Knock Down
Motor Engines.
4 H.P., $110.00; 8 H.P., 2 CYLINDER,
$175.00.
A new idea in Motors.
We have secured the agency for the celebrated "Knock Down Motor Engines." Each part of these engines is made so perfect that it is not necessary to assemble and test the engine before shipment. You save the cost of all that work by doing the work yourself.
All parts of the engine are carefully packed and shipped just as they come from the automatic machines at the factory—not even painted—full directions for assembling, including a picture with number and name of each part, are sent you. The Company guarantees that every part will fit perfectly, and that any man who can read English and use a wrench can set them up.
These engines are guaranteed exactly the same as common engines that have been fitted and tested at the factory and sold at double the price. Why not save a month's wages by setting up your own engine.
These engines are 2 cycle. Price guaranteed to May 15. Terms: half cash with order, balance on arrival.
On rush orders, can wire order and have engine sent by express. Purchaser to pay difference in charges.

A Terrible Disclosure; OR,
What Fools Men Are!

"An invitation," he repeats, looking at both of them in turn. "My friend General Rothsay—you know him?—has started a four-in-hand. It is late in the season, but you know that is his peculiarity—he always begins when other people leave off! And having started a four-in-hand, of course he wants passengers. I think that a man ought to be satisfied with risking his own and his servants' necks; but men who go in for coaching think otherwise, and so the general has decided to give a picnic to-morrow, and he and I are looking up passengers. It will be rather hard work, because every one has left town—but I came to you first, my dear Miss Drayton. I throw myself upon your mercy and well known character for good nature! Will you permit yourself to be driven by the general in his new coach?"

Mrs. Drayton looks at Edith, as usual.

"When and where?" asks Edith, calmly.

"The day is to-morrow, the place is Pangley. Do you know it? No? A little river-side gem. A Thames paradise. You really must not miss it! I assure you it is a most lovely spot. Just the place for a picnic."

"I hate picnics," says Edith, calmly.

Lord Combermere smiles, and gives an extra polish to his hat.

"So do I, as a rule; but this is not within the rule. It is not an ordinary picnic. We are not to sit upon the damp grass with our plates in our laps, and eat cold pigeon pie, into which the vinegar and the sugar have entered unasked; oh, no! The general has mercifully ordered a lunch which we are to eat comfortably at a decent—indeed a pretty little inn called 'The Moorhen.' It is not very grand or extensive; but we will answer for a table and chairs. I need scarcely say that we take our own wine down. Come, Mrs. Drayton, be good-natured and say 'yes.'"

But though he addresses the mother, he looks at the daughter.

"It will be a long drive!" says Edith.

Lord Combermere shrugs his shoulders.

"Not too long. If Mrs. Drayton pleases she can go inside. Very comfortable inside, you know."

"Oh, don't think of me!" says the patient lady. "I shall enjoy it!"

"Then shall we say 'done'?" asks Lord Combermere, smiling.

"Yes, we will come," replies Edith, languidly. "What time?"

"The general will call for you at eleven," says Lord Combermere. "Horribly early, I'm afraid, but if we are to get back by eight, we must start in time."

"We shall be ready," says Edith, gazing out at the square.

"Thanks. I am awfully grateful," remarks his lordship. "I had doubts of the success of the thing, but I am confident now. I shall tell the rest of the people I mean to ask that you are coming, and shall meet with very few refusals."

He takes up his cane, and looks around with that expression of inane relief which men assume when they are about to take leave; but Edith Drayton brings him to a pause.

"Nearly everybody is out of town, I suppose?"

"Seeing that you are still in it," he commences, gallantly, but she interrupts him.

"Have you," she says, turning the rings on her finger, and speaking in the most languid of tones—"have you seen Lord Fane lately?"

"Lord Fane?" he says, thoughtfully. "No. By the way, I heard—"

Then he stops short, as if he had been on the point of committing himself.

"You heard?" she says, calmly.

You wonder why,
H.P. sauce
is so delicious.

If you could see the choice oriental fruits and spices being blended with Pure Malt Vinegar to make H.P. you would know.

Just a few drops of H.P.—it makes the meal so enjoyable.

her dark eyes fixed upon him with languid interest.

Lord Combermere stretches on the left glove with delicate care.

"Oh, mere hearsay," he says, apologetically; "but I heard that he was in Spain."

Her face blanches for a moment, then resumes its ordinary color.

"In Spain! This is not the season in Spain—it is too early."

"Yes," he says, staring at his boots—"yes, I know; but that is what I heard."

He shuffles—actually shuffles—with his patent-leather-clad feet, and holds out his hand.

"To-morrow, then, at eleven," he says cheerily. "And don't be nervous. Although the general can't drive, you'll be quite safe. The horses are as quiet as cows."

"What did he mean by Lord Edgar being in Spain?" demands Mrs. Drayton, as soon as the door had closed on their visitor.

"I do not know. You heard him."

"Yes, and saw him. Edith, mark my words—there is something wrong about Lord Fane."

The crimson flushes the girl's face for a moment, then she says, coldly: "Very likely. At any rate it is no business of ours, mother."

On the morrow the general arrives in the square with the four-in-hand. It is a nice coach, and the horses look quiet, is not quite as quiet as cows. Lady Debenham is outside, in a pretty autumn costume, which has a touch of the sporting character in its double-caped dust protector. There are one or two other women, all known to Edith; Lord Combermere, and a young marquis who is just fresh from college, and who regards the expedition as an elaborate spree spoiled by the presence of ladies, of whom he is immensely afraid. The two grooms drop down and adjust the ladder, and Lord Combermere gallantly assists Mrs. Drayton to ascend, but not until she has feebly suggested that she should be allowed to travel as an inside passenger.

"Impossible, my dear Mrs. Drayton, full of hampers and wine boxes, to say nothing of a collection of waterproofs and umbrellas that would set up a second-hand clothes shop. Claxtone, will you make room? I knew you'd like to sit where you could see the horses, Miss Drayton."

The bashful young marquis, smitten dumb and crimson by the apparition of Edith's loveliness, scrambles out of the way, and after some few minutes of shuffling they are all packed, as Lord Combermere calls it; one of the grooms blow a horn, with some difficulty, and they start.

It is a lovely morning; the general doesn't manage the horses so badly when he gets them off the stones; and Edith would enjoy herself but for the haunting care, the demon of unrest and jealousy that forever reigns her bosom lord.

"If he—Lord Edgar is always 'he' in her thoughts—were but by her side, and that other girl whom he loves was at the other end of the world or dead—yes, dead!—she, Edith, could be happy."

But as it is, she plays her part; her sweet lips are set in a peaceful smile, her dark eyes flash now on Lord Combermere, and now on the boy marquis, with every sign of pleasant enjoyment, and when she speaks there is no touch in her tuneful voice of the never-ceasing ache which fills her heart.

"Going along first rate, eh, Comby?" says the general, inwardly delighted that he has been able to bring them thus far without a direful accident.

"Pretty good pace, too? Do you like going fast, Miss Drayton?" he asks, without turning his head, because he dare not take his eyes off the horses.

"Very much. But isn't this fast enough? What time shall we get to—what is the name of the place?"

"Pangley. About half-past two. Almost as fast as the train, don't you know, because the line wanders about so, and we are going nearly as the crow flies. Pretty place, Pangley, eh, Claxtone?"

"Oh, yes, awfully jolly," stammers the lad, then he summons up courage to address Edith for the first time. "Hope you are comfortable, Miss Drayton?"

"Yes, thanks," she says, turning her eyes upon him, so that he wishes he hadn't spoken, so completely has the serene glance overcome him. "I am ashamed to have turned you out of your seat."

"Don't, don't mention it. I like sitting behind the driver; always used to sit there on Fane's coach."

"On whose?" she says, quietly; she cannot hear the name without a thrill and tremor.

"On Fane's, young Farintosh, you know. He used to keep a four-in-hand at college. First-rate whip he is too. But he's first-rate all around. Never saw such a fellow to ride; take anything, good or bad, stick on or fall!"

"Claxtone's got on his favorite topic," said Lord Combermere, with a laugh. "He'll talk about young Fane all day, if you'll let him, Miss Drayton."

Lord Claxtone blushed, and would have retreated into a silence lasting for the remainder of the drive, but Edith smiled encouragingly at him, and said, softly:

"It is pleasant to hear one friend speak so admiringly of another. Besides, Lord Fane is a friend of mine."

"Is he?" said the lad, delightedly. "I'm glad of that. We used to be great chums at college—at least, he used to be good to me, as an old hand to a freshman. I called upon him, yesterday, but he's out of town."

Edith's heart beat fast; perhaps she would not hear where he was.

"Yes," she said, encouragingly. "Gone abroad, I suppose?"

Lord Claxtone shook his head.

"I don't know. His name didn't seem to know either. Neither did Clifford Revel, whom I met and asked. He said he thought Fane was yachting, but wasn't sure. At any rate, he—Lord Fane, I mean—must be in town in a fortnight, because he is entered for the gentleman's race at Badmore."

"Oh!" said Lord Combermere, leaning forward with an interested look. "Going to ride in the steeplechase, eh? How do you know that, Claxtone?"

"Saw it in the lists a week ago," answered the lad, proud of his knowledge.

"Strange," said Lord Combermere. "I fancied Fane had decided to out the turf."

"So he had," said the general, without turning his head. "But Clifford persuaded him to enter for this. I heard him at the club. Fane stood out for a time, but gave in eventually—Revel can always persuade him into anything if he sticks to him long enough—and he consented."

Edith listened with the same smile on her face, but a troubled perplexity in her heart. She never saw Clifford Revel, never heard his name mentioned but she experienced a sudden chill of fear. She fancied she saw a motive in everything he said and did; she fancied that nothing he did but had some subtle scheme in it to advance him nearer to his coveted prize. Why should he be so anxious for Lord Edgar to ride in this race? She listened, her face slightly sheltered by the sunshade.

"Hem!" said Lord Combermere, thoughtfully. "I wonder what horse Fane means to ride. I'd back him for a hundred or two if I knew the horse; Claxtone is quite right, Fane can ride."

"Well, I can tell you," said Lord Claxtone, with a little air of gratified importance. "He's going to ride Assassin."

"Assassin!" said Edith, flashing her eyes upon him with a faint shudder. "What a fearful name!"

Lord Combermere laughed.

"Isn't it? Fact is, almost all the names are getting used up, and men are at their wits' end for a good name."

"I don't call Assassin over good!" said Lady Debenham, languidly.

Public Notice

I am directed by His Excellency the Governor in Council to issue the following notice under Authority of Minute in Council passed 28th February, 1918.

Augmentation of the Pay of Royal Naval Reservists Newfoundland.

The Government of Newfoundland have decided to augment the pay of Newfoundland Royal Naval Reservists so as to place them on the same footing as men of the Newfoundland Regiment.

Under the provision of the War Measure Act, authority is given to the Minister of Militia to deal with the matter of augmentation of pay of the Royal Naval Reservists, Nfld., in consultation with the Senior Naval Officer, St. John's.

It is ordered that a sum of 33c. per day be placed to the credit of each Naval Reservist from the time of commencement of the war, in cases where men were then serving, or otherwise, from the time when their services began up to the time of discharge, or of death, or to the 30th of September, 1917, inclusive.

As the rate of pay of Naval Reservists was increased from October 1st, 1917, and as the difference between the amount they receive and that allowed the members of The Royal Newfoundland Regiment is 17c. per day, this difference will also be credited them from that date.

The foregoing amounts will not in any case be made a payment from Admiralty sources. The Minister of Militia, St. John's, Nfld., is solely responsible for the issue of any sums due.

Newfoundland Royal Naval Reserve men serving in any of H. M. Ships, including all members of the Trawler Reserve and those in Defensively Armed Merchant Ships etc., are eligible for the pay, as set forth, and should be informed of the following alternatives as regards the method of payment:—

- (a) Payment will be made on personal application to the Minister of Militia, St. John's.
- (b) Payment will be made to the nominee of any Reserve man, on written application duly witnessed, to the Minister of Militia, St. John's.
- (c) Sums due will be placed to the credit of Reserve men who do not desire to avail themselves of the foregoing and can be drawn by them at the expiration of their service.

The following form is to be compiled and forwarded direct to the Minister of Militia, St. John's, Newfoundland, at the earliest possible date:—

NAME AND OFFICIAL NO.	WHAT IS DESIRED DISPOSAL OF AMOUNT DUE UNDER ORDER 1, 2, OR 3, (IN CASE OF 2, FULL NAME AND ADDRESS MUST BE GIVEN.)	SIGNATURE AUTHORIZING DISPOSAL.

All communications of any description with regard to these payments are to be made to the Minister of Militia, St. John's, direct.

Payment will commence on 1st May, 1918.

In cases where members of the Royal Naval Reserve (Newfoundland) have been killed in action or died of wounds or sickness, or through any other cause, the amount due as Augmentation Pay will go to the Estate of the deceased. The authority to obtain the Estate of the deceased is, in case of a Will, Letters of Probate; and in case there is not a Will, Letters of Administration. Such letters are issued by the Supreme Court of Newfoundland on the Petition and Proofs of Executor of the Will, or the next of kin. If the Estate does not exceed $500.00, after the proof of the facts has been obtained the petition can be applied for by the Minister of Justice.

With reference to the foregoing, it is suggested that the next of kin of Reservists who are now serving should communicate with them and request them to send their instructions to the Militia Department. No action can be taken until such instructions are received.

Next of kin of deceased Reservists will be communicated with in due course when their claims have been proved.

J. R. BENNETT,
Minister of Militia.

U. S. ARMY IN FRANCE.
WASHINGTON, May 8. More than half a million soldiers have been sent to France, Secretary of War Baker, stated to-day.

GERMAN INFANTRY ATTACK.
BRITISH HEADQUARTERS IN FRANCE, May 8. (Via Reuter's Ottawa Agency.)—Following a heavy and continuous bombardment along a wide front in Flanders, German infantry this morning attacked south of Dikobusch, apparently being only in big affair, apparently being only in strength of a division. The enemy penetrated our front between the lake and ridge of wood. Some enemy parties are reported in the eastern fringe of the wood, the great part of which we held, and it is likely to prove most costly to the enemy if he attempts to push on. We also hold Kleinveerteresch. The fighting continues. In fine weather with good visibility, the airmen on both sides are most active. Ours are splendidly serving the artillery and are swooping down and engaging hostile infantry. The tactical objective of the operation is apparently an attempt to clear the way for a thrust in the direction of Scherpenberg from the northeast, and may prove to be the beginning of further force fighting in this region.

SINKING OF ENEMY SUBS.
LONDON, May 8. The sinking of enemy submarines has increased steadily and the sinking of merchant ships has fallen steadily, declared T. G. McNamara, M.P., for North Camberwell, and Parliamentary Secretary of the Admiralty in a speech at Bristol last night. The output of tonnage month by month is well ahead of last year. Large plans have been laid by America and Great Britain for the output of new tonnage, but the plans must take time to mature. Meanwhile, he added, the onus of immediate output was on the United Kingdom.

GERMAN ONRUSH STOPPED.
LONDON, May 8. (Via Reuter's Ottawa Agency.)—Reuter's correspondent on the Italian front on his return from France, said he had found all the military chiefs convinced that the German onrush had been stopped. The Germans could neither reach the Channel ports on the north nor separate the British and French armies. "General Foch is a master at the game," he said. The Premier emphasized that Italy had associated herself intimately with the military and political union between the Entente nations. The Abbeville Conference had recognized unity of front from the North Sea to the Adriatic as a concrete reality.

EARLY MESSAGES

U. S. ARMY IN FRANCE.

WASHINGTON, May 8. More than half a million soldiers were sent to France, Secretary of War Baker, stated today.

GERMAN INFANTRY ATTACK.

BRITISH HEADQUARTERS IN FRANCE.

May 8. Following a heavy and continuous bombardment along a section of the front, German infantry this morning attacked south of Dieppe. It was not a very big affair, apparently being only the strength of a division. The enemy penetrated the front between the lake and ridge of wood. Some enemy troops are reported in the eastern part of the wood, the great part of which we held, and it is likely to prove most costly to the enemy if he attempts to push on. We also hold Kierserteresch. The fighting continues. In the weather with good visibility, the armies on both sides are most active. Ours are splendidly serving the artillery and are swooping down and engaging hostile infantry. The tactical objective of the operation is apparently an attempt to clear the way for a thrust in the direction of Scherpenberg from the southeast, and may prove to be the beginning of further fierce fighting in this region.

SINKING OF ENEMY SUBS.

LONDON, May 8. The sinking of enemy submarines has increased steadily and the sinking of merchant ships has fallen steadily, declared T. G. McNamara, M.P. for North Camberwell, and Parliamentary Secretary of the Admiralty in a speech at Bristol last night. Large plans have been laid by America and Great Britain for the output of tonnage, but the plans must take time to mature. Meanwhile, he added, the one of immediate output was on the United Kingdom.

BOHEMIAN REGIMENT MUTINY.

ROME, May 8. A Bohemian regiment has mutinied at Lethach, according to news reaching here. Fifty officers who refused to order their men to refrain, were tried by court martial and sentenced to death and shot within twenty-four hours. Their men were present at the executions. The enlisted troops were sentenced to terms of from 20 to 30 years at hard labor.

REVOLUTION IN MEXICAN STATE.

BROWNVILLE, Tex., May 8. The revolution in the Mexican state of Tamaulipas, headed by Luis Caballero, has been put down and the revolutionists, including most of Caballero's leaders, have been either killed or captured, according to an announcement at the Mexican Consulate in Brownville today. Caballero himself, it is said, is now alone and is endeavoring to reach the Texas border. Caballero started his revolution several days ago by seizing the Government at Victoria, capital of Tamaulipas.

TURKISH TOWN ENTERED.

LONDON, May 8. British troops on May 7th entered the Turkish town of Kerkuk, eighty miles southeast of Mosul in Mesopotamia, the British War Office announced today. The British met with no opposition. The Turks on retreating left 600 men in the Kerkuk hospital.

A REMARKABLE INCIDENT OF THE WAR.

WASHINGTON, May 8. One of the most remarkable incidents of the war was related today in this communication from the Italian supreme command: One of our prisoners who escaped from an Austrian camp and succeeded in reaching the Italian lines after a series of thrilling experiences, narrates that at Cimolai, east of Longarone, three hundred Italian soldiers are still fortified in a strong position in the mountains, and present the most stubborn resistance to the Austrians, who thus far have been unable to dislodge them. "Cimolai is in the invaded Italian territory, and the Italian soldiers holding the position have successfully resisted sieges and assaults for more than six months, as it was last October that the Italian retirement took place. The incident recalls several of a similar nature reported for weeks after the Italian retirement, and is believed to represent one of the groups of soldiers who held out abeyance to orders to stand or die and whose fate was never learned.

U. S. WHEAT CROP.

WASHINGTON, May 8. A winter wheat crop of 472,539,000 bushels was forecast today by the Department of Agriculture. The crop will be one of the largest ever grown.

In Praise of Botwood

Editor Evening Telegram.
Sir,—I saw by your esteemed journal of last evening, a note in relation to the number of volunteers which have been collected at Botwood since the war began. The writer tells us that there are no more young men there to volunteer. Botwood has done nobly. If other parts would do only half as well, our Regiment would have all the men it needs. I know of one family in that thriving settlement who have done their bit in a handsome manner. Elijah Rideout and his two step-sons, Thomas Heath and Job Heath; the former is with the Forestry Battalion, and the two Heath boys are soldiers. "Tom" is a prisoner in Germany since April last, having gone through the July drive as well, while Job was wounded on three occasions. He is now a drill sergeant in Scotland.
With thanks, I remain,
Yours etc.,
WELL DONE BOTWOOD!
May 3rd, 1918.

Thoughts Upon the Times.

(By PATRIOT.)

The anguish and suspense which many a brave heart had patiently borne since it became known that "Ours" had taken part in the splendid defence put up by the British against the fierce onslaughts of the Huns, was partly broken on Monday evening when the list of the "glorious dead" was published. The whole country mourns with the noble-hearted parents and relatives of the slain, especially the mothers, for this cruel war has made it a sad mother's sorrow. It should comfort them to know that their brave sons would rather lie buried in France than be alive anywhere else in the world if the Germans get control. Their young lives have been brief, but oh! what have they not accomplished! They have taught us to see with a new and clearer vision the full meaning of that beautiful text, "Greater love hath no man than this that a man lay down his life for his friends." They were our bravest and our best, and generations yet unborn will honor their memory. Many of them were young and tender in age to have been put in the front line trenches. In fact they were too young to have been accepted at all. But had we, for whom they gave their young lives, done our part, the humiliation which the Regiment recently suffered would not have happened. Had the so-called National Government a spark of patriotism in their make-up, they would have introduced Selective Conscription last year when both parties combined. The people expected it of them. But instead, like political vultures, they have been busy dividing up the spoils of office amongst themselves, and bestowing paltry titles upon one another. The country is now wide awake and as sure as there is a just God in Heaven a day of reckoning is coming for those leaders, by whose selfishness a new lease of life, contrary to the very bulwarks of our constitutional freedom, and the ethics of public morality and decency. In order to accomplish this they have to secure a majority of the members of the Legislative Council, a body which again Coker has threatened to abolish. Will they succeed? The whole country is watching. The time is coming when those who have bought their titles and honors through the life-blood of the brave boys of "Ours," will wish they never were born. Already there seems to be a feeling abroad amongst the people of all shades of thought, that such titles will not be recognized. The people are here warned to watch closely the attitude of certain members of the Upper House whom Morris and Coker last year denounced. It is said they have their price—a knighthood—the price of your freedom and mine. Instead of titles, they should, from Sir Edward Morris down, be tied to whipping posts and publicly whipped for gross neglect of duty. This is the feeling that is abroad today, deny it who will.

When the history of Newfoundland's part in the great war comes to be written, nothing will stand out more prominent than the fact that the country produced at least one coward. We have it on record, but cited on record by himself, but cited by others to go in his place. He had the consummate egotism, usually found in cowards, to value his own miserable life as being worth one hundred brave and patriotic young fishermen. I believe that nowhere in the British Empire can another such case be found.

The Evening Advocate announces that the public will have to pay $18 per ton for coal after the 6th inst. This means a jump of about 15 per cent. over the price fixed by law. The reason given is the merger of the Dominion with the Nova Scotia Steel Co. We are told this when we have the key to the whole matter in our own keeping. We own the ore which these wealthy Companies seem so anxious to obtain. We are practically giving them all the ore they want for nothing, for what does 10 cents per ton royalty mean these days? They have started the ball rolling. Let us at once put on a royalty of $1 per ton. It is not too much. They, like the banks, are making huge profits out of Newfoundland. Let them pay for it. Otherwise let the Government stipulate with them at once to give us a flat rate on all the soft coal we require for our use. This is merely business. Fellow Citizens! are you going to pay $18 per ton for coal which should not cost us more than $12. Let a public meeting be called at once and some definite action taken. Two dollars a ton increase on coal means on an average twenty dollars a year to every household in the city. The rich may be able to afford it, but how can the poor? The story about the shortage of tonnage is not to be taken seriously. If the sailing steamer alone were put on in the coal trade between here and Sydney, they could more than supply us with all we require. Suppose the pompous Minister of Shipping try it instead of talking so much about it. The difficulty must be faced and faced immediately.

My Limbs Would Twitch

And Waken Me—Unable to Rest or Sleep, I Walked the Floor in Nervous State—When Specialists Failed I Found a Cure.

This is the kind of cure that has set Windsor people thinking and talking about Dr. Chase's Nerve Food. The action of this food cure is so radically different to the usual treatments for the nerves that everybody wants to try it. Gradually and certainly it nourished the starved nerves back to health and vigor and the benefits obtained are both thorough and lasting. Mrs. M. Smithson, 27 Arthur street, Windsor, Ont., writes: "I was suffering from nervous breakdown, which was caused by a shock when fire broke out in the adjoining house. My nerves were in such a state that, after going to bed I could not get my nerves quieted down sufficiently to go to sleep. My limbs would twitch and waken me. I used to have cold, nervous, night sweats, sometimes would become unconscious and lie that way for quite a little while. I was always cold and it seemed impossible for me to get warm or keep warm. When on the street I would see two or three objects at once, and did not want any person to speak to me or bother me. Any little noise irritated and annoyed me very much. I had consulted specialists and tried many remedies during this time, but could not gain relief. At last I tried Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, and before long could see that this treatment was proving of benefit. I am now feeling so much better that I can go out on the street without any difficulty, can go across the river and go about the same as usual. I sleep well at night, and am feeling more like myself every day. I am pleased to be able to write you to tell you how much good the Nerve Food has done for me. It has strengthened and built up my whole system. I am recommending it to everybody I find suffering from nervousness of any kind."

The British Soldier.

Le Journal de Paris: As to our British friends, we must without delay trumpet the truth, so as to scatter at once the clouds with which the enemy would like to disturb our vision. This little incident well shows that the British soldier has fought with a courage and strength of soul which the sorrows of the hard retreat have in no way impaired. We are told of a British general forgetting national pique so far as to fight with a rifle himself. This little incident well shows that the British withdrawal is not due to moral weakness. Our General Staff trusts them as it trusts our own men.

Coal and Salt.

With coal $16.00 per ton, and with the prospect of our season's supplies from Cape Breton being curtailed and with a scarcity of tonnage for freight purposes, it looks very much as if we were up against a serious shortage of these essential commodities, and unless something is accomplished right speedily we shall find ourselves in an unenviable position. A position in which the burden will eventually fall upon the producer, who is the fisherman. Deprived of coal, and he is unable to fish; without salt and all the fish in the ocean is of no value either to him or to the country. Faced with a possible and probable shortage of both coal and salt, there is nothing left for him but to tip his hat and dry his lines. And the moment that day dawns, from that moment Newfoundland begins to retrograde. Disastrous times loom large on the horizon of the future in the event of Newfoundland failing to get the needed supplies of her two essentials.

Regarding salt, it is important that whether from Cadiz, Liverpool or Turkey the supply, necessary to the preservation and cure of our fish, must be had, and it will be well for the Tonnage Committee to make whatever arrangements are practicable to ensure the carriage of stocks ample to meet the requirements. The bright spot, referred to by the Acting Minister of Shipping in the course of his remarks on the situation yesterday, is not going to relieve the present shortage. We wish, with him, that a more hopeful outlook prevailed, but honestly, we fail to perceive much encouragement in the Minister's remarks. The coal supply is much easier to handle than that of the salt requirements. With the former we have to be wholly dependent upon shippers and the latter we have to hold the controlling measures in our own hands. A correspondent suggests that the ore exports be taxed one dollar per ton. We go farther and say that unless we are supplied with necessary stocks of coal, the export of ores should be prohibited. In this way will the coal companies be brought to reason. There is another method, and that is enforcing our terms, but without that for the present. When the time comes, if the coal exporters wish to be unreasonable, and refuse to supply our needs, we will show how they can be brought to time, by a very simple process and one which the War Measures Act will cover. In the meantime with coal at $16.00, there is need for some one to be up and doing. NO COAL, NO ORE.

Pertinent Enquiries.

SUGGESTED AND OTHERWISE.
Does the present Government believe the Upper House is going to pass their skillfully (?) planned Extension Bill?
Does the present Government believe that the Upper House imagines that the dozen Government Members, have lately sprouted wings?
Do the Members of the Upper House not see, some of the perils we are heading for, by agreeing to anything suggested by the pawns of Morris?
Will there be more Baronies over Confederation?
In any case, why did not the present Government have bye-elections, to fill the many vacancies in the Districts, and so have at least a kind of half decent coalition Government?
Does anybody imagine that Bennett represents the West End?
Doesn't the West End generally call for a man with some backbone?
If Hon. John Harvey thinks that Baron Morris put a "stigma" on himself and Newfoundland, will he please ask the Government this question—If they are given the Extension Bill are they intending to put on this Dominion the greatest "stigma" it ever received by voting Baron Morris a salary of anywhere from $10,000 to $15,000 annually, to misrepresent us in England?

What good energetic man would Hon. John Anderson suggest as Head of the Militia Department?
In any case would it not be acting with wisdom for Hon. John Harvey and his group to take their time on the Extension Bill, in order to get some opinions from the people.
Whether it is not infra dig for the "blue bloods" to be voting with the "Sans Culottes" in favor of the Extension Bill?

The Proposed Loan, and Income Tax.

Editor Evening Telegram.
Sir—Some one has written, "incompetence in other enterprises may be retrieved. Failure in politics affects disastrously the life of unborn generations." That is a truth that all of us will do well to remember. I have been trying, however imperfectly, to impress upon our rulers that the vital matter now confronting us as a people is to obtain money to tide the country over a very grave crisis, and that nothing should be done by them that is likely to militate against this necessary undertaking. The estimates of Expenditure for the current fiscal year now before the House of Assembly, would appear to indicate that the Government has already failed to realize the serious embarrassment that threatens, for, instead of curtailing expenditure, they propose to increase it. It seems to me an utterly hopeless task to warn, or suggest, and apparently nothing short of "the crack of doom" will bring us to our senses. However, as I intimated in my last letter that I would throw a little light on the proposed income tax, I shall proceed to do so. A few weeks ago, the official organ of the Government, the Advocate, announced that "as soon as the House of Assembly doors were opened an income-tax would be brought into force at once." The announcement was accompanied by such verbiage that it took the form of a petition, or passionate threat. One is reluctant to believe that the House of Assembly has been converted into a mere machine of vindictiveness and passion; but, the introduction of this tax, during the present Session, has already been announced by the Premier, and it has therefore to be considered in connection with the proposed loan. I have taken the position, which I believe to be the correct one, that if it is really desired that the local loan be a success, the proposed income tax must be dropped. And I have already set forth a few reasons in support of that position. Now, then, for a brief review of the tax. It is a tax that is regarded with abhorrence whenever, and wherever encountered, because of its inquisitive character. 2nd. In a small community such as this it may work great injury to business people. 3rd. It is the most difficult of all taxes to collect, because of the facility with which it may be evaded. 4th. It encourages spending, and discourages saving. This tax was first imposed in England in the year 1797, owing to "the great waste of capital occasioned by the war which commenced in 1793, and depressed the value of funded property." It was a graduated tax on incomes of Sixty pounds sterling per annum upwards. Writing on the subject of this tax in 1817, that well known political economist, David Buchanan, said "the great difficulty lies in the detail of such a measure. It is in devising an equitable rate for the larger and smaller incomes, and for such incomes also as arise from various sources of property, trade or profession. 2nd. In providing against fraudulent concealment of income, without any odious inquisition into the private affairs of individuals. The injustice of fixing a common rate of calculation for all incomes, however various, is sufficiently obvious. . . . It was found exceedingly difficult to reconcile any inquisition into the private concerns of individuals with the laws and customs of free government. . . . To disclose the state of a man's private affairs, is in all cases sufficiently vexatious, but in a nation of merchants such a disclosure may be often highly injurious. The tax is chiefly objectionable because however specious in theory, it cannot be carried fairly into practice without too strict and troublesome an inquisition into the private concerns of individuals." All writers, of that period, on political economy took the same view of the tax. Malthus, Stewart, and the French author Turgot. Henry Fawcett, M. P., professor of Political Economy in the University of Cambridge, writing on the subject fifty-two years later, in 1869, not only endorsed those views but added, that so unpopular is this mode of taxation in England that "whenever an income-tax has been imposed, statesmen have always most explicitly affirmed that it is only resorted to as a temporary expedient, and in order to give a technical form to these assertions concerning the temporary character of the income-tax, the continuance of this tax from year to year is based upon a Special Act of Parliament. . . . No other tax in our whole fiscal system is so temporary in its character, or so varying in its state. . . . A great variety of complicated and uncertain rules must be laid down, for the purpose of estimating the capitalised value of income derived from speculative investments. The difficulty of estimating the capitalised value of incomes arising from trades and professions would involve still more complicated calculations. . . . It is indisputable that income-tax ought not to be levied at a uniform rate, if the principle is admitted that each single tax should be so adjusted that every individual should contribute to it in proportion to his means, or, in other words, in proportion to his ability to pay the tax." One of the very latest writers on the subject of taxation, the Honourable T. M. Cooley, LL.D., says, "The income-tax, however just in theory, has always proved unequal from the impossibility of obtaining accurate returns, and unpopular from the necessity it involves of prying into the business and private concerns of the people. . . . In America an income tax has always been exceptional." It will be observed then, that after an experience of more than one hundred years, all recognised authorities on taxation practically condemn the income-tax as inquisitorial, vexatious, and impossible to enforce with justice and equity. And this is the tax that our rulers propose to experiment with in this little community, which, according to an officially written statement above the signatures of the late Governor and late Prime Minister of this Colony (in the London Times, of 1914) is a fit subject for public charity. But it is with the basis of this tax on the proposed loan that I am chiefly concerned. The strongest argument that can be urged against the income-tax in that connection is, that it is imposed upon savings. The man who has say four thousand dollars a year as income, and spends the whole of his income, only pays the tax once; but the man who has an equal income, and only spends a portion of it, pays in the first instance the same amount to the tax, and is also each year compelled to pay the tax upon income which is derived from the investment of the amount which he has saved from his annual income. An income-tax, therefore, encourages spending, and discourages saving. In a country such as ours, where capital is of so vital importance an income-tax, because it discourages the accumulation of capital, is likely to be greatly injurious to the industries of the Country; and as we have no wealthy class, with spare funds waiting for investment (every dollar of our richest people is invested in the trade and commerce of the Colony) a local loan, if it is possible to raise one, must come out of small savings. Therefore, if you specially tax incomes, you absolutely discourage the possibility of a successful loan.

I do not intend to argue this matter further. I have now discharged my duty in the premises.

Yours truly,
VIGILANCE.

Legislation---or Farce?

Yesterday the Legislative Council (or let me say, out of respect to the Men in that body, the majority of its members) made virtually certain the enactment of the Parliament Extension Bill by passing it upon the second reading. Whether or not the third reading will proceed any important amendments I do not know, but speaking as a plain citizen, my own inclination is to hope that the matter, and all others in the program of this comedy we call a session, will be disposed of, as speedily as possible, that the humiliation of the country, may cease with the closing of the House.
For some years now the people of this country have resigned themselves to the degradation of the House of all the functions of legislation and government; to the certainty that once one party or another was returned to office there it remained until the next election should or should not unseat it, and that until then its autocratic members would proceed to enact, without limitation whatever, except such as should be opposed by the Upper House, that council which the whole members of the legislature of the most of all the functions of legislation and government; to the certainty that once one party or another was returned to office there it remained until the next election should or should not unseat it, and that until then its autocratic members would proceed to enact, without limitation whatever, except such as should be opposed by the Upper House, that council which the whole members of the legislature of the most of all the functions of legislation and government; A Fresh Batch.

Editor Evening Telegram.

Dear Sir,—I understand from the "man on the street" that we are soon to have another batch of Sir Knight's imposed upon us, and this time they are given us in return for our political freedom, bartered away by a hall score of political mountebanks who have by a fluke got control of our Legislative Halls. When is this thing going to end, and what are we going to do about it? When we contrast the Honourable John Harvey's remarks on the Extension Bill with those he made on the Business Profits Tax last year, it would, to use our only Baron's remarks on Coaker's, make a cat laugh. Then we have the Honourable John C. Crosbie, of Patrol fame, and Honourable John Anderson who has given us an extra hour's daylight, both aspiring to the honour of knighthood. What do you think of it, citizens of St. John's? What do you think of it, fishermen of Newfoundland?

This is how Coaker treats the "graball" merchants. It's fine to be a "graball."

Yours truly,
BARON GRABALL.
Graball Castle, St. John's, May 9, '18.

Successful Sale and Concert

The sale and concert by the Cartwright Mission Circle, at Canon Wood Hall yesterday afternoon and night proved a wonderful success. It was under the distinguished patronage of the Lord Bishop of Newfoundland, but unfortunately His Lordship was not able to attend owing to being called out of town. The sale opened at 3:30 and among those present were Rev. Canon Field, Rev. (Capt.) Clayton, Revs. Moulton and Pike. The stalls which were beautifully decorated, were laden with most useful articles all of which were quickly disposed of. At 8 o'clock the concert was held, the attendance being exceptionally large. The programme, every item of which was carried out in a faultless manner, was as follows: Mandolin selection by Misses Goodland (2) and Edwards; songs by Misses G. Oke, E. Edwards and S. Chaliker; a reading by Miss E. Coaker; duet, Miss M. Downton and L. Cook; recitation by Miss M. Brown, and a dance by Misses Edwards and Hunt. There were also two dances, in which those taking part were Misses F. Taylor, V. Crocker, L. Gardner, M. McGregor, I. Wiseman, J. Wright, D. Stranger and E. McGregor, and three sketches, the performers being Misses G. Pike, V. Miller, L. Pike, L. Gardner, G. McDonald, G. Oke, V. Crocker, M. Cook, C. Healy, A. Bartlett, M. Brown, S. Chaliker, E. Rendell, M. Oke, Coaker (2), Christian and M. Downton. The proceeds exceeded all expectations and will be forwarded Rev. Henry Gordon at Cartwright, Labrador. The entertainment was promoted by Mrs. F. Strling, assisted by Miss E. Coaker, who together with the performers are to be congratulated on the success achieved.

West End Reserve Firemen Meet.

There was a full attendance of the Reserve Firemen at the West End Station last night. The meeting was addressed by Inspector General Hutchings, who outlined plans for re-organization and promised his wholehearted support in the matter. The election of officers took place and resulted as follows: Captain, Mr. Jonas Barter; Lieut., Mr. John Dunn; Secretary, Mr. Chas. Lester. It must be remembered that in days gone by the Reserve Firemen's Association have done humane work in protecting lives and property from the ravishing flames of times at the risk of losing their own lives. To-night the East End Reserves will meet and will be also addressed by the Inspector General.

Express Passengers.

The following passengers are on the incoming express: R. G. Reid, Mrs. Reid, H. E. Goodman, E. Tojanetti, Dr. T. and Mrs. Percy, Miss M. Furlong, Mrs. W. P. Shortall, Miss E. Foley, P. Brennan, D. Hodder, Miss M. Snodden, P. Devoe, L. M. Trask, Miss L. Barrige, L. B. Moore, R. Moulton, M. Grogan, Rev. M. Browning, Mrs. T. J. Hart, T. Locke.

The "Sorcerer".

Another crowded house greeted the third production of the opera "Sorcerer" at the Casino Theatre last night. The performance was even better than on the two preceding occasions. Between the acts Mr. J. C. Pippy, business manager of the affair, announced that the performance would be repeated to-night when the public will be given the final opportunity of witnessing one of the best productions seen here for some time.

Words as Sounds.

By RUTH CAMERON.

RUTH CAMERON

Did you ever try to dissociate the sound of a word from its meaning? In church, some weeks ago, the minister used a sentence in which the word "glory" occurred. As he rolled out that word, in his low, musical voice, I felt one of those little quivers of emotion travel up and down my spine. And it wasn't the context. I've quite forgotten what that was. It was purely the music in that word "glory."

After that, I fell to studying words and was interested to see how almost inevitably it is the words with "L" and "R" in them that have that musical quality.

One of the Most Beautiful Words in Our Language.

You may have heard of the Frenchman who said he thought our language had so many beautiful words in it, and when asked for an example rolled out the word "celar door." Of course that is amusing, but say it over to yourself, trying the while to dissociate it from the meaning, and you will see how right he was. In one of the most beautiful passages in Wordsworth, the word "glory" occurs:

"Whither is fled that visionary gleam Where is it now, the glory and the dream."

Was ever anything more musical, except music itself? And just see the "L" and "R's."

One Reason Why We Love Certain Verses.

Take, again, that passage in the Bible most of us love so well without having much idea what it means—the last chapter of Ecclesiastics. Look at the (to me) most beautiful verse:

"Or ever the silver chord be loosed or the golden bowl be broken."

What music! And what a gathering of L's and R's.

Of course I do not mean to present this as an original notion. I realize that it is an understood linguistic principle. "L" and "R" are the liquids.

I merely recall your attention to it as an interesting fact.

Milady's Boudoir.

TOO STOUT SHOULDERS.

If your shoulders are too fat, vigorous massage will help to reduce them, but special exercises are even then necessary. An exercise that will fairly pull the flesh off the shoulders in a most satisfactory manner, is as follows: Stand with the heels together, toes and chest out, shoulders dropped and chin up. Raise the left hand above the head and stretch the right hand down as if both were attempting to touch something just out of reach. Keep the palms out and the little finger of the right hand just touching the leg.

New bring the right hand in a semi-circle above the head, and at the same time swing the left arm down in a semi-circle until the little finger touches the leg, stretching both arms as far as possible. Alternate and continue for five minutes twice a day.

Another exercise for fatty shoulders and back is to stand with heels together, hands clenched at sides and begin to draw in a deep breath while bringing the arms to the shoulders with a quick, vigorous motion. Without pausing, stretch the arms to their full length above the head. Now begin to exhale, while bringing the arms down to the shoulders again and to full length at the side. Each movement of the arms should be as if intended as a blow.

If your shoulders are beautifully rounded, soft chignon, crepe or lace gowns, which slip carelessly off the shoulders, are extremely fetching. But beware of this method of gowning, if there is the slightest squareness of line to your shoulders. In most cases the drapery must come well with the line of the angle of the defect, to somewhat soften it.

Our Daily Story.

ALL THE WAY BUGS.

"Your honour, the defendant is undoubtedly insane, and in behalf of the other members of the family, whom I represent, I ask that he be committed to an asylum," said Causeway Plead, attorney for the offense. "I ask your honor to remember that witnesses have testified that the defendant, for instance, suddenly conceives the idea that he is a battering ram and that at such times the family have to take refuge behind locked doors, inasmuch as the defendant believes them to be castles that it is his duty to storm."

"Oh, well," murmured Judge Spindle, "perhaps that's mere playfulness—how is one to know?"

"But your honour," pursued Plead, "it has also been testified that he is in the habit of spending an entire meal trying to drink bouillon with a fork."

"He may be a bit absent minded," Judge Spindle observed.

"But your honour—his passion for sitting on the front steps in his undorments!" persisted the attorney for the offense.

"A mere physical culture fad, no doubt," nodded the judge wisely.

Causeway Plead scratched his head.

"Your honour," he said, "there was one point that I neglected to bring out. The defendant frequently argues by the hour that Napoleon Lajoie is a better all around player than Ty Cobb."

Judge Spindle, who, in baseball season, never missed a game, flashed an angry violet.

"The man is stark, staring, raving mad! I sentence him to the Looseworks asylum for life," he cried.

Everyday Etiquette.

"Would it be correct for me as the oldest daughter in the family, to have simply Miss Smith on my cards or should I have my full name?" inquired Gladys.

If there are no older unmarried women among your relatives of the same name it would be correct for you to use Miss Smith on your cards," replied her aunt.

At Rest.

Full of years and of merits was Mother Mary Bernard Greene when on Sunday morning last the Angel of Death visited the Presentation Convent at St. Jacques and called her soul to its reward exceeding great. In the Convent where she lived so religiously for many years, there are sad and lonely hearts today, the people to whom she gave her help, her advice, her motherly affection, her time and her talents are sorrowful and grieved because Mother Bernard is no more; the grand heart which loved and embraced them all is still in death, and the Mother who was indeed a mother to each and every one is now resting in the little quiet convent cemetery by the side of the only member of the Community who pre-deceased her—Sr. M. Aquin O'Driscoll, who in a short time fulfilled a great space and was called home while still young in years though abounding in virtues.

Mother Bernard Greene was born at Greenane, Co. Kilkenny, on Christmas Day, 1840, and having heard the Divine Call "Forsake thy people and thy father's house" she bade adieu to all who were dear to her, crossed the Atlantic, entered the Presentation Convent, Cathedral Square, where she was received in 1864 and progressed in 1866. When the Mission House was opened at Harbor Breton, Mother Bernard was appointed the Superioress of the little band of Presentation Nuns which left St. John's to take up their residence there. At that time the late Rev. Fr. Clarke was Pastor of the settlement; in him and his successors, among whom were the late Archbishop Howley and Rt. Rev. Mgr. Beardon, the present Parish Priest of Picoletia, Mother Bernard always found true and helpful friends. The good that Mother Bernard accomplished in her community effected in Harbor Breton was incalculable, and when in 1894 it was deemed advisable to remove the Nuns to St. Jacques, the deep sadness of the people at the loss which they were sustaining testified to the esteem in which they held the Sisters who were now leaving them. At St. Jacques Mother Bernard continued her good work for the advancement of the souls of the poor, increasing age obliged her to resign the position of Superioress a few years ago, nevertheless she was still the guiding power, the directress of her spiritual children and the guardian spirit of those about her. Twelve months ago Mother Bernard was stricken with paralysis and since then, though she was almost a constant sufferer, she lost none of her sweetness of charity, her interest in all that concerned the Convent or the people was still the same. Realizing that the end was coming she resigned herself completely into the hands of her Maker, and when at length she heard the whispered call "Come," her beautiful soul flew on the wings of love to the bosom of God. Around her dying couch were gathered her heart-broken Sisters who in spite of their grief, helped and assisted by their prayers her who had so often been a help to them in their troubles and doubts, and who in the years to come will sorely miss her gentle motherly care, but who, nevertheless, when they understood that she was dead, bowed down in silent resignation and said "God's Will be done."

On Wednesday morning Requiem Mass (Miss Cantata) was celebrated in the Sacred Heart Church for the repose of the deceased Mother's soul, by Very Rev. Dean Hawkins, assisted by Rev. Fr. Dubordieu. Many and fervent prayers for the repose of her soul were offered up by the people and the Convent pupils, all of whom Mother Bernard loved to call her children. After Mass the funeral procession formed and slowly wended its way to the cemetery, where after the last absolution had been pronounced the remains of one of the holiest and the best of the daughters of Nano Nagle in Newfoundland was laid to rest to await the Resurrection morning.

To her sister—Mother M. Aloysia Greene, the present Local Superioress of the Convent at St. Jacques, to her grief-stricken Community, the Order which has lost a bright ornament, and to her friends in the Old Land we offer sincere sympathy in this sorrow.

"THE FOOL."
(By Robert W. Service.)
"It isn't playing the game," he said,
And he slammed his books away;
The Latin and Greek I've got in my head
Will do for a commoner day."
"Foolish!" I cried. "The bugle's call isn't for lads from school."
"Oh, not I think he would listen?" Oh, not at all!
So I called him a fool, a fool.
Now there's his dog by his empty bed,
And the fute's he used to play,
And his favorite bat. . . . but Dick he's dead,
Somewhere in France, they say—
With his rapture of song and sun,
Tuck of the yellow hair,
Fooly whose life had but begun,
Carried-cold out there.

And I called
Oh, the bugle
So long as
Who, spinning
Turn the Intent on
A fool! I
Will be
He died with
And the fute
Nor a fute

Empire Day Collection for Red Cross

Yesterday afternoon, at Government House, a meeting of the Imperial Red Cross Committee was held with His Excellency the Governor, Sir C. Alexander Harris, who has kindly accepted the Honorary Presidency of the Association, in the Chair.

There were present also Miss C. Armorer Harris, Acting President; Mrs. G. H. Emerson, Honorary Treasurer; and Mrs. W. G. Gooding, Hon. Secretary W.P.A.; Sir William Horwood, Sir P. T. McGrath, Major Macpherson, Colonel O'Brien, Mr. John Fenelon, and Mr. F. H. Steer, M.B.E., Hon. Secretary. The annual statement of the Treasurer was read and adopted, and it was decided that it be published in the press shortly. The matter of the customary Empire Day collection was taken up, and discussed at some length. The ladies of the W.P.A. represented the proceeds of which other years were given to the Imperial Red Cross.

They were under heavy expenses, due to the fact that the materials they were using in working up supplies for the Red Cross had nearly tripled in value. For instance, a shipment of Red Cross material for hospital outfits, bandages, gauze, etc., cost more than $4,000, which last year cost nearly $9,500, and the same great increase was occurring also in other lines of the W.P.A. work. It was stated that though there had been a most generous response to the appeals of the organization the past winter for funds, the money in hand was now nearly exhausted, and but for the magnificent contribution made by the Curling Association and the sealers, the output totally nearly $5,000 from each, the outlook would have been very serious. On the other hand, it was pointed out that the Imperial Red Cross Fund was now, for the first time in its history, also short of money, and had actually spent a million pounds last year more than its visible receipts, and was making a special urgent appeal to the people of the British Empire for an increased contribution for the present year. It was ultimately decided to arrange a collection throughout Newfoundland on Empire Day, and to request the co-operation therein of the Board of Trade in St. John's and of the magistrates and other authorities in the outports; and Messrs. Renwick, Steer were appointed a committee to interview the Board of Trade with a view of having the collection taken up in the city and to arrange for setting on foot the work in the outports. The form of appeal submitted by Mr. Fenelon was considered and will be dealt with, and will be forwarded to all concerned. The proceeds from this source will be turned over to the Imperial Red Cross Fund, but in view of the statement of the W.P.A. ladies it was agreed that the proceeds of the tagging on Empire Day this year would be left with the local organization to assist in carrying on its work, being pointed out that there is a substantial benefit from this arrangement in the fact that a very large amount of value is put into the raw material here by the work done by the ladies thereon, and that consequently we have no doubt that the public will exhibit their customary generosity in assisting this most deserving movement by generous contributions on May 24th.

WASHINGTON, To-day. Unofficial advices received here, tell of an order for the expulsion from Mexico, by the Carranza Government, of Robert H. At the same time unofficial advices say, one of the correspondents of the Associated Press in Mexico City, W. E. Weigand, also was ordered to leave. The expulsion of both men, it was stated, was on an order under the Mexican Constitution, which provides for the summary deportation of "pernicious foreigners" without trial or hearing.

WILHELM DISAPPOINTED. LONDON, To-day. Only 1200 yards from the walls of Ypres, and "war advance on Ypres," were the joyously anticipatory headlines stretched across front pages of German newspapers, last night. They were disappointed during the course of the day. Karl Rosner, the Imperial Press Agent reported that the Kaiser was on the front lines, and that he had taken a most triumphant entry into the town.

THE ALLIES ARE THERE. WASHINGTON, To-day. Allied forces are along the lines in the West, and a dispatch to the Daily Mail from the Hague, quoting advices from Vienna, is to create a state to be named Greater Mitteleuropa, which would include the Austro-Slovene districts of Hungary, with the capital of Olmutz. Vienna newspapers say that the Socialist Austrian Zeitung, whose circulation in Germany has been stopped, declares that the Government cannot be aware of actual conditions in Austria, otherwise it would not play with fire. It says that the adjournment of Parliament screwed home the last safety valve, at a moment when an explosion of popular feeling was likely to be provoked by extreme pressure.

House of Assembly

A little excitement relieved the usual monotony at yesterday's sitting, brought about by a discussion on the dismissal of the light keepers at Bonavista, without any notice, over a year past.

The following bills were read a third time and were ordered to be sent to the Legislative Council for their concurrence:—"An Act for the more effective transfer of certain Properties to the Congregational Home Missionary Society of Newfoundland"; "An Act to Authorize the Raising of a Sum of Money by Loan for Naval and Military Purposes"; "An Act to Amend and Amend the Act 8 George V. (1913) Chapter 26, entitled 'An Act Respecting the Preservation of Beaver.'"

The Committee Stages of the following Bills were gone through and the Bills adopted without amendment: "An Act to Amend the Weights and Measures Act, Cap. 10, 6 Geo. V. (1916)"; "An Act to Amend the Act Respecting the Weights and Measures of the Newfoundland Regiment and of the Newfoundland Branch of the Royal Naval Reserve and other Volunteers, Cap. XVI, 8 George V."

The second reading of the Bill entitled "An Act to amend the War Pensions Act, 1917," was deferred as was the second reading of the Bill entitled "An Act to amend the Shipbuilding Act, 1914."

Legislative Council

The Parliament Extension Bill passed its second reading yesterday by a vote of 12 to 7, and will be considered in Committee to-day.

Hon. Mr. Bishop opposed the second reading and spoke at some length. When the House was asked to consider the Bill jointly with the Military Service Measures, it did not encourage unity, but instead provoked opposition. The only argument in favor of its passing was that the turmoil of a general election would continue all summer and until the counting of the ballots, and the Government in consequence would neglect the carrying out of the Military Service Act. He did not take this argument seriously. The fear that the Ministers would neglect their duties if an election were on, should not be considered. The very people who are now anxious that no election be held, were preparing for one up to a few weeks ago. Conditions were worse at that time than now. There were no recruits coming in then. Since, through the efforts of the Volunteers, matters were changed. He would like to know when the turmoil talked of ever existed during an election. Why were not the vacancies filled, so that the Legislature would be fully represented. Members had taken permanent office under the Crown, but they did not go back to their constituents for endorsement. There was no desire on the part of the Government to open these seats. They were losing no opportunity to gain political and personal advantages at the cost of neglecting matters of vital importance to the State. The Military Service Bill, the Government said, was introduced because of the demand of the Secretary of State for reinforcements for the Regiment. The number asked for was 300 by the end of April and 60 a month. The former number had been secured by voluntary enlistment and it ought to be possible to secure the monthly call of only 2 a day, without disarranging the whole work of the Government. If we were called upon to supply 1,000 or more at one time, there might be some reason in the arguments of those who supported the Bill, but to say that recruiting two men a day would demand the undivided attention of the Government, was, in his opinion, an insult to the intelligence of the House. The Bill might pass, but as it stood it gave no assurance whether an election would be held in 12 months, or at the end of 1919. He did not think one would be held until the war ended, or until such time as the Government elects to go to the country. If the Bill passed, the Government could extend the life of Parliament indefinitely, and in his opinion that was the intention.

Hon. Mr. Mews, who supported the Bill, said he enjoyed Hon. Mr. Gibbs' speech of Constitutional Law and practice the previous evening, but was somewhat mystified in looking through the official debates of last year not to find him on record as opposing extension. He would like to disagree with previous speakers regarding the salary of the Prime Minister, who, he thought, should be satisfied with a much smaller sum until after the war. The Minister of Militia, also, said Mr. Walsh had done well, with $3,000 for the office and $1,000 for Deputy Censor. The Deputy Heads of Departments should be better treated than they are. Mr. Walsh also pleaded for Mr. Eli Whitehead who filled a most trying position with entire satisfaction. He regretted that some very necessary votes, particularly those for Roads and Bridges, had not been increased, and again referred to the need for increased aids to navigation on the Southern Shore and in St. Mary's and Piacentia Bay. Mr. Bennett having explained how he came to receive the salary of $5,000 as Militia Minister, and that of $1,000 for being Deputy Censor, Mr. Currie replied, after which the Committee rose, reported progress and asked leave to sit again, whereupon the House adjourned until the usual hour this afternoon.

set the hon. member right as to some figures quoted on Tuesday. He gathered from what Hon. Mr. Gibbs had said that considerably more than 100,000 of the population were not represented in Parliament. Following a like basis laid down by Hon. Mr. Gibbs he would only figure 60,000. (Hon. Mr. Gibbs, 90,000), and he did not longed. As regards the extension of Parliament, he said the Government were not afraid to go to the country, either last fall or now. He did not see why they should. What extension meant was giving the Government opportunity to work out the regional problem and other serious matters facing the Colony. All would agree that a crisis existed, both on the battle fronts and at home and what was needed was harmony, not discord.

Hon. Mr. Squires, in opposing the second reading of the Bill, said that the only argument put up in the defence of the measure was the sentiment that he was to see the regiment kept at the front in full strength, and with an ample supply of reserves, and in his opinion, the Extension Bill was in any way essential in carrying out the Military Service Act. It would have his most hearty support. The House stood as a check against unwise legislation. All legislation should be passed by an assembly properly elected and constituted, and with full endorsement of the people. The present Government was in power more through political intrigue than by the dominant will of the people of the country. The present Premier, he considered, was not there by the mandate of the people. When he went to the polls in 1913 he came back third on the ticket, and though he had been made Premier, his colleague, who had had the ticket, was not even given an executive seat, and he and his other colleague only belonged to the rank and file. The people of Trinity evidently did not intend to make him Premier. He held the position merely through accident. When extension was granted last year and the National Government was formed, the Legislature was not dissolved as it is to-day. Ex-Premier Morris, no matter how much he might be disliked politically was a statesman of wide experience. He was a superior man to the present incumbent. When the extension Bill was passed a year ago it was with the understanding that it was only for a year. The Bill before the House had been passed in the Lower House with only one-third representation voting and even two members of the Executive Government absent. It had been passed by a depleted chamber and a Premier without a mandate. The arguments that the defeat of the Bill would interfere with the carrying out of the Conscription measure did not appeal to him. By the Fall the Bill would be working automatically. The proclamation would be issued and the working out of the Bill would be in the hands of an impartial Military Board, as named by the Premier, and the Judges of the Supreme Court, and the idea that an election would interfere with it was absurd. He could not at all agree with the defenders of the Bill that there would be political turmoil. He had contested these elections himself and had not as much as seen the slightest disorder, and he did not think there would be any this Fall. The idea that more than Class 1 would need to be called was not within the calculations of the Government. There was no possibility of any unpleasantness or political trouble. The argument that the passing of the measure was imperative to the carrying out of the Military Act is not in keeping with the facts. The Conscription Bill was joined up with the Extension Bill in the hope that, by waving the flag of patriotism in the Council and throughout the country, they could extend their political lives. Reference had been made that the life of Parliament had not been extended in England. That was so, but Parliament was not depleted, elections were being held almost every week, and in constituencies larger than the whole of the Dominion, and he had yet to hear of any disturbances, despite the fact that conditions over there were much worse than here. It was impertinent to send the Bill to the House at all. If ever a time was at hand to prove that the Chamber is an important factor in the protection of public rights, it is now. To prove that when Parliament was extended in 1917, it was only for a year. Hon. Mr. Squires pointed out that a voters' list was taken last September and all arrangements made to hold a general election. The somersault from an election to an extension was not due to any crisis. When the big offensive was at its worst during the early spring, an election was being provided for, and the crisis was not considered. When the election was held in the Dominion of Canada, there was no turmoil talked of, on the other hand Sir Robert Borden came back with a representative Government to assist in carrying out the war programme, which he had outlined to the country. The House should stand between the Government and the people and see that the latter's rights are not denied them.

Hon. Mr. Ellis congratulated the speakers, and took exception to the remark that the Government was the result of a corrupt bargain. He did not associate himself with the Government through any corrupt bargain. He joined the Government with the understanding that an election would be held within a year. When the demand was made for more men by the Imperial authorities, and it was seen these could not be supplied without enforcing a War Measures Act, the enforcing of it made the extension of Parliament a necessity. It was our first and most important duty to get men. If under ordinary conditions the life of Parliament was being extended, he would have resigned his seat.

The question of the second reading being put, was carried by the following vote:

FOR—Ellis, Murphy, Winter, Harvey, Mews, Bell, Cook, McNamara, Ryan, Templeman, Anderson, Power.

AGAINST—Skilton, Bishop, Gibbs, Goodridge, Squires, Milley, Knowlton.

With the passing of several items on the Order Paper, the House adjourned until the regular hour this afternoon.—Daily News report.

In Memoriam.

ACTG. SERGT. WILLIAM THOMAS SIMMONDS.

"Green be the turf above thee,
Friend of my better days;
None knew thee but to love thee,
Nor named thee but to praise."

The above lines are in every way suited to the memory of the late Actg. Sergt. William Thomas Simmonds, one of the "Blue Puttee Boys," who has gone to his eternal reward. Sergt. Simmonds was among the first five hundred youths who, when the call came to offer themselves in defence of liberty, bravely "buckled on the armour" and set forth like a knight of old to face the foe. He was the only son of James and Jessie Simmonds, of Pennywell Road, receiving part of his education at the Commercial School, under Principal Butler, and spending two years under the fostering care of the Christian Brothers, he had a good share of knowledge after leaving to help him on through the "thorny path of life." He worked for a time at the Newfoundland Clothing Factory, and when war was declared he was engaged in the pressing and cleaning business, having a piece of his own, at which trade he was becoming very successful. He was a member of Dudley Lodge, S.O.B. and was for fifteen years in the C.L.B. In 1914, Actg. Sergt. Simmonds married a daughter of the late Robert Marshall, of Long's Hill. A widow and two children survive him. He also leaves a mother, father and three sisters, two of the latter being married, Mrs. (Constable) Vail, of St. Mary's, and Mrs. John O'Brien of the West End, all of whom are sorrowing over the loss of a kind and loving son and brother. They have the consolation of knowing that after life's fitful dream is over, that over on the golden shore, they shall again be joined with their loved one who has given his life in freedom's sacred cause.—Com.

The Nelson Touch.

The story of the naval raid on Ostend and Zeebrugge will thrill the hearts and strengthen the courage of Britons everywhere. Aside from its strategic gains—which may be great, at the Bruges Canal, the entrance to the German sea snake's nest, is blocked—the exploit will rank with the most glorious traditions of the navy. No part of the armed coast of Europe is more elaborately defended than this Belgian foreshore—shallow and treacherous with its few channels heavily mined. Along its harbor fronts and guarding its naval bases Germany has massed its heaviest artillery. Here was the breeding place and sally port of the submarines. Through the mine-fields, through the blast from hundreds of guns, the British raiders dashed. One actually made fast to the great pier and landed a raiding party. Others filled with concrete ran clear into the channel and were sunk by their crews. Two destroyers apparently smashed through the harbor defences and blew up the gates of the canal. A submarine filled with explosives rammed the pier and blew itself up, destroying the enemy works. Then they came back, "but not, not the six hundred."

The casualties were heavy, says the official report. How could they be otherwise? Probably not a man who volunteered for such a hazardous service expected to return, but went forward to give his life gladly for the honor of the white ensign and the safety of the Empire.

Britons hundreds of years hence will be proud of this splendid deed, as we have been of Drake's dash into Cadiz Bay three hundred and fifty years ago when he "singed the King of Spain's beard," or of that daring night at Santa Cruz de Tenerife when Nelson lost his right arm, or of midshipman "Nobby" Hewitt's raid on the Russian guns in the Crimea, for which still "We drink to-night to that midshipmate, singing, cheerily lads, 'Yo Ho!'"

Except for a few rare opportunities the British navy's part in this war has been largely that of a traffic police force. It has kept the surface of the seas inviolate and enabled the Allies to perform miracles of transportation of troops and supplies. The growing feeling that its direction, though efficient, was too cautious, led lately to the retirement of Admiral Jellicoe. This, the first sharp evidence of the new policy, will be greeted around the Allied world with a cheer. There was never a doubt that the Nelson spirit still lived, and British hearts to-day are lifted up with the reassurance that it again holds sway, "as in the days of old and as it still shall be."—Montreal Daily Star.

NOTE OF THANKS—Mr. and Mrs. J. Neal wishes to thank Dr. Rendell and nurses and the many friends who assisted them in their hour of grief; also the employees of the Dock Machine shops who sent wreaths to adorn the casket of their loving daughter Erida, who died May 4th, 1918; also the employees of the N.B. Boot & Shoe and Parker's Factories.—adv.

WATER PROOF FOUR CYCLE ENGINES

Here is what you have been looking for, a special Four Cycle Engine, specially fitted with a waterproof ignition system, at a price to meet all competitions.

- 1 CYLINDER 2 HORSE POWER . . . $ 70.00
- 2 CYLINDER 4 HORSE POWER . . . 130.00
- 2 CYLINDER 8 HORSE POWER . . . 190.00
- 3 CYLINDER 6 HORSE POWER . . . 175.00
- 3 CYLINDER 12 HORSE POWER . . . 240.00
- 4 CYLINDER 16 HORSE POWER . . . 295.00

Everyone knows that a Four Cycle Engine will produce the same power on much less fuel than any two Cycle Engine made; it will also be much cleaner.

The only objection to Four Cycle Engines has been the difficulty of keeping the ignition dry in wet weather; this objection is overcome in our "WATERPROOF" Engines. A big advantage in having two or more Cylinders is to reduce vibration and give steady power; a smooth running Engine will last much longer than any other.

Write or wire if interested.

Good Style!

Yes, the best there is; and the wearer of a Warner's looks comfortable. She looks as though she really enjoyed wearing her corset. Even poor dressing cannot conceal the good lines that a Warner's Corset will give.

It is the best Corset we sell. You may be stout or extremely slender, but we can fit you with a Warner's—fit you comfortably, too, with a Corset that we guarantee not to RUST, BREAK, or TEAR.
Price from $1.80 up.
