The Evening Chit-Chat

By RUTH CAMERON

Did it ever occur to you that there is such a thing as selfishness of obligation?

I think there is.
"Yes, I would have given anything to stay a week longer, but they wouldn't let me pay a cent for my board, and I didn't feel right to, without. I know they want to be kind, but it cut my vacation in half."

The speaker was a hard-working little woman. She was persuaded to take a rare and much needed breathing spell this summer. One week of this vacation she spent with some friends who, although not much better off in worldly goods than she, manage to have a summer cottage.

The other week she spent at home because these friends would not let her contribute a little towards the expense of the cottage.

So what was undoubtedly meant kindly on the part of her friends, ended by working a great deprivation to her.

How often people do things like that from a mistaken sense of kindness.
And how often it makes other people uncomfortable or works deprivation to them as in this case.

I know a girl who is very skillful at doing little dinner and dinner cards.
Her friends often want to get her to do something of the sort for them, but although she always seems glad to do the work she will never take any payment, and so they do not feel like asking her to help them out. The result is that they pay a professional a much larger price.

"Last summer," I heard a woman say just the other day. "I got a little neighbor of mine to take care of my cat while I was away. Of course I paid for his food, and when I came back I wanted to pay the little girl for the care, but her parents wouldn't let her take a cent. I felt terrible and her again. It would have been a great convenience to me and I know the little girl would be glad to do it for his loves cats, but what can you do? I think people are so foolish that way."

So do I.
There are many times when generous acceptance of money for services rendered, even when the transaction is between friends, is the highest courtesy.

And I think those people who will not accept such payment are selfish of obligation.

They want to keep the other party eternally under obligation. And since as everyone knows, being under too heavy obligation is uncomfortable, that is really a selfish state of mind.

Of course there are times when people offer to pay for things merely out of politeness or a sense of duty.

But I think such offers are easily discernible.
Far more often people want to pay for services rendered, in order that they may not feel under uncomfortable obligation, and in order that they may feel free to ask for these same services again some time.

Surely in such cases the kindest, most courteous, most unselfish way is to let them pay.

Facts for Weak Women

Nine-tenths of all the sickness of women is due to some derangement or disease of the organs distinctly feminine. Such sickness can be cured—is cured every day by

Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription
It Makes Weak Women Strong, Sick Women Well.

It acts directly on the organs affected and is at the same time a general restoralocal treatment so universally insisted upon by doctors, and so abhorrent to every modest woman.

We shall not particularize here as to the symptoms of these peculiar affections incident to women, but those wanting full information as to their symptoms and means of positive cure are referred to the People's Com-

Why Railways
Strikes Fail.

Outbreaks on the Iron Road are Nearly Always Quelled by Troops.

Experience has shown that no general railway strike anywhere in the world has ever succeeded when pushed to extremities.

There are several reasons for this one being that it is exceedingly difficult to picket effectively the property of a railway company. A factory, dock, or colliery can be watched, and the men within "persuaded" (i.e., intimidated) into quitting work. But it is quite another matter to deal with thousands of railwaymen scattered along hundreds of miles of track.

More important still, however, is the fact that in railway strikes governments always, sooner or later, take sides against the strikers. They have to. And the more successful the strike, the sooner are they compelled to take action, because experience has shown that anything approaching to a universal stoppage of all the railways in any country means so great suffering and misery to the community, and inflicts such intolerable inconvenience, that no government can tolerate it.

No Trains Allowed to Run.
The biggest railway strike that was ever organized, and the one that came nearest to being successful, was that started in June, 1894, by Eugene Debs, the then president of the American Railway Union.

For many years this remarkable man had been preparing for the struggle—silently, secretly, surely. The result was that when the strike was called there was no partial, half-hearted response, as happened the other day over here.

At one and the same instant of time, from San Francisco to New York, and from the confines of Canada on the north to those of Mexico on the south, over an area the size of Europe, the railwaymen all stopped work.

No single train was permitted to enter or leave Chicago, which is the clearing-house for the provision trade of the world, the centre to which all the United States railways converged.

In less than a week ten thousand towns and cities were foodless. The people of the United States, who, at the beginning, were mostly in sympathy with the strikers, suddenly awoke to the fact that they stood a very excellent chance of dying of starvation if the strike were allowed to continue.

Frenzied appeals were made to President Cleveland, who responded by calling out the military and proclaiming martial law. From that moment the strike was doomed. One day it seemed within an ace of succeeding, the next, owing to the President's action, it had collapsed utterly.

And the history of this famous railway strike has been the history, more or less, of all other railway strikes: The nearer they come to success, the farther they are away from it.

It was the calling out of the reserves and the enforcement of military law on the part of the French government that killed the strike which for a time paralysed the railways of the north and west of France in October of last year. In this instance the government first called the striking reservists to the colours, and then compelled them to work as engine-drivers, guards, and singalmen, and so render their own strike futile.

It was rather brutal tactics, perhaps; certainly so from the men's point of view; and M. Briand, the Premier, was bitterly reproached for it in the French Parliament. His answered that many thousands of people were on the verge of starvation when he acted as he did, and that the right of the community to exist was superior to the right of the workman to strike.

Much the same thing was said by Mr. Thompson, manager of the Caledonian Railway, and by Mr. Walker, manager of the North British Railway, when in 1891 they broke the strike on their systems by methods that were even more drastic. It was in depth of winter, with snow three feet deep on the ground, yet the companies evicted their tenant railway strikers from their poor cottages, and left them by the wayside to starve or freeze. Military and police were present to quell the rioting that broke out, and in the end the men had to resume work.—P.

VARICOSE VEINS CURED

By Douglas' Egyptian Liniment.

The man who knows from experience how difficult it is to get rid of the trouble will welcome to news of a cure.
Mr. D. S. McCleod, of Alexandria, Ont., writes:

"For four years I suffered from a severe case of varicose veins in my leg, so bad I could not sleep or get a night's rest, but after using two-thirds of a bottle of Douglas' Egyptian Liniment I was completely cured."

When two-thirds of a bottle of Douglas' Egyptian Liniment will cure a severe case of Varicose veins, which had been running on for four years, doesn't it seem reasonable to suppose that it must be a terribly bad case which it will not cure, if used persistently? so ask at all druggists. Free sample on Piccott's Picnic.

Interesting Extracts from the Boston Evening Transcript.

The following extracts from an article which appeared in the Boston Evening Transcript of the 6th September will no doubt prove interesting reading to the Newfoundland trade and fishermen. It appeared under the headlines "Gloucester's Next Move," "The Revenue Cutter Fiona as a Gloucester Man's Private Yacht," "Reasons for the Cordiality of the Morris Administration." After referring to the probable result of repudiation the writer went on to say: "It was bitter bread of exile which the Gloucester men were about to swallow, and they were preparing to gulp it down without grimaces when lo! it is buttered by Sir Edward Morris and suggested by Mr. A. Piccott, Minister of Marine and Fisheries."

Examining the scidms, one sees that the Administration has a private end to serve. It wishes to continue. In two years more comes the general elections. The Bond administration was overthrown because unpopular with the fishermen, of which Newfoundland chiefly consists. Sir Robert, in the excess of his zeal, cried too loudly "Newfoundland for Newfound-landers," when Newfoundlanders knew well enough that their prosperity was knit up with the Yankees.
Yankee money—or, to be explicit, Gloucester money) has built up Bay of Islands and many another settlements. The present Administration came in on the strength of what it was expected to do for the fishermen.
The Hague Tribunal puzzled them.
They do not yet know whether they are satisfied or not. But if the Morris administration can move Gloucester up to Louisburg, across Cabot Strait to Newfoundland, and the fishermen can see the gold dollars in their palms, the present officials are extremely likely to be asked to occupy their office chairs for another term. Hence, in part, this warmth of welcome.

For the theory of the Government is two-fold. First, money talks on the fishing coast—especially cash, and Gloucester always pays cash. If a Newfoundland fisherman is offered a cheque for three dollars, or two dollars in metal, he chooses the metal ways. Second, the Government believes that the American firms can take up the surplus fish of the best quality which cannot be cured in Newfoundland and dispose of it in various avenues of the United States market. This will help the St. John's market over its dull season without interfering with its foreign export market—a combination very welcome in Newfoundland.

All these considerations, and more, explain why, for the past two weeks, the Government patrol cutter Fiona, for years the bogey of transgressing Yankee schooners, has been at the disposal of a Yankee, a member of a Gloucester firm, Mr. Benjamin Smith.
In this cutter, and in a Government mail steamer, placed practically at his service, he has made a tour of virtually the whole Newfoundland coast, a thing no American, not a fishing skipper, has probably ever done.
His investigations have been thorough, novel, and of considerable bearing on the future of the fisheries, both of Newfoundland and of the United States on the treaty coast.

The task began with a tour of the rugged and indented eastern coast, from Conception Bay to Notre Dame Bay (not a treaty shore), in the mail steamer Fogota with the Minister of Marine. Besides the usual ports of call for mails, the steamer pushed up the fords to every fishing port of consequence on the eastern coast, giving Mr. Smith time to visit the dealers and the fishermen and to acquaint himself with their methods of handling the fish.

The principle object of this east coast trip was to determine whether the small "trap fish" which are taken at that shore in abundance are suitable for the foreign markets. The conclusion was that most of them are unsuitable, but that a few, the variety known as "caplin," a bait fish about the size of a smelt, may be developed as a food product in our markets. The quantities of these small fish are prodigious, though the season is short. The Minister of Marine had taken the visitor up into Conception Bay, to see fish in quantities, and he saw them. An old fisherman who complained that something was wrong with the "leader" net to his trap had his trap filled too rapidly to be able to mend it.

For what would be termed a business trip, incidentally, this voyage over the four great bays of the eastern coast—Conception, Trinity, Bona-vista and Notre Dame—and up into the cooves, arms and fords of each was a most remarkable scenic display. It had its humors, too. Many of the harbors are too small or too primitive to afford a wharf. The Fogota steams in and lets go an anchor. Instantly a swarm of small craft manned by shaggy men of the nets assails her sides and fifty of them tumble over her port and starboard rails to crowd below and paw over the freight in her hold for their expected parcels. If these are not there they are reluctant to go, as if from some vague notion that they will come if waited for. No one heeds the warning blasts of the whistle. When the vessel actually starts, there is a second frenzied scramble, and all tumble or jump from her rails to their own craft, landing in them with cat-like security.

At Placentia the Fiona received the Gloucester man, steaming first to the French possession, St. Pierre, a place little cared for by the cutter, which as little cares to call as it is welcomed on these rare occasions. Next, the serious business of the cruise began.
The southern shores of Newfoundland, besides being a part of the treaty coast, lie over against Louisburg, the newly chosen depot of the north. Louisburg is also adjacent to certain good grounds which have never been extensively fished because no market was convenient. Hereafter, when the season ends on the south coast, the southern fishermen from Port aux Basques to St. Mary's Bay can merely cross the strait and continue. Three splendid bays rise this coast—St. Mary's, Placentia and Fortune Bays—each backed and scarred by haven, harbor, cove and inlet, as is also the more regular stretch of coast from Pushthrough to Cape Ray.
The tour of this reach was still more thorough than that of the eastern shore. The naming of each place does not here signify; the more important are Burin, St. Lawrence, one of the most splendid scenically on that coast; Fortune, in Fortune Bay; Grand Bank, called the Gloucester of Newfoundland, where the handling of fish has definitely outgrown the primitive methods often prevailing on these waters; St. Jacques, once the leading port for herring; Rose Blanche, where, it is likely, an important station will be established, and, of course, Fort aux Basques.
There is very little fish in these ports at present, for the market is sagging, and as fast as the catches come they are rushed to St. John's to catch the top prices. At Pacheux Bay, on the way, occurred one of the amenities of the cruise. At sunset the Fiona dropped anchor up this narrow arm, hills going up on each side. Tea was on the table, but Inspector O'Reilly, the champion and terror of Newfoundland fishermen, whose exploits are an unwritten separate chapter in Newfoundland, plunged into hip boots and over the side into a small boat, returning two hours later with two strings of matchless trout caught in a stream he knew of and had fished, "daring in now and then on the way past," and probably not fished by anyone else these twenty-five years. There are, as he observes, rewards for tossing all the autumn and half the winter on the coldest coast of the western ocean.

Rounding Cape Anguille, to steam up the western coast, the Fiona met weather to bring out a few of her peculiarities. She has them. Moved by her trimness and smartness, to felicitate the old steward on such quarters, a visitor must get a grim reply: "If you can see any comfort aboard of her, good." "Does she roll?"
"I've seen her do it," he admits with fine sarcasm. A non-combatant explains that she rolls so far that the boats dangling in her davits have Aspirants to the Legislative Council.

For some time past there has been a report on the street that efforts are being made to create a vacancy in the Legislative Council in order that Mr. P. T. McGrath may be appointed a Legislative Councillor. No doubt the honour which was conferred last year on his editorial brother, who conducts the senior organ of the Government, has whetted his ambition, and he does not see why his aspiration in the direction of Council honours should not be satisfied. Such an honour would round off the many favours Mr. McGrath and his relatives have received since the advent of Sir Edward Morris to power, and if only the 6,000 square miles of timber limits for which Mr. T. R. McGrath, his brother, is applying is only granted him, he also would be set up for life. Mr. Murphy and Mr. Bennett and others may come in later if the Government lasts long enough. They should take heart, for one never knows what may happen, and it is quite possible there may be something left over when the aspiration of the McGraths have been satisfied.

But, after all, why should Mr. McGrath not aspire to the Presidency of the Legislative Council, the Cashiership of the Savings Bank, and moreover could not the Rt. Hon. Sir Edward Morris, the Premier, arrange for a Knighthood while he is at it?

A Bad Boy.

A young lad named Malone, living in Boat House Lane, beat a little girl named Butt residing in the locality last evening in a cruel manner. He deliberately kicked the child in the back and knocked her down. The lad who is 14 years of age, seems to be incorrigible. All the neighbors are complaining of mischief that he does and would like to have a visit from the police. The little girl Butt is only 9 years of age.

Fire at Harvey's.

At 6.30 this morning a fire was discovered on the premises of A. J. Harvey & Co. amongst a lot of hard coal recently landed there from different steamers. The fire was caused by spontaneous combustion and there was a good deal of it in the corbioniferous mass. Word was sent to the Eastern Station and the firemen responded with their apparatus. They got two streams of water on it and after an hour's work had the blaze extinguished. No danger was done the sheds or wharves, but a good deal of the coal was partially burned.

Had Good Time at St. Pierre.

The Fiona is on a tour of light-house inspection with Minister Piccott on board. On their way west the Fiona put in at St. Pierre and spent about a week there. The St. Pierreois entertained them right royally and the officials had a really good time. The Minister was able to live up to the reputation of his party as Picotters. Why should he bother his head about the cullings of a good time on the Fiona, and especially when he could get Mr. Devereaux to run the culling fiasco. Last Saturday Mr. Devereaux got tired and gave them up, leaving Mr. Piccott to continue the farce if Mr. Piccott wanted it. But the Minister was far away, and why should he care, as he knows full well the Picnic Party is done for in the district of Harbor Grace.

"When at Rome do as Rome does" is not a bad apothegm after all, especially in China. In support of this advice a grimly-humorous incident is reported from Ning-po.

Two distinguished foreigners hired a couple of native sedans. The roofs being low, more ventilation was desired; so they ordered the coolies to remove the tops. This the coolies flatly refused to do, and the Englishmen, fuming, were forced to perform the task themselves. The strangers had not proceeded very far, however, before they became aware of the fact that the pedestrians were all staring in their direction, and, on looking back, they were amazed to see a great procession following them. Nothing happened, however, and they duly arrived at their destination beyond the south gate of the city.

There, on demanding an explanation, they learnt that to ride in a roofless sedan was the distinctive mark of a criminal going to execution, and as the usual place for the ghastly ceremony was near this particular gate, the bland Celestials had imagined that the two "foreign devils" were about to furnish them with the Chinese equivalent of a Roman

THE POET PHILOSOPHER.

When I'm inclined to weep and wail because my luck seems kind of stale, I always think of William Wax, who lives down by the railway tracks.
He lost both legs some year ago, by being frozen in the snow, but HARD no one ever heard him whine or curse his fortune or repine. With LICK cheery smiles he went his way, upon his crutches, day by day. And later, when he lost both arms, his brave heart scorned all coward alarms: we bore him from the sawmill door, all stained and splattered with his gore, and still he cried: "Li-ting-a-ling! I cannot dance, but I can sing!" He kept on singing in his shack, and then one day he broke his back. We put him in a plaster cast, and thought he'd surely wilt at last, but still he cried, in tones of joy: "I am your little sunshine boy!" And later on this human wreck fell from his house and broke his neck; and then a gun blew off his head, and still he wore a smile and said: "Such trifles do not worry me, and I am always full of glee!" So when grim woe my bosom racks, I always think of William Wax, to whom no ill could sorrow bring, and then I dance and whoop and sing.

An English Chemist Has Discovered How to Grow Hair.

In England the ladies have entirely abandoned wearing hats which is due entirely to this new discovery.
It has been proven that Henna leaves contain the ingredients that will positively grow hair. That they contain this long-sought-for article is proven every day.
The Americans are now placing on the market a preparation containing the extract from Henna leaves, which is having a phenomenal sale.
This preparation is called SALVIA, and is being sold with a guarantee to cure baldness and to grow hair in abundance. Being daintily perfumed, SALVIA makes a most pleasant hair have neglected such sound advice and they have suffered loss.

THE OLD MAN.
The "old man"
is the affectionate cognomen given the father of a pin-headed son who kills more highballs in a day than his sire has square meals in a week.
Whenever you see a youth with puffed eyelids and a sliding gear thirst leaning both elbows on a mahogany bar and waiting for somebody to edge in for a gin rickey, make up your mind that he has no father. All that he has is an "old man" with a bent back and a weary smile, who consorts with a double entry ledger ten hours a day for $2.50 and keeps a worthless son in cigar money and striped shirts.
If there is anything that will make a red-blooded man want to rise up and commit justifiable homicide it is to hear a watery-eyed loafer in peg-top pants brag about making the "old man" cough up for his poker debts.
We are assured that there is no hell, but there ought to be a pretty fair imitation for the boy who plays on the affections of his father and drains his meagre salary to the last bitter drop rather than look a day's work in the face. The "old man," who wears a $15 suit for three years and hasn't had a day off since he was married, fighting to keep his head above water and a crooked son out of jail, is a sight to make men and angels weep.

Herewith will be found the picture of a stylishly dressed lady. Around her figure are revealed the faces of her eight daughters. Can you find their eight faces? If so, mark the faces with an X. Cut out the picture and send it to us, together with a slip of paper on which you have written the words, "I have found the eight faces and marked them."

Write the above words plainly and neatly, as both writing and neatness will be considered in this contest, in case of ties.

Should you not happen to be a neat writer, point out this advertisement to some friend of yours who can write plainly and neatly, and have him or her enter this contest in his or her name for you. First, agree with the person who is to do the writing, that you are to receive any prize money or prize that may be awarded. This may take up a little of your time, but as there is TWO HUNDRED DOLLARS in cash and One Thousand premiums given away, it is worth your time to take a little trouble over this matter.

Remember, all you have to do is to mark the faces, cut out the picture, and write on a separate piece of paper the words, "I have found the eight faces and marked them."

We do not ask you to Spend One Cent of Your Money in order to enter this Contest

Send your answer at once; we will reply by Return Mail telling you whether your answer is correct or not, and we will send you a complete Prize List, together with the names and addresses of persons who have recently received over One Thousand Dollars in Cash Prizes from us, and full particulars of a simple condition that must be fulfilled. This condition does not involve the spending of any of your money.

Winners of Cash Prizes in our late competitions will not be allowed to enter this Contest. Below will be found the names and addresses of a few persons who have won some of our larger prizes in recent contests. Your opportunity to win a good round sum is equally as good as that of anyone else, as all previous winners of cash prizes are deferred from entering this contest.

been known to dip, "but" it is added, "she rolls so easy that she rocks you to sleep, like." "Does she pitch?" "Not so bad." "Eh?" says the steward, nursing his grievance, "didn't she, once I went aft to the icehouse, pitch a sea the whole length of her so it came over the icehouse and down my back? Eh?" And the others admit that such was, indeed, the melancholy circumstance.

For all her cranky disposition, the Fiona is a neat craft, and uncommonly smart for a patrol cutter. Compared to her, the machine shops and chambers of boiler plate in which our own men make their homes are indeed hard. For the Fiona was built thirty years back, for a British lord, who, wearying of the toy in five years, sold her to Newfoundland, where she entered the pioneer work of harrying the smugglers from St. Pierre, when, as an ex-smuggler, now a Government officer, piously recalls, "If we was comin' in from St. Peer with molasses and rum and it just occurred to someone to throw a sail over the deckload, we done it, but it didn't really matter."

Yacht and man-of-war tread on each other's toes comically all over the vessel. The union flies from her stern, and her figurehead is a gilded hound. In the saloon, a sumptuous place in the gloomy splendor of the late Victorian decorators, long panels of green figured plush wall the apartment, interrupted by a divan nook, curtained in a faded brocade. But where the luxurious lord was went to lounge over his cigar after dinner are rows of rifles and a sheaf of cutlasses. Apparently she was bought in lump, furniture and all, for the stateroom chairs would make an antiquary's eyes bulge. The item which causes the most pride on board is two sitting tables; one in the saloon and one in the smoking room. They are hung on pivots at the bow and stern ends, and weighted below, allowing them to maintain equilibrium against the roll of the table so that the board may be one instant in the diner's lap, and the next under his chin. It requires practice to grow accustomed to a dinner table with this trick. Whether these tables were invented before or after the discovery of the Fiona's peculiarities is uncertain, but they may explain the willingness of his lordship to part with her, for she rolls less now, since her original three spars have been changed to two shorter ones. All the same she is much in esteem on these coasts, besides the Newfoundland navy, the police boat, the customs tug, revenue cutter and private yacht of the Premier. And on the west coast, where life is still rather primitive, she is also executive mansion, town hall, governor's residence, and last Friday and Saturday mornings, the village hall. For the officers gave two diplomatic bows, one on deck, and one in the push-paneled saloon, because it rained; and the gramophone which did duty as orchestra was run until it smoked into a hot-box, which ended the dancing on this cruise, for though the cook fractured the whole Sabbath afternoon working over it, he allowed that it was too many for him and he would have to let it go until he returned to St. John's, where all things are possible. As she headed for the holy city, as it is called in those parts, in the gray of Monday's dawn, to take the Premier on a pleasure cruise, the machine is now ready for the village ball scheduled for Placentia Bay.

The Fiona completed the Gloucester man's tour of the island, and save for a spot at its northern angle, from Notre Dame Bay to Bonne Bay, it had been circumnavigated, and in detail. The west coast was simpler

For years this part of the fishery has been centralized at Bay of Islands, and a Gloucester schooner, the Ella G. King, is stationed, farther up, at Bonne Bay, cruising sometimes as far north as Labrador. Under present arrangements and for the future on this shore the procedure will be for the Gloucester fleets to hire the Newfoundlanders to fish for them, paying them so much per pound for the catch, and sell the fish themselves aboard their own vessels. Ultimately it may prove to the advantage of both peoples to agree on a new treaty with closer relations. This will depend much on the fate of reciprocity in Canada, and the results of reciprocity when in effect. Meanwhile, however, the equipment of the leading American firm is being increased in Newfoundland; agencies for the buying of fish in every port of consequence, and at Bay of Islands, both on one of the islands and at Birch Cove, property will be acquired for the conduct of the business. Negotiations for property here are definitely begun and the attitude of Birch Cove towards Gloucester is friendly, as it may well be, for the settlement, certainly the most prosperous on the west coast, and the swiftest grown of any in Newfoundland in the last score of years, owes as much to Gloucester as to its home Government. It was but a few years back that Birch Cove was a wild and rude settlement, practically cut off from the rest of the island, where every man did what was right in his own eyes, but if he did not there was no official means of maintaining law and order. Gloucester schooners brought the lumber which built numbers of the new houses; Gloucester gold transferred for herring, paid for that lumber, and set many an honest, toiling fisherman on independent legs for the first time. And now Gloucester men are teaching the fishermen to accept cheques in payment for the first time since all the banks failed seventeen years ago. That general wreck so shattered the settlement's confidence in banks and paper money of any sort that they have demanded only good, red gold ever since.

What will be the effect of all this on the American fisheries? Which is to say on Gloucester and Boston. From all that the heads of the firms can forecast (and they can steer by dead-reckoning as well as their skipper) the life of this business will be done at Gloucester for the present, though whether it later transfer to Canada no one can yet say. Financially they will feel the change less than Gloucester itself. The first year of the new Canadian station will probably be a loss, and possibly even the two succeeding years, but the change must be made, and better now than later. Gloucester will see in the number of ships and men coming and going, a decline, not sharp at first, but sure and in time, considerable. With Boston the case is different, and the question is less that of a decrease to the visiting "short fleet" than whether that fleet will be Canadian or American. We must wait and see. Sharply as we must deplore the conditions which force the leading Gloucester firms to emigrate together with what their schooner and their men have meant to New England pride and New England's splendid maritime tradition, we can not but admire the energy and enterprise of the Yankee firms in adapting themselves quickly and shrewdly to the altered terms of the business. It is the same spirit of daring which has made the names of the Yankee fishermen the wonder of the coast.

The Gloucester representative now in Newfoundland was asked to journey over to the Madeline Islands and tell the Eastern Canadian Fisheries Company what allied the business. He found all the methods at least seventy-five years behind those of even Newfoundland and its Newfoundlanders; recommended gasoline engines for their schooner-rigged small boats; Waterbury watches as prizes for the biggest month's catch, and a motor for the biggest season's catch. His verdict was: valuable fishery and want of energy. Newfoundland, likewise, has the material and only needs to be taught how to use it, and Gloucester is the schoolmaster.

C. L. B. MEETING.—At 9:30 Friday night there will be a meeting in the Armoury of the ex-members of the C. L. B. and others who are interested in the celebration of the 20th anniversary. All who have collection books are requested to report progress.

But really, Mr. Editor, there was a lot of valuable freight left over—freight was being sent down by Messrs. R. D. McRae & Sons, R. S. Munn and a number of others, which must remain in the stores here a prey to the rats. Oh, sake's alive, sure isn't this party known as the Picnic Party; and sure the poor rats must have their picnic, too.

"Say, Minnie, will you come down to the Exhibition with me to-morrow?"

"Now, Tom, do let me alone; if we haven't got exhibitions enough of the stupidity of this Government of ours then my name is not what it is. But I'll tell you what it is, the people will have an exhibition soon, when they will weigh Piccott and his party in the balance, and although they may find them not wanting in weight, or not overworked, still their many broken promises and excessive squandering of public money will prove that they are no longer fit to hold the reins of power, and out they must go.

Enough of my ramblings for the present, but you will hear again soon from your old friend, "Mary" and the Little Pig.

EVEN THE RATS HAVE A PICNIC. Editor Evening Telegram. Dear Sir,—During the last election fight we heard many things about what the People's Party (save the mark) were going to do for the fishermen, and, in fact, everybody. Tom told me one night when he came home from St. Paul's Hall, where a meeting was being held, that Sir Edward P. Morris told the people the Liberal Government had treated this place very bad as to the coastal service. "I interviewed" the Bowring's, said he, "and I have made arrangements so that the Prospero will never pass your doors again." She did call for a trip or two, but that ship never comes now. People coming from Quirpon and other places in the Straits for this bay are forced to leave the boat at Catalina, wait a day, or sometimes two, for the Ethie, and come to Carboner, there to take the train for home farther up the bay. "The Prospero will never pass your doors again," eh! What fools we mortals be.

The year before the last election Mr. Piccott, our present figurehead of the Marine and Fisheries Department, had such an interest in the fishermen that he made quite a number of trips to the Labrador, so as to make himself thoroughly acquainted with the wants of the people as to a mail steamer. He quickly came to the conclusion that boats of the Virginia Lake style were altogether unadvised when he thought and witnessed how the people were treated. Oh, he was a real fisherman's friend, and only needed an opportunity to show them what he would do for them. Two steamers of a far better class than any we then had would be put on the Labrador service as soon as he was returned with his (People's) party to power. What do we find? Why the Solway was put on, and now at this season of the year, when naturally a large amount of freight has to be sent north, she is taken off to go to Sydney and the Stella Maria is despatched in her place. And my sakes alive, Mr. Editor, she crept in here one night last week; I suppose they were afraid some one would be taking her photo as a curiosity if she came in the day, and she was so filled up that there was only room for a little pig that was being sent to Battle Harbor to a Mr. Murphy. Aunt Diana was sending a pair of corsets down to Rigolotte to an old friend of her mother's, but there was no room on board for the corsets. The wearer would have had a poor show for a passage and she had been here. "Look here," said Aunt Diana to a man on the wharf who she thought was an official, but he wasn't; "only they'd have to feed the pig or pay his board, they would not make room for him."

But really, Mr. Editor, there was a lot of valuable freight left over—freight was being sent down by Messrs. R. D. McRae & Sons, R. S. Munn and a number of others, which must remain in the stores here a prey to the rats. Fillmore & Morris, Amherst, N.S. Dear Sirs,—Herewith we enclose our cheque $15.00 in settlement of our account to date.

W. O. COOK & SON.

ST. JOHN, N.B., Jan. 10, '07. Dear Sirs,—We telegraphed you to-day to ship immediately 5 Gross Mathieu's Syrup. We hope you will send it promptly, but if you are not able to send the whole amount at once, please send us some as our stock is getting low.

NATIONAL DRUG & CHEM. CO.

ORANGEDALE, C.B., Aug. 7, '08. Dear Sirs,—We have nothing but good to say of Mathieu's Syrup and can conscientiously describe it as the most popular and successful Cough Medicine we handle. Owing to the absence of any drug stores in this vicinity there is a great variety of proprietary medicine sold in the course of the year, and Mathieu's Syrup pre-eminently leads in its own class. Yours sincerely,

D. MARTIN.

Gaumont Film de Luxe,
A MAN OF HONOR

Being an excellent adaptation from the celebrated French Romance, 'A Poor Young Man.' The scene showing Pierre's leap from the Tower at Savoy is one of the finest situations in this engrossing photo-play.

The Secret of the Forest.

That Period of the History of France which marks the Reign of Terror forms the background for a very thrilling melo-drama by the Gaumont Company. One very vivid glimpse at the French Revolution is given, and several phases of the great struggle between the aristocrats and the canaille are splendidly produced.

The Golden Supper.

A Biograph story of the Elizabethan Era.

The Plain Song.

The life recital of a simple country maiden, who is lured by the glamour of the stage, but realizes in time that the love of her faithful rural boy is better than the attractions of the world. A beautiful film story—cleverly handled by the Biograph players.

The Tribulations of Mr. Jiggers.

This delightful little comedy tells a most amusing tale of a young man who is disappointed in matrimonial affairs, and takes an unique method of arranging matters.

Marie Corelli Talks "Right Up"

To the Rev. R. J. Campbell of "The New Theology" fame, in what she considers an unfair attack on her new book, "The Life Everlasting," Miss Corelli says, "That while preaching in the City Temple, London, he deliberately slanders both myself and my work without compassion. He says there is a certain strain of hard, bitter and intolerant depravity running all the way through it, and I challenged him to prove it. Far from any hard or unsympathetic feeling towards human depravity, I endeavour to show how it may be lessened and finally overcome by one's own noble effort when once we realize the eternal law—that evil is always repaid by evil and good by good. . . ."

Every person interested in good fiction and in the social conditions of the people should read "The Life Everlasting." Paper, 60c.; cloth, 75c. Postpaid on receipt of price.

All books by Miss Marie Corelli and the Rev. R. J. Campbell now in stock. Write for list, also for lists of 10, 15, 25 and 30 cent reprints of the world's best novels.
