Hampton, Va., Dec. 1.—The battleship Texas had a narrow escape from being blown up at the Virginia Capes on Fri-day. She left the Portsmouth navy yard on a trial trip, after having been overon a trial trip, after having been over-hauled, and went out to the capes, where gun practice was had. Two of the turret guns exploded, filling the gun room with glycerine and water, but the magnificent work of the gunners saved the vessel from serious damage, as well as the lives of those on board her. The ship returned of those on board her. The ship returned to Old Point, and in the afternoon a special inspection board is making an examination of the injury.

Merchantmen—Protests Pass Unheeded.

[From the Chicago Tribune.

Port of Spain, Island of Trinidad, Dec. 1.-Sir Courtenay Knollys, Actng Governor of Trinid d, believes that Great Britain and Germany are preparing for joint action against Vene-The people of Trinidad, he says, think it time for the foreign powers to intervene in the matter. Venezuelan gunboats have recently seized four British merchantmen in the Orinoco River, and the protest made regarding these seizures has not been heeded. An American ship is now here bound for the Orinoco, and is awaiting a decision from the Washington Government as to whether or not the blockade is effective. Gov. Knollys declares that Venezuela no cause for complaint at the failure of the powers to recognize the blockade, as such recognition would mean the investing of the revolutionists with belligerent rights, and would close Trimdad to Castro's warships, which use Port of Spain as a place for refitting. He insists that the Island of Patos is British territory, and has been so for a century, and declares that ample proof of his statement is obtainable. The sympathy of Trinidad is with the revolutionists, though it is admitted that Castro is now dominant. BARCELONA IN GOVERNMENT

HANDS. Caracas, Venezuela, Dec. 1 .- A force of Government troops, numbering 3,100, under Gens. Velutini and Olivares, reccupied Barcelona on the morning of Nov. 26. Rolando, who joined them last week with only 200 men, abandoned the city before the arrival of the Government forces, taking with them the leading prisoners whom they captured some

On the Other Side of Jordan.

Boer People. Berlin, Dec. 1 .- The British Governports, making inquiries concerning a number of Boer gold bars, worth $650,-000, which it is supposed have been brought to this country from South Africa within the past fortnight. The sumed had been concealed in the Northern Transvaal. Great Britain will endeavor to legally attach the gold if it can be located, on the ground that she is entitled to all the assets of the Transvaal, having assumed responsibility for debts of that country contracted before the war. Gen. Botha's reply to Colonial Secretary Chamberlain that the late Boer Government had no assets was strictly true, as far as he knew, but since receiving Mr. Chamberlain's letter, Gen. Botha learned, according to seemingly trustworthy information, that Mr. Kruger and Dr. Leyds have in their possession $2,500,000. Gen. Botha requested them to turn over this gold for the benefit of the Boer people, but Dr. Leyds refused, averring that the money was to be used in upholding the Boer nationality in the future. Gen. Botha has notified Dr. Leyds that unless the gold is given up legal proceedings will be brought against him.

KRUGER WANTS TO GO BACK. London, Dec. 1.-Gen. Schalkburger and Messrs. Wessels and Wilmarans, the former Boer delegates, have sailed for South Africa. The general is the bearer of a letter from Mr. Kruger to Colonial Secretary Chamberlain asking that Mr. Kruger be allowed to return to South Africa.

Caught in the Act. St. Thomas, Dec. 1.—The coroner's jury in the case of William H. Brown, who was found dead in the Grand Trunk yards on Tuesday, brought in a verdict to the effect that Brown came to his lieve that Canada's stand on the point in question is due to the feeling of security which Canada enjoys under the present system of defense of Great Britain.

THE G. T. PACIFIC WANTS SUBSIDY

Another Statement—Scheme Meets Opposition.

Montreal, Nov. 30.—There seems ment is telegraphing to all German be a misunderstanding in some quarters about the position of the G. T. R. and its proposed extension through the Northwest. "Anyone who thinks." said Mr. Hays today, "that the combars are destined for former President pany will not apply to Parliament for Kruger and Dr. Leyds, and it is pre- aid for that project is greatly mistaken." It is therefore evident that there will be some lively discussions in Parliament next session, for the words of Sir Thomas Shaughnessy, indicating the approval of the C. P. R., were based on the hypothesis that the G. T. R. would build the extension without asking public aid. OPPOSE GRAND TRUNK PACIFIC. A dispatch from Quebec says that the directors of the Trans-Canada Railway, which is chartered to run from Quebec to Port Simpson, are much incensed at the Grand Trunk's new transcontinental scheme, and have resolved to ask the board of trade to call a general meeting of all its members and of the representatives of the district for next week to discuss the whole question, and in the meantime to protect the interests of the Province, which are menaced by this new Grand Trunk scheme. The Trans-Canada had a short time ago given a provisional contract for first 400 miles of its railway in this Province, and the financial negotiations for the whole line are now in a very forward state, and the Grand Trunk have no charter whatever for any western line. It was also pointed out that if the action of the Grand Trunk should stop the construction of the Trans-Canada, not only would the Province lose the immense revenue expected to be received from the forest lands of the James Bay territory, but the Quebec bridge, now under struction, might be imperilled by the prospective loss of traffic from the same service, and it was also pointed out that the Grand Trunk scheme would cut the Maritime ports out from the winter traffic, which would be diverted to Portland and New York.

MR. HUGH J. MACDONALD'S RE-TURN. Mr. Hugh John Macdonald, accompanied by Mrs. Macdonald, arrived in the city yesterday, after spending four months in England and on the continent. Mr. Macdonald stated that one of the things that pleased him most to hear on his arrival was that the Grand Trunk proposed giving Canada a second transcontinental railway. As yet, nowever, he had not had an opportunity of studying the project, as proposed by the officials of the railway company, and therefore would not like to discuss them.

Disappointed at Canada's Attitude. Montreal Dec. 1.—Principal Peterson, C.M.G., of McGill University, who has just returned from England, states that corthe distribution of McGill University, who has just returned from England, states that the general impression, as he found it in England, was that the Canadian delegates to the imperial conference had put a drag on the proceedings, which were consequently without practical effect. English people were disappointed on the attitude of Canada on the question of imperial defense. but accepted the opposite perial defense, but accepted the opposi-tion to direct contributions as representing the opinion of the Canadian people, in view of the welcome which the delegates received on their return from London. PRINCIPAL GRANT ON PROHIBITION.

To the Editor of the Advertiser: On Dec. 4 next the people are asked to vote on the question of prohibition. May I ask you to give publicity to the following series of opinions of one of our most eminent writers? They are extracts from the last series of letters by the late Principal Grant. They were published in the Globe, Toronto, on Feb. 5, 12, 19, 26, and March 5, 1902. Respectfully yours,

MODERATION. "The Dominion plebiscite of 1898 was well worth the cost of taking the vote. It showed that Canada, in the judgment of moderate men, is not ripe for a prohibitory law."

I trust, now that the matter has been brought so near to us, that no man who respects himself or who values the moral life of his province, will be guilty of the contempt which is involved in not voting."

"The longer I live, the more varied my experience, the more impartial my study of the facts connected with the oft-repeated attempts to suppress rather than to regulate the liquor traffic; and the more mature my reflections on the springs of human action, the more am I convinced that the prohibitionists are on the wrong track. and that they have been and are doing more harm than good, especially to the cause of temperance."

"The Scott Act with us admittedly proved a failure. It follows that provincial prohibition would be a greater

Would the cities suffer themselves to be governed by the vote of rural municipalities? The experience of St. John, N. B., gives the answer. May we not judge what the effect of Provincial prohibition would be in Toronto, a city with seven or eight times the population of St. John then had. Ottawa might stand it for Quebec is on the opposite side of the river. What roaring business the liquor sellers of Hull would drive!"

So, too, every city and town along the front-Kingston, Brockville, Prescott-would find a city of refuge on the other side of the St. Lawrence. and many who went there to drink would soon learn to transact other

"It is surely manifest, then, that pro-Chibition for Ontario would be worse than the Scott Act proved itself to be for the cause of temperance and general morality."

"Of course, every prohibitionist does not say that it is a sin to buy, sell or use strong drink, but that is the position of the extreme men who control the organization. How Jews or Christians can take such a position is a mystery. The noblest code of laws in the Old Testament is the Deuteronomic, and it is impossible for any honest man to evade the force of its lan-

Their founders adopted the root-and-branch method instead of recognizing, as Christianity does, that the temperance resulting from spiritual power and the principle of distinguished between the use and the they sit hour after hour, boozing and abuse of things, or the voluntary abstinence which springs from selfsacrificing regard for weaker brethren, starved and weary waiting for them. is far higher than the negative virtue

'Again, prohibitionists prevent the adoption of any method but the one which has been discredited by experience and which the instinct of liberty bids many of us to reject for our conviction is that 'every act of authority of one man over another for which

Defeat of Boers Attributed to Treachery Alone.

KIND WORD FOR TOMMY ATKINS

Boer and Briton Both Come Under the Author's Lash-Buller's Official Task.

London, Dec. 1. - "Had not so many of our burghers proved false to their own colors. England, as the great Bismarck foretold, would have found her grave in South Africa."

That is the keynote of the Boer General Dewet's book, entitled, "Three Years' War," publish by Archibald, Constable & Co., in London, and dedicated by the Pool of the Poo and dedicated by the Boer general to "My Fellow-Subjects of the British Empire." It is perhaps the most remarkable book by the most remarkable leader that any recent war has produced. The concise story of the extraordinary campaign is simply told. The boldness of the narrative only serves to bring into striking relief the fiery passages where a strong man literally blurts out his soul in pathetic regret or bitter denunciation. In thus taking the public into his confidence, Dewet loses nothing of the glamor with which his exploits in the field surrounded him. In criticising he spares no one. Boer and Briton come equally under the lash. BULLER'S HARD TASK.

Dewet declares that whatever the English people may have to say in discredit of General Buller, he had to operate against stronger positions than any other British general. Throughout the work the Boer general has but slight praise for Lord Roberts, and little more for Lord General Knox is almost the only British general who seems to have British were far from being bad shots." The comparative immunity of the Boers from harm, Dewet con-to the interposition of God.

"If any reader," he says, "is eager to know how it was I kept out of the enemy's hands, I can only answer—although it may not be understood—I ascribe it to nothing else than this: It was not God's will that I should fall into their hands. Let those who rejoice at my miraculous those who rejoice at my miraculous escapes give all the praise to God."

Nevertheless, the book teems with accounts of military and other stratagem by which Dewet outwitted his pursuers. Frequently he recounts cases of desertion and panic among his own men when his entreaties and sjamboking were all to no avail. THE PAARDEBERG DISASTER. Dewet pays tribute to General Cronje for his bravery, but declares he lost at Paardeberg only on account of his fatal obstinacy to leave the laager, as he was advised to do by Gen. Botha and by the writer himself.

Regarding his own forces, Dewet writes: "It was by far easier to fight against the great English army than against treachery among my own people, and an iron will was required to fight against both. Once if only our orders had been carried out a little more strictly, and if only the most elementary rules of strategy had been observed in our efforts to break the English lines of communication, Lord Roberts and his thousands of troops would have found themselves shut up in Pretoria, where they would have perished of hunger. It was not the skill of their commander-in-chief that saved them."

THE BLOCKHOUSE POLICY. Of the blockhouses, Dewet is frankly contemptuous. "The block-house policy," he says, "might equally well have been called the policy of the blockhead." The writer emphatically defends the right to blow up railway lines and trains as the usage of war, and he declares he never missed an oppor-

so-called war against women, and the misuse of the white flag by the British is sternly denounced by the Boer general, who says: "That such direct and indirect murder should have been committed against defense-less women and children is a thing against which I should have staked my head; it never should have happened in a war waged by the civilized English nations, and yet it happened."

His last word is an injunction his fellow-countrymen to be loyal to the new Government. "Loyalty," he says, "pays best in the end, and Of "Tommy Atkins" he has any kind words to say, and declares "the British were far from being bad shots." The comparative immunity of the Boers from being bad the Boers fr

Jail-Breaker Returns to Buffalo Crusade Against It Led by Kev. From Canada.

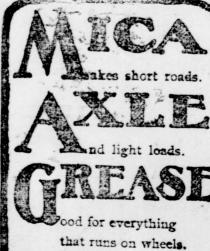

Will Finish His Term-Wanted to Fifty Per Cent of Marriages in One Spend Thanksgiving at Home.

Buffalo, N. Y., Dec. 1. — A special from Lockport says: "C. Braithewaite, sentenced to six months in Niagara jail for forgery committed at Niagara Falls under the name of John Daley, who cleverly broke jail Thanksgiving night, surprised the prison officials at 9:30 Sunday night by knocking for admission. He was accompanied by his father, a public official of Toronto. When Jailer Foley asked "Who's there?" a familiar voice replied, "Daley; I have come back to stay with you my allotted time. Will you let me in?"

The astonished jailer could hardly believe his ears, as the jail-breaking was cleverely planned and executed. and this was the first man to escape from the new Niagara prison. When the door was thrown open in walked Braithewaite, alias Daley, ac-companied by his father, a fine-looking and well-dressed man. The prisoner is only 30. He pleaded guilty to forgery and eloquently begged Judge Hickey to be lenient on account of his wife and children. District Attorney Stockwell learned that his true name was Braithewaite, and that he was of a distinguished and influential Toronto family, and at his earnest request permitted the young man to be sentenced as Daley to shield their good name. Young Braithewaite stated last night that he could not resist the longing to go to his family on Thanksgiving Day. He knocked a bar out of a second story window and slid down a rope made of a blanket. How he got across the Canadian border he did not ex-plain, but he eluded the officers, who were on his track ten minutes after his escape. He says his father persuaded him to return and complete his sentence like a man, to avoid having two crimes hanging over him all his

County End in Separation.

Topeka, Kan., Dec. 1. - Led by the Rev. Charles M. Sheldon, author and reformer and pastor of the Central Congregational Church of this city, the Ministerial Union of Topeka has begun a vigorous crusade against the divorce evil, which is believed to flourish more in this place than anywhere else in the United States.

Investigation of official records has resulted in the amazing revelation that fully 50 per cent of the marriages made in Shawnee County, where Topeka is situated, and possibly throughout the state, end in divorce. For 561 marriage licenses granted during the last year in this county alone, 234 divorce suits were brought and 204 divorces granted. As many licenses were issued to residents of small towns in the surrounding country who came here to be married, while the divorce suits were all filed by residents of Shawnee County, the large percentage is easily reach-

Dr. Sheldon has issued a statement giving his views of the causes and remedies of the evil. The causes, he says, are hasty marriages; easy divorces; low or frivolous conceptions of the purpose and meaning of marriage; social and other demands which render motherhood inconvenient, and so prevent the God-intended bond between man and wife; the gaiety, luxury and materialism of the age; the lessened sense of moral and religious obliga-tion; society's complaisant laxity; the spread of such literature as inflames passion and saps principle, and the mplicity of ministers who, for a fee, marry divorced persons. These are the remedies he suggests: niform divorce law for the whole United States, allowing various degrees of legal separation for many causes, but absolute divorce for only one-adultery; emphatic affirmation by all the churches, in law and practice, of Christ's law of divorce for one cause only; instruction of girls and boys in preparation for the duties and responsibilities of marriage; the banishing of bad literature, however good; society's emphatic disapproval of divorce; emphasis on life as service, not as mere pleasure, and a sweeping revival of the fear of God.

The Rev. James P. De Beever, dean of the Grace Cathedral, who is earnestly supporting Mr. Sheldon, holds Singers Prevented a Panic.

Syracuse, Dec. 1. - Fire started in the basement of John Sabey's wholesale hat store of the Wieting Opera House, just about the conclusion of an opera. The stage manager informed the company that there was no danger, but to avoid a panic they should show no alarm and finish the opera. This they did while the smoke almost blinded them, though it was not visible to the audience until almost the The show was dismissed. Few perto the audience until almost the close. close. A woman was carried down by firemen from the third floor of the Sabey block. The damage was about $4,000, mainly from water.

Unique Advertising Scheme.

Kalamazoo, Mich., Dec. 1. - An adhas made a novel proposition to Oscar Millard, owner of the Kala-Oscar Millard, owner of the Kala-mazoo house. On behalf of half a of the Dominion, and am satisfied that dozen Battle Creek health food companies and a Marshall dyspepsia tablet firm this agency offers to rent the hotel for one year, paying Millard a larger price for the period than the profits of the house now amount to. The advertising firm then proposes to close up the hotel, board up the front and side windows and doors and cover the whole structure from top to bottom with immense ads for Battle Creek and Marshall concerns. It is then the purpose to advertise novel scheme from one end of the country to the other. Mr. Millard will probably accept the proposition.

IS A SERIOUS MATTER

The Most Serious and Fatal Diseases Arise From Indigestion.

Chronic indigestion or dyspepsia while a very common trouble, has for some time been looked upon by able physicians as a serious thing, and that no time should be lost in treating it properly at the start, because recent researches have shown that the most serious, fatal and incurable diseases have their origin in simple dyspepsia or indigestion.

Diabetes is simply one form of indigestion, the sugar and starchy food not being assimilated by the digestive organs. In Bright's Disease the albumen is not properly assimilated.

While consumption and dyspepsia are twin diseases, it is beyond question that dyspepsia makes a fertile for the seeds of consumption. But the trouble has been to find a remedy that could be depended upon to cure dyspepsia, as it is notoriously obstinate and difficult to cure. This has been the question which has puzzled physicians and dyspeptics alike, until the question was solved three years ago by the appearance of a new discovery in the medical world known as Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets, which it was claimed was a certain, reliable cure for every form of stomach trouble.

Physicians, however, would not accept such statements without first giving the new remedy many tests and carefully observing results. For three years the remedy has been horoughly tested in every section of the country and with surprising and satisfactorsy results. Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets can be honestly claimed to be a specific, a radical, lasting cure for indigestion in the various forms of acid dyspepsia or sour stomach, gas or wind on stomach, too much bile, undue fullness or pressure sent to the scene. after eating, and similar symptoms resulting from disordered digestion. Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets were not placed before the public until this three years' trial left no doubt as to their value, and they have recently been placed in the trade and can be found on sale at all druggists at the neminal price of 50c per package. No extravagant claims are made for the remedy, it will not cure rheumatism, pneumonia, typhoid fever nor anything but just what it is claimed to cure, and that is every form of stomach trouble. No dieting is necessary, good wholesome food and plenty of it, and you may rest assured that Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets will digest it. Druggists claim for it that it is a pleasure to recommend it to dyspeptics, because it gives such universal satisfaction

But there were many other settlements in which he saw flora and vegetation that would not exist in a climate too cold for wheat. Mr. Macoun, however, thinks far more money could be made by turning these fields to grazing.

Sault Ste. Marie, Mich., says: The steamer Bannockburn, with her crew of 20 men, is given up for lost by local marine men. The report received last night that she was ashore near Michipicoten seems to be without foundation. The belief that the steamer has met with disaster is strengthened by the fact that the steamer Rockefeller. which arrived here today, reported passing through wreckage off Standard Rock. This is supposed to be from the missing boat. The wrecking tugs Boynton and Favorite have made a search along the north shore of Lake Superior without finding any trace of the Canadian steamer. The accepted theory is that the Bannockburn foundered in midlake and went down with

SCORFS OF PERSONS INJURED

Flames Swept the Ruins-No One in the Boiler Room Lived to Tell the Story.

Chicago, Dec. 1.-With a deafening report a boiler in Swift & Co.'s plant exploded shortly after 10 o'clock Saturday morning. Thirteen lives were sacrificed and scores of employes, visitors and others were injured. Huge boilers were sent through the roof of the structure and hurled hund-

Nobody within the boiler room survived to tell the story of the accident, and it may never be known what caused the explosion. A careful investigation, however, has convinced the experts that the explosion was the result of carelessness on the part of an employe, whose own life also was sacrificed.

Five minutes after the explosion nothing of the building but a pile of twisted iron, bricks and mortar remained. Sheets of flame sprang from the ruins and the spectators realized that it would be impossible to save the lives of those who were in the wreck. FEARFUL FORCE OF EXPLOSION. The explosion was of such force that adjoining buildings were wrecked, torn and twisted like toys. Men, women and boys at work in adjoining departments were hurled through windows to the ground below. Many of them escaped with but slight bruises, but most of the victims were hurt to such an extent that it was necessary to remove them to hospitals. Others were taken to their homes. THE DEAD. The list of dead, compiled by the police and officers of the company, follow: H. Arnold, colored; James Owens, colored; A. Rachug, sewer digger; Simeon Tate, colored, fireman; W. O'Connor, sewer digger; E. Wright, colored, fireman; W. Alleged Briber Arrested.

Philadelphia, Pa., Dec. 1.-After eluding arrest for several months, Charles F. Kelly, the former speaker of the Missouri House of Delegates, who is wanted in St. Louis in connection with the bribery cases, was arrested in this city on Friday. In an interview he said: "I was on my way back to St. Louis, and meant to announce my arrival there Monday, and to give myself up and to answer whatever charges had been laid against me." Charles F. Kelly was the one most wanted of the members of the coterie indicted on charges of bribery in connection with the passage of the municipal lighting bill. Kelly was wanted because he was charged with handling the $47,500 bribe money, which, according to evidence, had been distributed among the nineteen members of the "combine." He was indicted on Sept. 8.

A Significant Movement.

The Detroit Chamber of Commerce has taken up in earnest the question of Canadian reciprocity and has called a national conference for Dec. 10 and 11. It is expected that a national organization will be effected for the promotion of the object in view. There is a sort of historical appropriateness in the holding of such an assembly in Detroit. It was in that city the great convention met in 1866 to discuss the question of extending the reciprocity treaty which had been in existence for twelve years, to the great advantage of both Canada and the United States. The convention, which was attended by representative men from all parts of Canada and the United States, was overwhelmingly in favor of the renewal of the treaty. That was the occasion of Joseph Howe's great speech, the effort of his life, which is still a tradition in both countries. The present conference, we are told, was intended to be merely a local affair, but the interest manifested has been so great that it has assumed national importance. Among the speakers will be Governor Cummins, of Iowa, Governor Stanley, of Kansas, and E. M. Foss, the Boston champion of Canadian reciprocity.

Michigan is chiefly interested in the lumber duties. Thomas Pitts, of Pitts & Co., lumber and salt manufacturers, in an interview says:

"The passage of the Dingley bill, with its tariff of $2 per 1,000, just double that exacted under the Mc-Kinley and Wilson tariffs bills, which were satisfactory to Canadians and Americans, has worked an irreparable harm to the lumbering interests of Michigan. At the time the Dingley law went into effect there were no less than 30 large firms engaged in the manufacture of lumber along the east shore of Michigan, extending from Cheboygan to Detroit. supply of timber in this State having been exhausted, they purchased immense tracts of forest in the Georgian Bay district, in Ontario, where the logs were cut and towed across Lake Huron and cut at the Michigan mills. "The Dingley bill contained a retaliatory clause providing that should the Canadians attach a tariff to logs the tariff on lumber imported should be doubled. The Ontario Government was wise, however, and beat the devil about the stump by passing an act expressly prohibiting the exportation of logs of any description, whether owned by Americans or Canadians.

"As a result of this action, which was a clever piece of work on the part of the Ontario Government, mill men were obliged to abandon their plants along the east shore, take down their sawmills and transport them to the Georgian Bay district, or get out their logs there and have them cut in Canadian mills. This resulted in a direct loss to this Government of the $1 per 1,000 formerly collected, a little matter of $3,000,000 annually, while the men formerly employed in the mills were either thrown out of work or forced to follow the mills.

"So far as Canada is concerned, she has been the winner in the move. The removal of the mills to the Georgian Bay district has opened up that done, and the good money earned by the employes of the mills, formerly spent this side of the border, now goes into the pockets of the mer-

"Canada is a land of unlimited wealth and resources, the real extent of which is as yet practically unknown, and nothing can retard her The sooner the United States realizes this and makes such trade relations as will be beneficial to both, the better it will be for all

This is a fine tribute to the Ontario Government's sawlog policy. The question is, would there be any bene-At in reciprocity-free logs, for free lumber-when the Ontario lumber industry is so flourishing under present conditions? The Canadian lumbermen. however, would prefer a free American market. In a free exchange of logs and lumber they could more than hold their own because of their proximity to the seat of supply.

Canada can afford to watch passively the development of reciprocity pentiment in the United States. Sir Wilfrid Laurier has said that the next move must come from the United States, and doubtless it will come just as soon if Canada remains neutral in the meantime. There will be a grim satisfaction in having Uncle Sam knocking at our doors.

Prof. Atwater's Second Paper.

Prof. W. O. Atwater, of Wesleyan University, in his second paper on He adds: temperance reform, in the New York Outlook, deals with constructive measures and maps out a programme of practical temperance work. First, he outlines some of the systems which are designed to eliminate private pro-At from the liquor traffic. The Government spirit monopoly in Russia he sets aside because of its serious administrative and other difficulties.

"The dispensary system has been Adopted by the State of Carolina as a whole, and in certain districts in Alabama, Georgia and North Carolina. It is a form of local option by which the state law allows individual communities to confine the retail sale of Hquor to dispensaries. These are tores where alcoholic liquors of all ordinary kinds and of assured purity credit, or to minors, or between sun-set and sunrise, or on Sundays. The system in North Carolina has a twofold aim: to reduce the evis of the liquor traffic by taking it out of private hands, and to retain the whole of the profit for state and municipal purposes. The State Government controls both the wholesale and retail trade, and the system is therefore a state monopoly

"The advantages of the system are said to be the reduction of the number of places where liquor is sold, and the elimination of the private profit, the social and political features, and the gambling and other immoral accessories of the saloon. In the larger cities in South Carolina, especially Charleston, the suppression of the saloon is not complete. The fact that the public derives pecuniary benefit from the sale of liquor is an objection, but the chief disadvantage is said to be that the appointment of agents and other officers is under party control, so that 'a machine of great capacity for political purposes has been created * * * with the Governor of the state as its engineer.' In the other states the dispensary system is local, and this last ad. vantage is less felt.

On the whole he thinks the system decidedly advantageous and worthy of a wider trial, but he questions whether a monopoly of the liquor trade by either the state of a large city, with the appointments of officers and employes, sales and the whole business in the control of the dominant political party might not involve serious political evils. Prof. Atwater also describes the Gothenburg system which has been adopted in numerous cities in Norway and Sweden.

"Under a general system of local option, which allows prohibition where it is wanted, individual communities have also the choice of giving to a company of substantial citizens the monopoly of the sale of spirits. The sale is subject to certain conditions, one of which requires that all profits in excess of a low rate of interest on their company's investment shall accrue to the public welfare. The element of private gain is thus eliminated. In Sweden the profits may be used to lower the local tax rate, but in Norway there is a much better regulation by which they are devoted to objects of public utility, including special means for promoting temperance. "Aside from taking the trade out of private hands, the chief advantages are: that the drink traffic is divorced from politics, and the way thus made easy for temperance reform, which keeps pace with the ad vancing public sentiment; that the active co-operation of good citizens is secured; that gambling and the immoral accessories of the saloon are abolished; that drinking has strikingly decreased; and that the profits are being used for agencies to counteract the liquor evil. The company system is thus both restrictive and constructive, and, as an alternative with prohibition under local option, seems one of the best thus far devised for the practical and effective promotion of temperance."

The Public House Trust Companies formed in Great Britain under the eadership of Earl Grey, who visited Canada last year, is undertaking an experiment somewhat similar to the Gothenburg system. "They secure control of licensed (saloons), abolish houses' gambling and other immoral accessories, allow no sales on credit, prothat only 'pure' liquors shall be sold, and make it to the pecuniary advantage of the manager to discourage the use of alcoholic drinks, and to encourage that of temperance teverages in their stead, including tea and mineral waters. All profits above a moderate interest on the investment are devoted to objects of public utility, including counter-attractions to the saloon. One of the great advantages is the arousing of active public interest and securing positive aid from men of influence in a practical and effective temperance ef-Prof. Atwater dwells on the saloon as a social center-its wonderful skill in meeting a social demand—and quotes country as nothing else would have an authoritative opinion that "no scheme of temperance reform can be successful which does not include a full recognition of the social and recreative instincts." "After all," he declares, "neither legislation, nor regulation, nor temperance education, nor substitutes for the saloon can do away with the drink evil. These are remedies for the disease, but what is wanted is the constitution to repel it. The power to resist must come with better conditions of living, less of monotonous manuel drudgery, less of feverish excitement, with happier homes, and more of intellectual and spiritual uplift. The temperance question is only a part of a far larger economic and social question, and the whole is really a question of ethics. * * * What shall we do to help matters? First of all we must recognize that there are two classes of earnest friends of the temperance cause: those who believe in temperance in the sense of moderation, and those, who, with equal sincerity and after equally careful thought, believe in abstinence. The two are one in purpose; they should be united in their work. This union, I believe, is the first condition of permanent success." Prof. Atwater deplores the uncompromising attitude of those who hold all use of alcohol as a beverage to be sinful and insist upon prohibition as the righteous method of reform. This has alienated many other people who are equally sincere, but > cannot accept principles so radical. "The thing that makes any use or sale of alcohol wrong is the harm it does. What is wanted is to reduce trat harm to a minimum. It is one of the cases in which the moral issue is decided by expediency. Prohibition which does not prohibit is a dam which raises the level in one place and makes an injurious backet without checking the stream When the stream is too strong for control, the only effective way is to keep it within bounds. The liquor current is too strong to be checked when a large part of the communi want it to flow, another part feel that there is no moral right to wholly stop it, and those who want it cannot or will not do the What is wanted is levees to keep it within bounds while we try to reduce the flow from the springs. To work for this seems to me morally right and a positive duty." He believes the time is ripe for more are sold under public authority, in guantities of not less than one-haif successful work for temperance than bint, in bottles (or other sealed pack- has yet been accomplished. In obedi-ages), not to be opened on the pre-mises; no sale being allowed on more interesting themselves on men are interesting themselves, as never before, in the great political, economic, social and ethical questions. The great body of earnest publicspirited people, those whose influence ultimately decided the attitude of the community on these questions, were not actively engaged in the temperance movement. One difficulty was that the way was not quite clear to them. But many of them were ready to help where the cause appealed to their conscience and the method agreed with their judgment. He believed they could be led to give their influence in favor of the temperance cause far more generally than they have done. The platform for practical temperance work might call for such things as:

"1. Recognition of the complexity of the liquor problem, and the inadequacy of past effort to solve it. 2. Doing away with the private profits and social features of the saloon. 3. Establishment of social substitutes for the saloon. 4. Extension of the principle of local option so as not only to allow the choice between prohibition and license, but also to permit local communities to adopt the dispensary or company system, or other plans for regulating the liquor traffic. 5. Study of the subject and education of public opinion. 6. Union of the friends of temperance for aggressive work. The programme for actual work

"1. Study of the various phases of the liquor problem in different parts of the United States and in other countries, and publication of the re-

"The securing of state legislation to permit local experiments with systems of public and company control of the liquor traffic; and the instituting of such experiments. The establishment of substitutes for the saloon in different places and fitted to local conditions. "The proposed organization might conduct inquiries; publish the results, advise individuals, communities, and legislators with regard to the best forms of legislation and methods of work in different localities; and assist in planning and conducting experiments with saloon substitutes and with agencies and systems for the control of the liquor traffic."

Our Cartoon.

The cartoon which we reproduce today from the Chicago Tribune hits off the situation aptly. By and by snowshoes and furs may fade out of foreign conceptions of this country. The Tribune artist has felt it necessary to depict Miss Ontario as a lady of the snows-may Kipling live to repent!but Canada can now better afford to overlook these errors, especially in the American press, which is the best immigration agent this country could have. kind of emperor most of us would choose to be. No one doubts his capacity; no one doubts his "efficiency," he himself least of all. There is a fine sense of personality about the man who at a word overthrew the greatest statesman not only of his own country, but of all Europe—the man who will lecture his own admirals on naval affairs, will tell French artists some thing about art, will himself design allegorical pictures, will push his country's goods with the energy of a commission agent, and at the same time discourse upon the advantages of music for "the life of the soul." Whatever may be the future course of his career there is no question that the Kaiser will be recognized by history as one of the most remarkable characters and potent influences of our age, for in him Germany has found a modern counterpart, as it were, of the shrewd and versatile "Old Fritz," who was the true founder of her empire.

All Humors

Are impure matters which the skin, liver, kidneys and other organs can not take care of without help, there is such an accumulation of them.

They litter the whole system.

Pimples, boils, eczema and other eruptions, loss of appetite, that tired feeling, bilious turns, fits of indigestion, dull headaches and many other troubles are due to them.

Hood's Sarsaparilla and Pills

Remove all humors, overcome all their effects, strengthen, tone and invigorate the whole system.

"My health was poor and I suffered much from hives and kidney trouble. After taking two bottles of Hood's Sarsaparilla I was cured. I regard this medicine as superior to all others." MRS. JOSEPH HOL-LINSHEAD, Harrison, Ontario.

FACTS FOR BUSINESS MEN.

One may write convincingly without using extravagant adjectives. People nowadays do not expect to get the best of everything at prices lower than the cheapest grades of goods are sold. Extravagant offers in advertisements are regarded by intelligent readers with decided disfavor.

A Chicago merchant tells the Tribune of that city that he uses various methods of advertising, but nothing else until his newspaper space has been contracted for. "No other medium brings such immediate er large returns. Considering the results, it is by all odds the cheapest.'

Dr. Johnston said that from what he could learn opposition to the Ontario were those who regarded it as an immoral act, who felt that the principle of prohibition was vicious and ultimately led to the weakening of moral character, which it should be our aim to strengthen. He pointed out that in every reform external means in the development of personal resistance to the evil. So long as human hearts were as they are there would be abundant opportunity for the development and exercise of self-control without the provision by the state of artificial temptations.

In evils of the liquor traffic, but regard this act as anything but the best method that could be devised for this end. The answer to this was evident. Whether we regarded the act as likely to lessen the sale of strong drink or not, those engaged in the traffic regarded it as likely to do so, and were engaged in the most vigorous opposition that has ever been put up against reform. They might decry it as inefficient, but they stood in strange and awful dread of its efficiency.

The act was still further opposed by those who regard the method adopted by the Government as an unjust one. This was to trifle with a great and serious question. The Government that as a people we had elected to power, had asked for an expression of opinion on a great and serious question; it is our duty as loyal citizens to respond and make our mind known. said we want the bar to go it would be the Government's work to abolish it. The closing part of Dr. Johnston's address was directed towards emphasizing the fact that on Dec. 4 every vote in the province will be counted for or against the act. By the terms of the referendum, not to vote was to be counted as in support of the bar. This was the word that he would write in the sky, were it possible, from Windsor to Ottawa, "Not to vote is to be counted in support of the bar. That consideration should be sufficient to arouse every man from indifference,

The bar was the menace of he home, he said; the protection of the latter demanded the removal of the former. We might not regard the Ontario liquor act as the best method of restricting the evils of the traffic, but this must be confessed, it was the best that had ever been offered; it was the only one now of-fered, and it was the best that would be offered for many days if this opportunity was allowed to pass. With these considerations before us. Dr. Johnston said what could be done but unite the forces, sinking all differences in one great effort to win a decided victory on Thursday.
Dr. Johnston's address was marked

Then there were others who regard- throughout by moderation, and a fair the course of his remarks he said it was a hopeful sign that men who had never before been able to unite on any method of temperance reform had found in the act now before the country a common ground on which to work, and he eulogized Premier Ross for the fearless stand he had taken in advocating the measure, and in lending his splendid gifts as a leader to its support.

The presenting company, headed by the talented Hamilton actress, Miss Roselle Knott, was with one of two exceptions a worthy and adequate Miss Knott herself proved a capable exponent of Katinka Jenkins, mands made upon her emotional powers, and in the strong denouement of the third act she was especially effective. Of her support, two members deserve especial commendation. One is W. J. Ferguson, who adds another to his long list of striking characterizations with his conception of Hiram Jenkins, the shiftless, careless father, who is ready to profit by his daughter's shame. The other is Daniel Jarrett, whose portrait of Brinker, the elderly admirer of the madcap, was a strong and convincing piece of work. Franklyn Roberts made a manly and faithful lover, while Victor M. De Silke gave the proper coloring to his enactment of John Strong, the hypocritical reformer. Harry Lillford as Albert Lindsay, Katinka's married lover, was so pitiably weak as to mar an otherwise even performance. The scenery settings were worthy of praise.

"THE IVY LEAF" TONIGHT. "The Ivy Leaf," an Irish comedy-drama, which was a public favorite for many years, will be given a splendid re-vival at the Grand tonight by a company which has been commended highly by the press of the large American cities. The engagement calls for prices ranging from 15 to 50 cents, and this should insure capacity business for the company. An old London boy, in the person of Frank McLaughlin, takes a prominent role.

"FLORODORA" TOMORROW The triumph which "Floredora" achiev ed when it was first presented in this country two years ago, is being maintained on the present tour of the pretty musical play. Fisher & Ryley have one company in the far west that is playing to crowded houses, and their New York company, which is booked for the Grand tomorrow evening, has drawn larger receipts in many of the cities visited thus far than were recorded last season.

"OUT OF THE FOLD." "Out of the Fold," Langdon McCormick's new drama, will be presented at the Grand on Thursday evening, Dec. 4. The title carries with it the suggestion of its story, for it deals with the life of a young woman who is forced out of ciety and the village church, and ye struggles on working out her salvation through tears and trials. Special scen-ery, with new effects, add to the com-pleteness of the production. Langdon McCormick's "Me and Mother" is pleasantly remembered here.

Letters to the Editor.

THE METHODIST CHURCH.

To the Editor of The Advertiser: One of the most glaring cases of inconsistency, if not insincerity, that has ever come to our attention, is shown in the following correspondence, the correctness of which is sworn to in the our best brand "Canadian Club," toaffidavit which accompanies it. In view of the fact that the Methodist Church, as a body, is in favor of prohibition, without compensation, and that the referendum vote is but a few days off, the recital of facts in this correspondence and affidavit is doubly interesting. It may well be asked why is it so very wrong for others to sell whisky if it is right for the Methodists to sell it, "privately," even on behalf of an organ fund?

Here is the affidavit and correspondence: Dominion of Canada. Province of Ontario, County of Essex. To Wit: In the matter of the Referendum: I, William Robins, of the Town of Walkerville, in the County of Essex, director of Hiram Walker & Sons, Limited, do solemnly declare as follows:

1. That now shown to me and marked as Exhibit A to this my declaration is a true copy of a letter which was addressed to Hiram Walker & Sons, and received by them in the month of June last, the original letter being now in my possession. 2. That now shown to me and marked as Exhibit B to this my declaration is a true copy of the letter written in reply thereto on June 23, 1902. 3. That now shown to me and marked as Exhibit C to this my declaration is a true copy of the letter received by the said firm in reply to their letter above mentioned, the original of which last mentioned exhibit is now in my 4. That the goods mentioned in said Exhibit B were shipped as therein

5. In reply to the last letter (Exhibit C) we wrote that we had no objection to the ladies disposing of the goods in any manner they might see fit, and since then we have had no communication from them, and I presume the goods have been disposed of privately as suggested by the committee and the proceeds applied to the purpose men tioned in the first of said letters.

And I make this solemn declaration conscientiously believing it to be true, knowing that it is of the same force and effect as if made under oath and by virtue of the Canada evidence act, 1897. WM. ROBINS.

BARN DESTROYED BY FIRE

A barn belonging to Mr. Richard Richards, of Wray street, South London, was completely destroyed by fire between 1 and 2 o'clock this morning. Mr. Richards was aroused by a neighbor, and found his stable to be burning furiously. He rescued three or four valuable dogs which he had in the barn, and immediately afterwards sent in an alarm. When the South London wagon arrived the structure was almost entirely consumed, and although the firemen from the Central was a good-sized building, and how it caught fire is an entire mystery. A buggy, a cutter, several 10bes and some harness were destroyed, bringing the loss up to about $600. The building is partially insured.

ARE THERE REALLY 1,500 NEEDY PEOPLE IN LONDON

Can Feed That Many at Christmas.

The announcement that the Salvation Army intend giving a Christmas dinner here to 1,500 people, led an Advertiser reporter to make some inquiry as perity and happiness in the future. A resolution expressing these sentiments many needy people in the city.

Brigadier McMillan, of the Salvation Army, is of the opinion that not only is there at least 1,500 people of the class he desires to reach here, but that at a pinch, he could find all of 2,000. "The class we are after," said he, "is not so much those who are in actual necessity, as those who ought to have a Christmas dinner, and are unable to afford it. Perhaps, if you take only those who are in actual necessity, you might not find a great many. But there are a number of families whose fathers are dead, or in the Central, or are out of work, or something else, who actually need assistance. year we gave a dinner in the city hall. We are not going to do that again. This year we are trying to reach the really deserving ones and make a basket distribution to their homes. We have learned who these people are by a personal house to house canvass. You must understand, however, it is

The Salvation Army Says They preventative that we are dispensing." The above facts were put before Sheriff Cameron, of the Charities Organization, and his opinion was asked on the subject. "I think," said he, "that it would be possible, if the distribution were made to families of the class whose heads are making $1 50 a day and who are unable to provide the luxuries of the season, to do much good. But I am inclined to be doubtful if that deserving class will be reached. I am also doubtful if there to whether there were actually that are really 1,500 deserving poor in London. There are probably 5,000 children attending school; only about 15 per cent of those will be without Christmas presents. The idea of a house to house distribution is a good thing. Those who are deserving are most likely to be reached that way."

Mr. A. B. Cox, president of the Charities Organization, did not take much stock in the scheme. "Never," said Mr. Cox, "was there so slight a call on the organization as there is now. The good times have made work for everyone who wants it. I am not in a position to quote exact figures on the numfor them not to have advertised their

"Well, then, forget, if you can, that I have done so," Dr. Ashton said, sitting erect, but with a face as white as his collar, for he could ill brook being thwarted in any object.

"I shall be very glad to forget it, and I hope you will never refer to the subject Alice replied. "You may trust me; I never will," he said, between his tightly-locked teeth, and then, turning his horse abruptly around, without so much as asking his companion if she were ready to go home, he proceeded to retrace their way. ride back to the city was a miser-one, although Alice tried to converse upon different subjects, and to ignore the leasant episode of the morning, and both were truly thankful when it was at an end and Topsy drew up before Mrs.

"Shall you go to the lecture at Cooper Institute this evening?"
"No; I have another engagement," he briefly replied, as he sprang back into his carriage, from which he had assisted her to alight.

He cut his horse sharply with the whip
—a thing very unusual for him to do, for if John Ashton loved any being in the world more than he loved himself, that being was his horse—and as the pretty creature, taken by surprise at such un-usual treatment, sprang into the air and went tearing down the street at a dan-gerous pace, he gave savage utterance to the one word:

gard that he had always manifested pre-

This was a great relief to Alice, for his proposal had filled her with dismay, and she longed to run away and hide herself from his sight forever.

At first she was somewhat shy of him, and avoided him as much as possible; but gradually this feeling wore away, and their relations resumed their usual footing.

Mrs. Sherman never knew anything about the affair, for Alice was too sen stive to speak of it, and Dr. Ashton was far too proud to confess that he had failed in all his boasted plans. For a little while she was very anxious about the matter, for she was confident that Alice would never be happy as his while; but as time went on and he said nothing more of his intentions, and did not appear to press his suit with her stepdaughter, she finally concluded that he had reiniquished his scheme.

The winter proved to be a very gay one.

It was the girls' first winter in society, and, as they were both bright and attractive girls, they were much sought after by those who were in the habit of enter-upon every possible occasion.

Young Fane, especially, soon became like Ance's shadow, and petrayed his admiration for her so openly that people began to look wise and predict an entermination of the same of the shadow, and petrayed his admiration for her so openly that people began to look wise and predict an engagement before the season was over. Alice appeared to enjoy his society more than that of anyone else, as a general thing, except when kenneth made his appearance in society, which he occasionany cid, for the talented fellow was beginning to be appreciated in social circles, for he was both a gentleman and a wit, and there was no lack of entertainment when he was present; and, though poor in this world's goods, the fact of his being the protege of the wealthy publisher, Mr. Stark, was sufficient to give him the entree to some of the best society of New York.

It was not often, however, that he availed himself of these alluring invitations, although the temptation to do so was great, for he knew that he would be likely to meet Queen Bess, whom he had already learned to love with all the strength of his manly nature.

Sometimes he would thrill with delight upon meeting her, when a look or a tone would seem to indicate that she regarded him with something more than mere friendliness, and then again he would be plunged into despondency if she avoided nim or did not treat him with her accustomed cordiality, as was sometimes the case—although it was always against her will—because of the joalousy of Alice, who invariably betrayed such animosity, if Kenneth showed her any special attention, that for days afterward she would be absolutely miserable.

But this did not occur very often, for Kenneth was pushing his studies with all the enthusiasm and resolution of which he was master, and thus the greater number of his evenings were occupied to the the enthusiasm and resolution of which he was master, and thus the greater number of his evenings were occupied to the exclusion of pleasure, while his days were devoted to the business of making himself indispensable to his employer, with the hope of thus securing for himself the position which he had always coveted—that of becoming a member of the firm, as it had been hinted he was likely to become.

desire of his heart was gratified

He was fortunate enough to find Mr. Stark at home, for that gentleman was not feeling quite himself that morning, and had decided not to make any calls.

He greeted his young partner with great cordiality, and when Kenneth, in a few well-bross grands, they led him for the well-chosen words, thanked him for the henor which he had just conferred upon him, he replied, with the utmost heartifor him.

"No, indeed, I do not," said Mr. Stark;
"and I know of no one, since I have no son of my own to follow me, whom I would prefer to see at the head of the pusiness which I have built up by untiring diligence and energy, and which has become an enterprise of which I am succeedingly proud."

It stated that he had been appointed junior partner 4n the concern, with a junior partner 4n that great care, all that great city.

"I think I may allow myself the pleasure of making a few New Year's calls upon the strength of this." Kenneth said to himself, after reading the letter, while a smile of satisfaction curved his lips and shone in his eyes.

He dressed himself with great care, made out a list of the places where he wished to call, and then sallied forth to meet one of the greatest joys, and also one of the most humillating mortifications he had even known.

His first call was upon Mr. Stark and his family, which consisted of his wholehearted wife and two charming daughters.

FOOTBALL.

TWENTY YEARS AGO. [Mechanics were introduced into foot-ball last week, when some genius fixed a strap to a player's back, by which he was yanked through the opposing line.]

I've gazed upon the game; I thought 'twould be just as of old, But it is not he same. They slam the players all about, And into spasms go, But it is not at all, dear Tom,

The ambulance-they still use that: It runs for all alarms.
The players, absent-mindedly,
Still pull off legs and arms.
The rah-rah boys still give their yells With raythmic rise and flow. On twenty years ago.

The quarter-back goes through the line-Not like an angry bull. There is a strap attached to him. By which his comrades pull.

He holds the ball against his chest,

And yells: "Now let her go!" They did not pull him dov Some twenty years ago.

The tackle still desires to sprint, And win a fair renown.

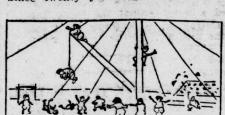

He does not have to hurry much
To make a swift touchdown. They have a derrick on the field,
That lifts him sure and slow.
We never jumped the line that way Some twenty years ago.

The center rush is big and strong, Just as he used to be. His sinews are like iron bars— A mighty man is he. But, when he leads a V-rush now, An auto bucks the foe. The carnage beats the slaughter of Some twenty years ago.

The goal is still kicked from the field. But not as we were taught.
A catapult is limbered up,
And then the ball is shot.
It hurtles through the atmosphere
Between the posts, and so,
They've figured out a two-mile kick
Since twenty years ago.

The ladies in the audience
No longer scream and faint;
Instead they showed encouragement in language rather quaint.
They do not view a killing with Their checks as white as snow;
But they still say the men are "sweet,"
Like twenty years ago.

In olden times a scrimmage was
A using of heavy blows;
We landed sturdily upon
The neck or chest or nose.
But fists have gone quite out of style—
Today they have no show;
Triphammers do the slugging, Tom, ce twenty years ago.

Our vain attempts to break the line Today I have recalled. saw the modern method, and Confess I stood appalled. They had a sunken mine prepared The other line to blow That twenty years ago.

I saw them face each other-then The signal numbers came.

A move was made; there rose a sound Of rapturous acclaim.

An airship had come swooping down, Ere anyone could know.

We ne'er took that way round the end Some twenty years ago. Some twenty years ago.

saw them form the players up I saw them form the players up
To do a fiving wedge;
They drove the full-back in the ground,
And then brought up a dredge.
It dug until the ball was found,

WHAT PETE LOHMAN IS DOING. The veteran Pete Lohman, manager of the champion Oakland team, says the Sporting News, admits that his star players will not be seen in this vicinity in 1903. He takes matters philosophically, however. He says: 'I cannot blame the men, who are on! bettering their condition. A player's career is short-lived at best and one would be foolish were he not alive to his interests and receive all the money obtainable for his services." Manager Lohman says it is too early to speak about next year's line-up of the Oakland team, but the "Old Man" will have a team that will be able to take care of itself.

Lohman conducted the Oakland team be remembered that the Oakland team brought up the tail-end for three When the season of 1901 was at an end, Manager and Owner J. Col. Ewing summoned Lohman before him and gave him full control and authority to conduct the team for 1900 The veteran catcher did not, as was supposed at the time, release the entire team and go east in quest of National League stars. With three extions, he signed every one of the tailenders. But somehow his full control infused new life into the men. They put up the best that was in them. Lohman, in turn, showed his appreciation of their efforts. There seemed to be a brotherly feeling between players and manager. No "back-capping, secrets were kept from each other. This was illustrated when a few months ago Ned Hanlon was casting sheep's eyes at Pitcher Schmidt, the van's successor. star twirler of the Champion Oaks. The fans were at fever heat at the rumor, for it was evident that Schmidt's desertion of the Oakland team at that time meant the loss of the pennant. The team was playing in Los Angeles when the press dis-patches announced that Schmidt Schmidt pitched his last game for Oakland, and would leave on the following day for Brooklyn. But the rumor was incorrect. In a signed statement Manager Lohman informed the fans that every line of correspondence that passed Hanlon and Schmidt shown to him by the latter; that at his (Lohman's) advice Schmidt had accepted Hanlon's terms, but that Schmidt would finish the season with the Oakland team. And it is now apparent that not only Schmidt, but every player who received an offer' from the east communicated the fact | would be held in a short time, when | the bronze.

TO DEFEND THE CUP. Bristol, R. I., Nov. 29.—The lead keel for the new cup defense yacht was laid bare in the boat shops here today and was pronounced by the designer to be in perfect condition as regards form and outline. The great mass of lead weighs about 100 tons. It was planned at first not to uncover it until Monday. But the casting cooled sufficiently to allow of the removal of the clay protection about it, and the mold itself. Preparations are nearly completed for the actual commencement of work on the upper portion of the yacht. The nickel-steel frames are already being bent in the blacksmith shop and the bronze keel plates are completed. There was a consultation here today between August Belmont, who over from New York, and Nat Herreshoff, relative to the Constitution's part in next season's racing. REV. W. J. CLARK SPEAKS ON THE ONTARIO LIQUOR ACT

Advantages and Disadvantages might prefer to evade the law and encourage illegal seiling by buying from Set Forth.

Speaker Urges Liberals to Abandon Resentment Over Inconsistencies.

At the evening service &. one wirst Presbyterian Church yesterday, Rev. W. J. Clark discussed the liquor act at some length. He wished it understood that he spoke with no authority save such as would come in an appeal to the reason of his hearers. In some things the Christian minister had a right to be dogmatic, but this was not one of them. The present question was not one between right and wrong; it was one of judgment as to what would be best for the country, the blotting out or the regulating of the liquor

Mr. Clark said he would not read the act, which lay before him, and he said he confessed to a sincere sympathy with legal men after wading through its 83 pages of verbiage. He would, he said, touch upon the important points in it, showing the disadvantages and lutely enforced, but if a sufficient vote difficulties in the way of its enforcement, the possible advantages which would accrue from its passing, and the reasons leading him personally to vote

to do away with the traffic in liquor as a beverage within the Province of Ontario. The buying and selling of a glass of ale, whisky, wine or any other liquor was made illegal, and its sale restricted save for scientific, mechanical, medicinal or sacramental purposes. So far as his own mind could grasp the provisions, said Mr. Clark, the act was very stringent, but he supposed there never was an act framed that had not some loopholes. While the act seeks to abolish the traffic in liquor, it does not prohibit ts manufacture. It would not shut either of the two great breweries in London or any other of the similar establishments in the Province. They Province, but they could have their agencies outside, and the act would not prohibit a man from buying from these agencies, and keeping laquor for consumption in his house. Mr. Clark touched upon one provione, it being a subsection providing that a sick person might have in his sick room liquor prescribed by a physician, but that its consumption by any other individual would be an infraction of the act. Mr. Clark said that such a provision would be all right so far as it would bind the conscience of the individual, but it would be impossible to rigidly enforce it. ADVANTAGES OF THE ACT.

Coming to the advantages of the proposed law, Mr. Clark said the first one apparent was a distinct one. It would at once do away with all public traffic in liquer. This would mean the abohas caused the fall of so many young men by appealing to the social side of no desiré. It seemed an utterly absurd custom to those who did not arink, but it nevertheless existed, and it would be a distinct blessing to have it done away with.

Second, the enforcement of the act traffic. Mr. Clark said he was not prepared to say that the present system was entirely evil, for there was system was an improvement upon previous conditions. Still the present system means that each citizen of the Province draws a certain, if small, amount of profit from the sale of liquor to his fellow-citizens. It would be much better for the Christian to be able to feel and say that no guilt attached to him for another's downfall from drink. These Mr. Clark thought to be the two great advantages of the

SOME DISANDVANTAGES. The citizens of the province must as honest men consider the disadvantages of the act. It would mean the throwing of great temptation in the way of the physician and the druggist. Any man is greatly dependent on the good will of his fellows, and this fact would be taken advantage of my many. The druggist would have patrons, the physicians would have clients who would appeal for liquor, and in some cases it would be given them, though drug-gist or physician would know it was to be used as a beverage and not for medicine. Even granting this, Mr. Clark thought the condition would be better than at present, for the physicians and druggists are a superior class of men to those in whose hands the traffic is now vested, and they would withstand temptation more than do the men who now break the law by selling liquor illegally. Another difficulty was the fact that so many people use liquer in their homes and believe in the use of it thus.

sources inside the province.

Mr. Clark said he was anxious to see an intelligent vote polled, as it was only an intelligent vote which would insure the enforcement of the law if

Another alleged disadvantage of the act was the fact that many hotels throughout the country would be put out of business. This Mr. Clark did not consider altogether a bad thing, for many hotels now exist for which there is no need. If the proposed law put some of these wretched places out of business and gave a better class of hotel this phase would prove a dis-tinct advantage. At the same time he had a certain amount of sympathy business, whose living depended upon it, who had a family to keep and who could not turn his hand to anything such an important one as it had been claimed to be, said Mr. Clark. A rich province like Ontario could afford to do without the revenue obtained from the liquor trade. The matter would adjust itself without doubt. The preacher said he did not like to hear Britons say that the law could not be enforced if it passed. Respect for law was one of the proudest boasts of a Briton. No law was ever absowere received for the act, it would doubtless be enforced to a sufficient degree. The enforcing process would be a costly matter, no doubt, but if successfully accomplished, few would stick at the price. ATTACKS ON THE GOVERNMENT.

When the proposed law was first given to the public last spring, said Mr. Clark, there was a storm of denunciation leveled at the head of its sponsor, the leader of the Ontario Government. In the election campaign that ensued the bill was made a prominent feature and played an important part in the result. The Premier was charged with having broken his word. and the bill's demand for a large favorable vote was characterized as an evasion of duty. Mr. Clark said that he recognized the strong feeling must not, however, sell within the which actuated both parties in the heat of a campaign, but he hoped that would be forgotten now. Many members of the Liberal party had been naturally incensed last spring by the utterances of those who then denounced the measure and the Premier sion which seemed to him an absurd in heated terms, but who now admit that it is a good law and that the enforce it. Many Liberals, said Mr. Clark, had declared their intention of not voting at all, because of these inconsistencies. Mr. Clark depre-cated this feeling, and said that while the resentment was natural when first entertained, there was no justification for its continuance. It would be cutting off one's nose to spite one's face. If the law is recognized as a good one, the fact that a citizen is annoyed at the action or word of others should not keep him from expressing his opinion on that law, or seeking to secure its advantages. It was a disappointing feature of the present campaign lition of the treating custom, which to see how few people view the question dispassionately and reasonably. Every man should vote yea or nay on the question; no man should stay at' of drink where there was previously as to which side to take. They may think that this is simply a costly experiment, with no surety of its success or its permanency, and many of them, therefore, are deciding to refrain from voting. For his own part, said Mr. Clark, he was not sure that the act would completely sever the people of it is claimed to be, and he expected Ontario from partnership in the drink that unforeseen difficulties and disadvantages would arise in connection with it. Still the individual is responsible only for his own vote, even as no question, that a restrictive license he is not responsible for the conditions which are the outcome of the acts of men who have passed away. "Through many elements the Almighty works out his own purposes,' said Mr. Clark. "I would shrink from saying that Almighty God was in favor of the passing of this bill. That would be a very terrible thing to say, for if the bill were defeated, what explana-

Personally, said Mr. Clark, he was willing to be restricted by the act for the sake of the possible good it might do, and therefore he would personally support it. Any man willing thus to give up his personal liberty in this matter and be restricted, in the hope that good might result to others, would be justified in voting for the act, even if doubtful as to its efficacy. Mr. Clark said he trusted every man before him would consider the question fairly, honestly and unselfishly, and then, if willing to submit to the proposed restriction, vote for the act.

If the act is defeated, as there is decided possibility that it will be, the setback to the temperance cause would not be a permanent one, said preacher. It was a positive fact that the people of Ontario are much more sober today than they were 30 years The progress has been upward. The whole question is a big and a complex one, and probably will not be definitely settled in the lifetime of anyone living. The man who denounces in wild words and strong terms those who differ with him on the temperance or any other question, is doing a wrong and unwise thing.
Mr. Clark then quoted from an article

Mr. Clark, had made some good points, among them the following: First, the law regulating or restricting the liquor traffic must be adapted to the public sentiment of the community in which it is to operate. Second, the social needs now met by the saloon must be met in other ways. In reference to this point, Mr. Clark said he did not consider the saloon a totally evil institution. Christian people are responsible for many a young man's going into a saloon. Young strangers coming to the city find in the saloon, light, warmth, genial companionship, and the opportunity to enjoy a smoke and a stimulating drink. The these young men as does no institution—not even the Y. M. C. A. The pity is that these social pleasures are accompanied by the draught of poison.

Third, the traffic should be kept out of politics. Mr. Clark said he hoped to see the Canadian people rise out of the political ditch in which they had so long floundered. It would be a great blessing to get the prohibition question out of the range of party politics. Lastly, the liquor problem must be the scheme to converge the liquor problem into a skating rink. better understood before it can successfully solved, as it is only a part of a broad and complex economic and social question.

Mr. Clark said he thought the act would probably not receive the sup-port demanded. If it did, he hoped it would be an advance on the present system. "Whether it passed or not," said the speaker, "let no one say that they have no further interest in the question. Let not passion dominate the judgment. Banish prejudice and unfairness, and have sympathy for the convictions and the rights of all, even of the man in the liquor business. Give the best thought to this problem, which will probably not be settled in our day or our children's, but which will progress marvelously if we are actuated by faith and righteousness. "I am not willing to say that I am anxious for the passage of the act. I have a right, however, to say to every man that he should exercise his franchise. If you are willing to be restricted, vote for the act; if not, then vote against it. Do not stay away from the polls; act the man's part. "Whatever the result may be," said Mr. Clark in conclusion, I believe in one thing. I believe that above man and his doings reigns the Just One, and He through eternity is working out His own purposes. See to it that your power and your influence is found on the side of right, truth and mercy. It is the man or woman who thus faces great questions who does God's will in their day and generation. If they are pure in purpose, though they blunder in judgment, they are the servants of the Lord. Do the thing which seems right to you, and then you may ask the blessing of God upon yourself, upon your family and upon your country."

In opening the meeting, Rev. Mr. Hamilton said that perhaps Canada had never faced so great a moral question before as was now staring her in the face. There was no longer any time for criticism; the time for that whom the new laws would drive out of business. If that were necessary, ticularly must they act on the 4th of why was it that a saloonkeeper who December. He trusted that everyone had his license taken away, did not go would turn out and vote. Following him, Mr. C. B. Keenleyside commented in detail upon the magnitude of the problem, and quoted a number of statistics to back his statements. The problem by which they were now confronted, he said, involved two and a half times the entire annual revenue of the Dominion; it involved revenue which, if differently directed, would in two and a half years place Canada in the unique position of being a country without a national debt. He did not take much stock in the argument thrust forward by the liquor people that it would be necessary to resort to direct taxation. That might be a necessity for the first year or so, but after that the general prosperity would do away with it. even if it was necessary to have direct $830 for every $100 collected; to have Major Hayes collect that $100 by direct taxation would cost the country just $20. Instead of paying $80,000 by direct taxation, we were paying $350,000 by indirect. On the other hand, the saloons argued that they gave something in return for the money. He would not dispute; but he would question if that what the saloons gave was really value, and in order to carry out his idea, he drew a graphic picture of the results attending the continued use of liquor. He said that every man in London contributed daily to this fund for the saloonkeepers even though they never spent a five-cent piece over How much, he questioned in explanation, does every man lose each year on bad debt that may be traced to the use of strong drink? Ex-Mayor Essery was of the opinion that the meeting was being held in the The city hall was for right place. the use of the people and he felt that was a representative gathering of the people that was present. He understood that there had been invitations printed in the local papers to the leaders of the opposition, the liquor people, to attend the meeting and discuss the question. There were none present. He would defy any of them o come forward on the platform and thrash the matter out. Mr. Essery attacked the Government and said it had loaded the referendum on the side of the breweries. If the temperance people were to place chalk marks on the backs of the politicians who had betrayed them, they would be swept from public life. Then, the papers,

Three Speeches Delivered at signed or signed only by initials. He supposed that the men who wrote those letters had not signed them out of consideration for the reputations of their families. His position on the liquor question was exactly the same as it was some years ago when he had stood for Parliament. Had he been elected there would have been at least one member on the floor who would have been capable of draft-The meeting held in the city hall on | ing laws on the matter that would do Saturday night for a discussion of the what they were intended to without leaving any loopholes for evasion. But so far as that went, all laws were prohibition laws; even the first laws written were such-the Ten Commandments. He realized there were some thodist Church, who presided, were things for which liquor will always be sold, such as scientific and medicinal purposes, but it was not necessary that Scott, C. B. Keenleyside, President we have saloons for that purpose. He Bowman, of the Prohibition League, placed no belief in the doctrine that prohibitory laws will not prohibit. If prohibitory laws will not work, why was it that our saloons are kept closed from Saturday night till Monday morning? And if prohibition would why would it not work for seven? He wanted to know why it would be neces-

to Parliament and ask for compensation? People who were in that business knew they were in a restricted business, and would have no excuse for complaint if their permit to continue were to be suddenly refused. They all knew that when they invested capital. And if prohibition does not prohibit, why was it that an Indian could not buy liquor? Mr. Essery commented upon the laxity with which the liquor laws were enforced. If the liquor law were carried out as other laws are, he said, there would be no trouble. It was not a fact that there was more drinking during the Scott Act. If the cause of temperance was not a good one, why did not the liquor men oppose it from the public platform. He hoped there would be some But to answer him at the next meeting on taxation, it would be cheaper than the Tuesday evening. It ought to be represent way of doing business. As it membered that every vote not polled now stands by indirect taxation, we now stands by indirect taxation, we were paying through the saloonkeepers against. All should be out. He felt sure that the liquor party would have every vote of every dead man and every man who was out of the country that they could learn the name of. Rev. Mr. Ferguson, of Chicago, expressed his regret at not being able to meet the solitary liquor speaker whom he had ever met on the platform — Mr. increase in number of churches, 103 Mudie. He understood that he was to have been present. But while that was the only instance of which he lated. In reply to the so-called moral knew, where they had shown themselves, the liquor people were send-ing out a great deal of literature all give a summary of their arguments and his answers to them. First there was what was known as their physiological argument, in which they they would have had representatives contend that liquor is necessary to the human system. That was answered one's business at the present stage of by every reputable insurance company the game what they thought about the by every reputable insurance company in the same way. They all discriminate and give considerably better rates to The voters' business was simply to total abstainers than to even moderate come forward and do what they drinkers. The very best medical au- thought was right or lose their standthorities were against even moderate ing as honest men. That should count drinking. There was the personal lib- before everything else. It was more erty argument, which contends that a important to be right than to win. The man ought to be allowed to sell or buy question was not to win; the point at whatever pleased him. No man, issue was to retain one's honesty no said he, had any right to sell matter what the outcome. "It pays anything that is dangerous to the welfare of the public. As for the man who buys, he had a stronger argument. Yet if his purchasing of liquor reflected upon anyone connected with trouble him, he had no more right to buy it than he had to go into the market and buy diseased meat. Of course, if it did no injury to anyone, he ought to be permitted to buy, but it was the business of the temperance association to particularly the Free Press, had been close up the places where he buys it. filled with letters in support of the Next, there was the revenue argument which dealt with direct taxation. But no matter whether the taxation was direct or indirect, the money had all to come from the people. And not by any means did the liquor people turn over the country. He was going to over to the Government all they collected. There was 20 times as much paid to the whisky dealers as they turn over to the Province of Ontario. There was nothing in the story that prohibtion was a failure in the United States. Yet, even if it was, that ought not to apply to Canada. Because the laws against highway robbery were not a success in Chicago, was that any reason why the law against it in On-tario should be repealed? The reason that prohibition in the States had not been the success it might have been, was owing to the failure of the people to elect officers who would carry out the law. The true history was one of success. After a trial of ten years out in Kansas, the president of the board

The world is full of sickly despondent, tired, enervated people, all hoping to be well some day. The surest road to tired, enervated people, all hoping to be well some day. The surest road to health is along the way of taking Ferrozone after meals. Ferrozone is a great appetizer, and enables one to eat plenty of wholesome food without fear of indigestion or dyspepsia. This results in the rapid formation of an abundance of red, vitalizing blood, which will restere the nerves, increase flesh and vigor, and nourish and feed every organ of the body. Ferrozone is an ideal resterative and invigorant. It is a tonic of unequaled merit that anyone cam use with benefit. Price 50c per box, or six boxes for $2.50, at druggists or N. C.
