LIGHTNING STRUCK SCHOOL. Woodstock Sentinel-Review: The teacher and scholars of a Blenheim school received a shock they are not likely to forget in the trunderstorm which passed over this locality a few days ago. Miss Beatrice White is the teacher of the school on the 10th concession. When the storm was at its height the building was struck. The chimney was dashed to the ground, one of the stones on the inside flew past the teacher's head, the current passed down the pipe to the stove, and thence to a seat occupied by two small scholars. The little girls were huried to the floor unconscious. Miss White, who was herself dazed and stunned, on recovering, carried the two little girls out into the open air. It was a quarter of a mile to the nearest house, but she bravely set out with her heavy burden, the rain meanwhile coming down in torrents. Restoratives were applied and the children recovered coniousness. On examination it was found that the body of one was seared Renfrew. with many long lines. The seat where the children sat had a piece of wood taken out eighteen inches long and inches wide. This was twisted shreds.

The worst sufferer is healed, crutches thrown away, and the poor cripple of yesterday becomes the vigorous man or woman of today. Mr. William Morisette, of Roxton Pond, Que., writes

"Having been given up to die some time ago by some of the best doctors in the United States, I came to Canada last autumn terribly ill, and had lost all hope. Suffering agonies from inflammatory rheumatism, I was strongly urged to use Paine's Celery Compound. I gave it a trial as recom-mended, and the first bottle did me so much good I continued with the medicine until I had used seven pottles, when I found myself perfectly cured; indeed, I never felt better in all my life than at present. I use every possible means to tell others of Paine's Celery Compound, and will always recommend it to those troubled with rheumatism."

an hour. The tank is a long iron barrel, about the size of an ordinary kitchen water heater. Back of it is a cylinder of liquid carbonic acid gas which furnishes pressure. The pressure is usually kept rather high. From one end of the tank runs the hose, which carries the oil from the tank to the pond. A very heavy hose is used because of the high pressure. The nozzle looks like the nozzle or an ordinary garden hose. Dr. Bonnel stood on the edge of the pond and squirted the oil at the water. The oil as it came from the nozzle was dark brown. The moment it struck the water the water turned milky white. The whole pond was like milk very soon. A lot of minnows and little fish | 1st Hussars. Granted. came to the surface, gasping for breath. Those which could be reached were taken out in a net and put into clean water, where they soon revived. It was said by the operator that the effect of the compound used was to shut off the oxygen supply of everything in the water. The oil kills all vegetables and animal organizations in the water it touches. After the oil had been in the water for half an hour or more free crude petroleum began to come to the

> Dr. Bonnel explained that the compound has a greater specific gravity than water and sinks to the bottom as soon as it strikes. Then after a time petroleum frees itself and rises to the surface, permeating the whole body of water as it comes. Thus the end sought by Dr. Doty with his machine for forcing petroleum under water is attained with rather simple apparatus. The process left the pond much less pleasant to look at than it had been, and the neighborhood was thoroughly impregnated with an odor like that of moth-balls. It that the pond would clear some in the course of a week, and that the odor would be less strong. But ne mosquitoes arose from the pond last night. In order to show those who came to see the demonstration what the effect of the secret compound was on mosquitoes, larvae and pupae in large jars were treated to a dose of the mixture. The stuff dropped to the bottom and then rose in a white cloud that reached the top of the jar. The larvae and pupae struggled vigorously to get away from it. The live mosquitoes under the netting covering of the jar dropped helpless as soon as the fumes reached them. In fifteen minutes every larva and pupa in the jar was dead.

Bonnel and his assistants have been treating the ponds and swamps and even the more sluggish brooks of the village for a week. Yesterday's tests were witnessed by representatives of the health boards of Montclair and of other towns and villages. Nearly all of them have been using the crude petroleum method. Those who are exploit. er than make contracts for the elimination of mosquitoes, but it was said yesterday that the making of such contracts might in time become a feature of the business.

UNION OF ALL CHURCHES. New York, Sept. 4.-The Society of the Atonement of the Anglican Church has established a Franciscan order at Graymoor, a few miles from Garrison-on-the-Hudson. The society has for its principal object a union of all the churches under the pope. The high church element in the Anglican Church has for years been endeavoring to have its orders recognized by the Vatican A year ago the pope refused requests of such a nature. The leaders in the movement have not become discouraged, however, and are working through the Society of the Atonement for the attainment of their end. This organ-ization is a revival of the order founded in England by the Sons of St. Fran-cis several hundred years ago.

Lively Controversy in Council About Queen's Avenue Job.

Request for Union Label on Civic Printing Again Refused—Other Items of Business.

What business the city council had to transact last night was proceeded with in a fairly expeditious manner, Ald. Cooper being the chief obstructor, when any obstruction occurred. Tar macadam loomed large as a subject for discussion, and No. 2 committee will reconsider its recommendation that the pavement be accepted, and the contractor paid off. The union printers of London received no better treatment from the present council than from those of former years, their request for the placing of the union label on the city printing being refused. The balance of the session was consumed in the consideration of other necessary but not strikingly important features of civic administration. Those present were: Mayor Rumball, Ald. Winnett, Parnell, Campbell, Olmsted, Garratt, Geary, Cooper, Beattie and Greenlees and Secretary

Mr. J. C. Judd, of Meredith, Judd, Dromgole & Elliot, appeared on behalf of London Typographical Union, No. 133, in reference to the request to have the union label placed on the city printing. He pointed out that two or the clause carried, all voting for it the typical second of the motion. Ald. Cooper could find no other sponsor for it, and the clause carried, all voting for it to the clause carried, all voting for it and the clause carried, all voting for it to the clause carried. hree years ago the council had passed a bylaw providing that union wages must be paid on all city work. Mr. must be paid on an city what year Judd stated that during the past year the firm doing the city printing had paid less than union wages. Mr. Judd contended that the present bylaw was not sufficient to guarantee the payment of union wages, and asked the passage of the requested bylaw, as this would secure the desired effect.

TALKED TAR MACADAM. The first six clauses of No. 2 committee's report, recommending various local improvements, passed without opposition. The seventh clause, recommending that the tar macadam pavefeet with an amendment to refer the clause back to committee. Some of the residents on Queen's avenue, he said. were dissatisfied with the pavement, and would not pay for it.

Ald. Olmsted arose and said that the committee and the engineer had examined the pavement and considered it first-class and in good condition. Ald. Garratt remarked that Ald. Olm sted and the committee evidently knew nothing about good roads or they would not characterize the tar macadam as The recent top dressing had infured the road more than it had bene-

This was too much for Ald. Olmsted and he replied heatedly and positively that the road was a first-class one, and that anyway he knew as much about roads as some slop bricklayers and others going around town.

After Ald. Garratt's dry suggestion that Ald. Olmsted be called to order, Ald. Campbell said that the only thing wrong with the tar macadam was the fact that people expected to get an asphalt pavement and didn't. He did considerable driving himself, and he considered the Queen's avenue pavement the best piece of road in the city The amendment carried by a division of 5 to 4, and the matter goes back to committee. The proposed construction of a bituminous tar macadam on Talbot street between Fullarton and Oxford streets, was referred back, Ald. Cooper's motion that the clause be struck out being de-

TO APPOINT PARK OVERSEERS. The recommendation that the council appoint three park overseers, drew from Ald. Garratt an indignant protest. He moved that the clause be struck out, at the same time inquiring what was the use of electing three more men to do the work of No. 2 committee. Surely there were enough sensible men in the council to look after the city

Ald. Parnell supported the clause. There were few aldermen or private citizens who knew anything about

UNION LABEL TURNED DOWN. hands of No. 1 committee. The only other objections made to any of the eleven clauses of the report were those made by Ald. Cooper in reference to the letting of contracts for printing and advertising.

Ald. Cooper moved that the clause recommending acceptance of A. Talbot & Co.'s tender for printing be referred | done back. He claimed that since the committee meeting he had discovered a lower than the recommended one, and by its acceptance the city would save $800. Ald. Garratt seconded Ald. Cooper's motion.

Ald. Cooper then discovered, however. that it was the advertising, and not the printing, tenders which he had in mind. He, however, pressed his motion, in order that the petition of the union printers, that the union label be placed upon the city printing, be considered. He

Ald. Cooper gave notice that at the next meeting of the council he would move that hereafter all cement approaches to sidewalks be paid for by the people benefited by them. BYLAW PASSED.

A bylaw was passed to amend bylaw 751, section 6, by adding the words, "or act in a disorderly condition," to the regulation prohibiting drunkenness in public places. Sept. 16.

American Woman Charged in a London Court With Forgery Involving $500,000.

FORGERY INVOLVING $500,000 London, Sept. 3.-Marie Josephine Eastwick, of Philadelphia, was arraigned in the Guildhall police court yesterday, charged with having forged a railway certificate of the value of £100,000. Sensational evidence was presented. The public prosecutor said the defendant has been residing in London for eighteen months, and was believed to be an American of wealth. She had been living with persons said to be her father and sister at the Metropole, London, and in the most exhibited in this city on June 24 was $50, which amount was accepted by the city treasurer upon the written recity treasurer upon the written recommendation and advice of a majority of the members of the city council. This was undoubtedly irregular, as the bylaw calls for a fee of $100, and in the most expensive manner. She obtained an introduction to Mr. Beaton, a member of the city's advantage to have experts in these matters interesting themselves in the care of the parks.

Ald. Campbell's amendment, that the clause be referred back to committee for slight changes, was carried.

Ald. Cooper objected to the payment by No. 2 committee on a lot used for city storage purposes, as payment of rental. On Ald. Winnett explaining that the lot had been used for twelve years without return being made the owner, the clause carried. to the Charing Cross branch of the Credit Lyonais, and asked the manager The matter of the proposed bylaw to prohibit trading stamps was left in the hards of No. 1 committee. The only The prosecutor said that by Aug. 26 the certificate had been altered, the name of the original holder had been crased, and the name of Marie Josephine Eastwick had been substituted. The word "five" in the number of shares and the numerals had been altered, so that it appeared to be a certificates for 1,000 shares instead be a certificates for 1,000 shares instead of for five shares. This was skillfully done, three kinds of type and ink being used, showing considerable preparation. The only mistake was that the document bore a shilling revenue stamp instead of one for $10, which a certificate for 1,000 hares would carry. The defendant sen shares would carry. The defendant sent the altered document, with a letter, to Mr. Beaton, on Aug. 26, asking him to buy 1,000 United States Steel shares in the firm named, also requesting a loan of f4,000. Mr. Beaton's clerk noticed the stamp irregularity, and when to the Canadian Pacific office, where is was pronounced to be a forgery. The woman arrest soon followed. She was remanded until Sept. 9. She will be afforded special privileges on account of the poor state of her health, and will be examined by doctors. Her counsel intimated that the prisoner was suffering from temporary insanity. Her father said he would not explain the matter at present, but everything would come out all right.

Hon. Edward Blake.

The London (England) Daily Aws In an editorial under the title, "Press and Parliament," referring to the various members of the House of Commons, says: "Mr. Edward Blake, once the Prime Minister of one of the provinces of Canada, stands out among the members of the House of Commons who would have filled the chair of the House with dignity and absolute impartiality." Mr. Blake is a deputy chairman of the House of Commons, and also a member of the Committee of Selection, which appoints the members of the Grand Committees. It is the highest committee of the House of Commons. Mr. Blake is also a member of the committee of public accounts. His long parliamentary experience in this country, and his thorough acquaintance with parliamentary law and usage, will enable him to discharge most efficiently any duty which he may undertake as a representative.

We are pleased to see Mr. Blake recognized even thus far. He is by far a stronger public man than the English people have yet realized. Mr. Blake, on account of the policy adopted by the Home Rule party, with which he stands allied, has excluded himself from the discussion of all large and important Imperial questions, upon which he possesses extensive and accurate information, and in the discussion of which he could easily have taken a foremost place. We suppose that in taking this position, Mr. Blake has acquiesced in a policy decided upon by a majority of the whole Home Rule members, which has certainly been greatly to his disadvantage, whether it was in the interest of the Home Rule controversy or

Mr. Blake, in Canada, was the Minister of Justice in Mr. Mackerzie's Administration; and was undoubtedly the a lawyer, he occupied the foremost position at the Canadian bar; and since he has taken up his residence in England, has no recognized superior as counsel before the Judicial Committee of the Privy Council. We have never favored any attempt to give precise representation of the different self-governing colonies on the Board; but we think that the fact that a great lawyer is a colonist, ought not to be a bar to his being made a member of the Judicial Committee of the Privy Council, especially when his appointment would add to the strength of that body. We do no injustice to the present members of the Committee when we say we think that Mr. Blake would prove himself quite equal to those with whom he would there be associated. Lord Davey, Lord Macnaughton, Lord Alverston, and the present Lord Chanceller, are no doubt very able jurists, and we think Mr. Blake would be in every way a fitting associate. We trust that as the unity of the Empire is a thought now uppermost in the minds of the people, both of the United Kingdom and of the self-governing colonies, that a practical step will be taken to promote that unity by the appointment of Mr. Blake to the Judicial Committee of the Privy Council; and we have hope that the Canadian Government would be prepared to consider any suggestion that the home authorities might consider it proper to make in respect to

Competition in Lumber.

Mr. John Charlton, M. P., while in Toronto the other day, referred to the fact that as a consequence of legislation by the Government of Ontario, several large United States lumber factories had been compelled to move into Canada and do their business there. Mr. Charlton is apparently under the impression that the action of the Ontario authorities was prompted by some of our own Ontario lumbermen, and he says it is destined to have an effect which the lumbermen of this country do not desire, and will not appreciate. He is afraid that the advent of these newcomers from the United States means that the Ontario lumberman hitherto doing business will experience severe competition, and that he will be crowded out. While it will be good news for Canadians generally that the increased number of lumbermen now doing business will provide competition, we are not among those who believe that the lumbermen of Canada will be crowded out by the Yankee newcomers. What advantage have the possess? They have to seek the same markets, and face similar competition. They are not more shrewd nor more adians. And if they are able in a fair who have hitherto dominated the Canadian market for lumber, it must cerlumbermen can and will, as competent business men, speedily combat,

Mr. James Pliney Whitney, the Opposition leader in the Ontario Legislature, on Tuesday night, at Toronto, gave what may be considered the opening address of his platform campaign against Premier Ross. Mr Whitney's speech was largely reminiscent, and consisted to a considerable extent in claims of having first advonecessary to deal at length, the more so as any such controversy is not likely to influence half a dozen votes London (England) Daily News on throughout the whole Province. brought forth a mouse. It would be worth going some distance to hear Premier Ross and Mr. Whitney on the same hustings discussing the "platform" put forth by the leader of the Opposition.

Hon. David Mills' Recent Address.

The address delivered by Hon. David Mills at Highgate last week has attinguish the great platform speeches given from time to time by eminent public men in Great Britain. Mr. Mills took a wide field, bringing into view Canada, the United States, and the United Kingdom. While confessing to he was by no means discouraged, beseries of paragraphs has been given lieving that Canada has before it a great future, and that the next ten years will show a satisfactory rate of advancement. In this connection, the Minister of Justice pointed out that it would be an act of the highest states. manship on the part of the public men of Great Britain to exert every legitimate influence to encourage her surplus population to emigrate to Canada, instead of to the United States. This influx of people with British ideas, would assist indirectly in the building up of the Empire, and directly, in molding the foreign peoples from Europe and elsewhere into loyal Canadians, imbued with true ideas of self-government and civil and religious liberty. Incidentally, the Minister of Justice dis- inches depth; and the equipment will cussed the constitutional necessity for a parliamentary redistribution of seats, and pointed out the scandalous nature of the gerrymarder. Take only one example, and that near at home, the county of Middlesex, which elected four representatives. In all four constituencies there was a Liberal majority of 1,100, and yet owing to the unfair redistribution only one Liberal was elected in the four constituencies. Mr. Mills does not believe in any policy of retaliations of injustice against those who dealt unjustly with the Liberals. "There may be some," he says, "who think it wise to imitate them and to follow their example. I am not of that opinion. There is great strength in standing up for the right. It is an immense source of strength to a public man when the people believe that he is unswervingly devoted to what is fair and just, and when they believe he will not deviate from the course so marked out, merely because some candidate on his own side is persuaded himself, or has endeavored to persuade

A Countess On Education In England.

It is thought that aristocratic influence is now making itself felt to no good end in English educational affairs, but it is evident that all the higher classes are not on one side. The Countess of Warwick, in an article on "The Cause of the Children," has some strong things to say. The lady begins in this vigorous style: "In writing my views on the new education bill, I wish that I could feel that the Government were sincere in their latest attempts to introduce order. But education is a topic it was stopped. on which I feel acutely, and it is impossible for me to be cheerful over the reforming zeal of the noble duke and his satellites. I believe that the Duke of Devonshire and Sir John Gorst are honestly anxious to promote the education of the masses of the people. Unfortunately, their methods are not commensurate with the zeal they profess. They need a little more courage in grasping the nettle."

This is certainly plain speaking, and though the education bill is dead, such speech is perhaps needed. It is said that the people themselves are "apathetic" about educational reform. The their own, and in another generation countess resents this, and calls it "a cant phrase used by political leaders to cover their own blindness and ignorance." She shows that trades unions' co-operative societies, representing millions of workingmen, made most urgent protests against the threatened destruction of the continuation schools by the Cockerton judgment. "That cant phrase must be taken with a considerable pinch of salt. The contempt for his foreign rival. He is alive to the fact that if the German is gradually coming to the conclusion that the only way to meet this comtem of education. Let him once demand Ispen should be perpetuated." The Countess discusses the situation pretty fully, and gives the names of other ladies who are interested both in education and the working classes. Apart from any question of policy or details, it is a good thing to find these ladies advocating the rights of the poor, and especially championing "the cause of the child." At any rate it shows that the gulf between "the classes" and "the masses" is not so deep and wide as it is in some of the continental countries.

The "J. Israel Tarte."

On Monday, at Toronto, amid the cheers of several thousand spectators the "J. Israel Tarte," a magnificent hydraulic dredge, was duly christened. This dredge is believed to be the largest yet constructed in the world, and est yet constructed in the world, and it is creditable to the Polson ship yards at Toronto that so important a piece of work should have been intrusted to them. In accordance with a stipulation of the Minister of Public Works when making the contract, the dredge is in almost every respect of Canadian manufacture and production. Its hull is of steel, 100 feet in length, 42 feet beam, and 12 feet 6 enable it to work to a depth of 50 feet, and dredge the material at a distance of 2,000 feet.

At the luncheon, after the launch, Mr. Tarte, in reply to the toast to his health, declared his desire to see all Canadian products of the farm and factory carried from Canadian harbors dredged by Canadian dredges, in Canadian vessels made in Canadian shipyards from Canadian materials.

The energetic Minister of Public Works received a very cordial reception, as he always does in any part of Ontario, and as he deserves.

The Municipal Association and Public Franchises.

Those who, from year to year, have watched the changes made in muni cipal law, have been strongly tempted to ask that the law be left for a while as it is, right or wrong. All changes are not improvements.

There are, however, coming to the front some very important questions of municipal law, and taxation is an ever present question. The street railways and all public companies are attracting much attention.

Municipal ownership has been much discussed. We have advocated provincial control of telephones. The Provincial Government retains the right to regulate rates on the railways in New Ontario, and to purchase within municipal ownership is taking deep root is evidenced by the discussion at the Toronto convention and the appointment of a standing committee on the subject. We believe the members of the Legislature will be found to be alive to the importance of these questions, and anxious that each municifranchise granted. #### The Arrogance of Wealth.

At Newport, W. K. Vanderbilt, jun., and others planned to turn several avenues into a race course between two and four o'clock on a certain afternoon. The avenues selected were the principal streets, and the hours the busy time of the day. The rich swells petitioned the council for the privilege, and offered to pay all fines if there should be any prosecutions.

The smart set, however, were checked in a way they did not count on. Some of the property owners applied for and obtained an injunction.

Like the lynchers down South, these self - important millionaires thought they were above the law; they owned the town; and were willing to ride roughshod over everyone

The example of the rich swells was a very bad one, and it was well that

Political Science.

OUTLINES OF POLITICAL SCIENCE. By George Gunton and Hayes Robbins. D. Appleton & Co., New York.

In the language of the authors' preface, Political Science deals with human society in its various forms of political organization, and includes, therefore, the nature and practical methods of government. It also legitimately includes the study of what the state, representing the people, can and should do to promote the general welfare; in what ways, if any, it can modify, direct or stimulate the action of economic forces where those forces do not produce results shown to be wholesome and progressive. Political economy thus defined, is bound very close at every point to human activity. The importance of a knowledge of the subject is daily increasing, especially to those who, either as a duty or daily vocation, are called upon to enlighten the public through the platform or press, on subjects pertaining to social welfare, or as students who delve in such subjects for their own enlightenment and interest. The subject is bound to press itself on the attention of an ever-increasing constituency of readers as the social fabric becomes more and more complex. The French doctrine of "Laissez faire," which precluded any thought of governmental interference, is becoming obsolete. The idea of municipalizing or nationalizing industry, is meeting with no small amount of favor among English speaking people. The subject of Political Science in its broadest sense is one of immense interest, and we feel sure that the present work, the Outlines of Poltical Science." will meet with a warm reception by many who have even made considerable progress in the field of economics. The plan of the book is suggestive. The theory of national development is dealt with in way brief but clear. Then comes a discussion of such subjects as statesmanship and politics; foreign policy; protection and free trade: war and aroitration; taxation; money and banking, and municipal government. Each chapter, besides containing a list of reference books on subjects treated in that particular chapter, contains also selected readings from other authori-tative sources. We know of no other work of so great value to the ordinary citizen, or to the private student in the matter of leading him through the labyrinth of all the social and economic literature that exists today. give one a view-point which after all

The applicants for the injunction are the Niagara, St. Catharines and Toronto Railway, who say that the council by bylaw, in February of this year, gave them a franchise to build the spur and two years in which to do the work. For the council it was stated that the Niagara, St. Catharines and Toronto Railway have only spent $300 on the work, out of $300,000, the estimated cost, and refuse to give a cash security

CANADIAN CATTLE WANTED IN SCOTLAND

Farmers Are Agitating for Removal of Embargo on Imported Live Stock.

Ottawa, Sept. 4.-J. H. Grisdale, agriculturist of the Experimental Britain, where he has been looking sect, wo over the cattle of the old land. He killed over the cattle of the old land. He killed while returning home from states that the cattle trade in Scot- church last Sunday night. and is booming, and that the supply is far too small for the markets. The Scotch farmers are anxious that the embargo imposed on Canadian cattle should be removed, as then they could import animals more plentifully. Meetings are being held all over Scotland with the object of sending a petition to the British agricultural department, asking them to remove the embargo. The Southern and Irish breeders are adverse to the petition, as they say it would interfere with the breeding industry. "As everyone knows that the Ayrshire cattle are found in the counties of Ayr, Kirkcudbright and Dumfries," said Mr. Grisdale, "and all through these counties a thorough search was made for cattle, and a large selection was made The cattle from Jersey are greatly in demand. The inhabitants of the Island of Guernsey are giving more time to the raising of cattle. and are letting the glass industry alone." The sheep of the British Isles, said Mr. Grisdale, surpass any we have in Canada. It would not be safe to say that the British cattle are ahead of Canadian cattle, nor yet would it do to say Canadian cattle led the van. Some herds in Scotland are superior to any in the world. Mr. Grisdale sailed from Glasgow, Aug. 15, by the Concordia, and arrived at Levis on the 29th. He brought out 30 head of cattle, 10 pigs and 12 poultry.

Hay Fever: Many Are Subject to Its Pernicious Effects-It Is a Summer Fever, and Rampant Just Now.

This disease was formerly thought to be caused by the irritating qualities of some of the grasses that blossom about this time. Scientists, however, find it is caused by a particular germ that attains full development during the summer months.

It can be perfectly cured in a few days by inhaling "Catarrhozone," which is carried through the air passages of the head, throat and lungs to the very root of the trouble, and cannot fail to benefit.

There is absolutely no remedy in the world today that will cure hay fever so quickly and surely as "Catarrho-zone." It is not a common as the surely as the sur It is not a common patent medicine, but a scientific preparation, indorsed by numbers of the leading physicians in all the important Amercan and Canadian cities.

"Catarrhozone" is pleasant, sooth-ing, and may be used with perfect confidence and safety by young and old alike. The inhaler is suitable to carry in the vest pocket, and may be used at any time or place, thus possessing great advantages over a treatment that can be used only at home. Mr. Thomas Easton, of Westwood, Ont., who was cured of Hay Fever by Catarrhozone, says: "For four or five years I have suffered more or less Hay Fever. Generally I was from obliged to leave this part of the country, for I was quite unable to get relief in any other way. For a month previous to the time the attack generally came on, I used this year Catarrhozone, and not having been bothered with the disease, am quite sure this prevented and cured me." To those who commence Catarrhozone treatment now the makers guarantee prevention from attack. Complete outfit $1; small size 25 cents. Druggists, or N. C. Polson & Co.,

PROMINENT MEN TO VISIT SOO.

Liberal Clubs' Excursion Will Be Well Patronized.

Trip Will Afford Unexcelled Opportunities for Studying This Rapidly Developing Country.

Next Tuesday a party of prominent Liberals from different parts of Ontario will sail on the Monarch from Sarnia to the Soo. It will be the first excursion held under the auspices of the Association of Liberal Clubs and promises to be vastly interesting. Mr. Geo. M. Reid, president of the association, has had the arrangements in hand, and those who go on the trip have every assurance of a splendid time. The excursion is not for pleasure merely, unless it be that the gaining of knowledge is considered pleasure. Much of the week that will be taken by the trip will be used in studying the new country that has disclosed its wealth since the force of the energetic Ross policy of de-velopment has been felt. Its great industries of mines and forest will be shown to the party, which will have an unexcelled opportunity to study the possibilities of the rich See district. The excursion, which is, of course, for Liberals alone, will be patronized by torian and scientist and discoverer of quite a large number of the provinces politicians, many of whom have already handed in their names to Mr. Reid. It is well for intending excursionists to do this, for then he can secure good berths; otherwise, chances must be taken. The party returns by way of Collingwood.

AGAINST THE UNIONS

Injunction Prohibiting Picketing Discussed By Trades Union Congress

Swansea, Wales, Sept. 3.-A commotion was caused at today's session of the Traces Union Congress here by the action of some employers in endeavoring to recover damages under the House of Lords' decision of July 22 last, from labor organizations for picketing by their members. A delegate from Blackburn was served with a writ yesterday restraining him and the members of the Blackburn branch of the Weavers', Winders' and Warpers' Association from picketing Banister & Moore's works, where a strike is now in progress. Damages and costs were claimed.

Besides this suit, the Taff Vale Company is suing the Parliamentary Society of Railway Servants for $20,-000 damages, incurred as a result of the strike of 1900. These suits will be strenuously defended, but their seriousness puts in the shade almost every other topic of discussion.

President Bowerman today devoted the principal part of his address to this topic, declaring that union funds threatened with demolishment, and that the position was intolerable. He said the parliamentary committee favored an alteration of the constitutions of the unions with the object of minimizing their liabilities to action. The Chronicle today supports this view, maintaining that no association of workingmen can stand long against such litigation, and that if decision regarding picketing is final then any unscrupulous capitalist will have his employes at his mercy "the working classes will sink back again into an unorganized and impotent crowd."

Directors of Western Confident of Great Success.

Have Explained Their Plans to Mans · facturers, and the Outlook for a Big Day Is Bright.

The directors of the Western Fair, in their crusade for a big Citizens' Day on Monday next, have issued, through Secretary Nelles, the following letter to the manufacturers of the city, and from the assurances of hearty co-operation already given, expect that a very large majority will close down on that day: "Presuming that it is customary for

The outlook for the Western is bright indeed. #### GRAND OPERA HOUSE STAFF.

Theater Attaches Who Will Serve Amusement Lovers Buring Coming Season.

The new Grand Opera House, which will throw open its doors on Monday evening next for the first time, under the direction of the lessees, Messrs. C. J. Whitney and A. J. Small, will be equipped as follows, in the matter of house staff: Manager, J. F. Cairns; treasurer, H. J. Mac-mahon; assistant treasurer, E. Ruse; doormen, John and Dan McLeod; chief usher, Alf. Sheere; musical director, F. L. Evans; advertising agent, Sam Loughrey; stage carpenter, John Wilson; engineer, G. R. Kettyl; special policeman, Thomas Parks. The balance of the staff is made up principally of former attaches of the old Grand before it was burned. Most of these gentlemen are already known in London as being affable, courteous and competent, while the newcomers will be found equally solicitous to serve the public well.

PLAN AT GILLEAN'S Manager Cairns of the Grand Opera House has arranged to place the plan for "Way Down East," which opens the new Opera House on Monday night at Gillean's jewelry store, where a opens tomorrow and will be found for the next few days .. Besides the regular night performances on Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday, a special popular price matinee will be given Wednesday afternoon, admission being 50 and 25 cents. This is an unusual departure for the management of the play; but Manager Cairns secured it for the benefit of the London public. "Way Down East" is a strong presenfail to teach to every thinking witness the injustice of that standard of morals which calls in question the sex rather than the person of the transgressor. The tone of the play is pure and sweet, and shows the God-likeness of humanity when at its best.

"WOMAN AGAINST WOMAN." Last night's presentation of "Woman Against Woman," at the London Opera House, was thoroughly satisfactory to the large audience present. The members of the company for the most part filled acceptably their respective rolls. Miss Katherine Stan-dish, the beautiful actress, to whom falls the most important characterizations, was excellent as Bessy Barton, the loving wife, whose faithfulness and courage conquered doubt. distrust and the wiles of her enemy. Other members of the company worthy of mention were Harry H. Linton as John Tressidor, E. A. Hammond as Phil Tressidor, and Miss Hurley as Debora Harton. Vernon and Kennedy gave a good sketch and E. J. Moore did some clever feats in legerdemaine. This afternoon a Parisian Princess" is being repeated, while tonight's bill is the beautiful old-time favorite, "Hazel Kirke."

GIDEON'S LUCK. New York, Sept. 4.-A tale of the betting New York, Sept. 4.—A tale of the betching ring comes from the track at Sheepshead Boy. Yesterday Dave Gideon, well known among all horsemen, made what is commonly known as a "killing," his winnings being placed at $100,000 as a minimum. Josepha, entered in the first race, was held by the bookmakers at the opening of the race at 60 to 1, and when Gideon and his commission men had finished the filly was down to 3 to 1. When the race was run the ring woke up to find that there was nothing in it but Josepha. The general public had little fancy for the horse and Gideon was the most because horse, and Gideon was the main beneficiary of his own foresight.

HOW THE YANKEES WIN RACES. There is a growing opinion among yachtsmen, confesses the New York World, that the reason Columbia beats the Constitution, which is supposedly built on faster lines, is not to be found so much in the poor fit of her sails as it is in the way she is sailed. It is freely stated by those who ought to know that Columbia wins because Charlie Barr is her skipper.

ELSIE.

00000000000000

"Yes," she said, as she returned from the bookshelves and took her place close to the fire with a book of Longfellow's poems in her hands—"yes, it is a shame that I am left here alone. I can't read—no. How the wind pipes amid the trees in the garden! Jetty is gone to bed." She looked at her watch. "Half-past nine; at ten I will go to bed and go to sleep, and forget those tramps."

The fire gave out a pleasant heat to and forget those tramps."

The fire gave out a pleasant heat to Elsie as she leaned back in the comfortable straw-backed chair, her head rested against the cushions. She began to dream pleasant dreams. She was at a gay ball in a grand company, dancing a quadrille with handsome Owen Hammond. He told her that he was quite false, that he was going to marry Miss Stanly. He was making love to Elsie between the figures while the side couples were dancing to the strains of lively music, when suddenly there came the sound of a great hammering and knocking.

Elsie awoke with a start of terror. Her fire had burnt to its lowest smould-

Elsie awoke with a start of terror. Her fire had burnt to its lowest smouldering embers; the wax candles were flaming, the wicks level with the candlesticks. She had slept. How long? She looked at her watch; nearly two hours and a half—it was a quarter to twelve. But, horror of horrors! what—what was that noise? The sound of files; the sound of burglars cutting their way through the wooden shutters of one of the windows in the long schoolroom! They could not see the light, or could they through some possible chink in the shutter?

Were these the two tramps she had met? Had they watched her home, and now how long before they are in the very room where she sits trembling over the dying fire?

Jetty is asleep at the very top of the dying fire?

Jetty is asleep at the very top of the wide, rambling old house. Elsie starts to her feet, but her limbs tremble so that she cannot stand. For the moment fear holds her in its grasp, her heart qualis. Outside the sound of the filing and sawing goes steadily on; then a sudden thought strikes her!

CHAPTER III.

Jetty was sleeping at the very top of the house, in an attic reached by a nar-row, steep staircase. Coome Hill was grotesque, rambling, coome Hill was grotesque, rambling, old-fashioned in design. The errand boy slumbered peacefully in a room leading to the outer offices—a room that had been called the saddle room when Coome Hill had been in the occupation of a foxhunting parson. This dormitory was on the same floor as the schoolroom, into which the burglars were so swiftly cutting their way ting their way.

No use to call the errand boy, very little use to call Jetty. What could two helpless girls and a child do to defend themselves against perhaps half a dozen ruffians? What spoil had they come after?

Eisie was young and jumped hastily to conclusions. She fancied that these were the tramps she had met in the lane; that the said tramps had found out how unprotected she was, and had come to take her gold watch and chain, which they had seen in her possession. Certainly her gold watch and chain, which they had seen in her possession. Certainly Miss Phillipson possessed a silver teapot, Miss Phillipson possessed a silver teapot, sugar-basin, and cream-ewer, which were displayed on great occasions, and the fame whereof might have penetrated to other villages than Allambury. Those valluables were all locked up in Miss Phillipson's own chest of drawers. She had not locked her room door because Jetty was instructed to light a fire there twice a week; consequently the thieves, if they knew where to find this plate; could easily get at it in about half an hour-or much less when once they were in the house.

hour—or much less when once they were in the house.

When once they were in the house!

Already the shutters were crashing and splintering; a spiece of wood fell on to the bare floor with a loud thud.

Elsie started up ghastly white, her eyes distended with fear; but she was about the part of the started with started to be supported by the started with started to be supported by the started with started to be supported by the s to put into execution the thought which had struck her, when a man's head—a pearded, savage-looking head—was thrust oearded, savage-looking head—was thrust through the sundered woodwork. To Elsie it looked like the head of one ruffian she had met in the lane. She found wings to her feet now! She fled towards the door. The key—the key! was it outside or inside the lock? Merciful Heaven! it was inside, and the man was breaking and crashing the really strong oaken shutters which the iron bar across had hitherto resisted all his efforts to wrench open. wrench open. With trembling hands Elsie began to

with trembing hands Elsie began to draw the key from the lock; the burglar saw her, uttered hideous words, and took a frightful oath that he would kill her if she attempted to lock him in; all the while he was beating against the shutters, but they had not given way sufficiently to admit of the entrance of the man's hread shouldars.

Out—out of the lock! and now to thrust it in on the other side in the dark, for the corridor was in total darkness!

Yes, yes, she has got it in; and now she has slammed the door, and has turned the key at the exact moment that she hears the hurglar leap on to the floor hears the burglar leap on to the floor and cross it, uttering the most fearful and deadly threats! But they can't get out—not yet! She has left the key in the lock, and it is a double lock, as she sudloek, and it is a double lock, as she suddenly recollects with a thrill of satisfaction. Even while they are hammering at this door she has turned the key a second time; then she goes and sits for a moment on the stairs to make up her mind what it will be wise to do.

Twelve o'clock. Seven hours before the winter dawn. In less than half an hour they will have the door off its hinges for they have tools. It is a strong door, but they have tools. When once they are in the corridor, if she is in the house they will have found her and killed her in revenge.

Upstairs she darts into her own room. strikes a match, lights a candle, puts on a thick shawl over her head and should-ers, takes her slender stock of money and the great gold locket which contains her mother's likeness, then, still in her soft house-shoes she descends the stair.

The men are moving the door perceptibly. They do not hear her, he treads so lightly; but as she darts round to the back she starts, and utters a cry—a low cry of fear for somebody is expressible.

cry of fear, for somebody is approaching her from the regions of the kitchen. It is a small figure in white shirt sleeves.

"Oh, Jem, is it only you!"

Yes, it was only little Jem, the errand boy, without shoes, without coat, without hat. Miss, oh! please what is the matter? I woke up and dreamt there was a man in my room a-going to cut my throat, and then I heard a noise—don't you hear it now, miss?"

"Yes, yes! There are thieves in the schoolroom; I locked them in. Put on your shoes and your coat and come with me down to the village to the police station. Come, don't whimper, Jem. They can't get the door down all at once, it's so strong. Poor Jetty! I know she locks her door. It would have taken me an hour to rouse her. I know what she is in the morning. Make haste, Jem!"

Jem soon appeared, boots on his feet, a cap on his head, and a jacket protect-ing him to the waist. Along a stone passage to the back door; it is bolted top and bottom, but in less time than it takes to write the words. Elsie and her small attendant words. Eisle and her small attendant are standing in the garden, which the thick-falling snow has carpeted with white some hours ago. It did not snow at that moment, but the winds pierced to Eisle's bones. The moon was riding placidly among wild clouds that looked like stormy waves.
"Come! come!" said Elsie.
Her little white teeth chattered as she gave the command. Danger, peril, death seemed to be lurking in every dark evergreen of the garden. The men were in the front of the house. If they found Eisie and Jem leaving the premises they would have killed them. What a mercy Jetty was not there, for she could not have helped talking—and talking loudly, too. Her voice would inevitably have brought the ruffians down upon them. "Across the garden," whispered Elsie, "and out into the lane through the side gate; it's bolted on the inside. We can get out."

garden. Very soon Elsie and the boy were in the lane, but the way to the village lay right in front of the house. The schoolroom windows were at the side. There was just a chance that the men might see the two figures flitting by in the moonlight. Elsie led the way noise-lessly, swiftly, keeping in the shadow under the trees, and at length the front of the house was passed, and the two were in the side. The schoolroom windows were at the side. The schoolroom windo pered Jem.

U. S. YACHTMEN BACKING THE SHAMROCK. New York, Sept. 4.-The Herald's correspondent at Newport says: Some New York Yacht Club members of the speculative turn of mind have wagered money here on the Shamrock, obtaining small odds in some cases, while other bets have been made at evens. The elimination of the Constitution from the controversy, and the sending to the front of the Columbia, which now looks as if it would be the end of the challenge committee's deliberations, surrounds the next international match with more doubt, more seriousness than has ever before been the case in the history of the cup. ANOTHER SUCCESSFUL SPIN. New York, Sept. 4.-The Shamrock II. returned to her mooring at 5:30 o'clock yesterday afternoon after a successful trial spin, lasting 3½ hours. Rounding the point of the Hook at ing about off Sea Bright, at 3:07, a small balloon jib topsall was set for a few minutes; then a larger one was tried, and finally, at 3:50, after jib-bing to starboard, the spinnaker was set to port for a few minutes. It was noted that in all the setting and shifting of sails, the men worked with a remarkable precision. It took just three and a half minutes to set the spinnaker and seven minutes to change balloon jib topsails. At no time did the strength of the wind exseed five knots and yet the yacht, with the wind abeam, traveled at fully a nine-knot rate at times.

Crowning Feature of the Fan-American Midway.

Frederick Thompson's Concession the Most Elaborate, Mystifying and Entertaining Ever Seen On Any Midway-Flight Through Space and Trip Through Man in the Moon's Domains a Really New and Novel Experience.

When Frederic Thompson designed his famous airship "Luna," he scored a triumph over all his competitors on the Midway of the Pan-American Exposition, for in the trim little craft and "A Trip to the Moon" he has given us something new under the sun. The dream of all ancient and modern inventors and astronomers has at last been realized. Those who have envied the swallow his privilege of gliding through the air, need envy him no longer, for the delightfully novel sensation of coursing along the pathless wastes of the sky, away beyond the ken of birds of the air, into space, crossing the paths of the meteors, viewing the stars as they pass and at last anchoring on the surface of the moon herself, are pleasures within the reach of all who visit the big fair.

Carrying as many as 250 passengers, the Luna, Capt. Xenao Uuynd, rises gracefully from her landing dock on the North Midway, her great wings slowly moving up and down. Up and forward moves the graceful Luna, gaining speed with each measured stroke of her giant wings, till the swift rushing air tells the passenger that he is flying through the air at a peed greater than is possible on terra firma.

Then, for the first time, the novice in aerial navigation realizes that a trip in an airship is quite unlike any other method of traveling. The timid who had anticipated a form of seasickness, find that the gentle swaying motion of the ship rising on the invisible air, imparts a most pleasant sensation—for there are no waves, no breakers in space. Faster and faster she glides along,

A clap of thunder, accompanied by blinding flashes of lightning, awaken all, and then for a time the glories of a thunderstorm are ex-perienced at close range. But it is not for long. The great wings throb, and in a trice the starlit sky bursts on the view again. Through space she flies with her astonished passengers. To the Editor of The Advertiser: Last spring, when fruit trees were in bloom, I gave your readers a forecast of the probable set of fruit that we would have this season, which was that would have this season, which was that it would be very unsatisfactory; and now that the crop is nearly developed, my predictions are verified, for with few exceptions the crop is not only short, but almost a failure. I refer particularly to apples. The cause of the short crop is that during the time of bloom we had cold and wet weether, which prepared cold and wet weather, which prevented insects and bees from fertilizing the blossoms. I say there are few exceptions, and I am one of them. I give the credit chiefly to my bees. I had perhaps 300,000 in my yard and if, as it was on certain days, we had perhaps only one hour's sun, my fertilizers would all rush out, and doubless would give my orchard their first attention. Brother Caverhill some time ago reported a good set in his orchard; well, he is a neighbor, and a cold and wet weather, which prevente them at $1,100, or $2 15 per barrel as they come off the trees, and will get either one or the other price for them before I sell. Whilst I give my bees their due share of credit, I must reserve some for myself. The bulk of the apples in the county, like "Topsy," just growed themselves, with about the same results. I grow my apples about as I want them to grow. Yours truly, A. C. ATTWOOD. Evergreen Hill Fruit Farm, Vanneck.

WILLING WORKERS' GOOD DEED, The Children's Aid Society Shelter, 109 Wharncliffe road, was on Saturday last presented with a beautiful, new $13 hall rack and a $3 toilet set, also four new white quilts. The donors of this splendid gift are seven children, calling themselves "The Seven Willing Workers." The money was raised by means of a bazar held on Friday last in Mrs. A. M. The example of these Willing Workers in thus using their vacation time to help those less fortunate than themselves, writes Secretary Sanders, is one which might be followed by many other children in this city. Nor is the pleasure all onesided, for in thus helping others these children have doubtlessly been happier than those who devoted all their time to their own enjoyment. The society wishes to express its sincerest thanks to the seven little Willing Workers. Results of Midsummer Examinations Highly Satisfactory to the Trustees - Monday Is a Holiday.

The members of the school board were well satisfied last night with Principal Radcliffe's report upon the results of the recent examinations, and greeted with a chorus of "Hear, hear," his statement that the London Collegiate Institute was considerably in advance of any other school. Its pupils won 223 certificates. In Part I., junfor leaving, 56 candidates were successful. Part II., junior leaving, 40; Part I., junior matriculation, 59; Part II., junior matriculation, 32; senior leaving, 17; honor matriculation, 10; commercial diplomas, 5; Royal Military College, 4; total, 223.

Dr. Teasdall would like to know how many pupils stay two terms at the public school so as to win the medal, and to that end, Inspector Carson re ported the age and time spent in the principal's room by the 25 pupils standing highest in the lists. Mr. Carson's opinion was that the number who did this was very small. Those who re-mained over invariably made the poorest showing.

A number of matters were referred to No. 1 committee, among them being the application of Mr. J. H. Taggie for permission to send a child to Princess avenue school instead of St. George's Misses Mary F. Leggatt, Annetts Strongman, Mabel Jeffrey, Eva Field. Marion Porteous and Kate Wood, for positions on the teaching staff. Mr. J. W. Hotson and Miss Blanche Hays, for positions as substitute teachers; Misses May Allison and Isabella Harris, for ap-pointment as kindergarten students; Mr. John Cameron, for refund of fees of a pupil who was unable to write a the midsummer examination.

The reports of the several commit-
