BUTTE CITY, MONTANA.
AN Interesting Description of Montana's Chief Town - Butte City.
To the Editor of THE GLEANER: - Sir, Thanking you for the publication of my last letter on Helena, I will give you a short description of Butte. Butte City, Montana, has the largest population of any town in the Territory including the suburbs of South Butte, Walkerville, Centerville, Meadville and Burlington. It has a population of over 20,000 with a floating population of about 2,000 more.
The main and about the only industry of Butte and the surrounding country is mining, and it is said to be the largest mining camp in America, and camp is a very appropriate name to this leading city of Montana, though of course we have to consider the youth of this city, for 20 years ago nothing of any importance was established in Butte, for its mining resources were very little known.
But to give you a description of the city first, the streets, the most important, as the name might signify, is Main street, on which will be found the large dry goods establishment of D. J. Henney, Bonner Mercantile Co, etc., hardware stores of J. R. Kenyon, Butte Hardware Co, etc., groceries of Mallitt and others, and saloons are innumerable, for Butte is noted as having the most saloons or rum shops of any place in Montana and I believe would, according to a population rank first in this respect of any place in America. Towards the lower end of the street you arrive at Gordon's Conigne, which, in the evenings, attracts a number of the young men of this promising city, and at the upper end is the post office. The next street of importance is Broadway, where you find the two leading saloons, St. Nicholas and Windsor, and a number of restaurants and saloons, and the Butte opera house, the best in the territory. Park street ranks third in importance, where I found R. B. shaw, sportsman hall, at which the young trip the light fantastic, a number of lively stables, with Lavells Transfer, and stores of every variety.

Of the streets themselves, no city could be prouder, the sidewalks are of plank and have not the neat appearance of the Collegiate City of N. B. The only building which gives prominence to Butte is the Court house situated on Broadway, which contains a public library and reading room, and back of it is the jail which is generally pretty well filled with transient boarders, the most of them being sent to Deen Lodge.

At a little over a mile from the city in a southerly direction, you arrive at South Butte, a promising little place, where the copper is situated, on the further side of it a large amount of business is done by the Miners Lumber Co. A little to East is the Parrot Smelter, the largest in Butte, where the mineral ore is brought from the Parrot mines, by an easy underground, not so interesting as at Clark's at Meaderville, about two miles to the northeast of Butte, where the ore is taken by the small cars from the mines to the smelter, where a large train is brought and the loaded cars in going down to the smelter draws the empty ones back to the mine, being connected by wire and having only one track, except a side track in the centre, but the empty cars turn out on the main track and the loading the loaded ones pass on to the smelter, whilst it sends its way to the mine to be loaded by the men, and to go the same course over again.

The only other place of interest in Meaderville are the works of the Montana Copper Company; though closed down for some time they resumed work again the latter part of the summer.
Taking Butte again as a centre and a mile north, a person arrives at the village of Centerville, containing a few small mines, and a little less than a mile on in the same direction, he arrives at Walkerville, the largest and by far the most important suburb of Butte.

Here are the large mines and smelters of the Alice, Moulton and Lexington mining companies.

Also about two miles west of Butte are the thriving little villages of Hooker and Burlington, where the Blue Bird mines and smelters are situated and the Colossus Smelter.

To return to Butte we pass the Gagnon and reach the Parrot, and next are the works of the Great Anaconda company, the Anaconda, the St. Lawrence, and a number of small mines near. The ore from these mines are all taken in freight cars to the town of Anaconda, a distance of 25 miles, to the smelters; these smelters themselves give employment to over 1,000 men. Anaconda has a population of 3,500, its importance being derived from the smelters of said company which are said to be the largest in America.
The other mines of importance in Butte are the Silver Bow, Mountain View and Chief High Ores, Wake Up, Jim Clear Grit Buffalo, Moose, Cole-melco and a number of others.

The currency of Butte is circulated by the three Banks, the First National, Clark & Larabee, and Hoge, Brownlee & Co.

The Northern Pacific reaches Butte from the north, and also the Utah & Northern, Union Pacific (Montana Union) reach Butte, all meeting at the one central Depot. The branch of the Northern, leaving the main line at Garrison, whilst the other branch off at Silver Bow junction seven miles distant.
The Montana Central is expected to reach Butte by another summer. The street cars were built this autumn, and are expected to connect the city with all its suburbs.

Hoping this account will interest your numerous readers I remain, Yours truly,
WICKES, Montana, Jan. 2nd.

Insurance.
Teacher - Class in physiology stand up Bodkins, how do you distinguish organic from inorganic matter?
Bodkins (gladly having committed the answer to memory) - In the organic world everything individual springs from some parent, while inorganic substances are formed by chemical laws.
Teacher - Very good. Give an example of an inorganic substance.
Bodkins (usually slow at these things, once bodkins) - An orphan.

FROM THE COUNTRY.
News from the Districts About Us

As Reported by Our Active Correspondents.

Accidents, Personal Intelligence, and Things in General.

FOREY CITY.
School News - Forey News - Personal - Forey List.
FOREY CITY, Jan. 7. - Mr. Frank Foster has gone west, we presume for good.
Thus our young men of worth and energy depart.
Mr. Byron is to be our next teacher, in place of Mr. Fowler, resigned.

Young Foster is taking another term at the Hamilton academy. Success to you Foster!

The Methodists came to the conclusion that their church would be the better of a coat of paint. Accordingly it has been given a very fashionable coat of brown.

The new method for helping poor memories and improving evil ones, is the all absorbing intellectual topic of our village just now. Join the class, and be able to read a book once and remember all the facts it contains. Now there be who would like to know all that books contain without reading them at all. This method won't help any people.
Don't be deceived.

We understand that Shaw Bros' kind and obliging young clerk, Mr. Frank Porter, has resigned, and that Mr. Lewis Pitt is to succeed him. While we regret the departure of so good a townsman, we feel assured that friend Pitt will make a good though quiet salesman.

While splitting wood in the yard, Charles Veys had the misfortune to cut his left hand very badly. He was holding the slab with one hand and the axe with the other. Not moving his hand back far enough he brought the axe down on it with great force. The axe went through his hand. Dr. Cyrus was sent for in great haste as the boy was bleeding profusely. The doctor sowed up the terrible cut and now it is nearly well.

It is no enterprise enough in some blue nose to purchase the books required in our superior school from provincial firms, instead of allowing them to be handled by an American trader?
It is not necessary that our school books be bought by a dealer in the United States and then for our people to go over there to buy. This is a fault of the American dealer; but it is certainly easier on the part of the provincialist to allow a profit to go into a foreigner's pocket, than to be himself might err.
Think it over.

Inspected. These paid an official visit to our school during the first of November. On account of those who are now themselves teachers, and those who had settled in life, the attendance was necessarily smaller, but he was well pleased with the substantial progress of the smaller pupils. (Your correspondent intended this item to appear in his last, but for some unknown reason it did not.)

The Xmas trees in the Methodist and Baptist churches were a great success - especially the former.

Miss Sarah Houghton, the former assistant in our school, has joined the senior class in the normal school to try for first class.

FR - FREDERICTON JUNCTION.
To Try Children - Remembering Their Past.
FREDERICTON JUNCTION, Jan. 12. - Mr.
Melvin W. Nason and family intend starting on Monday, the 23rd inst, for Southern California. Mr. N. has the promise of a situation on a railroad in that country. He is a thorough mechanic, and is well posted in railway work, having had charge of the water tanks on the N. B. railway for some time past. He is a man of great determination and no doubt will meet with success in his new home.

The friends of Rev. T. O. DeWitt intend to make a donation at his residence, Ellscliffe, this evening.

NEW HARBOR.
The Ships Knees Business Revived -
The Last Red River.
New Harbor, Jan. 10. - The roads are splendid here, and the people are making up for lost time and are very busy hauling.

There is a boom in Tannock Ships Knees, and hundreds of dollars are being realized by our farmers in that revived industry, as there is no duty upon partially manufactured timber. This goes to show what good times we would have if the duties were taken off potatoes and other farm produce. Our most convenient stations for shipping are Tracy and Ruisgeon.

Seventy-five loads of ships knees were sold at Tracy Station last Thursday.
The buyers are Messrs. D. S. Dupluis and A.
B. Spence.

The funeral of Mr. Tumith, who died at Tracyville on the 6th inst, was held at St. Mary's church in this place on Saturday last. The Rev. F. A. exander conducted the service.

An Antislavery Society.
A large crowd of Chicago girls met on evening last week for the purpose of forming a "Ladies' Anti Slavery Society." The meeting was called to order, and Miss De La Roche elected president. Before taking her seat she said in a clear calm, well-modulated voice: - "Really, girls, I'm too badly rattled by the honor conferred upon me to give you much of my gift. It's the first time I ever tambled to anything of this sort, and I hardly know just how to catch on. However, I'll try to be sufficiently up to the snuff not to let any flys light on me while doing the presidents of this society act.
I'm with you in this move, and don't say of you forget it. All over our land slaving words and phrases are multiplying like flies in sorghum time, and it is our duty to help knock this crying evil as ally as possible. Let our motto be "Shout the Slangist."

A MYSTERIOUS SKELETON.
It Came Very Near Hauling an Iron-cent Man.

Harvard, Oct. Nov 15 & Times.
For five years there has been in a box under a desk in the office of the sheriff of Franklin county the bones of a complete human skeleton. The remains were found in a still spot on the mountains near Barns' valley, Franklin county, in July, 1882. The family of David Forster Deviney, consisting of himself and several grown-up children, lived in that vicinity. Deviney had the reputation years ago of being a lawless and desert character, and he was suspected of being guilty of many crimes that had been committed in that part of the county. In the summer of 1878, his seventeen-year-old son, George, suddenly disappeared. It was known that he and his father had had a quarrel, and it was generally believed that the young man had gone away for fear of being implicated in his father's misdeeds. No word had been received from him by any one in the vicinity. When the skeleton was found, two miles from Deviney's house, the popular belief was that it was the skeleton of the missing George Deviney, and the father was suspected of having murdered him. The public clamored for his arrest, and finally, with no evidence against him but the finding of the skeleton in the vicinity of his house, a warrant was issued for the old man's arrest on a charge of murdering his son.

Deviney, although declaring that he had not killed his son, was so indifferent to the charge and arrest that the feeling against him became very violent, and it was with great difficulty that the officers having him in charge could prevent the farmers of the neighborhood from lynching him. Strategy had to be resorted to in order to get the prisoner safely to the Clamdenburg jail. No evidence whatever could be produced against him at his trial and he was discharged by the court. The opinion that he was the murderer of his son, however, was so universal that he was given the nickname of Murderer Deviney, and was shunned by everyone.

One fold D. Deviney's daughters was married a year ago and went to live with her husband two miles from her father
