CLARKE WAS FOUND GUILTY. Second Jury Agreed on Verdict in 20 Minutes. Prisoner's Counsel Obtained Leave to Move for a Reserved Case—Prisoner Unaffected by Verdict.

"On behalf of the jury I have to say that we find the accused guilty of the indictment of which he stands charged. The foregoing was the verdict reached by the jury after hearing and pronouncing by the foreman, Robert J. Cox, when asked if they had reached a verdict by the clerk of the court. The jury were only out about twenty minutes. J. B. M. Baxter in his masterly and eloquent address to the jury on behalf of the prisoner reviewed the evidence in an exhaustive manner and brought to light the weak points of the prosecution. Though the address was a very able one it failed to convince the jury that the crown had not proven their case. The attorney general's address, though briefer, was just as comprehensive in its review of the evidence, and he closed with an earnest and eloquent appeal for them to eliminate sympathy from their mind and render a verdict on the facts. His honor Judge Landry reviewed the evidence at length, and though his charge was fair and just it told strongly against the prisoner. Throughout the day and even when the verdict of "guilty" was announced Clarke never flinched and retained the same air of indifference that he maintained throughout the trial. On the opening of court in the afternoon Samuel H. Seeley was called on behalf of the crown, but said he had not seen the prisoner on the 4th of August last, and did not even know him. MR. BAXTER'S ADDRESS. J. B. M. Baxter rose to address the jury on behalf of the prisoner at the bar at twenty-five minutes to three o'clock and spoke for an hour and a half. In opening, Mr. Baxter said that the jury could have no hesitation in believing the prisoner guiltless of the crime of which he stood charged when he did not oppose the proposal of the attorney general to bring the last two named witnesses into court for the purpose of hearing their evidence. The whole of the day so far had been spent in waiting, and not in vain for the prisoner. He pointed out that had the prisoner been fearful of the case, had he been the guilty man, and been on the Millidgeville road that day, and had the speaker an intimation that the prisoner had been there that day, then he as counsel for the prisoner would have strongly objected to the attorney general bringing in any new witnesses after the case for the crown had been closed, but the prisoner, knowing that he was innocent, made no objection, and the result had been in his favor. In the conduct of the case Mr. Baxter said that it had been his duty as counsel for the prisoner to trace out just such allegations as the one which had just been presented, and they had been found to lead nowhere. Had the prisoner been guilty would he not have moved heaven and earth to prevent those men from giving their testimony? asked Mr. Baxter. But, on the contrary, he stood unshaken and he had been vindicated. Mr. Baxter urged that it was pretty strong evidence that the prisoner considered himself innocent, and yet he is the man who in his court room has been called a perjurer. He then referred to the attorney general's address to the jury at the trial, when, in speaking of the act which had been passed allowing a prisoner to testify in his own behalf, he said, "Every court room throughout the length and breadth of this land reeked with perjury." Mr. Baxter pointed out that others had opinions on the law which allowed prisoners to go on the stand, and quoted Alverstone, L. C. J., as expressing himself pleased that it had been enacted that an accused man is now entitled to give evidence in his own behalf, and it protects the innocent. Alverstone argued that if the story a man tells at the preliminary examination is untrue, the crown has ample opportunity to discover its falsity and a conviction will certainly follow. Mr. Baxter contended that the evidence of the prisoner should be weighed as any other evidence. As to the progress of the case at first the prisoner had been charged with rape with punishment of death or life imprisonment. If the evidence in strong enough to convict him, the present charge is strong enough to send him to the scaffold. Mr. Baxter urged that according to the evidence of Dr. Corbett it could not have been an attempt to commit rape, but at most only a violent assault. As to the perpetrator of the crime, the girls say the prisoner and no one else says so. They describe his personal appearance and also mention the hat which Mr. Skinner they said was with him that day. He did not mention the coat nor the shoes to Mr. Skinner, but when pressed by himself, the little girl said the shoes were covered with grey dust. If this had been vindicated, Mr. Baxter urged that it was a remarkable thing that had a solitary soul saw the prisoner on the road that day. In speaking of the short girl, Mr. Baxter said no one could fail to admire her precocious cleverness and hoped she was not actuated by any motive for resentment in giving her evidence. He referred also to the fact that Mr. Train thought it was another man from the description given by his daughter, and yet when the man came into court he was a widely different looking man from the prisoner. He also referred to other flaws in the testimony of the little girl, which, although they did not establish the guilt or innocence of the prisoner, were nevertheless tests of the accuracy of their observations and recollections. He pointed out that neither of the girls noticed the defect in the prisoner's hand, which was very peculiar, as it was the most striking thing about him. In the subsequent stages of identification the little girls were asked in the court room "Is that the man?" Then there was the procession through the jail. Later they saw him in the court room at the last trial boxed up in the centre of the room as an object for all to behold, and he thought it would be a queer thing if they did not know him. Mr. Baxter then read extracts from two cases where matters had been made as to identify, and the evidence was much stronger than in the present case. In regard to the time Mr. Baxter called attention to the evidence of Mr. Skinner, who said he arrived at the scene of the assault about three o'clock, when, according to the evidence produced by the defense, it was utterly impossible for him to have been there at that time. In closing Mr. Baxter asked the jury to settle the question as though they were settling something upon which their own future depended. He asked them if there was not a doubt which if they sent him to Dorchester would not sometimes haunt them and cause them to think they had sent the wrong man—a doubt which would surely come to them should the police arrest at ramp with a blue coat with a tear in it and a pair of canvas boots on. Mr. Baxter considered that under the evidence there was a reasonable doubt and expected that would bring in a unanimous verdict of acquittal. THE ATTORNEY GENERAL REPLIES. The attorney general followed for the jury and spoke for three-quarters of an hour. He defined his duty as a crown officer to contest in pleading to the jury all the evidence bearing upon the case, and should that evidence seem to fall it would be his duty to withdraw the charge, and he said he would gladly do so in the present case if the evidence warranted it. The attorney general pointed out that two facts were to be considered: "Was there a crime committed? Who committed it?" He told them that it was their duty as jurors to consider the evidence as to the identification of the man and of the alibi which the defense had attempted to prove. He said that in all his experience he had never known of a stronger or clearer case having been made against a prisoner than the present one. He pointed out that the little girls had not been wearing any shoes when the prisoner was wrong if he was not the guilty man, and he was with them long enough to indelibly fix his appearance upon their memory. As to the question of identity, he asked the jury to consider whether or not it was probable that two men in the city of St. John on that day would have been wearing the same colored clothing with the same colored shoes in the coats and the same colored hair and moustaches. The attorney general then dealt with the evidence of the defense in proof of an alibi and claimed that none of the witnesses spoke definitely of the time. Granted that he crossed the ferry at 12 o'clock, the prisoner had ample time to go home and get his dinner, go to the barber shop and get shaved and yet have three-quarters of an hour to walk to the blueberry plains and arrive there at a quarter to three o'clock, which would give him time to commit the crime. The attorney general referred to the fact that in all cases where prisoners were found guilty, it brought sorrow to some hearts, but urged them not to be influenced by any feelings of sympathy. He instanced a number of English cases where men of high repute had been found guilty of crimes which vanished them from society. He told them they were not responsible for the disgrace and unhappiness which must necessarily attend a conviction, and pointed out that all they had to do was to discharge their duty according to the best dictates of their consciences. JUDGE LANDRY'S CHARGE. Judge Landry then charged the jury. In his address His Honor complimented the jury and pointed out that which they had listened to the case which was an important one—important to the public—to the prisoner—to his family and to themselves.

His Honor instructed them as jurymen to discharge from their minds whatever they had learned outside the jury box. He told them they could use any personal knowledge they might possess but it must be personal. In case they were face to face with contradictory evidence then they must use their knowledge of the world and humanity in determining which to believe. He told them to take away any feeling of sympathy and not to be influenced by it. It was their duty to now recall what facts had been established. In this case the prisoner was charged with an attempt to commit rape. The evidence on behalf of the crown is positive if not convincing that an attempt was made and by the prisoner at the bar. Against that you have just as positive evidence by the prisoner that he is not the man. You must determine whether or not he is the man. His Honor spoke of the positive evidence of the Train girl which was corroborated by the little Short girl and pointed out that impressions were much more readily made on the youth than on the adult but said of course that the impression might be wrong. It was for them to judge. When brought face to face with contradictory evidence he told them they must judge of the motive. In the present case if guilty, the prisoner would have the strongest motive to clear himself, the young girls might be mistaken, but as to the motive his honor thought the little girls had none. As to prisoners giving evidence in their own behalf, his honor pointed out that they must not expect a prisoner to give any testimony detrimental to their own case. He knew of no case where a prisoner who had been found guilty ever gave any testimony that helped the case of the prosecution, but always gave evidence abundantly in his own favor. His honor instructed the jury that if they had a good reasonable doubt of the guilt of the prisoner, that they must give him the benefit of the doubt, but he pointed out that it must not be a fanciful doubt. In closing, Judge Landry told them to find the facts and not to mind the consequences. He urged them to the interests of justice to do the best they could to agree. The jury retired at twenty minutes to six, and sent back word at five minutes to six that they had reached a verdict. After waiting about twenty minutes for the attorney general, the verdict of guilty, as already announced, was rendered. Mr. Baxter asked that the jury be told and all uttered the fateful word, "Guilty." Mr. Baxter then asked his honor to give him an opportunity to move for a reserved case, which was granted. His honor then discharged the jury, but asked for their attendance this morning at 10 o'clock. The attorney general said he could not say whether or not he would press the charge of indecent assault against the prisoner. The prisoner was then remanded until morning and court was adjourned.

ROBERT REID THE NEW PRESIDENT

Interesting Address Last Evening by Rev. G. A. Kuhring

Field Secretary's Report Shows Work in Flourishing Condition—S. S. Convention Closes Today

The third session of the N. B. and P. E. L. Sunday School Association was opened at 9:30 a. m. yesterday in St. Andrew's church, with a praise service led by Messrs. Tullar and Meredith. The meeting then heard from the various county associations report of their standing for the year's work, which were submitted by the various secretaries. Miss Addie S. Calder, for Carleton county, reported 2 strong parishes organized and 33 schools, the latter number a decrease of 3, partly through amalgamation. The officers and teachers in the county number 388, scholars 2,877, total enrollment 4,115. The amount raised from all sources was $245.11, the county pledge having been paid, with a small balance in the treasury. Mrs. J. B. Steeves, for Albert county, spoke of the holding of four schools reporting this year, 33 in all. From the Sunday schools this year 110 had become church members, but department work was not receiving the attention it should. Over $68 had been raised in the county for the work of the association. J. N. Harvey, president for St. John county, spoke of the holding of four successful conventions in the parishes of St. Martin's, Simonds, Lancaster and St. John city. There are in the county 66 schools, with an increased membership of 11,000. An increase of 388 was accomplished in the Cradle Roll, and of 30 per cent. in members joining the church. Mr. Harvey closed with an appeal for aid to better organization among the schools in the outlying districts.

The report of J. B. Ganong, the field secretary of the association, and addresses by Rev. G. A. Kuhring and W. C. Pearce, constituted the programme at the evening session. The music conducted by Messrs. Tullar and Meredith was again a feature of the session. In his annual report, Rev. J. B. Ganong referred to the union of the P. E. Island and N. B. associations, which had been brought about since the last conference. The arrangement has worked very satisfactorily and the work during the past year has progressed in a very favorable manner. Conventions have been held in all the counties and districts of the province, and these have been marked by an increased attendance on the part of Sunday school workers. As a result of the interest aroused by the conventions six new schools have been organized and twenty-seven reorganized. The exodus of the population to the west has in some fields resulted in the closing of the Sunday schools, but the work throughout the province is in an encouraging condition. The adult Bible class has taken a more prominent place in the work. The average training convention this season was very successful, and the number of teachers increased in number of members. The secretary referred to the cigarette habit and other agencies which are ruining the boys and the lack of religious training in the home as evils which must be combated. Rev. G. A. Kuhring followed with an extremely interesting address on the adult Bible class, in which he said that he was speaking not as a Sunday school expert but as a fellow teacher giving testimony of the methods which he had found most successful. The purpose of the class must be to teach the mind and will of God as revealed in His word to man. The membership may be of either men or women singly or both together but the speaker had found that the best results were achieved in classes which were restricted to one sex. The attendance and the attention were both better than in the mixed classes. The simplest form of organization consisted of a secretary, a visiting committee and a look-out committee. Though club features may be added to the class when necessary, the speaker should be able to depend on the Scriptures for a foundation. The course of lesson should be such as to give a continued developed plan of study. The important features of the work should be the international lessons for the Sunday school but for his men's classes had adopted a special series of studies. The teacher must be a man of definite convictions and well equipped in the faith. The teacher must be able to speak with the authority which comes from knowledge. On him depends the success of the class. The value of the work is very great. Any results the speaker had attained had been due to prayer. Finally dependence must be placed in the Holy Spirit for results of the class. W. C. Pearce gave an address on the Organization of the Sunday School. To be successful it must be thoroughly organized. The important features of the school are the superintendent, the secretary, the treasurer, the music and the library, and above all the teachers. Attention must be given to the work in these different departments to make the school fulfill its purpose.

EXECUTIVE REPORT

T. S. Simms then presented the annual report of the executive committee of the association, of which body he is president. He referred to the success which had attended J. N. Harvey in the adult Bible class movement, which he thought would attract large numbers of men to the Sunday school. Messrs. Fotheringham, Rev. D. Hutchinson, Rev. Nell McLaughlin, Rev. D. Lang, Rev. W. W. McMaster, Rev. Gordon Dickie, Rev. S. Howard, Messrs. W. J. Park, A. L. Law, R. T. Hayes and R. M. Currie. Vice-presidents—Albert, John J. Steeves; Carleton, D. V. Boyer; Charlottetown, E. M. Ganong; Gloucester, Rev. D. McQuilly; Kent, Rev. D. Archibald; Kings, Gordon Mills; Kings and Queens (west), Rev. J. J. Pinkerton; Queens (east), Harry King; Restigouche, Rev. E. N. Nohlen; Northumberland, Mr. Kelly; Sunbury, S. D. Alexander; Victoria, Arthur Ridgewell; Westmorland, Rev. H. E. Thomas; St. John, A. A. Wilson; York, Rev. D. H. Simpson. Rev. H. E. Thomas, the retiring president then called to the platform his successor, Robert Reid. Both gentlemen presented a photograph of the delegates taken by Photographer Erb. The St. John county and the York county executive committee convened at the close of the general session, which was resumed at 2:30 in the afternoon.

AFTERNOON SESSION.

A large number were present at the afternoon session of the international Sunday school convention yesterday. Praise service was first held by Messrs. Tullar and Meredith, who have proved to be great workers in this field, and aroused great enthusiasm among those present. A conference on the home department, led by Rev. W. C. Pearce, proved most interesting to the teachers, and he answered the many questions asked in a most helpful way. During this conference the need of home departments was strongly brought out. The conference on the teacher training department, led by E. R. Macchum, was entered into very generally, and Mr. Pearce cited instances of the good work done by those teachers who have school appreciative references were made to the work of Robert Reid as business manager, and Rev. B. Glover as editor of the official organ, The Advocate. A suggestion was made that this magazine be issued quarterly instead of monthly. The idea of having a summer school similar to that held at Chataqua, was favored.

NEW OFFICERS

The officers elected for the ensuing year were as follows: President—Robert Reid. Vice president—Rev. Wellington Camp. Secretary-treasurer—Miss Addie S. Calder. Appreciative references were made to the work of Robert Reid as business manager, and Rev. B. Glover as editor of the official organ, The Advocate. A suggestion was made that this magazine be issued quarterly instead of monthly. The idea of having a summer school similar to that held at Chataqua, was favored.

Superintendent Teachers Training Department—E. R. Macchum, Home Department superintendent—Mrs. Jeannette Bullock.

J. B. R. A.—Ally; Murray. Additional members of the central executive, meeting in St. John—T. S. Simms, Andrew Malcolm, J. Willard Smith, Rev. A. H. Foster, Rev. Dr. Breen thoroughly trained. The different text books, to be employed in the and the graduates and diplomas granted to students who have passed through the course. The conference on the adult Bible class, led by J. H. McDonald, followed. Mr. Pearce explained that these adult Bible classes were often divided—men and women. This proved to be a good decision, as many men who would not attend the mixed classes were led to join the men's class. The class itself helped the individual members securing positions for the unemployed securing boarding houses for strangers who joined it, and in every way proving very beneficial to the men attending. In one church where both the separate classes and a mixed class were held, the mixed class after some months disbanded, as the members wished to join the separate classes. A large number present, and Mr. Pearce assured them that they would prove most successful if properly looked after. The graduate teachers then assembled in one of the rooms at the rear of the church to discuss some important questions.

SURPRISE A PURE SOAP

It is easy to keep a hard-work floor as clean and shiny as a mirror by using "SURPRISE" Soap. You can make a suds in a twinkling with half a bucket of hot water and a little "SURPRISE" Soap. Then just go over the floor with a scrubbing-brush, lightly. Don't dig, or make your back and arms ache by rubbing. "SURPRISE" Soap will do the work quicker and easier and cheaper than you can. It gets between the dirt and the wood fibres and makes them separate. All you have to do is wash up the dirt with water. "SURPRISE" Soap is just as good for laundry as for house cleaning. It's a pure, hard soap of the highest grade, and costs no more than common kinds.

CONTINUOUS PERFORMERS

BOWSER'S FALL PAINTING.

HE TAKES A DAY OFF WITH THE PAINT BRUSH.

Mr. Bowser hadn't dropped the slightest hint of his intentions, but after breakfast the other morning, instead of going in a rush to get away to the office, he leaned back in his chair and said:

"An business is not rushing just now, and as the front fence wants painting pretty badly, I guess I will take a day off."

"Why, you painted the fence only last Spring," replied Mrs. Bowser, as visions of what happened on that occasion rose up before her and she brought an anxious look to her face.

"Yes, I did, but the past Summer has been a hard one on paint. One judge of a man's character by the looks of his front fence. Ours has got to be freshened up a bit for the Winter and now is just the time to do it."

"Couldn't I hire a painter for half a day and pay him out of my money? That would save all the slopping around."

"Half a day! Why, how long do you suppose you would take the average painter to go over that fence with a coat? He would be from four days to a week, and he would steal half the paint at that. I have the time and the inclination, and I shall do the work. There will be no slopping around, as you call it. Not one drop of paint will be wasted."

Mrs. Bowser saw that it was no use to argue the point. She knew how things would turn out, and she knew that Mr. Bowser would paint that fence even if an earthquake came along and heaved it out of the ground while he was at work. She therefore raised no further objections and he got into an old suit and began looking up the necessary things. He upset the cook, the kitchen, the shed, the basement and the whole house for an hour before he was ready to go to work, and then in mixing his paint he got hold of a can of gasoline instead of linseed oil and made free use of it.

"Is that to keep the moths off the fence?" asked Mrs. Bowser when she discovered what he had done.

"Never mind about the moths," he replied as he went on whisking and stirring. "I was painting fences when you were yet playing with rag dolls, and I never made a mistake yet."

After splattering up the kitchen floor until it looked as if it had had a case of measles, he went gayly to his work on the fence. The public let him alone until he had coated six feet of the outside of it. Then a man came along and asked where Jones lived. Jones had got some goods on the installment plan and could not be found at the address given. Nine-nine men in a row, and he was leaning on a fence, if it is handy by, when asking where Jones lives.

She jumped back and saw the state of her dress, and then she made a little speech. It was directed at Mr. Bowser. She referred to his slowness to his fatness to his bald head to his being so far below the average when they found her. Death must head downwards, and some get tangled in a steam thrashing machine.

Big, yellow pumpkins are selling at the grocery for five cents apiece, and ye editor is filling up on them and getting ready for the fall campaign. He is no cow, but he never misses anything to fill up on.

Mrs. Rufus Snyder, wife of the boot and shoe man, went to her back door the other day to find a thumping big tramp stealing plums from the trees. She hit him one with her fist and broke two of his ribs, and he is in jail under the doctor's care. When a Homestown woman gives you her hand she gives it hard.

It has come to be so well understood in social circles in this village that ye editor never plays poker that he is seldom or never asked to take a hand in a game. We once lost fifty cents on a hand and took a solemn vow never to play again.

Farmer Johnson brought us in two magnificent squashes the other day and renewed his cash subscription to the Banner. Later on we are promised a bushel of turnips. With a little help from Providence we hope to get through the Winter in good shape.

During the month of August, as near as we can figure it, the people of Homestown gathered and made in to piles over forty bushels of huckleberries. There were smashes of contentment and huckleberry pie from morning to night, and not one single lawsuit was instituted.

We do not wish to appear egotistical in the eyes of our brother editors, but at the same time we feel like announcing that the Banner of Homestown has been supplied with two clean towels per week. These things must come with metropolitan journalism.

Mrs. David Carey will accept the sympathies of the Banner in this hour of sorrow. Word reached her the other day that her sister Maria, living in Indiana, got hung head downward on a fence and was dead ed Mr. Bowser as he straightened up stilly.

"If you'd put in some lard on top of that up against you'd have made a great hit!" chuckled the painter.

"Doing your own work in order to save a dollar or two, eh? Not willing to give a poor man a chance to earn his bread and butter? Yah on such men as you!"

Mr. Bowser laid down his brush and called the painter names. He went clear back to the landing of the Piquette to prove that the average house painter was without ambition or honor or industry. The painter put down his ladder and bucket and started to turn in at the gate.

"I've brought my trunk," one of them explained.

"What have you brought it here for?"

"Why I engaged room and board here last evening."

"You did nothing of the kind. Do I look like a man that keeps boarders?"

The two men wanted to argue the matter, and as they argued they leaned on the fence. A man leaning on a freshly-painted fence can always argue better than a man standing on his head in the road. They rubbed and argued and rubbed. They were sure it was the house, and just as sure that Mr. Bowser was the man who had taken a week's room rent in advance. He had his temper for three minutes, and then the discovery that his work had been ruined again precipitated trouble. He called them liars and they rejoined in kind, and Mrs. Bowser reached a front window just as three men and a trunk and a wheelbarrow got all mixed up in the front yard. The family named Sherman, and she wanted to ask Mr. Bowser if he was the man. If so, she wanted to tell her daughter that cooks had become mistresses without fear of discharge. In fact, she did ask him, and he turned to see that she was rubbing the paint off his face.

"Haven't you got eyes, woman! Haven't you got a nose?" he yelled at her.

She jumped back and saw the state of her dress, and then she made a little speech. It was directed at Mr. Bowser. She referred to his slowness to his fatness to his bald head to his being so far below the average when they found her. Death must head downwards, and some get tangled in a steam thrashing machine.

We regret to announce that Miss Flora Henderson, daughter of the popular blacksmith, kicked at a yellow dog on the street the other day and hit a telegraph pole instead and broke it out of her toes. The pole was knocked six inches out of plumb by the kick.

A CASE OF TOOTHACHE.

"I was in the army during the civil war. When first to last," said the old veteran, "and I had a hole a hundred cases of the toothache. I saw a surgeon have the least bit of mercy on a man. It was got out of a peg from his ear, as if pulling a peg from his ear. Something occurred one night to make me think it was just as bad on the Confederate side. I have seen men almost go crazy with pain rather than have a tooth out, and I remember of had despatches that came about from nothing but toothache."

"That's accordin' to what?"

"'Accordin' to what? I don't want it pulled with no pinners. If your doctor can do the trick and not put my blamed head off, I'll come in and surrender. If he can't, then I'll see you blanked first."

"I had to inform him that the pinners' head, with two men holding the patient's head, and two more sitting on his legs, was the only way we had, and he turned and growled:

"Shoo! I thought you dretted Yanks had the bulse on us. Bein' you ain't, I'll go back agin', and you just be keertful and don't let that musket o' yours go off while I'm in sight."

THE JERICHO P. O.

PAP PERKINS, POSTMASTER, TELLS ABOUT A CIRCUS.

When the town of Jericho had got to be a place of fifteen hundred inhabitants a circus was advertised to exhibit on a certain date. Among those who were interested and let it be known that they meant to attend, was Deacon Spooner. There were those who began to criticize him at once, and there was so much talk within the next few days that the minister of his church preached a sermon intended to hit the deacon and some others plumb-center. He described the wickedness of the circus as something positively awful, and he cited numerous instances where such exhibitions had been followed by cholera, epidemics and other calamities.

Some of his congregation might feel a curiosity to visit the megalotri part of the circus. Let them beware. There was wickedness even among the men. They were told around the country simply to lure good men and women from the paths of rectitude. Every man who stood with his hands in his pockets and gazed at the circus must pass, come away feeling less kindly toward the fellow-men. Circus men were limbs of Satan, and it was impossible that the elephant, the rhinoceros and the Bengal tiger had not arrived a state of moral depravity from daily association. He wound up by asking every member of his congregation to turn his back on temptation and how in the garden while the exhibition was taking place. Should any member so far forget himself as to be seen inside the tent he would be dealt with according to the rules made and provided by the church.

Those who heard the sermon didn't believe that Deacon Spooner would dare run the risk of attending. He didn't say much one way to the other, but when the day arrived he was the first one to buy a ticket and go in. After the show was over he boldly announced that it was the best thing of the kind he had ever attended. He even predicted that there were more circuses like that would give Jericho the long-hoped-for boom in real estate. Nothing was done for a week or so, and then he got notice that charges had been made against him and that he was to be put on trial. It wasn't the work of his minister, but of the widow Flint.

The charges were that the Deacon had attended the perfidious and wicked performance calculated to bring the cause of religion into disrepute, and that his action in so doing had tempted others. He was on hand at the time set and pleaded not guilty. The charges were proven true, and in his defence the Deacon arose and told the people what a circus was. In entering he had first stopped three five minutes and had a wicked fight with her garden on circus day and rooted up her early potatoes, and she wanted to get even.

"While a circus isn't exactly a camp meeting, it cannot be called wicked. That is, if it is wicked, one may attend and not bring any of the wickedness away with him. About the only difference between attending the performance and looking at the street parade and hanging about the tents is that it costs fifty cents to get inside."

It was hinted to the widow Flint that she had better withdraw her charges and mend her fences, and that was her way out of it. No anxiety followed the coming of the circus, and when a second arrived a year later, the bell for evening prayer meeting wasn't over rung. If it had been nobody would have attended.

THE ANARCHIST.

BY M. QUAD.

John Cunningham had been governor of Dartmoor Prison for thirteen years, and during that long interval not a convict had succeeded in making his escape. The Governor fastened himself on this fact. He fondly imagined that it all resulted from his governorship, if the truth must be told, all the credit rested with the warden. So far as the Governor was concerned, the big prison might have sprung itself out of the ground. He was always talking discipline and changing the rules, but every official under him knew that he was nothing but a busy old man. He lived four miles from the prison, and he less he visited the better things were run.

Governor Cunningham finally decided to write a book on criminology. That was a perfectly natural thing, since he had no many specimens at hand. He meant that book to be a standard and to contain matter to astonish the world. He was entirely ignorant of his subject, but he would work like a man who means business. To get his data he had to have prisoners brought before him to be questioned and to have their hands examined. The Governor had boasted more than once that he could tell a predisposed criminal ten rods away. As he was the boss, he, of course, had his way about things.

One day about things. The Governor was James Broughton, who had received a sentence of five years for embezzlement. The family was respectable one and this was the first penal offense of a hundred years. Broughton himself had anything but criminal tendencies. He was well educated, well appearing and was marked for his intelligence. The Governor found in Broughton the same for which he sought. He put him down as a man who was born with the instincts of a thief. He did not credit him with ordinary intelligence. He found him a victim of homicidal mania. He warned the keepers that he was by far the most dangerous man in the prison and that his contact for two had more wicked thoughts, and he went on going to the circus and falling down the collar stairs and skimming his back, there was ten times as much profanity in the latter. He was trying to be a good man and a good life. He never watered his cider nor cramped on a basket of 'aters, and if he attended twenty more circuses he expected to find himself taken care of at the last day.

There was a disposition to teach the Deacon lesson, and although he had made a good defence they would have brought him in guilty had he not sprung a little surprise on them. He had expected to be criticized, and he had prepared for it. Things began to look cross-eyed when the Deacon brought forward his witnesses. He proved that Uncle Jim Gray, a pillar of the church, had walked seven times around the circus tent with his mouth open, and had offered a circus man a dozen eggs to let him crawl under the canvas.

He proved that old Mrs. Abigail Johnson, who had wept when she heard that a circus was coming to Jericho, was up at five o'clock in the morning for fear the rhinoceros would waddle by her gate without her seeing him.

He proved that the Rev. John Drake, a minister from Dobb's Ferry, sat next to him in the circus and that he had seen a daisy.

He proved that the widow Flint, who had made the charges against him, was peeking out of her window all the time the parade was passing, and that a grin was seen on her face when the band played "Maggie Murphy."

He proved that the minister who was presiding at his trial had walked across his garden and a five-acre lot to see the animal cages, and that Solomon Smith, the oldest church member in town, and the one who contributed most to repairing the meeting house the year before, had talked with one of the circus men for an hour.

He showed up no less than six farmers, all church members, who had sold corn, hay and oats to the circus, and the butcher couldn't deny that he had sold meat for the animals.

As a matter of fact, the Deacon had the game in his own hands. When he had made his points he was asked to retire and the room was cleared of all outsiders. Then there was silence that could have been bit with a crowbar. The minister, broken by the minister, who asked:

"Brethren, have you thought the matter over?"

"We have."

"While a circus isn't exactly a camp meeting, it cannot be called wicked. That is, if it is wicked, one may attend and not bring any of the wickedness away with him. About the only difference between attending the performance and looking at the street parade and hanging about the tents is that it costs fifty cents to get inside."

HONEST ABE, U.S.M.

A GREAT AND SUDDEN DE-MAN FOR HIS POETRY.

When I took to my route again the other day after a three week's lay-off I found that rumps, measles and chicken-pox had been coming over the country. Hardly a household has escaped scot free. As soon as I heard the news I realized what Allison's gate to find his waiting for me, and I had only passed the time of day when he said:

"Abe, you've got to get down and out of the country. She feels the chicken-pox and wants to see you. She don't get strong at all, and she spends half her time crying."

"What can I do for her?" I asked.

She's great on sentiment. If you could write her a piece of poetry it would do her more good than all the chicken-broth in the country. She feels it herself—but she don't want to be cured. If you'll do it, Abe—

I went in and found Milly propped up in bed and looking pale and wan. When I told her that I had come to poetize her she smiled to her face and she pressed my hand. Her mother got me a sheet of paper and I retired to the kitchen table and wrote:

"The pale-faced Milly lies in bed,
In Autumn days my lie;
No ringing laughter from her lips—
She nothing does but sigh.

"They make her chicken broth and toast—
In vain they try to make her laugh,
For she will not be gay.

"It was a case of chicken-pox,
For days they thought she'd die;
For days the doctor felt her pulse
And said the soon must fly.

"Fair maiden, let me say to you
That down the dusty road
There rides a knight upon a steed—
His coming love doth bode.

"Your golden hair it draweth him—
Of eyes of blue he's heard;
They've told him of your marble brow
And full his heart is stirred.

"He cometh hence to speak of love—
He comes to ask your hand,
A knight would a fair maiden wed—
The fairest in the land.

"Take chicken broth each passing hour—
Take toast and currant jell;
Eat all you can—cheer up, my dear,
For things are coming well.

"The jingle of the spurs I hear—
The neigh of prancing steed,
Your knight is coming o'er the hill,
And love it gives him speed."

There rides a knight upon a steed.

I read the poetry to the almost dying girl when it was finished and was surprised to find her blushing. I read it again and she called to her mother to bring her a pint of chicken broth. I read the verses over for the third time and Mrs. Milly said she had a hawking for a boiled dinner. When I was ready to go the mother said to me:

"Abe, it's the most wonderful thing I ever saw. Milly has made more improvement in the last half hour than for three weeks past. She's beginning to look like her old self, and it's all on account of your poetry. May Heaven ever bless you."

In paying a visit to her brother in the country last week Mrs. James Cornhill, one of the social leaders of Homestown, undertook to pat a spotted bull on the nose. She was tossed twenty feet high and came down to break an arm, and will be unable to speak her baby for weeks to come. We tender her our sympathies and yet at the same time advise her to get a pet gander after this. They have no bones.

Mr. Henry Hemingway, the Bard-warrior man, keeps money in the house, and missing the roll the other day he startled the town by crying out that he had been robbed. When the excitement was at its height he found that his wife had put the money in another place. Our roll never causes us or my one else the night-months. It was not until after the Governor had made him a choice specimen of criminology that the brilliant idea came to him. As the cynical gang marched back to prison one evening Broughton was missing found the suit, best coat by a friend with a horse and buggy, and by the time the guards were scouring the country for him the convict was at the residence of the Governor.

A rather queer thing had happened to the Governor two years before, and as the incident had been published it was common property in prison and out. He had made a trip to the States and yet he remembered out knowing what the man was, and after being shut up in a fortress for a month he had been given his liberty and escorted to the frontier. This humiliation ranked in his breast, and he was not backward about saying to freeman or convict that he would do most anything to get square with the Russian Government. He had been so outspoken that he had received a hint from his own government to moderate his speech. He took warning by it, but he still chafed.

The telephone called the Governor up to inform him that a convict had escaped, and while he was talking about it the card of a stranger was brought in. The name was that of a Russian and the Governor at once thought of anarchists and nihilists and arbitrary measures and became hot.

There was a conflagration lasting an hour. The Russian did not hesitate to consider the Governor. He informed him that a plot was on foot to overthrow the Government and raise a republic on its ruins. COST OF LIFE INSURANCE. That life insurance is a science, that premium rates are governed by immutable natural laws; that any lowering would mean inevitable destruction to the whole system—these assertions have been hurled at us by the life insurance companies continually.

It is not any more the fact that Mr. Foster has some public opinion, not hardened to high finance, considering wrong that the fact that he himself can see no harm in it, which has lost him public confidence.

There is no real difference in essential between insurance business and other business and no reason why it should not be conducted on an economic basis according to definite principles.

But it is improbable that even this will have any effect upon the companies. The only argument to which they are open is government regulation of rates or, better still, the competition of a government life insurance system.

DR. WELDON'S REVOLT. If the Liberals in Quebec county who voted for Mr. Robitaille are to be classed as revolutionists against Sir Wilfrid Laurier, what shall be said of the Conservatives in Queens-Shelburne who vote for Dr. Weldon?

In the nomination proceedings yesterday the Conservative candidate took a strong stand against the action of parliament in increasing the seasonal indemnity. When asked his opinion of the Conservative members, who, equally with the government, are responsible for that legislation, and especially of the Conservative leader, who was the chief beneficiary, Dr. Weldon is reported as declaring that all who participated in the Conservative business and its funds, division of profits and other great interests without rendering the company insolvent.

sition it would have been defeated. Had Mr. Borden returned his consent it would certainly never have been introduced. So it is hypocritical and absurd for a member of either party to attempt to lay the blame upon the other. Under the circumstances any Conservative candidate who expresses disapproval of the deal must also disapprove of his leader and of every Conservative M. P.

But Dr. Weldon has gone farther than that. He has openly declared that he is ashamed of his party's participation in the plot. He has even gone to the extent of styling all who shared in the profits as bandits.

While part of this must be blamed to the hot-headedness induced in some men by the applause or heckling of an audience, enough remains to make it indubitable that Dr. Weldon has not a very high opinion of his leader, nor of the men he must associate with in parliament should he be elected. Under the circumstances it is hard to see why he should rejoice, as he seemed to, at the imaginary prospect of the government's defeat and supersession by these other "bandits."

It would be highly interesting to see what Dr. Weldon would do in parliament in this company; but we will have to be content with imagining what he would have done.

HIS EXCUSE IS HIS ACCUSATION. Said Mr. Foster to his constituents a few days ago, in answer to a guardedly expressed hope that he could clear himself of the charges which have been levelled at him: "At the investigation my examination was conducted while I was under oath. I gave my testimony and gave my statement. If the man who doubts me does not believe that, neither will he believe me if I go on a public platform and take my oath on the Scriptures."

We have heard no intimation even from his most bitter opponents, that Mr. Foster's evidence before the insurance commission has met with disbelief. On the contrary, his own words are stronger accusations against himself than any statements made by others.

In his evidence and in his voluntary statement given after his examination was finished, Mr. Foster not only admitted that while the guardian of trust funds he had investigated those funds and he and his political friends would reap personal advantage, but he attempted to justify his actions. He freely admitted that he was at one and the same time a member of a private syndicate with lands to sell, a director of a company which purchased those lands at a substantial advance, and the managing director of a trust company which was loaning the money to finance the whole deal and was taking as security stock in the land company which he controlled, and he defended his position on the ground that there was nothing unusual about it and that the investment had proved profitable for the trust company as well as for himself.

It is not any more the fact that Mr. Foster has some public opinion, not hardened to high finance, considering wrong that the fact that he himself can see no harm in it, which has lost him public confidence. And in order to regain his former place he has not to refute the evidence of others, but to remove the effect of his own admissions—or else to educate the public up to his point of view so that they also can see the immorality under the golden touch of high finance.

THE CENTRAL RAILWAY. The report of the Central railway commissioners for the first half of the current year is a splendid justification of the government's action in deciding to operate the road as a provincial enterprise rather than to sell it to the Montreal syndicate whose offer was strenuously favored by many of the legislators last session. In spite of the handicap imposed by a continual shortage of rolling stock the road's business and revenue have been so greatly increased that a substantial surplus takes the place of the long standing deficits. When the commissioners are provided with the equipment the traffic demands it is certain that the optimism of the government regarding the possibilities of this road will be even more thoroughly justified.

With its strategic position in connection with the Grand Trunk Pacific, with its rich coal mines and with the certainty of considerable development in the country which it traverses, the Central Railway is assured of a prosperous future, under prudent management, and the province is fortunate indeed to possess such an asset.

Startling Deliverance of Conservative Candidate at Queens-Shelburne Nomination

Ashamed of Mr. Borden and His Party—Both Candidates Pledge Themselves to Conduct a Clean Campaign—Mr. Fielding's Strong Defense—Nomination Proceedings Enthusiastic.

HON. W. S. FIELDING.

LIVERPOOL, N. S., Oct. 24.—The political campaign in Queens-Shelburne is now on and the contest promises to be a memorable one in this province, which has been the scene of many hard fought battles in the past. Today was nomination day, and Hon. W. S. Fielding, who has represented the county for the past ten years, was chosen as Liberal standard bearer, while Dr. R. C. Weldon of Albert county, N. B., was the choice of the Conservatives. The town was crowded with visitors, coming from all over the country to hear the speeches of the candidates. At noon a special train rolled in from Shelburne, bringing over 500 ardent supporters of both candidates. At least 2,000 persons were present at the town hall and vicinity. Mayor Hendry presided, and welcomed both Liberals and Conservatives.

FIELDING PLEDGES FOR CLEAN ELECTION.

Mr. Fielding was the first speaker, and he was accorded a great ovation. He presented the issues of the contest in a fair and statesmanlike manner, and was greeted with cheer after cheer. ALBERT GO. SCOTT ACT CASE CONTINUED

HOPEWELL CAPE, Oct. 24.—The Murray Scott Act case was concluded before Judge Wedderburn at the county court today, his honor reserving decision. The case occupied nearly the whole day, Dr. Murray, the defendant, being on the stand himself several hours. The doctor stated that notwithstanding the dates of the information, he had never given any of the witnesses mentioned prescriptions for intoxicating liquor except when in his opinion they needed it for medicinal purposes, and after examination. He did not remember one Perry asking him for a prescription in another man's name, and he himself had not suggested such a thing—it had been his informant, Robinson v. Peck, his honor gave judgment dismissing application for nonsuit or new trial. Mr. Peck applied for stay of proceedings, stating that appeal to the supreme court would be taken.

subsequent departure for England by one of the Allan line steamers.

CHARLOTTETOWN, P. E. I., Oct. 23.—The annual convention of the N. B. and P. E. I. Sunday School Association is in session here. Rev. H. E. Thomas, president of the N. B. Association, conveyed greetings from New Brunswick. Rev. J. B. Ganong, field secretary, in reviewing the year's work reported one of the most helpful series of the convention yet conducted. The aggregate attendance was less than in previous years, but the number of pastors and Sunday school officers was greater, while there have been gains in all departments, and 670 were united with churches from N. S. ranks.

The absence of teachers' meeting and the indifference regarding church work, is regrettable. Social and religious conditions are unsatisfactory, and the raising of boys by the cigarette habit keeps on at a sickening pace. Reference was also made to the decrease in attendance at rural churches and Sunday schools, the removal of a large percentage of population to the West and the cities. W. C. Pierce of Chicago, Fuller, Meredith, and Kulin of New York, Sunday school experts, are assisting at the services.

HALIFAX, N. S., Oct. 22.—Captain Nelson Payzant, who for years was on one of the Pickford & Black's steamers, sailing out of Halifax, committed suicide this morning. Deceased had been to Liverpool, but thirteen or fourteen years ago he came to Halifax. He sailed from this port for several years and was a most capable officer in addition to being highly respected by all with whom he came in contact. Some seven years ago he was attacked with fever and rheumatism while away from home and could not return to Halifax for several months. Finally on his return his condition was so weakened that he had to retire from the sea. Since that time he has been practically an invalid and had been unable to work for over six years.

Being out of employment and out of money, he finally became despondent. This morning his wife went down to a city firm with some work and on her return she opened the door to enter her apartments on the second story. The door would not open freely, but when she finally succeeded in getting in she received a terrible shock, for there behind the door was the body of her husband, suspended by the neck by a canvas belt, the other end of which was fastened to a nail above the door. She called for help but before it arrived she cut down the body in the hope that her husband was not yet dead. When the canvas was cut the body fell in a heap on the floor. The sight almost overcame Mrs. Payzant as she became fully conscious of the fact that her husband was dead.

TWO CHILDREN WERE BURNED TO DEATH. WASHINGTON, Oct. 23.—Frances and Della Mowery, 14 and 6 years old, respectively, were burned to death, and Jennie, their two-year-old sister, was probably fatally burned by an explosion of a can of kerosene at their home near here today. Frances was using the oil to start a fire when the explosion occurred. All three children were enveloped in flames. The elder girl, with her small sisters, was a spring and jumped in with them. Neighbors arrived and pulled the children out, but Frances and Della died in a short time.

The operations of the first six months showed a net profit of $1,202,151. The earnings for May and June were poor. A comparative statement of tons of freight and number of passengers carried for the years 1903, 1904, 1905 and 1906, appears below:

RECENT DEATHS. LACHLAN T. PENDER. Lachlan T. Pender, an older and respected resident of Peterborough, Queens county, died at his home on Saturday last. He was the youngest son of the late James Pender, one of the first settlers of Peterborough, and was born 80 years ago within a stone's throw of where he died. EMIL HANSEN. The news of the death of Emil Hansen, which took place at his residence, 9 Magazine street, Sunday, after a short illness, will be heard with regret by his many friends. Mr. Hansen was the youngest son of the late Sir Hans Christian Hansen of Copenhagen, Denmark. He was born in 1845, and was married to Teresa, youngest daughter of the late Samuel Williams of Paradise row, and a sister of Mrs. Wm. Nannary of California, who is the mother of the late Hon. J. G. Nannary. Had Mr. Hansen lived until yesterday he would have been twenty-one years married. He is survived by a wife and five children, the youngest of whom is a daughter in her twentieth year. Mr. Hansen by profession was a painter, but he was able to turn his hands to many kinds of employment. For some time previous to his being taken sick he had been working for the Redemptorist Fathers on St. Peter's church. Mr. Hansen was a man who made many friends, and such sympathy will be felt for his family in their bereavement.

MRS. V. LONG. WASHADEMOAK, Oct. 22.—Mrs. V. Long of Thornetown died Wednesday after a lengthy illness. Her husband, Samuel Long, died a few years ago. She had no family. She was a daughter of the late Daniel Jenkins, a cousin of Captain Jenkins, Rev. E. C. and Rev. W. H. She leaves four sisters, Mrs. S. Goggin of Belleisle, Mrs. Miller of St. John, west end, Mrs. David Paterson of Jenkins and Mrs. W. H. Doney of Thornetown. The burial was at the old Thornetown graveyard. Rev. E. C. Jenkins was the preacher of the funeral sermon.

The death has occurred at Wickham, Queens county, of Willet Green, after an illness of several months, of paralysis. Deceased was eighty-six years of age. He leaves two daughters—Mrs. D. L. Nobles of this city and Mrs. John H. Craft of Worcester, Mass.—and five sons—Robert J. Green and Wellington of this city, and three of whom are in the army. Mr. Green is a member of the St. John, west end, and Mr. A. Menzie of Wickham, N. B.

Many friends throughout the St. Croix valley learned with sorrow of the death of Mrs. Ivan Q. Tuell, which took place at her home, Milltown, on Saturday after a short illness from a paralytic stroke. Mrs. Tuell was the daughter of the late Rev. A. H. Laverie, who was a member of the Baptist church at Milltown, and had a large circle of friends throughout the border towns. She was united in marriage with Mr. Tuell about a year ago. Deceased was an estimable lady and her death is sincerely regretted.

LIBERAL WINS. MONTREAL, Q., Oct. 23.—The election for Quebec County to fill the vacancy in the House of Commons caused by the appointment of Hon. Chas. Fitzpatrick to the cabinet bench, resulted in the return of Lorenzo Robitaille, Independent Liberal, over G. E. Amyot, the government candidate, by a majority of 48.

Robitaille's majority by parishes were: Beauport, 514; Charlesbourg, 48; Silery, 23; Ancienne Lorette, 12; St. Foye, 33.

Amyot had the following majorities: St. Ambrose, 10; Lorette, 34; Cap Rouge, 27; Valcartier, 34; Lake Beauport, 13; Tewkesbury, 30; and Stoneham, 24.

Robitaille's majority by parishes were: Beauport, 514; Charlesbourg, 48; Silery, 23; Ancienne Lorette, 12; St. Foye, 33.

The first mistake was the imposition of a candidate upon the county without the regular procedure of a convention, and mistake after mistake followed every day. The organization was extremely poor, in fact none of the old and experienced Liberal campaigners were consulted, and consequently remained aloof. It was not a Conservative victory by any means, though Conservatives received their instructions from their party leaders to vote for Robitaille.

Bourassa, after learning the result, said the defeat was not Amyot's, but that of the administration at Ottawa, who had nothing but the marble heart for their old friends.

The election demonstrates the want of proper organization in the district of Quebec. In fact, there is no organization whatever, and the sooner the Liberal party puts a good man at the head of affairs in the district the better.

DIVORCE CASE AT FREDERICTON. Joseph Holmes, of Carleton County, Lays Charge Against His Wife—Costs in Cushing Case.

FREDERICTON, Oct. 23.—The divorce court was in session this afternoon. The case of Joseph Holmes of Carleton county, against his wife Elizabeth of Riley Brook, Victoria county, is being heard. The husband is seeking an absolute divorce on the ground of adultery. The couple were married in 1903 and after living two months together the wife left the home at Cabano, P. Q., and went to Riley Brook. There the plaintiff alleges she kept company with a man named McCaskell. On March 22, 1906, a child was born to Mrs. Holmes and on the ground of adultery Mr. Holmes asks for a divorce. This afternoon two witnesses were examined, viz., A. J. W. Tapley and Dr. John Cox, who gave testimony along the lines stated above. The case was adjourned over until the morning.

The police court has been engaged today with hearing a charge of malicious injury committed by one Worth, a wealthy New York broker, upon the morning case against a witness, it named McCaskell. A number of witnesses were examined and the hearing adjourned until the morning.

Commissioner Farris arrived in town tonight to attend the funeral tomorrow of the late Hon. F. G. Ryan.

NEW CAPE BRETON TECHNICAL SCHOOL. SYDNEY, N. S., Oct. 23.—The new Cape Breton technical school was opened here tonight with a most successful public meeting in the assembly hall of the central school. G. A. R. Rowlings presided, and able addresses were delivered by the chairman, Prof. Woodman of Dalhousie, Rev. C. D. Schofield, a governor of Kings; M. B. Dickenson, mechanical superintendent of the steel plant, an instructor in the school, Prof. R. S. Dobb, R. Gillis, etc.

Letters of regret were read from Governor Fraser and Bishop Worrell, who had been invited to attend. Mr. Rowlings outlined the scope of the work to be undertaken. He stated that practically every subject that could be required by anyone taking the classes was incorporated in the syllabus, and that all the subjects had begun in their elementary stages.

More attention to this subject in Nova Scotia will result in more of our young men remaining at home for their native province.

All the other speakers gave excellent addresses, expressing their conviction that the school they were inaugurating would grow into an institution which would be a credit to Nova Scotia and Eastern Canada.

The stone comes in scows and is being used in the construction of a cathedral. To swing it out of the scows into the elevators a derrick is used. This broke this afternoon while a large block was being conveyed to the stoven and the timber falling on McDonald and McGrath broke the former's leg and crushed his foot terribly. He was conveyed to the hospital. Hopes are entertained of saving the leg.

FIRE DESTROYS FIELDING WILL NEW BRIDGE WIN EASILY. LIVERPOOL, N. S., Oct. 23.—Tomorrow will be nomination day for the riding of Queens-Shelburne. Sheriff McLean, of Shelburne, will this year hold his court in Liverpool. Hon. W. S. Fielding arrived yesterday at Chatham, speaking there this afternoon. Dr. Weldon, who has been in the riding for the last ten days, speaks tonight at Port Medway. Tomorrow at two o'clock a joint meeting will be held, to be addressed by the candidates.

The Conservative organizer, accompanied by a number of speakers, have been in the riding for the past week, holding meetings, but so far have met with slight encouragement. Present men in the Conservative party represent the action of the Halifax syndicate in importing a man from New Brunswick to attempt the defeat of such a prominent Nova Scotian as Mr. Fielding. More than 200 have, unopposed, signed a petition asking Mr. Fielding to run, and pledging him their support. In Liverpool alone, sixty prominent Conservatives are among the petitioners.

The return of Mr. Fielding by a large increased majority can therefore be confidently anticipated.

REDEMPTION OF TURKEY.

By the Rev. S. V. Trowbridge

In the Central Congregational church, Brooklyn, N.Y., last Sunday, Rev. S. V. Trowbridge spoke as follows on "The Redemption of Turkey."

The Turks met the Mohammedan religion as they were going southward, invading the country. Now for eight centuries they have held it fast, or it might better be said that the religion has held the Turks fast.

There is no God but God. There is no God but God. There is no God but God. There is no God but God. There is no God but God.

There is no God but God. There is no God but God. There is no God but God. There is no God but God. There is no God but God.
