Ability to Save.

Advocates of the national thrift campaign might take a hint from the remarkable results following the publication in an American journal of the opinion of the late James J. Hill, that the first essential to success was ability to save. "If you cannot do that, you are out of the race," said Mr. Hill. "You might as well confess yourself a failure in life, for you are one." How many people were impressed with this is revealed by the many letters published by the railway magazine appeared, six months after his death. Several told of beginning to save, others had succeeded for the first time in establishing a bank account—no matter how small—while others told of recognizing in order to follow the advice of one of the most successful of financiers and workers. Whether it was the magic of a name or the direct way in which the railway builder summed up the shiftless citizen and his chances of getting along in the world, the fact remains that these little words have done more to start a campaign of saving among the quiet and serious minded people than probably any other similar appeal in the country. Much depends on how a thing is said and the great strength in the statement of the empire builder lies, we think, in the brusque way which he dismissed the shiftless individual as worthless and destined to remain so. It had apparently the effect of causing some serious thought where it would do the most good.—Ottawa Citizen.

For a Greater Canada.

There is a movement on foot in Canada having for its objective the inclusion of the Bermudas, the British West Indies in the Dominion. The inspirer of the movement includes a number of prominent Canadians, who have banded themselves together as the Canadian West Indian League. The proposition has not as yet passed beyond the embryonic stage, but it is believed that the islands would generally welcome the change. If the proposed union should be effected, British Honduras, also included in the consolidation, Newfoundland, which has hitherto persistently refused to become a part of the Dominion, would probably relent and thus complete the unification of British America, if the rest of British colonies in the Western Hemisphere should get together.

Newfoundland has a population of about 250,000, and the other British American colonies have altogether rather more than two million people. The white inhabitants of the Bermudas constitute about two-fifths of their population, but the whites in the British colonies to the southward include exceed two per cent. of the inhabitants. The proposed annexations would prove a drain upon the Dominion treasury, between Canada and its tropical friends. The great prosperity which has come to Porto Rico since the Stars and Stripes were raised over it would, although in a lesser measure, be experienced by the British American tropics under a free interchange of products with Canada. The Canadian market itself is a great one, and Canada can consume all the sugar, tobacco, and other products that the British American tropics have to sell.

Woman at the Bar.

Woman lawyers exist in many countries, including some where they have not yet secured the Parliaments. There are more than 20,000 women practicing as attorneys-at-law in the United States, and in Australia a woman holds the position of judge's advocate. In Norway there is a woman judge. Fru Ruth Benson, who was promoted to the bench in 1913. She had previously practiced for some years as a lawyer in Christiania, and had gained a high name in her profession. Women cannot become judges in Sweden, but may practice as barristers, provided they are unmarried. Women lawyers are also recognized in France, Switzerland, Russia, Holland, Portugal, Argentina, Japan, Egypt, Canada, and New Zealand. Mme. Nathalie Michel, who passed her legal examinations with high distinction, was permitted to plead in the Egyptian courts on presenting a thesis proving her right to do so by ancient Roman Egyptian law.

At a law court some time ago the case concerned a will and Pat was the only witness. The lawyer cross-examining Pat asked: Was the deceased in the habit of talking to himself when alone?

"I don't know" was the reply.

"You don't know and yet you pretend to have been intimately acquainted with him?"

"But the fact is," said Pat, "I never happened to be with him when he was alone."

Snakes, The Farmers' Friends.

The common chicken-snake haunts their outbuildings in order to feed on their young ducks and chickens. All of them are the natural enemies of rats, mice, weasels and similar animals that infest farms and village houses, especially where there is poultry or other small live stock.

In an article in the Scientific American, Dr. Robert W. Shafeldt of Washington says that it would well repay every farmer, in the country to keep half a dozen harmless vermivorous snakes on every acre of his place. Thousands of harmless snakes are killed every year by boys, ignorant farm-hands and misinformed women, although it has been proved that rats, mice and other rodents cause enormous losses to cereal crops.

Although most farmers believe that the common chicken-snake haunts their outbuildings in order to feed on their young ducks and chickens, the snake does nothing of the kind; but it does destroy great numbers of mice and other pests.

Harmless snakes are the easiest animal in the world to tame, and it is high time that the false ideas about them should be corrected. More than that, it should be taught that, like birds, they are among the best animal friends the farmer has. If we destroy them, we pave the way for destruction of our forests, our staple farm products, and a good deal else that now and always have been protected by snakes and birds.

System Was Full of Poison; Pains in Side and Back

Had Constipation for Many Years, but Was Entirely Cured by Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills.

The most common ailment and the greatest cause of disease and suffering to-day is constipation. Artificially induced constipation is a danger to the life of the living kidneys and bowels. As a result poisonous waste matter remains in the system and gives rise to pains and aches and affords a starting point for serious diseases.

Intestional and contagious diseases are little known to persons whose livers, kidneys and bowels are kept in healthy activity, for there are no suitable conditions for disease germs to thrive in. Even common colds usually take their start when they find the system in a constipated, poisoned condition.

Dr. Wm. Miller, West Flamboro, Ont., writes: "I can truthfully say that Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills have given me a constipation almost ever since I can remember, and for four years had pains at the left side of the back. I walked around the kitchen floor. I would have to sit and rest. That, I think, was terrible for a woman of twenty years. The constipation of my blood was shown by pimples breaking out on my face. I suffered so much from water and stiffness in the back, I am sure my system was full of poison. Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills have entirely cured me, and I feel better than I have felt for many years."

As a cure for constipation Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills stand alone, for by their action on the liver they awaken the activity of this organ, cause a good flow of bile, and hence remove the cause of indigestion, for bile is nature's cathartic. Each pill a dose, 15 cents a box, all druggists, or Dr. Chase, 222 E. Wacker Drive, Chicago, Ill., U.S.A.

Army Walked in its Sleep.

In an article "Sleep for the Sleepless" in the current World's Work magazine, the following is given:

The French army in its sleep: "In the retreat from Mons to the Marne we have an extraordinary human experiment, in which several hundred thousand men secured little sleep during nine days, and in addition made forced marches and fought one of the greatest battles in history."

"How, then, did these men survive nine days apparently without opportunity for sleep? They did an extraordinary thing—they slept while they marched! Sheer fatigue slowed down their pace to a rate that would permit them to sleep while walking. They slept in water, and on rough ground, when suffering the pangs of hunger and thirst, and even when severely wounded. They cared not for capture, not even for death, if only they could sleep."

The unvaried testimony of the soldiers was that every one at times slept on the march. They passed villages asleep. When sleep departed—and they began to reel, they were awakened by comrades. They slept in water, on stones, in brush, or in the middle of the road as if they had suddenly fallen in death. With the ever oncoming lines of the enemy no man was safe who dropped out of the ranks, for no matter on what pretext he fell asleep conquered him. Asleep many were captured. That the artillery men slept on horseback was evidenced by the fact that every man lost his cap."

The Manchurian Farmer.

In the early fall in Manchuria, the natives undergo a sort of magic change from farmer to bandit. It seems something of a psychological somersault—one day a plodding farmer, the next a highwayman. After the tall kaoliang, or giant millet, is cut, and escape is not easy over the bare plains, another clap of the hands and lo, a peaceful farmer once more! It is not only the farmer who plays this exciting game; many another staid member of the community has his little fling. Some even combine their roles, differentiating according to the seasons. With the Oriental's disregard to conditions a man is often bandit, merchant and magistrate all at once.—Alice Tisdale, in the December Atlantic.

In an endeavor to break the alleged "corner" in potatoes at Portland, Me., the Housewives League executive board on Monday afternoon adopted a resolution urging a boycott on the use of "spuds." It is reported, the league states, that 6,000,000 bushels of potatoes are being held in Maine for speculation, making prices exorbitant, and numerous requests have come to the league urging action. Housewives are asked to refrain from buying potatoes, substituting other articles of similar food value.

Water Powers of the West.

Water Powers of Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta, a well bound and attractively illustrated volume just issued by the Commission of Conservation, forms a valuable contribution to the authentic literature respecting the natural resources of Western Canada. This report, by Leo G. Denis and J. B. Chailles, comprises the results of special surveys by the Commission of Conservation and a compilation of records from other reliable sources. As a compendium of all available data on the subject, it is particularly valuable for reference purposes.

While the Prairie Provinces, as a whole, are not lavishly endowed with water powers, the report demonstrates that the utility of their rivers for power development can be vastly enhanced through proper storage of flood waters. At present, in the absence of conservation dams, and of water control methods, the development to ensure the maximum utilization now being carefully worked out on the Winnipeg, Bow and other large rivers. The more northerly regions possess numerous sites of great potential value for pulp, electro-chemical and other special industries.

The report just issued is the second in the series on water-powers in Canada to be published by the Commission of Conservation. The third volume, 'Water Powers of British Columbia,' which is now in press, will complete the Commission's general inventory of this item of the Dominion's natural wealth.

Giving in the Easiest Way.

Dean Guthrie, the Scottish divine, who won so great a name for piety and works in the '40's, unwittingly furnished a text which can be used for the tending effort by the canvassers for the Canadian Patriotic Fund who are on the war-path to secure the Eight Hundred Thousand dollars which Nova Scotia must raise in 1917 to meet the obligations assumed by the Fund to the dependants of our soldiers. Addressing a meeting on the duty of contributing to the Marine Fund of the Free Church of Scotland, Mr. Guthrie said:

I am rich only in children and if any one asked me to-night to pay down a hundred pounds, he might just as well tell me to fly. But if I had been given five years to pay it in, I should only need to go home and consult my wife as to what things we could do without.

The average man in Nova Scotia to-day, faced by the Patriotic Fund appeal, who goes home and consults his wife as to what they can do without, is certain to find little difficulty in making a substantial monthly contribution to the Fund.

To February.

February, husky maid, begone! You have tarried all too long. Wit your snows and biting frost, When fuel's at so high a cost. We have had enough of you, Enough of cold and frost-bites, too. Be good enough to glide away As darkness glides at dawn of day, That we might thaw our shivering forms.

That weather your fierce winds and storms. Begone! Of you we're tired and sick; So go, and please go—quick! We want the balmy air of spring, We want to hear the robins sing. So February, do not stay, Go now, and come another day. You're going? Good! A long farewell!

But who among us now can tell In this great war which side shall win, The righteous, or the hosts of sin? But by the time you come again We'll know who are the conquering men. If it be German, then let us die; But thanks unto God, it'll be the Ally. —F. A. G. MACDOUGALL

PAINS AFTER EATING

WIND IN THE STOMACH—ACIDITY, HEADACHES—CONSTIPATION ARE SIGNS OF INDIGESTION.

Indigestion—the complete or partial failure of the digestive processes—frequently throws out of gear the whole machinery of the body. You can't enjoy the vigor and vitality of good health unless your stomach, liver and bowels do their work regularly and efficiently.

MOTHER SEIGEL'S SYRUP

As a digestive tonic and stomachic remedy, Mother Seigel's Syrup is esteemed in tens of thousands of homes, wherever the English language is spoken. It cures indigestion or biliousness, restores the stomach, liver or bowels, try the effect of taking 15 to 20 drops of this famous remedy in water, after meals, for a few days and note its beneficial effects.

Letter From Len Eaton.

The following characteristic letter was received this week by Mrs. L. H. Eaton, from her son Leonard, who is doing splendid work for King and Country. It will be read with interest by many friends:

France, 21, 1, 17. My Dearest Mother,—I have been in France for sixteen months now and things are going along in about the usual way, except we are straggling the Hun more every day. I do not know much outside of our own frontage. But I do know we have old Fritz beaten there; we just keep after him all the time.

Of course things are not just the same here as in civil life. Many things are not agreeable but taking everything into consideration there are some compensations. One certainly meets some fine fellows in this game, and it is over here that one really learns to judge his fellow men in their true light. Men who in civilian life did not show up any too well, have done wonders here in France. It is marvelous the way Canadian boys have faced death in the military rule of the German war party.

Personally I have seen quite a lot of this fighting game and would not be sorry to see the end of this war. But I would like to see the Hun given his deserts for bringing so much suffering on civilization. When one thinks of the sorrow caused by the ambition of the War Lords of Prussia, one's blood almost boils.

I simply do not understand how anyone can remain at home and see this great disaster continue. If we had had the men earlier in the game there would be no war now, and Germany would be a thing of the past.

I often think I would like to be back in Canada for a time. But I guess my fighting blood would be aroused to see young men who are not taking part in this greatest of a struggle. The women of Canada and all the Empire are doing fine by our boys here. They have made great sacrifices. But the slackers should be compelled to come over here.

This game ages one quite a bit. We see young boys, carrying on as men of mature age. They are making good. Old Nova Scotia has done well but there are men left at home who should be ashamed to own that they were alive when the call for men came. I do not want you to think that I am talking wildly. I only wish I had been a thousand men instead of one. There is time yet for the young fellows to get in line and show that they are willing to do their bit for the Empire. Of course one takes chances here, but the stakes are big and it would be worse than death to be contented a quitter.

After this war I think you will find a big difference. Many of the men here will go back matured in life and quite able to care for themselves. I think the fighting spirit will be in evidence. I know some have said that the men who come back would fall into the same rut that the South African heroes did. My opinion is that a different type of man will come back. We over here have been up against the German girls and our judgment has had to be made in, stantly and decisively, so when called on again to take up civil life there will be a difference that will be noticeable. Keener and men of sounder judgment will be the result of this war. So Canada will benefit in the end.

I suppose you will think I have gone dait but sometimes I must vent my feelings. Taking everything into consideration it is not so bad over here. Of course, shells, bullets, gas and (but not least) mud are our chief opponents. But it is wonderful to see our men bucking up and trying to do the work that is necessary. The amount done by each man would be impossible in civilian life, but the men get along with it and very seldom make any protest. Even when under fire our men carry on as usual. I have seen men dropped by German fire, and they all went down without a murmur. They take what comes, and pray that the other fellow may get through.

I think I have written about enough of this but I do wish the Canadian people at home could realize what is being done for them. I do not mean all, but the slackers and people like that. Then they would get down to thinking and then would come over here and help us trim the Hun. You do not think that we do not have any fun for we have our good times as well as our hard times. It is wonderful the spirit the boys show. They always have smiles. Now mother dear I will close for this time.

Your loving son, LEONARD.

Letters to the Editor.

Dr. Hilda, Gasperau, N. S., February 16th, 1917.

To the Editor of the Acadian: I notice in your issue of the week a communication from the pen of Mr. C. M. Gormley, in reference to his policy of extermination of cats. Allow me to inform Mr. Gormley that he is entirely mistaken in supposing that he has a legal right to destroy cats, or other domestic animals found trespassing upon his property.

Where animals trespassing on his property in a wanton, malicious, and deliberate way, exemplary damages may be recovered. If Mr. Gormley wishes to keep cats from his property he must erect a fence or netting for that purpose. Granted, this would be a somewhat practicable, nevertheless it is his own legal course, and he thinks it too troublesome so to do, he must content himself with driving away the offending felina, whenever they trespass.

License the Cat.

I commend to the community Mr. Gormley's articles on "Cats," contributed to recent numbers of THE ACADIAN. The cat is a nuisance, generally speaking. Colonel Dennison, Judge of the Toronto Police Court, has decided that this pestiferous animal, when found on the land of anyone save its owner, is a nuisance at common law and may be killed as such, killed as a reasonable method of abating the nuisance. I do not know whether this is good law, generally speaking; but I know that it is deemed good enough law for some hundreds of thousands of people living in Toronto and for their cats.

Let me add to Mr. Gormley's charges of the expense of my own showing another phase of the cat nuisance, and what I have done in abatement. In 1903 when I moved into a house I had built here, some 25 or 30 cats, apparently homeless, decided to accompany me. These creatures had been bred and cast starving upon their neighbors, by people some of whom, I have little doubt, would subscribe to one of those foreign institutions for Destitute Cats if they (the biped tabbies) would thereby get their names in a newspaper acknowledgment. Well, the quadruped tabbies came in like a flood upon me, determined to live with me. I could not apply for their abatement, for a quotation describing the eruption of the cats when the pipper began his piping; but "Hemel-Town's in Brunswick," and I must wear patriots. Of this invading force I shot 15. The remainder changed their minds about a boarding house. Since then my family score of trespassing cats has risen from 15 to 43. Causes of death—intrusive house-seeking and bird-slaughter.

I favor a scheme of taxation whereby licensed cats, duly tagged, would be protected, save when caught in bird-killing off their owner's land; but if so caught, then to be destroyed by anyone on view and without benefit of clergy. All cats not licensed would be destroyed, of course.

We have laws for the protection of birds against the small boy and his little rifle, which are becoming more effective through education; but it is said that the Provincial Government licenses men to kill birds of all sorts, protected against the rest of us by these laws. Such persons, like the cats, should be tagged that we may know them; but I suppose we could not put them wholly in the cat class for taxation and other purposes. The alleged practice of a governmental authority licensing certain favorites to violate its own laws is almost too ludicrous to be true. If true it should be looked into. Can we suppose, for example, that certain elect men obtain personal licenses in the matter of the new Prohibition law? The condition may be sufficient to find a suspicion upon. But what possibility lies beneath the surface of this ideal. Who can tell us the qualifications for being an unspuntable lawbreaker, a State protected Antinomian? Though supposed to be writing of mere cats, I crave leave to refer to this point to another competing biped specimen of the cat class—the politician. Lately within the town limits, a man shot and pocketed several out of a flock of winter birds while they were engaged in their work on insects' eggs in an orchard. Should we pass this miserable act as a war-measure, an excusable result of the present cost of meat? Perhaps so, and charge it to the account of the Imperialistic politicians.

I think the most serious feature of the cat nuisance is the peril to public health, which always enters in the furthest part of the home and filthy scavenger. Embalmed in a medical magazine I have long preserved an article dealing with the evidences of scientific investigation and abounding in horrible statistics gathered from observation of cats and their victims. The title of the article is: "The Case Against the Cat." The details of fact are shocking to the nerves. The argument and findings are convincing to the mind. I wish it could reach the public of this Province among those vacuous health tracts raved out by some luminary in Government employ at Halifax. Space fails for reviewing this article here. Suffice it to say that all such investigation shows that in protecting our birds by licensing cats, deemed by their owners worth the expense, and by destroying all unlicensed cats, we would be protecting our children and ourselves to a considerable extent against infectious and contagious diseases. This policy is one of health insurance against one of the most frequent and effective carriers of such diseases. When I was in the United States last autumn I found the New Yorkers and others engaged in the wholesale destruction of cats by order of Boards of Health, on the ground that these animals were carriers of infantile paralysis. In New York city and Brooklyn there was a score of eighty thousand cats killed in three weeks, and the crusade was still in progress there and elsewhere when I left the country.

Former Wolfville Man Dead.

Following an apoplectic stroke the death occurred Tuesday afternoon of last week in Halifax of Alfred G. Morrison, K. C. Crown Prosecutor of Halifax City and County. He was a man who was held in the highest regard by all who knew him. As a lawyer he was regarded as one of the ablest in the profession, and was an excellent platform speaker, his services being eagerly sought after. In politics the deceased was a liberal, commanding the respect and esteem of those who held views opposite to his own. He was formerly a resident of Wolfville for some time.

Mr. Morrison is survived by his widow, three daughters and a son. Mrs. Morrison was formerly Miss Baby F. Douglas, of Millland, Hants Co.
