A Child of Sorrow.

CHAPTER XL.

"Another barrier? Is it of your setting up, Byrne; or does it concern Maida?"

"It concerns us both," he said. "There is no use saying anything more about it." He was glad that he had not told Ricky of the marriage. "I am going out again; indeed, I scarcely know why I have come home— and at that moment he assuaged himself of folly in having done so; but I wanted a change; the voyage has set me up—"

"What must you have been before?" she said.

"—And the voyage out will put me quite straight. But that is enough about myself. Tell me about yourself and Lord Glassbury."

They talked for some time; but though she was keenly interested in his Australian life and prospects, Maida was in her thoughts, and she knew that Maida was in his. Once or twice she tried to speak of her, but there was something about Heroncourt that kept the subject at arm's length, as it were. He went away at last, promising to dine with her on the morrow.

He sighed as he looked up at the house and thought of the happy hours he had spent there with Maida; gone forever, gone like a dream. Though the rain had not ceased, he decided to walk home, and strode along with his coat collar turned up, his head bent. It was not late, and the people were still coming out of the theatres; the Strand was one mass of human beings moving slowly and solidly along the pavement, while the road-way was filled with cabs and omnibuses; he had half-unconsciously turned into the busy thoroughfare, with that vague desire for life and movement, from the sound of a crowd, which the Londoner always feels after a period of solitude and quiet; and he stood at the entrance to the Savoy, looking about him absent-mindedly.

As he did so, a little man who was moving with the crowd came within sight of the tall figure. He was a common-place-looking little man, with a clean-shaven face and a timid, deprecatory air which tempted some of the young men in the crowd to hustle him somewhat; but he bore the pressure meekly and impassively, until he caught sight of the tall figure in front of him; then he seemed to wake up, and, doing a little pushing on his own account, gradually forced his way along and approached Heroncourt. He was almost up to him, when Heroncourt, having grown tired of the crush, stepped into the roadway, and with some difficulty made his way between the cabs and carriages to the other side; and he was moving on when he heard a cry, followed by sudden shouts from some of the drivers. He stopped and looked back, and saw that something had happened; the cabs and omnibuses had pulled up; half a dozen policemen were with difficulty clearing a space in the middle of the road in which a crowd had collected.

"What is it—what has happened?" asked Heroncourt of a by-stander.

"Dunno, sir; somebody run over, I think."

Heroncourt made his way into the road and approached the spot encircled by the policemen, and saw a couple of them bending over a little man who was lying in the mud. A few months, a year ago, Heroncourt would have asked a question, uttered a sympathetic comment, and gone on his way, like our old friends the Levites and the priest; but trouble makes the heart—if it's a heart worth anything—sympathetic for others' misfortunes; and Heroncourt, dividing the crowd of curious spectators, bent beside the policeman.

"Is he hurt much, officer?" he asked.

"Can't exactly say, sir," said the policeman. "He is quite unconscious. They'll be able to tell at the 'ospital; we'll get him into a cab presently. If we'd a drop of brandy—"

Heroncourt broke through the crowd, forced his way up to the counter of the nearest public-house, got some brandy, and returned with it so quickly that the policeman seemed surprised. He was also surprised at a gentleman taking such trouble. Heroncourt knelt down in the mud—more surprised for the policeman—and succeeded in getting a little of the spirit between the man's clenched teeth. A four-wheeler was called, and Heroncourt and a policeman lifted the injured man, and, as they were doing so, the light fell upon his face, and, to his amazement, Heroncourt saw that it was David Jones.

"I know the man," he said. "He is a friend of mine!"

The policeman looked doubtfully from the tall figure clad in evening-dress to the unconscious man in his rough pea-jacket.

"You know him, sir?" he said. "Then perhaps you will please come to the 'ospital, and give 'em what information you can."

"No, no; not the 'ospital," said Heroncourt. "We'll take him home to my place; it is not very far. I will take care of him."

They drove slowly to Heroncourt's rooms in Bernard Place, and Baxter came down to the door and stared at the four-wheeler, and stared still harder when he saw the face of the injured man.

"Why, it's David Jones, my lord!" he said.

Baxter and Heroncourt carried the little man to Heroncourt's own room, and Ricky, who was staying with Heroncourt, was dispatched for a doctor.

"Go for Sir Jeremiah Jordan," said Heroncourt; "he will come for me."

Heroncourt and Baxter did what they could in the interval to make David Jones comfortable; but he still remained unconscious. As Heroncourt stood beside the bed, looking down at the pale, common-place face, he was haunted by the same vague sense of having seen the man before—that is to say, in England—the same indistinct recollection which had assailed him when he had first met David Jones on the road to the lumber-camp.

"It was a strange meeting, my lord," said Baxter, in an undertone. "Fancy his being here. I hope nothing won't happen to him, my lord; for he's a good sort—begging your lordship's pardon."

"One of the best, Baxter," said Heroncourt, gravely. "Poor fellow! I've an idea that he saw me in the Strand, and that he met with this accident in trying to follow me across the road. He was no doubt unused to such a crowd. Do you remember the way he fought that night, Baxter?"

"Yes, my lord; it's hard lines to be run over by a wretched omnibus after living through that!"

"Please God, we'll pull him through," said Heroncourt.

Presently Ricky came back, out of breath and panting.

"Sir Jeremiah's out dining; but I've no doubt he'll come on presently; they said he would. Is he very much hurt, Heroncourt?"

He bent over the bed, then he, too, uttered an exclamation of amazement.

"Why, it's that little man—the cause of all the trouble—the little man who came to the Towers—that Maida and Carrie made over all Mr. Carrington's money to. What's his name? Why, Purley—Josiah Purley! Well, of all the—"

Heroncourt started as Ricky's words helped him to recognize the man.

"Of course," he said; "and I did not recognize him. It was the heavy beard. Yes, he is Josiah Purley; but he is also David Jones, one of the hands at the Dartford station; one of the bravest men, the most devoted and faithful that ever lived."

He turned away for a moment to hide his emotion from the others.

In about half an hour Sir Jeremiah arrived.

"Glad to see you back, my lord. But they told me you had been run over by an omnibus. I didn't believe it, for you're the last man— Eh, another man? Oh, all right!"

He went upstairs and made an examination, while Heroncourt paced up and down his sitting-room, full of anxiety.

"It's a bad case," said Sir Jeremiah, shaking his head. "There are two ribs broken, and serious complications may set in. His heart's not very strong, and may give us trouble. By the way, he is conscious now, and he asked for you. I'll look in again in the morning; and I'd better send you a nurse, hadn't I? I'll telephone for one. Keep him as quiet as you can, and send round for me if there is any sudden change. I'll have another look at him presently."

Heroncourt went upstairs. Josiah Purley was lying with his eyes closed, but he heard Heroncourt's step, soft as it was, and, opening his eyes, smiled a feeble, deprecatory smile at him.

"Hallo, old man," said Heroncourt, in the tone a man uses when he is deeply moved. "How goes it now?"

He took the limp hand and pressed it, and a grateful look came into Purley's eyes.

"I am sorry to be a nuisance, Mr. Tudor—I mean, my lord. I was trying to get across the road after you; but I ain't what you might call used to London traffic, and before I knew where I was, I was under the horse's feet. Very stupid of me, my lord; and I'm very sorry for all the trouble I'm giving."

"Don't say that, David," said Heroncourt. "Nobody thinks of the trouble. And, if we were so callous, we should remember the way you fought for us out there at Dartford, and cease thinking of it any longer. Are you comfortable—in pain?"

Purley shook his head.

"No, my lord; nothing to speak of. It's only a bone or two. I wanted to see you, Mr. Tudor—I mean, your lordship; I wanted to tell you something about—about—but it's gone out of my head. I don't seem as if I could think."

"Don't try," said Heroncourt. "Don't worry yourself about anything. You are here, in good hands, I hope. We shall take every care of you, we'll pull you round, never fear. You're not going to chuck up the sponge over a little thing like this, after fighting such a fight as you fought out there."

Purley. "I shouldn't be so much trouble there; it's the proper place for the likes of me."

"No, you certainly cannot," said Heroncourt. "It may be the best place for you; but would you send me to a hospital if I'd met with an accident outside your door? Don't you see? I can't be too thankful that I happened to be present when the accident occurred. Now, I must dry up, for you mustn't talk, and I mustn't excite you, or we shall rile that doctor, and he's particularly nasty when he's riled."

He pressed the limp hand and laid his hand gently and affectionately on Purley's shoulder; and Purley tried to return the pressure, and, smiling a deprecatory smile of gratitude, closed his eyes.

The nurse arrived, but though, with the calm resourcefulness of her profession, she promptly took possession of the injured man, and turned the others out of the room, Heroncourt sat up for the remainder of that night and every now and then went to the door to listen and enquire. Nor did Baxter sleep; for with the staunchness and affection of an old soldier, for one who has fought by his side, he, too, kept watch. Sir Jeremiah came early in the morning; but his report was not very encouraging.

"His ribs are all right," he said. "I am surgeon enough to answer for them; but it's the shock; his heart's not very strong, as I said."

"You must pull him through, doctor," said Heroncourt, gravely. "I value his life above my own. He is the bravest and most faithful of men; we fought together, out there in Australia, and—he's a brick!"

Later on he went into the room and found Purley conscious, but somewhat hazy.

"Pears to me, my lord," he said, "that I may be booked for Kingdom. Come. I was watching the doctor's face when he was seeing to me, and he kept on smiling; and I've always noticed that the more they smile the worse it is for you. I'm going to ask you a favour, Mr. Tudor—I beg your pardon, I mean, your lordship. It comes hard to think of you, to remember you, as being anything but the boss out there at Dartford. What a time it was! We had a stiffish bout that night; and if it hadn't been for you and the way you overused us, we shouldn't have pulled through, should we, Mr. Baxter?" he added, gazing rather wildly at Baxter, who stood on the other side of the bed; and Baxter, with an apologetic glance at his master, nodded and murmured:

"That's so, Mr. Jones."

"We won't think of that just at present," said Heroncourt. "You mustn't excite yourself, you know. What is it you want me to do for you?"

Purley pondered for a moment, his brows knit; then he said:

Trenching

AT GALLIPOLI,

By JOHN GALLISHAW.

The personal narrative of a loyal Newfoundland soldier in the disastrous Dardanelles campaign. An adventure-story stranger than fiction; as well as a reliable account, by an unusually keen participant, of the gigantic failure at Gallipoli.

For obvious reasons not a great many details of the Dardanelles campaign were permitted to be published while it was running its dramatic and terribly costly course; nor since, either, for that matter. Mr. Gallishaw, a student at Harvard when the war began and now, wounded, again in this country, is at liberty to write about what happened. His book moreover, gives an extraordinarily vivid impression of what trench-fighting and trench-living is like.

If you haven't heard or seen it, get it now.

WEEKS' SHIPPING FIGURES.
LONDON, To-day.

The summary of the statements follows: Arrivals, 2,629; sailings, 2,580. British merchant ships sunk by the enemy or submarine over 1,600 tons. In-land, 1,600 tons, including one passenger ship. British merchant vessels not successfully attacked, including two previously, six; British fishing ships sunk, none. Most of the sinking reported in to-day's totals occurred during the last part of the week; the last part was very favourable, but the latter British shipping had a break of bad luck.

TO CONTROL ENTIRE PROVISION TRADE.
LONDON, To-day.

Lord Rhondda, Food Controller, has decided to take over, gradually, the control of the entire provision trade in the British Isles. A vital consideration in the regulation of prices and provisions is control of imports, and Lord Rhondda is in constant touch with the American Food Control Department on this subject. It is expected that the Government are working in entire harmony to secure a regulation in the prices of commodities, by curbing the supply of tea, concealing which there have been alarming reports recently, the food minister to-day issued a reassuring statement.

A RESERVED V. C.
LONDON, To-day.

The London Gazette to-day published a number of awards, decorations and medals given in respect of action in the Straits of Otranto on May 16th, when three Austrian cruisers attacked a number of British cruisers. The list includes the Victoria Cross to Skipper John Watt, Royal Naval Reserve, "For most conspicuous gallantry." When halted by the Austrian cruisers at about 100 yards range and ordered to abandon his drift, Watt ordered full speed ahead and called upon the crew for three cheers and a fight to the finish. The cruiser then engaged and disabled the drift, and after one round, the guns sank to the gun, endeavouring to make it work although under heavy fire and the work.

A NEUTRAL SOCIALIST'S VIEW.
COPENHAGEN, To-day.

The Socialists of neutral countries do not wish any nation to be pushed by this war, said M. Stauning, Socialist leader and Minister without portfolio, in an address to-day. He said that reason the constantly recurring rumors that we desire a separate peace between Russia and Germany are meaningless and untrue. A separate peace would be in complete opposition to the interests of the international working classes. We desire for all the nations of the world a separate peace would free forces which could

LONDON, To-day. The London Gazette to-day pub- lished a number of awards, decorations and medals given in respect of the ac- tion in the Straits of Otranto on May 15th, when three Austrian cruisers attacked a number of British drifters. The list includes the Victoria Cross to Skipper John Watt, Royal Naval Re- serve, "for most conspicuous gal- lantry." When hailed by the Austrian cruisers at about 100 yards range and ordered to abandon his drifter, Watt ordered full speed ahead and called upon the crew for three cheers and a fight to the finish. A NEUTRAL SOCIALIST'S VIEW.

COPENHAGEN, To-day. The Socialists of neutral countries do not wish any nation to be crushed by this war, said M. Stauning, Social- ist leader and Minister without port- folio, in an address to-day. For that reason the constantly recurring re- ports that we desire a separate peace between Russia and Germany are meaningless and untrue. A separate peace would be in complete opposi- tion to the interests of the international working classes. We desire but for all the nations of the world a separate peace would free forces which could that even some Entente Governments were unprepared for the prompt fash- ion in which the President disposed of a matter of such tremendous import- ance. It was realized, however, by Entente representatives at Washing- ton that President Wilson must have had some good and sufficient reason for acting so quickly. Speculation as- cribes the motive to a desire to im- press favourably the great Russian Convention at Moscow, while that body is still in a plastic and receptive state. It was also suggested that the President might have wished to antici- pate by his remarkable state paper obstructive action by pacifist elements in and out of Congress. In the United States approval of the Presi- dent's note was expressed generally at the Capital to-day by members of all parties.

THE NOTE FORMALLY RECEIVED.

LONDON, To-day. President Wilson's note has appar- ently created a profound impression on the British Socialist groups, which have been conferring on the question of sending delegates to Stockholm to discuss peace by negotiation. Al- though Arthur Henderson, the Labor Leader, and many others declined to express their opinion on the ground that they had not time to digest the note, all were deeply interested. Even the extreme pacifists were not willing to express disapproval of it.

A WELCOME FAILURE.

LONDON, To-day. The so-called Inter-Alleek Socialist Conference concluded to-day in the session this evening. It failed to reach unanimity of opinion on the Stockholm Conference or peace. The United States was not represented at the Conference and one South African Delegate was the only representative of British Overseas Dominions. Dele- gates from pacifist bodies were in the majority. The Trades Union Con- gress, representing the bulk of British Labor, had only eight delegates in attendance, and the Labor Party twelve delegates.

THE ENEMY'S REPLY.

COPENHAGEN, To-day. It will be ten days before the Central Powers answer the peace note of Pope Benedict, says the Berlin Kreuz Zeitung. Negotiations regard- ing the note between Berlin and Vienna have been completed, the pa- per states, but are still taking place with Turkey. It expresses the view that the Central Powers undoubtedly will agree upon a joint reply.

New Building for Salvation Army.

Plans have been drawn up and a contract given for a new building to be erected on Adelaide Street for the Salvation Army. The proposed struc- ture will probably be of stone and will be situated on the east side of the street north of New Gower Street, on a site which is now a lumber yard. The old Army's quarters at Living- stone Street are far too small and as soon as the new Citadel is completed the old building will be handed over to the Salvation Boy Scouts, Adj. N. R. Trickett, of Montreal, representing Commissioner W. J. Richards, of the Salvation Army in Canada and New- foundland, is here looking after the financial arrangements. Practically half the amount required has been raised and construction will shortly be commenced. Mr. William Cum- ings has been given the contract.

The Labrador Sailings.

The public generally, and the busi- ness public in particular, are loud in their indignation over the sailing dates of the subsidized Labrador steamers. The Diana sailed yester- day and the Thetis, which only arrived back from the coast on Tuesday af- ternoon, is scheduled to leave again this evening. The expeditious de- parture of the Thetis may be all right and mean good business; no doubt it does, for the Reid Company, but business people think differently and contend that there should be a long- er interval to give them time to at- tend to their correspondence, freights, etc., regarding the Labrador.

Brookfield Garden Party.

The garden party held at Glenden- ing's farm yesterday afternoon in aid of the Brookfield Church was well at- tended, quite a number of prominent people from the city being present. An interesting programme of sports was run off, including a tug of war between the Marconi officers' and a city team, in which, after a stiff pull, the latter were victorious. A distant relative of Charlie Chaplin was present and amused the crowd. The C. L. B. band also attended and discoursed several lively and patriotic airs.

Rules Of The Road.

Last Sunday's terrible motor accident makes pertinent a few observations upon road traffic in general and motor travelling in particular in and around the city, though its exceptional character removes it altogether from the class of regular occurrences which furnish good ground for complaint. There have been a number of minor accidents lately, and more narrowly averted, which have emphasised the importance of the matter, and incidentally brought a number of perfectly justifiable letters of remonstrance to this office.

Vehicular traffic on our roads is far from satisfactory. Pedestrians have good reason to complain, so have drivers. The fault in both cases, in every case, is the utter incompetence and inaction of the police. There is not the slightest attempt made at traffic control. There is not the slightest attempt made to compel observance either of special statutes or of the ordinary common law. The speed limit is exceeded every day of every week and no prosecutions follow. Licenses are a perfect farce, being issued to drivers who hardly know how to start and how to stop a car. The rule of the road—keep to the left—is a delightful bit of pedantry which no one needs to regard. The most flagrant and amazing violation of it is provided by the Reid Newfoundland Company, who for the past twenty years have been breaking the law by driving their street cars up and down the wrong side of Water Street. Why a serious accident has not resulted from it long ago is one of those mysteries which we are accustomed to solve by reference to a power we call providence. The public should not permit such a state of things, the Council should not permit it, most of all the police should not permit it. The fact that it is permitted is another illustration of the sort of public Council and police that we have. But, for that matter, the Company are not the worst offenders, for they offend consistently, while many drivers, including others than motor drivers, pass recklessly at any time from one side of the road to the other.

We do not need elaborate and detailed bye-laws on the subject: we need merely the enforcement of such laws as we have. There are two sides to the question, as to all others.

A Call to Your Grocer! will bring a package of Grape-Nuts
A delicious, healthful food and a pleasing lesson in economy.
"There's a Reason"
Made in Canada

Not only should reckless and lawless drivers be controlled in the interest of the public and of careful drivers, but the latter have much to complain of themselves. After a recent accident we received a letter, most of it quite sensible and reasonable, in which the writer complained that the speed of the car concerned was all right on a country road but not on the city streets where children are playing. It did not seem to occur to him that children have no business whatever to be playing on the city streets. Pedestrians have a perfect right to the use of the streets and to have that use made safe, but it should be confined to purposes of crossing from one side to the other and limited purposes in other ways. The sidewalks belong to them, the streets to vehicles. A very great annoyance, which threatens at any moment to become something much worse, is the practice of little children to run deliberately in front of motor cars, to dodge across them and make them pull up short. Remonstrances from drivers are more often than not met with insolence from the culprits and their parents.

There are a dozen more irregularities of the same nature which are far too common. Two things are imperatively needed. The first is action by the police, who need not only to do their duty, but in many cases to be instructed what that duty is. The second is a Motor Association, such as is found everywhere else, which can exercise a constant and strict supervision of the conduct of drivers, the granting of licenses; the introduction of a strict test before they are granted, and many other necessary things. Given these obvious reforms, it may become safe to walk abroad or to drive a car without risk at any moment of killing or maiming someone.

South and West Coast Fishery
THE BIGGEST ON RECORD.
The fishery report brought by the S. S. Fortia from points south and east of Bonne Bay is by far the biggest on record, and with but few exceptions all the fishermen have made unusual profits. At Bonne Bay a number of fishermen have given up the voyage having secured as much fish as they could handle and with the prevailing prices they probably have enough money to satisfy them. The weather for drying has been ideal. One concern hails for close on 20,000 qtrs. ready for shipment, which was made within the present month. Most of the voyage will be marketed from the chief ports along the coast, very little of it coming to St. John's.

A number of shoremen who have completed their three months trapping voyage have cleared from $500 to $1,000.

Incorrigible Youths Rounded up Again.
Yesterday afternoon four lads, whose ages ranged from 10 to 14 years, were rounded up for forcing an entrance to Water Street stores. An incorrigible named Woodland was arrested for gaining access to the store of W. B. Fraser, through a window, which he broke, and stealing a cheese. Later in the day three other lads named Evans, Connors and Reid, the last named one of the hardest cases the police have to contend with, he having been released from the Penitentiary a few days ago after being whipped, broke into the Grace and Bowring Buildings. They got down into Bowring's office through the skylight from the roof and with the aid of a ladder. Their frolicking was put a stop to by Constable O'Keefe, who was notified at the time by a woman who was scrubbing the offices. The lads were caught too early to attempt any looting. They appeared before Judge Morris to-day. Woodland, who was charged with larceny, pleaded guilty and was sentenced to get six inches. The other lads were charged with loose and disorderly conduct. The Judge, after scolding the youthful offenders, ordered that their parents sign bonds for their future good behaviour.

TO-NIGHT'S GAME.
Should weather conditions permit, to-night's game between the B. I. S. and Wanderers will begin promptly at 6.15. This is the replayed game, which ended in a draw on Tuesday evening. Both teams are in very fine fettle, so that the clash should be interesting. Although commencing rather early, yet the fans who arrive at the usual hour will see the greater part of the game as it usually lasts an hour and a half.

THE PLAYERS.
To-night's lineup will probably be as follows:—
B. I. S. Wanderers.
Carew pitcher Brown
Brazil catcher Ford
French 1st base Hartnett
Williams 2nd base McCrindle
Doyle 3rd base Britt
McGrath s. stop MacLeod
C. Grace f. field Dobbins

OFFICIALS.
Both the official umpires—Major Montgomerie and Mr. F. V. Chesman will again be on deck, with Messrs. Outerbridge and Mullings in the dug-out.

PLEASE INFORM US!
We would like to be informed regarding the batting averages in the tied game. Some there are who say that the figures should be included in the general averages for the season, while others claim that in view of the game being tied, making a re-play necessary, the averages are hereby cancelled. Would some one kindly give us an authoritative statement on this point?

THE LOBSTER.
"Strike one!" the umpire loudly cried. The Lobster's eyes grew round and wide. He knew it should have been a ball and not a strike at all. "Are you dead on your feet?" came the managers cry—"Don't stand there and let that kind go by!" "Strike two!" the umpire's call came ringing just as the Lobster finished swinging. "What is the matter? are you dead? Use your head!" his manager said.

Oblaying his boss was the Lobster's creed; so when, with a world of twist and speed, the next ball came as bullets' fit, he stuck his head in the path of it. Though he reached first base all dizzy and dumb, he was off his base for months to come!

Thoughts Upon the Times.

(By PATRIOT)
The fishery report brought by Capt. Parsons of the Thetis from Labrador is the best for many years. With a record shore fishery already secured, and the present fine weather helping materially to forward its cure, the fishermen all over Newfoundland will have ready for market by early autumn one of the largest catches of fish in the history of the country. It is to be sincerely hoped that the present high prices given for all fishery produce will be maintained. One thing is pretty certain to happen if weather continues fine, and that is the bulk of the voyage will be ready for shipment months earlier than other years. The great problem will be to secure tonnage, and on the shoulders of the Government Committee in charge of this "national" problem, rests a tremendous responsibility.

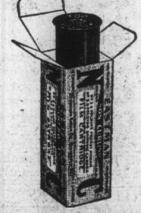

Providence is also favouring us with a bountiful potato crop, and there will be gathered this year tens of thousands of barrels more than were ever reaped before in the history of the Colony. A visit to the outports and a chat with the fisherman or his family will convince one of this. It is to be hoped that the fishermen who responded to appeals made last winter to sow more potatoes will find a ready market for the extra crop raised. Imported potatoes should be prohibited this year. But we shall wait and see.

The loss of the Durango with her cargo and mails is a very serious matter. It will be difficult to replace this ship in the Newfoundland trade.

The whole country is breathlessly waiting for the Government to come to a decision as to what it intends doing with our Regiment. Is it going to be kept up, is the question asked. The whole people now is the Regiment, for there is hardly a settlement in the country which has not contributed its quota to the Army or Navy. Everybody seems to be doing his best to help win the war except the members of the Government. The Morris Administration before the Coalition, did absolutely nothing "except pay the bills." The only thing that has been done since Coalition is Hon. J. R. Bennett made Minister of Militia. The boys in the trenches, knowing they are facing death, write home to their parents and friends cheerful letters. They say in effect: "Keep up your courage. Send us more reinforcements. We are not downhearted. Keep the home fires burning." We view with pride the noble achievements of our brave lads and still let a Government that will do nothing remain in power. They have done nothing but retreat since taking office. Do not deceive ourselves by thinking the war will soon come to an end. That great wizard, Premier Lloyd George, said recently at Glasgow that "the war will only come to an end when the Allied Powers have reached the aims which they set out to attain when they accepted the challenge thrown down by Germany to civilization."

Fellow countrymen, let us be up and doing! Let us, if we are men, take up the sword which has fallen from the hands of the brave lads who have so nobly and cheerfully given their lives in France and Belgium. If we let our Regiment go down, if we fail to carry on what they so nobly have begun, everlasting shame will be our heritage.

CIVIC BOARD MEETS.—The weekly conference of our "City Fathers" takes place this afternoon. The principal business to be introduced for discussion will be the dust and infantile paralysis problems.

KING PHILIP
King Philip was an Indian monarch who was born in this country and died while seeking a cooler climate. He inhabited most of the New England states and proved a greater scourge than an epidemic of the mumps. Whenever people saw King Philip coming they hid in the cellar and handed up peace offerings in the form of canned fruit. His reign was short, but highly turbulent, and he enjoyed one of the most tumultuous deaths on record.

King Philip was the son of an Indian chief who had been squeezed out of his valuable corn land in Massachusetts and refused an ingrowing grudge against the white brother. On his deathbed he made Philip promise that he would not allow one of the Puritan Fathers to cross his path without writing his name and post-office address on the back of his head with a tomahawk, and Philip carried out this promise with scrupulous fidelity until arrested by the collapse of his breathing apparatus.

It was Philip who conceived the idea of uniting the red brother into one compact, pantless mass and pushing the white interlopers into the Atlantic Ocean. He therefore started out by burning down a few villages which had no volunteer fire department or hook and ladder company and causing terror into the hearts of the colonists by slaughtering men and women of both sexes. This soon became tiresome to the colonists, who decided to exterminate Philip and allow him to retire to more congenial surroundings, where he would not have to pay any coal bills or wear felled-down underwear.

It took some time to reach Philip with anything but threats, but one beautiful day in August, 1676, he was surrounded while preparing dinner in a swamp, using his crown as a soup bowl. A treacherous Indian then stole up and introduced nine ounces of buckshot into his kingly person, thus cutting short his reign and his breath at one and the same time. King Philip's body was treated with great indignity, and he had one of the sillest and most disappointing funerals in the history of New England.

Thus failed one of the earliest attempts to establish a king on American soil, which is much better adapted to growing cabbages, anyway. We do not need a king, but there are times when it seems as if a czar might come in handy.

Fashions and Fads.

A soft, mist gray, is a favorite color for chifton dresses. Afternoon and evening gowns will be trimmed with lace.

Navy blue chifton over crimson makes an attractive gown. Rose muslin makes the daintiest of dresses for the little girl.

Children's frocks are finished with round neck and no collar. Short Russian tunics are fashion features as well as long ones.

On elaborate tulle frocks silk, pearl or woolen flowers are used. "Smart" women are wearing long chifton veils swathed about them.

Plain and figured muslins are combined in making pretty frocks. Loose, straight line jackets, long and belted, are indorsed by fashion.

Handbags are made of brocades and embroideries, satins and leathers. One new fashion feature among evening gowns is the slanting girdle.

To Much Thrift.

By RUTH CAMERON.

RUTH CAMERON

There are a great many ways a wife can help her husband. . . .
"I think his wife is partly to blame," said the Authorman.
"How can you say that?" said the Authorman's wife, "why she works terribly hard and she is so economical."
"A Wife Who Had to Have Money Might Have Helped."
"She could work less hard and have a larger vision," said the Authorman. "I think it's her thrift and her habit of counting pennies that has helped hold him back. He figures too small on the work he does. He doesn't ever dare take chances. He's somewhat that way, and she makes him more so. If he had married a wife who was used to having money and thinking in big figures he might have been forced to succeed."
The Authorman's wife looked entirely unconvinced. It is a dangerous philosophy to put up to women and yet there are women who need it. Darling, the willingness to take a chance, are qualities women notoriously lack.
"Every small child should be taught to eat vegetables."

No, This Doesn't Mean You

There are women who need this lesson and there are women who emphatically don't. I hope the wrong ones won't take it to themselves.

Lachute, Que., Sept. 1908. Minard's Liniment Co., Limited.

Gentlemen, — Ever since coming home from the Boer War I have been bothered with running fever sores on my legs. I tried many salves and liniments; also doctored continuously for the blood, but got no permanent relief, till last winter when my mother got me to try MINARD'S LINIMENT. The effect of which was almost magical. Two bottles completely cured me and I have worked every working day since.

Yours gratefully, JOHN WALSH.

Milady's Boudoir

TRAVELLING NECESSARIES.

Travelling is the bugaboo of the average woman. She is uncomfortable in the cars, her personal appearance suffers from the journey and all in all she dislikes the preliminaries of a journey.

Of course she would not think of travelling without a jar of cold cream. By rubbing a tiny dab of cream into her cheeks and powdering them over she can protect her complexion during the ride.

At night if she is obliged to continue her journey, before retiring it is well for Milady to wash her face in quantities of cold cream, instead of the hard gritty water found on the trains.

It is really the hair that makes women look untidy when travelling. Leaning against the back of the seats, rubs loose all the short hairs and even the prettiest of women look unattractive when their hair is hanging about in dejected strands. The careful woman carries with her several large nets and wears one every day fitting it over the low coils at the back of the neck so that no loose hairs can escape.

The dust and clinders which get into the hair when travelling are very injurious to the hair, and it is needless to caution Milady to shampoo her head as soon as she reaches her destination.

MINARD'S LINIMENT CURES DIPHTHERIA.

TRUE OPTIMISM.

WALT MASON

I had a brand new suit of rags—the sort of which a fellow brags—the smoothest on this hemisphere; they cost the savings of a year. "With these glad duds of mine," I cried, "I'll be the hanlets boast and pride." And as I walked, two miles from town, a large wet rain came slopping down. The lightning flashed, the thunder yelled, no sign of shelter I beheld, and dripping water like a toad, I toiled along the muddy road. "This rain," I said, with gorgeous smiles, "is surely strictly worth the while. What though it spoils my Sunday duds? It's bound to save the crops of spuds; the meadows will be loosened now, so husbandmen may wield the plow; the pastures, that were burning brown, will drink this water coming down, and grass will grow to beat Sam Hill, and hungry cows will have their fill. The suit I wear looks rather punk; the color's run, the stuff has shrunk; but who would mourn his hand-me-downs, when all the thirsty country drowns, in cool, uplifting, wholesome rain, in water that is safe and sane? My rags are spoiled; I'll get some more, if I can work the Blue Front Store."

Household Notes.

Every back yard should have its little patch of okra for drying.

Pumpkins can be dried in strips if they show signs of spoiling.

Very young peas, cooked in the pod, are often better than peas alone.

A soup made with spinach and milk is very nourishing for children.

It is better to have too little than too much vinegar in the salad dressing.

The cold water method of canning is said to be good for very soft fruit.

Bread addition is greatly improved by the addition of raisins or currants. Children may have food saturated tea if denied the ordinary food tea of their elders.

The Gas Range!

The Gas Range means comfort for the housewife; shorter kitchen hours for her, and a cleaner kitchen. It is a great mistake to think that cooking with gas is expensive.

Whenever a woman becomes used to gas for cooking, thoughts of a coal or wood stove fill her with gloom. A Gas Range is so much easier to operate, so efficient for all kinds of cooking, and so much cleaner, that the idea of going back to the old style methods is decidedly unpleasant. Yet in winter many housewives think they must use a coal or wood stove, because there is no other way of heating the kitchen. THERE IS ANOTHER WAY AND IT IS FAR BETTER THAN THE OLD. Big Bank Fishery.

Latest reports from the banking feet are very encouraging and it looks as if the total catch will be an abnormal one. When the S. S. Portia was coming down the coast a few days ago several vessels reached their home ports from the banking grounds with catches ranging from five to eight hundred quintals. Capt. Vatcher Cluett of Belleoram is a high-liner, having landed 4,200 quintals to date. Many others have close on 4,000 under sail. The majority of the fleet are now back from the Grand Banks and re-fitting for their final trips to the Labrador Coast. Capt. Cluett expects to have reached the 6,000 mark by "finish up" time. On his last Grand Bank trip he got 700 qts.

Everyday Etiquette.

"Please tell me the correct order at a wedding to enter and leave the church," asked Edward.

"On entering the church, the ushers come first, two abreast, the bridesmaids next, also two abreast, the maid or matron of honor next, and finally the bride, leaning on the arm of her father or some male relative.

On leaving the church the bride and groom go first, the maid of honor next, then the bridesmaids in double file, as before or with the ushers. The best man goes out with the maid of honor. The father or male relative joins the mother and the other relatives on leaving the church," replied his professor.

Overmantels!

No room seems really complete unless special attention is given to the arrangement of fireplace and mantel, the latter particularly needing careful planning.

To-day this difficulty is easily overcome by using an Overmantel, which article of furniture is becoming more popular every year.

New and attractive designs in Overmantels, in Mahogany and other woods, fitted with finely bevelled mirrors, are now to be seen in our Rooms at a figure that will please anyone who is seeking Quality Goods at Moderate Prices.

St. Mary's Soldier Wins Military Medal.

ST. MARY'S, Aug. 29. St. Mary's rejoices. Mrs. Daniel Harvey received to-day from the Canadian Record Office, London, the Military Medal won by her son, Private Michael Harvey, for conspicuous bravery on the battlefield. Private Harvey joined the Canadian Infantry three years ago, and has ever since been fighting and never received a wound until last month. He is now in hospital "Somewhere in France" suffering from slight wounds. He is a brother of Conductor John Harvey, of the Reid-Nfld. Co. street car service. We trust to hear such good reports in the near future of our brave young boys now at the front.

Rivalry Among Local Farmers.

Those who have plots near the Government House grounds have splendid vegetables as a result of their efforts. So intense is the rivalry amongst the "farmers" that a little warring has been done and a few "greenbacks" exchanged as to who has the best crops.

MUCH PROSPERITY.—With both modern and shore fisheries and bank and land successes, the inhabitants of the South West Coast will enjoy a marked degree of prosperity this year.

Portia Returns.

McMurdo's Store News

THURSDAY, Aug. 30th, 1917.
Check Rubber Sponge Bags are regarded as quite the most practical as well as neatest in appearance. They wear well, do not soil quickly and are inexpensive. For travellers and those going on vacation, a sponge bag—which of course holds not only the sponge or wash cloth but other toilet accessories as well—is almost indispensable. Price (according to size) from 25c. to 50c. each.
McMurdo's Acme Camphor and Hartshorn Lintment is fully as good as anything of the kind in the market, and is superior to most Lintments in strength and "body." Acme Lintment has a very wide range for general household use. Price 15c. a bottle.

Note of Thanks.

The Shamrock and City Teams desire to publicly express their thanks to Mr. P. J. Grace, the officers of the Nfld. Baseball League, Easign Downey, U.S.N., and the baseball players of the U. S. ship "Jupiter" for the very handsome sum of $85.67, towards the Fund for which the Cricket Match was organized.
These games were played for the benefit of the Nfld. Soldiers' and Sailors' Convalescent Home, Waterford Hall and for the Jensen Camp.
The gate receipts for baseball game amounted to $85.67, and the cricket match the sum of $74.33, amounting in all to $160.00. The sum of $80.00 has been forwarded each Camp by the Treasurer, E. T. Furlong.

Veteran Cricketer Scores 49 Not Out.

The return cricket match between the Shamrocks and City team took place at St. George's Field yesterday afternoon. His Excellency the Governor and Lady Davidson were present. The attendance was fair but could be larger considering the object for which the game was played. The City went to bat first and were put out for 42 runs, the highest score being 7, while two of the team did not succeed in scoring. The Shamrocks then took their place at the wicket and accounted for 115 runs, 49 of which were contributed by the veteran cricketer, Mr. P. Wallace, who carried his bat through the innings. N. Vinicombe scored 19, H. V. Simms, 10 and J. S. Keating, 9.

The City team on going to bat for the second time were determined to get even with their opponents. Jones accounted for 43 not out and was going still stronger when through the lastness of the hour the game was called. Rev. E. C. Clench rolled up a score of 18 when he was caught by Ellis; one of his hits counted for five runs. Following is the score.

COMMENTS ON WILSON'S REPLY.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 29th. President Wilson's rejection of the Pope's peace proposals is regarded here as the high watermark of the war. Furthermore it is indicative of the virtual selection of the President by the Allies as their spokesman before the world. The note comes as a climax to a remarkable series of State documents in which President Wilson has argued the cause of world democracy against autocracy in the high court of public opinion, and accepted more and more by the people of all the Allied countries as expressing their ideals. There appears to be no doubt that the United States was accepted to make answer before the world in advance of all others. Whether the Entente Nations will send extensive replies is not known here. It is regarded as probable that they will in a large measure adopt the President's reasoning for their own and send notes of endorsement. The feature of the reply that is certain to fix public attention is the cold determination not even to permit the subject of peace negotiation to be broached so long as the evil and dominating forces of autocracy and militarism control the Central Powers. For this reason the President was not to be led into any discussion of peace conditions detailed by Pope Benedict, though that field was made alluring by the Pontiff's adoption of some of the proposals laid down by President Wilson himself in his early utterances. On the other hand there was no effort to evade the responsibility for all the expression of view as to the basis of sound and enduring peace, for the President's response in its concluding paragraphs states the purpose for which America entered the Great War. The radical difference that appears to exist between the Pope and the President touches this very matter of stable and enduring peace. The Pontiff looks to the restoration of conditions as they existed before the war, so the President turns his back upon these, convinced that a return to the status quo ante bellum could never bring permanent peace, which can be secured only by agreement between free peoples on both sides. As one official commenting expressed it, "the President's response, reflecting as it does the views of the Entente, sounds the doom of Hohenzollernism and the military domination of peoples." That this can and should be accomplished without destruction of the German people is one of the striking expressions in the President's note, when he expressly disclaims any intent to seek punitive damages, and dismemberment of the empire or even the punishment of the Central Powers after the war by a gigantic economic combination against them. Although the Pope's proposals were addressed to the leaders of the nations at war, which of course included President Wilson and was signed by the Pontiff himself, the response was signed by Secretary of State Lansing, as the latter expressly stated, he was merely transmitting the President's reply. However, the method was strictly within diplomatic proprieties. A high official is authority for the statement that the President's reply is in line with the Allies' views.

ITALIANS MAKE GAINS.
ROME, Aug. 29th. The Italian troops pushing forward on the Bainsizza plateau have reached the powerful Austrian defensive line and are now attacking it, the war office announced. On the heights beyond Gorizia the Italians made gains.

DRIVING THE AUSTRIANS.
COPENHAGEN, Aug. 29th. According to the Cologne Gazette's correspondent on the Isonzo front, Monte San Gabriell has been partly taken by the Italians. The Austrians, adds the correspondent as deserting this strong point.

THE WEEK'S LOSSES.
LONDON, Aug. 29th. An increase in the number of British ships sunk last week by mines or submarines is shown by the weekly Admiralty statement issued to-night. Eighteen vessels of more than 1000 tons were sent to bottom as compared with 15 the previous week, and 5 vessels of less than 1000 tons as against three the previous week. No fishing vessels were sunk.

ITALIAN MERCHANT MARINE.
ROME, Aug. 29th. Italian Marine losses for the week ending Aug. 25, comprised one large steamer, two small steamers and two sailing vessels. One ship was unsuccessfully attacked. Five hundred and eighty vessels of all nationalities and with a tonnage of 388,365 arrived and 557 vessels of a tonnage of 263,760 left Italian ports.

BORDEN RETAINS LEADERSHIP.
OTTAWA, Aug. 29th. Sir Robert Borden will remain head of the Conservative Party. At a prolonged ministerial caucus to-day the Premier dealt with the recent negotiations for a Union Government. He stated that the Western Liberals with whom he had been negotiating were willing to join the Union government with himself as a member, but not as leader. Sir Geo. Foster was one of those suggested as the new leader. Sir Robert expressed his willingness to retire, but this was met with no favor. Sir Geo. Foster who was present at the caucus declined to accept the responsibility of leader-

WIND AND RAIN STORM ON BRITISH FRONT.
LONDON, Aug. 29th. Reuter's correspondent at the British headquarters reports that the heaviest of rain and furious winds are hampering operations. Notwithstanding the rain the Germans twice last night attacked our line astride the Ypres-Menin Road, coming in big waves of assault through Inverness Copse. Both attempts were broken up and the attackers were heavily punished. We are getting plenty of evidence of the exhaustion of enemy reserves in this area, says the correspondent. A Wurtemberg Division that has been exposed to continuous fire since the middle of August, has been weakened beyond all fighting effectiveness. The enemy is now forced to employ inadequately rested and retrained troops. The Flying Corps during the past week cooperated in attacking over seven hundred batteries, in the destruction of twenty-eight gun pits, caused three hundred explosions, the ammunition dumps, brought down sixty-eight enemy aircraft and drove off fifty of the enemy.

ENEMY STRONGHOLD CLEARED UP.
LONDON, Aug. 29th. During the night we carried out successful raids northeast of Godecourt and southwest of Hulluch, and captured a few prisoners, says to-day official announcement. Southeast of Langemarck our troops cleared up a strong point in which an enemy party was holding out in front of our new lines.

MICHAELIS VISITS BELGIUM.
LONDON, Aug. 29th. A despatch to the Exchange Telegraph Co. from Amsterdam says the Imperial German Chancellor left Berlin to-day for Belgium. The Chancellor is expected to visit Brussels, and special measures have been taken for his safety.

LABOUR AND SOCIALIST CONFERENCE.
LONDON, Aug. 29th. Addressing the Socialist and Labor Conference, Mr. Henderson, according to the official report, said the conference has met to consider and determine as impartially and justly as possible the future attitude of Labor and Socialism in Allied countries to war and peace. The main issues involved in the world conflict are so fundamental, far-reaching and vital to the future of the human race that they demand a dispassionate and faithful consideration both by the majority and minority section of all countries represented. No satisfactory results can be accomplished by any attempts of the majority to outvote the minority. The better course is to begin by a clear recognition of their differences, endeavour to reach by mutual agreement a basis of war aims calculated to provide a lasting, honourable and democratic peace. Though none of the decisions of the conference will be binding upon the Governments, they would be regarded throughout the world as the considered judgment of the organized proletariat of the countries represented. No official information was given out concerning the extent of the business transacted, but it is understood several speeches were delivered by the French delegates, the tenor of which indicated wide differences of opinion on many essential points, and that these became more divergent when the conference considered the appointment of a commission to deal with the Stockholm conference and submit resolutions concerning it. It is understood that the French majority who were opposed to the Stockholm Conference, emphatically declined to nominate any of their members on the Commission. A Commission was appointed to deal generally with peace terms.

NO EXPLANATORY STATEMENT TO BE ISSUED.
PARIS, Aug. 29th. A despatch to the Intransigent from Rome, says: Vatican circles say that Pope Benedict does not intend to issue a second or explanatory note to clear up his proposal, as it had been reported he would do, but will wait until he has heard from the belligerents before offering any interpretation of his original statement.

NORWEGIAN SHIP SUNK.
LONDON, Aug. 29th. The Norwegian steamer Kongsli, from St. Nazaires, France, has been sunk off the Spanish coast.

FLYING RECORD.
PARIS, Aug. 29th. Captain Giulio Laureami, an aviator in the Italian army, has established a new world's long distance flying record, by flying more than 900 miles without stopping, according to a despatch to the Times from Milan. The Italian flew from Turin to Naples and returned, a distance of about 920 miles as the crow flies. Capt. Laureami used a new machine with a flat motor.

BIG MARINE CLAIM.
MONTREAL, Aug. 29th. One million dollars is claimed by the Dominion Shipping Co., Limited, of the steamship Hecla, from the owners of the steamer Kollberg, as damages for sinking of the Hecla off near Port au Port, Cabot Straits, of Newfoundland, on July 25th last. When the collision occurred during a thick fog the plaintiff company claimed among other things that the steamship Kollberg failed to keep a proper lookout and was navigated at excessive speed in a dense fog, and failed to keep her fog signals going. The case is being tried in the admiralty division of the Exchequer Court in this city before Justice MacLennan.

In Milady's Boudoir.
TIGHT COLLARS RUINOUS.
Quite apart from consideration of health, tight neckties and collars should be avoided from babyhood. But they seldom are so that many a girl of eighteen possesses a neck devoid of even the almost inevitable beauty of youth. While tight collars are ruinous to the contour and usually to the poise of the head, high ones destroy the texture and color of the skin and account for this all the more rapidly if the collar is tight as well as high. The muscles of the neck become shrunken and the skin flabby and dark, often blotched in color. If one finds it necessary to wear high collars to business, the collar should be loose and not over two inches in height. Before retiring the neck and throat should be thoroughly bathed, and if the skin sags, another treatment is required. This consists of a bandage of cotton gauze applied after an astringent bath of alcohol or lavender cologne. The bandage is tied at the top of the head and absorbs the astringent lotions. If worn all night a skin food must be patted into the neck first and allowed to absorb, but when the astringent bath, without or without the bandage, is applied in the morning, the skin food comes last and is used to plump the neck. All wrinkles, brown, unsightly necks are best exposed at the opera or theatre every evening might have been avoided had their owners worn comfortable Dutch cut blouses during the day.

PRESIDENT WILSON'S REPLY TO THE VATICAN.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 29th.
Can peace be based upon the restoration of its power or upon any word of honour it could pledge in treaty of settlement and accommodation? Responsible statesmen must now everywhere see, if they never saw before, that no peace can rest securely upon political or economic restrictions meant to benefit some nations and cripple and embarrass others; upon vindictive action of any sort or any kind of revenge or deliberate injury. The American people have suffered intolerable wrongs at the hands of the Imperial German Government, but they desire no reprisal upon the German people, who have themselves suffered all things in this war which they did not choose. They believe that peace should rest upon the rights of the peoples not the rights of the Governments; the right of peoples great or small, weak or powerful, and their equal rights to freedom and security and self-government and to a participation on fair terms in the economic opportunities of the world, the German people of course included, if they will accept equality and not seek domination. The test therefore of every plan of peace is this: Is it based upon the faith of all the peoples involved or merely upon the Government on one hand and of a group of free peoples on the other? This is the test which goes to the root of the matter, and it is the test which must be applied. The purposes of the United States in this war are known to the whole world and to every people to whom the truth has been permitted to come. They do not need to be stated again. We seek no material advantage of any kind. We believe that the intolerable wrongs done in this war by the furious and brutal power of the Imperial German Government ought to be repaired but not at the expense of the sovereignty of any people, rather a vindication of that sovereignty both of those that are weak and those that are strong. Punitive damages, the dismemberment of small empires, the establishment of selfish and exclusive economic leagues, we deem inexpedient and in the end worse than futile, and no proper basis for a peace of any kind, least of all for an enduring peace that must be based upon justice and fairness and the common rights of mankind. We cannot take the word of the present rulers of Germany as a guarantee of anything that is to endure, unless explicitly supported by such conclusive evidence of the will and purpose of the German people themselves as the other peoples of the world would be justified in accepting. Without such guarantees, treaties of settlement, agreements for disarmament, covenants to set up arbitration in place of force, territorial adjustments, reconstitutions of small nations, made with the German Government no man or nation could now depend upon. We must await for some new evidence of the purposes of the great peoples of the Central Powers. God grant it may be given soon, and in a way to restore the confidence of all peoples everywhere in the faith of nations and the possibility of covenanted peace. (Signed) Robert Lansing, Secretary of State, United States of America.

"Souvenirs" of Wreck.

At present there is a superabundance of cigars and other "souvenirs" of a fascinating, though suspicious, character afloat in the city and nearby southern outports that came from the big wrecked Norwegian liner Kristianiafjord, which still lies majestically on the rocks near Mistaken Point where she went ashore several weeks ago. She will ever remain green in the memories of some, who, rumour says, will never see a poor day again, in consequence of the voluminous quantity of valuable stuffs rescued from the disabled ship. It is freely stated also that there was enough alcoholic beverages left the ill-fated liner to stock another bond store, whilst the cigars and other wares that are at large would easily supply all our tobaccoists. In addition there are some fashionable brands of clothing that escaped from the ship and that do not see the light of day very often. Some of the wearables, it is said, are going at "rock bottom" rates.

ST. CHARLES EVAPORATED CREAM

The latest and most popular of cooling drinks are made with St. Charles Cream. Here is one you can make at home.

—CREAM VARIETIES—
St. Charles Cream 2 1/2 pint cans 1 shilling
Plain water 2 pints
Rock candy syrup 4 pints
Extract vanilla 1 ounce
Carmine solution to make a pink color.

Ask your druggist, if he is up-to-date, to tell you about the famous soda drinks made with St. Charles Cream. No other cream, whether prepared or ordinary dairy cream is quite so good for making ice cream, custards, blanc mange, etc. No other cream will so fully bring out the delicate aroma of coffee or the flavor of chocolate. It keeps forever. It does not curdle. It is always pure. Sold by best grocers everywhere.

Notice to Seamen,

Editor Evening Telegram.
Sir,—I would thank you to publish for the information of whom it may concern the following extract from a minute of proceedings of His Excellency the Governor in Council.

I have the honour to be, Sir,
Your obedient servant,
R. A. SQUIRES,
Colonial Secretary.

1. The Masters of all sailing vessels clearing from Newfoundland ports for Portugal, Spain and European ports, with cargoes of fish for the European fish markets, shall forward to the Colonial Secretary a statement giving the full names of each person upon the articles of said ship, with his age, place of birth, place of residence, and complete information as to his dependents and their residence. The statement shall be certified to be correct by the Customs authorities of the port of clearance before the ship is cleared for the voyage.

2. Upon the receipt of said statement by the Colonial Secretary and upon his being satisfied as to the correctness thereof, he shall issue a certificate to the effect that the Newfoundland Government will be responsible to the seamen whose names are so listed, in the event of any such seaman being taken as a prisoner of war, cast away, or injured as a result of any war operations, and in the event of any such seaman losing life as a result of any war operations, the said seaman and his dependents shall have the advantages of all allotments, pensions, emoluments and privileges as if the said seaman were at the date of the casualty a member of the Newfoundland Branch of the Royal Naval Reserve and the casualty had occurred in the discharge of duty.

3. Payments, if any, hereunder shall be made on the certificate of the Colonial Secretary.

R. A. SQUIRES,
Colonial Secretary.
