CHAPTER XXII.

Half an hour after saw them en route, dashing along behind two splendid grays. The whole subject of conversation was "Lella," as Lord George related anecdotes after anecdotes of her—her blindness to the poor—her princely donations to churches and charitable institutions—her fierce, indomitable pride, that made her legions of admirers keep a long distance off—her haughty independence, that made the friendship of the high and titled no act of condescension, but a simple courtesy to an equal—her free, frank, impulsive ways—her splendid settings; in short, Lella—Lella was the theme until the carriage drew up in front of the Tremain mansion.

Lord George had insisted on their all coming with him, and Disbrowe had half-reluctantly complied. There was a quick flutter of his pulses at the thought of meeting Norma again, and a hot glow in his face as he recalled their last parting. How would she meet him? How could he congratulate her, and before so many, too? He half regretted he had come at all; but it was too late to draw back or regret now. Lord George, with Augusta on his arm, was already in the drawing-rooms, where Norma, Mrs. Tremain, and her daughter sat. There was an introduction, bows and smiles, and friendly words of welcome from the lady of the house and her daughter; and Disbrowe found himself holding Norma's hand in his, and wishing her joy, completely himself—his easy, self-possessed self again.

She had met him so, frankly and freely, looked in his eyes with a smile so bright and happy, laid her hand in his so promptly, that all his confusion passed away. She started violently as she saw who accompanied him, and turned upon him a look of eager inquiry.

"Does she remain long in England?"

"That depends—yes, I think she will. Would you like her to do so?"

"Me! Why, what possible interest can it have for me!"

She looked up with the queerest smile, but said nothing.

"Do you suppose I will fall in love with her?" he could not help asking, provoked by her smile.

"Oui, monsieur."

"I had rather be excused. Stage-players are not in my line. I could not love an actress, if she were a very goddess for beauty—a Venus herself."

"Tenez garde, monsieur! do not be too sure. You can do as you please, however. Most certainly neither I nor Lella will ask you to do so."

"Has she many lovers?"

"Legions."

"Wealthy and titled?"

"Yes, my lord. She refused the hand of his highness the Duke of B——, at Villepre, so I do not believe she would die of ecstasy if my Lord of Barncliffe offered her his hand, heart, and name to-morrow!"

Her sarcastic tone silenced Disbrowe on that subject; but all he had heard piqued his curiosity to see this strange actress—the slight wonder of the world; and it was in a sort of fever of impatience that he took his seat in the carriage on their way to the theater.

It was crowded when they entered—a perfect jam from pit to ceiling. It was a brilliant scene—fans waving, jewels flashing, bright eyes sparkling, smiles wreathing rosy lips, and a dreamy odor of perfume all around. The highest, the noblest of the proud English noblesse were there, and all waiting breathlessly for the curtain to go up. A bell tinkled—the music ceased—a dead hush followed—the curtain slowly arose, furled to the ceiling, and there stood the brave "Maid of Orleans"—the heroic daughter of France, its banner in her hand, at the head of its army—there before them stood "Lella, the Actress!"

A wild cheer arose—an English cheer—swelling, and rising, and chundering, till the very wall shook a regal welcome truly to the tragic queen. She advanced a step, bowed, and smiled with a queenly grace, and waving her hand for silence, uttered a few brief, graceful words of thanks.

Another cheer answered her; and then the vast crowd sank back in silence to listen.

All but the inmates of one box. Lord Barncliffe was on his feet, and so was Mr. De Vere, both deadly pale. Were they dreaming? Were they mad? Jaqueta stood before them—dead no longer, but living, smiling,

When you can't get clean with soap and water

Sometimes dirt gets so "ground in" the pores and tiny wrinkles of the skin upon your hands, that you can't get it out with soap and water. That's when you need a Pro-phy-lactic Hand Brush.

Its bristles are stiff, but non-abrasive. They dig out dirt as no other kind of washing will. Yet the scrubbing is so gentle that it gives the mild massage and exercise to your skin that helps keep it healthy, as well as clean.

radiant—the same Jaqueta they loved so well. Neither could speak; they stood watching her spellbound, until her voice first broke the silence. That voice! There never was but one such voice in the world!

And from the lips of both, at the same moment, broke a wild cry of "Jaqueta!"

CHAPTER XXIII.

That cry drew every eye to their box, and an angry murmur of "Shame!" ran through the house at the interruption. But heedless of all—of everything save the actress before them, Mr. De Vere and Lord Barncliffe stood still, gazing upon her with eyes wild with surprise, not unminged with a sort of horror at this apparition from the dead. Augusta, too, had seen her, and sank back with a low cry, while Orrin leaned over the box with the loud exclamation:

"Oh, grandpa! it's Miss Jack! it's Miss Jack!"

For one moment, the clear, bright penetrating eyes of Lella, the actress, were raised—those dark, clear eyes Disbrowe knew so well; but there was no recognition in their depths, and, dropping them again, she went on with her role.

All eyes were still bent on their box in surprise and curiosity, to the great annoyance of Mrs. Tremain and her daughter, who were lost in wonder at this singular scene. Lord George, too, stared with all his eyes, evidently debating within himself whether he had not secured a party of lunatics that day from Disbrowe Park. Norma was the only one of the party who seemed to understand it; and there was a malicious smile sparkling in her eyes and hovering around her lips, only partially concealed by the fan she held before her face.

"I say, Barncliffe, old fellow, this won't do, you know," said Lord George, in a low voice, touching his arm; "everybody's looking at you. Sit down, won't you?"

"By Heaven! it is she herself," cried Disbrowe, passionately. "Living or dead, it is Jaqueta!"

"My lord, sit down, I beseech you! Mr. De Vere, my dear sir, pray sit down," entreated Mrs. Tremain.

Mr. De Vere sank back with a groan.

"Oh, my God! can the grave give up its dead?"

"Eh? What?" cried Lord George.

"What is he talking about? The old gent's mad, Norma; mad as a March hare."

"You may find there is method in his madness. Lord Barncliffe, do be seated; you are disturbing the audience."

Disbrowe passed his hands across his eyes, as if to dispel a mist; and then seizing his hat, turned to go.

"My lord, where are you going?" said Lord George, startled by his wild looks.

"To Jaqueta! Living or dead, she is mine, and I claim her! Let me go."

He broke from him, mingled with the crowd, and disappeared. The face of sublime bewilderment and dismay which Lord George turned to his

Peonies

Never plant peonies in soil which has grown them before. If it is not possible to find a new location for them it is wise to bring in a quantity of fresh soil to plant them in. The soil in which they are planted must be thoroughly worked to a depth of two feet or more, for they are very deep-rooted. When they are planted sufficient room around them must be left for their future development. They are partial to permanent locations and are not to be disturbed.

Don't wait until after the accident to buy a set of Weed Anti-Skid Chains. Do it now. BOWRING BROS. LTD., Hardware Dept. Oct 29, 1924.

so give them room to last for several years and so avoid crowding. Three or four feet between plants is usually enough, and these spaces may be filled with annuals the first year or two in order that there will not be a barren place in the border while the peonies are developing. The roots should be placed in the well prepared ground with the topmost eye not more than three inches below the surface. Too deep planting will smother the growth and result in blind development.

There are hundreds of named varieties of peonies which have been produced by enthusiasts in recent years, each marvellous in its way, and the question of adequate selection for individual gardens is a difficult one. An uncial selection of a great many varieties does not constitute a fine collection. It is far better to have only a few in contact with some member of the family which has reached a high standard of excellence, and whose merits you appreciate.

Conservatives Elected by the Greatest Majority in a Century

All Labour Leaders Retain Their Seats—Molson's Bank Merged Into the Bank of Montreal—Federal Judge Issues Stern Warning to Preventative Officers.

A TREMENDOUS VICTORY.

LONDON, Oct. 30. The people of Great Britain have put an end to their first experiment with a Labor Government by returning the Conservative party to power in Parliament with one of the strongest majorities accorded during the last century. In this sweeping political change the Liberal party has sunk to the weakest position it has experienced since the realignment of British political parties more than ninety years ago at the time of the reform bill. With 561 out of 615 seats in the House of Commons accounted for at 4 o'clock this afternoon the Liberals had won only 38 and Conservatives had already captured 373 and were increasing their lead constantly as the returns came in from the country districts. Labour had won 138 seats and was thus assured of being the official opposition party in the new parliament. Other parties had elected 12. This leaves 54 seats still to be reported. Even if they should lose all of these remaining seats the Conservatives would have a clear majority in excess of 130. In fact the ultimate majority bids fair to be the greatest the Conservative party has ever enjoyed in all its life. Unlike the Labour Government which has just fallen, the Conservatives will be able to rule as well as govern, and perhaps thus to stay fixed in the governmental saddle for the full legal parliamentary lifetime of five years, if they want to, so strong was the tide that has carried them to triumph.

CONSERVATIVES HUGE MAJORITY.

LONDON, Oct. 30. The Conservatives will have more than four hundred members out of a total membership of 615 in the New House of Commons. That is the startling outcome of the third appeal to the country within two years. The exact figures cannot yet be given, because in the Universities, and some outlying Scottish Islands the counting will not be completed for another week. Because of this astounding Conservative victory it is expected that Premier MacDonald, who returned to London to-night, will call in immediate cabinet council to consider the Government's position. This may quite possibly prove to be the last meeting of a Labor Cabinet in England, for the next five or more years. The expectation to-night is that the MacDonald cabinet will decide to resign forthwith, thus making way for the Baldwin Ministry. There is, however, another alternative, to follow the precedent set by the Baldwin Ministry after the last general election, meet parliament and wait for defeat on the address from the throne. One strong motive for following this course would be that Premier MacDonald has declared his intention to probe to the roots the Zinovieff affair, and this he would be in a position to do effectively only while he retained the foreign secretaryship with access to all the Departments' accounts.

ALL LABOUR MINISTERS RETURNED.

LONDON, Oct. 30. The Labour Party, unlike the Liberal Party, did not suffer the loss of any of its generals. Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald, Lord Privy Seal J. R. Clynes, Colonial Secretary, J. H. Thomas, Chancellor of the Exchequer Philip Snowden, Minister of Agriculture Burton, President of the Board of Trade Sidney Webb, and Minister of Health, John Wheatley, were all returned, although they lost some of their principal lieutenants. Mr. Thomas and Mr. Clynes, expressed the opinion that the row raised over the alleged Zinovieff letter, and the attempts to frighten the electorate away from the Socialists because of it, were material factors in Labor's loss of strength. Five of the eight women who had seats in the last parliament lost their re-election rights, and the other three were returned. They were Lady Astor, Conservative, the Duchess of Atholl, Conservative, and Mrs. Hilton Phillips, Conservative, who were joined by a new woman member, Miss Wilkison, Laborite. The defeated women who were members of the last House were, Miss Bondfield, Labor, Miss Lawrence, Labor, Miss Dawson, Labor, Mrs. Winstingham, Liberal, and Lady Torrington, Liberal.

MONTREAL ABSORBS MOLSON'S.

TORONTO, Oct. 30. The absorption of Molson's Bank of Montreal as announced last night is the thirteenth bank amalgamation to take place in Canada since confederation, and leaves only twelve chartered banks in the Dominion now operating.

CANADA'S WHEAT CROP.

WINNIPEG, Oct. 30. I do not consider that the crops of Western Canada this year will approach the 300,000,000 bushel mark as estimated in some quarters, stated A. E. Wilson, President of the Saskatchewan Wheat Pool, here yesterday. Mr. Wilson forecasts that the actual crop will not come within 40,000,000 bushels of the three hundred million mark.

REASON FOR MERGER.

MONTREAL, Oct. 30. The actual facts with respect to the condition of the Molson's Bank, and the underlying reasons of its merger with the Bank of Montreal as announced last night, will be placed before the shareholders of the former institution at a meeting in the head office here next week, when it was stated this morning, the whole situation will be clearly outlined. It is understood that the general consequences of business depression and a considerable amount of non-liquid loans are believed to have played an important part in making the amalgamation advisable, in order to afford the greatest degree of protection to the shareholders of the Molson's bank.

SEELY DEFEATED.

LONDON, Oct. 30. Major-General J. F. B. Seely, commander of the Canadian Cavalry in the war, met defeat in the Isle of Wight, which he represented as a Liberal member in the last Parliament. He was defeated by Capt. P. D. McDonald, Conservative, who received 5402 more votes than General Seely.

DEATH LIST TOTALS EIGHT.

NELSON, B.C., Oct. 30. The death list in the Farron disaster rises to eight with the reporting last night by the C.P.R. of two more bodies at Grand Forks, a Doukhobor young woman, said to be Mrs. Mary Strolotaf, of Nelson, and an unidentified Hindu.

$50,000 FIRE.

CLARK'S HR., N.S., Oct. 30. Damage estimated at $50,000, with but slight insurance, was caused by a fire which broke out at midnight last night in the Cape Sable Packing Company's premises and spread to adjoining premises.

THE LATEST RETURNS.

LONDON, Oct. 30. When the counting of all the election returns, with the exception of a few outstanding returns from the Universities and Scotland, was concluded to-night, the composition of the new House of Commons was as follows:—Conservatives, 398; Labor, 149; Liberals, 40; Independents, 4; Co-Operatives, 5; Constitutionalists, 3; Communists, 1; Total 600. Membership of the House, 615. The standing in the old House was as follows: Conservatives, 259; Labor, 192; Liberals; others, 5; vacant (London University 1). Total 615.

BELGIUM WILL PAY UP.

LONDON, Oct. 30. The total liability of the Belgian Government to Canada, $2,225,000, will be paid the Government two months from now, so the Belgian Ambassador to Great Britain has informed the Canadian Government.

NO MORE PAPER MONEY.

MOSCOW, Oct. 30. The Central Executive Council has decided to suspend the issuance of paper money.

LLOYD GEORGE'S HUGE MAJORITY.

CARNARVON, Wales, Oct. 30. Former Premier Lloyd George, Liberal, was re-elected to the House of Commons, polling 16,058 votes to 3,401 for his Labor opponent, Professor Zimmern. Lloyd George's previous majority was 5,174.

K. of C. Ladies' Dance

The Halloween Dance, held by the Ladies' Association in their rooms last night was largely attended and proved a great success. The ballroom was tastefully decorated for the occasion and nothing was left undone by the Committee to make the evening an enjoyable one. Dancing was commenced at 9 o'clock, to the musical strains of the Prince's Orchestra, and did not conclude until after midnight. During the interval Caud Cannon was served by the ladies of the Association.

Spencer Club Dance

The young ladies of Spencer Club held a very enjoyable dance in honor of the Halloween season, at Spencer Hall last night. The affair was largely patronized and nothing was left undone by the committee in charge to make the evening a successful one. A select programme of dance numbers was gone through, the music for which was supplied by Miss Power. The elimination dance proved very popular and the prizes went to Miss Marguerite Ross and Mr. Harry Roberts. At 11 p.m. the ladies of the Club served an appetizing Caud Cannon supper, to which full justice was done before the close Mr. R. G. Williams announced that it was the intention of the Club to hold another dance during the Christmas holiday season.

The Brilliant Economic Revival in France

A striking picture of the recovery of France from the economic effects of the war is drawn by Mr. J. R. Cahill, Commercial Counsellor of the British Embassy, Paris, in a report on French conditions.

Here is the substance of some of the most arresting statements:

The entire population of France is in full employment.

Production has been consistently retarded by the dearth of labour, and for the last year more than 6,000 immigrant workers have been arriving every week.

For all practical purposes of mere industrial output, the reconstruction of the devastated areas is terminated. The total coal output of the damaged or destroyed mines will soon exceed the pre-war figure.

The yearly production of coke is now nearly two million tons more than in 1913.

All the great trades, says Mr. Cahill, tell the same tale of prosperity, and the movement for the consolidation of the big industries, and consequent better preparation for international competition, has made further progress.

In the first six months of the present year French exports exceeded those of the same period in 1923 by 2.3 million tons, the excess of manufactured products in that total having been 374,000 tons.

For the same period imports were in excess by 2.3 million tons, entirely due to the imports of raw materials, manufactured products being less by 10,700 tons.

Present rates of wages are now about 2 1/2 to 4%, and in some cases even five times, those ruling in 1914.

Immigration to France.

Here are some striking figures from this report:

For nearly three years unemployment in the ordinary acceptance of the word has been practically non-existent in France. Since 1922 that country has been on the flood-tide of a brilliant economic revival, and the problem has been the dearth of labour, which has consistently retarded production. France, unlike Great Britain, has no need to consider emigration schemes for a surplus population. She is welcoming a constant stream of immigrants.

Something like 6,000 foreign workers have been arriving each week, and that figure does not conclusively reflect the position, inasmuch as coalminers and agricultural labourers, the two classes in greatest demand, enter the country without registration. This growth in the foreign element in the population, though it has been evident since the beginning of the century, has recently become very pronounced. Last year alone there were 282,900 immigrants, and of these 112,500 were Italians, 55,000 were Poles, 38,500 were Spaniards, 34,000 were Belgians, and 12,000 Portuguese. Italians in France now number at least 650,000, Belgians 477,000, Spaniards 380,000, and Poles 120,000, though the alien influx includes representatives of practically every nation in Europe.

No Immigrants From Britain.

In dealing with the magnitude of the recent immigration movement, which he describes as a "striking phenomenon," Mr. Cahill notes that France seems destined to receive even greater numbers of Italians and Poles, as a consequent both of her own mining, metallurgical, and agricultural requirements, and of the overflowing populations of those countries, no longer possessing an outlet in the United States.

Less success, on the other hand, has attended the efforts to tempt over the Channel any considerable proportion of the unemployed from England. Last year, for instance, one big French establishment concerned with the repair of locomotives and rolling stock, offered to engage several hundreds of unmarried skilled workers for an indefinite period, paying them attractive wages and providing them with very comfortable houses, and even placing recreation rooms and football pitches at their disposal. This scheme did not succeed.

Obstacles from the British workers' viewpoint have been the language difficulty, operative not only in the workshop but in social relations and leading to comparative isolation for at least a considerable period; the change of food habits as regards kind of food or manner of meals (e.g., absence of substantial morning meal); the necessity for working the whole or part of Saturday afternoons; the dissimilarity in housing accommodation; and not least because the normal wages have appeared small on conversion into English currency, 20 francs a day with the exchange at 80 having appeared as only five shillings a day.

Rebuilding France.

The Commercial Counsellor describes how resolutely France has tackled the problem of her devastated areas, and he estimates that by next summer the work of reconstruction, for all practical economic purposes, will have been completed.

Early in 1914 there was a population of 4,254,000 in the ten departments officially comprised in the war areas, and a mere 430,000 fewer than 1914. Ordered local administration has been re-established in 3,228 out of 3,255 communes where it had been suspended, and they are actually more public schools, as well as more teachers, in these districts than there were before the war began. By next spring one-fifth of the ruined churches may be well advanced towards restoration or actual replacement.

Extremely rapid progress has been made in the last eighteen months in the salvaging and speeding up of production in the devastated coal mines in the Nord and Pas-de-Calais departments. By 1925, given sufficient labour, they will doubtless exceed their pre-war output. A similar prophecy is made in regard to the coke supply. Several entirely new undertakings have been opened out in the regions where the armies had fought, and the effect of this programme of reconstruction and development will be, as Mr. Cahill observes, a great reinforcement of the industrial power of Northern France.

Reorganized Industry.

Surveying the position of French industry over the widest field, the report declares that its processes and equipment have been completely modernized, and the industrial capacity of the country, alike from the material and technical standpoints, is far superior to that of 1914. France has found in Alsace a wonderful source of acquisitions to her natural resources and manufacturing power; she has carried out a wholesale reconstruction of the textile industries, coal and iron mines, metallurgical and engineering works, and glass and chemical works in the devastated districts; and she is benefiting by the war-time transplantation of industry from those same regions to centres like Lyons, Grenoble, Bordeaux, and Rouen. She has also consolidated her great industries in order that they can play their part in the realm of international competition.

Raisins should be floured slightly before they are added to cake batter.

Noted Critic Lauds "Name the Man"

THE FILM TO BE SHOWN AT THE NICLEL SOON.

"Name the Man!" is a throbbing human heart, its beating responsive to the touch of masterful fingers.

"Name the Man!" is poignant drama, presented with the art and the genius that make of drama the breath of real life.

You can't rave about "Name the Man!"—at least we don't feel we can. Because the white heat of enthusiasm seemed never to fall so far short of expressing the full truth.

"Name the Man!" is big, not in massive sets nor whirling mobs, but big in its deep-piercing shafts of human appeal. It is worthy of the Victor Seastrom whose work abroad was a prophecy of genius; it is worthy of the Victor Seastrom whom we expected America's wider facilities to mature; and Victor Seastrom proved worthy of it.

Seldom have we seen such assured mastery of tempo; such deft evidence of pictorial sense; such inspired playing with the last dregs of emotion in handling big scenes.

"Name the Man!" is a woman's picture, a man's picture—a picture for all who have hearts and tear ducts. It left us with moistened eyes and an abashed feeling of inability to do justice to so vibrant a work of art.

By next spring one-fifth of the ruined churches may be well advanced towards restoration or actual replacement.

Extremely rapid progress has been made in the last eighteen months in the salvaging and speeding up of production in the devastated coal mines in the Nord and Pas-de-Calais departments. By 1925, given sufficient labour, they will doubtless exceed their pre-war output. A similar prophecy is made in regard to the coke supply. Several entirely new undertakings have been opened out in the regions where the armies had fought, and the effect of this programme of reconstruction and development will be, as Mr. Cahill observes, a great reinforcement of the industrial power of Northern France.

Reorganized Industry.

Surveying the position of French industry over the widest field, the report declares that its processes and equipment have been completely modernized, and the industrial capacity of the country, alike from the material and technical standpoints, is far superior to that of 1914. France has found in Alsace a wonderful source of acquisitions to her natural resources and manufacturing power; she has carried out a wholesale reconstruction of the textile industries, coal and iron mines, metallurgical and engineering works, and glass and chemical works in the devastated districts; and she is benefiting by the war-time transplantation of industry from those same regions to centres like Lyons, Grenoble, Bordeaux, and Rouen. She has also consolidated her great industries in order that they can play their part in the realm of international competition.

Our Open Letter to Home-Lovers

Dear Madam:—

On your Dining-room floor, or perhaps your Kitchen floor, or maybe your Bedroom floor, there's a worn shabby spot.

Such a shabby spot spoils the appearance of your room, yet you can make it right so easily, so cheaply; it's a shame not to. Don't you think so?

Come in when you're down town and see our stock of Congoleum Art Rugs. They're beautiful and not expensive. We have them from $11.25 to $18.00. A size for every room in your home.

Now about that worn, shabby spot in your room. A Congoleum Runner will cover it nicely. Runners 18 inches wide by 9 feet long cost only $1.95. 36 inches wide by 9 feet long only $4.50. and The most beautiful Congoleum Runners you ever saw. 4 1/2 feet wide by 9 feet long, positively a gem.

Costs only Six Dollars and Seventy-five Cents. VALUE!

Why value is written all over it. Come and see; even if you don't want to buy.

Yours truly,

Bowring Brothers, Ltd.

P.S.—All Congoleum Art Rugs and Runners are sold under the Gold Seal guarantee of quality, which means satisfaction or your money back.

Britain's Return to The Conservative Fold

A close second to the interest shown in our own election contest is that with which the results of the general election in Great Britain are being followed by the community, and the despatches received have certainly been of a most sensational nature.

The earliest counts indicated that the sentiment of the country had undergone a change since December last, and the latest returns have fully confirmed the earlier conclusions. The Labour Party, which undertook the administration of affairs under conditions that made it impossible for them to follow their own dictates, have been swept out of office by the unprecedented victory of the Conservatives. Whatever causes have attributed to their defeat, it will be generally agreed that the blame cannot be laid at the door of Ramsay MacDonald and his Ministers, who have conscientiously and unsparringly given their services to the welfare of the country since they took office. Unfortunately they were associated with a section whose interests were too closely bound up with those of the disorderly elements on the Continent, which, however convincing their tenets may be in their own particular circle, meet with but little sympathy on the part of the great majority of the British public.

No feature of the result is more remarkable than the situation in which the Liberal Party finds itself. Its Leader, Mr. H. Asquith, has gone down to defeat in a district where Liberalism was a tradition, and the Party itself is but a relic of its former greatness. In a measure this may be due to the loss of individuality which it sustained in consequence of the secondary part it played during the nine months of administration of the Labour Party, but with two such distinguished statesmen as Mr. Asquith and Mr. Lloyd George at its head, its collapse is surprising.

There was never a time in the history of the country when it was more necessary than now for the people to think imperialistically, and to act imperialistically. The Empire has reached a crisis in its development, when the closest co-operation and sympathy of the Mother Country with the Dominions is vital to its unity and prosperity, and it will be admitted that both in their expressed opinions and in the programme which they outlined previous to the last election, the Conservatives showed they were more fully alive than either of the other parties to the urgency of such a policy. This view of Britain's position was admirably portrayed recently by a cartoonist in the Montreal Daily Star. He showed John Bull in a speculative mood gazing towards Europe while behind him was shown the wealth which was awaiting him in the rich markets of the Dominion.

Another conclusion which may be drawn from the result of the election is that the public have a strong dislike to the three party system, and everything indicates that there will be an early return to the old order of things. It certainly is desirable and essential if the country is to have stable government, for under the uncertain conditions which have existed since 1922, it has been impossible for the industrial life of the country to recover or for commercial activities to revive.

Bad Taste or Madness

In its brief reference to the victory of the Prime Minister and the Hon. William Winsor in the Bonavista by-election, the Advocate says: "It is evident that the more intelligent class of electors stood by Sir William Coker and Winsor, while the illiterate vote went strongly in favour of the Tory Candidates." Much may be overlooked in the conduct and discretion of a political opponent in the bitter hour of defeat, but we fail to understand what object is gained by flinging such an insult in the faces of by far the greater number of the voters of the District. Truly, "Whom the gods would destroy they first make mad."

A Meeting of the Ladies' Institute in Bishop Field College will be held in the College Hall (Colonial St. entrance), on Saturday, Nov. 1st, at 2.45 p.m. A hearty welcome is extended to those who may not have received a notice of the meeting.

Hallow'en Card Party and Dance

The Star of the Sea Ladies' Association held a very successful Hallow'en Card Party and Dance in the Society Rooms last night. The Card Party was largely attended and competition throughout was very close. The prize a handsome gold watch, the gift of Mr. Joseph Murphy, Vice-President of the Society was won by Mrs. C. Chast. The ladies then served a Cauld Cannon supper which was thoroughly enjoyed by the gathering. Dancing then followed until early this morning, the music for which was rendered by the C.C.C. Orchestra. The elimination dance proved to be one of the popular numbers on the programme, the prize winners being Mr. and Mrs. George Conway.

PEPPYS BEHIND THE SCENES

Oct. 30th.—Busy this day making up my accounts for the month, and find myself just square, and in no small satisfaction that I am in this position, albeit a matter for my very great content were I to have a balance in the bank. Being fresh from my accounts, I did read my wife a sermon on her extravagance of the past, and did warn her how she would have us both in the Peppers' House, did she not mend her ways which the wretched promises she will do, yet I have little faith in her post-testations. The news of the English elections do confirm the first opinion of a great Tory victory, being that they now have high seats in each of the other parties combined. But Lord, how the poor Liberals have shrunk and are now scarce 40 where before they were 140. Indeed, their downfall enough to cause Gladstone to turn in his grave. One thing I do note is how many of the women in the last Parliament are defeated and among them such well known people as Mrs. Wintingham and my Lady Fernington who suffered from their support of the Liberal policy losing their seats to Tories. And indeed, the whole thing do show the great road sense that is the dominant characteristic of the English people, seeing how though most of the voters belong to the labouring class, yet they will have none of a bad Labour Government.

Magistrates Court

The night watchman employed at the Government Railway Station had a former resident of the West End of the city, and recently liberated from jail in Georgia, and before court this morning charged with assaulting him on the night of October 29th. The complainant in his evidence stated that the defendant was in company with a girl at the time, and when he ordered the man off the premises, he deliberately attacked the plaintiff and struck him three blows in the face. The plaintiff was unable to protect himself, he said, owing to the loss of strength. The Judge condemned the conduct of the prisoner on the strength of the evidence and imposed a fine of $10.00.

Rowdiness Rampant

Last night during the progress of a dance in a city hall several toughs partly under the influence of liquor entered the hall and started a fracas. Const. Rideout who had been doing special duty there in ejecting the rowdies had his hand injured, and the assistance of another policeman had to be called. The trio were brought before court this morning. Two were fined $10 or 20 days, the case of the other respondent until Monday. Judge Morris, severely reprimanding the prisoners for their conduct, said that there was a great deal of rowdiness of this sort in the city, and he was determined to have those who were the cause of it put behind iron bars.

Ex-Naval Reservists Meet

A fairly well attended meeting of ex-naval reserve men took place at the Seaman's Institute last night, Com. Howley of R.N. occupied the chair. Matters of interest to the men were dealt with and all were advised to join the War Veterans' Association, as the best medium for the safeguarding their interests. The meeting was very enthusiastic and at the close a collection was taken up for the Permanent Marine Disaster Fund.

Schooner Total Wreck

A message from the Sub-Collector at Bonavista to the Assistant Collector of Customs states that the schooner Dorothy B. John Malone, master, drove ashore at Bonavista during the gale at Thursday night and became a total wreck. CAPT. BOUCHER ASSUMES COMMAND.—Capt. Boucher, until recently first mate of the S.S. Clyde, now assumes command of that ship, replacing Capt. Job Kneen, deceased. Capt. Boucher has been many years in the service, and is well qualified for his new position.

TO-DAY'S MESSAGES.

INDICATES CLEAR MAJORITY FOR CONSERVATIVES.

LONDON, Oct. 30. Highly elated by the returns they had received, the Conservatives profess great confidence that the remaining results to be announced to-day, will give them a clear majority over all the other parties combined. They can claim some justification for this confidence from precedent, inasmuch as the county districts which will constitute the majority of to-day's returns have often shown a strong tendency towards the Conservative Party, even if industrial big centres of population were opposed to it. The decline of Liberals thus far is believed in some quarters to foreshadow the ultimate verification of many predictions that this election would sound their death knell as a distinct party. At any rate some observers see in yesterday's polling returns strong indication of preference for the two party system which stood the test of centuries in this country. With nearly 1,000,000 votes counted, the Liberals had only about 283,000 less ballots than the Conservatives. The tabulation of 8 o'clock was: Conservatives, 2,115,108; Laborites, 2,486,785; Liberals, 1,086,947; Constitutionalists, 39,100; Independents, 53,095; Co-Operatives, 44,892; Communists, 68,785. An interesting feature of the elections was the return to Parliament of Sir Hamar Greenwood, who won the three-cornered fight in East Walthamstow with a majority of 3,066 over his Laborite runner up, Sir Hamar Greenwood, who was defeated in 1923 and 1924 by a Unionist entered the present contest, as an "Anti-Socialist" and "Constitutionalist," and was not opposed by a Conservative.

ASQUITH DEFEAT A BLOW TO LIBERALISM.

LONDON, Oct. 30. The severest blow for the Liberals was the defeat of Mr. Asquith, whose loss to the Laborite, Mitchell, in Paisley, broke the Liberal record of 32 years in this constituency. The Liberal leader took his defeat smilingly, but afterwards admitted profound disappointment and said he regretted the severance of his connections with Paisley, "for the time being at any rate." Aside from all party considerations his loss is generally deplored as a disappearance temporarily at least of one of the country's most distinguished statesmen. The first returns from the county districts showed a Conservative gain in Basingstoke Division of Hampshire, where Colonel Sir Arthur Hildreth, the Conservative, defeated Lieut.-Commander R. T. H. Fletcher, Liberal, and B. Greene, a Laborite. Last year Fletcher defeated Schrobok by a narrow margin. Sir J. A. K. Mordaunt, Conservative, retained his seat for Torquay, and Hon. W. Ormsby-Gore, Conservative also retained the Stafford Division of Staffordshire, where conduct of the Campbell prosecution was perhaps the most important indirect cause of the downfall of the Labor Government, retained his seat at Walsend, Polling 17,275 votes against 15,076 for his Conservative opponent, S. Herwald. Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald was re-elected.

CHILDREN BURN TO DEATH IN PARENTS' ABSENCE.

RULE, Que., Oct. 30. Two children Auguste St. Laurent aged six, and Renalde aged four years and half were suffocated in a fire which broke out in their parents' home late last night while the parents were away. A third child, Marie, aged 18 months was saved by neighbors.

JUDGE ISSUES STERN WARNING TO COASTGUARD OFFICIALS.

BOSTON, Oct. 30. A stern warning to the United States against in which he declared that high handed work has been done by United States officers if representations made to him were true, was issued by Federal Judge James M. Morton yesterday in the course of a hearing on motions asking that personal belongings alleged to have been stolen from the crew of the British schooner Marjorie Bachman be returned. Counsel for members of the crew of the schooner, which was seized with seven motor craft off the Massachusetts coast last week in contemptuous run row, said, charged that the prize crew had removed 300 cases of liquor, together with money and personal belongings, and that mate Whiston, Bowman was being forcibly detained aboard. "If these representations are true," the Judge continued, "there has been very high handed work done here by the United States officers. I propose to see that orders that be issued on these motions are carried out. I moreover propose to adopt measures to see that they are carried out to the letter. Later seven members of the Bachman's crew also held as material witnesses were bailed in $200 each.

ASQUITH NO INTENTION OF RETIRING.

Preparations for Exhibition Nearing Completion

A visit to the Princess and Carling Rink furnished convincing proof that manufacturers and merchants are entering wholeheartedly into the spirit of the coming Industrial Exhibition which opens on Monday next under the patronage of His Excellency the Governor. Upwards of one hundred carpenters, electricians, millwrights, decorators and general workmen are all present busily engaged erecting the various booths. With the aid of fiber board, fancy papers, colored cottons and other materials, both rinks are being transformed into an attractive pavilions for the display of the different exhibits. An enclosed passage way is being built between both rinks and will be a great convenience to visitors. A large dancing platform has been completed in the Carling Rink and a band stand erected. In this rink there will be some interesting displays, judging by the booths already completed. Amongst them are the Henley Mattress Manufacturing Co., Hubbers (steam stoves) St. John's Mill Factory and Ewins. The latter is said to have a display of fancy articles and manufacturers worth about $15,000. The stand is an artistic arrangement of birch trees. The Mill Factory is displaying their products in an ingenu way, one of the attractions is a neat fence made from wire nails, and a central dome covered with all sizes of the same product.

LIBEL SUIT FILED AGAINST SCHROBACHMAN.

BOSTON, Oct. 30. The United States Government through Assistant United States Attorney Lawrence Curtis to-day filed a libel suit against the British schooner E. Bachman in the local Federal District Court, charging that the ship is a rum runner. The craft was seized off Gloucester last Friday by the United States revenue cutter Tempe in a raid in which a number of smaller powered boats were seized. To-day's action is instituted under the recently negotiated Liquor Treaty with Great Britain. No date has been set for the hearing of the action.

CREW CLAIM TO HAVE BEEN SHANGHAIED.

NEW YORK, Oct. 30. At the request of her captain the British schooner Dorothy N. Smart was towed into quarantine to-night by the coast guard cutter Gresham. The vessel's crew of four, according to a wireless report, assert they were shanghaied aboard at Halifax and want to land in this port. The cutter's message added that the schooner had no food or water aboard. Maritime records show that the Dorothy N. Smart departed from Halifax last July 31st for Nassau, and no further reports have been received from her.

BATTERED VESSEL REACHES PORT.

GULF PORT, Miss., Oct. 30. Battered and waterlogged the British schooner Murele Winters, minus her cargo of 2,851 cases of liquor, is resting to-day on the ways of a Gulf Port shipyard, where repairs are being made to her strained hull and broken steering system. The vessel, bound from Nassau to Tampico with her liquor cargo, encountered a West India hurricane, and drifted until she grounded on Boston Island, one hundred miles southeast of the mouth of the Mississippi River. Buffeted by heavy seas with breaking waves from 25 to 30 feet in height, the crew threw the cargo overboard to save the ship. The crew clung to the schooner's mainboom for three days and nights. A message sent to the mainland from Boston Island brought the tug Cole from New Orleans, which towed the schooner into Gulf Port. The cargo was valued between $50,000 and $60,000.

THE BRITISH GOVERNMENT TO RESOLVE.

CALGARY, Oct. 31. "It is a matter for the British Government to decide and is not for the Canadian Government, for the new Conservative Administration must take the initiative," said Premier King last night, when asked, now that the Conservatives are returned in Britain, did he anticipate the restoration of McKenna duties or other preferential treatment for Canada.

SALE OF GASOLINE CONTAINING MYSTERIOUS GAS FORBIDDEN.

NEW YORK, Oct. 31. Gasoline containing Tetra Ethyl, the mysterious gas compound, may no longer be sold in New York City. The Board of Health has adopted a resolution prohibiting its sale after the death of the fifth of thirty-three laborers affected by the fumes while working with the mixture in Barway, N.J. Laboratories of the Standard Oil Co. of New Jersey.

LABOUR CABINET IN SESSION.

LONDON, Oct. 31. A Cabinet Council is being held today in Downing Street to decide upon the Labour Government's course of action in the case of the new Conservative victory in the Parliamentary elections. It may prove to be the last meeting of the Labour Cabinet in England for the next five or more years, as the expectation is that the MacDonald Government will decide to resign forthwith, making way for the Conservative Ministry under the leadership of former Premier Stanley Baldwin. Should he resign forthwith and the King sends for Mr. Baldwin, a new Government could be completed before Parliament meets. It is declared at Conservative headquarters that Mr. Baldwin is leaving to-day for a short holiday in the country in preparation for the arduous duties which await him.

James Douglas on Our Prisons

Mr. James Douglas, writing on the Prisons of England in the "Sunday Express," quotes Burke:—"He surveyed all Europe, not to view the sumptuousness of palaces, but to survey the mansions of sorrow and of pain; to collect the distresses of men in all countries. The plan was original, and full of genius as of humanity. It was a voyage of discovery."

"In these noble words," he says, "Burke praised Howard, the pioneer of English prison reform. I cannot find a finer inspiration for my modest survey of our prison system. If a spark of Howard's spirit should be kindled by my words they will not be wasted or worthless. Reform in human institutions is never final. The public conscience marches forward in each generation in response to fresh movements of moral pity and new conceptions of moral duty in our philosophy and in our philanthropy."

"I think that this generation is eager to examine the problem of crime, its punishment and its prevention, with eyes that have been enlightened by what I may call the new compassion which ennobles the modern drama and the modern novel as well as the modern newspaper. We are not hard-hearted or hard-minded. We have learned humility and humanity in strange ways. The war has filled us with a fear of cruelty in dark and hidden and secret places. The very fact that the prison is necessarily exempt from the searchlight of publicity fills us with uneasiness and with doubt. We are tortured by idle rumour and melodramatic gossip, and in our ignorance we give generous credence to the unverified allegations of dubious witnesses."

"But the history of prison reform is full of hope, and many victories have been won against the callousness of routine and the inertia of established methods. In 1817 it was possible for Romilly to say that 'the laws of England were written in blood.' Lecky declared that 'England, which stood high among the nations of the world in political, industrial, and intellectual eminence, ranked in this matter shamefully below the average of the Continent.' From 1787 to 1845 we shipped our criminals to the Colonies. It was not till 1883 that penal servitude was substituted for transportation."

Our Stupendous Indemnity to a Foreign Power

"Alone among the nations, victorious and vanquished, which fought in the war, England is paying a stupendous indemnity to a foreign Power," says a writer in the National Review.

"Fourteen months have now passed since Mr. Bonar Law's Cabinet accepted the agreement which had been concluded on their behalf with the United States for the repayment of the loans made to this country by the American Government during the war. It has been recently shown in the Times that the total amount of that debt at the date when the agreement was accepted stood at 4,910,000,000 dollars, or £1,054,944,000. In the past year we in this country have repaid to the United States 111,183,000 dollars, and it might be supposed that the English value of the debt had been reduced by a sum of at least £35,000,000. Nothing of the kind has happened, however."

"The rate of exchange has gone against us, and the value of our debt in English currency was actually £1,127,900,000 on the anniversary of the date when the agreement was approved. This alone stamps the transaction as extraordinary. Here is a debt which, the more you pay it off, the bigger it grows—a real Sisyphus's stone to be rolled sternly up hill by the British people. The explanation is that the payment of the debt depresses the rate of exchange against this country, and makes the position of the British taxpayer ever more difficult."

"Before this colossal burden was imposed no sort of inquiry was conducted as to whether the British people, after their fearful sacrifices in blood and money in the Allied cause (which was also the United States cause) during the war, were able to bear it. The mere suggestion that Germany ought to be called upon to make reparations brought from all kinds of self-distant economists and financiers demonstrations that she could not possibly pay. No one in the United States or anywhere else bothered about the burdens of the British nation; all the sympathy went out to the nation which had assailed freedom and not to the nation which had defended it."

"Yet this sum of £1,100,000,000 is not far from twice our total National Debt on the eve of the Boer War. It is much more than our National Debt at the close of the Napoleonic wars, and that debt in a century we were not able very markedly to reduce. We are committed to the payment of this whole immense sum in sixty years, and we are further condemned to pay it in American currency or gold. We are not allowed to employ British currency or goods. Let me further point out that while nincompoops in

U. S. Counsel Was Stoned to Death

NEW YORK, Oct. 22.—How Robert Imbrie, United States Consul at Teheran, was stoned to death by natives as he lay unconscious upon an operating table, was related to-day by Joseph Kornfeld, United States Minister to Persia, just resigned, who returned on the Leviathan with a report of the tragedy which he submitted to the State Department at Washington.

"In Teheran, as in most Persian cities," Mr. Kornfeld related, "there are numerous drinking fountains where there is stationed self-constituted attendants who, in the name of a Mohammedan Saint, Abbas, solicit alms." At the time of the Imbrie affair there had gained wide circulation the story of a miracle that was reported to have occurred at one of these fountains only a few weeks before.

"The story was that a native approached the fountain to fill a gourd with water. 'In the name of Abbas,' asked the alms solicitor.

"No, in the name of Bahai," replied the gourd bearer. Straightway he was stricken blind for his blasphemy; then, when he dropped to his knees and recanted with a prayer of apology directed to the Saint Abbas, his sight was restored.

The fountain became the gathering place of thronged thousands, who tied themselves to it and lapped up the trickling water or fought their way to it and prayed.

Clamored For His Life.

"Imbrie heard of this. One day he strapped on a camera and, with his side, Seymour, drove in a passion to the miracle spot. Imbrie forced his way through the crowd to take a photograph. The natives surged around him clamoring, and he fled to the barouche and drove away.

"Behind the carriage the infuriated natives ran, shouting 'Stop him, the infidel has killed four of the faithful and poisoned the waters of the fountain.'"

Although he was not wholly informed of events that immediately followed, said Mr. Kornfeld, the gist of conflicting reports was that the natives believed Imbrie's camera to be a weapon which silently dispatched death.

They overhauled Seymour in an alleyway where he had taken refuge, and mauled him, he continued. They pursued Imbrie into a tea store; they clubbed and stoned him until the police rescued him and carried him into a hospital.

Even then the outraged natives were not satisfied. They clamored for Imbrie's life in atonement to their Mohammedan Saint Abbas. They stormed the hospital, battered down the doors, and finding Imbrie unconscious upon an operating table, tore the tiles from the floor and crushed out his life with them.

The State Department already was in possession of evidence supporting the story he related, said Mr. Kornfeld.

A man can never do anything at variance with his own nature. Turks Rush 3,000 Greeks to Prison

CONSTANTINOPLE POLICE TAKE POPULATION EXCHANGE INTO OWN HANDS.

CONSTANTINOPLE, October 28.—(United Press)—At the point of the bayonet, routing their victims from bed, the Turkish police have taken matters of exchange of populations with Greece into their own hands, and marched some 3,000 Greeks to imprisonment in the historic fortress of the Seven Towers.

The Greeks, who were hustled off without being permitted to bring along their belongings, included many who were not to be exchanged, but their protests fell upon deaf ears.

A child suffering from smallpox was dragged off to the fortress, old men and women were prodded along the road by armed envoys and in one instance a baker's boy, his hands and apron still white with flour, was hurried off to the prison.

The Greek population of Constantinople is terror-stricken as a result of the action of the police. The latter claim the Greeks seized belong to a category slated for exchange, and that they have delayed too long after obtaining passports. Many of the prisoners had no passports, however.

Strong protests have been made to the mixed Inter-Allied Commission, which has charge of the transfer of Greeks to Greece in return for Turks to Turkey, but the commission has been unable to check the arrests.

LONDON, Oct. 21.—(United Press)—The Turkish legation here issued a statement regarding the wholesale arrest of Greeks at Constantinople declaring that those interned did not hold registration papers and therefore were not exempt from expulsion.

The Loss of the L. & S.

THE SKIPPER TELLS HIS STORY.

Captain McCarthy of the L. & S., owned by John Rork & Sons, Carbonara, called from St. Francis Mr. L. & S. on Oct. 18th, with 21 passengers for Carbonara including three women, a young girl of sixteen and a boy of twelve, who had spent the summer at Labrador and were now returning to their homes in Carbonara. The schooner called at Seldom-Comey and sailed from there on Monday, Oct. 20th, for Carbonara. All went well on the little vessel until 8 o'clock on Monday night. The schooner was then off Cape Bonavista with the wind very strong from the W. They had to shorten sail, putting the schooner under double reef mainsail, foresail and jumbo. At daylight on Tuesday they were about 12 miles E. of Cape St. Francis. At eight o'clock the wind had increased, and at nine o'clock the foresail was lost, the wind increasing all day with violence and sweeping over the vessel so that it was almost impossible to move about the deck. At noon on Tuesday the vessel was found to be making water. An hour before the crew had jettisoned 30 casks of cod oil. All started at the pumps, the water gradually getting worse, till she was making 200 strokes every ten minutes. On Wednesday, 22nd, the weather grew worse than ever, and the vessel was heeled about on the sea. At one o'clock in the afternoon the Captain decided to put out a sea anchor and had much difficulty in doing so. Finally they managed to get 2 spars fastened with line and made fast with a 90 fathom hawser, and putting the sea anchor ahead the little vessel lay easier to the sea. About four o'clock in the afternoon they put out oil bags to calm the sea, and at five o'clock jettisoned 150 quintals of codfish to lighten the schooner. At eleven o'clock on Wednesday night a light haze in sight, and stars were kept going. The schooner here down on the vessel and spoke to us, but as the steamer was a foreign ship those on the schooner could not understand and the steamer went on her way. The Capt. of the schooner had asked the Capt. of the steamer to take him off as he was in a sinking condition, but he was unable to make those on the steamer realize his predicament. The steamer started on her way and the schooner continued to drift hopelessly.

PAID NO REED.

Thursday at eight a.m. another ship hove in sight and signals of distress were hoisted, but the steamer passed on her course about three miles on the starboard quarter. The steamer was quite a large one moving on a W.N.W. course, and we were near enough, the captain said, to have seen plainly seen, but no notice was paid to our signals.

THE RESCUE SHIP.

When the steamer disappeared all hope of being rescued died within the hearts of the crew and passengers. All had chances of being picked up, but all failed. Two hours later the Mount Clay hove in sight, saw the signals of distress and hove down on us, and at 1 p.m. our little party of 27 were taken off. All the passengers and men were put in the ship's lifeboat, and Capt. McCarthy, taking his life in his hands, entered the cabin and saturated about a gallon of gasoline among the beds and bedding and set the craft on fire. Immediately on the flame from the match striking the gasoline a terrific explosion rent the air, tearing out practically the whole side of the cabin. When they left the schooner there were three feet of water in the hold, and the rudder case as well as the bows were open. The L. & S., a schooner of 65 tons registered 65 feet long, 20 ft. 8 in. wide and 12 ft. 2 in. deep, was built at St. John's, Halifax, N.S. in the year 1889 and was owned by John Rork & Sons, Carbonara, Nfld., and was uninsured. The crew and passengers, all of Carbonara, Nfld., were as follows:— Captain—Wm. McCarthy. Mate—Reuben Horwood. Cook—Thomas Oates. Thomas Butt, Ambrose Kennedy, Edward Legge.

Also on board were Edward B. Joyce, Agent, and William Dedges, bookkeeper at St. Francis Mr. Labrador. The passengers were as follows:—Meditation E. Oates, Annie Peasey, Margaret Horwood; Miss Annie Russell and a 12-year-old boy, Augustus Oates; Messrs. Wm. Horwood, Willis Bunden, Richard Horwood, Herbert Bunden, Geo. Horwood, Clarence Peasey, John Horwood, Arthur Peasey, Samuel Bunden, Abel Peasey, M. Murphy, H. Oates and Felix McCarthy.

The Mount Clay was a ship of about 400 tons, and was commanded by Capt. E. J. Brown. Capt. McCarthy spoke in high terms of the splendid treatment accorded them by the captain, officers, crew and passengers of the Mount Clay. When the Wilfred G. called away from the Mount Clay with the crew, they expressed their appreciation of the saving of their lives with three hearty cheers for Captain Brown of the Mount Clay, the latter acknowledging the ovation with a wave of his hand from where he stood on the bridge of his ship, and returned the passengers on the ship gave three cheers for the rescued crew and passengers. The ship's hand struck up a lively march, and last farewells were waved to recent acquaintances.

Just Folks.

By EDGAR GUEST.

SHINGLED.

I was rather set against it. I'm old-fashioned, and I linger rather fondly o'er the treasures that I've dearly learned to finger. I'm the kind that keeps old pictures stored away in dusty places. And so standing in to see them, all the old-remembered faces. So I rather wished she wouldn't, when she said she thought she'd do it. And it's now too late to argue, for she's been to town and done it. But she's been to town and done it, and I guess that's all there's to it.

"Not with my consent," I murmured, when she spoke to me about it. "I don't ever want to see you going round the house without it." And she smiled and called me "Silly," and she said when once I'd seen it.

She was certain I would like it. Still I thought she didn't mean it. But you know the ways of women—if it's their affair they'll run it. And it's now too late to argue, for she's been to town and done it. I was rather set against it. I'm old-fashioned, and I know it. By a thousand foolish notions which I'm clinging to, I show it. Though I cannot now explain it, and she says she likes it better, she says she likes it better. I'm forever looking backward to the first day that I met her. When it seems my dreams of beauty were with raven tresses mingled. Now that wealth of hair has vanished; she's been down and had it shingled!

CUPS FOR CARDS.

There are now on exhibition in the windows of James Baird, Ltd., the cups which will be awarded as prizes in the C.L.B. bridge and forty-fives tournament which will be held Monday next. The tournament is attracting great interest, and teams have been entered by various clubs and professions. Several scratch teams have also been entered, and a most amusing evening appears to be in store for those who attend. The cups are extremely attractive and it is a novel and popular idea to provide these as prizes in a card tournament. Card enthusiasts claim, however, that if billiards can be considered a sport, there is no reason why cards should not have an equal claim to be classified under the same head.

HALIFAX MARATHON.

Along The Course.
 Jimmy Martin's showing was splendid. Back in 1907, Jimmy was up near the front at the finish in a race which was won by the famous Hans Holmér. When he entered the ground on Saturday the crowd gave him a great ovation.

O'Toole was popular with the crowd and many picked him to win next year as he is yet only a boy. Silas McLellan is also a dangerous man and improves as the years roll by. He won a ten mile race at Amherst on Labor Day and appears capable of beating good men.

Harold York, Parrsboro runner, was not in good condition. He suffered with a cold up to a few days before the race and had to take matters easy on the hills.

All prize winners were pleased with the reward for their efforts. It costs quite a penny to run a big race like that of Saturday and the management aims to please.

Jimmy Hawboldt didn't seem to get going. He lacked his usual pep over the ten mile course. He was sixth in his first start three years ago.

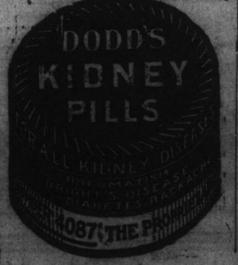

George Carey, R.C.R., upheld the reputation of Halifax, being the first local man to cross the line. He was fifth Saturday and sixth the previous year, thus bettering his position by one place.

Young Ray Hamilton made good in his first start and by getting twelfth showed that the youngsters have a chance after all. More young runners are needed and it is up to the clubs to offer encouragement.

John Melver, the only Cape Breton competitor in the race, made a fine showing, getting ninth. He competed in several Boston Marathons and he knows the game.

Frank and Hector Corkum are capable of showing better form than they did Saturday. Last year Frank ran fourth and was booked to do better this year. It looked like a case of brotherly love, the boys staying together too long, as they finished together.

Prizes Awarded
 Saturday's prize winners in The Herald and The Evening Mail Marathon were:—
 1st—Victor McAulay, Windsor, gold watch and gold championship medal.
 2nd—Silas McLellan, Noel, silver watch and silver championship medal.
 3rd—Ronald O'Toole, St. John's, silver cup and bronze championship medal.
 4th—James Hawboldt, Westville, silver cup.
 5th—Pie George Carey, R.C.R., Halifax, silver cup.
 6th—James Martin, Dartmouth, silver cup and veterans' prize, silver cup.

Rotary Luncheon

ADDRESS BY DR. BREHM.

Continuing the special programme outlined by the October Committee of the Rotary Club, the address at yesterday's luncheon was given by Dr. Brehm, who spoke on Public Health Problems. Those who were privileged to listen to this address, could not but be impressed with the excellent work being accomplished by the Department of Health in its efforts to safeguard the public, particularly in the manner of its meat and food supplies.

Dr. Brehm endorsed the views of the previous speakers in regard to the housing problem, which he regarded as the root of the present unsanitary conditions. It will be impossible to make any headway with the question until all houses are rendered suitable for proper water and sanitary installation, and he regarded the present situation as a great menace to the health of the community. He would strongly recommend that a special tax be assessed on the rents collected on house units for habitation and lacking sanitary appliances.

The speaker could not refrain from mentioning the great danger to the health of the city arising out of the practice of converting unused land into Municipal dumps. Refuse, of all description, germ laden materials, etc., are deposited daily and in many cases children are permitted to play in these localities where flies breed in abundance, and disease lurks on every hand. This situation can be overcome by the erection of a refuse destructor or incinerator.

There is an urgent need in the city for a permanent children's Hospital to which could be attached a Clinic for out patients. There also should be medical inspection of schools, supplemented by the appointment of a nurse in each school, because, in the speaker's opinion, many of our epidemics might easily have been prevented if the pupils in our schools were examined regularly. Coupled with the Children's Hospital and the School Medical Inspection, Dr. Brehm advocated the appointment of one or two District Nurses to work amongst the poor of the city, who, in many cases, are unable to gain admittance to our various institutions on account of the limited accommodation.

Turning to the question of pure milk supply, the speaker assured his listeners that a great deal has been accomplished in this direction, and that the Department was receiving the full co-operation of the milk suppliers. No one is permitted to sell milk without a license, and this license can be revoked at any time the holder fails to comply with the regulations issued by the Board of Health. All sources of supply are regularly inspected, and it is gratifying to note the improvement in the quality of the milk as determined by tests and which for the past four years are as follows:—

Samples tested	Year	Below Standard
143	1921	20%
183	1922	6%
245	1923	4.4%
339	1924	2.5%

In referring to Milk for Infants, Dr. Brehm recommended that all milk used for this purpose should be either pasteurized or boiled.

The Board of Health also maintains a constant inspection of the Slaughter Houses in the city, and nearby outposts, but in this as well as in the milk supply, the area to be covered by one inspector makes it practically impossible for him to cover the ground as often as he would wish. A Veterinary Surgeon has been appointed to inspect all dairy cattle and imported stock, and regulations outlining his duties have been drawn up and will be submitted to the Government for approval. Last year the Department condemned 5,844 pounds Fresh Meat; 5,110 pounds Salt Meat; 183 pounds Poultry and 187 rabbits.

In regard to the water supply, we should be very thankful that we have an abundance of water of excellent quality, and that the danger of infection from this source is practically negligible.

A hearty vote of thanks was proposed by the Chairman, Rotarian Bob Murphy, and carried by acclamation. Amongst the guests present were Doctors Macpherson, Parsons, Knight, G. R. Hedd, Montreal; W. A. Harrison, St. John, N.B.; Dr. Evans, Detroit; and Rotarian Hugh Gillis, Sydney.

Municipal Council

WEEKLY MEETING.

The regular meeting of the Municipal Council was held yesterday afternoon. Mayor Cook presided and Councillors Martin, Ousterbridge, Collier, Ryan and Dowden were present. After the usual preliminaries, the following business was disposed of.

Rev. A. B. Stirling again called attention to the very muddy condition of that thoroughfare known as the Long Bridge and the need of immediate action being taken in the matter. The Council, some time ago decided to place a plank sidewalk from the North to the Southside, but this was found impracticable owing to the street railway tracks crossing the road, which accounts for conditions as they are. However, it was ordered to have the sidewalk immediately scraped and carted away, and also to have some crushed stone placed there.

Communications were read from W. J. Brovan (1) calling attention to the condition of the Long Bridge and asking that it be repaired, which was referred to the City Engineer; and (2) asking an interview with the Council at the next regular meeting when he will place before them a petition from the residents of the Roadwalk and Mundy Pond Road, as regards City Taxes in this section.

Mr. J. Gardiner again complained of unsanitary conditions near his property caused by an adjoining stable. This matter has already been the subject of communication between the Public Health Department and the Council, the Department having stated that trustees of the property referred to had agreed to install water and sewerage. It was ordered that the trustees be again written to and notified to have the building immediately fitted with water and sewerage appliances.

T. J. Cooper asked that a light be placed near the old Railway Track Crossing, Freshwater Road. This was referred to the Lighting Committee.

The following matters were referred to the City Engineer:

1.—Complaint made by James Scurry, 199 New Gower Street, re condition of road in this vicinity.

2.—Request of A. Way, Atlantic Avenue, for extension of surface drains, and

3.—J. D. Hallyard, Hayward Ave., re the necessity of having fountain removed, as in its present position it is an inconvenience and danger to pedestrian and vehicular traffic.

A communication was read from Hon. F. J. Morris, with regard to a house on Water Street West which he stated was in a filthy condition, unfit for human habitation and a menace to the health of the people living in the neighbourhood. He also forwarded a report of District Inspector Noseworthy in connection with same. It was decided to forward this correspondence to the Medical Officer of Health and to ask him to take immediate steps in the matter.

During the past week the Council had an interview with Sir Edgar Bowring as regards purchase of land, on the North side of Quill's Lake, extending from the top to the lower portion of same, the amount required being $11,129.00. The Council was of opinion that this land should be reserved for public recreation ground in the near future and thought it would be inadvisable to allow it to pass into private ownership. The property can be utilized for any purpose desired, and the interest on the PLANS.

The following plans were passed, subject to the approval of the City Engineer, from whom the necessary building permits may be obtained:—H. Hutchings, Cockpit Road; A. Gooby, bungalow, Le Marchant Road, provided he agrees to pay proportionate cost of water and sewerage extension; Frank Rose, to extend dwelling, Howley Avenue.

The Medical Officer of Health reported 1 new case of Scarlet Fever and 5 Typhoid in the city during the past week.

Reports of the City Engineer, Sanitary Supervisor, and other departmental officers were tabled.

During the week, a Committee of retaining wall to keep up the road Council visited the Southside and near Whiffen's property, and it was made arrangements for appropriation of land to widen this very narrow thoroughfare. It was pointed out that it would be necessary to proceed immediately with the building of a retaining wall to keep up the road near Whiffen's property, and it was therefore ordered that tenders be called for the work. Many minor matters were disposed of and, with the passing of accounts, the meeting adjourned.

Was so ill couldn't even sweep the floor.

Now, thanks to Carnol, she can work sixteen hours a day without fatigue.

Here's her story.—When a young girl I was knocked down by a horse and trap in London, England. I was kicked in my side and head. In later years I always had a cramped feeling in my left side if I sat too long. Five days out of seven I was never well. I underwent an operation and my doctor told me that my bottom rib was growing up over the other and caused my back to be one mass of inflammation and lameness. He also said that my kidneys were affected. Even sweeping gave me pain. My operation took place in Brazil, South America. After my operation I had a nervous breakdown with insomnia. One time I didn't sleep for three months day or night. My doctor advised me to go home to England for a change. I stayed in England only a short time, but couldn't sleep. I then came to Canada. I have been here two and a half years and have been laid up now and again. I have also been a great sufferer from ulcers in the mouth due to stomach and my food has given me trouble. One night my husband brought home a bottle of Carnol and I still take it. I can honestly say now that the ulcers are gone. Your great tonic Carnol has been my salvation, for I can now work with anyone. I cook and care for fourteen, nine men, four children and myself, so that's a good proof that I am feeling all. All my friends are telling me that I am looking well. I can work from five o'clock in the morning till nine and ten at night. My friends here in Timmins say, "Don't you find it very hard work?" I say, "Oh, no, I take my Carnol and that helps me." I find the days all too short, I wake up in the morning fresh, and sleep as sound as a bell. It would take too much of your time to tell you how I have suffered. It was nothing for me to be taken like one dying, frantically tossing to my feet. I could just feel my heart beating. My husband or anyone near me had to rub me until I could feel life return to my side. This seems to have completely left me. I am thankful to think I have come to Canada to find so valuable a tonic as Carnol.—Mrs. J. Drew, P.O. Box 804, Timmins, Ont. 7-24

A Business Project

It was during the Prince of Wales' visit to Canada in 1919 that he determined to become a ranchman, and obtained possession of the Pekisko Ranch, in the south of Alberta, now the E. P. Ranch, or the Prince of Wales Ranch, twenty-five miles from High River Station, on the Macleod branch of the Canadian Pacific Railway. The prince's ranch, oblong in form, extending to three miles by two miles, and including 4,000 acres, is in the centre of the finest ranching district of Alberta, beautiful in its verdant green covering, which stretches as far as the eye can reach. The low, rounded hills and valleys are ideal alike for the grazing of livestock—cattle, horses and sheep—and for sport. In the southern half of the area of this ranch is a duck-frequented lake of considerable extent, which is capable of being stocked, according to the ways of the country, from government fish hatcheries. The residential quarters, even with an addition which has been made to the west wing for the accommodation of the prince's staff, are a modest frame house of the ordinary type, with creeper-hung veranda. The livestock barns for cattle, sheep and horses, lie to the east, and with the headquarters building form a crescent-shaped group facing the south, all situated about 3,400 feet above sea level. In a sunny hollow, with a background of sheltering poplars and willows, through which a tributary branch of the High River winds in a gravelly, tortuous and, in some places, beautiful course. The low wooded hills to the east, where the ranch boundary line and the watershed run together, form ideal short grass pasture for sheep, and are fringed at the bases with sheltering bluffs of poplar and willow. At a considerable distance to the west, whence come the warm winds of spring, are to be seen the sharply peaks of the Rocky Mountain range over rolling grass country. To the south, beyond some rising ground, are to be found splendidly sheltered and watered pastures for cattle. Open spaces, clothed with natural grass of very special quality, known as prairie wool or buffalo grass, are cut in alternate years for hay.

The climate is such, with the natural shelter available, that no livestock needs to be housed even in the coldest and most trying weather. The grass cures into hay as it stands in autumn, and retains its nourishing properties during winter, so that stacked hay is only needed for cattle when snow covers the ground, or when the pasture has been exhausted. The thousands of acres of natural hay which the E. P. Ranch provides make it practically self-supporting and independent of the costly operation of ploughing, except for about 100 acres which are cultivated to grow fodder crops to fill a silo, which has a capacity of 110 tons—the only one in the district. This is admirably done by growing green oats and mixing them with sunflowers, also cut well before the seeds are ripe. The sunflower grows large crops of silo-filling material on which animals thrive well after they have been trained to eat it, in areas too cold for the satisfactory cultivation of corn (maize) the crop most widely employed for this purpose on the American continent.

Not a Philanthropic Venture. In operating this ranch the prince's chief object is to benefit the stock-breeders of the West, and to this end he proposes to send out from time to time the surplus stock of his own farms in England, supplemented by purchases of high-class stock. To carry out his idea, all the animals on the ranch are on offer at reasonable prices.

The ranch is not a philanthropic institution, but a venture run on commercial lines and intended to pay its way. Benefit to the country will be possible along various lines of activity. Light horse breeding will be stimulated by the services of "Will Summers," a beautiful well-known thoroughbred, with an excellent four-year-old racing record on the English turf, lent by the King.

Then there is a stud of eighteen Dartmoor ponies of exceptional quality, headed by a very fine stallion used by the prince as his riding pony on the ranch.

A flock of Shropshire sheep has been doing remarkably well, led by a ram of outstanding quality—champion in good company on the other side of the boundary line. To this has recently been added by importation a flock of forty-one Hampshire ewes, picked from about a dozen of the best home flocks and presented by the Hampshire Down Sheep Breeders' Association. The sheep run in the open all the winter, nothing but oat-hay being given them, except a little grain before lambing.

a formal dinner. When service is limited a few well-chosen, well-cooked and easy-to-serve dishes are to be preferred to an elaborate succession of indifferently served foods.

Providing Variety.
Variety, in flavourings, method of cooking, colour and decoration, must be the first consideration. For example, two fried or grilled dishes must not appear at the same meal, nor must two pastry dishes be chosen. Should the soup be tomato or onion, avoid sauces or entrees containing either of these ingredients. A fish savoury is not a happy choice when fish has preceded it, unless it be an absolute contrast, such as lax or tunny fish. Again, when cheese has figured in any entree do not choose a cheese savoury. Two white meats, such as veal and chicken, must not follow each other. Should poultry or game be served as a roast, an entree made from that particular bird is not permissible. When chicken, for instance, forms the roast, do not serve an entree containing it; although pigeon, or any game bird may constitute an entree at a meal for which roast fowl is selected. Although practically most foods can be obtained from other countries all the year round, it is far better to select foods that are in season, as not only are they cheaper, but infinitely superior in flavour. This applies especially to fish.

Choosing the Right Vegetables.
The meat of young animals and poultry should always be accompanied by vegetables of the season, such as lamb and green peas. When drawing up the ordinary bill of fare for the household, avoid monotony by providing a contrast between the dishes for breakfast and those for luncheon and the later meal. Thus, if fried fish appears at breakfast avoid it for luncheon and dinner. The remains, if any, can be used in a made-up dish for the following day. A substantial dinner should follow a light luncheon and vice versa.

Mystery of the Ancients
The Department of Agriculture of Egypt has seeds which were found in age-proof containers in the tomb of King Tutankhamen which they will endeavor to propagate at their Agricultural Research Laboratories.
