ting, we can endure it if the advertising constantly brings one visual sense into contact with beauty.

It is because New York's visual sense was brought into contact for six long weeks with Oscar Wilde's broad expanse of ugliness that Vera was killed and dead.

It was because the photographs of Mrs. Langtry displayed in America last year were so cold and inert that she was received so coldly.

It is because this year some of the beauty has been portrayed and some of the artistic pose caught that the criticisms on the actress have been so much more kindly.

With that worship for beauty that is the most prominent feature in the artistic sensibility of inartistic America, the nation has thrown itself at the feet of the actress and declared her acting good.

For Henry Irving's criticism of the applause of actors is good here too. When he says that actors applaud the touches as you put them on, while the audience applauds the effect when made, he teaches us the difference between artistic and inartistic appreciation.

And an audience's appreciation is always inartistic, is always devoted to the effect, and finally the only effect an audience desires or applauds in America is a general effect of beauty.

With this in mind we can understand why Mrs. Langtry is this year a success—in that this year we are not prejudiced by caricatures.

STOCK INSURANCE COMPANIES. We do not think it necessary to follow that because stock insurance companies make big profits and distribute them among the shareholders, an injustice is done to the policy holder, as the critics in our columns of the Canada Life and the Sun have endeavored to prove.

A company that can give undoubted stock can always command high premiums, just as certain stores can command better prices for the same line of goods.

Insurers must choose for themselves: a co-operative-plan policy, or a mutual-plan policy, may realize all right for the heirs at a less cost than one in a stock company, or they may in the end turn out a poor investment after long payment of assessments.

In the same way stock companies with higher premiums have gone to the wall and left many ruined policy holders. An insurer has to weigh well for himself: settle whether cheapness and virtue go together, or whether the latter can only be secured by comparatively high premiums. But inordinate profits in any case are an unfair tax on the policy holder.

THE VICTIM OF INDEPENDENCE. The Toronto World moralizes over the fact that the London Standard has been so kind as to publish a notice in its issue of the 20th inst. to the effect that the Standard should learn that one prominent cause of the failure of the N. P. is the fact that it is a newspaper, and not a newspaper.

This amounts in fact to saying that within certain pretty wide limits the minister of education can be as mad as he pleases. This is not a cheerful conclusion. It is not a conclusion either that affords Canadian teachers matter for contented reflection. And Mr. Bryant's reflections are not conceived accordingly in a contented spirit.

True he is not an enemy of Mr. Crooks. He puts "An Am." on the shoulder very kindly, and says, "let you, dear sir, but the system." He does not note with us that the chief fault in the system is that it is put up with such a man as Mr. Crooks at all without dropping to pieces as any well-labeled system would.

In fact it proves the elasticity of the system, that it has stood such a weight for so long. It also proves what very little interest the rest of the world try take in the educational department.

Mr. Bryant had noted all this his paper would have been much more valuable, but perhaps a little worldly wisdom stepped in when Mr. Bryant's reflections tended that way.

As it is, his plan for the regency of the department is a happy union of independence and political. He would have an independent educational system but he would also have a member of the government, without either patronage or originative power, to keep an eye on the system and veto any little eccentricities that the controllers of the system might originate. Let there be, he says:

First—A chief superintendent to be appointed to hold office during life or good conduct, who shall administer the provisions of the school act.

(2) In accordance with the provisions of the school act.

(3) The chief superintendent.

(4) Two representatives of the high school masters, to retire biennially, one each year.

(5) Two representatives of the public school inspectors, to retire biennially, one each year.

(6) Two representatives of the teaching profession in general, to be chosen by the executive committee of the various county teachers' associations, each association to have one vote.

(7) The president of the provincial teachers' association for the time being.

(8) A representative of the University of Toronto, and one from each college or school of the University of Toronto, to be chosen by the Senate. These also to have equal votes of service.

(9) Six representatives of the Lieutenant-Governor's Council, to retire triennially, one each year.

We call attention to the article as written, as a practical, thoughtful, clear, and as an evidence of the interest now being shown in the matter throughout the country.

STOCK INSURANCE COMPANIES. To the Editor of The World.

Sir: The system of assessing large sums of money out of the profits in a life assurance company for the benefit of the shareholders is a very old system and where thoroughly understood the people decline to patronize such companies.

"A Policyholder" and "A. O. U. W." simply combine themselves to the Canada Life and other Canadian companies as glaring examples of life institutions having made enormous sums for the stockholders. This is perfectly correct, but these companies sink into insignificance when compared with the action of the "Old E.N.A.," an American institution whose head office is located at Hartford, Conn., U.S.A.

It may be interesting information for the numerous policyholders of this Yankee widow and orphan, to know that the situation to learn for the first time that the company has a capital stock of $1,000,000.

The company has accumulated a stock of $1,000,000 of sums taken almost wholly from the profits, upon which an annual dividend was paid in cash, one year amounting to 30 per cent. (The fact of the following may be fully verified by reference to the New York, Connecticut or Massachusetts' stock life insurance reports.) The "Old E.N.A." has since been receiving a dividend annually of $75,000 in cash. Bad and disgraceful as is this tremendous sum of $600,000 from the profits on the savings of men, many of whom have undergone many privations to make a provision for their wives and children, it is not the only case of the kind. I have seen a policyholder of the same company to increase the paid up capital to $2,000,000, or a further increase of $1,000,000, which will probably be transferred from the profits of the company to the credit of the stockholders. Capital stock in a company is essentially a fund for the early years of a company, and consequently the stockholder's first responsibility are entitled to a return for the risk they took. This would be simply repaid, say by an annual cash dividend of ten per cent. Of this correspondence possibly some good results may be seen in the past when insurers if some member would bring the matter up at the next meeting of the Dominion House of Commons with a view to the abolition of the same. This could be done by an act being framed making the charter of a company invalid which gave the stockholders the right to receive a share of the profits to stockholders beyond a reasonable rate of interest. The higher the rate of interest the more the stockholders would be inclined to invest in the shares of the profits divided from their true owners, the policy holders, is the stockholders.

LIFE INSURANCE. To the Editor of The World.

Sir: I have been anxiously waiting to see some reply and read the argument in opposition to the two well written articles which appeared in The World of recent dates, and which were decidedly detrimental to stock life insurance; but judge of my surprise when scanning over the morning's World to find that they have a certain amount of support in the columns of the paper.

Now, sir, in reference to the security given to the members of these assessment societies, I claim that they are better insured than any other class of people. The former depend on thousands of honest, upright business and professional men to pay a small assessment when required to meet death, while the latter have a substantial and lasting security that is given by stock insurance. (2) that they say they are insured with the best of the best, and then advise A. O. U. W. to insure in a stock company, for he says a bird in the hand is worth two in the bush; but unfortunately for the A. O. U. W. his hands have been so terribly scorched by carrying stock life insurance that he could not hold on to an angel's policy, or his own work.

Now, sir, in reference to the security given to the members of these assessment societies, I claim that they are better insured than any other class of people. The former depend on thousands of honest, upright business and professional men to pay a small assessment when required to meet death, while the latter have a substantial and lasting security that is given by stock insurance. Among the classical plays now forthcoming in England will excite more interest than the performance of the Electra, of Sophocles, which is promised by the Glyn and Glyn at Cambridge at the end of the present month.

A well known actress in Vienna, Mathilde Singer, has hit upon a brilliant idea, which even the versatile Sarah Bernhardt has not yet tried. She has opened an opera house, over which she presides herself, and the result that the Austrian "masher" flock in crowds to do homage at her shrine, consume her delicacies and bring their golden dusts to her coffers.

An original miniature of Shakespeare painted on copper in the reign of Queen Elizabeth, has been discovered in England. It is a full face, age about 85 years, bearing the well-known, deep eyed, pensive expression of countenance, massive and hair forehead, and the falling collar to his right ear, but with the additional attraction of exact portraiture from the life itself by evidently a fine first rate artist, when the subject was in his prime as regards physical appearance and mental vigor.

The correspondent of the London Standard telegraphed from New York that the nightly record at Mr. Irving's performances here is "one of empty seats." This is not so. All the seats have been sold on every night of Mr. Irving's engagement, but speculators have on some evenings been unable to dispose of all the seats owing to the extravagant prices they asked. Many people have paid $5 a night for seats every night all through, and the receipts have been: First week, $15,000; second, $18,000; third, $18,000; and the fourth gives promise of being $20,000, which would represent the occupation of every nook and cranny in the house.

Mrs. O'Hearn, River street, Toronto, uses Dr. Thomas' Electric Oil for her corns cracked and sore heels. She thinks it is nothing like it. She also used it when her horses had the epizootic with the very best result. Do not be deceived to take other oil in place of Dr. Thomas' Electric Oil.

Chamois makes a soft and pretty material for embroidery. Pink, blue and yellow look well upon it. It may also be used for hand painting.
