineer William A. Smiley was killed and his fireman, Joseph McCurdy, was fatally injured.

CUBANS FIRE ON YANKEES. Bluejackets Return the Fire and the Rebels Run. Havana, Sept. 21.—La Discusion publishes a dispatch from Cienfuegos, saying that the bluejackets from the American gunboat Marietta, who were garrisoning the Soledad sugar estate, have been fired on by rebels. The Americans returned the fire and the rebels fled.

THOROLD BOY KILLED. A Lad of 12 Shot by a Companion—Suspicious Circumstances. Thorold, Sept. 22.—Clifford Liddycoat, a boy of 12 years, son of George Liddycoat, of this town, was shot in the face and instantly killed in Wilson's bush, near here, yesterday.

KILLED BY BOMB. Three Police Killed at Tiffin While Searching Suspected Houses. Tiffin, Sept. 22.—During a domiciliary search of suspected houses here today, the police discovered in the apartment of a young man named Aleioi a box containing printing mats.

WORLD'S LARGEST COURTOUSE. Chicago, Sept. 22.—The corner-stone of Chicago's county building, which, when completed, will be the largest courthouse in the world, was laid yesterday with elaborate ceremonies.

MOONEY'S PERFECTION Cream Soda. This is the box that has the biscuits that are always fresh, crisp and good—that are made in the best bakery in Canada by the best bakers.

WOODS' FAIR. Splendid showing of Cushion Tops at 25c. Ladies' Summer Vests, sleeveless, in pure white; some with fancy lace yoke, lace and taped, trimmed neck; our regular 25c time; to clear at 15c.

THE FISHERY TROUBLE. Newfoundland Backed by Britain in Her Claims. St. John's, Nfld., Sept. 22.—The representatives of the American, British and Newfoundland Governments are negotiating a modus vivendi regarding the winter herring fishing, about to open on the west coast of Newfoundland.

LAME JOINTS QUICKLY LIMBERED. All they need is rubbing with Nervalline. It takes out stiffness and rinds in the worst cases. Powerful, penetrating and safe, you can't equal Poison's Nervalline. Sold in 25c bottles.

ALREADY COOKED. Thoroughly cooked, rolled into thin, crisp flakes, toasted golden brown. Toasted Corn Flakes. are ready for instant use. Just add cream and serve. And such a flavor! You've tasted nothing quite like it.

ZION CITY VOTES
GOODBY TO 'LIJE

Last Trace of Old Leader's Claims Wiped Out by the Popular Vote.

Chicago, Sept. 22.—The last trace of any claim that John Alexander Dowie may have had to the leadership of the organization he established was wiped out in the eyes of the law by the almost unanimous election of Wilbur Glenn Voliva, his more youthful opponent, as general overseer of the Christian Catholic Apostolic Church in Zion. Only an insignificant opposition was offered by Alfred E. Bills, a follower of the aged leader. Of a total of 1,919 votes cast, Voliva received 1,906, Bills 6, and 7 were defective. Reese H. Carr, a young Chicago attorney representing Bills, was the cause of the only disturbance that marred the election. Just before the polls closed he appeared at the southwest school house, and when he insisted upon standing inside the railing an attempt was made to oust him. A small riot followed, in which he endeavored to fight off W. H. Lichty and H. W. Judd, two election judges, and several other men. He was placed under arrest. Later he was released upon his own recognizance, and left threatening to protest the election as unfair to his client. Four polling places in the four quarters of the town were open from 6 a.m. until 9 p.m., and between those hours men and women, many of them enfeebled by age or crippled by disease, entered the booths and came out with the feeling that the "new era" had arrived at last. It was "only a matter of form," for the deposed "first apostle" has refused to recognize the decrees of Judge Kendall M. Landis, of the United States District court, as anything save a distinct violation of the principle upon which his creed was founded—that of theocracy, a God-chosen leadership. Never Any Doubt of the Result. Since Judge Landis ordered the popular election of a head of the ecclesiastical body of Zion, there has been not the slightest doubt of Voliva's selection, but the polling was necessary to satisfy the demands of the court. His decrees have been withheld pending the result, and it is expected that it will be issued within a few days embodying the rulings of the opinion handed down three months ago, with the insertion of the final provision for Dowie's last days, a pension sufficient for his needs. That is all that remains in the future for the wreck of a many who gathered under his banner 22,000 persons in all parts of the world, and bound them to himself so fast that they could not be parted. Dowie, who was a man of wealth and entrusted the souls to his hands. The events of yesterday impressed this conclusion upon the minds of those who were present. He sat alone and silent in the library. Three weeks have passed since he spoke to his small following, and he has announced that he will address the entire people. He remained in his office all day, and it was stated that he was preparing to take advantage of the controversy as to which party had the right to control its columns.

KITE ACTS AS PARACHUTE

Consequently Little Boy Survives Fall of Five Stories.

New York, Sept. 22.—Only the heavy cord which he had attached to his kite saved the life of 4-year-old James Hamilton. For more than a week the youngster had his heart set upon having a kite. At last he succeeded in getting a very large one and enough stout twine to fly it with. He went to the fire escape on the fifth floor to fly it. While the kite was soaring the boy leaned over the side of the fire escape and fell off. The kite string was wrapped around his hand. He fell rapidly for 20 feet or more, and then the kite caught the wind and stopped his downward progress. The kite acted like a parachute, and the youngster sailed slowly toward the ground. When five feet from the street the boy let the twine loosen from his hand, and he fell heavily. Dr. Samuels took the lad to Roosevelt Hospital suffering from a broken thigh.

Stop Drink Craving.

Nothing is responsible for more suffering and misery both to the afflicted one and to his friends and relatives than drunkenness. It will be good news to many in this town to know that C. McCallum & Co., corner Dundas and Richmond streets, are selling a cure called Orlin for which they are authorized to sell under a positive guarantee if it does not stop the drink craving and absolutely cure the drunkard, the money will be refunded. Orlin is in two forms; No. 1 to be given without the patient's knowledge, and No. 2 for those who desire to be cured. The remedy costs but $1 a package. Mail orders filled. The Orlin Company, of Washington, D. C., or ask C. McCallum & Co., to tell you what they know about this remarkable remedy.

STRANGE WEDDING IN BROOKLYN

Deceived Bride - Elect Makes
Her Fiancée Wed
Her Rival.

New York, Sept. 22.—No writer of fiction ever conceived a more dramatic stage setting than the circumstances surrounding the remarkable wedding of William F. Thober, a tinsmith, of Trenton, N. J., and pretty 17-year-old Viola Glover, of Newark. The knot was tied at the home of Miss Mary MacDonald, No. 247 Fifty-third street, Brooklyn, whom Thober had intended to wed, and who successfully trapped him into the predicament where his only loophole was to marry the girl he had previously loved, and jilted. It was the most unusual marriage ever recorded. Miss MacDonald had perfected all arrangements for the marriage to Thober. She discovered his perfidy in the nick of time, and summoning Miss Glover and a minister instead of a priest, as had originally been planned, saw to it that the ceremony was performed. Miss MacDonald was bridesmaid instead of bride, wearing the wedding gown that she had made for her own marriage. Flowers brought by the bridegroom shed their sweetness for the girl he had discarded. Dashed Up the Steps Arriving from Trenton, Thober had hurried to the MacDonald home. He was the picture of happiness as he bounded up the steps, carrying a box of candy and a bunch of flowers. Miss MacDonald met him at the door and led him into the parlor that bore a festive appearance. Within ten minutes Thober was married to the Newark girl, and handed his hat by the MacDonalds, and told that he could not leave any too quickly to please everybody concerned. The wedding supper, minus the bridegroom, was then partaken of. Miss Glover, who will call herself Mrs. Thober because she considers it her duty, told a reporter that she would never live with her husband, and that she never wanted to set eyes on him again. It is doubtful if she ever will, as Thober made a hasty and mysterious escape. Few men have ever had such a shock as had been his.

A Surprise

On entering the parlor with Miss MacDonald he had been met by Bartholomew Griffin, her sturdy brother-in-law. "Eager for the wedding?" asked Mr. Griffin. "Yes, indeed. I can hardly wait," replied Thober, casting an affectionate glance at his intended bride. "You won't wait, then? Well, I just have this wedding gown," said Mr. Griffin, as he threw open the sliding doors and exhibited a dozen persons, including the Grovers and the Rev. H. C. Meyer, of St. Jacob's Lutheran Church. Thober caught one glance of Miss Viola Glover, who, trembling like a leaf, was being supported by the minister. A minute before Thober had been telling Miss MacDonald how lovely she looked in her wedding gown. Now Mr. Griffin announced that Miss MacDonald would act as bridesmaid, and George Cassey, who had been selected as best man for the wedding, stood for the following night, would fill the office of best man then and there. "You see, all the details have been attended to," said Mr. Griffin, sternly, as he passed a plain gold ring over to the minister. Thober was flazed. His face turned as white as Miss Glover's dress, and he looked blankly about as though he wished the floor would open up and let him through. He seemed to think of making his flight, but the determined look in the eyes of the Grovers and the minister, and the women frightened him. No time was lost in performing the ceremony. Thober bowed his head affirmatively when the preacher put the usual questions. He looked pleadingly into the eyes of Miss MacDonald, but she simply smiled in a way that made him all the more miserable.

Leaves With Bowed Head.

"Here is your hat, Mr. Thober," said Mr. Griffin. Nobody, not even the newly-made wife, had a pleasant look for him. With head bowed, he hurried out of the house. The newly-wedded Mrs. Thober and her parents remained for the wedding supper which the MacDonalds had prepared. Neighbors could not understand why the wedding had taken place a day earlier than scheduled, and no explanations were made until the following day, when Mrs. MacDonald caused the announcement to be made that the engagement of marriage between her daughter and Thober had been canceled owing to the fact that the bridegroom had a wife living in Newark. Simultaneously with this announcement, Mrs. Glover, of No. 173 Summer avenue, Newark, announced that her daughter, Viola, had been secretly married to Thober in Brooklyn on Dec. 21, 1905. It was at about that time that Thober had ceased his attentions to Miss Glover, and had begun to woo Miss MacDonald. Mrs. Glover admitted yesterday that she falsified the date in the announcement, believing that the story of the most remarkable wedding on record would never become publicly known. His Perfidy by Accident. The love that Thober kindled in the heart of his Brooklyn bride when he jilted the Newark girl ran along very smoothly until five days ago, when Miss MacDonald went to Newark to visit a friend, to whom she mentioned the name of Thober. She then heard for the first time that her fiancée had for over a year courted Miss Glover, and that the Grovers had for some time been trying to discover his whereabouts. Weeping as if her little heart would break, Miss MacDonald told her parents what she had heard concerning the man she was to marry. An investigation was immediately begun by the MacDonalds, and the whole truth came out on Friday, when Miss MacDonald and Miss Glover met. After listening with dismay to the Newark girl's entire story, the bride-to-be said: "It is coming to my house tomorrow night to complete arrangements for our wedding the next evening. I hate him

Lasting Results from using NEWBRO'S HERPICIDE

"I am blessed with an abundance of long hair and I use the utmost care in the preservation of it. I have never found anything that pleases me as much as Newbro's Herpicide. It keeps the scalp clean and sanitary and adds a luxurious appearance to my hair that no other preparation will give. I consider it most delightful to use and I can truly say that I prefer it above all other preparations for the hair. I like your soap also and can recommend both highly to any lady who wishes a good head of hair."

Cleveland, Ohio.

While it is not natural for everyone to have extremely long hair, it is possible for every lady to have beautiful hair, for when the scalp is not diseased, the hair will grow naturally and abundantly. The chief disease of the scalp is dandruff—which is highly contagious—and dandruff is now known to be caused by an invisible vegetable growth called the dandruff germ. Ordinarily, the first signs of scalp infection are dryness, dullness and brittleness of the hair, although the disease sometimes causes excessive oiliness. Following this, the hair loses its luster, the scalp itches more or less and dandruff appears. Falling hair and baldness represent the last stages of hair destruction. Newbro's Herpicide—the original remedy that kills the dandruff germ—will cure any stage of this disease, except chronic baldness, which is incurable. Herpicide not only destroys the dandruff germ and stops falling hair, but it is a most exquisite hair dressing, making the hair light and fluffy and giving it a silken gloss. Almost marvelous results sometimes follow the continued use of Herpicide. It stops itching of the scalp almost instantly.

THE POWER QUESTION.

The prospect for Government ownership of power powers is very dark. The Healey power has been handed over to private control, and the private company is to operate two other powers in the same district. According to an interview published in the Globe, Mr. Whitney has given a body blow to the advocates of public ownership. True, he says that the interests of the people will be paramount, but what premier would say anything else? The most strenuous foe of public ownership in the Legislature would argue that he is acting for the interests of the people. The Premier was asked about the Government taking the power question out of the hands of the hydro-electric power commission, and granting leases to private corporations. He declared that the Government had never been idiotic enough to say that they were going to take over and develop water power, but they had promised to see that the people were given power at the lowest cost. "Idiotic" is a pretty strong word to be hurled at the advocates of public ownership of water powers. It is a strange word, when we consider that the Government is on record as in favor of this "idiotic" policy, not merely in mere speeches or resolutions or platitudes, but in the law which it has placed on the statute book. That law will be found in the "act to provide for the transmission of electric power to municipalities," chapter 15 of the statutes of 1906, pages 121 to 127. This act provides for the appointment of the "hydro-electric power commission of Ontario." The commission may appoint a chief engineer, an accountant and a secretary, with assistants. It is empowered to make contracts with municipal corporations for the delivery of power—not by private companies, but by the commission itself. Provision is made for the disposal of any profits that may be made by the commission. Evidently it is a business concern, not a court. The commission may report to the Government as to any water powers, machinery, or plant that ought to be acquired by the commission. The Government may authorize the commission to acquire these properties, not only water powers, but the plant and property of private transmission companies. The commission, as the act plainly shows, is not a regulating commission or court, but an operating commission. It is to take hold of the business of supplying power just as the board of directors of a private company might do. It is to "take over and develop water power"—the thing that the Premier says is idiotic. The logical conclusion of the Premier's latest declaration is the repeal of the statute in which the Government's former policy is laid down with such distinctness. Toronto Star, Sept. 22.

SNAP-SHOTS AT VARIOUS SPORTS

Tenpins will be more popular than ever in London this winter. It is a little warm for the game just yet.

They have some great bowling on the green under arc lights at the Thistle Club grounds every fine evening.

The Forest City Quilting Club, which has been greatly harassed by reason of having to move so often, has at last located on what the members sincerely hope will prove to be a permanent ground, on Richmond street, near Pleasantly.

Local sports are slightly dull at present, but the outlook for the coming winter is fairly good.

The tennis tournament is still in progress at the London Hunt Club grounds.

A Toronto sportsman has discovered a way to beat the races. He says: Procure a large sized black jack, proceed to the race track, walk up behind a bookmaker, and soak him with your weapon.

A man who can't lose cheerfully shouldn't gamble. All those in this vicinity (or any other) who can lose a thousand dollars, more or less, and grin over it, will be presented with a free membership card to the Ananias Club of New York.

"Did Sherring kneel to the King of Grease on the occasion of the Olympic games?" asks a Constant Reader. Answer—Accounts of Sherring's doings while in Greece differ. At all events, he showed the king's subjects his heels in the Marathon race.

Nolan and Nelson have evidently opened their mouths too wide since that Goldfield affair. Siler, the Chicago referee, has entered suit against them for slander.

The time for whist tournaments is fast approaching. London has some crack players.

"Variety is the spice of sports," so 'tis said, but facts seldom go to prove this. Take a turfman, for instance. He will talk horse by the yard. Spring hockey or some other game on him and he'll look sour.

Battling Nelson nearly lost his laurels shortly after he had won them from J. Britt.

Nolan, Nelson's manager, put him up against Kid Sullivan, of Washington, before Herford's club in Baltimore, for a six-round bout. Nelson was hog-fat and Sullivan was trained to the hour. In the third round Sullivan butted Nelson. Just as Bat turned to appeal to the referee, who, by the way, was part manager of Sullivan, the Kid swung on Nelson and put him through the ropes. Nelson managed to get a draw out of it, but it was a close call for him.

Some baseball players can't keep their eyes on anything but the calendar. They're always looking for pay-day. Possibly that is the reason there are so many "stickers." A railroad train is not the easiest place in the world to pass away time.

Wrecks on Great Lakes Have Claimed Many Thousand Souls

One to Two Hundred Persons Lose Their Lives Annually on the Inland Chain Through the Destruction of Hundreds of Vessels—Some Wrecks Mysterious.

It is generally admitted and statistics substantiate it, that in a storm, navigation is more dangerous on the Great Lakes than on the ocean. There is not space enough for safety, and the short waves and narrow channels require more skill than the broad sweeps of the ocean.

Other when miles apart. They kept their course until near each other, when the Pewabic put her helm a port and had just commenced to swing when she was struck in the vicinity of the pilot house by the Meteor, cutting her down to the water's edge.

Lost With All Hands. In 1857, the freighter Merchant foundered in Lake Superior with all on board. Not even a piece of her wreckage was ever found.

Loss of the Lady Elgin. One of the greatest marine disasters on the Great Lakes or anywhere else in the world, was the loss of the Lady Elgin in Lake Michigan, Sept. 8, 1860.

Another Mystery. The passenger steamer Asia, one of the finest on the lakes, perished in the same mysterious way in 1882.

Sinking of the Pewabic. Aug. 9 was the forty-first anniversary of the loss of the propeller Pewabic, which was the most serious disaster of the season of 1865 and one of the most famous wrecks on the lakes.

pearance is, perhaps, the strangest on record. She was a staunch, well built and perfectly equipped schooner, in charge of one of the best and most skillful navigators on the lakes, and was in first-class condition when she cleared from Chicago for Muskegon.

No Trace of the Chicora. Only a few years ago the magnificent passenger steamer Chicora left St. Joseph, Mich., for Chicago, on a wintry night.

There have been many other casualties, but one of the most calamitous pages in the history of the Great Lakes was the disappearance of the steel steamer W. H. Gilcher, on Lake Michigan in 1882.

Some little wreckage—that is all that was found to tell the story. It was the burning of the steamer G. P. Griffin, twenty miles east of Cleveland, July 17, 1850, 226 lives were lost.

CAN'T BE SCHOOLM'AM BUT IS A BLACKSMITH

NEBRASKA WOMAN NOT EASILY DISCOURAGED.

Unable to secure an appointment as teacher in the rural school district of Kansas where she resided, Mrs. Philo Wilcox, turned to blacksmithing, which was her husband's trade.

Mrs. Wilcox is 40. She has a clear complexion and her hardened muscles are evidence of the long hours she has put in at the forge.

"I like the work," she says. "At first the tendency of people to stare and stare was discouraging, but now I don't mind it. I know of no other woman blacksmith in the country."

"Most of my work is in using the sled making horseshoes, repairing wagons and farm implements, sharpening tools and the like. I am kept busy all the time. One of the girls takes care of the house, and the other three help in the shop."

"My eldest girl went out last summer with a threshing machine outfit and was with it all winter. She cut across the engine, fed the separator and did part of the cooking for the men. It is hardly girl's work; but it does not harm her. She is as lithe and strong as a young lion, and in bicycle races has proved more than a match at long distances for the young men in the neighborhood."

WHY TROUT LIE LOW BEFORE A STORM

REASONS FOR THE BEAUTIES REFUSING TO RISE FOR FLIES. The other day, in casual conversation, an eminent naturalist touched upon the well-known fact that trout never rise freely during the time of languor.

The naturalist replied: "I would," he said, "admit your theory to be conceivably correct if it were not that I have one of my own. Yours seems to fall in with the facts all right, but so does mine. Mine simply is that the reason why trout don't rise freely for an hour or two hours before thunder, or even for a longer time, is that there are then no flies on the water, or very few."

That was a striking theory. It seemed so reasonable that at first I was disposed to acquiesce, but a few moments' thought showed that it involved some questionable assertions.

"I understand," said I, "that sometimes when the temperature is abnormally low, the eggs of aquatic insects do really hatch out in due course, but that the young flies, being enfeebled by the cold, die before they reach the surface."

"Well, then, as it is certain that a temperature abnormally low prevents the hatching out of insects' eggs in the complete sense, is it not conceivable that a temperature abnormally high may have the same effect?"

"Dear me! I never thought of that," the naturalist answered. "Why, yes, it is conceivable. In fact, it is probable. That when the salmon is not affected by the pre-thunder influence. May this be held to indicate that the pre-thunder influence is not so potent among the creatures in the water as it is among the creatures above?"

"It might," said the naturalist; "but the salmon, I think, is in a different class. He finds the greater part of his sustenance not in the river, but in the sea. When he leaves the sea he is so highly nourished, so fat, that he can live in the river, even if he finds no food there for many months. Some say that when he rises at an artificial fly or takes a minnow, he is only amusing himself or giving way to irritation. Well, then, it may be that, being exuberant in vitality from his feasting in the sea he is not so readily affected by the enervating atmosphere as the trout is."

"Ah! 'Enervating atmosphere!' Is not that a concession? If the pre-thunder atmosphere is enervating to the trout, other phenomena, such as the absence of flies and the possible absence of themselves, aer apart from the problem. That the trout are enervated would sufficiently explain why they don't rise at our flies or seize the worm."

"You may be right," said the naturalist, laughing. "Indeed, I am inclined to believe you are."

GEISHA GIRLS AS JOCKEYS. A remarkable event took place at Shinobu, Japan, on May 21, which, if emulated, will revolutionize horse racing throughout the world.

THE MALIGNED MULE STRONGLY DEFENDED

VINDICATION OF ANIMAL MUCH MISREPRESENTED. It is a shame that such a friend and servant to mankind as the mule should be given the reputation it has in literature; or, rather, in newspapers and cartoons. The mule doubtless does not know of his vindication, and if it did, would not care; but the friends of the mule do care, and the friends of the mule are all who know them. In nothing has the good, hard sense of the Missourian been better shown than in raising and using mules, for the mule pays for every bit of care and appreciation the Missourian or anybody else bestows.

Superficially the mule has the reputation of being vicious, stubborn and a kicker. He deserves none of these characterizations, and the average Missourian knows it might well. The mule is not naturally vicious, and it takes the biggest kind of a fool of a man to spoil the temper of an animal.

The fictional stubbornness of the mule arises from the fact that when it appears stubborn it usually has a good, sensible reason to be, and the real mulishness is in the man. The mule knows better than he does why this or that should not be, and is resolute. Whatever kicking propensity the mule has is derived from the horse side of his pedigree, and that is minimized by the patience, complacency and docility he gets from the other side of his pedigree.

The mule is not so easily startled as the horse, never acts the plump crazy fool, and hurts himself like a scared horse, but as his heels are his natural defense, he will use them in the pinch of necessity or apprehension.

It is not a wise thing to come upon any animal of the horse kind, full kin and first letting it be known you are around, no matter how gentle the animal may be. The horse and the mule are both startled by sudden contact for which they cannot for the moment account, and their nature is to kick. It is really the "kickiest" animal on the farm is that post-admired critter, the meek and lowly cow. She can kick higher, in more different directions, with less cause for doing so, than any mule or horse. A man knows the direction a horse or mule will kick. It is not so with the cow. He knows, too, the forbidding signs. But that man has never yet been born who can figure on the "whenness" or the "whereness" of a cow's kick. There is no less dignity in the addition of a kick to a horse or a mule, but no man likes to be kicked by a cow and hurt. Hence the cow kicks do not get into statistics or the newspapers and the others do.

As to the kicking propensities of the mule, it is noticeable in Missouri, where they know how to raise them, that every mule has a shaved tail. Whenever the mule's tail needs shaving, which is about every sixty days, a Missourian, letting the mule know he is there, stands right behind his muleship, takes that tail in one hand and does the barbering—usually with a pair of sheep shears—with the other. No man was ever kicked shaving a mule's tail. The mule knows he is there and what he is doing. He works harder than a horse, stands better and eats less. As an all-around animal for farm work he is in a class by himself.

As collateral the mule means more in ready cash than anything on the farm. He can always be turned into money. You do not have to take him to buyers and argue. They come to get the mule and argue to keep you in a disposing mind. Pages could be filled with deserved praise of the mule, the animal that never overacts and never goes crazy.—Kansas City Star.

THUS SPAKE RICHARD STRAUSS. Some of Richard Strauss' remarks at a rehearsal of his sensational opera "Salome," at Prague have been put on record by a member of the orchestra and printed in the Leipziger Nachrichten. At one place he stopped the orchestra and said to the players: "Gentlemen, that must sound very sweet—must smack, as it were. Imagine yourself eating a luscious pear which actually melts on the tongue."

Such moments, however, were rare. On the whole he showed that he regarded the orchestra as the prime factor. "No consideration for the singers! In this opera there is no consideration," he explained at one place. The passage was repeated more vigorously. Then came a place where the trombones and trumpets added to the din. Again Strauss interrupted them: "Children," he said, "that is too gentle. We want wild beasts here. This

For the Home Dressmaker

Marked Differences in the Crowns of Hats

FROM the time she ties her hair back in its cluster of curls, or its loose braids, the question of her hat becomes a thoroughly absorbing one to the average girl.

The soft tam-o'-shanter crowns that have come in again, in bold contradiction to the tiny crowns of a year ago, are particularly suited to the 12-year-old girl's hat, although there's many a girl who looks better, because of the shape of her face or her general build, in a small crown. For her, there are small hats with rounded crowns—some of a modification of the derby shapes that were seen in such profusion last spring and summer.

The favorite trimming of all is ribbon—ribbon or a narrow silk scarf, drawn and twisted into loose, graceful folds and tied or draped into an odd, effective bow. Upon the placing of that bow—whether in front, or back, or at the side—depends the whole style of the hat, and whether or not it is becoming. Directly in back is the newest position for it to take, the hat tilted ever so slightly, and the bow made to rest on the hair quite as much as it does on the hat.

But in this point, as in that of the size of the crown, the widest latitude in style prevails. If the bow is more becoming at the side, it is deftly adapted to give the effect of a bow at the back, one side of the brim is rolled up, and the ribbon is massed at the side as well.

These scarfs, by the way, have assumed a tremendous importance. Often they are of striped silk, even of tulle or a gay, pretty plaid, and sometimes a single color will have odd little figures in soft Persian coloring sprinkled lavishly over it.

Wings and quills hold their own for young girls' hats, principally because there is nothing else which at once gives service and style at a minimum of cost.

A modified form of the Peter

Pan hat is having a small furore all by itself. It is not the extremely narrow hat, which, strange to say, is enjoying undeserved popularity among the first fall hats, but a hat as wide as is the usual toque, with the trimming made to add just a little more to its width. Yet, in spite of these changes, the idea of the quaint little shape is anything but interfered with.

Headgear For Grown Folks

A SAILOR of crepe suitable for a young widow who has just removed her long veil has a long bow of crepe under the brim, and folds of crepe around the crown ending at each side in three stiff ear-shaped tabs, held by buckles of jet grapes.

One turban with a fancy coronet of braid had choux of uncut velvet and silk resting low on the hair in the back, with two wings just in front of them, one falling on the hair, the other erect and slanting sharply to the back.

A rather severe little toque, entirely of braid, slightly raised at one side, has a soft crown and stiff rim. The only trimmings are flat folds of silk, with two long ears of silk beneath two broad black wings held in place by an oval, dull-jet buckle.

Very stiff little hats with low, round crowns and straight shallow brims are simply bound with silk, and have a plain band and flat bow to one side.

TAILORED SUITS FOR THE GIRL OF TWELVE

EVEN the girl of 12 has her little suit, smartly tailored and with the emphasis of style laid upon the buttons, which, though plain, as becomes everything in tailor fashion, are often very rich. Buttons, by the way, figure very largely upon the clothes that girls of all ages wear, from the tiny tot, with great fur buttons set upon her coat, to her debutante sister, whose suit has its greatest beauty spot in them.

Plaids are even better liked for the small girl's suits than they are for her older sisters. Often she wears a plaid dress, with a thoroughly boyish top coat of covert cloth or of melton. But the little plaid suits are most girlish and attractive, and, best of all, from a mother's standpoint are preferable to plain cloth in that they seem not to spot nor soil so readily.

Like her older sister, again, the little girl's skirts are carefully shaped—gored and made to flare. Circular models, for obvious reasons, are tabooed for her.

As to jackets, they are loose, or at the tightest, are little blouse coats, belted in and clasped with a plain buckle.

Few of them are trimmed, braiding being the usual thing where trimming is used at all; or, following older fashions again, the collar and cuffs may be of velvet—usually of a good, strong shade; even a bright shade is good.

A favorite jacket for a twelve-year-old is very like the pony jackets which were so popular last spring, and Norfolk styles are as perennial with her as is the sailor suit.

Both double and single breasted effects are good, only if she's a chunky little mortal don't have a short, double-breasted coat for her. It will emphasize the "chunkiness" to a most unpleasant degree.

For separate coats, box coats, full or three-quarter length, are usually worn, made of slightly rougher materials than were worn by even the young girls last year.

SOME INTERESTING NOTES OF FASHIONS

A N EXQUISITE crepe de chine gown, worn by a very fair woman, was the wine color in fashion in our grandmother's day.

A host of new reds are about—the soft dahlia shades, really not red at all, but a wonderful deep, "different" pink, loveliest of all.

Black promises to be very popular for every sort of thing, from the richest of evening gowns to the plainest of walking suits. As is usual when black comes in fashion, all sorts of intricate treatments are planned to bring out subtleties of material or trimming.

Shadow effects are among the most popular of the many striped stuffs shown.

Tulle and mulle and the rest of the many diaphanous stuffs which promise to be exceptionally good this winter, show embroidery applied in lavish ways.

Radium silk, that wonderful stuff that is a cross between silk and chiffon, comes in the most exquisite gray shown in any material for many a long day. Apparently, it is solid color, but with the shifting of light the surface flushes into rose and pales to blue, shimmering back in a moment to its own clear-toned gray.

After all that has been said and done against them, girdles are still with us, appearing today in a dozen new forms (most of us thought the whole gamut had been run), from the high, swathed effect that takes a wonderful, willowy figure to wear, to the one which is eloquent of Japanese influence.

Lace combinations are to be even more daringly made this winter—heavy and light, or one sort of heavy lace combined with another, or with others, as many and as picturesquely put together as possible.

Plenty of the new hats are made of felt "flats," folded and draped into shape. And toques are better than they've been for years—even the turban shapes promising to drift in along with them.

Going to the other extreme, stockings, even those for winter, stay as chiffon as they were last summer. Silk stockings, by the way, are enjoying an almost unprecedented popularity. Where a woman used to indulge herself in an occasional pair, by way of an extra bit of daintiness, she's apt to have them by the half dozen.

When a monogram is used, it is almost invariably of an involved sort—the individual touch got without making it too prominent.

Embroidery upon stockings grows better liked all the while, especially when the embroidery matches the stocking in color.

Stunning Colored Shirtwaists

THE most fascinating shirtwaists are about, meant entirely for mornings, of course, and as tailor-made as anything can be, yet delightfully feminine in their whole make-up. They are of madras—the made-up. They are of madras—the thin, ginghamy kind used for men's negligé shirts, and follow the fad for stripes set by Paris.

Pink and white, blue and white, gray and white, lavender and white—all the changes of color possible are combined with white, the stripes of color exactly the width of the white, and the prettiest stripes are fully three-eighths of an inch wide.

One stunning shirt was pink, and worn by a rosy rose of a girl, whose hat, rose-trimmed, exquisitely but simply, seemed the last picturesque touch to the simplest morning costume.

Plenty of fulness was in the shirtwaist, and a ruffle of the material ran down the front. Even the sleeves, although modeled upon the stiff shirt sleeves of the old-time tailor-made girl, utterly belied their own masculine character by being full—"easy," a maker called it—then came in demurely to a stiff cuff made for links.

Nothing could be more attractive for the sombre suits we are to have with us this winter than such shirtwaists, in the color of the suit and white or in a contrasting color, like that rose shirtwaist, which, by the way, lived up to a suit in the soberest of bronze tones.

For the Home Dressmaker

Marked Differences in the Crowns of Hats

FROM the time she ties her hair back in its cluster of curls, or its loose braids, the question of her hat becomes a thoroughly absorbing one to the average girl.

The soft tam-o'-shanter crowns that have come in again, in bold contradiction to the tiny crowns of a year ago, are particularly suited to the 12-year-old girl's hat, although there's many a girl who looks better, because of the shape of her face or her general build, in a small crown. For her, there are small hats with rounded crowns—some what of a modification of the derby shapes that were seen in such profusion last spring and summer.

The favorite trimming of all is ribbon—ribbon or a narrow silk scarf, drawn and twisted into loose, graceful folds and tied or draped into an odd, effective bow. Upon the placing of that bow—whether in front, or back, or at the side—depends the whole style of the hat, and whether or not it is becoming.
