WON AT LAST.

CHAPTER XX.

Roger Yorke, however, did not come back in a day or two. Christmas week, with all its feasting and jollity, passed, the New Year came in, but Whittlesford had seen no more of its popular young doctor—nor heard of him, for that matter. With wistful anxiety poor little Nat watched for post-time, and flushed and paled when the letters arrived, but there came none addressed in the large bold hand of the one which she always carried about with her, and read it incessantly that she must have it known every dot and scratch of it by heart. But she kept up, like the plucky little thing that she was, and was the very queen of all the Christmas gaieties at Chavasse and elsewhere. And even to me, the only person in whom there was a possibility of her confiding, she never uttered a solitary word which could be translated into doubt of her strangely absent lover, and madame, with all her sharp eyes, had no idea of the secret which the little lady and I had between us.

The third day of the first week in the New Year was milder than the few preceding ones had been, and the sharp east wind had left us. Nat brought a pale face and heavy eyes to the luncheon-table, exciting madame's anxiety, and finally, after a good deal of trouble, I succeeded in coaxing her to walk into the village with me, intending to call at the rectory to see Alice Deeping. Thither we went accordingly, and found Miss Alice and her Major enjoying a quiet "spoon" in the fire-lighted drawing-room. Mrs. Deeping was upstairs, a martyr to the last developed set of "symptoms," and the rector was preparing the coming Sunday's sermon in his study. Tea and cakes, talk and laughter, filled up more time than we knew, and it was late when we got back to the Mount—dark, in fact.

CHANGE OF CLIMATE DID NOT HELP

But GIN PILLS Conquered His Rheumatism

THE fact that men of standing and responsibility do not hesitate to come out and state frankly how much good GIN PILLS have done them, speaks volumes for this good old remedy.

Mr. W. G. Reid, of Hamilton, whose statement we publish below, with his permission, is one of the best known commercial men in Canada. His many friends throughout the country will be delighted to learn that he is quite himself again. He says:

"I have been for the last two years a cripple with Muscular and Inflammatory Rheumatism. I have tried almost everything known to medical science to relieve me of the intense pain and inflammation. I sought change of climate in Kentucky and other Southern points without relief. Your manager in this city recommended GIN PILLS and I have since taken eight boxes and am now cured. I consider GIN PILLS the conqueror of Rheumatism and Kidney Disease."

(Signed) W. G. REID.

Muscular and Inflammatory Rheumatism, Lumbago, Sciatica and all other troubles arising from weak, inactive or diseased kidneys, have little chance against GIN PILLS.

The curative properties in these pills go straight to the root of the trouble—the failure of the kidneys to keep the blood free from the irritating Uric Acid which is continually being formed in the body. GIN PILLS help the kidneys to perform this function properly, and the train of troubles vanishes.

Just try it and prove it to your own satisfaction. There is no risk—money back if GIN PILLS do not help you.

Entering the hall, lighted as yet only by its big fire, which had burned low, we went as a matter of course toward the library, knowing that madame would most likely be there. There she was, but not alone, as we saw before we had fairly crossed the threshold. The great room was mostly in shadow, being illuminated only by two or three shaded lamps, but there was light enough to show us madame's stately figure, enthroned with its usual dignity in a great chair by the fire, the ruddy light of which played upon her handsome face as she talked to the man standing easily before her on the rug. Only the merest glimpse I caught of him, for Nat gave a kind of startled gasp and pulled me back. I stared. I had never seen a face of such scared astonishment as the one she raised to mine.

"What's the matter?" I queried, taken aback by her look.

"The matter?" she echoed, staring at me with dilating eyes. "Don't you see?"

"I see there's some fellow or other there. What of it? It isn't Roger."

"What of it?" she repeated, and gave the gasp again as she clutched my arm with both hands, inflicting a pinch as severe as it was no doubt unconscious. "Everything of it! Oh, Ned, that man is Raby St. George!"

CHAPTER XXI.

"Raby St. George!" I had nothing to be agast about, and yet I repeated the name with a face and tone which I knew were pretty nearly as blank as Nat's own; and for an instant we stared at each other, as completely disconcerted as if Raby St. George had been a polite name for Beelzebub.

Then there was a slight stir in the room, and Nat, with a half-stifled exclamation of consternation, released my arm and rushed across the hall, disappearing up the stairs, and dropping muff and gauntlet-gloves in her hurry, just as madame showed herself at the library door.

"Oh, it is you, then, Ned!" she said. "I fancied so. Why"—in a tone of surprise—"where is Natalie?"

"Oh, she has gone upstairs to dress—thought we were late!" I returned, slightly confused, but putting as good a face upon the matter as madame's eyes permitted. "Nearly dinner-time isn't it?"

"Not yet; it is not more than half-past six. Come in, Ned. I have an old friend of Natalie's to whom I wish to introduce you."

Madame swept into the room again, and I had no choice but to follow her into the bright soft light which the fire threw round the hearth-rug. Raby St. George, standing there, an upright, graceful, well-knit figure, turned to respond to the few easy words with which my mother introduced me. His air, his bearing, his voice, his manner, were all those of a gentleman, and I felt bound mentally to confess so much. Yet somehow he irritated me—perhaps because he treated me too much like a boy to exactly suit my fancy. At any rate, after the ordinary commonplace words between us, he resumed his conversation with my mother precisely as though I had not been there, and with an ease of manner which I found highly exasperating.

"Natalie has run away to dress," madame observed, graciously, as she resumed her seat. "If she had known that you were waiting to see her, she would hardly have been in such a hurry."

Mr. St. George, leaning one elbow carelessly upon the chimney-piece, which was as much as he could comfortably do, for he was not tall, smiled and bowed. But I caught a singular expression upon his face as he did so, and wondered whether the keen-eyed lady who was looking at him noticed it too. Apparently she did not, for with her usual dignified ease she took up the thread of conversation which my entrance had broken. And before they had talked five minutes I clearly saw two things—first, that madame did not suspect Raby St. George of having been or still being Natalie Orme's lover, and second, that he had contrived to make a decidedly favorable impression upon her.

Left out of the conversation, as I said, and leaning with my arm on the carved back of madame's chair, I had an opportunity of looking at and examining the man whom Nat had declared she hated, and who loved her dreadfully, as she had phrased it, a fashion which struck me as being slightly sensational, to say the least of it. No doubt I should have done so in any case, for I am fond of studying new faces; but Nat's connection with this particular individual added to the ordinary curiosity which I should have felt.

"He is the handsomest man I ever saw," Nat had said; and, looking at him, I was obliged to echo her remark on my own score. His dark face, clear cut, and without a harsh or hard line, was simply perfection. Had he been a woman instead of a man, I should have called him beautiful; from his raven-black hair, not straight, not curled into tumbled ringlets, like Nat's, but with a natural wavy ripple running through it, to the silky mustache which shaded his perfectly cut lips, I could not see a fault or flaw. His eyes I could not quite make out, beyond that they were large and melancholy, with a languishing look in them which I really believe was quite natural, but which somehow I did not like. I supposed they were black, as the general type of his face and his dark complexion suggested that they certainly ought to be; but afterward, when in a better light I found that they were deep purple-blue eyes, as wonderful in their way as Nat's own. As I have said he was not tall—hardly reaching to middle height, in fact—but his figure was as near perfection as his face, and he was dressed in excellent taste.

I stood involuntarily frowning at him as he talked politely to madame and placidly ignored me. It was of no use minding the matter—I did not like the fellow. Perhaps because of what Nat had said about him, perhaps because I saw in him a would-be poacher on Roger Yorke's preserves, perhaps because he was too handsome—for his perfect and rather effeminate beauty—it was nothing less—certainly jarred upon me somehow, and struck me as being too much of a good thing—whatever it was, I most decidedly came to the conclusion before I had well done looking at him that I did not like him. And if ever I saw in any face a touch of what is called the "tar-brush," it struck me that I saw it in his.

I do not know exactly how he had introduced himself at Chavasse, but he was perfectly at home there already, and so obviously going to stop to dinner that I wondered whether madame had invited him to take up his quarters at the Mount altogether.

But no; things were not to be complicated so far, for it appeared by and by, in answer to a question of madame's, that Mr. St. George was staying, for the present at least, at the Station Hotel. He must have been a boon to that establishment, by the way, for the Station Hotel was a decided failure. Whittlesford did not want a hotel, and would not patronize it, its rural liking for beer and skittles being very well satisfied by the Cap and Bells. So the smart billiard-rooms on the lofty first-floor of the hotel had never yet had their tips chalked, while the untried billiard-table had got dull as to its cushions and moth-eaten as to its cloth. I was ill-natured enough to chuckle inwardly as I thought of these drawbacks, and came to the conclusion that Mr. St. George would not have much chance of enjoying himself. But I felt rather disconcerted too. Evidently he meant to keep in the neighborhood of Chavasse, and that could mean but one thing—his determined pursuit of Natalie Orme. To be sure, I knew that the game was as fairly out of his hands now as it was out of those of Fraer Froude himself, but still I did not feel as easy as I should have felt had Yorke been at hand to personally keep off these would-be wooers of his little lady-love. More heartily than I had wished it yet, I wished now that he would settle his business in Paris quickly, whatever it was, and come home.

Twitching of the Nerves

A Distressing Symptom of Nervous Exhaustion Cured by Dr. Chase's Nerve Food.

Mrs. John McKellar, 11 Barton street east, Hamilton, Ont., writes:—"I was injured some years ago, and that left me with a broken-down nervous system. I could not sleep, and suffered from twitching of the nerves and disagreeable nervous sensations. I then began using Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, and can say that I never used any medicine that did me so much good; in fact, I am entirely cured of my old trouble. The Nerve Food not only strengthened the nerves, but also built up my system in every way." Under date of Aug. 29, 1912, Mrs. McKellar writes, confirming her cure, and states that she has had inquiries from many people who had heard of the great benefits she obtained from Dr. Chase's Nerve Food. For Dandruff, Falling Hair, or Itchy Scalp—25c. "Danderine."

SAVE YOUR HAIR! DANDERINE DESTROYS DANDRUFF AND STOPS FALLING HAIR AT ONCE—GROWS HAIR, WE PROVE IT.

If you care for heavy hair, that glistens with beauty and is radiant with life; has an incomparable softness and is fluffy and lustrous you must use Danderine, because nothing else accomplishes so much for the hair.

Just one application of Knowlton's Danderine will double the beauty of your hair, besides it immediately dissolves every particle of dandruff; you cannot have nice, heavy, healthy hair if you have dandruff. This destructive scurf robs the hair of its lustre, its strength and its very life, and if not overcome it produces a feverishness and itching of the scalp; the hair roots famish, loosen and die; then the hair falls out fast.

If your hair has been neglected and is thin, faded, dry, scraggy or too oily, don't hesitate, but get a 25 cent bottle of Knowlton's Danderine at any drug store or toilet counter; apply a little as directed and ten minutes after you will say this was the best investment you ever made.

We sincerely believe, regardless of everything else advertised that if you desire soft, lustrous, beautiful hair and lots of it—no dandruff—no itching scalp and no more falling hair—you must use Knowlton's Danderine. If eventually—why not now? A 25c. cent bottle will truly amaze you.

The Art of Letting Alone.

By RUTH CAMERON.

"I know not where His islands lift Their fringed palms in air; I only know I cannot drift Beyond His love and care."

There are some people in this world who fail of their highest usefulness to themselves and others because they never plan ahead, never bringing the power of forethought to bear on the problems and critical situations in their lives.

And there are other people in the world who fail because they plan too much.

"Oh, dear, I don't know what to do," cried an unhappy young woman, whom circumstances had driven into a corner. "I don't know which way to turn. I feel as if my life were a terrible tangle, and every move I made only tangled it up the more."

"Then why not try letting it alone, dearie," said an older woman, gently. "I've found out that sometimes if you do that, time and circumstances slowly untangle things for you, and by and by you wake up some morning and find everything all coming straight. If you've done all you can, dear, don't worry, just let it go at that and give time a chance."

There are, troubled moments in all our lives when we see plainly that the only thing to do is to rise and cut the gordian knot of our troubles with some prompt, decisive action which looms up as the right and best thing to do.

And then there are other times when we cannot see anything plainly; when pit-falls seem to be on all sides; when life has become so complicated and so tangled that we are sick and weary of the whole business, and when we cannot cut the gordian knot because we have no sword. And these moments are infinitely harder than those which demand attention for action, however hard and unpleasant, is always a relief.

But courage, comrade, don't be utterly discouraged. Remember that there is still one course left to you—you can wait and see what time and the flux of circumstances will do for you. And as the wise friend promised, some morning you may wake up and find that everything is coming out quite straight. It has often happened so to me. And if you will look back on your own life I think you will find it has been so with you in the past.

"We are never without a pilot," says Emerson, "when we know not how to steer and dare not hoist a sail, we can always drift. The current knows the way if we do not."

It is a beautiful thought. If the present is one of those times when the mists hang thick and puzzling, and you cannot sight land no matter how eagerly you strain your eyes, can you not rest yourself on that, and wait?

How The Body Kills Germs.

Germs that get into the body are killed in two ways—by the white corpuscles of the blood, and by a germ-killing substance that is in the blood. Just what this substance is, we do not know. The blood of a healthy person always has some germ-killing substance in it to ward off the attack of disease. The fountain head of life is the stomach. A man who has a weak and impaired stomach and who does not properly digest his food will soon find that his blood has become weak and impoverished, and that his whole body is improperly and insufficiently nourished. To put the body in healthy condition, to feed the system on rich, red blood and throw out the poisons from the body, nothing in the past forty years has excelled Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, a pure glyceric extract (without alcohol), of bloodroot, golden seal and Oregon grape root, stone root, mandrake and queen's root with black cherrybark.

"My husband was a sufferer from stomach trouble and impure blood," writes Mrs. JAMES H. MARTIN, of Frankfort, Ky. "He had a sore on his face that would form a scab which would dry and drop off in about a month, then another would immediately form. It continued this way for a long time. He tried every remedy that any one would suggest but found no relief. He then tried Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery which completely cured him. He has stayed cured now for two years, and I recommend this valuable medicine for impurities of the blood."

Fashions and Fads.

Petticoats are showing slashes at the side.

The new foulards have the chintz pattern.

Walking skirts for the country are of corduroy.

Small round muffs are carried with these coats.

Envelopes are wallet shaped or have pointed flaps.

White blouses are trimmed with a contrasting color.

Vestee effects are shown on many of the spring suits.

Spring hats are mostly small, with turned-up brims.

The favored length for the new coat is about 45 inches.

Ostrich plumes or satin roses are used to trim evening hats.

Crepe de chine is a material much favored for petticoats.

On some of the new suits the long shoulder line is noticed.

Shoulder-point styles in low collars seem to be especially good.

Afternoon frocks have pleated skirts of silk and tunics of cloth.

Most attractive are the lingerie collars and cuffs, on the new suits.

The interest in suits cut in Russian blouse style is still increasing.

Prominent in the new neckwear are low collars with and without jabots.

Fashion this season insists on fabrics in flowered and bordered designs.

The new crepe de chine has a rather dull surface and slightly rougher.

On separate skirts, buttons and stimulated buttonholes are a favorite trimming.

New voiles have a fancy stripe of the sponge weave in self or contrasting color.

The square collar reaching to the shoulder line is a favored style for the spring.

Linon and ratine are very smart for dresses where materials are used in combination.

For little girls, very smart white dresses embroidered in the Bulgarian colorings are shown.

The Glorious Seventeenth.

Editor Evening Telegram.

Dear Sir,—Since the 17th of January, that great day at Bay Roberts, our little "paper-man," the editor of the Guardian, has been uttering one long continuous wail. He screams aloud in every issue, and his screams grow louder and louder as he sees his fat fees for printing slipping from his grasp. It is not to be wondered at, however, as his very existence depends partly upon his having the Government ads. Let any one take up a copy of the Guardian and look it through; and he will find the secret of his uneasiness. Why, sir, in his issue of January 31st, in which he basely insults the men of this town, he has about a dozen Government ads and half of them given him by the Department of Fisheries. Of course we are not expected to observe these things, but Mr. Editor, I assure you we do notice them, and we also heartily enjoy the whining of the "printer." The Guardian has gone out of his way to belittle the President of the F.P.U. and in consequence has disgusted many. The night of the 18th, the Port de Grave men bought all the barrels they could get and burnt them on the hills amid firing of guns and cheering for Coaker and Lloyd. Russell states that you and Coaker have given Bay Roberts a black eye, because of the accounts of the procession. Of course you both did very wrong in coming to Bay Roberts at all without first asking and obtaining the consent of the "printer." The next time you come be sure and get the permission of this individual, if not he'll say ugly things to you, that will frighten you in your dreams, or perhaps, render you "speechless." You both did wrong too in saying anything about trailing the flag in the mud. You are no more loyal than other people and therefore should make no mention of the flag. This incident should have been allowed to pass without comment; it does not suit Russell's purpose, nor does the associated with him to have made public. But what does he care about the insult to the flag, provided he can secure his Government printing? What does he care about the fair name of this town and the bone and shew of it, as long as he can retain his pickings.

The editor of the Guardian in a fit of righteous indignation weeps and screams to think that any person should write anything reflecting upon the Governor's conduct. He would have us believe the Governor's person is even more sacred than that of the King himself. This can only be prompted by ignorance or party politics. Does Russell not know that English history is full of incidents where the people expressed themselves freely and forcibly against Kings even to the extent of deposing them and all to prove that the will of the people is greater than that of Kings. Does Russell not know that the charter of the British Government was against the expressed wishes of Governors. According to his argument—Newfoundland should have been denied the privilege of responsible government because some Governor (representative of the King), who knew nothing about the Island, did not wish to grant her that boon. Away with such nonsense. When a Governor fails to discharge his duty fearlessly and honestly, or when he inclines to party politics, he deserves, and should expect criticism, and the people are proud of you and Mr. Coaker for not withholding that criticism. May we always have men as fearless and able to unmask wrongdoing whenever and wherever they find it in our country.

But sir, you not only displeased Mr. Russell by publicly referring to the flag incident, and criticising the Governor, but you actually allowed a large body of honest horn-handed fishermen to join in procession and to go to Fay Roberts with you. You even walked past the Guardian office and so wounded the feelings of Mr. Russell by your presence there. Ah there's the rub; if there had been no parade, no demonstration, no tangible proof of the weakness of the "spicnikers" here, the Guardian would have had a different song.

The accounts in the Telegram and Advocate were true, but truth is most unpalatable to the present Government. Russell appears to be contented

SEVEN YEARS OF MISERY

How Mrs. Bethune was Restored to Health by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Sikeston, Mo. — "For seven years I suffered everything. I was in bed for four or five days at a time every morning, and so weak I could hardly walk. I had cramps, backache and headache, and was so nervous and weak that I dreaded to see anyone or have anyone move in the room. The doctors gave me medicine to ease me at those times, and said that I ought to have an operation. I would not listen to that, and when a friend of my husband's told him about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and what it had done for his wife, I was willing to take it. Now I look the picture of health and feel like it, too. I can do all my own household work, work in the garden and entertain company and enjoy them, and can walk as far as any ordinary woman, any day in the week. I wish I could talk to every suffering woman and girl, and tell them what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has done for me."—Mrs. DEBA BETHUNE, Sikeston, Mo.

Remember, the remedy which did this was Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. It has helped thousands of women who have been troubled with displacements, inflammation, ulceration, tumors, irregularities, periodic pains, backache, that bearing down feeling, indigestion, and nervous prostration, after all other means have failed. Why don't you try it?

ed last Bay Roberts should get a bad name, lest the men of the place should be insulted. What greater insult I ask could be given a man than to say that his vote could be bought for a glass of rum, and yet that is the insult he hurls at every man of this town who will not and cannot see eye to eye with him in politics. I don't know whether that's the value he sets on his vote, but I can assure Russell that neither he nor the party rum will influence the members and sympathizers of the F.P.U. to vote for the Picnic Party. The "printer" calls himself a native of Bay Roberts and so should be the last to hurl an insult at a fisherman; but then he knows no better. He has never trod the frozen pans, nor wrung the sea-water from his cuffs in the face of a blinding storm. He has never killed a voyage of cod, smothered a caplin, nor maned his dory on the broad Atlantic. In fact it is doubtful if he can tell a sculpin from a catfish.

The F.P.U. here is growing rapidly and several men from Spaniard's Bay have declared their intention to join us, but Mr. Coaker will be with us again shortly to open a Council at Coley's Point and will likely do the same thing for Spaniard's Bay, Island Cove, Bryant's Cove and Hr. Grace South are asking for branches there, but as yet the President has been too busy to go there. The members for the District are defeated now and they know it and shove it. Sundry false rumors about staunch Liberals joining Sir Edward Morris have been set afloat here, they are having no effect, however, as the people know they are intended to deceive and at the same time help the heeters to keep their courage up.

Yours, a member of the Union.

Burned to Death.

St. Scholastique, Que., Jan. 30.—Germaine Beauchamp, the six-year-old daughter of Joseph Beauchamp, a farmer, residing on the St. Simon Road, was buried to death Sunday morning in a fire which destroyed her father's house. Four other children who were in the house at the time managed to make their escape, three being carried out in the arms of the frantic father and mother.

The fire broke out at eleven o'clock as high mass was being celebrated in the village church. The alarm was given by a neighbor who ran to the church and notified the sexton. The latter forthwith tolled the bell in the church belfry with the result that the worshippers thinking the church was on fire made a stampede for the door.

As a consequence the Cure had to finish mass with but a couple of altar boys and the sexton constituting the congregation.

The Noise of Silence.

The youth was in danger of drifting into bad courses; when one of the noble people who interest themselves in such cases persuaded him to accept employment on a farm. Alas! a week later the lad reappeared in his old haunts.

"What, James!" exclaimed his benefactor reproachfully, "back again? Why didn't you stay on the farm?"

"I couldn't stand the country, sir," answered the bred and born gutter-snipe.

"Too quiet for ye—eh?"

"Quiet, not 'arf; much too noisy," cried James. "Why, crikie, sir, it was fair deafenin'. Wot w! the row of the birds in the daytime, and the noise of the silence at night, I very near went off my 'ead."

In children's new dresses and coats sashes and belts at the knees are very conspicuous.

The modish blouse is very simple. Fussy overtrimmed designs are no longer in good taste.

There is a new fringe of the finest finest beads, it trims gowns, purses or candle shades.

Boas of long-haired fur—fox, bear, sable or marten—are most fashionable.

Notes and Comments.

Morris's Day is Done!

He has got to go!

He is not making good with the people. He misled as to the cost of the branch railways. He floated some $4,000,000 bonds and he led the people to understand that the loan would pay for the completion of the branch railway construction.

This was in the spring of 1910. Two years later he asked for power to float another $2,000,000 lot of debentures, and said that he only meant that the first loan would pay the contractor for the laying down the track, if that track was an outside estimate.

But it did not prove an outside measure. According to the statement of the Minister of Finance the distance is under-estimated by 100 miles.

This in itself shows that the $4,000,000 would not pay for laying down the track at $15,000 a mile. For 350 miles would cost $5,250,000.

On the score therefore of the under-estimate in mileage and without reckoning anything but the $15,000 a mile for track laying, and even supposing which is not the case that the debentures were sold at par, Sir Edward was a million and a quarter dollars short in his estimate.

But Sir Edward himself told us in 1912 that the Port-aux-Basques line cost $19,000 a mile and that in his calculations in 1910 he left out any estimate for fencing, stations and extras generally. Now taking the mileage at 350 and the cost at $19,000, which is probably much below what the cost will average out when everything is paid for, the cash required to pay for the completion of the branch railways would be $6,650,000.

Now, where is this six million, six hundred and forty thousand dollars to come from. The 1910 railway loan realized about $3,700,000. The figures for the 1912 loan have not been furnished. But if the amount realized in the two loans, 1910 and 1912, comes up to $5,500,000 Newfoundland will be lucky.

It follows, therefore, that not only was Sir Edward Morris wrong in 1910 in leading the country to believe he could build the branch lines on the first loan, but he is wrong in leaving the country under the belief that the two loans will pay for them.

In 1910 he was out in his calculation about three million dollars, or about 75 per cent. In 1912, when he obtained the second loan he was still out more than a million dollars.

One of the serious features of the situation is that the country agreed to pay the contractor in cash. The country has therefore to float debentures and sell them before the Contractor can be paid.

If Sir Edward had calculated aright in 1910, even after he had made the initial blunder of agreeing to pay in cash, he might have raised the whole sum required on favorable terms. In 1912 he found the money market much less favorable than it was in 1910. If he went to-day for the balance the response would be more unfavorable than in 1912. It is not likely that a 3 1/2 p.c. loan could be floated at all.

Colonial Governments are finding the days of the 3 1/2 per cent. debentures are over. Recently New South Wales put a £1,500,000 railway loan on the market at 4 per cent. Queensland put a Two Million loan out at 4 per cent. Alberta offer a million sterling bonds at 4 per cent. at 97. These facts will be found recorded in The Empire Review for December. In the January issue of the same magazine we find that West Australia offered £1,000,000 at 4 per cent. with issue price 99. The public took up only £550,000. New South Wales offered £3,000,000 sterling at 4 per cent. at 99 1/2. The public took up only £450,000 or 15 per cent.

These facts show the gravity of the blundering in agreeing to take the risk of floating and selling debentures and the serious consequences of the miscalculations as to costs. Delays are often dangerous. Delays in factoring and counting-up the cost of the branch railway schemes are proving most costly to the colony.

The Drowning Enquiry:

The enquiry into the drowning of the young men Bartlett and Jones was continued yesterday afternoon when Capt. Roberts, of the John Green and J. Ricketts and A. West, deck hands, were sworn and examined.

West said when the tug was going down the harbour he heard a report from a gun and soon after saw the boat. One of the three men in it said, "We are wet." Andrew West told the men to go aft in the boat and steer aft. One of the men went aft and put out a sculling oar. When the tug began to move away with her tow there were five fathoms of rope out to the boat. Ricketts who had his oil skins on then went into the shelter of the deck house. West remained watching the tow. There was a good wind but on but nothing worth speaking about. The man who was amidsthips in the boat went forward. West shouted to the Engineer to stop as he realized the predicament the men in the boat were in. The Engineer answered that the engine was turning over. The tug did not stop and West told Capt. Roberts that something would have to be done. Capt. Roberts said the boat would have to be hauled up. When West went aft again he assisted Moyst getting aboard the tug. He saw another man floating over the stern of the boat which was submerged. A short search was then made for the missing men but without success. The boat was then hauled under the tug's quarter. West said the boat was struck by the propeller. Ricketts answered, "Never mind the boat till we get the men." Those in the boat did not say they wanted to get in the tug. West swore that the cause of the accident was the men going in the bow of the boat when they should have went aft.

Ricketts then gave evidence stating that when the tug first bore up alongside the boat he heard one of the men saying "give us a quick tow, we are wet." When the men floated out of the boat a line was thrown to them. No attempt was made to catch it. He hooked a cap out of the water belonging to one of the missing men. This cap he produced in court. The three men were in the bow of the boat when she was swamped.

Capt. Roberts evidence was:

"I am master of the steam tug John Green, which regularly has a crew of four all told, Daniel McDonald being engineer, Jas. Molloy, stoker, and A. West, deck hand. Ricketts was an extra hand. I have been 34 years towing and master of the John Green nearly ten. I got an order about 5:15 p.m. on Saturday being directed by the Manager of the Tug Company, Capt. Strong, to proceed to near Hynes' wharf and render assistance to some men, said to be jammed in the ice in a boat. We cast off and started right away. The wind in the harbour at the time was about S.W. It was blowing pretty hard and raining. When we reached off Hynes' wharf I saw a white painted jolly boat. We hauled in close, stopped the engine and came up right alongside her, on the outside. There was about 60 feet of ice between her and clear water. There were three men in the boat. When we stopped the tug, I went aft to the quarter and spoke to the men in the boat and asked if they were cold. I heard no reply. I told some of my men to give them a line, which was done. It was made fast to the ring bolt in the stem of the boat, had no further conversation with them. At that time one went aft, one amidsthips and one forward. They were standing at the moment and did not ask to be towed but understood from some of the crew that they wished to be towed to Bowings. We were stopped then. When the line was made fast I told the two men on the quarter deck to have an eye to the boat, and in passing the engine on the way to the wheel house, I told him to go very slow ahead. We started slowly. I took the wheel and the speed of the tug did not increase at all after we were clear of the ice and heading up the harbor. We were moving dead slow with just enough way to steer. We were just on a line with the eastern portion of A. Harvey & Co's wharf when I first became aware of any trouble. Andrew West ran forward to me in the wheel house and said, "Captain, there is something wrong in the boat, you'll have to stop." I telegraphed the engineer to stop and ran aft and saw one man holding the tow rope on the bow of the boat. There was no sign of the other two. Ricketts and West held on to the rope, hauling the boat up. I took hold and gave them a hand and the man who held the line was pulled aboard. I didn't see the other two in the water. Fireman Jas. Molloy was assisting in hauling the boat up. I took hold and was aboard I returned to the wheel house and turned the tug around to search. The tug being still a little under way. I ordered a few revolutions astern and then go ahead, and cruised about with a view to picking up the others. From my position in the wheel house I could not see a small boat astern without getting up and putting my head out the back window. I heard no shouting or calling from the boat at all. If the men in the boat did about I couldn't have heard where I was but my men aft should have heard if there had been shouting. When we came to the wharf I asked Moyst, the man saved, his name and those of the two who had been lost. He refused to give me his own or the others, saying: "Mind your own business, you'll find out later on." I replied, "You needn't be so saucy," and he then went ashore. I have never had an accident of the kind before and have had varied experience in towing all kinds of craft and in rescuing boats and men from dangerous conditions. My opinion is that the man amidsthips in the stern, got forward in the bow with the third, and caused the boat's filling with the consequent loss of their lives. The spray coming in may have frightened them, and they changed their positions on that account. If they had remained in their original positions I consider they were safe for towing up the harbour. If I had thought their was the slightest danger I would have taken them aboard before starting. Moyst did not apply to me for admission to the engine room nor stokehold and I didn't know if he asked admission of the engineer. Due To-Morrow Night.

The Bruce express with the passengers for St. John's, on board, left Bay of Islands at noon today with carry No. 1 coming ahead to precede the train over the Topsails. It is snowing and drifting there to-day but the train it is thought will negotiate the plateau and is expected to arrive here to-morrow night.

Rotary No. 2 left Clarendville at 7 a. m. to-day going west to keep the Topsails clear.

A Wonderful New Invention to Use Kerosene Instead of Gasoline.

Mr. Thomas Fraser designer and manufacturer of the FRASER Motor Engine is a young man, only 37 years of age, when his Father and Uncle the founders of the present concern first manufactured Motor Engines. They used similar designs and patterns to the large American concerns the makers of present day pleasure boat engines of these Mr. Fraser Jr., when taking the management of the business found unsatisfactory for fishing purposes, they were too costly because of brass rods, cups and connections to get out of order. Mr. Fraser visited the fishing districts of Lunenburg, Queens, Guysborough and Halifax Counties fished with the fishermen and studied all conditions under which a fisherman's engine is used. He then designed the "FRASER" his object being not to see how much he could put on the engine, but how much he could take off and yet have an efficient machine. The result is a marvel of simplicity. Meeting with unqualified success with this engine, and building new factories each year to take care of the ever increasing demand. Mr. Fraser set out to solve the fuel problem as gasoline each year was so enormously increasing in price. For three years he worked, one year ago he "was satisfied he had something better to offer than any other engine manufacturer, however this did not suit Mr. Fraser, he felt his invention was not perfect, he continued to burn the midnight oil, in his endeavour to give the world what it has long looked for, an appliance whereby kerosene could be used with equal results to gasoline. This Mr. Fraser now announces he has found the invention can be attached to all "FRASER" engines, with it more power and mileage is obtained from kerosene than from gasoline, leaving the engine and ignition absolutely clean and free from soot. Everybody wants an engine which will satisfactorily use a cheaper fuel than gasoline, and this the "FRASER" Company absolutely guarantee their engine will do. With this new invention the "FRASER" has no competition, it stands in class by itself. It simply rides over the THOUSANDS of old style engines which never were designed specially for fishermen, and in which there has been no change or improvement for the past ten years. There is no engine made so easy to run and understand as the "FRASER," none so strong and durable. We have never sold a "FRASER" which has not given satisfaction and by its sale that we did not sell others. We are being flooded with orders. At the Factory they are rushing up new buildings to take care of the unequalled demand. The HUNDREDS of "FRASER" dealers are ordering all the factory can supply. We have a great many orders booked, and have just ordered an extra hundred for stock. Send your order in early, in any case write us for circular giving full particulars of the New Kerosene Adapter. When you get the "FRASER" you get the BEST.

Breaks Into Highlanders Armory and Does Much Damage.

When the Highlanders assembled in their armory on King's Road, for drill last night, it was discovered that an outrage had been committed, something akin to that at the Holy Cross Schools, as exclusively published in the Telegram. The place was either broken into on the previous night or some other night during the week, the marauder getting down through the skylight in the roof. Getting into the Co's rooms, the intruder smashed the oil stove there in pieces, stole a lot of new books out of the library and did a lot of other damage; worse than all, however, he set fire to a lot of paper on the floor and the wonder is that the place was not destroyed. The fact that such a character is about is a menace to the safety of the city.

SATURDAY, Feb. 8, 13.

We have had many requests for Danderine within the last few days and orders which we were unable to fill as there was none in town. Now, however, we have received a stock sufficient to supply all present demands. This hair tonic has, we are told, given remarkably good results in many cases of unhealthy scalp, and of weak and dry hair, and its popularity among a large class is easily accounted for in this way. Price 30 cts. a bottle.

In this hard weather you will find Cream of Lilies a true friend to your skin, softening, soothing and healing it, removing all soreness, redness and spraying, and putting it in normal condition after two or three applications. Price 25c. a crock.

NOT AS COLD. — Last night the weather across country was no worse than Thursday night. The glass stood at 20 below at the Quarry, and at other places at the same figure as the night before. To-day it was much milder the glass registering 10 below at the Quarry.

To-Day's News.

Special to The Evening Telegram.

ROME, To-day.

Special received here from the island of Lomana in the Aegean Sea, says a Greek aviator, accompanied by a Greek captain, last night, made a daring flight over the Straits of the Dardanelles in an hydro-aeroplane, which covered 180 kilometres. The despatch says a thorough reconnaissance of the Turkish fleet was made and the aviator flew over Midos near the Southern Point of Gallipoli Peninsula, overlooking the Dardanelles, and dropped four bombs on the Arsenal there. He reports, according to the despatch, that as his machine passed over the fleet he saw flashes from the vessels' guns as they fired at him. The hydro was not hit.

LONDON, To-day.

Papers give great prominence both in their news and editorial columns, to the statement of Admiral Von Tirpitz, German Minister of Marine, that the naval programme as outlined by Winston Churchill, is satisfactory to Germany. This change of front by Germany, the first step towards an entente in Anglo-German relations, a considerable step towards friendship and fraught with momentous consequences are phrases which are used to show how the statement is viewed here. Even the least demonstrative of the newspapers welcome it as opening a way to consider the naval rivalry of two nations in a calmer spirit and argue that it will result in a lull in the ruinous competition of building big ships and armaments. Some newspapers build on the assumption that a definite agreement has been reached between Britain and Germany, especially an official report of Von Tirpitz's statement is accompanied by a similar one ascribed to Herr Jagow, Minister of Foreign Affairs, in an emphatic declaration that Germany's relations with all Powers are good. Unofficial reports say that Herr Jagow referred particularly to relations between Germany and England. This has deepened the impression that a special understanding has been reached between two countries although there is no solid ground for the assumption.

OTTAWA, To-day.

A sensation was caused in the House of Commons yesterday when Col. McLean, a prominent Liberal leader from New Brunswick, came out in a speech in favor of the Government's naval policy of three Dreadnoughts to the Imperial Navy as an emergency contribution. He suggested that the Liberals vote for Borden's policy and both parties unite in getting Admiralty advice upon a permanent policy to be submitted to the people in a plebiscite. Speaking of a German menace, Col. McLean said "It does seem to me that the moral effect would be greater if Canada could build and loan to England three of the best fighting ships science can devise and money build. This would be better than two small fleet units on the Pacific and Atlantic. If you are going to the Empire let us give her what she asks. If Britain is poorer broken and Canada is left defenceless, where would Germany find a colony like Canada, or what would keep the Japanese from landing on the Pacific Coast? Australia is now in the last lap of the race. Her debt is heavy. Might not the appearance of Canada as a factor decide Germany to stop the struggle for supremacy on the sea. We have been singing 'God save the King' and 'God save the Queen' for a great number of years. Let us show the Mother Country our loyalty in not merely hot air." After pointing out what Britain has done for Canada in the way of defense and development, McLean proceeded to contrast Canada's policy of contributing nothing towards Imperial defense with that of New Zealand's contribution of $19,000,000; Australia's contribution, $30,000,000; South Africa's, $425,000; India's, $8,300,000; Newfoundland's, $200,000. He concluded with a stirring appeal for Canada to discharge her duty as a part of the Empire, to which we are attached by every tie; to which we must render effective service, and if necessary give our all for common defence and expect the forces of that mighty Empire to be at our back when our lives and free people are threatened. Forty years ago, he said, Joseph Howe wrote that security for peace can only be sought in such organization of armaments of the Empire as will make uncertainty of defeat a foregone conclusion to any foreign Power that may attempt to break it.

A Sad Case Of Poverty.

AN OLD MAN FOUND IN SHACK—DIED AT POOR ASYLUM.

Yesterday afternoon, a resident of Quidi Vidl, reported to the authorities that an aged man named William Ainsworth, who was existing in an old dilapidated structure, there without food or fire, was in a state of abject poverty and that if something was not done for the poor old man he might succumb, as it was intensely cold. Dangerous Accident.

AS A RESULT OF FALL CHILD'S MIND MAY BE SERIOUSLY IMPAIRED.

Yesterday afternoon, Master Clouston, son of Mr. John Clouston, tinsmith, of Duckworth Street, fell near his residence, Quidi Vidl Road, and was so badly hurt about the head that he became unconscious. A doctor was called and after some time the lad regained his senses. He, however, later lapsed into unconsciousness, was a long time in this state and the opinion of the medical man who attended him is that his injuries may be very serious as the result of the unfortunate affair.

Cochrane Street Church Organ.

By the s.s. Almeriana, there arrived from the Organ manufacture of Messrs. Foster & Andrews, Hull, nine large cases of organ parts to form additions to the splendid pipe organ in Cochrane St. Methodist Church. These additions will complete the original scheme of the organ and will be put in place by Mr. Walter Vey, who erected the instrument. Later on, two special experts from Hull will arrive, who will go through the whole work and thoroughly test every stop. The congregation greatly enjoy the sweet and rich tones of this organ under the manipulation of Mr. Mews, the organist, and they appreciate the great interest of the generous donor of the instrument, who is also giving the present addition.

S.S. Erik For Sale.

The sealing steamer Erik, owned by Job Brotners, is now on the market for sale, and we hear that a certain Company, of which Hon. J. C. Crosbie is the principal, is negotiating for the purchase of her and have offered a figure. The Erik is 461 tons net register, was originally built in Dundee in 1885, but in 1903 was dry docked here, remodelled and refitted, so that she is now a practically new steamer. The vessel is being sold with all her sealing equipment and we understand, will be sent to prosecute the sealfishery this year by her new owners.

Enquiry Continued. Robbery at Musgrave.

The magisterial enquiry was continued to-day in Judge Knight's office. Daniel McDonald, engineer of the tug John Green, was sworn and examined. He was thirty years in the tug service, had experience in various classes of towing but never had an accident, similar to that of Saturday last before. He remembered seeing three men in the boat but do not know what happened. So far as turning Moyal out of the engine room is concerned, McDonald explained that the light was out and told him to go to the stockhold where it was much warmer. Saw nothing further about the accident.

James Molloy, fireman, testified that he helped to pull Moyal, who had hold of the tow rope, out of the water and up over the side of the tug. Never saw the other two men.

Found Ill in Stable.

Shortly after 8 o'clock last night, an inmate of the Poor Asylum, named Thomas Keen, was found in a bad state in a stable at the rear of Hon. M. P. Gibbs' residence, LeMarchant Road. The man occasionally did some odd jobs about the place, and last evening went to the building and after engaging in some work, became stricken with paralysis, but was fortunately found in time to get a doctor. Dr. Scully was called and did all possible for him and Rev. Dr. Greene administered the last sacraments of the church after which the unfortunate man was driven to the Poor Asylum where he is still in a dangerous state.

A STORMY SESSION.
The weekly session of the Municipal Council was held yesterday afternoon. Plans of proposed buildings on Waterford Bridge Road submitted by W. F. Butler were approved of. R. Breaker, blacksmith, asked Council for a share of work. Will be given him. Inspector Baker reported a waste of water. Offenders will be summoned. A request from J. R. Johnstone to erect a gas engine was referred to the Engineer. The Secretary will enquire into a waste of water at the Dry Dock reported by Inspector Rooney. Requisition was made by Carstaker Ryan, of Victoria Park, for trees, seeds etc. Granted. After the Engineer's report was read the question of paying the city appraisers and granting bonuses to officials came up and a lengthy discussion followed. The Court of Appraisement had passed that $200 be given to each of the Judges; $870 to each of the Appraisers and $300 to the Secretary. Councillor Mullaly raised an objection on the grounds that while the Secretary was engaged with the Judges he was at no other work. The councillor said the Secretary was enjoying a nice salary and was not suffering any great hardships. He pointed out clearly that it cost the taxpayers $2,400 to find out that there was only a possibility of collecting $2,600 during the coming year. Continuing, Councillor Mullaly said the appraisers were paid at the rate of $1,750 a year and in concluding remarked that the Council was fast becoming a philanthropic Santa Claus Society, and all one has to do to get what's going is to hang up his stocking.

Councillor Conker then moved that the amounts be voted. He stated that the amounts to the Appraisers included three years work and that they were justly entitled to whatever amount was voted for them. Councillor Mullaly held that the argument was absurd, the appraisers had only worked six months, only when fine weather prevailed and were given at the rate of $145 per month. Councillor Ryan pointed out that the Secretary did extra work in this connection, had given valuable services and like Government officials should receive extra remuneration. He was also in favour of the increased vote to the appraisers. Councillor Mullaly saw no comparison with the Government. One had a large revenue and the other had to borrow from the Government money which he held was thrown up as a "sacrifice". Councillor Martin recorded his vote in favour of the motion before the chair thinking that the monies proposed were reasonable. Councillor Myrick moved that $100 be voted the Secretary but there was no seconder. By a vote of 3 to 2 the original motion for the bonuses was passed. On a claim by Accountant Mahoney for $250 for extra work he was voted $80. After the passing of pay rolls, bills, etc., the meeting adjourned.

THAT BROUGHT ON LOUIS WALSH'S KIDNEY DISEASE.

It Was Dodd's Kidney Pills That Cured It—Statement of a Quebec Man Who Is Well Again After Two Years' Suffering.
St. Leonard, Portneuf Co., Que., Feb. 7. (Special).—Mr. Louis Walsh, a well-known young farmer of this neighborhood, who has been an invalid for about two years, is once more a well man, and he has issued a statement giving Dodd's Kidney Pills complete credit for his cure. In his statement Mr. Walsh says: "For two years I was troubled with kidney disease brought on by cold and wet weather. A doctor treated me, and I tried many medicines without relief. I was utterly discouraged. It was hard work for me to do anything, as I was in pain all the time. "My back ached, and my sleep was broken and unrefreshing. I was always tired and nervous, and felt heavy and sleepy after meals. Reading what Dodd's Kidney Pills had done for others, I decided to try them. Two boxes cured me."

Dodd's Kidney Pills are no cure-all. They simply cure sick kidneys.

Princess Drives Chariot.

With a Pair of Horses, a Lion and a Leopard into Ball-Room.
London, January 31.—A despatch to the Daily News, from Rome says:—"A great sensation was caused yesterday at the skating hall at one of the principal hotels here, when the Princess Albert Radziwill, a prominent society leader, formerly Miss Dorothy Deacon, of New York, entered the crowded ball-room, seated in an ancient Roman chariot, decorated with flowers and illuminated with electricity. It was drawn by a team of prancing horses, which the Princess drove with one hand, while with the other she led a lion and a leopard, chained together. "Despite the attendance of a lion-tamer armed with a whip and a revolver, the wild beasts were very restive and caused the frightened horses to shy several times, while the alarmed and amazed guests crowded around the doorways ready to seek safety in flight. "After a great deal of difficulty the Princess managed to drive the chariot into the centre of the ball-room. The tamer kept the beasts under control, but the guests were requested not to applaud lest the beasts get out of hand through a panic. With equal difficulty the Princess left the ball-room with her dangerous escort."

Notes of Long Ago.

L. C. MORRIS. CHAPTER X.—THE IRISH EMIGRANT.

I have spent fifty or more winters in Newfoundland, but it is only natural to suppose that the first winter was the one I thought most about; but I got through it all right, and though the work was hard, and the weather at times severe, we were all able for it. Having finished our summer engagement, and the voyage having wound up, and most of the fish being shipped, the preparations soon began for the voyage of the following summer; so that we had no difficulty in getting employment for the winter. Several of us shipped from November until April, and we were called by the name of wintermen. Up to that date we had learned a good deal of the fishery, and knew a little of the country round about; although there were only a few paths leading to nearby places. Our winter work, we found, was mostly in the woods, and therefore we learned a good deal more about the facilities and chances of our new home. We were supposed to engage in any work in general that would be for the good of our masters, and so we did not murmur when we were sent to the woods long before daylight for the purpose of cutting and hauling flake stuff and fire-wood. There were not many horses at that time, and dogs were largely used; but there being plenty of men in our gang, and only going two or three miles from the waterfront, we usually made two loads a day, and did not find the work very difficult. We cut wood and pulled it and hauled it out, and built stages and prepared the flakes. We chopped staves and hauled out dung. There was a good deal about it that was harum scarum, especially starting in the early morning two or three hours before dawn; with the barking of the dogs and the shouting of the men, it was quite exciting, and we found that if the work was as we have said, difficult, it was not monotonous; as most of the wintermen who lived in the cook-room, were hilarious and jolly. So with a bit of music now and then, and the notes of our good fiddler, we danced many a reel; sang many a song of old Erin, and put in a very good winter in our new quarters. At that time there was an abundance of wood around St. John's, but the particular places where we cut our staving was in beyond Mundy's Pond, a place called Redman's Mill, near Keary's Saw Mill (now Councillor Power's), and nearby Darby Merrigan's (now Ernest Cowan's) and other places some five or six miles distant, towards Steady near Birmingham's Pond, where Brazill the cooper had a property and cut all their staves. These were the resorts of the men of the olden time, and according to the custom of the times and the way of the country, there was nothing else could be done. So with our wood cut and hauled, and our stages and flakes prepared and ready for the next voyage, our next duty would be the barking of nets. There were several public places for the purpose at that time, two or three at the lower end of the town known as Maddock's Cove, and there was a larger one at Newman's premises; one on the road called Pokam Path, near Wood's school (now Salvation Citadel). The neighborhood was commonly called the "Barking Kettle," because of being such a public resort in the spring-time by the fishermen for the purpose of barking their nets. And so our term of agreement for the winter expired, and we were all paid off with the sum of twenty pounds, some of which we had to take home. We had our diet, and we found we could save money as our expenses were very few; and so by the time I had put in nearly a year in St. John's, I not only had the few sovereigns I had brought with me, but I had most of what I had earned as well. I have followed that system ever since, and have thereby saved a little, and have never wanted a penny from any man. With the opening of the spring we began to look out for the arrivals for the summer, with the hope of getting some news from home; and so, the days grew long, and the fishery began, and one vessel after another began to arrive. Like most of the vessels which had come in former seasons, they brought several emigrants; many of whom were Irish, but some were from the West country, and a few from Scotland. One of the vessels from Ireland brought me a letter, and from it I learned the first news of those I had left at home. I was very thankful that all was well, and that my parents had got my own letter, and they were healthy and hearty, but they had not heard from my brother in Australia. It was years before I heard from him. The news from home was very cheering. As the old song says:—"Good news from home, good news, for me." "Has come across the deep blue sea." "For friends across the ocean's foam." "Have sent to me good news from home." "Though I may never see it more." "Or stand upon my native shore." "And though I wander far away." "My heart is full of joy to-day." "For friends across the ocean foam." "Have sent to me good news from home." With this we bid adieu to our old friends. Their names were Patrick, Edward and Denis; and they were locally known as Paddy, Dinny and Ned. Patrick was the chief hero of our story. His wife and daughter predeceased him, and not having any sons, his name has gone out. He lived near Lazy Bank. Denis lived in Job's Lane, where now stands the Shoe Factory, and Edward out of town. Denis had some money, especially given to other countries. Edward had one daughter, a very handsome woman, who married a charcoal burner of Chamberlains, near Topsail. These men were representative of the sons of toil, who by their industry and hard labor broke the path for those who followed. I knew them well. They were plain, but honest and God-fearing. They were never ashamed of their country nor their faith; and their character and their conduct were their richest possessions.

The publisher of the best Farmer's paper in the Maritime Provinces in writing to us states: "I would say that I do not know of a medicine that has stood the test of time like MINARD'S LINIMENT. It has been an unfailing remedy in our household ever since I can remember, and has outlived dozens of would-be competitors and imitators."

EARS.

BY H. L. RAYN.

The ear is a small, eager receptacle which is hung on one side of the head, in a handy place to catch the drift of a private conversation. All ears are not not hung alike, some standing erect in an alert and aggressive attitude, while others have a pensive, broken-spirited droop, like an eggplant in a drouth. The ear is situated within speaking distance of the brain, which it feeds with one hand while raking in stray language with the other. If it were not for the ear, the brain would have to live on literary masterpieces and other solids instead of being fed several times a day on gaseous gossip and white-haired jokes. The ear is an elastic object and can open and shut faster than a snapshot lens. When a person does not want to hear any evil about his neighbor, all he has to do is close his left ear and think about something which will not turn sour. The ear can be trained so that a man can lie in bed in the morning and hear his wife yelling for soft coal for the kitchen range without sensing what is going on. On the other hand, a person with a cultivated ear can stand in one corner of a room and hear somebody out in the conservatory making love to his wife in a honeyed whisper. Some ears are constructed like an extension fire ladder and are able to reach out into the hall and detect the approaching footsteps of an overdue bill, defaulting payment by climbing into a clothes locker. This is a great convenience, and has enabled many a man to keep up a bold front on rarefied ozone. People are said to have an ear for music when they can tell the opening overture from the tuning up. It is a great thing to have a musical ear whose foot will not slip at the critical moment and confuse a Chopin prelude with the Lohengrin wedding march. Ears would be used more than they are at present if there were less pipe in the atmosphere. An ornamental ear, which can be hermetically sealed against loose gabble, is a priceless possession.

Every Man, Home.

Every man's home is the best old home.
And every man's wife the sweetest; Every man's child is the best little child.
The best behaved and the neatest. Every man's baby is better than all. The babies that ever were born— And just its babies and wives and homes. Why, let 'em blow their horn!
Every man's wife makes the finest preserves.
And every man's wife bakes bread That beats all the bread that ever was made
From Hatteras to Stony Head. Every man's home is the place to see The finest housekeeping on earth— And just so it's bread and preserves and home. Let 'em keep on with their mirth! When every man thinks that his own home's best, And his own wife's sweetest why then We'll swing back unto the golden dream Of a heaven on earth again. And isn't it beautiful, fine and sweet, That faith of a man in his child, And his wife and his home and his simple life That he boasts of undefiled?
When every man's home is the sweetest place On earth for a man to be; When every man's wife is the sweetest wife In all the world to see.

When every man's child is the dearest child
That ever drew breath—ah, then, We shall have better children and women and homes
And a darned sight better men!

Cape Report.

Special to Evening Telegram. CAPE RACE, To-day. Wind west, blowing a gale with snow showers. The s.s. Portia passed in yesterday afternoon and s.s. Louisburg west at 8.30 to-day. Bar., 29.32; ther., 17.

Too Much of a Good Thing.

Mr. Frederick Townshend Martin, the wealthy American philanthropist, was discussing the other day the menu of a dinner to be given to newsboys, and he recalled the story of a dinner given by his brother, Mr. Bradley Martin, to some of his tenants. The dinner, which included roast beef, roast goose, boiled mutton, roast turkey, and so on, began with soup. One bluff old farmer had a plate of soup set down before him. "Here," he said to the waiter, pushing it away, "you've forgotten the goose and the stuffing. 'Dye think I want it all gravy?"

Governor Greets Nfld.

Yesterday His Excellency the Governor sent a wireless to His Excellency the Administrator from the S. S. Corsican, as follows:
"To Administrator, St. John's, Nfld.
"We send greetings of goodwill to all Newfoundland."
(Signed) DAVIDSON.
The Administrator replied as follows:
"H. E. the Governor of Newfoundland, S. S. Corsican.
"Please accept our thanks for Your Excellency's greetings, and our assurance that Newfoundland bids you and Mrs. Davidson a hearty welcome."
(Signed) HORWOOD.
A similar greeting was received by the Premier from the Governor, which in addition conveyed the information that at 10 o'clock last night the Corsican was 170 miles from Cape Race. Sir Edward Morris replied suitably. The Governor and suite are expected to arrive at Halifax to-morrow afternoon, and under present arrangements to leave for North Sydney on Monday. They will then take the Bruce or Invermore and come via Port aux Basques by rail if weather conditions are favourable to the line being open, or direct to St. John's by steamer. It is quite possible, however, that these arrangements may be changed and that the Governor and party may embark on the Florizel on Monday night at Halifax and come direct to this city.
We thank His Excellency for his greeting to the people of Newfoundland who, we are sure, heartily reciprocate the felicitations and will extend to him a cordial welcome.

Portia Back.

The s.s. Portia, Capt. J. Kean, arrived from western ports at 1 o'clock this morning, having been as far as Channel. She could not get beyond Cape Ray, owing to the heavy Arctic ice encountered and for a couple of hours was jammed in the ice and had to return to Channel. Coming this way a succession of heavy gales and snow storms were experienced. The steamer brought a full freight, including a quantity of halibut, and the following passengers: Messrs. Jas. Power, Wm. Bonia, L. Cashin; Mrs. Edstrom; Misses Brophy, Cashin, Fitzpatrick; Master Edstrom.

Elderly Men and Women Must Not Use Calomel, Salts or Violent Cathartics.

You old people, Syrup of Figs is particularly for you. You who don't exercise as much as you need to, who like the easy chair. You whose steps are slow and whose muscles are less elastic. You must realize that your liver and ten yards of bowels have also become less active. Don't regard Syrup of Figs as physic. It stimulates the liver and bowels just as exercise would do if you took enough of it. It is not harsh like salts or cathartics. The help which Syrup of Figs gives to a torpid liver and weak, sluggish bowels is harmless, natural and gentle. When eyes grow dim, you help them, bowels when age makes them less active. There is nothing more important. Costive, clogged-up bowels mean that decaying, fermenting food is clogged there and the pores or ducts in these thirty feet of bowels such this decaying waste and poisons into the blood. You will never get feeling right until this is corrected—but do it gently. Don't have a bowel washday; don't use a bowel irritant. For your sake, please use only gentle, effective Syrup of Figs. Then you are not drugging yourself, for Syrup of Figs is composed of only luscious figs, senna and aromatics which can not injure. A teaspoonful to-night will gently, but thoroughly, move on and out of your system by morning all the sour and bile poisonous fermenting food and clogged-up waste matter without griping, nausea or weakness. But get the genuine. Ask your druggist for the full name, "Syrup of Figs and Elixir of Senna." Refuse, with contempt, any other Fig Syrup unless it bears the name—prepared by the California Fig Syrup Company. Read the label.
