MUST GET VICTORY IN BELGIUM SOON OR RETIRE FORCES

Fate of Germans May Quickly be Sealed by the Russians.

Violent Battle is in Progress in the North.

[By Special Wire to the Courier]

PARIS, Nov. 11.—7 a.m.—It is becoming more and more evident to French observers that Germany is now making a great effort in Belgium to carry out her determination to penetrate the battle line of the allies with a frontal attack and reach either Dunkirk or Calais on the English channel. This attack seems to be taking place south of Dixmude. What is described in an official bulletin as "very violent fighting" in the north, continues this morning. The foggy weather of the last few days apparently has cleared, and the Germans are pushing the attack. Nevertheless, Paris seems well satisfied with the situation of the allies and the optimism of the past two weeks continues unabated.

The German position, however, is being given considerable close study. French military critics, from the standpoint of strategy, regard the German position between two adversaries too far from each other for united efforts in the same operation as a favor-able one for the reason that it permits the use of what is called "internal lines." This strategy is simple in theory, but not always so in practice. As depicted in the campaign of 1814 in France, Napoleon, holding the internal lines, beat the Austrian army at one point and then after having sufficient forces before the Austrians to hold them in check, proceeded by forced marches toward the Russian army which he vanquished in its turn. Now a days possible to apply this manoeuvre to two points a thousand miles apart. German railroads in particular lend themselves admirably to this procedure.

But there is an essential difference. It is pointed out to-day by French observers, between Napoleon's campaign of a century ago and that of William II. The operations of to-day were not in the same manner. The first draft of troops to east Prussia was not sent after a victory in France, but after a German defeat at Gumbinnen, and further drafts of troops are now being sent to the eastern arena of the war after German defeats at Augustowo and Warsaw. Thus it is not a ques-

EMDEN GAVE GOOD GUNNERY FOR SHORT TIME

[By Special Wire to the Courier]

LONDON, Nov. 11.—10.15 a.m.—The Central News has received a despatch from its correspondent at Melbourne, saying that the gunnery of the German cruiser Emden was good in the beginning of her fight off Cocos Island with the Australian cruiser Sydney, but deteriorated later. The German boat had two funnels shot away and caught on fire astern within an hour of the beginning of the engagement. She is now ashore and continues to burn.

A landing party from the Emden, previous to the beginning of the fight, had commandeered two months' supplies from the Cocos islanders, but the people were well treated. The Reuter Telegram Company has received a despatch from its Peeking correspondent, who says it is reported there that the Emden was driven ashore on the rocks and severely damaged, and that she has broken up.

tion in the opinion of French critics of falling upon the second enemy after having beaten the first, but rather of retiring before an enemy in a good position in an endeavor to limit the success of another enemy still in place. It is, therefore, of the first importance for the Germans to beat in Belgium and free for a time at least their line of operations in order that they may turn their attention to the Russians.

This line of argument leads to the conviction in Paris that the German endeavor in Belgium will be pursued with great determination.

POPE URGES CHARITY. Rome, Nov. 10.—Pope Benedicte has written letters to several of the archbishops and bishops in the belligerent countries exhorting them to urge upon their people the bestowal of charity upon wounded prisoners, irrespective of their nationality or religious views, "helping them all and thus making one more shine the light of Christendom." In his letter to Cardinal Lucon, archbishop of Rheims, the pope expressed deep sorrow for the disastrous consequences of the war both from a religious and artistic standpoint.

Preparations are being made at Exhibition camp to provide for 1,600 additional troops.

Disgusting Exhibition of German Vandalism is Shown Once More

[By Special Wire to the Courier]

NEW YORK, Nov. 11.—The Herald to-day says editorially: "If it is true, as cabled from Amsterdam, that Germany has threatened to prevent the American relief committee from distributing food and other supplies to suffering Belgians, the defenders of 'kultur' in this country will have more deciding to do. Germany's attitude toward relief action in Belgium is a crime against civilization. Having conquered and over-run a country with which they had neither quarrel, nor excuse for quarrel, the Germans have stripped the country of not only its valuables, but of its food supplies, and at the time neutral nations are compelled in the interests of humanity to undertake the task of saving the Belgian people from starvation, Germans continue their pillage. "Now to their vandalism they add threat of preventing the distribution of supplies to the needy. The spectacle is one that not even the greatest admirer of German progress can view with any feeling save disgust."

END OF THE EMDEN WAS ACCOMPLISHED BY GOOD GUNNERY

The Sydney Upheld Traditions of the Navy—100 Pound Projectiles Gave the Enemy Scarcely Any Chance.

[By Special Wire to the Courier]

NEW YORK, Nov. 11.—Under the caption of "The end of the Emden," The Herald's critic says:

"It was a 'colonia' that did it—the Sydney, a ship built by colonial money, manned by colonial forces and officered as far as possible by colonials, educated in the imperial service of Great Britain. Such was the ship which to date has struck the most important naval blow of the war for England. It is to this Australian colonial that every officer and man of the imperial fleet must give the credit for the wind-up of the Emden."

"From the standpoint of material the result was a logical one. The Emden was out-gunned and out-battered from the start and only criminally poor gunnery work on the part of the Sydney could ever have afforded the Emden a ghost of a chance. The real satisfaction which the British fleet can take is the knowledge that the Sydney has upheld the best traditions of that service in battery control."

"It was a case of 6-inch guns, using 100 pound projectiles, against 4.1-inch guns, firing 35 pound shells. There was one chance for the Emden, and one only, namely, to close to within effective 4.1-inch gun range. If she could reach that zone in fact she would count normally on delivering in a given time, a greater number of shots than the heavier 6-inch pieces, for it must be borne in mind that the Krupp 4.1-inch naval guns use fixed ammunition, whereas the British are employing separate ammunition in their 6-inch quick-firers."

"Five in the air at one time at maximum range can be gotten with the 4.1-inch guns. This will beat anything possible with a 6-inch and it must be forgotten that a hit is a hit, and for all practical purposes, as between lightly armored craft, a 35-pound projectile is capable of doing tremendous mischief."

"But the Emden, apparently, never got within five-inch range and it may be put down to a certainty that the three 6-inch guns in the Sydney's main battery, must have smothered the German decks from aft to forward. For one can imagine the Sydney coming up from astern, with every pound of steam she could carry, closing in steadily foot by foot on the Emden and then cutting loose with the 6-inch pivot on the top gallant forecastle deck together with the two 6-inchers employed on either side just at the break of the forecastle deck."

"That meant for a stern chase three 100 pound projectiles for each salvo and these three 6-inch guns would be reaching their mark long before the Emden could fall in with her light 4.1 inchers. It is easy to understand how the Emden, finding herself being pounded to pieces by the Sydney, did what was the only thing to do—put her helm hard over and made a run in of it on the Sydney, in a desperate effort to make her light pieces tell, and it was probably at this stage of the action that superb battery work on board the Australian ship counted, counted so far that the Emden was fairly smothered and with fire breaking out everywhere nothing remained but to head for the beach."

WHISPER OF PEACE IS HEARD FROM GERMANY FOLLOWING THE MENACE OF THE RUSSIANS

Russians Should Have Taken German Armies

[By Special Wire to the Courier]

LONDON, Nov. 11.—Telegraphing from Petrograd, the Morning Post's correspondent says:

"The Russians are by no means satisfied with their recent victories. In certain quarters the opinion is expressed that the German armies ought never to have been allowed to leave Russia."

"At the war council, where the plans were laid down, distinguished councillors argued in favor of allowing the Germans to cross the Vistula, even if Warsaw had to be abandoned, stating that not one German would succeed in returning."

"From a military point of view their contention was justified, but they were over-ruled by political arguments, and it was decided Warsaw was not to be sacrificed."

"The surprising arrival of heavy Siberian reinforcements at Warsaw in the nick of time was part of the strategic scheme, the object being to catch the Germans unawares. Germany's finest forces were there, among them royal princes, who brought gala uniforms to celebrate the capture of Warsaw at a ball to which invitations had already been issued. The Siberians had heavy artillery, outranging that of the Germans by nearly a mile, which completely routed the Germans."

King George Delivers Speech

[By Special Wire to the Courier]

LONDON, Nov. 11.—In the Speech from the Throne to-day, King George said:

"My Lords and Gentlemen: "The energies and sympathies of my subjects in every part of the Empire are concentrated on the prosecution to a victorious issue of the war in which we are engaged. I have summoned you now in order that, sharing, as I am aware you do, my conviction that this is a duty of paramount and supreme importance, you should take whatever steps are needed for its adequate discharge. "Since I last addressed you the area of the war has been enlarged by the participation in the struggle of the Ottoman Empire. In conjunction with my allies, and in spite of repeated and continuous provocations, I strove to preserve in regard to Turkey a friendly neutrality. Bad counsels and alien influence have driven her into a policy of wanton and defiant aggression, and a state of war now exists between us. My Mussulman subjects know well that our rupture with Turkey has been forced upon me against my will, and I recognize with appreciation and gratitude the proofs which they have hastened to give of their loyal devotion and support."

"My navy and army continue throughout the area of conflict to maintain in full measure their glorious traditions. We watch and follow their steadfastness and valor with thankfulness and pride, and there is throughout my empire a fixed determination to secure at whatever sacrifice the triumph of our arms and vindication of our cause."

It is Rumored Overtures Have Been Made to Petrograd.

Brilliant Victory in East Prussia Claimed by the Czar's Army.

[By Special Wire to the Courier]

LONDON, Nov. 11.—10 a.m.—Coincident with the news that every German has been swept from Russian soil comes a whisper of peace negotiations in the report from Petrograd that Berlin has approached Russia with overtures looking toward a cessation of hostilities.

Contrary to the German report that the Russians had been checked on the frontier of East Prussia, Petrograd declares that a brilliant success in that region has been succeeded by an actual invasion of German territory. An equal triumph is reported from the other end of the long Russian battle line, with Cossacks raiding within twenty miles of Cracow, the commandant of which fortress has ordered the civilian population of the city to leave. Przemysl is again said to be fully invested, and the reduction of this fortress is likely to precede any further advance by the Russian left wing.

Petrograd is not wholly satisfied with the scope of the victories reported against the Germans—for the belief prevails in military circles that the Russian strategy of the Napoleonic era had been more fully followed, even to the extent of the surrender of Warsaw, the invaders never would have remained in their own country with intact fighting organizations. Others feel that political motives quite justified the government.

Contrary to practice, infantry and not artillery has been dominant force used by the Russians along their western battle front in pushing the invaders back across the border. Showing disregard of the German batteries, superior forces of Russian infantry time after time have advanced and won positions by the use of cold steel. From Moscow comes a report that during the fighting near Aerod, on the River Vistula, the Russians captured General Von Mackenke, commander of the 11th German army corps, together with members of his staff. It is reported also that General Von Liebert, who was in command at Lodz when the Germans occupied that city, also has been captured by the Russians.

BRITISH PARLIAMENT IS OPENED TO-DAY—PURELY SESSION ON WAR MATTERS

Some Criticism it is Expected Will be Directed at Ministry.

Many Unionist Members Are Away on Active Service.

[By Special Wire to the Courier]

LONDON, Nov. 11, 9.15 a.m.—King George opened to-day what probably will prove to be a purely war session of parliament. No controversial political question will be deliberated but this does not mean that entire harmony will prevail for the cabinet ministers will be asked some pertinent and uncomfortable questions about their conduct of various phases of the war. The Labor party leaders are especially pitted with questions in regard to pay for the soldiers, allowances for their dependents and pensions, but criticism of the

MINERAL SUPPLY RUNNING SHORT FOR GERMANY

[By Special Wire to the Courier]

NEW YORK, Nov. 11.—A cable from London to The Tribune says: Besides the shortage of anaesthetics, already reported, there is considerable lack of lead in Germany, according to Dr. E. K. Johnstone of San Francisco, an officer in the United States medical reserve corps, who has just returned from a long stay in Belgium. Incidentally, Dr. Johnstone pays a high tribute to the German Red Cross, which he was afforded opportunities of studying comprehensively. "There is no doubt that supplies of lead are running low in Germany owing to the stoppage of the mines in Galicia and Silesia," said Dr. Johnstone. "A few days before I left Berlin a secret order was issued calling upon the music stores to turn over to the government all lead in

INDIAN TROOPS HAVE DONE WELL BUT FIGHT UNDER HARD CONDITIONS

GERMAN SOLDIERS ARE SCARCE NOW IN BRUSSELS CITY

[By Special Wire to the Courier]

LONDON, Nov. 11.—A despatch from Brussels to The Times, says:

"There are hardly any German soldiers left in Brussels. All except the necessary garrison have left for the front. "Refugees from the coast describe the work of the British warships as terribly accurate. A wounded German officer declares that only eighty-four men of his regiment of 1,000 are alive after the fighting on the coast. "Despite the praise-worthy efforts of food committees, the people here have the greatest difficulty in obtaining bread and flour. The entire population of Brussels is on rations. The bakers distribute the wares very sparingly as the law allows them to charge not more than six cents a loaf. Potatoes and meat, however, are plentiful."

Germans Use Every Wile in Hope of Annihilating the Gurkhas.

Nevertheless Native Forces Have Fulfilled Expectation.

[By Special Wire to the Courier]

LONDON, Nov. 11.—The Indian forces in France have made good, but have achieved none of the stirring and extraordinary exploits attributed to them, according to a statement issued by the Official Press Bureau last night, under date of Nov. 10, written by "an observer with the Indian corps." Above all the account emphasizes the difficulties under which the Indians are fighting by reason of their ignorance of the French, German and English languages. Repeatedly they have been subject to tricks on the part of the Germans.

"The Germans are full of resources," says the account, "and it

A pleasing duet was rendered by the Misses A. and H. Huffman. Miss Leila James proved her self to be an artistic pianiste. Others taking part in the program were Miss Margaret English and Miss Doughty. The hostess served dainty refreshments. The attendance was splendid and the organization is doing a good work.

MAKING WAGONS FOR ARMIES.
Mr. Findley pointed out that since the war started the Massey-Harris Company have never had less than 1,500 men employed in their factories, including Toronto, Brantford and Woodstock, turning out army transport wagons for the Dominion Government, and the British military authorities. Some 2000 wagons were built for the British War Office, and the last delivery goes forward to Montreal to-day. Employees from Toronto and Brantford were despatched to Woodstock to work on the assignments, and accordingly the unemployment in the Massey-Harris works was not as great as was generally inferred.

A Popular Wagon.
Mr. Findley added that the order from the British War Office was obtained upon the strength and superiority of the wagons supplied the first Canadian contingent. They are specially reinforced and equipped with every possible requirement, being pronounced by the British War Office as being beyond question the strongest and most serviceable wagons ever made for military transport purposes. The probability is that more will be required, not only by the British troops but by the armies of the allies.

WAS STABBED IN A HOTEL
IN WAR DISPUTE

Local Armenians and Hungarians Have a Fight Last Night.

Kircud Gargosian was stabbed in the back by John Nemeth, a Hungarian, at the Benwell Hotel last night. He attempted to act as peacemaker between two quarrelling parties and a thrust in the left shoulder was his reward. The wound although deep, is not serious and Gargosian was to-day able to resume his duties, although his left arm is in a cast for a day or two practically useless.

About nine-thirty last night an argument over the war took place in the bar of the Benwell Hotel between two Armenians and two Hungarians, each party defending the tactics of an opponent. This developed, with racial feeling, into a fray and things were looking very rough when Gargosian, with a cry, rushed into the midst of the combatants and called upon them to desist.

No heed was taken and again he called for a stoppage of the scene. No notice was taken, but a knife flashed and Gargosian staggered away with a deep wound in his shoulders from which blood gushed forth. The police were called and they quickly arrested the five combatants and took Gargosian to the station.

The Hungarians taken in were John Nemeth, 24, said to have committed the offence of stabbing, Joe Kovacs and Louis Veda, 22, all residing at 6 Ann street. The Armenians taken were Set Kalagarian and Gargosian. They freely admitted the scrap and gave the cause, explaining that they were excited with liquor. Meanwhile the injured man was rendered first aid and the blood ceased to flow. The police surgeon arrived and gave his opinion that the wound was not dangerous and would heal up with rest. It was a deep incision about three quarters of an inch below about middle of the breast, and fortunately no veins or arteries had been severed. Two stitches were put in the wound on the spot and Gargosian made his way home to Wilkin Street.

The Hungarians concerned in this affray are new arrivals from Buffalo and have not been in the city more than three days. They were allowed out on bail to appear this morning, one in a surety of $200 and the others in sureties of $50.

GERMAN SPY WAS SHOT IN LONDON

LONDON, Nov. 10.—It is officially announced that Carl Hans Lody, alias Charles A. Inglis, who was found guilty by a court martial on charges of espionage, Nov. 2, has been shot as a spy.

Lody, when arrested, claimed to be an American, but later confessed that he was a German. He had lived in New York and Omaha. In the latter city he married the daughter of Gottlieb Storz, a brewer, who later divorced him.

Lody met his death in the Tower of London after having been found guilty by a court martial on charges of having communicated with the enemy. The statement concerning the execution is brief, saying, "Sentence was duly confirmed."

It is understood that Lody died quietly, refusing to the last to reveal the name of the superior officer from whom he received his instructions to spy on the British navy.

This was the first execution in the Tower of London for a century and a half. The scene of the execution was the tower barracks, not far from the spot where Anne Boleyn and other persons famous in English history were put to death.

Lody was about 28 years of age.

Carl Hans Lody, the first man to be shot as a spy in generations in Britain, once was employed as a guide by a touring agency in New York, and also worked for the Union Pacific Railway in Omaha. He was arrested late in September in London, charged with espionage, and at his trial testified that he was a former lieutenant in the German navy, but that he had been transferred to the reserves.

In his capacity as a reserve officer, Lody said he was ordered to proceed to Britain to keep track of the movements of the British fleet, but was warned not to do any spying. He was told to travel as an American citizen, "and in consequence of that I received an American passport." He claimed membership in several New York societies. Last year Lody served on board Emperor William's racing yacht Meteor.

The prosecutor in summing up, said Lody had admitted being an alien enemy posing as a civilian—at times an American—meanwhile communicating important information to Germany. He described the international law against spies as being imposed. Counsel for the defence admitted that Lody was a German lieutenant, and said he had taken the risks because he thought it was his highest duty to do so. He asked for a sentence less than that of death, but said if the full penalty were exacted Lody would face it like a man.

"I suffered for about 15 years with my kidneys. I could get nothing to help me. The pain went all through my back and shoulders and down the side of my legs. When I would sit down for a while, I could not straighten up again and I would walk a rod or more, the pain was so great. After taking Gin Pills, I was cured. ## AGONY COLUMN OF LONDON TIMES

LONDON, Nov. 10.—Wars may come and battles may surge but that hardy perennial, the "Agony Column" of the London Times, remains undisturbed.

The whole column at present is liberally plastered with war spirit, and patriotism serves as an excuse for the most barefaced mendacity. One individual advertises:

Cycle Wanted, immediately, for war service. Advertiser cannot afford to wait. Will kindly-disposed patriot supply same?

An ex-army sergeant, with superabundant confidence in his ability to keep out of harm's way, asks:

Will some one lend ex-army sergeant £20 to enable him to rejoin? Otherwise cannot go. Repay £2 monthly on return.

And two 'patriotic' young men want the 'free use of gymnasium in order to continue with my studies' as an excuse. Would Borrow a Cottage?

Quite as naive is the lady, a refugee from Germany and temporarily without means, who "would be most grateful for the loan of a small country cottage" while she entirely disregards the fact that her husband's house is being sold to a needy wounded officer and family.

In contrast to the foregoing is the young widow who admits her comfortable means, and offers to give a home to a gentleman's child of about two years, preferably a motherless boy, the son of a naval or military officer, with a view to adoption. She makes no mention of any design of adopting the father, but she gives no guarantee to the contrary. Equally pleasant is the offer of the free use of a furnished country house during convalescence, with all expenses, to a needy wounded officer and family.

The crop of inventions is unusually large, the "British ship model" badging. These airplanes one must believe are even better than the Zeppelin; their plans have been approved by the Admiralty, and they need but capital to make them money-makers. There are also legion enterprises whose purpose would be to make army supplies or to capture German trade, and these enterprises promise anywhere from 25 to 100 per cent profit.

He Knows German

Someone whose finger evidently is not on the pulse of the British public advertises lessons in German, and another misguided individual offers himself as a foreign correspondent, giving as a qualification for the fact that he knows German.

And in the midst of the turmoil and terror of war when the crucial battle of the Marne was still enshrouded in the most awful doubt, Miss Alice Hall, of Hanover Square, proclaimed her faith in the stability and ultimate triumph of Great Britain by advertising lessons in the vals, Boston, one-step, tango and Maxixe, with the announcement pending in small caps of "Court Presentation Lessons."

Prof. Lloyd of the University of Toronto declared in a lecture that the war would be settled by physical force rather than by economic conditions.

LONDON, Nov. 11.—An Amsterdam despatch to Reuters' Telegraph Company, says "Dutchmen returning from Antwerp report that the distress there is very great, and that the depots of the American commission for the relief of the Belgians are besieged from 8 o'clock in the morning by multitude of starving Belgians. A fire occurred Monday in the railway at Antwerp, destroying 40 wagons with provisions and fodder."

HOW GUNS ARE FIRST TESTED FOR WARFARE

All Rifles and Guns Go Through Hands of Experts Only.

LONDON, Nov. 11.—There is no weapon in use by our forces to-day which has to stand so terrible a strain as the quick firing guns.

This strain is of the nature of the weight about eighteen and a half pounds. It has a range of over four miles, and the shell, on leaving the muzzle, travels more than three hundred yards in the first seconds.

In all great gun factories there is a special department where this testing is carried out. First of all the barrel, from the muzzle, is accurately gauged with the most delicate instruments.

Inside the Barrel

Next, a gutta-percha impression is taken of the inside of the barrel. This is kept in a special box, and the barrel is then filled with full particulars and description of the gun to which it belongs.

If all appears correct the gun is sent to the proving ground.

Here the testing is more severe, the charges used being considerably heavier than those employed in actual warfare. It speaks well for modern workmanship that very few cannon show any signs of damage from this treatment.

Guns that have withstood the test are then returned to the works, where the gauging process is gone through all over again. Inside and out, the whole barrel is carefully measured to see if there is any enlargement due to the heavy charge.

If the expert pronounces that the gun is satisfactory, off it goes to the grinding shop, where the bore is lapped out with lead blocks in order to give a perfect polish and finish.

The final process is the breeching, which consists in treating the whole of the outside of the weapon four or five times over with a certain acid. This enables the weapon to resist weather in a remarkable fashion.

Our field artillery is the finest in the world, not even excepting the German. It is also fairly modern. It was only ten years ago that we possessed our old-fashioned brass cannons of £600 apiece. At the Okehampton range on Dartmoor one of these guns established a record by firing twenty-nine rounds in a minute.

From Solid Steel

As in a cannon, so in a rifle, the bore is the all-important part. While cannons are built up, the barrel of a rifle is made by boring out a solid rod of steel. The rods are fixed in a lathe, and bored out by drills which enter at opposite ends and almost meet in the centre.

The first testing of the bored-out barrel is most rigorous. The breech end is sealed and made airtight. Then at the muzzle end is inserted a gauge which exactly corresponds to the correct bore.

If the diameter be absolutely true the air compressed in the barrel will support the weight of the gauge. If there is anything wrong the gauge drops.

After passing this test satisfactorily the barrel goes to a man termed a 'viewer', who places it on a stand so arranged that light from a mirror is reflected down the barrel. The viewer notes whether any of the rings of light reflected on the polished inner surface are irregular.

Passing the Viewer

If they are, he marks the barrel accordingly, and sends it along to another man who makes the required alterations. His tools are so delicate that he can work to within the thousandth part of an inch.

Watch one of these men at work, and what strikes you most forcibly is not so much that he is able to do a discipline, however, which will in the long run make them better soldiers, better civilians and better men.

REBELS AGAIN DEFEATED.

LONDON, Nov. 10.—A despatch to Reuters' Telegraph Company from Pretoria says it is officially announced that on November 8th, Lieut-Col. Van der Merwe met the rebels at Zandfontein, 54 miles north of Pretoria, killing or wounding 120 and capturing 25. The Union losses were 12 men killed and 11 wounded.

DISTRESS AT ANTWERP

LONDON, Nov. 11.—An Amsterdam despatch to Reuters' Telegraph Company, says "Dutchmen returning from Antwerp report that the distress there is very great, and that the depots of the American commission for the relief of the Belgians are besieged from 8 o'clock in the morning by multitude of starving Belgians. A fire occurred Monday in the railway at Antwerp, destroying 40 wagons with provisions and fodder."

Smiles for Recruits

To the Editor

Sir—I have but lately returned to town, and meeting a body of Lord Kitchener's recruits, I gladly raised my hand and remained at the salute, as they passed. Some smiled, some looked a bit astonished, but I think all were pleased.

It is a small thing but it means a lot to these fine fellows who have given up everything to serve their country to see that we appreciate all they are doing for us. I feel sure a word or two from you would do much to make "the man in the street" touch or take off his hat to them, and an encouraging wave from a woman's handkerchief would go a long way. Let us realize that it is no light business these men are in for but a good hard grueling from first to last—a discipline, however, which will in the long run make them better soldiers, better civilians and better men.

Like Jessie Pope:

Oh, I want to cheer and I want to cry
... Whither then my Boys go marching by
... COMMANDER, R.N. (Ret.)

In Luck's Way

Lord Stanley, the 19 year old heir of Lord Derby, has been the hero of an exploit which resulted in the capture of three German officers and 106 men.

He was attached to General French's staff, and one day was put in charge of the led horses.

He was in luck's way for the and his little force came into a German contingent, 100 strong. Upon them he gave the order to charge, whereupon the three German officers and 106 men surrendered.

The news of the incident came through in Gen. French's despatch last Friday morning, but the name was not mentioned. From an officer who has just returned from the front we learned that the person was Lord Stanley.

One Continued Fight

Bombardier T. Saunders of the R.H.A. in a letter to his father, who resides at Park road, Hford, says: "We are under fire night and day. No doubt we are getting the best of it, but we are shelled out and are shelling continuously. Chaps who were in South Africa say that this is nothing but a slaughter compared with that. It is one continued fight. We have lost quite a lot of horses, but have been fortunate with men."

We captured 3,000 Germans this week. They are like bees. They roll up in thousands and their dead lie about in hundreds. As we advance our columns bury their dead and our men take their wounded. They are dirty devils. They looted everything, burn all villages they pass and kill innocent peasants like dogs.

SIDEGLIGHTS ON DRAIF OF WAR

An Awful Gallop.

Sergeant T. Tims, 4th. Dragoon Guards, who was sergeant-instructor at St. Oswald's College, Ellesmere, Salop, until the war broke out, in a letter from the front says: "I am still alive, but how I got through has been little short of miraculous. We have been in a great many engagements, and a couple of particularly heavy ones. In our second one our cavalry brigade suffered severely. We charged in front of the German heavy guns, and thousands of their infantry kept up a terrific fire on us the whole time. Talk about hell! It can be nothing in comparison. The bullets and bursting shells were like rain, and men fell in dozens on all sides. My squadron went into action 180 strong. After our gallop across that awful valley we numbered seventy horses and six men. Great credit is due to the men of the troops by Major-General Sir Charles Ferguson, who thanked me personally. We were told that the charge was practically a sacrifice to find out the strength and dispositions of the enemy; but at what a cost! Everyone who went through could thank God for surviving such an ordeal. Our infantry here also suffered badly. We are now with the French cavalry on a sweeping movement, and hope to crush the Germans."

A Gallant Mother

Mrs. X, of Ascot, the mother of a distinguished officer, Major X., has just made a thrilling journey to find her son.

Major X. was at a home station when he received orders to proceed with a hundred men to another home station. In an hour the company had orders to proceed, and they were bound for Southampton and later that they were to ship for France. Major X. had no opportunity of packing his luggage and could not communicate with his family until he reached Havre. From the base he telegraphed for clothes, especially a waterproof coat. Having had her letters returned from the war office with the written intimation that the major's address was unknown, Mrs. X. left for London at half-past seven in the morning. She visited the war office but gained no information. She bought the clothes her son wanted, called on a sister, and by half-past eleven was in the train for Southampton. The sister, who tried to dissuade her, went with her to Waterloo station and then to Southampton. On the ship's gangway she wrote a telegram telling her friends that they were both going to France.

At the base the women saw the commanding officer, and then heard by telephone from the camp that Major X. had left a few minutes before for the front. Mrs. X. hurried to the railway station as a last hope and saw her son walking with other officers across the line to the platform. Mother and son had a few precious moments together before one returned to the boat and the other went to the front.

TOMMY MAKES GOOD PRISONER SAYS OBSERV

The daily life of the British prisoners at work in the concentration camp at Dohertz, the large drill ground of Prussian troops two miles from Berlin, is described in a recent issue of the Vossische Zeitung. The German newspaper, showing ill-feeling whatsoever toward Prussian guards and works well. "He cultivates the land in the neighborhood, under Prussian supervision. He repairs the roads, works the fields, pulls up weeds in the stables laid out as gardens, and in the ground where necessary. It is prisoners work, but not slave's work that he does, and everything is done quietly and good-naturedly. "One hears no bad or angry words, no notices, no unkind remarks. Often enough, the German Landwehr man supervising the party shows how things must be done by taking the tools into his own hands. Tommy is quite willing to learn, and even takes pains with his work. Many of the men come from the coast and love the soil.

"Each gang is in charge of its own non-commissioned officers and is superintended by a man of Prussian Landwehr. Only the non-commissioned officers, who, according to military prescription, cannot be required to stand about smoking cigarettes. Communication between English and the Germans is carried on by signs, for not one of the Englishmen at Dohertz either speaks or understands a word of German. The Vossische Zeitung states that the British prisoners did not get well with the French and Russian prisoners at Dohertz, and that there was also a distinctly hostile attitude between the English and Scottish men on the one hand and the French on the other. The Superintendent says, were obliged to separate the two regiments so that the Irish men work alone.

TOMMY MAKES GOOD PRISONER SAYS OBSERVER

The daily life of the British war prisoners at work in the concentration camp at Dobertiz, the large open drill ground of Prussian troops twenty miles from Berlin, is described in a recent issue of the Vossische Zeitung received here. "Tommy," according to the German newspaper, shows no ill-feeling whatsoever toward his Prussian guards, and works well.

"He cultivates the land in the neighborhood under Prussian direction. He repairs the roads works in the fields, pulls up weeds in the streets laid out as gardens, and levels the ground where necessary. It is prisoners work, but not slave's work, that he does, and everything is done quietly and good-naturedly.

"One hears no bad or angry word, no summons to be more diligent, and one notices no unfriendly glances. Often enough the German Landwehr-mann superintending the party shows how things must be done by taking the tools into his own hands; and Tommy is quite willing to learn. He even takes pains with his work. Many of the men come from the country and love the soil.

"Each gang is in charge of one of its own non-commissioned officers, and is superintended by a man of the Prussian Landwehr. Only the rank and file work; the non-commissioned officers, who, according to military prescriptions, cannot be required to work, stand about smoking cigars.

The Vossische Zeitung states that the British prisoners did not get on well with the French and Russian prisoners at Dobertiz, and that there was also a distinctly hostile attitude between the English and Scotch prisoners on the one hand and the Irish on the other. The Superintendents, it says, were obliged to separate the men into regiments so that the Irish might work alone.

"Pape's Diapepsin" is the Quickest and Surest Stomach Relief.

Ask your pharmacist to show you the formula, plainly printed on these fifty-cent cases of Pape's Diapepsin, then you will understand why dyspeptic troubles of all kinds must go, and why it relieves, sour, out-of-order stomachs, or indigestion in five minutes. "Pape's Diapepsin" is harmless; tastes like candy, though each dose will digest and prepare for assimilation into the blood all the food you eat; besides, it makes you go to the toilet with a healthy appetite; but what will please you most, is that you will feel that your stomach and intestines are clean and fresh, and you will not need to resort to laxatives or liver pills for biliousness or constipation.

This city will have many "Pape's Diapepsin" cranks, as some people will call them, but you will be enthusiastic about this splendid stomach preparation, too, if you ever take it for indigestion, gases, heartburn, sourness, dyspepsia or any stomach misery.

Get some now, this minute, and rid yourself of stomach misery and indigestion in five minutes.

Sir Nigel

By A. Conan Doyle Copyright, 1905, 1906, by A. Conan Doyle.

They had passed over the moors and through the village of Milford and the little township of Godalming, until their path turned southward over the Pease marsh and crossed the meadows of Shalford. There on the dark hillside glowed the red points of light which marked the windows of the house which they sought. A sallow-robed avenue of oak-trees led up to it, and then they were in the moon-silvered clearing in front.

From the shadow of the arched door they sprang two rough serving-men, bearded and gruff, great goggles in their hands, to ask them who they were and what their errand. The Lady Mary had slipped from her horse and was advancing to inquire, but they rudely barred her way.

"Nay, nay, our master needs no more!" cried one, with a hoarse laugh. "Stand back, mistress, whoever you be! The house is full, and our lord sees no guests to-night."

"Fellow," said Nigel, speaking low and clear, "stand back from us! Our errand is with your master." "Behold you are a priest," cried the old priest, "would it not be best perchance, that I go in to him and see whether the voice of the Church may not soften this hard heart? I fear bloodshed."

"Nay, father, I pray you to stand here for the nonce," said Nigel. "And you, Mary, do you bide with the good priest, for we know not what may be within."

Again he turned to the door, and again the two men barred his passage. "Stand back, I say, back for your lives!" By Saint Paul! I should think it shame to soil my sword with such as you, but my path is set, and no man shall bar my path this night."

The men shrank from the deadly menace of that gentle voice. "Hold!" said one of them, peering through the darkness, "is it not Squire Loring of Tilbury that you seek?" "That is indeed my name."

"Had you spoken it I for one would not have stopped your way. Put down your staff, Wat, for this is no stranger, but the squire of Tilbury."

"As well for him," grumbled the other, lowering his cudgel with an inward prayer of thanksgiving. "Had it been otherwise I should have had blood upon my sword to-night. But our master said nothing of neighbors when he ordered us to hold the door. I will enter and ask him what is his will."

But already Nigel was past them and had pushed open the outer door. Swift as he was, the Lady Mary was at his very heels, and the two passed together into the hall beyond.

It was a large and curtained with black shadows, with one vivid circle of light in the centre, where two oil lamps shone upon a small table. At the table, but only two were seated at it, and there were no servants in the room. At the near end was Edith, her golden hair loose and streaming down over the scarlet and black of her riding-dress.

At the farther end the light bent strongly upon the harsh face and the high-drawn misshapen shoulders of the lord of the house. A tangle of black hair surmounted a high rounded forehead, the forehead of a thinker, with two deep-set cold gray eyes twinkling sharply from under tufted brows. His nose was hooked, and his lips like the beak of some cruel bird, but below the whole of his clean-shaven powerful face was marked by the loose slapping mouth and the round folds of the heavy chin.

In one hand and a half-gnawed bone in the other, he looked fiercely up, like some beast disturbed in his den, as the two intruders broke in upon his hour.

Nigel stopped midway between the door and the table. His eyes and those of Paul de la Fosse were riveted upon each other. But Mary, with her woman's pity, had rushed forward and cast her arms round her younger sister. Edith had sprung up from her chair, and with averted face tried to push the sister away from her.

"Edith, Edith! By the Virgin, I implore you to come back with us, and to leave this wicked man!" cried Mary. "Dear sister, you would not break your father's heart, nor bring his gray hair in dishonor to the grave! Come back! Edith, come back and all is well."

But Edith pushed her away, and her fair cheeks were flushed with anger. "What right have you over me, Mary, you who are but two years older, that you should follow me over the country-side as though I were a runaway villain and you my mistress? Do you yourself go back, and leave me to do that which seems best in my own eyes."

"But Mary still held her in her arms, and still strove to soften the hard and angry heart. Our mother is dead, Edith. I thank God that she died ere she fell upon her. His But I stand for her, as I have done all my life, since I am indeed your elder. It is with her voice that I beg and pray you that you open to him this man further, and that you will come back ere it be too late!"

Edith writhed from her grasp, and stood flushed and defiant, with gleaming, angry eyes fixed upon her sister. "You may speak evil of him now," said she, "but there was a time when Paul de la Fosse came to Cosford, and who so gentle and so sweet to him then as wise, grave, sister Mary? But he has learned to love another; so now he is the wicked man, and it is shame to be seen under his roof! From what I see of my good pious sister and her cavalier it is sin for another to ride at night with a man at your side, but it comes easy enough to you. Look at your own eyes, good sister, ere you would take the

BRITISH WARSHIPS THROUGH PANAMA

PANAMA, Nov. 9.—Panama Canal officials and members of the legation here say they have no information concerning the report that seven British dreadnoughts were in the Atlantic bound west, possibly with the intention of proceeding through the Panama Canal to Pacific waters.

Col. George W. Goethals, governor of the Panama Canal zone, says he has heard nothing from Washington relative to the use of the canal by warships.

The whereabouts of the German warships in the Pacific is unknown here.

Even Cross, Sick Children Love Syrup of Figs

If Feverish, Bilious, Constipated Give Fruit Laxative at Once.

Don't scold your fretful, peevish child. See if a tinge is coated; this is a sure sign his little stomach, liver and bowels are clogged with sour waste.

When listless, pale, feverish, full of cold, breath bad, throat sore, doesn't eat, sleep or act naturally, has stomach-ache, indigestion, diarrhoea, give a teaspoonful of "California Syrup of Figs," and in a few hours all the foul waste, the sour bile and fermenting food passes out of the bowels, and you have a well and playful child again.

Children love this harmless "fruit laxative," and mothers can rest easy after giving it, because it never fails to make their little "insides" clean and sweet.

Keep it handy, mother! A little given to-day saves a sick child to-morrow, but get the genuine, not your drugstore's cheap imitation. "California Syrup of Figs," which has direction for babies, children of all ages and for grown-ups plainly on the bottle. Remember there are counterfeits sold here, so surely look and see that yours is made by the "California Fig Syrup Company." Hand back with contempt any other fig syrup.

SUMMARY OF ALL THE WAR NEWS

The German war machine has battered its way into the Belgian town of Dixmude. To-day's official French statement contains the admission that the allies were obliged to fall back, from this point of vantage in the great battle for possession of the east shore of the British channel. As an offset the French war office states that the allied forces have advanced along the North Sea coast, pushing back the Germans and taking Lombaertzyde, a small Belgian town a few miles northeast of Nieuport.

The warring nations awaited with keen suspense the outcome of the struggle in Belgium which for the moment overshadows the conflicts on the many other fields of battle. From no other point came reports of important changes in the situation.

The capture of Dixmude was the first indication that the new attack of the Germans, in which their supreme effort and as probably marking a turning point in the war, had brought definite results. Between Dixmude and Ypres, which were described as close to the French border, the fighting has been most intense, since the Germans elected at the opening of the week to begin the new onslaught with the help of their reinforcements of fresh troops and new artillery. On Oc- tober 15, during the advance on Ostend, the Germans occupied Dixmude, but later were com- pelled to fall back. The allies gained possession of the town temporarily, but their presence there was challenged repeatedly by the Germans, resulting in some of the most important and sang- uinary fighting of the war. Where the German victory will have an important influence on the outcome is not as yet disclosed.

Along the remainder of the battle line, says the French War Office, there is no change, except for slight progress by the allies at a few points. The Berlin view of the situation, however, is opti- mistic. Comment is made there of the expression "good advances" in the latest official German reports concerning the fighting in the west, being the first occasion on which such terms have been employed in this con- nection.

Paris is hopeful of the outcome in Belgium. Military critics there take the view that the Germans are faced with the imperative necessity of defeating the allies in order that they may turn their attention to the men-acing armies of Russia. The German Crown Prince is reported to have been placed in supreme command of the German and Austrian forces in the east.

Convention is In Full Swing

The public opening of the annual convention of the Women's Baptist Home and Foreign Missionary Societies took place this morning at nine o'clock in the First Baptist Church, when the President, John First- brook, occupied the chair.

The session was largely attended, the ladies turning out in a splendidly representative manner. At the opening took place with a hymn after which followed a scripture reading by Mrs. A. S. Rogers of Aylmer. Prayer, led by Mrs. Grace Foster, then intervened. The reports sub- mitted their annual reports, and they were found to be highly satisfactory, and met with unanimous approval.

An enthusiastic welcome was given by Mrs. G. Matthews, secretary, to all visitors, she especially laid stress on the hospitality they would find in the Telephone City. A reply was given every wit as warm as the welcome.

The records of the past year show that the Baptist ladies have succeeded surprisingly well in their aims for the last 12 months. Mrs. Wilson's Fen- ton records were excellent. Financially everything is well, and the convention was monetarily sound. Mrs. Glen Campbell's work as treasurer was very highly commended.

The corresponding secretary, Mrs. H. H. Lloyd, showed a good year's work of progress in every direction. Mrs. P. Sage gave a welcome turn of variety to the morning session when she rendered an exquisite solo. "Finance in its relation to the Baptist society" was dealt with by Mrs. G. H. Craig in an address contain- ing much thought and the out- come of much labor. It was greatly appreciated. After prayer by Mrs. H. H. Bingham of London, an adjourn- ment was made for lunch, many of the ladies being catered to in the basement of the church, while others were attended to by Mr. Crum- back.

HOW FORTRESS FELL TO ALLIES IN FAR EAST

(By Special Wire to the Courier) NEW YORK, Nov. 11.-The East and West News Bureau to- day made public the following cablegram which was received from Tokyo:

"Permitted to capitulate, instead of surrendering unconditionally, the former governor of Tsingtau and his officers were in compli- ance with the gracious wish of the Japanese Emperor, allowed to wear their swords and maintain soldier's honor, Governor Meyer Von Waldeck said:

"Four or five days prior to the surrender of the fortress the wireless station was destroyed making it impossible any longer to com- municate with Peking. The suc- cessful storming of Bismarck fort by the attacking soldiers, who recklessly hurled themselves at us by making human bullets of their bodies, sealed the fate of Tsing- tau. It then became evident that the garrison could no longer hold itself against the shelling of heavy artillery. To have done so would have swelled the list of casualties and nothing would have been gained. That forced me to raise the white flag."

The German charge d'affaires at Peking says that Tsingtau fell two weeks sooner than was expected.

The governor with 2,300 officers and men will be transported to Japan as prisoners on Novem- ber 13."

A NEW MOVEMENT

Home Guard is Latest Proposi- tion Being Advanced in Brantford.

A movement is on foot to form a home guard in Brantford, composed of prominent citizens who will buy their own rifles. The Rifle Club, which has already been successfully launched and is drilling every Thursday night, has so far been unable to secure any Ross service rifles from the Gov- ernment. In the meantime, however, it is hoped in the course of the next week or so to install Morris tubes at the Collegiate for practice. It is stated that these miniature ranges will give the Rifle Club all the practice needed until next spring, when the ranges can be used.
