Goderich District Meeting.
The annual meeting of the Goderich District of the Methodist Church of Canada was held in Clinton on Tuesday and Wednesday of last week, under the direction of the Rev. Dr. Williams, chairman of the district. The business of the first day related purely to the ministry—embracing character and qualifications. Rev. Jas. Harris was appointed secretary of the district. Three probationers were recommended to be continued on trial. Mr. R. W. Jamieson was recommended to the conference to be allowed to attend college, and Mr. Cuyler was recommended as a probationer. The public service on Tuesday was conducted by the chairman, and it was of unusual interest. The Rev. Dr. Williams himself while discoursing on the "Comforts of the Holy Ghost." It was a sermon that will long be remembered by those who were privileged to hear it. More than usual interest to the meeting of Wednesday from the fact that the laymen present formed the electorate for choosing representatives to the General Conference to meet in Hamilton in September next. After the financial and other returns from the district were made, the following persons were elected to the various committees:—Stationing committee, Rev. W. McDonagh; Sabbath school, Rev. A. Andrews; contingent fund, George Sturgeon, Esq.; representatives to general conference, A. S. Fisher, Esq., Clinton, G. Sturgeon, Esq., Kincardine, Sam'l Pollock, Esq., Goderich. The returns of the district, on the whole, were satisfactory—though the exodus to Manitoba and the Western States has somewhat diminished the membership in some places, notwithstanding 434 persons have been received into the church during the year, the return shows a decrease of 84; present membership 3,485. 50 S. Schools, 594 officers and teachers, 4,084 scholars. There was raised in the district for ministerial support, $11,983; for circuit purposes, $13,000; for missionary society, $3,250; for other connexional purposes $2,078, a total of $30,371. There are 50 churches in the district, valued at $91,588, and 17 parsonages valued at $24,650, total value of church property in the district, $126,239. During the meeting a very complimentary resolution, expressive of appreciation of the valuable services rendered by the Rev. Dr. Williams to the district was presented to the meeting and unanimously endorsed.—Com.

PORT ALBERT.
The meeting at Port Albert in the interest of Mr. Cameron was well attended. The Reform candidate for West Huron dealt with the live issues of the hour, and time and again drew applause from both friends and opponents. Mr. Porter, the Conservative candidate was present at the meeting, and was courteously allowed an hour and twenty minutes to present his views to the audience. Mr. Cameron then undertook to close his own meeting in the usual way, but Mr. Porter, with regular Tory tactics, viz., the shouting of the rag-tag and bob-tail element, under the leadership of Master Freddy Johnston, undertook to claim possession of the meeting. The meeting was, however, brought to a successful close, but not until Mr. Porter had stated that he would force himself into the control of the next meeting, to be held at Kingsbridge, the following evening. But Mr. Porter was only bragging, and dared not carry out his threat when the heart of Ashfield was reached the following night.

KINGSBRIDGE.
On Tuesday evening the second meeting was held at Kingsbridge, and the schoolhouse was crowded to the doors. Mr. H. McPhee, a well-known and respected resident of Ashfield township, was called to the chair, and performed the duties of the office in a highly creditable manner. Mr. Cameron, in opening, alluded to the fact that he was a candidate in West Huron owing to the iniquitous gerrymandering of the county by the party in power, and the obliterating of the old riding boundaries. His old constituency of South Huron had been scattered amongst South Perth, North Middlesex, West Huron and the present South Huron. He had been unanimously chosen to contest West Huron in the Liberal interest, and believing that the honest-minded men of all shades of politics would denounce the ruthless dismemberment of 54 constituencies, in the interest of faction, he was willing to appeal to the sense of justice and fair play of the electors of West Huron in the coming contest. The boundary award was next dealt with in a clear and convincing manner, and was followed by the history of the disallowance of the Streams Bill, and a trenchant exposure of the evasions of the Government, the nepotism of the Tilley's, and the Pope's was also handled in a sharp and incisive manner, and it was clearly shown to the electors that the present Government was worked solely in the interest of the Conservative party and the leaders and not for the good of the country. The speaker was greeted with time and again with loud and prolonged cheers, as he exposed the hollowness of the promises of the Government when compared with its practice. Mr. Porter, the Conservative candidate was present, but even he, who is considered to be the best platform speaker in the Tory ranks in Huron, could make no headway against the slashing indictment of the Government submitted by Mr. Cameron. Failing in his efforts to successfully meet Mr. Cameron's arguments, the Conservative candidate fell back on the N. P. as a claim for election. He talked of the prosperity under the N. P. regime, predicted wealth to all by act of Parliament, and the Government were sustained, and closed by soliciting the suffrages of the electors. Mr. Cameron ended the meeting in a short speech, in which he exposed Mr. Porter's want of knowledge on the boundary award and on the present fiscal policy. He appealed to the farmers present to say whether they had been benefited or not, and quoted extract after extract from the leading Government organ to show that the price of farm produce had not been increased by the working of the N. P. He closed with an eloquent tribute to Hon. Edward Blake, and hoped that every loyal-hearted Irishman and every honest-minded native of other countries possessed of votes in Ontario would poll them on the 20th of June, so that that gifted and brilliant statesman would be exalted to the position of Captain of the Ship of State. Loud and prolonged cheers greeted Mr. Cameron's peroration, and the meeting, which was composed principally of Irishmen and the descendants of Irishmen, was almost unanimous in its response to the losing wish of the speaker. The meeting was brought to a close with a vote of thanks to the chairman, and cheers for Cameron, Blake and "The Queen."

Alex. Ross, of Mildmay, is a peculiarly clever and industrious poet. According to his own opinion he stands head and shoulders above the ordinary run of amateurs and ranks with Terrence and Long-fellow. He called on us a few days ago and left us about a quarter of a cord of the most insipid doggerel that was ever given the name of poetry. In order that the public may receive a taste of Mr. Ross's hashed English we append the first verse of the "ponic" about "The thoughtless husband."

Many years has past and dead away,
Since you gave your hand to that florid May,
Would she now raise them once sparkling eyes,
They would meet yours with grate and surprise.

POLITICAL POINTS.

Pithy Extracts from our Exchanges.

The Spirit of the Patriotic Press of Ontario

A National View.

It is needless to say that in such a case, a wrong is perpetrated; but against whom? Against the Reform party many will say. Against the country we contend. It is the country that has been prevented from giving the strength to the Reform party that it meant to give. That is where the wrong is done. For neither party considered as a party do we care a fig. For the country and its liberties we care a great deal; and it is because the whole system of gerrymandering strikes at the natural and constitutional rights of the people that we say it is a thing which no one should laugh at or chuckle over, but which every honest man should condemn. —[Montreal Star.

The Disputed Territory.

It may be of interest to know that while the contest is going on here over the question of the territory west of Lake Superior, the favorites on whom the privilege of stripping it of timber has been conferred by the Dominion Government are hard at work. If the territory is not secured now by turning out Sir John Macdonald, it will be worth many millions less to us five years hence. It is only fair, therefore, that Mr. Mowat should expect the Province to declare in favor of its own rights by a majority so sweeping as to force Sir John to resign at once, as Mr. Mackenzie did in 1878, when he found the popular verdict against him.

Enemies and Traitors.

Grip and some of our journals—and among them The World—have been bringing out the idea that the French Canadian Blues are enemies of Ontario and that they it is who are really the abettors of Sir John Macdonald in his refusal to ratify the boundary award and in disallowance of provincial acts. Let us grant that these French Canadians are jealous, and did "put up the job" what must we say of those Ontario members of parliament, those members of the Ontario legislature, and those Ontario journals that have been even warmer abettors of Sir John Macdonald in his raid on Ontario, than the French Canadians. Traitor is a hard name but it is the one that suits him best. Sir John would never have listened to suggestions from Quebec if he could count on the support of Ontario Conservatives. Every man from Quebec, no matter where he is, is solid for Quebec every time.—World.

Skippers in the Cheese.

The East Lambton Reformers have made an excellent choice of a candidate, in the person of Mr. J. H. Fairbanks of Petrolia, who is not only a man of splendid business abilities but above the average as a speaker. There was a freshness and originality about his speech at the convention rarely met with. He pointed out that Mr. Mackenzie had been absurdly charged with the depression existing at the close of his Administration, when, as a matter of fact, the wave of depression had set in before he took office. Our opponents had very courteously designated the Reform leaders, "Flies on the wheel." He showed that a title not inappropriate to the present Government, viz: "Skippers in the cheese." (Laughter.) In many respects they resembled each other; indeed there was quite a family resemblance. (Laughter.) Their habits were similar. Skippers get blown into the current, and this was the way the Tories got into power, and generally by some neglect on the part of the people. When skippers get in they don't want to leave. So it is with the Tories. (Laughter.) Indeed, the latter seem to think that they have a divine right to the position, and that the cheese is far better for their being there, although a good many people think differently. He knew of only one more unhappy sight than a skipper out of the cheese, and that was a Tory out of office. (Renewed laughter and applause.)

The Chief Rival.

By abstracting Liberal townships from adjacent ridings, in which it was desired to leave Conservative majorities, there are now, on the basis of the last election returns, the following Liberal majorities in these ridings:

Table with 2 columns: Constituency, Liberal Majority.

In these eight constituencies the Liberal majority is 5,500, equal to an average majority of 100 in 55 constituencies. At the last general election South Bruce was carried by 75 majority, Carleton 86, Cornwall 38, West Durham 42, East Elgin 49, West Elgin 112, Glenora 61, South Grenville 25, South Grey 81, Halton 18, East Hastings 20, North Huron 81, North Lambton 43, Leeds and Grenville 36, Lennox 50, Lincoln 44, London 64, East Middlesex 34, North Middlesex 8, West Middlesex 48, Monck 28, Muskoka 63, Niagara 2, North Norfolk 17, West Northumberland 88, East Northumberland 63, North Ontario 54, Peel 89, North Perth 83, South Perth 77, East Perth 25, Prescott 3, North Simcoe 50, South Waterloo 44, Welland 116, North Wellington 108, Centre Wellington 6, North Wentworth 106, South Wentworth 74, North York 10, East York 66. Some of these constituencies returned Reformers and some Conservatives. The arrangement of constituencies that have been on a tolerably fair basis, when such results as these were possible. The figures given above for the "Grit hives" show what has been done to substitute injustice for justice.

AN EDITOR'S TROUBLES.

A Discussion on the Fashions—The kind of Questions an Editor is Supposed to Answer.

"Is the gentleman who knows everything in" stammered a vision of golden hair and sea blue eyes, as she stood timidly beside the managing editor's desk yesterday afternoon.

"Everything about what?" asked the editor, clawing around under his desk for his shoes, and trying to hide his straggling feet under him. "Upon which particular branch do you seek information?"

"I don't exactly know what to do," pouted the strawberry lips. Pa says I can only have one dress this spring, and I don't know how to make it up. I thought the gentleman who answers questions could tell me."

"H'm!" muttered the managing editor. "He has gone up to Maine to find out why geese always walk in single file. An 'Anxious Inquirer' wants to know. What kind of a dress had you thought of getting?"

"That's what I want to know. I want something that will look well with terra cotta gloves."

"Yes, yes," murmured the editor. "Then you should get one of these green things with beads that turn all kinds of colours, and some fringe and fixings of that kind."

"Would you have it cut princess or wear it with a polonaise?" she inquired, looking at him searchingly.

"You—you might have it princess around the neck and a row of polonaises at the bottom," suggested the editor. "That's going to be very fashionable and a couple of hip pockets would set it off royally."

"I don't know," murmured the beauty. "I haven't seen any of that style. Do you know whether panniers are worn bouffant this season, or whether the skirt is tight?"

"Oh, certainly they are made with all the bouffants you can get on 'em. Some have even sixteen button bouffants, and there was a lady in here yesterday who had a pannier that came clean up to the neck. I should have it pretty bouffant if it was my dress."

"Well," stammered the blushing blossom, "would you box plait the skirt or shirr it?"

"Shirr it, by all means!" exclaimed the editor. "Shirr it, straight up and down, and fasten it with those loops of black tape."

"You mean frogs?" asked the beauty. "No, no. These big loops that slip over two buttons. That sets off the shirrs and gives a sort of tout to the ensemble," and the editor leaned back and smiled superior.

"Don't you think revers of a lighter shade would look pretty?" she enquired. "They'll do to finish up the back, but I wouldn't put 'em on the front," answered the editor savagely. "Revers are very well to trim a hat with, but they don't set off a dress front."

"How would you have the corsage?" "I wouldn't have any at all. You would look much better without one."

"Sir," she exclaimed, rising. "Oh, if you insist, you might have a small one, certainly not over three inches long, for short dresses are the style now."

"You—you don't seem to understand," she commenced. "Oh, don't!" he retorted. "That's what I'm here for. I think there is nothing so lamentable as to see a young lady dragging her corsage through the mud and dust. Still, if you want one, you should have it, so you can take it off when you go on the street and only wear it at home. They are hard to handle and not one woman in a hundred will kick her corsage gracefully."

"I—I am very much obliged to you," she murmured. "You are very good, I'm sure."

"Don't mention it," replied the editor politely. "I think when you get it shirred and reversed and polonaised and pringed, you'll like it very much. You might get a sash and some big buttons to put on behind, or if you'd like another style better, you might trim the whole front with bouffants and wear the pannier for a hat."

"Oh, thank you, sir!" exclaimed the blushing girl, as she scuttled down stairs.

"Swipes!" roared the managing editor with a complacent smile and a glance of approval at himself in the glass. "Swipes, you may tell the foreman to send me a proof of the Fashion Notes as soon as they come in. I have observed that a great many errors have crept in lately."

The fishing season has set in again, and anglers have taken the warpath. Fishing is a fine pastime, assuming that you are fortunate enough to catch any fish; otherwise it is one of the most melancholy and unsatisfying pursuits in the whole world. Among other things that fishing teaches are patience and perseverance. Nobody ever made any headway in trying to force the fish to take the hook; so that for impulsive or impatient people to go fishing is a hollow mockery. You must be calm and keep your eye on the line and wait.—[E.]

Children's Summer Clothes.

A correspondent for Farm and Field writes: "I have just seen a wardrobe in preparation for a little girl of four years, which is so cheap and so pretty and contains such useful, sensible clothing, that I can do no better than to describe it."

First of all, there is a gray flannel, so cold damp days. It is made quite simple—a long, tight-fitting waist with full skirted shirt; a broad sash of Scotch plaid worsted goods, with revers of the same down the fronts; cuffs and collars are all the trimmings. The prominent color in the goods is cardinal, and their are cardinal stockings and hair-ribbons to be worn with it, and some large percale, with cardinal polka-dots, to be worn over the very large plaid collar. Another dark dress is a turkey calico. It has a deep yoke long waist, and full-gathered ruffle. The ruffle has a vine worked above the hem in white tidy cotton, briar stitch edges the collar, yoke and ruffles on the sleeves and the bias band, which heads the ruffle. There were two cardinal figured percales on a white ground. One had two narrow ruffles headed by a border of cardinal and white in a Greek key pattern. The yoke was simulated (a close fitting sack pattern being used), and there was a cunning little pocket. The other cardinal and white percale was cut to open in the front. It had one seam down the middle of the back, which shaped the dress into the figure, and three narrow ruffles on the skirt, each having a row of briar stitching in red cotton, and the bias band which served as a heading for the top one, and was also continued up the front to the throat was trimmed with the same. The half-long sleeves had two little ruffles and the bias piece above them, and were all trimmed the same way.

A blue Chambray gingham cut with close-fitting sack had on each side the front three narrow tucks, and down the centre was a row of inserting made of feather braid. This was worn on the goods, not inserted; a ruffle, five inches deep, with three tucks above the hem, had a row of inserting for the heading. The sleeves were also trimmed with it, and there was a deep collar made of the feather-edged braid to be worn with it.

Another dress was of unbleached cheese cloth worked in double herring-bone stitch with red cotton. It was cut in sack shape and buttoned behind. Three scant, straight ruffles, two inches wide, were worked with red, and a double row for a heading to the top one. A long V was outlined in the front with it, and it was put on around the back in the shape of a square collar; a very narrow ruffle around the back in the shape of the square collar; a very narrow ruffle around the throat, edged also with the cotton, and two on the sleeves, with a belt and extending only from seam to seam, completed this charming little dress.

A dark calico was laid in three box plaits were stitched down within five inches of the bottom, which was finished with a pretty border.

The best dress was of darned net, to be worn over pink, blue or scarlet slips, made of undressed cambric.

For wraps, there were two sacks. One was of white Shaker flannel, at sixty-five cents a yard, thirty-six inches wide, and one yard made the sack. It was pinked in the edge and worked above in a little vine with cardinal and gold colored silk. The other was of heavy gray flannel, cut long enough to cover the gait, and fitted in the back with one seam. It had a large collar, pockets and cuffs worked with black split zephyr.

A wardrobe for an older sister is in process of making. I will describe it in another paper.

He got mad in Iowa the other day and wrote to the editor of the New York Tribune as follows: "Your dirty sheet of abuse of March 1st is before me, and I hope to god it is the last copy that will ever come to my notice." Which led the Tribune to observe that a man who always allude to himself in capitals, and spells these Almighty with a small g, must be a person of tremendous importance.

Dear Sir,—I am not writing you as a correspondent, but merely to give you a boy's idea of the beauties of the rocky shores and blue waters of the Georgian Bay, particularly that of Colpey's, into which I pass in and out on my daily route from Owen Sound and intermediate points. I have been appointed and am acting as clerk or purser, on the propeller "Josephine Kidd", at present engaged on much the same route as the unfortunate Jane Miller. Though young at the business, I think I can vouch for it, having lots to do with freight and passengers to and from the ports along our route. Colpey's Bay is considered the best sheltered bay in these waters, being about two miles wide and ten miles long, protected at the mouth by three noted large islands, The Bay, Whitecloud and Griffiths, each containing water to the depth of one to three hundred fathoms. The shores are very picturesque and grand with high and bright rock. If I was up in the sketching business I would not be at a loss for scenes here. I often times think of my schoolmates in Goderich and my home, but there is something exciting in my calling that take away my lonesome feelings. We are doing a large freight trade, and expect it to increase at the season advances particularly with excursions off the G. T. R. from Harton, our present port of stopping. You must not think me boastful or presumptive in taking this liberty. Yours with respect. A. M. HUMBER.

TO THE Free and Independent Electors of West Durham.

GENTLEMEN,—

The Government, which but a brief space since was craving a longer trial before judgment, has prematurely dissolved parliament and precipitated a general election.

For what reason? Because it felt that it would be weaker next year than it is to-day, and that its only chance of victory lay in a surprise. But it has not ventured to appeal to the constituency of 1878. It has packed the jury.

By an iniquitous measure it has concentrated in a few districts large numbers of liberal voters in order to weaken the effective Reform strength in many ridings, to impair the prospects of election of leading Liberals, and, in fact, to turn a minority of the people into a majority in parliament.

For these purposes it has disregarded the county bounds, disturbed the electoral districts, and violated long-standing associations of friendship, business, and convenience throughout the greater part of Ontario.

But even that was not enough! Repealing the law which makes sheriffs and registrars the returning-officers, it has taken power to appoint where it pleases its own nominees to do its work, and to re-enact the scenes of ten years ago, when men defeated at the polls in Muskoka and West Peterboro were made into members of parliament by the will of these officials.

Such acts are subversive of those principles of justice, equality, and fair play on which our constitution rests, and which give a moral sanction to the laws.

They show that Government, notwithstanding all it boasts, feels itself beaten in a fair fight; and so attempts foul play.

We are appealing to all good men, without distinction of party, to rebuke this gross abuse of power; and to show its authors that although they may exchange townships and cut up counties as they like, the votes of the electors on whom the supporters of iniquities like these.

We are calling not only for an enthusiastic, vigorous, and organized effort on the part of Reformers, but also for the support of many, heretofore indifferent or hostile, who will yet yet decline to become accomplices in this transaction. Our call is answered! Such a spirit has been aroused among the people as large as I have not seen before—such a spirit as warrants the belief that the attempt will fail of its base purpose, and will recoil with just severity on the heads of the concoctors and supporters of the plot.

On what do the Government ask a renewal of your confidence? On a record of broken pledges and of added burdens.

They promised that they would not increase the rate of taxation; they have enormously increased it.

They denuded the former scale of expenditure; they have largely raised it.

They declaimed against the additions which were made to the public charge in order to carry out a policy and engagements settled under their own former rule, and left by them as legacies to their successors in 1878. They have greatly added to that charge; and have, as far as in them lay, ensured the recurrence of a period of severe financial and distress.

They boast of an increased revenue; due, so far as they are concerned, to increased taxation only.

They boast of an enlarged prosperity; due not to them, but to the general revival of trade throughout the world, to large products at home, and high prices abroad.

They pride themselves on their Pacific railway contract. I condemn that bargain as improper, being made in secret, without public tender, contrary to the existing policy of the people and of parliament, and opposed to the provisions of the law. I condemn it as extravagant since the enterprise will cost us sixty million dollars and twenty-five million acres of the choicest lands, while the road is to belong to the company which will realize the cost of its part of the work out of its land and money subsidies.

I condemn it as outrageous, in conferring on the country a practical monopoly, for twenty years, of the trade of our Northwest territories, and large privileges and exemptions very valuable to the public.

I condemn it as indefensible, being consummated in the face of a tender to perform the same obligations for three million dollars less money, for the same million acres less land, without the monopoly of trade, without the exemptions from taxation, and on other conditions much more favorable than those of the contract.

I condemn it as premature, since the true policy was to provide for the rapid completion of the line from Thunder Bay for the immediate construction of railways through the prairie, and by securing the early development and settlement of the Northwest to give value to our lands and a traffic for the road before contracting for the completion of the eastern and western ends.

The progress of the Northwest is due to the work we did and propose to do. The difficulties and drawback which exist, very serious now and far more serious in the future, are due to the obnoxious terms of the contract.

One short year has vindicated our policy. Who can doubt that, had it been adopted, we could to-day make a bargain for the undertaking infinitely better than those to which we are now committed? The Government and parliament declined to give you an opportunity of deciding on the question. We have now to ask the popular judgment on the men who refused that opportunity and consummated that contract.

You know well that I do not approve of needless restrictions on our liberty of exchanging what we have for what we want, and do not see that any substantial application of the restrictive principle has been or can be, made in favor of the great interests of the mechanic, the laborer, the farmer, the lumberman, the shipbuilder, or the fisherman. But you know also that I have fully recognized the fact that we are obliged to raise yearly a great sum, made greater by the obligations imposed on us by this Government; and that we must continue to provide this yearly sum mainly by import duties, laid to a great extent on goods similar to those on which can be manufactured here; and that it results as necessary incident of our settled fiscal system that there must be a large, and, as I believe, in the view of moderate protectionists, an ample advantage to the home manufacturer.

Our adversaries wish to present to you an issue as between the present tariff and absolute free trade.

This is not the true issue! Free trade is, as I have repeatedly explained, for us impossible; and the issue is whether the present tariff is perfect or defective and unjust.

I believe it to be in some important respects defective and unjust.

We expressed our views last session in four motions, which declare that articles of such prime necessity as fuel and breadstuffs should be free of duty; that duties should be so adjusted as to relieve the consumer from some part of the enormous extra price he is now liable to pay to a few refiners; that the exorbitant and unequal duties on the lower grades of cottons and woollens should be so changed as to make them fairer to the masses, who now pay on the cheap-out goods taxes about twice as great in proportion as those which the rich pay on the finest goods; and that the duties on such materials as iron, which is in universal use, should be reduced, so as to enable the home manufacturer, to whom it is a raw material, to produce a cheaper article, for the benefit of his home consumer, and the encouragement of his foreign trade.

I believe that by changes of the character I have indicated monopoly and extravagant prices would be checked, a greater measure of fair play and justice to all classes would be secured, and the burden of taxation would be better adjusted to the capacity of the people who are to pay.

Depend upon it, a day will come when by sharp and bitter experience we shall learn the truth; and many who now applaud will then condemn these particular incidents of the tariff.

But I believe that one brief experience has already convinced many former supporters of the need of amendment; and that a majority of the intelligent electors are in favor of such modifications in the direction I have pointed out as may be made with a due regard to the legitimate interests of all concerned.

I challenge the Northwest land policy of the government, which has in various forms given facilities for speculation, whereby great areas of the choicest lands are falling into the hands of middlemen, who will hold them till they exact from the immigrant large profits, thus at once retarding the development of the country and lessening the prosperity of the settler.

Our motto is, "The land for the settler, the price for the public!"

The report of the civil service commission shows that the existing system has resulted in bad appointments, extravagant salaries, the retention of unfit officers, the discouragement of many deserving men, and great injury to the public. It shows that the true remedy is the abolition of political patronage, the substitution of appointments by merit, and the reorganization of the system.

Agreeing in the main with these views, I believe that the new act, which proceeds on other lines, will not remedy the admitted evils.

Provision is needed to prevent improper practices in connection with tenders and contracts for public works; but the Government has thwarted such legislation.

Those who have not forgotten the events of 1872 will know the reason why.

Our provincial rights are amongst the chief jewels of our constitution; and on their preservation rest the prosperity and the permanence of the confederation.

Of these the most valuable—that indeed on which all else depends—is the right of effective local legislation on local affairs.

This right has been grievously infringed by the disallowance of the streams act, which dealt with a subject purely local, and in no wise conflicted with Dominion interests.

Its disallowance on the ground that in the opinion of the federal cabinet it was not a proper act, creates a dangerous precedent, and asserts a power destructive of the autonomy of the province.

The majority of the late parliament sanctioned, while we denounced that disallowance.

It is now for the people to decide whether they will abandon or regain their threatened liberties.

The respective governments some years ago submitted the boundary question to the judgment of a commission of eminent, able and impartial men. The fact was communicated to and discussed in parliament, and although several sessions elapsed, no adverse motion was proposed. On the contrary, parliament without dissent voted the money necessary to carry on the reference, and thus adopted the policy.

It was the received opinion that the natural, reasonable, and customary mode of settling an international question by arbitration would not be thereafter questioned.

The award was made in 1878; the present government in 1879 declined to state its policy on the question; in 1880 it promoted the appointment of a partisan committee of enquiry; in 1881 it brought Manitoba into the controversy by its mode of enlarging her eastern limits; then it announced the opinion that Ontario did not comprise even 1/2 old settlements in the neighborhood of Fort William; and at length, in 1882, it took courage to declare to parliament that the award should be disregarded in order to a struggle to contract, if possible, within those narrow bounds the limits of our province.

The majority in the late parliament has sanctioned, while we have condemned this action. It is for the people to decide whether the reference and award shall be repudiated or respected.

The Senate is constituted on the principle of appointment for life by the administration of the day, thus creating a legislative body responsible to no one, without provision to secure effective federal representation, or the necessary degree of harmony between the two chambers.

I think this plan defective, and out of keeping with the true principles of popular government as at this time developed.

Some would favor the abolition of the senate; but we must not forget that on this subject the other provinces are differently circumstanced from Ontario; and that the senate was established as a part of the federal system in the professed interest of the smaller provinces.

I do not propose that the provinces should be deprived of the right, which many value, of federal representation, in the present proportions, in a chamber; but I would advocate the reduction of its numbers and the election by the people of its members. Our own experience in Old Canada gives proof of the wisdom of this plan.

I am in favor of a true national policy and of every measure tending to the real progress of our country and the fulfilment of its great destiny.

The other day I gave, by my heart and voice for the assertion of our right, as members of the empire, to express our views on the subject of Ireland, a truly Imperial question, beyond our legislative competence indeed, but in which, notwithstanding, we have from many points of view a most substantial interest; and I congratulate you on the action to which parliament agreed.

It is a main ingredient in our national progress that we should secure a larger trade and freer access to the markets of the world.

Our efforts in this direction have hitherto been abortive.

I believe that a fuller freedom to manage for ourselves this part of our own affairs would give a better prospect of success; and as advocates of a truly national policy, we have recorded these views in a motion, which was defeated in parliament, but for which I ask a verdict at the polls.

Gentlemen, the occasion is a grave one.

To the people is now remitted the opportunity of judging of the conduct of its rulers and of settling the lines on which public affairs shall be conducted for five years at any rate, and mayhap for a much longer time.

I hope to be able, before the close of the election, to explain at greater length my opinion on public affairs; but I have thought it right, at the earliest moment, to state frankly my views on some important questions as fully as is compatible with the limits of an address.

I cannot expect every one, even of my own supporters, to concur entirely in every sentiment I express.

Men's minds are not so constituted that one can hope to secure such absolute and complete assent.

It is on a large, general, and comprehensive view that we must act. If in the main you differ from me, it is your duty to reject me as unsuited for your service; and I shall accept your decision with unfeigned respect and unabated friendship.

But if in the main you value the principles and approve the policy I have announced; if you are prepared to condemn the fraud which would cheat our people of a fair representation, the wrong which would deprive us of our provincial rights, the injustice which would repudiate an international award, the crime which has placed our future in the North-West in the hands of a great monopoly; the additions, in breach of solemn pledge, to taxation, expenditure, and public charge; the schemes which substitute for the good of the masses and for fair taxation, the aggrandizement of a few and the rich and the oppression of the many and the poor; if you are prepared to give your voice for freedom and justice, for retrenchment and reform, for fair play and equal rights, for real progress and true national development—then I ask for your support, and will do what in me lies to justify your decision.

And in the hope and belief that such will be your verdict,

I am, Gentlemen, Your faithful servant, EDWARD BLAKE.

ELECTRICITY AND MAGNETISM when properly passed into the blood, brain and nerves produces the most wonderful effects. We are told that these elements are perfectly blended in the medicine known as Mack's Magnetic Medicine, advertised in another column, and the good which has resulted from its use cannot be computed in dollars and cents.

The market is full of preparations for the hair, some of them good, and many of them good for nothing. R. P. Hall & Co., of Nashua, N. H., manufacture and sell an article of real merit, which has been advertised in the Express for the past year, and we have taken no pains to inquire how it has been liked by the public. One of our druggists informs us that he has sold more than double the amount of Renower than of all other hair preparations combined, and when a person once uses it, he will use no other; that it is not only bought by the young people as a dressing, but by older persons for removing dandruff, preserving and increasing the growth of the hair and restoring its natural color. Another druggist says that he sells three or four times as much of Hall's, as of all other.—[Hampshire Express, Amherst, Mass.

OUR MOTTO:

"Ontario's Rights we will maintain."

WEST HURON.

Mr. M. C. Cameron, the Reform candidate for West Huron, is making a steady and firm fight in this constituency.

The riding has a Conservative majority of 117, on the basis of the election returns of 1878, but the gerrymandering of Ontario is an acknowledgment on the part of the Tories that the figures of 1878 are not a criterion in the coming contest.

Mr. Cameron is well-known in the County of Huron as one of its foremost men. His parliamentary career dates back to the year of Confederation, and his progress as a politician has been upward and onward from that time to the present, until he now ranks with the acknowledged leaders of the Liberal party.

As a faithful and steady worker in the interest of the County of Huron, Mr. Cameron has no superior. He is opposed in the present contest by a gentleman from South Perth who has no right, title or interest in Huron, as at present constituted for electoral purposes.

This gentleman, who seeks to thrust out a local man of the eminent standing of Mr. Cameron, is a thick-and-thin supporter of Sir John Macdonald in his onslaught on Ontario's rights. He endorses the action of the present Government in the obliteration of 54 riding boundaries of Ontario; he upholds Sir John in the base attempt to emancipate this province by taking from it 97,000 square miles of territory duly arbitrated to it by a commission appointed by Order-in-Council to make a final award, and whose action was endorsed by Act of Parliament; he approves of the contract-breaking and jobbery of Sir Godefrid Tupper and his satellites, to defraud the Dominion of its substance so that friends of the Minister of Railways shall fatten; he believes in the system of feeding the relatives of the Ministers; the Tollers, the Papes, the Langvans and others—at the public crib. These, and every other act of the Government, the candidate from South Perth is perfectly willing to swallow, though the digestion of such fare would be a most disagreeable operation. And the electors of West Huron are asked to find a place for him, and to thrust a tried and able local man aside so that a place may be found for this alien, whose only qualification seems to be a glib tongue. Out upon the men who connive at such a scheme! The electors will condone no such act on the 20th of June. We look for a good response to Mr. Cameron's appeal to his fellow-electors and neighbors on election day, independent of party feeling, and we have every confidence that the aspirant from South Perth will be relegated to the quiet hamlet of Kirkton on that occasion, to practice oratory to the tree tops of Ashburne. Even Sir John Macdonald had no confidence in the man when he exiled him to South Perth; how, then, can even the most rabid Tory in the county endorse the Rejected of the Chieftain?

EAST HURON.

From reliable advices received from East Huron, we learn that the chances of Dr. Sloan in that constituency are growing brighter day by day.

Many old-time Conservatives are breaking connection with their party rather than allow the destruction of Ontario's Provincial autonomy to be consummated with their sanction.

Howick, the great Tory centre, has decidedly weakened of late, and Grey township, the Reform stronghold, will swap the entire Tory majority. The votes came out in Grey on the 2nd of Nov., 1878, for Sir Richard Cartwright. Equally good work for Dr. Sloan on the 20th June, 1882, will carry the riding.

SOUTH HURON.

At the Reform convention, held in Clinton on Friday last, Mr. John McMillan, the popular Reeve of Bulleit, was selected as the standard-bearer in South Huron. The choice was an excellent one, and if moral worth, integrity, true ability, and faithful service to the Reform party for long years, are essential qualifications for a candidate for Parliament, no better selection could be made.

Mr. McMillan has a well-earned reputation as a forcible platform speaker and clever debater; he has occupied for years the highest municipal position in the gift of the electors of the township in which he resides; his position as one of the foremost agriculturists of Canada was conceded when he was appointed to the Ontario Agricultural Commission, which did such good work in the interest of the farming community of this Province; he has been eminently successful as a practical farmer, and has by patient toil, perseverance and sound business habits succeeded in reaching a safe financial position; and has, above all, succeeded in obtaining a reputation for probity and honorable dealing, which is more valuable than gold and more enduring than marble.

With such a man in the field in the Reform interest, it is doubtful that the Tories of South Huron will place an opponent against him in that riding. Mr. McMillan's nomination in this "hive," is practically his election to Parliament, and we have to congratulate our old and tried friend on the honor which his fellow-electors have seen fit to bestow upon him.

THE BOUNDARY AWARD.

The Tory candidate for West Huron, evidently reads no newspaper but the Toronto Mail. On that account he will not have seen the resolution which we print below, concerning the duty of Ontario on the question of the Boundary Award.

The resolution was passed in the Legislature of Ontario on the 3rd of March, 1881, and was endorsed and voted for by every member of the House—Grit and Tory—with the exception of Baskerville, of Ottawa. We therefore publish it for the benefit of Mr. Porter and his friends who may not have had an opportunity of seeing it or hearing of it before—

"That this House deeply regrets that notwithstanding the unanimous award made on the 3rd of August, 1878, by the arbitrators appointed by the joint and concurrent action of the Government of Canada and the Government of Ontario to determine the northerly and westerly boundaries of this Province, no legislation has been submitted by the Government of Canada to the Dominion Parliament for the purpose of confirming that award, nor has the validity of the award yet been recognized by the Government of Canada.

"That the omission of the Government and Parliament of Canada to confirm the award is attained with grave inconvenience, has the effect of retarding settlement and municipal organization, embarrasses the administration of the laws, and interferes with the preservation of the peace, the maintenance of order, and the establishment of good government in the northerly and north-westerly parts of the Province of Ontario.

"That it is the duty of the Government of Ontario to assert and maintain the just claims and rights of the Province of Ontario as determined by the award of the arbitrators; and this House hereby reaffirms its determination to give its cordial support to the Government of Ontario in any steps it may be necessary to take to sustain the award, and to assert and maintain the just claims and rights of the Province as thereby declared and determined.

MR. FRED. W. JOHNSTON, of Goderich, and George Hawkins, of Port Albert, are the candidate from South Perth's fugitives in Ashfield. They tried to act in a high-handed manner at Mr. Cameron's Port Albert meeting, but failed. They were also willing to work mischief at Kingsbridge, but dared not show their hands in that staunch settlement. They are a brace of very nice "birds," to say the least, and we wish Mr. Porter joy of his armor-bearers. Politics, like misfortune, makes strange bedfellows.

THE anonymous rib-stabbers are at work in our Tory contemporaries. The straight-out, manly attitude of the Reform papers is in marked contrast to the conduct of the Conservative press in this section. In the former there is open fighting, and no hitting below the belt; in the latter rib-stabbing is secretly done by a cowardly correspondent who hides behind a nameless signature.

WHAT the electors of East Huron are saying—"Sloan sure."

This opinion in West Huron "A Cameron never will yield."

WHERE was the chairman of the Court of Revision on Tuesday last?

South Huron says—"We're a Grit 'hive,' and we've got a king bee."

THE composition of the Dominion Parliament will be as follows under the Redistribution Bill: Ontario, 92; Quebec, 65; Nova Scotia, 21; New Brunswick, 16; Manitoba, 5; British Columbia, 6; Prince Edward Island, 6. Total for the Dominion, 211.

THIS is the conundrum that agitates the minds of the Goderich Tories at present: Why didn't Sir John select a solid Goderich Tory for Returning Officer, instead of going out of the West Riding, to Wingham, for one? and echoes answers, "Why, oh why?"

Tax intelligent Catholics of Ashfield are remarking upon the colossal check of the County Master of the Orange Order, who has been "bearding around" in that township during the week, canvassing for the Conservative candidate. The County Master is not so insulting in his remarks about Irish Catholics as he generally is about the 12th of July and does not wear his badge.

THE Tories were not always fond of surpluses. In 1875 the Reform Government had a modest surplus of half a million. Dr. Tupper objected to that condition of affairs, and said: "The Government have no right to have a surplus; and if they have they should get rid of it by lightening the taxes of the people." To-day Tupper is glorying in the fact of having a surplus for the year of $7,500,000, but he "sings dumb" on the matter of lightening the taxes of the people.

It is now stated, on good authority, that an arrangement has been entered into between Mr. Thomas Farrow and Dr. William Joseph Russell Holmes, of Brussels, that the former, after being elected in East Huron, will accept a fat Government office and resign in favor of the latter. This little compact is a mighty nice how-d'y-e-do, so far as the electors of East Huron are concerned. Not satisfied with gerrymandering the constituencies to suit themselves, these two conspirators must, forthwith, inflict upon the electors of East Huron the trouble, annoyance and expense of two elections. Well, well, it fortunately happens that neither Mr. Farrow nor Dr. Holmes carries East Huron in his pantaloons pocket. The voters of that constituency are calculating and careful people, and we much mistake the mettle of the electors of that riding, if on the evening of the 20th of June, the late member for North Huron will not be "made for" East Huron. His requiem will be sung on the evening of election day.

A voice in South Perth.

Mr. Robert Porter, who has been gerrymandered out of South Huron, is reported to have stated at a public meeting the other day, that Mr. Guest offered to retire in his favor in South Perth. It seems incredible that Mr. Guest, who fought so keenly for the nomination would so early in the contest offer to step down and out in favor of one who did nothing—whose municipality was not even represented at the convention—to help him get the nomination. But even if he made the offer, it did not follow that Mr. Porter would be adopted as his successor in the candidacy. There were other aspirants in the field whose claims would take precedence over Mr. Porter's even with Mr. Guest's backing. We are inclined to think Mr. Porter must have been pulling his audience. He must be a baggart.—[Stratford Beacon.]

The Feeling in Toronto.

As an evidence of the strength of feeling, I may state that old Reformers, who have taken no active part in political contests for twenty years, are attending committee meetings, and doing other electioneering work with the zeal and enthusiasm of a quarter of a century ago. Nor is the cause far to seek. Sir John's repudiation of the Boundary Award, and his subsequent attempt to fix that repudiation permanently by gerrymandering the constituencies, has roused the old fire, and added new brands to swell the conflagration. Nor is this all, or even the most satisfactory feature of the situation. There are hosts of men who never before took a pronounced stand in matters of party politics who are now flocking around the Liberal standard. They openly declare that while they would prefer a stronger pro-Tariff utterance from Mr. Blake, they deem it of more importance in this contest to see that Ontario has her rights. If they are not secured now they will be lost for ever, and the tariff question, especially in view of the impossibility of greatly disturbing the customs duties, will keep. As the contest goes on this feeling grows stronger, and in order to settle once for all the right of Ontario to her own territory and repudiate once for all French-Bled dictation and insolence they are willing to take Mr. Blake at his word and accept them, pro tem.

LIBERAL TARIFF RESOLUTIONS.

But there are also some Protectionists who favor these resolutions on the ground that, as they assist weak points in the tariff, they will improve it carried. The manufacturers would all like to see the coal and iron duties removed.—[Correspondence London Advertiser.]

OBITUARY.

Death of the Rev. Father McGauran.

On Tuesday morning, the 23rd inst., there died at Goderich the Rev. Father McGauran, a worthy and devoted member of the Roman Catholic Priesthood.

He was born in Ballisadore, county Sligo, Ireland, on the 14th August, 1821. He was educated at the college of St. Ann La Poestriere, P. Q., and was ordained at Quebec by Archbishop Signay on the 23rd April, 1846, and was appointed by Nicaire St. Francois Du Lac in 1847 Chaplain, at Grosse Ile. He was the first priest stricken with ship fever, from the effects of which and the labors he then underwent he never entirely recovered. He was appointed in the same year Vicar of St. Patrick, Quebec. In 1848 he was a missionary in the eastern townships, his mission, including nearly the whole of the present Diocese of Sherbrooke, which he resigned in 1854, and was then appointed to Deseronto, under Lange Gardien, and subsequently to Villars de Levis, and in 1856 Rector of St. Patrick's, Quebec, which he resigned, and retired from the active ministry in 1874. In 1871 the Silver Jubilee Priesthood presented him with an address, and he was very many times invited to preside of the church. In 1872 he visited Europe. In Ireland he was the recipient of many marks of esteem, notably from the late Archbishop McHale. In London, England, he was received and hospitably entertained by Cardinal Manning to whom he imparted a vast amount of information regarding Canada, more particularly as to its school system. In Rome, he was accorded a private audience with the Pope, and was authorized to bestow the Papal benediction on his flock. He was especially honored by Cardinal Dean Patrizzi, who obtained for him every special spiritual privilege, including that of a private altar. In 1856 he founded the St. Bridget's Asylum, in Quebec, which, from a small beginning, is to-day a lasting monument to his memory. During the dark days of the ship fever alluded to, which visited the Irish emigrants, who, during the season of famine, were crowded into crowded homes in Canada, he rendered noble service, and in the hearts of the Irish of Quebec his name and works have earned perpetual remembrance, and through this diocese the news of his death will be a message of mourning to many homes.

In Rev. Father McGauran, the Irish people have a generous, warm-hearted, sympathetic friend, and the Roman Catholic Church one of its noblest sons. Since 1874 the date of his retirement from active ministerial work, he resided with his nephew, the Rev. Father Watters, of Goderich, where his death took place.

THE OBSEQUES.

On Wednesday, May 24th, the solemn obsequies of the Rev. Father McGauran, uncle of Rev. Father Watters, the worthy pastor of St. Peter's church, took place in the Roman Catholic church of this town. Ten in their own hands, and the impressive ceremony, but long before that hour crowds could be seen wending their way to the church. Shortly before the appointed hour, the Office of the Dead was recited by the clergymen, who came from distant parts of the Diocese of London to manifest by their presence, esteem and veneration which they entertained for the deceased clergyman.

The body was placed in a very handsome square casket of grained rosewood, dressed in his canonical vestments, with his chalice at his head, his crucifix in his hands, and his barrette laid below. Such a holy calm rested upon his features, and he lay as if asleep in the arms of his Divine Master, whom he served faithfully, and "Like a warrior of Christ he lay taking his rest, with his martial cloak around him."

The body lay in state at the Presbytery of St. Peter's, from 7 a.m. until the evening, when it was conveyed to the church, and remained in state, placed on the bier, at the communion railing in front of the altar until the Liberia mea was sung on the following day at the conclusion of the Requiem High Mass. A table was placed between the sanctuary and the altar for the reception of the floral offerings, which were beautiful. Two lovely floral crosses were the gifts of Mr. M. C. Cameron, M. P. and Miss Bingham a handsome basket of flowers, the gift of Mrs. Currie; a number of choice flowers in pots, the offerings of Messadams MacDougall and MacGregor; a beautiful collection of greenhouse plants the gift of Col. A. M. Ross, M. P. P.; a handsome lily, the gift of Miss Annie Doyle, of the Park House, and a number of floral gifts from members of the congregation, including a small cross of daisies and an anchor of pansies. On the morning of the funeral, 24th May, as the young ladies of the Sodality of the B. V. entered the church, followed by the children of the convent and Separate Schools, each one deposited a bouquet upon the casket as they passed by. The girls wore badges of crape, tied with white ribbon, and the boys bands of crape, also tied with white on the left arm. The young ladies of the Sodality wore their white flowing veils, and the little girls were all dressed in black. The altar and church were draped in black and white.

Precisely at 10 a.m. the preliminary funeral obsequies for the reception of the venerable departed were performed by the Rev. Monsigneur Bruyere, of London, Vicar General of the diocese, assisted by Rev. Dean Murphy, of Dublin, Dr. Kilroy of Stratford, and Fathers Boubat, of Ingersoll, Connolly, of Biddulph, Brennan, of St. Mary's, Roman, of Bothwell, O'Shea, of Seaford, O'Connor and McGrath, of Wawanosh, of the Shrine of Dublin, and Father Watters, of Goderich, nephew of the deceased. The Requiem High Mass was celebrated by Father Connolly, of Biddulph, assisted by Fathers Brennan, deacon, and O'Connor, sub-deacon. The funeral sermon was preached by Monsigneur Bruyere, Vicar General. The choir, under the able leadership of Miss Downie, organist of Seaford, assisted by Miss Welsh, of Seaford, and Fathers Murphy and Boubat, sang the Gregorian chant. Fathers Murphy and Boubat sang alternately with the choir. At the offertory the beautiful duet, "The Dying Christian to his Soul," was sung by Miss Downie, alto, and Miss Welsh, Soprano. At the elevation the solo (Handel's hymn), "Angels ever high and fair," was sung by Miss Downie.

FUNERAL SERMON.

At the end of the Mass, the Right Rev. Mgr. Bruyere, Vicar-General of London addressed the congregation. He commenced by saying they were assembled to perform a melancholy ceremony—to take part at the funeral of one whose spirit had returned to its Creator. Death was always a solemn warning, but especially so when the subject over whom we mourned had many claims to our love and esteem. Such was the one around whose remains they were now assembled.

The Rev. Father McGauran, who had been a clergyman of the highest standing. But great as was the loss we had sustained, we were not to sorrow like those who knew no hope. To the just death was not the close of being, but a change of state—a removal from a world of trouble to the abode of bliss and everlasting joy. By death the good and virtuous bade adieu to a world of sin to go to the City of the Living God—the land of promised rest.—The right reverend speaker had no doubt that such was the happy reward bestowed by a merciful God on the worthy priest whose remains lay before them. The apostolic labor of the Rev. Father McGauran during an active working life of nearly forty years in the diocese of Quebec, was next referred to, and the prudence and zeal which had endeared him to his flock was highly commended. Father McGauran was not only a holy priest but a martyr, having several times exposed his life while attending the ship fever patients in 1847. At length, wearied and exhausted by ceaseless labors, the reverend gentleman had to resign his charge as pastor of St. Patrick's in Quebec and seek a life of retirement and rest with his nephew, the worthy pastor of Goderich parish, in whose house he expired last Monday morning, aged 60 years. The death of Father McGauran was, like his life, holy and edifying. He expired quietly, having received with sentiments of the greatest joy the last sacred rites of his church. In conclusion Mgr. Bruyere remarked that, holy and pure as the life of Father McGauran had been, they who survived had still a duty to perform in conformity to the teaching of the Church—to pray for the dead that they may be lost from sin. Nothing sinful can be admitted into heaven, we are assured by Holy Writ. It was, therefore, a pleasing duty for Catholics to remember their departed friends before God. This they had done during the holy sacrifice of the Mass just offered up. In conclusion the right reverend speaker requested the congregation to accompany the remains of the deceased to the railway station.

At the conclusion of the Liberia mea, the congregation took their last leave of the departed and the mourners, Messrs. McDougall, Shannon, James Doyle, B. L. Deyle, Currie and O'Dea carried the coffin from the catafalque at the railing to the hearse.

FUNERAL PROCESSION.

Young ladies of the Sodality of the B. V. Girls and 300 of the Convent and Separate Schools.

Hearse and pall-bearers. Mourners—Fathers Watters, Miss Mullen and Dr. McGauran.

Carriages containing Messrs Bruyere, Dr. Kilroy, Dean Murphy and the other clergymen. Members of the congregation.

Large escort of their Protestant friends.

Father McGauran's remains were taken, according to his expressed wish, to Quebec for interment. Having been ordained in that ancient citadel 37 years ago, and having labored long and faithfully there for the spiritual welfare of those people, he desired that his bones might be laid amongst those whom he loved tenderly. No doubt memory will recall in the minds of the people of Quebec many of the noble traits of character which the deceased possessed. His remains were accompanied by his nephews, Rev. Father Watters and Dr. McGauran, of New York, Miss Mullen, and his old and cherished friend through life, Rev. Father Connolly.

Though Father McGauran was not long living in our midst, still, by his gentle and loving bearing, his extreme kindness and goodness, he was a general favorite with the inhabitants of Goderich, not only of his own persuasion, but with all denominations, as was shown by the large number who accompanied his remains to the station.

His intimate friends will miss him greatly. No longer will they be able to hear paternal counsel from his lips, nor see the pleasant smile from his lips, nor feel the warm hand upon his countenance. His absence will create a void which can never be supplied. But all trust that the change from time to eternity is a happy one for him, and that he is now enjoying the blessings of the Master, whom he served so faithfully.

The Quebec Chronicle of Saturday last, thus refers to the funeral obsequies of the late Father McGauran: In accordance with the announcement, St. Patrick's church was yesterday morning filled in all its parts with a sympathetic and sorrowing congregation of some four thousand people, comprising all classes, creeds and nationalities, including several Protestant clergymen anxious to evince their respect and esteem for the regretted deceased former Pastor—Rev. Bernard McGauran. The floral offerings referred to yesterday were further increased by the addition of crosses, bouquets and wreaths from friends. From an early hour in the morning there was a constant stream of faithful, anxious to take a last view of those features so well beloved in life, and so fondly venerated in death. There was also a very large gathering of the Catholic clergy of the city and district, including His Grace the Archbishop, Monsignor Paquet, V. G., Very Rev. C. Legare, Lemoine, Bonneau, Watters, Colfer, Donnell, Gosselin, Boucher, Sexton, Saché, L. A. Proulx, Auclair, Hanebin, Beaulieu, Laford, McCrear, Bourque, Blais, Monge, Pilote, Lowinsky, Cronin, Cordeke, McCarthy, Rein and a number of others. The absence of an esteemed friend of the deceased—Rev. Mr. Neville—was caused by the delicate state of the reverend gentleman's health, which entirely prevented his undertaking the journey to Quebec. At ten o'clock, High Mass was commenced by Rev. John Connolly, P. P. of Biddulph, Ontario, assisted by Rev. Messrs. O'Leary and McGrath as Deacon and Sub-Deacon. The musical portion was Gregorian chant, and was rendered by a very full choir. At the offertory Mr. Denis Murray sang Schubert's

Adieu in very fine style. At the conclusion of the Mass, Rev. Father Bruyere, his successor in the Pastorate, ascended to the platform of the altar and preached the funeral oration, taking as his text Psalm lxxv. He enlarged on the personal worth of the lamented deceased and the esteem in which he was held in the community. He also referred to the services rendered by him at Grosse Ile in the ministry in the different missions to which he was appointed by his superiors, and including the eighteen years he had served as Rector of St. Patrick's, which he resigned through ill health in 1874. He also referred to his close connection with and the deep interest which he had always shown in all that concerned the welfare of the congregation and especially that excellent institution, St. Bridget's Asylum. He concluded with a warm appeal to the people to remember the soul of their beloved former pastor in their prayers. At the conclusion of the discourse His Grace the Archbishop officiated at the chanting of the Liberia mea and pronounced the final absolution. The body was then removed and placed in the hearse by six members of the St. Patrick's Literary Institute, when the cortege of mourners—clerical and lay—proceeded through St. Stanislas, St. John, Fabrique, Bauda, St. Anne, St. Ursule and St. Louis streets to St. Patrick's (Woodfield) Cemetery, where the final prayers were offered by an old and esteemed friend of the deceased—Rev. L. A. Proulx, former P. P. of St. Valere. The scene was an impressive one; the venerable appearance and the tremulous tones of the venerable septuagenarian invalid; the uncovered heads of the assembled mourners and the final blessing of the body by the seven Priests—asssembled around the grave, will not be easily forgotten by those who had the melancholy satisfaction of being present. In passing by the Basilica, the bells of that venerable edifice were rung as prescribed by the Rubrics for ecclesiastics and many of the places of business were closed. At St. Bridget's Asylum ex parte, the orphan children were seen grouped with uncovered heads on the steps of the institution, whilst the bell was tolled as a mark of respect to the memory of him who had done so much towards bringing it to its present prosperous condition.

Says an Ottawa despatch:—Mr. Jack Greenfield Macdonnell, who succeeded in running the E. C. Club into the ground, and who so wantonly insulted Mr. Huntington on the floor of the House, went to Glangarry the other day, and undertook to insult Mr. Bathurst, one of the most respectable citizens of that place. This time he got a most unmerciful thrashing for his pains.

ROBERT HILTON, Sheriff of Huron.

Sheriff's Office, Goderich, 1828-131.

THE SUBSCRIBER, FINDING this sum in the management of his business, will dispose of that property known as the West Wawanosh.

On Wednesday of last week, a barn in course of construction for Mr. John Nivins, of the 2d con. was blown down. Fortunately no one was hurt as the workmen had left the building a few minutes before it fell. The barn was a large one, and was almost finished.

Dunlop.

PERSONAL.—Mr. George Bear, of Holmesville, a former resident of this place was visiting friends here last week. He looked hearty.—The Misses Tasker, of Hullett, spent a few days with Mrs. Bear last week.—Miss Clara Emerton, of Goderich, is visiting here.

ENJOYMENT.—A large number of lads and their sweethearts had a pleasant gathering on the farm of Mr. P. Gallagher on the 24th inst., and had a merry time in games, etc. In the evening all adjourned to the house of Mrs. Coatt's residence, and spent the night in dancing, to the strains of Mr. John Gallagher's violin.

Goderich.

REYNARD.—Mr. Harvey Green captured a cute old fox one day last week. The gaudy creature was rejoicing at the thought that the barn yard predator is in defiance vile, and think the young gentleman is deserving of a testimonial for capturing Reynard. SIDE LINE.—The old side line, long used as a foot path, has been reopened, and pedestrians will no longer need to climb fences in making the short cut to town. If the council were to spend a few dollars in levelling rough places, it would be a great boon to those who travel to town on "Shank's mare."

Lochalsh.

Quite a number of buildings are being erected in this locality this year, there being several fine brick and stone houses on the list. We are pleased to note that Mr. D. McDonald, of Ashfield, who has been seriously ill for some time, is now much better; and Dr. McKinnon under whose care he is, expects that by the 20th of June he will be so well as to be able to travel and poll his vote for Mr. M. C. Cameron and good government. Satisfaction is felt here at the result of the nominations at Goderich on the 24th inst. It was not too difficult to find two men more suitable to represent West Huron in the Commons and Legislature than Mr. Cameron and Col. Ross. If the feeling in all parts of riding is anything like what it is here, there is not the least doubt but that Mr. Cameron will, on the 20th of June, be elected by no small majority. Here and nearly all "Cameron men" here, and we expect to give a good account of ourselves.

Dunlop.

Mr. Wm. McArthur, is authorized to receive subscriptions for THE HURON SIGNAL and give receipts therefor. The good people of the Methodist church here celebrated the Queen's Birthday, by holding a grand bazaar in the store formerly occupied by Mr. Clendenning. The day was all that could be desired and a large number of people availed themselves of seeing the specimens of handiwork of the ladies of the congregation. All the articles were disposed of with the exception of a very few. In the evening there was a grand entertainment under the auspices of the choir. There was a very full house. The chair was ably filled by Mr. Hetherington, of the Nile, who was in his most affable humor. All the elections were creditably performed. During the entertainment the autograph quilt was put up at auction and Mr. Varco of this place was fortunate enough to secure it. The proceeds from bazaar and entertainment amounted to somewhere in the neighborhood of $200.

Benniller.

Mr. M. C. Cameron, M. P., will address the voters of this vicinity on Friday, the 9th June, in the Temperance Hall, commencing at seven o'clock.

ACCIDENT.—Mr. Thos. Slattery, while working at the erection of Platt's Mill on Tuesday last, had a very narrow escape of being killed. He was struck on the head by a falling crowbar, and also fell about 12 feet. Dr. McLean was summoned as soon as possible, and dressed the wounds. He will soon recover, by being careful of himself.

PICNIC.—The grand picnic, held under the auspices of the Benniller brass band on the 24th was a grand success. A large number of pleasure seekers were present, some coming from the Nile, Port Albert, Carlow, and a good many from Zion and vicinity. Several were also present from Clinton. Various amusements were indulged in during the day, among them swinging and dancing. A large platform was erected for the convenience of those wishing to "trip the light fantastic!" Music was furnished by Mr. and Mrs. R. McCullough. The amount of $60 was taken in during the day.

Mr. Adam Robertson, of Guelph, died on Sunday night after a very short illness. Deceased was 70 years of age, and lived in Guelph for the past thirty-five years, during which time he has been elected to every municipal office, including that of Mayor. This year he was elected alderman, and one of his last official acts was the trip made to Toronto about a week ago to purchase a flag for the city, and which was to-day flying at half-mast, out of respect to his memory.

OVER THE GARDEN WALL.

"I hate tall women," said Fred Alden to his cousin Maude, as he sat at her feet, this mild May evening, watching her croquet, and smiling up into her round and rather expressionless face.

Blanche Holiday, at work in her garden near them, heard this, through the rifts in her father's old stone wall, and trembled silently.

This crazy wall, with its ragged outlooks on her neighbor's grounds, had grown to be a source of torture to her, as through it she heard all sorts of things she was not intended to hear (she was hopelessly and undeniably tall), and saw all sorts of things she would rather not have seen. Through it and over it she looked out from her uncomfortable, poverty-stricken home upon comfort and elegance and beauty; upon fountains and arbors and rustic seats, made to while delicious summer days upon; and at Fred Alden holding mild flirtations with his cousin Maude, who had a face and figure like one of the round pink-and-white shepherdesses cut in china on the mantel: light, fluffy hair, blue eyes, pink cheeks, a dear little dimpled chin, nesting down amid cloudy ruffles of crepe lisse or point-a-plique; and soft, dimpled, chubby hands, idling with blue and lilac wools, so becoming to their whiteness.

Blanche, herself bronzed by sun and wind and weather, cast shy and angry looks at her from the beds she was weeding, and did not lend so much for the beautiful home and wardrobe as for the love such things seem to bring with them.

She, at first, had liked to look at Fred, because he was so pleasant to look at; had liked to hear him talk, because he had such a pleasant way of speaking to every one—even Maude's father, who had the gout, and was, in every way, much like a hornet. At first she had loved him, slowly and imperceptibly, then fondly and anxiously, then tenderly and absorbingly—getting, at last, into such a mad passion over him, that she envied cousin Maude one touch of his hand, one glance of his careless eyes.

Fred, being a rising young man, full of fine and youthful notions, regarded the Holidays' thriftless, untidy home with supreme dissatisfaction.

Blanche's father, a weak, incompetent man, always falling in all his effortless ways, left his family to get along the best way they could, and was never certain to be on hand, only at meal times, which, so they were on time, it never occurred to him from what course they were procured.

Blanche, having tried many ways of earning her living—and having gone poor and shabby so many years, she had dropped out of society altogether—at last hit upon the idea of taking and cultivating the large waste plot of land back of the house, and with some help as to the spading and grubbing, she hoed and weeded and pruned all through the Spring and Summer raising berries, flowers and vegetables and keeping the family free from starvation by the sales of her hard-earned products.

Blanche worked away with untiring zeal from the time the morning began to grow pink till the moon shone, having the satisfaction of seeing her mother's face a little less careworn, and her little brothers sent to school, clad something near like the other children.

Her pretty elder sister early escaped the difficulties of an uncomfortable, shabby home by marrying a wealthy suitor. Blanche would have fared no likewise, but, not being pretty or attractive, had no lovers, and was obliged to fall back on her own resources.

It is not disheartening work to watch thrifty flowers and vegetables growing under one's own care, and Blanche had shot up like a reed, tall and healthy, with a pleasant, mild face, in a framing of soft brown hair, with eager, nervous hands that must work and grasp at something higher than herself, and beseeching, loving ways.

Eavesdroppers never hear any good of themselves, so Blanche, innocently playing the role of one, with her head down among the weeds, was often entertained by such colloquies as these: "There's old Holiday coming up the walk, as drunk as a fool."

"This from Maude's father, setting himself for his after-dinner nap, in his arm-chair on the porch.

"Did you ever see such a scarecrow as that Blanche Holiday is getting to be?" said Fred.

"I thought you used to like her looks, Fred?"

"So I did. But why is the girl eternally delving in that old garden, making a regular man of herself. Why don't she teach school?"

Here Blanche wipes away a bitter tear. Hadn't she aspired for years at one of the town schools? and were not the board strong democrats (and her father, always on the opposite side of everything, had each time taken his daughter's fate in his hands, and gone shaking his liberal views in their faces, and ranting against democracy, till the board declared "Old Holiday's daughter might starve for all the school they would give her, for some folks would be poor and contrary any way." And so she might had she not thought of the old garden.

I, from my old-maid attic, whose window looked out above both gardens, of the Holidays and the Aldens, often saw Blanche wince and cringe under saw orials; but I also saw that, for all Fred thought hers such manly employment, and for all his hatred of tall women, he often came and hung over the wall, and talked with her, and there was a kinder tone in his voice than he used even to little Maude, and a sort of kindness of spirit seemed to be between them; and Blanche confided to him all the secrets of her garden and her aspirations for the children, and began to flatter herself that her love was partially returned. An occasional pang of jealousy troubled her when she saw him walking with Maude on the terraces, evenings, hanging over Maude and her piano, and riding with Maude on the blessed, sunshiny afternoons, when she was so thinning the lettuce and radishes.

One hot June afternoon Blanche was transplanting cabbages, while all the world lay white and gasping with the dust and heat.

Old Mr. Alden had gone off to sleep, with his handkerchief over his head to keep off the gnats; Fred was in the doorway, with a palm-leaf fan, talking to Maude, who was shaking out a snowy satin dress, with a puffing of tulle looped up with orange-blossoms.

"How do you like it, Fred?" she was saying, enthusiastically. "Is it not exquisite? Do you like puffed waists on any one so short as I? and tell me how you like this sash? You ought to be the judge, you know, as this is my wedding-dress."

"I shall never get any higher than cabbages," said Blanche to herself, after the first regretful pang; and she cried a little in the shadow of the stony-hearted wall, which, nevertheless, remained deaf and callous to her pain.

After this she watched the further preparations with a stoical indifference pathetic to see.

Dress after dress came home for Maude; Fred's new suit came, too, with his white vest and gloves; the house began to be decorated and embellished in more than usual grandeur; a new corps of negro servants came, as well as the bride's cake and part of the silver.

Blanche avoided Fred now in every way and never spoke to him but once after she saw the preparations for the wedding; this was one day when she was wedding the onion-bed, and watering it with her tears.

"What are you cultivating now, Miss Blanche?" called Fred from the other side.

"Forget-me-nots," said Blanche, shortly, and ran into the house rapidly, to hide her swelling eyes.

The wedding festivities went on, and there was not an hour in which something new and delightful did not make its appearance for the eventful day.

A few days previous Maude's rich uncle arrived, a purdy, important old gentleman, "with a forehead going benevolently around to look for the back of his head," and Blanche saw him presenting Maude with a set of diamonds, glittering like gathered dew in their velvet cases.

A few days previous Maude's rich uncle arrived, a purdy, important old gentleman, "with a forehead going benevolently around to look for the back of his head," and Blanche saw him presenting Maude with a set of diamonds, glittering like gathered dew in their velvet cases.

Blanche avoided Fred now in every way and never spoke to him but once after she saw the preparations for the wedding; this was one day when she was wedding the onion-bed, and watering it with her tears.

"What are you cultivating now, Miss Blanche?" called Fred from the other side.

"Forget-me-nots," said Blanche, shortly, and ran into the house rapidly, to hide her swelling eyes.

The wedding festivities went on, and there was not an hour in which something new and delightful did not make its appearance for the eventful day.

Mr. James O. Neville, the well known General Import and Export Agent of the "Allan Line," and General Dominion Shipping Agent, of 538 Dorchester street Montreal, is an active member of the Shamrock Lacrosse club. While on a late exhibition to the States, said Mr. Neville to the writer, "my old foe, the rheumatism, attacked me and gave me a rough siege. I suffered with the ailment all through my trip and long after my return home. I tried several remedies and found them entirely useless. Having read the endorsements of well known people who have used St. Jacobs Oil, and been cured thereby, I determined to give it a trial. Upon the first application, I saw at once it was what I required. In two weeks time was as well as ever, and fully able to attend to my business. I have not had the least suggestion of rheumatism since. It is certainly a remarkable remedy and one that seems to me to be infallible."

Consumption, that dread destroyer of the human race, is often the result of bad food and low vitality, a careful condition of the system. BROWN'S BLEND BITTERS cure Scrofula in its worst form.

In the strongest sense of the term, they are the best and cheapest physician known. [Daily Times. Sold by Geo. Ryman, at 50 cents. [3.]

The Poet's Corner.

Every Day Heroes.

Oh, yes; they are all around us,
And in every walk of life;
Heroes the best, that stand the test
In many an unmarked strife.

Fun and Fancy.

Probably the finest exhibition of human courage that is ever witnessed can be seen by interviewing the passengers of a western road train half an hour after the robbers are gone.

"What building is that?" asked a stranger of a boy, pointing to a school house. "That," said the boy, "Why, that is a nursery." And he feelingly touched the building as he passed on.

The following remark of a little girl shows an opinion of her elders the reverse of flattering: "Oh, dear!" she exclaimed to her doll, "I do wish you would sit still. I never saw such an unsteady thing in all my life. Why don't you act like grown folks, and be still and stupid for a while."

A calf, full of wantonness and play, seeing an Ox at the plough, could not forbear insulting him. "What a sorry, poor drudge are you," said he, "to bear that heavy yoke, and go turning up the ground for a master!" "See what a happy life I lead," he added, when at evening he lay down, and went to take his rest, being led away by the flamen, a venerable man with a fondness for veal potpie.

Sidney Smith, the English wit, characterized the following as the most perfect fun he knew. In Mrs. Hamilton's
"Lecture on Education," a story is told of a school-girl, who, during her examination, insisted on misalluding the word patriarchs—partridges. "Oh," was the comment of an auditor, "she makes game of the patriarchs."

A SUGGESTION.—We publish the following paragraph from the "Lectures on Work" in order that our local clergymen may take advantage of it when the occasion requires: Last Sunday evening a Boston divine suddenly paused near the close of the sermon, and said, "We would be glad if that young man in the vestibule would come inside and satisfy himself whether he is, or is not, here.
That would be much better than keeping a half-inch draft on the occupants of the back pew." And in the solemn silence that followed, the congregation could hear a sound outside as of the retreat of an army with banners.

Rhines.

A father talking to his careless daughter said:—I want to speak to you of your mother. It may be that you have noticed a careworn look upon her face lately. Of course it has not been brought there by any act of yours, still it is your duty to chase it away. I want you to get up to-morrow morning and get breakfast, and your mother comes and begins to express her surprise, go right up to her and kiss her on the mouth. You can't imagine how it will brighten her dear face. Besides you owe her a kiss or two. Away back when you were a little girl she kissed you when no one else was tempted by your fervent-tainted breath and swollen face.
You were not so attractive then as you are now. And through those years of childish sunshine and shadow she was ready to cure by the magic of a mother's kiss, the little dirty chubby hands which she routed so many bad dreams as she leaned above your restless pillow, have all been on interest those long, long years. Of course she is not so pretty and kissable as you are, but if you had done your share of the work during the last ten years the contrast would not be so marked. Her face has more wrinkles than yours, far more, and yet if you were sick that face would appear more beautiful than an angels as it hovered over you, watching every opportunity to minister to their comfort, and every one of those wrinkles would seem to be bright wavelets of sunshine chasing each other over the dear face. She will leave you one of these days. These burdens, if not lifted from her shoulders, will break her down. Those rough, hard hands that have done so many unnecessary things for you will be crossed upon her lifeless breast. Those neglected lips that gave you your first baby kiss will be closed, and those sad, tired eyes will have opened in eternity, and then you will appreciate your mother, but it will be too late.

The Doctor's Last Happy Resort.
EVANVILLE, Ind., Jan. 11, 1882.
I recently had a very difficult case of Consumption. I treated it in the most scientific manner possible, but to no effect;
patient grew gradually worse.
Rather than give up, and as a last resource, I decided, much against my wish, to use a remedy that had cured one of my former patients. Greatly to my surprise, the patient began to gain, and in a much shorter time than I dared to ever expect, she was completely cured.
The name of this remarkable remedy is
Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption.
I now use it altogether in my practice.—[Leading M. D., Evansville,
