POETRY.

Away.

I cannot say, and I will not say That he is dead. He is just away!

With a cherry smile, and a wave of the hand,
He has wandered into an unknown land.

And left us dreaming how very fair
It needs must be, since he lingers there.

And you—O you, who the wildest years
For the old-time step and the glad return—

Thinking of him faring on, as dear
In the love of There as the love of Here.

Think of him still as the same, I say,
He is not dead—he is just away.

SELECT STORY.

When a Man's Single.

BY JAMES M. BARRIE.

CHAPTER XXIX.—Continued.

"The laddy had smoothed the thing over his father," said Tammas, who was notorious for his knowledge of women; "ay, an' there was a brither, ye mind? An' o' the servants up at the lodge said to Kitty Wobster 'at they were to be marit the same day, so I've nae doot they were.'"

"Ay," said Sam'l, pricking up his ears, "an' who was the brither gettin'?"

"Well, it was just gossip, ye understan'. But I heard tell 'at the laddy had a tremendous tocher, an' 'at she was called Meredith."

"Meredith!" exclaimed Silva Mc-Quaherty, "what queer names some of the Engleish folk has; ay, I prefer the ord'nar' names myself."

"I wonder," said Sneezy, looking curiously at the others, "what Rob has in the wy o' wages?"

"That's been discuss't in every house in Thrums," said Sam'l, "but there's nae doot it's high, for it's a salary; ay, it's no' wages."

"I dinna ken what Rob has," Silva said, "but some of these writers makes awfu' sum. There's the yedior o' the 'Tilliedrum Weekly Herald,' noo, I canna tell his income, b'it I have it free Dito Deuchars, who ken, 'at he pays twa-an'-twenty pound o' rent for his house."

"Ye saw the laddy, Tammas?"

"Ay, man, I did mair than that.
She spoke to me, an' spair'd a lot about the wy Rob took on when little Davy was fund dead. He was fond o' his lawk, Rob, mighty fond."

"What was your opinion o' her then, Tammas?"

"Weel, Silva, to tell the truth, I was onecommon favorably impress'd. She shook hands wi' me, man, an' she had sic a soft voice an' sic a bonny face I was a kind o' carried awa'; yes, I was so."

"Ay, ye say that, Tammas. Weel, I think I'll be mairin'. They'll be keen to hear about this in the square."

"I said to her," continued Tammas, "peerin' through his half closed eyes at Silva, "at Rob was a lucky critter to get sic a bonny wife."

"Ye did!" cried Silva. "An' he did she tak' that?"

"Oo," said Tammas, complacently
"she took it weel."

"I wonder," said Silva, now a dozen yards away, "at Rob never sent ony o' the papers he writes to Thrums just to lat's see them."

"He sent a heap," said Tammas,
"to the minister, meanin' them to be passed round, but Mr Dishart didna just think they were quite the thing, ye un'erstan', so he keeps them lockit up in a press."

"They say in the toon," said Silva,
"at Rob would never hae got on sae weel if Mr Dishart hadna help't him.
Do ye think there's onything in that?"

Tammas was sunk in reverie, and Silva at last departed. He was out of sight by the time the stone-breaker came to.

"I spoke to the minister about it," Tammas answered, under the impression that Silva was still there, "an' spair'd at him if he had sent a line about Rob to the London yedior, but he wudna say."

Tammas moved his head round and saw that he was alone.

"No," he continued, thoughtfully, addressing the tombstones, "he would neither say 'at he did nor 'at he didna.
He just waded his han' like, to lat's see 'at he was at the bottom o' it, but he didna want it to be spoken o'. Ay, ay."

Tammas hobbled thoughtfully down one of the steep burying-ground walks, until he came to a piece of award with no tombstone at its head.

"Ay," he said, "there's mony an Angus lies buried there, an' Rob's the only one left noo. I hae help't to hap the earth o'er five, ay, sax o' them.
It's no' to be expectit, no, if the course o' nature 'it's no' to be expectit, 'at I should last o' the seven; no, ye wadna see in o' speerits as I'll warrant ye are the noo, that day ye buried Davy.
Loch, loch, it's a queer world."

"It's a pretty spot to be buried in," he muttered, after a time; and then his eyes wandered to another part of the burying-ground.

"Ay," he said, with a chuckle, "but I've a sad bit conary up there for myself. Oo ay."

THE END.

How Rain is Produced.

Did it ever occur to the reader that there is just as much water in the air above him on a clear, bright day as on a cloudy or rainy one? Rain does not come from somewhere else, or it is wasted over you by the wind from elsewhere, the water that was over you is simply wasted on to some other place.
What is said above explains this.

Water is absorbed in the air above us at a certain temperature, and it becomes insensible. Cool the air by a wind draft of cooler atmosphere, or by electrical or chemical influences, and the moment the air becom's cooler it gives us some of the watery particles that were insensible or invisible to the higher temperature. These small particles thus given out unite, and when enough of them collect, obstruct the light and show as clouds. When enough of these unite to be too heavy to float in the air, they begin to descend; pair after pair of them come together until a rain drop is formed.
One of these minute rain drops is made up of millions of infinitely small watery particles.

Air passing over the cold tops of mountains is cooled down so that it gives up a good deal of the concealed watery vapor, and hence little rain falls in the region along the ice side of the mountains. This is why so little rain falls in Colorado and in other places north and south of that State. The prevailing winds blow from the west, and the cool tops of the Rocky Mountains lower their temperature, and thus take out the moisture that would otherwise fall in rain.

A Smooth Skin.

To begin with, women do not, as a rule, take enough regular exercise.
They take exercise, to be sure, but it is spasmodic. They bicycle 16 miles one day and take a long walk on the next, and then perhaps for a week they hardly go out of doors at all, except to rush about to shop or to call. They should make a regular rule of going out each day and either walking or cycling at regular hours. When all kinds of outdoor exercise is out of the question indoor exercise should take its place.

Hot rooms and too much gas or fire heat are apt to dry the skin and rob the cheeks of their roses. The hour for getting up must not be too late, or the heat of the bed will have the same fatal effect. If possible, you should get out in the fresh air before breakfast.

As to your meal, they should always be regular, and you must banish from your menu all rich, indigestible foods—cake, pastry and highly seasoned dishes are bad, while too much sugar and sweet things are to be deplored. As to your tea, it must be drunk when just drawn—not allowed to stand till it is black and bitter.
Don't first eat hot food and then drink cold water, as this is very bad for not only the complexion, but the digestion.

Indeed, digestion so acts on the complexion as to completely ruin it after a time.

As to the skin itself, every one, it appears, needs a different treatment.
Some skins are best washed with hot and then cold water, some with tepid or cold only. Some people cannot stand soap to the face, as it brings out roughness and rash. Other people ravel in soap, and it does them good, but these are certainly the exception rather than the rule. If your skin is greasy, use no ointment on it, or it only becomes worse. A slice of fresh ly out lemon may be used with advantage for such a skin. Let it dry on and then wash it off with tepid water first and then cold and tap the skin gently with the tips of the fingers.

For a dry skin you can rub in vasoline or oil of cocon, or the following ointment, which you can make at home: Fresh cucumber juice, one ounce, and fresh milk, three ounces. Boil, skim and use. This will, of course, require to be made fresh every day or two.

Profits from Poultry.

Farmers do not give the hens credit for all that is done by them. The proper mode of estimating the value of poultry and eggs is to compare the work of the fowls with something else on the farm. One who has given the Royal makes the food pure, wholesome and delicious.

matter consideration draws a very nice comparison by stating that eggs are produced largely at a certain season from the waste produce of the farm, and that in winter fifty dozen will bring more cash to the farmer than a load of hay, which occupied a patch of ground larger than the poultry-yard to grow it, to say nothing of the man and teams to plow, harrow, mow, rake, load and haul the hay to market. Yet the fifty dozen eggs can be laid by only five hens in the year, and the profit will be greater than from any acre of wheat or corn after the cost of the production of the grain has been subtracted. Fifty hens, then, should give the same result (with a liberal allowance for cereals) as can be obtained as profits from ten acres at the prices current from grain last spring, and one does not have to wait until harvest time to get the profits from hens.

Ammonia for Plants.

While the ordinary kerosene emulsion and solution of copper have proved an immense boon to the cultivator of fruits and trees in the open air, they are usually objectionable to the small aquatic flower grower, to whom something clean and easily applied to small plants is a greater advantage. For these various insecticides and fungic-ides for sale by the florists offer some good recommendation. Where these are not to be had, it is said that a solution of ammonia is effective. As the ammonia bottle is now one of the supplies of every well-ordered household, it may be put into use readily. All these articles, however, require some little care in their first application.
One should always try a little at first on some plants that are of no considerable value before risking them in a wholesale way. For instance, the scale on orange leaves and the leaves of oleanders, or the leaves of some similar plant affected with any kind of insect, can be tried first. If no injury follows, then it may be applied on a somewhat more extensive scale. With a few plants and a brush to paint with, a considerable quantity can be gone over in a short time.

The quiet little town of Quyon, situated on the Ottawa river, has furnished many a strong and convincing testimonial for each of our most popular medicines, Paine's Celery Compound. One of the latest letters received is from Mrs. David Rasm, a lady well known and highly esteemed; she writes as follows:

WELLS & RICHARDSON CO., DEALERS.—I have much pleasure in testifying to the worth of your Healing medicine, Paine's Celery Compound. I was a victim of neuralgia in its worst form for many years, and no tongue can describe the agonies I suffered. A friend recommended your Com-

I am completely cured. I cheerfully recommend Paine's Celery Compound the agonizing torture of neuralgia.

THE ACADIAN.

WOLFVILLE, N. S., APRIL 22, 1898.

Editorial Notes

Provincial Engineer Murphy arrived in Wolfville on Monday, and in company with Mayor Thomson made a survey of the streets of the town and examined material at hand for road building.

The meeting of the Board of Trade on Monday evening was somewhat disappointing, as other meetings prevented a great many who should have attended from being present.

The time is rapidly approaching when the need of a watering-cart will be again apparent. It is to be hoped that the powers that be will not put off providing one until this need materializes.

It now looks as though a war between the United States and Spain would really materialize. The United States has declared for war in the event of the refusal of the past of Spain to relinquish her hold on Cuba—her largest colony in the new world.

We do not know what arrangements are being made for the celebration of Arbor Day in our schools this year, but trust that suitable exercises may be provided for. Something similar to what was held last year in connection with the jubilee would be appropriate.

The high winds which we have had this spring at intervals have had the result of clearing out much of the waste-paper and other rubbish that has accumulated in the back yards in town during the winter months.

The Seminary Glee Club's Entertainment.

The concert given by the Glee Club of Acadia Seminary on Friday evening last was very well attended, notwithstanding the disagreeable state of the weather.

The choruses given by the club were exceedingly well rendered and showed careful training. The readings by Miss Estabrook and Emerson were given in a pleasing manner and were well received.

At the close of the programme it was announced by Dr. Sawyer that Prof. H. N. Shaw, of Toronto, formerly teacher of elocution at Acadia, who was paying a brief visit to Wolfville, would favor the audience with a few selections.

Dr. Trotter's Visit to the States.

Dr. Trotter returned home last Saturday after an absence of two weeks in the United States. The visit was primarily for the sake of being present at the annual meeting of the New England Alumni Association of Acadia College.

The alumni in the States maintain the warmest feeling towards their alma mater, and have a lively interest in the Forward Movement. A good share of the special financial help which was assured to the president will come from the alumni.

Notes on Educational Matters.

1. The Boards of School Commissioners will meet in Kentville, on Tuesday, May 10th, in Windsor on Friday, May 13th, and at the Gore on Wednesday, June 15th. The places of meeting will be the Court House, the hour, 10 o'clock a.m.

2. The next Provincial Examination for High School students will be held in July, beginning on Monday, 4th prox. For the counties of Hants and Kings the stations will be: Windsor, Maitland, Kentville, Wolfville and Berwick.

3. May 6th, or any day more convenient in May, may be appointed by Trustees and used in place of a regular school day for the purpose of clearing up the school grounds and setting trees, etc. thereon.

4. The Annual School Meeting will be held on Monday, June 27th, prox. The trustees must give notice of this meeting, in writing, five days previous to its date.

The object of these notes is to call attention of all interested to the April Journal which has just been sent to each section. In it will be found some changes to which you will do well to refer.

Baseball.

The baseball season has opened at Acadia, and quite an interest has already been created. A league has been formed and a series of games will be played for the college championship.

For one month I will offer for sale the lots on the new street, size 60 ft. by 100 ft., and 60 ft. by 120 ft., for $300 and $225 per lot. There are apple trees on each lot that will yield enough fruit to pay the interest on same.

Berwick.

The Baptist parsonage premises are being greatly improved in appearance and sanitation. The barn has been moved back from the house and the wet part of the yard drained and graded up with stone and gravel.

Mr Isaac Freeman and daughter have moved into "Brown Block" and Miss Wyman has opened up her millinery establishment in the south front room.

Mr Shaw, of the Weston Nursery, is finding ready sale for his first class three-year-old apple trees. Mr S. Employs no middle men, but sells his stock at first cost at the nursery.

The Seminary Glee Club concert of last Friday evening proved so great a success in all but weather and finances, that the ladies of the Seminary desire to retrieve their fallen fortunes if they may and therefore plan to repeat the recital on next Saturday afternoon, April 23d, at half past four in Adams Hall, in the Seminary. The admission will be as usual, fifteen cents, while children will be admitted for ten cents.

Borden Sells Men's Breeches for $1.00; Grain Leather $1.25, Amberst make.

I. Matherson & Co., New Glasgow, are building a steel towboat for the S. F. Benjamin Co., of Wolfville. She is 65 feet long, will be commanded by Capt. John McDermid, of Hantsport harbor, and will be employed towing sawmills, carrying lumber from the company's mill, at Upper Falmouth, down to Windsor and Hantsport for shipment abroad.

W. S. Troop has made a proposition to the Digby town council in which he offers to build a large summer hotel in Digby if he is given exemption from taxes and water rates for fifteen years. His plan would be to put up a building to accommodate a hundred guests, at a cost of about $18,000. The proposition is being considered by the council.

Saturday, April 23rd, in G. V. Rand's drugstore Mr T. B. Messenger will place on exhibition a few samples of Composition portraits made in crayon, India ink and water colors, made by Chesley, the artist. This work should be seen to be appreciated as Mr Chesley is acknowledged to be one of the finest artists in Canada.

These Black Dress Goods in Lustres, Cashmere, Poplins, Figured Mohair, are rapidly disappearing. The styles are right and the prices are right. Remember they are imported direct from England and marked to compete with anything in Canada. J. D. CHAMBERS.

Steamer Boston will be taken off this week to be put in order for the summer business, and steamer Yorkmouth will take her place. The Yorkmouth line has run with wonderful regularity, and is being better patronized than ever.

Rooms and their Colors.

There are colors that are refreshing and broadening, others that also light and give a boxed up appearance to the room, others that make a room with a bleak northern exposure or with no exposure at all appear bright and cheerful, some that make it cold.

If a ceiling is to be made higher, leave it light, that it may appear to recede. Deepening the color used on the ceiling would make it lower—an effect desirable if the room is small and the ceiling very high. Various tones of yellow are substituted for sunlight.

The thermometer seems to fall six degrees when you walk into a blue room. Yellow is an advancing color. Therefore a room fitted up in yellow will appear smaller than it is. On the other hand, blue of a certain shade introduced generally into a room will give an idea of space. Red makes no difference in regard to size. Green makes very little.

If a bright, sunny room gets its light from a space obtained upon by russet colored or yellow painted houses, or else looks out upon a stretch of green grass, it should be decorated in a color very different from the shades chosen if the light comes from an unbroken expanse of sky.

If olive or red brown be used in conjunction with mahogany furniture, the result is very different from what it would be if blue was used. Blue would develop the tawny orange lurking in the mahogany.

Red brings out in a room whatever hint of green lurks in the composition of the other colors employed. Green needs sunlight to develop the yellow in it and make it seem cheerful.

Bees in the Orchard. Many fruit growers do not thoroughly appreciate the value of bees in an orchard or there would be more orchards with bees in them. Their value in an orchard was demonstrated in a most practical way at the Oregon Experiment Station some years ago. A few peach trees were forced into bloom in November and a colony of bees was placed in the house among the trees began to bloom. For some days, however, a heavy fog prevented the bees from working, although the flowers were open, not a bee was seen upon them. The first bright day the bees set to work at once and remained at work so long as there was anything for them. The result was that not a peach dropped at the stoning season, the time all unfertile fruit falls. The crop was so heavy that it had to be thinned out. As a check test one tree was protected so that not a bee could get to it. On this tree all the fruit dropped at the stoning period. Bees and other insects have a duty to perform in the orchard, for which there is no substitute provided. This is the distribution of the pollen from flower to flower and from tree to tree. They insure success in the orchard and every fruit grower should encourage bees in their work by not spraying, or doing anything that would be injurious to the bees while the trees are in full bloom.—Farming.

DRESSING WELL

There are too many women who are careless about their home gowns. They imagine that they are thrifty and economical because they put on from day to day a faded or dingy dress or skirt. Such women are neither economical nor wise; they are either misers or indifferent to the feelings of their family and friends when they set out.

At an expense of from ten to twenty cents for one or two packages of Diamond Dyes any woman can make her faded gowns or skirts as good as new. This kind of home work is wisdom and true economy.

This spring thousands of wise and thrifty women are using the Diamond Dyes, giving new life to old and cast-off dresses and costumes, fitting them for another season's wear.

When you decide to dye do not risk your materials with poor dyes or imitations of the Diamond Dyes. See that your dealer gives you the "Diamond" that works so easily and successfully.

Canada's Prohibition Campaign. WHITE RIBBONS BOMBARDING THE DOMINION GOVERNMENT—RUMMERS GET A SECRET INTERVIEW—PROVINCIAL CONVENTION CALLED.

Toronto, Canada, (Special Correspondence to The Voice).—The officers and some of the leading members of the Dominion Brewers' Association have succeeded in getting a secret interview behind closed doors with the government at the Parliament buildings at Ottawa. The brewers did their utmost to avoid letting their presence become known to the members of the parliamentary press gallery, but they were not successful. Their request for a private hearing was however, acceded to by Sir Wilfrid Laurier, prime minister. The brewers consisted of Eugene O'Keefe and Robert Davis, Toronto; John Labatt, London; D. J. McCarthy, Prescott; J. Dawes, Montreal, and others. Their mission was to ask the Premier not to submit the question of prohibition in the plebiscite without a rider in respect to direct taxation to make up the revenue. The government is said to have merely promised consideration. In the mean time the government is being bombarded with petitions for a straight submission of the legal issue of prohibition without any "loading of the dice." The W. C. T. U. and women's societies of the various churches are petitioning the government to prohibit the taking of intoxicating liquors into the Klondike instead of continuing the permit system.

A provincial prohibition plebiscite convention has been called by the Dominion Alliance to be held here on July 5 and 6. It is expected that it will be a monster gathering.—Forward.

The question of the prohibition of the alcoholic liquor traffic is in no sense a question of individual abstinence any more than the prohibition of the sale of bad beef is a question of eating it, or the prohibition of the sale of stale milk a question of drinking it. The one implies the protection extended by a State to society as a whole, the other implies the individual action based on a man's judgement.

The theory of the prohibitionist is that it is the duty of the government to make as easy as possible to do right and just as difficult to do wrong; that it is the duty of the State to make the road up to manhood and honor as smooth as possible; to plant along the side of the road the markers of hope, of promise and of public approbation. Into the road down to licentiousness, and vice, and crime, and infamy, and death, roll the rocks of law, hedge it with the brambles of public opinion, and break the force of condemnation, and then place the citi-zen at the beginning of the two ways, and say to him, "Take your choice."—John B. Finch.

Cambridge, Mass., is unique as a prohibition city. No other city of equal size has ever been carried for "no-license" two years in succession; while in Cambridge that policy has prevailed at eleven successive elections. At first the usual objections were made—the city could not do without the saloon revenue, etc.—but all have been abundantly refuted by actual experience. We hold that the valuation of Cambridge during ten years of license, dropped, in round numbers, $3,000,000; during ten years of no-license it has risen $24,000,000. In the license decade the average gain in population was 1,182; in the no-license period it has been 2,195. In the first ten years 151 houses were built annually; in the second decade the average has been 332. And—please note this point particularly—the city gets annually in taxes on the increased valuation under no license three or four times as much as it would get from license fees. Two years ago 257 Cambridge merchants, in all departments of business, signed a public appeal declaring that no license had benefited the material interests of the city, and expressed a hope for its continuance. The finest feature of the celebration of the fiftieth anniversary of the city was, says the New York Independent, "the spectacle of eighty-five thousand people keeping holiday and from sunrise to sunset not a drunken man visible anywhere."

We are for prohibition always. I think that bitter denunciation of any co-worker implies a condition of heart that is not sweet toward God. I think it is better to err with too much kindness to the individual than too little, and put in your efforts to bring that one to where you want him or her to be. And this Convention does not speak harsh words to any human being, for it has always been the policy of the W. C. T. U. not to speak with severe epithets of the brewer or distiller or saloon-keeper, because it would not do a particle of good.—an "epithet is the cheapest kind of a thing that can be long from human lips."—Frances E. Willard.

As the watchman from the towers of one of the enemy's strongholds sees us: "Activity in the direction of temperance agitation is more pronounced than ever." And while the liquor leaders urge their forces to be up and doing and to "meet argument with better argument," they know full well that the cause of prohibition has nothing to lose but everything to gain by agitation.—Union Signal.

Seraps for Odd Moments.

"What is velocity?" "Velocity is what a man puts a hat plate down with." "Now, Bobbie," said the teacher in the natural history class, "what is a number?" "A man that makth pash," lisped Bobbie.

"I'm a good deal stuck on these jewels Mrs. Dongton is wearing to-night." "I don't wonder at it. Everybody says they are paste." Auntie—You say you had a bad cold Did you ever have a good cold? Johnny—I had one once that kept me home from school.

New Acquaintance (admiringly)—She is a peach, though, isn't she? Rejected Admirer (dejectedly)—Yes, she has a stony heart. "After all," a married man had the advantage of a battleship. "In what respect, pray?" "When he gets blown up he knows what it is."

Keep Minards Liniment in the house. "There! Do you think it is like me, count?" "Like you? Ah, Meez Mabel, like it don't so woid; it is life you." Is it true that a perfect gentleman never thinks anything he wouldn't say? Of course; there are lots of perfect gentlemen who never think at all.

She—Oh, James, how grand the sea is! How wonderful! I do so like to be out on the roost of the ocean. He—So do I, Elizabeth. Please keep quiet. Minards Liniment is used by Physicians.

"Tommy, I have told you again and again not to speak when older persons are talking, but wait until they stop." "I have tried that already, mamma. But they never stop." "At no time," said the philosopher, "a man so willing to take the burden from the weak shoulders of frail women as when she is harassed with the care of a large and paying property."

God Bore—My father made a great point of teaching us to leave the room gracefully. His Yarn—Oh, I wish you'd do over! I should so like to see you. Mr. Skinfitt—Here is a cent for you, my man, and pray tell me how you came to be so miserably poor. Merchant—Ah, mum, I was like you—too fond of giving large sums of money to the poor.

Tragedy—He set holding his head in his hands. "This," said he, "is the miserable end." That is so, especially, the head end was the miserable end. And there were no bromides in the house. Newly Appointed Father—My dear, I've decided to buy a phonograph. Ditto Mother—What for, Alfred? "I think it would be nice to show the twins, when they grow up, that they owe us an apology."

Lady enters barber shop with a Skye terrier. "Mr. Barber, can you cut my doggie's hair?" "No, I can't, or rather, I won't." "Why not?" "You seem to hold yourself pretty high for one in your position." "Perhaps I do; but I'm no Skye scrapper." Ask for Minards Liniment and take no other.

"These poor prisoners ought to have glasses to drink from instead of tin cups," said the tender hearted visitor. "If they had glasses," the warden explained, "they might throw them, and people who live in stone houses should not throw glasses." "Why are you leaving here," asked the prospective settler, "if the land is so productive?" "I'll be home with you stranger; I'm glittin' long in years an' the plain truth is that the crops here is so big that I can't har'ly 'em any more."

An exchange tells of a clergyman who was catechizing a Sunday School, and after the tender hearted visitor, the pastor of a church in his shepherd, while the members are the sheep, he asked: "What does the shepherd do for the sheep?" To the amusement of those present a small boy in the front row piped out, "Shear them!" DEAR SIR.—This is to certify that I have been troubled with a lame back for fifteen years. I have used three bottles of your MINARD'S LINIMENT and am completely cured. It gives me great pleasure to recommend it and you are at liberty to use this in any way to further the use of your valuable medicine. Two Rivers, ROBERT ROSS.

"Kneel," said the offored veteran "in case we has war kin I go long wid your company?" "Why, certainly, You'd have a preference for mine, would you?" "Oh, yes, sah! You see, I was wid you in de late war, an' seein as you didn't get inter no fightin' endurin' dat time, I 'low dat you'll be de ex wis it another war!" The cuckoo is a likely to steal it next as to make it, but this fact does not take from the point of the following pin: A young Englishman being asked at dinner whether he would have some bird's nest pudding, said, turning to his hostess, "Ah, yes, bird's nest pudding, and what kind of a bird may have made it?" "Oh, it was the cook who made it," he was promptly reply.

He was making a hollow pretence as being hungry at breakfast. "Had to stay in the office to balance the books last night, my dear," he remarked. "Ah, yes, bird's nest pudding, and what kind of a bird may have made it?" "Oh, it was the cook who made it," he was promptly reply. He was making a hollow pretence as being hungry at breakfast.
