Rousing Welcome Home Is Given Charlie Gorman

Cheering Throng Greets Speedy Local Skater

Mayor Presents Address and Diamond Cuff Links on City's Behalf and Makes Personal Presentation Also—A Spirited Reception.

Like a conquering hero Charlie Gorman arrived home today after winning signal honors in the Canadian skating championships in Montreal, the national championships at Saranac Lake, and establishing a world's record at the International championships at Lake Placid, when he skated the final of the 440 yards in the remarkable time of 57.2 seconds. This last achievement will go down in the annals of sport and his name will be inscribed with that of other world's famous athletes in the hall of fame.

Our Champion

We watched and waited as a rambler waits The turning card, the fateful throw of dice— The fortunes of our hero of the skates, Our gladiator, Viking of the ice.

We scanned his varying success, day by day, But never thought, although we saw brought on fame! To see him so victorious in the fray; His city's pride, the hero of the hour.

Hope A. Thomson.

Gorman, For Times Readers, Reviews The Championship Events

Won Friends by Sportsmanship in Accepting Decisions that Were Adverse—Abscess on Foot Gave Trouble—Says Frank Garnett Was Big Help to Him.

Charlie Gorman was met at Sussex this morning by a representative of the Times. It was hard to realize that this good-natured looking athlete was recognized with world's honors. He was inclined to be reticent about his achievements and sought to pass off what he had done as something of no great import. Questioned about the various events in which he participated he at last told the story in part as follows.

When he arrived in Montreal, he said, he found one of the largest and conceded to be the greatest group of amateur skaters every brought together in a meet, and for a time felt that he would have a hard time making any kind of a showing. When he went on the rink he found great difficulty skating the course, and he was forced to coasting and depending on a spurt up the sides to make up for this lack of speed.

In all these events, it has not only been "Gorman," but the very best of St. John, and we look upon your victories as not only personal victories for yourself but of very great credit to St. John. It is our hope that you may be spared to continue the good record you have already made, and that as you are enabled to get further training you may, as time goes on, bring more glory to yourself and incidentally to St. John in the future than you have done in the past.

In order to express to you our sincere appreciation of the results you have accomplished, it gives me very great pleasure on behalf of the city and its citizens to present you herewith with a small token of our appreciation of what you have done for the city as well as for yourself, and to state that you will be a great asset to the city in the best ways carry with you the very best wishes for your future success from every member of this council, and I am sure from every citizen of St. John.

Yours faithfully, E. A. SCHOFIELD, Mayor.

St. John, Feb. 16, 1925. He then presented to Gorman a handsome pair of gold cuff links, and the mayor, who was accompanied by the men who managed to follow Gorman in, the mayor then said that previous to the decision of the council to make official recognition of Gorman's success, he had prepared a small gift himself for the skater and he handed him a pretty tin, consisting of a tiny gold skate.

As Hiram Sees It

"Look-a-her!" said Mr. Hiram Hornbeak of the Times reporter. "The gittin' to be too much fuss and feathers 'p there at Ottawa. I 'ed they wasted enough 'ood money on 'em openin' of parliament to feed a regiment of unemployed for six months."

"Ah, but my dear 'ir," said the reporter, "we must be 'impressive. We are a great people. Our dignity must be upheld. We must show our superiority to the Yankees, who are goin' to make the 'ignification of our president a very tame affair. I would have been very glad if I could have been at the great occasion and to have people look at me who never looked at me before. Hiram, the ship of state would sink if we did not have it properly drilled at intervals for the entertainment of the rabble."

"If you're callin' me a rabble," said Hiram with some heat, "I want you to understand that when my government comes in you won't see none of this here 'summary 'n' 'spadoodle. I list want to see right now that I'm agin' it. If there's anythin' to be done, let's do it. I don't know what to do with 'll show the government where some of it kin be spent where 'll do some good—'er, 'sir."

There must, he said, be co-ordination not only between the various services, but between the several parts of the empire. He said that the conference of empire premiers in London next June would be the most momentous event in the history of the empire. General consent was now given to the principle that the mother country and the dominions must make common cause to defend the liberties of the world and the interests of the empire.

THE CANADIAN CLUB.

The Canadian Club and the Women's Canadian Club of St. John last evening heard messages from the founder of the first Canadian Club. There is none so well qualified as Lieut. Col. Charles H. McCullough to interpret the spirit of the Canadian Club movement, and his interpretation is a challenge to what is finest in the patriotic fibre of every man and woman in Canada.

There is here no room for racial jealousies, nor should there be any misunderstandings based on ignorance. Two great races are represented in this country, and it is the duty of each to try to understand and appreciate the other, and to pay tribute to its contribution to the national life.

It will be regarded as a tribute to the Canadian Club that it has incurred the displeasure of Mr. Lindsay Crawford, who in the last issue of his pamphlet, "The Statesman," wants to know if "the Canadian Club organization is to be regarded as wholly given up to imperialistic propaganda."

One of the crimes of the Toronto Canadian Club was, in the Statesman's opinion, that it listened to Dr. Paul Shoney of Chicago University, who, among other things, said:

"The last hope of sanity and civilization is at least the minimum of friendship between the United States and the British Empire. We in America are united to Britain by community of law, language, literature, ambitions and high ideals."

The vocational evening classes in this city have been closed. Whether they will be opened again depends upon the city council. The vocational board says it has no choice, and that there are not funds enough to carry on to the end of the term.

Of course this is not the end. Public opinion will not permit the city to be thus advertised as an unprogressive community. The students in the evening classes have been asked to express their views and are doing it. The replies to the questionnaire sent to them are unanimous in saying that benefit has been and is being derived and the classes should be continued.

Readers of the Times today will perhaps be more interested in the advertising columns than in the other news of the day. Tomorrow is Dollar Day, which has become an institution. The merchants make most attractive offerings, and purchasers will find in the pages of this issue a great many valuable hints.

"BUT WE ARE"

(A mother on her babe.) Or lover on his sweetheart newly won. May turn more often a discerning eye.) The name of our good neighbor, Canada, Came into our discussion, and I heard A woman say, "I find Canadians 'Too egotistical! They think themselves The best, and bravest, and most eminent In all achievement, most intelligent, And altogether greatest of the race In all the world!'" Indulgently I smiled—"Can we condemn them? Do not think we ourselves, 'Of ourselves!'" In quick surprise, Her look rebuked me. "But we are!" she said.

IN LIGHTER VEIN.

"Charles," said a sharp voiced woman to her husband in the smoking compartment, do you know that you and I once had a romance in a train? "Never heard of it," replied Charles in a subdued tone. "I thought you hadn't, but don't you remember it was a pair of slippers I presented to you regularly each Christmas we were married that led to our union? You remember how nicely they fitted, don't you? Well, Charles, one day when we were going to a picnic you had your feet upon a seat, and when you weren't looking I took your measure. But for that pair of slippers I don't believe we'd ever been married."

A young unmarried man, sitting near school authorities to buy a piece of property they did not want or pay an increased salary to a particular janitor or teacher who happened to have friends in the city government. The upshot was that when the new school code went into effect in Pennsylvania the power to raise the money for school purposes was taken from the city authorities and placed in the board of education, where it remains. The school board levies and collects the tax, which under present state law must not be less than six mills and not more than eight mills, quite without reference to the rest of the city government, and spends the proceeds for the schools."

"Why, I thought I told you—" "Yes, I told him," she replied, "but he says it's a question of life and death." So he went down stairs and found an insurance agent.

The minister was expostulating with the landlord, who had raised the poor parishioners' rent about 313 per cent. "If I want to hear you preach," said the landlord, angrily, "I'll come to church, where you should do your preaching!" "If you were where you should be," was the reply, "you would have that opportunity next Sunday. An ad going to preach at Sing Sing."

Divide the Pot.

A wager added zest at a charity drive luncheon to speculation as to what figure would be reached by the day's subscriptions. A group of committee chairmen seated at one of the tables on the platform, each had jotted down on a piece of paper his peculiar estimate. Also each had contributed 25 cents for the pot to go to the man making the nearest guess. Among the table, gathering up the emptied dishes, came a waiter. A black hand reached past and fingers schooled in tip-taking cleared the saucer of the assembled company. "Thank you, thank you," said the owner of the pocket into whose ample folds the quarter of the pot had fallen. The waiter, a negro waiter and the winner divided the pot between them.

A GOOD YEAR AT ROCKWOOD IS REPORTED

May be Limited Privileges for Automobiles

Plan for Widening Some of the Roads in Park—Financial and Other Matters at the Annual Meeting.

The annual meeting of the Horticultural Association was held this afternoon. The report of the managing committee was as follows:—

During the last twelve months the new pavilion has been found to be very successful in both summer and winter seasons, in summer in connection with boating, picnicking and other parties, and in winter by its use by skaters, occasional dancing parties and by tobogganers. The new toboggan slide erected near Lily Lake by Joseph Icho has been much patronized. By his installation, also, of an electric motor and powerful water pump he has furnished opportunities for skating far in excess of what would have ordinarily been enjoyed by motor cars. A bone crusher has been purchased which will crush the large bone lines as made usually. A number of young ladies living near the public gardens were very active, under the name of Rockwood Comfort Association, during the war in providing comforts for the men serving their country overseas. Seven of the men living in Wright street and its immediate vicinity gave their lives in the war and to perpetuate their memory the young ladies of the club ask permission to erect in the Public Gardens a monument, a design for which they submit. It is suggested that if permission be given that it be subject to the approval of a committee appointed by the association as to design, inscription and location.

The ice cutting privilege, which has been in existence for some years at $750 a year, having expired, a renewal was given for the present season only at $1,000. An attempt has been received from the ice company for the renewal of the ice cutting privilege and for a lease of a piece of land adjoining their present ice house for an extension thereof. It is recommended that it be referred to a committee to make a new lease at such $1,000 for a period not exceeding five years, subject to conditions somewhat similar to the lease lately in force and with power to give a lease of such additional land on such terms as may be mutually satisfactory.

A large number of angling trout were received from the Department of Marine and Fisheries and were placed in the waters of the association. The accounts of the honorary treasurer, which will be submitted, will be found most satisfactory. During the year 1919 it became necessary to ask the Bank of Nova Scotia for a considerable increase in the overdraft, which was kindly permitted on the understanding that the excess should be paid back during the then next and now past year. The overdraft was accordingly increased in 1919 by $1,000, happily reduced this year by $1,050.02, thus nearly accomplishing the undertaking entered into.

Respectfully submitted, J. R. ARMSTRONG, H. N. STEVENSON, A. B. D. GANDY, Managing Committee. St. John, N. B., 16th Feb., 1921. St. John Horticultural Association.

WITHHOLDS REPORT ON THE CORK FIRE

Lloyd George Says Evidence of Violence Apparent But Impossible to Identify Individuals—Soldiers Punished.

(Canadian Press Despatch) London, Feb. 15—Premier Lloyd George announced in the house of commons tonight that the government had decided it would not publish the report of Major-General Strickland on the investigation into the Cork conflagration of last November.

This decision, the premier added, had been taken in the interests of the re-establishment of law and order in Ireland.

Lloyd George explained that there was enough in the report to satisfy the government that there had been acts of violence of discipline but, despite every effort, it was impossible to identify the individuals responsible for the destruction.

The prime minister said the report was not ready for a report by General Strickland at all, but simply dealt with the occurrences for the purpose of forming the basis of the government's policy.

The statement brought cries from the Labor benches that the civilian evidence on the burning of Cork had not been called, but Lloyd George declared it was not true, and added:

Says Cork Civilians Fled. "Furthermore, certain civilians of Cork, from whom the government is anxious to have evidence, have fled to the United States."

"The Sinn Feiners would not surrender their arms," he declared, "and from that it was clear that they had not abandoned the idea of securing the independence of Ireland by force of arms. Until they do abandon that idea there will be no peace in Ireland."

The Mallow Shooting. Alluding to the Mallow shooting, he said the railwaymen thus far had failed to come forward with testimony as to who was guilty, and he added, "we are not going to submit to threats of a strike." The government was willing to guarantee an inquiry if the railwaymen were ready to co-operate.

REV. T. MARSHALL MUST TAKE REST

Rev. Thomas Marshall, pastor of the Fairville Methodist church, and one of the pioneer Methodist ministers of the city, has been ordered by the doctor to rest in his work for at least two months.

He will leave on Thursday for Fredericton where he is expected to take a complete rest in the hope that at the end of the period set by his doctor he may be able to resume his ministerial duties.

Rev. Henry Poma, a retired minister of the city, who for years was pastor of the Carmarthen street Methodist church, will take over the Marshall's duties in the interim. His many friends in the city will wish Rev. Mr. Marshall a speedy recovery.

DIGGERS INTO MAN'S HISTORY.

(New York Evening Post.)
Excavators for the University of Pennsylvania announce preparations to begin work at Beth-Shan, a city of Palestine. Other signs of a vigorous after-war revival in archaeology have been appearing. The American School at Jerusalem was recently reopened. Not many months ago the University of Chicago announced an expedition to make a prolonged tour through Egypt and Asia Minor to explore the possibilities for later research. We may soon witness such widespread activity as in the years just previous to the war, when Americans and the leading European nations had made a careful division of the field to avoid friction—the Americans at Sardis, Thebes, and Corinth; the Germans at Assur, Didyma, and Jericho, the British at Memphis and in northern Greece, the French at Delos, the Italians in Crete, the Austrians at Palaeopolis. Even the war by no means wholly halted archaeology, the military operations themselves yielding occasional fruit. Thus a Turkish shell in the fighting near Jericho uncovered a mosaic of perhaps five centuries B. C. which strengthened the belief that treasure lies under those sands. The Italian army of occupation in Istra was followed by archaeologists, who found reliefs and mosaics showing that region to be a very old Roman settlement. The troops who dug trenches around Salonica discovered statuettes, vases, and coins, and French camp-followers in Macedonia stumbled upon vestiges of Alexander's time. Austrians training near Cairo had to be admonished to surrender their finds. The British air forces in fighting Turks ascertained that subterranean ruins can sometimes be discerned from the air, just as submarines are marked beneath the surface of the sea. How luck may unexpectedly reward the persistent digger is illustrated in an article by Herbert E. Winlock, assistant curator of the Metropolitan Museum, in the February Scribner's. Searching at Thebes, where the Frenchman Darcassy had explored a quarter century before, the Americans by chance lighted upon an inviolate tomb furnished with something richer than jewels or gold—with reproductions in carved human figures, animals, boats, and buildings of daily Egyptian life twenty centuries before Cleopatra. These models show a nobleman counting his cattle, taking a sail on his yacht, watching his servants harpoon and set fish; they show the women of his household spinning and the men butchering, storing grain, cooking, and carpentering. Such a glimpse makes the past strangely near, as do the glimpses into history afforded by the discovery of the palace of Obellias Firmus in Pompeii in 1912, of the fortifications Vercingetorix raised against Caesar at Alesia, of the homes of Minoans and Mycenaeans, and of the domicile of the high priest of the sun, Pe-wah, at Tel-el-Amarna. Now the archaeologists turn up a new fragment of Menander—thirty lines were recently found; now fresh sayings of Christ set down on papyrus; now a bit of evidence relating to Frisian pirates, and now a proof that mankind knew the secret of interlocking brick construction in Chocoma's day. Archaeology is bound literally to leave no stone unturned.

OUR PENITENTIARIES.
(Montreal Herald.)
In the past the prevailing idea has been that penitentiaries were a place of punishment only; that it was of small moment whether men were kept in idleness, made break stone, or given clean interesting, useful work to do so long as society was protected from them. During the last twenty years just passed a tremendous change has swept over most civilized countries in regard to prison management, and while Canada has been well ahead of others in most matters, the two great essentials work and segregation, have been denied. Penitentiaries are now fast being re-warded as industries—factories to man-

FAITH HEALER'S "CURES" ARE NOT ALL PERMANENT
The startling alleged cures performed at the evangelistic meetings conducted in Montreal by Anna Semple MacPherson, "healer", in the latter part of November were but temporary in their effect, according to information received in recent investigations. Five persons who had shown marked improvement, an improvement which had made a great impression upon the hundreds who had eagerly waited to see their prayers answered, were recently visited and in only two instances was the physical benefit reported to be lasting. Particularly all the patients, however, declare that their confidence in Mrs. MacPherson remains of faith which has prevented them from unshaken and that it is their own lack, being permanently cured.

McGUGAN ON HANNA ORDER

Stakes of Danger of General Rule Allowing Political Activity and Declares Hanna Within His Rights.

(Montreal Gazette)
H. McGugan, who represented the Board of Management of the Canadian National Railways upon the Board of Cancellation which dealt with the new Hanna order, forbidding employees of the railways from entering political field, was seen at the Windsor Hotel yesterday by a representative of the Gazette.

Mr. McGugan, with the other members of the Board signed a report recommending reinstatement of three men directly affected by the order, his position being set forth particularly in a final paragraph which reads: "In regard to the fourth question, namely, the request of the other members of the Board for the withdrawal of the order, holds somewhat different views from the other members of the Board who make a separate report on this subject."

Mr. McGugan and Campbell then their names to a further or supplementary report, which went much further than the first and which recommended a proposal made by the other members of the Board in the nature of a compromise. This has been already in public.

The minority report, signed and submitted to the Minister of Labor by Mr. McGugan, is here given in full. It deals with a question of far-reaching importance, and Mr. McGugan's views as a railwayman of long experience, in regard to it, will be regarded as of value.

Honorable G. D. Robertson, Minister of Labour—

"While earnestly desiring agreement with my colleagues and a unanimous report, it seems to me advisable that I am decidedly of the opinion that it would be most unwise to discuss question No. 4 as proposed by employees on January 20th last, as was in the appendix to the board's report, which is so ingeniously vague as to be susceptible of as many different interpretations as interested political fronts have capacity of devise, and adopted as a rule in impairment of discipline, and become a source of frequent and endless disputes. In addition, it would be most unfair to the great majority of honest and efficient officials, other employees having no desire Parliamentary honours or other Government positions, who continuously perform their daily duties.

Representatives of the employees contented that if this policy were enforced it would restrict them of their freedom and deprive them of their right of representation in the Dominion and Provincial Parliaments, which they hold to be interests and who, if elected to Parliament might advocate policies and support measures in direct opposition to the interests and views held by the great majority who devote their entire time and energies to the service, and interests of the railway alone, would be manifestly unfair.

Political Control.
On the important question of political control, influence or interference in the operations or management of the Canadian National Railways, leading representatives of the employees emphatically proclaimed their earnest and hearty approval, and pledged President Hanna their support against any efforts in that direction, admittedly agreeing with the decided opinion of a vast majority of the thinking people of the Dominion, that political domination or interference in the management or operations would result in laxity of discipline and general demoralization of the service to an extent which would eventually reduce earnings and consequentially increase the already heavy tax burdens of the Canadian people, who own these railways.

Unfortunately, despite this seeming unity of opinion on the main proposition, the President Hanna's declaration of policy, as outlined in the following telegrams: "Moncton, N. B., Sept. 28, 1920. "D. Truro, N. S., Sept. 28th, 1920. "Your message yesterday. Under no circumstances can an employee continue as such with the Canadian National Railways and become a candidate for legislature, Dominion or Provincial. The moment he does so he automatically serves his connection with the railways. The reasons are too obvious for discussion.

the inalienable right of all citizens. This contention was clearly shown to be without foundation, as they were unable to sustain this by any rule or schedule, or to establish that their rights as citizens were in the slightest degree affected by President Hanna's declaration of policy. While some three or four individual cases were cited of railway employees being elected to Parliament, also filing other important Government positions, and still holding their seniority rights in and still holding their seniority rights in each railway service, it was shown in each case to be by special arrangements unsupported by any rule or schedule obligations on the part of the railway.

President Hanna's telegram of September 26th, appearing on page two, simply outlines what he understands to have been the policy of the Government, as several times declared and elaborated by Premier Borden in speeches before Parliament during the year 1918, when consideration was being given by that body to taking over and operating these lines.

On the other hand, leading representatives of the employees positively and emphatically stated that within the same period Premier Borden granted them an interview during which he gave them absolute assurance of an entirely different nature.

Careful consideration during and since the hearings of all evidence and other matter submitted to the board, coupled with many years' experience in the operation of railways and familiarity with operating rules, including also the schedules of employees' organizations in all branches of the service, leads me to the conclusion that President Hanna was clearly within his rights in his declaration of policy, and also that it would be a commendable act of justice to rescind the three men dismissed, as their offense was evidently due to the fact that this policy had not been brought to the attention of the employees in the usual manner, by general circular or bulletin notice posted on the bulletin boards, or in shops, stations and offices for such purposes.

If the railway management accepts the recommendation of the board regarding the reinstatement of these three men (Messrs. Palmer, Moore and Higgins), it should remove the real grievances leaving open only the question of interpretation of President Hanna's declaration of policy—which, I understand, Parliament alone has the power to decide.

Therefore, believing that satisfactory adjustment, insuring continuance of the cordial relations and co-operation which have always existed between the officers and employees of these railways must certainly be in the best interests of all concerned, I earnestly recommend that the matter be given the most serious consideration and, if deemed necessary, finally disposed of by special legislation.

F. H. McGUIGAN.

"I'm in a fix with my girl!" said young Debb, disconsolately.
"Why?" replied his sympathetic friend, "what's the matter, my boy? Have a row!"
"No, it isn't that. You see, I've been saying so many nice things to her that she's getting connected. I can't stop it and I can't keep it up!"
"Can't ch? Why not?"
"Well, you see, if I keep on she'll begin to think she's too good for me, and if I stop she'll think I don't care for her any more."

ENGLAND UNDER RECONSTRUCTION

(By A. W. P., special correspondent of The Toronto Globe)

London, Jan. 22.—After ten years' absence from my native country, England, I returned from Canada just two months back. During that period an opportunity has been afforded me of looking into the present conditions of the country, both from an economic and worldly standpoint and comparing them with those existing in 1910. Let me at once say that, bad as were trade and labor conditions in the latter year, they were almost a millennium when compared with the results of today. To put it plainly, England at the present moment is in a bad way, but to use Lord Rosebery's famous phrase, "She will wangle through somehow."

First of all, let me deal with the labor problem and try to compare it with the situation existing in Canada. In 1910 English labor was only a young man, but today he is grown into full manhood and is demanding an elder's portion. The worker, although still true to his trades unionism has in a large degree renounced his father (the trades union leader) and is prepared to act more on his own initiative than on the considered advice of his elected leader. In short, the worker's leader seems to have lost grip of a large body of the workers, with the result that labor generally is running amuck. If this is not quickly stopped trades unionism will either die an untimely death or the Reds will get the upper hand, with the result that we shall see here a repetition of the Winnipeg strike, which Mr. Robinson called "sheer revolution."

Where the Follower Leads. It is a non-contradictable fact that English labor leaders have not the command or respect of the men in the same degree as their Canadian counterparts. In Toronto, for instance, the trades unionists usually follow the advice of their elected leaders, with the result that capital and labor get along fairly well together and even if there is a strike little bad feeling is engendered. Canadian leaders seem to grip the situation and lead their forces steadily and gradually toward the ultimate end in view. Not so, however, with the present labor leader in England. He is only the servant of his trades union members, and they do not fail to let him know it. Today he does not read as did Burns, Thomas, Tillet, Wilson and Orbell in the old days. Such men were the brains of trades unionism and their decisions were usually always upheld by their followers. Today a leader's considered opinion, if he does not provide for serving the big apple, no matter how rotten it may be at the core is just cast aside by the trades unionist, who then acts on his own initiative. The result of all this is pandemonium. The leader, to keep his job, plays to the gallery, and becomes just the mouthpiece of the advanced section of labor; in fact, the advanced section of labor; in fact, the advanced section of labor.

Want and not the leader. Looking at the question all round the Canadian labor leader is a peer in organization and authority as compared with his English brother.

Unemployment Serious.

The unemployment question is one of great seriousness here, and will have to be dealt with by a strong yet guided hand. It cannot be played with, or bad constitutional results may ensue. To a great extent trades union selfishness is responsible for the present dearth of work. The unions, hoping to keep up the present high rate of wages, have refused resolutely to absorb any further membership into their ranks, with the result that manufacturers have been unable to obtain orders to keep the works going, as the prices they are compelled to quote are out of all proportion to the value of the article. On the other hand, some manufacturers have seemingly deliberately closed down their works with a view of forcing wages down to a workable living rate. There are plenty of non-union men in England who would willingly undertake at a reduced wage a trades unionist's job. But the danger—the trades unions are a strong body, and might, if the powers of their organizations are threatened, unite to down tools and thus irrevocably ruin the trade of the country. Students of English trades unionism are of opinion that a big, short and stiff struggle is about due between the unions and capital. When the fight is over wages will be reduced, and then and only then will old England begin once more to raise her trade head above that of all the other nations in the world.

Cast Remains.

Although the moral conditions of the country have deteriorated during the war period, the social conditions are little changed, despite the prophecy that after the armistice there would be only two classes instead of three. The three classes still survive in all their distinctive elements. Subsidiary still exists. The worker in the country still touches his hat to those above him in the social scale and says "Sir." The railway porter "Sirs" the butcher or grocer who tips him for conveying his baggage from a taxi to a train. The school ma'am in the country still curtsies to the squire and the clergyman. In short the so-called upper classes still hold their distinctive places; the middle class, and the workman is still the worker. The old saying that an Englishman dearly loves a lord is as well founded today as it was 40 years back.

The moral state of England is an entirely different matter from that of the social. As the effects of the war wear off perhaps the old moral status may be revived, but at present the subject is one severely worrying the law Judges and all thinking men who have some regard for the purity of the nation. Mothers seem to have lost control over their daughters, and fathers no longer exercise the vigilant supervision of their sons at the critical period of their upbringing. The Divorce Courts are working overtime, and the space given by the Press to the unsavory portions of a case, and which are eagerly read by youths and maidens of the country, should be a matter of serious investigation. The deductions arrived at from the reading of these cases are not beneficial to the minds of young people, who unfortunately think it good form, although probably unmarriageable, to follow the example of their elders. I am afraid that the old brag of "moral England" is today practically non-existent when applied to the younger generations. The older people try to put their foot down on the present vogue but unfortunately youth rules the world today. A few years, however, may—let us hope it will—restore to us the balance of purity.

On the Up-grade Physically. Apart, however, from the moral state, I am glad to observe that the physique of youth is greater than ever. The present young generation and the coming generation are undoubtedly a more healthy, well-built and maintained body of boys and girls than those of the 1910 and 1912 periods. These children were well looked after during the war and today one sees healthy, strong and upright youth, fond of the outdoor life, instead of the pale stay-at-home, cheap-novel-ette-reading youth of ten years back. The war has undoubtedly improved the manhood of the nation, which is a good augury for the future.

Estimate of Ontario's Dairy Products for 1920

Quantity	Price	Value
Cheese—(888 factories), 7 p. c. de-crease . 96,000,000 26 1/2 c.	$25,440,000
Butter—(195 cream-eries), 9 p. c. in-crease . 38,500,000 55c.	21,175,000
Condensed and powdered milk (several new plants) . . . . .	10,000,000
Casein . . . . .	80,000
Disposed of by—Factories, creameries, con-de-mersies and milk powder plants, in the form of ice cream, milk, buttermilk, cream, whey, soft curd, etc. . . . .	11,000,000
Farm dairy butter—Milk used on farm, town and city milk supply, ice cream, etc. (es-timated) . . . . .	33,000,000
	$100,845,000

The estimated value of milk and cream for city use and that consumed on the farm, the butter made on the farm, ice cream, etc. is quite conservative. Toronto alone consumes 5,000 cans daily, with an annual value of over five million dollars, and the population of Toronto is less than one-fifth of the whole province.

Death was the penalty for robbing the mails before 1793, when it was changed to flogging. The present punishment of imprisonment was substituted during the second quarter of the nineteenth century.

CHURCH CO-OPERATION.
The policy of co-operation between Presbyterian and Methodist churches has resulted, during the past eight years, in the elimination of overlapping in ninety-six of the ninety-nine mission fields, and in twenty-four of the thirty-four augmented charges in Southern Saskatchewan.

New Ontario also has several co-operating or union congregations that have ceased fifty men for other fields. Practically every congregation gave their Forward Movement money to the denomination serving them, and every congregation under Presbyterian care, where a canvass was conducted, exceeded their objective, in some cases two and three times over.

THE FIRST POSTAGE STAMP IN 1841

(New York Sun)
The oldest postage stamp is just 80 years old, a mere strippling in this age of longevity. The young office boy who daily licks stamps by the hundreds probably does not realize that when his grandfather, or at least his great-grandfather, was his age that gentlemen never had to lick a stamp.
This does not mean that before 1841 there was no such thing as a postal system. The sending of letters by post had been inaugurated some centuries before. But prior to 1841 the sender of a letter did not have to affix a stamp to it nor pay any money to have it forwarded.
It was the recipient's privilege to pay the cost of postage or refuse to take the letter, as he saw fit. The system in operation before the introduction of postage stamps was very much like the sending of parcels by express collector.
Naturally it was found to result in widespread cheating of the government. In fact, under the old system, the operation of a postal department by a Government was so profitable that even with a charge of as much as 25 cents for a domestic letter the Government was losing money.
A common method for cheating the Government was for the sender and the recipient of the letters to arrange beforehand a method by which the latter could know the contents of the message. It was the discovery of such a method without having to pay the cost of the trick that led Sir Rowland Hill, an Eng-
