interpretation of motive of the principal actor, or as the defence claims, the puppet who played the principal part in the many tragedies and stirring events between the year 1899, when the troubles in the Coeur D'Alenes reached their height, and the close of 1905, when Governor Steunenberg was assassinated, followed by the arrest and confession of Orchard and the arrest of Haywood, Moyer and Pettibone early in 1906. Darrow's developments of the motive the defence attribute to Orchard and his explanation of the circumstances on which the state of Idaho bases its claim, that he is guilty in common with Pettibone and Moyer of a conspiracy to murder the leaders in the fight against the methods of the Western Federation of Miners, opens a field for conjecture.

It was quite evident from the statements made by Mr. Darrow that the defence or admit the connection between the defence and Haywood and they admit that Orchard was at one time employed by Moyer. But it is claimed that these connections were perfectly legitimate and had nothing to do with a conspiracy; that Orchard was a traitor and that he officers of the Western Federation under the guise of a union workman and a member of the Masonic fraternity, all the time being a detective employed by mine owners and their detectives. The one great crime the defence admit that Orchard committed, is the murder of Steunenberg, and the close of 1905, when Governor Steunenberg, and the officers of the Western Federation of Miners, opens a field for conjecture.

So far as our own reserve funds are concerned the effect would be the same; but the case will appear more clearly if it is kept in mind how we got this gold that we are sending eastward across the water. It was borrowed by Wall Street, almost as absolutely as the French and Russian gold was borrowed by Uondon in November, 1890, and with far less excuse. It was borrowed substantially on three months' notes, renewable if Wall street rates gave inducement for renewal and not otherwise. The rates gale inducement for renewal and not otherwise. The rates gale inducement for renewal and not otherwise. The rates gale inducement for renewal and some of the borrowed gold—as yet, only a part of it—has been paid back.
