Continuation of the Debate on the Address.

The Premier Bulogizes the Judiciary -Addresses by Messrs. Crawford Marter, Pattullo, Moscrip and Others.

Toronto, Aug. 10.-In the legislature yesterday, before the order in regard to the address was reached, the attorney-general, speaking to a question of privilege, called attention to some of the clauses in the speech of the member for West Peterboro, Mr. Stratton. That gentleman had in no way reflected on the judiciary of the province, as some on the other side appeared to apprehend. At all events, he (Mr. Hardy) scarcely thought it was necessary to state that both the house and the province had undoubted respect and confidence in the judiciary of the province and that when the court of appeal found it inconvenient to hear the arguments on the constable vote question during vacation it was quite within its right in deciding not to do so, and the government at least had nothing to complain of. In regard to the present session the members would be entitled to $6 per day for the first part of it, and would receive the balance at the conclusion of the adjourned session, probably next winter.

Mr. Crawford, Toronto, followed, and accused Mr. Stratton of assailing the judiciary. He complained that Ontario officials were organized from church steeple to rum cellar in his constituency. The fisheries' question, he said was a lame excuse on which to cal the session. Mr. Crawford attacked the position of the ministers without seats. and also sailed into the numbered bal

Mr. Pattullo followed in an able ef fort. He referred to the charge made by Col. Matheson that the transfer of the boys' reformatory to the county of Oxford was an attempt to bribe two constituencies. The opposition theory was that such favors were conferred on doubtful constituencies in or der to hold them solid for the government. Did anyone regard the two Oxfords as doubtful constituencies, with Liberal majorities running up into the thousands. The member for North Ontario had read with much unc-tion the opinion of the Farm-Sun on retrospective legisla-The Sun had expressed its ers' opinion very deisively on another question which was before the house. It had said that there was nothing improper or unconstitutional in the two ministers holding their portfolios until the petitions for the unseating of their ents had been heard. Why did not Mr. Hoyle read that also when he was quoting his authority so triumphantly? Mr. Pattullo proceeded to take up the statement of the leader of the Opposition that not half a mile of roadway had been improved as a result of the work of the road commissioner. Mr. Moscrip is a forcible speaker, and received a hearty recognition. He was succeeded by Mr. Thompson, of Center Simcoe, and Mr. Thompson was followed by Mr. Pardee, who made an admirable speech, and proved that the son has inherited much of the ability of his distinguished father. New York, Aug. 10.-A dispatch to the World from Manila Bay, via Hong Kong, says: The third Philippine expedition is here, 22 days out from Honolulu. One of the crew reported to Captain Dillon that there was fire in the coal bunkers. "Get out the hose." whispered the captain to the first mate. At midnight, when all the troops were asleep, Captain Dillon assembled the crew and told them the news. Every man was pledged to secrecy. Silently the men coupled on the hose and the steam pipes. Then they began battling the flames in the hold. Next morning the fire was as fierce as ever. Night and day the heroic crew

CUBAN VICTORIES. New York, Aug. 10.-The following is given out by the Cuban Junta: News of Cuban victories in the western provinces has reached here, one of the battles being of the largest and most imisland. With the news of victory comes a story of Cuban suffering from starvation, and an appeal for further aid from the United States.

> SPAIN SPARRING FOR WIND. London, Aug. 10 .- The Madrid correspondent of the Standard says: It is an open secret that the government desires to postpone the assembling of the Cortes as long as possible, so as to delay settlement of the questions with the United States and to give the country breathing time to prepare for peace conditions which are not yet fully grasped.

The people are still indulging illupines and the Cuban debt. All the extreme parties are anxious for an early meeting of the Cortes for the purpose of embarrassing the government and fanning the smouldering discontent. TWO MORE CANADIANS DIED OF

In Gen. Shafter's report of death from yellow fever, the names of two Canadians appear on the list of the First Regiment of Chicago. Archibald C. Beattie was born in Ottawa, Ont... 25 years ago. One brother served in the Northwest rebellion, and another is at present in the Northwest Mounted Police. Lieut. James R. Steele, of the signal corps, of the same regiment, died last Friday. He was 83 years of age, and leaves a wife and two children. He enlisted in the army at St. Louis 12 years ago, and after serving five years in the Sixth Cavalry, was transferred to the signal corps. SHE IS A HEROINE.

There are heroines of the war as well as heroes. They do not carry Springfields, or dash madly up enfiladed slopes, but they are none the less brave and self-sacrificing. Here, as an example, is Margherita Arlina Hamm, the weil known New York newspaper writ-er, who has been recommended to the war department for special recognition because of the services rendered by her to the wounded men of the Third regular cavalry at Santiago. A large cartridge taken from the belt of Trooper Armstrong, the first man killed at Santiago, has been mounted in gold and presented to her as a medal. Before leaving for Santiago she cared for the soldiers on the way from Tampa to the southern hospitals, was instrumental in securing for them good berths, and aided greatly in making them comfortable. On Sunday many shots entered the town. Several reached the citadel itself, and it is reported that some ladies were killed. Eliphaz foretells the crushing blows of God's indignation, declaring, 'Fire shall consume the tabernacles of bribery.

It is no light temptation. The mightiest have fallen under it. Lord Bacon, lord chancellor of England, founder of our modern science, author of "Novum Organum," and a whole of his century, so precoclous that when every man during the course of his life, library of books, the leading thinker a child he was asked by Queen Elizabeth "How old are you?" he responded, "I am two years younger than your tory Ben Jonson wrote, "The fear of every man that heard him was lest he should make an end": having an income which you would suppose would have put him beyond the temptation of bribery-$36,000 a year, and Twickenham Court, a gift, and princely estates in Hertfordshire—yet under this temptation to bribery, falling flat into ruin, and on his confession of taking bribes, giving as his excuse that all his predecessors took them, he was fined $200,000-or what corresponds with our $200,000-and imprisoned in Lon-

The black chapter in English, Irish, French and American politics is the chapter of bribery. Some of you re-member the Pacific Mail subsidies. Most of you remember the awful tragedy of the Credit Mobilier. Under the temptation to bribery Benedict Arnold sold the fort in the Highlands for $31.575. For this sin Gorgey betrayed Hungary, Ahithophel forsook David, and Judas kissed Christ. When I see so many of the illustrious going down is temptation, it makes me think of the red dragon spoken of in Revelations, with seven heads and ten horns and seven crowns, drawing a third part of the stars of heaven down

The lobbies of the legislatures of this country control the country. The land is drunk with bribery! "Oh!" says some one, "there's no need of talking against bribery by promise or by dollars, because every man has his price." I do believe it. Even heathenism and the Dark Ages have furnished specimens of incorruptibility. A cadi of Smyrna had a case brought before him on trial. A man gave him five hundred ducate in bribery. The case came on.
The poor man on the other side had no witnesses. At the close of the case the cadi said: "This poor man has no witnesses, he thinks; I shall produce in his behalf five hundred witnesses against the other side." Then pulling out the bag of ducats from under the ottoman, he dashed it down at the feet of the briber, saying, "I give my deci-sion against you." Epaminondas, offered a bribe, said: "I will do this thing if it be right, and if it be wrong, all your goods cannot persuade me." The president of the American Congress during the American revolution, Gen. Reed, was offered 10,000 guineas by foreign commissioners if he would betray this country. He replied: "Gentlemen, I a very poor man, but tell your king e is not rich enough to buy me." But why go so far, when you and 1. if we move in honorable society, know men and women who by all the forces of earth and hell could not be ribed. They would no more be bribed than you would think of tempting an angel of light to exchange heaven for e nit. To offer a bribe is villainy, but It is a very poor compliment to the man to whom it is offered.

I have not much faith in those peoele who go about bragging how much they could get if they would only sell Those women who complain that they are very often insulted, need to understand that there is something in their carriage to invite insult. There are mer at Albany, and at Harrisburg, and at Washington, who would no more be approached by a bribe than a pirate boat with a few cutlasses would dare to attack a British man-of-war with two banks of guns on each side loaded to the touch-hole. They are incorruptible men, and they are the few men who are to save the city and save the

Meanwhile my advice is, keep out of politics unless you are invulnerable to this style of temptation. Indeed, if even you are naturally strong, you need re-ligious buttressing. Nothing but the grace of God can sustain our public men and make them what we wish. I wish that there might come an oldrashioned revival of religion, that it might break out in congress and the legislatures, and bring many of the Republicans and Democrats down on the anxious seat of repentance. That day will come, or something better, for the

Washington, Aug. 7 .- Dr. Talmage | Bible declares that kings and queens shall become nursing fathers and nicthers to the church, and if the greater in authority, then certainly the less. My charge also to parents is, rememher that this evil of bribery often begins in the home circle, and in the nur-sery. Do not bribe your children. Teach them to do that which is right, and not because of the ten cents or the orange which you will give them. There is a great difference between rewarding virtue and making the profits thereof the impelling motive. That man who is honest merely because "honesty is the best policy" is already a moral bankrupt. My charge is to you, in all depart-ments of life, steer clear of bribery all of you. Every man and woman at some time will be tempted to do wrong for social position. Let us remember that there is a day coming when the most secret transaction of private life, and of public life, will come up for public reprehension.

We cannot bribe death, we cannot bribe sickness, we cannot bribe the grave, we cannot bribe the judgments "fie? Can't death be bribed? Is monor by purchase-by money." No, death be bribed now. Men of the world often the world. You can tell from what of their chief sorrows is that they have to leave their money. I break that delusion. I tell that bribe-taker that he will take his money with him. God will wrap it up in your shroud, or put it in the palm of your hand in resurrection, and there it will lie, not the cool, bright, shimng gold as it was tand up for trial.

The Bible arraigns it again and gour moral principle, but there it will lie, a hot metal, burning and it will fall over the wrist, clanking the fetters of an eternal captivity. The nity. Some day in the next world, when you are longing for sympathy, you will feel on your cheek a kiss. Looking up, you will find it to be Judas, who took thirty pieces of silver as a bribe, and finished the bargain by putting an infamous kiss on the pure cheek of his divine Master.

Another wrong use of money is seen in the abuse of trust funds. Nearly on a larger or smaller scale, has the property of others committed to his keeping. He is, so far, a safety deposit, he is an administrator, and holds his hand the interest of the family of a deceased friend. Or he is an attorney, and through his custody goes the payment from debtor to creditor, or he is the collector of a business house, which compensates him for the responsibility; or he is treasurer for a charitable institution, and he holds alms contributed for the suffering; or he is an official of the city or the state or the nation, and taxes and subsidies and salaries and supplies are in his It is as soiemn a trust as God can make it. It is concentrated and multiplied confidences. On that man deor the morals of dependents, or the right movement of a thousand wheels of social mechanism. A man may do what he will with his own, but he who abuses trust funds, in that one act commits theft, falsehood, perjury, and becomes, in all the intensity of the word, a miscreant. How many widows and orphans there are with noing between them and starvation but a sewing machine, or held up out of the vortex of destruction simply by the thread of a needle, red with their own heart's blood, who a little while ago had, by father and husband, left them a competency! What is the matter? The administrators or the executors have sacrificed it-running risks with it that they would not have dared to encounter in their own private affairs. How often it is that a man will earn a livelihood by the sweat of his brow, and then die, and within a few months all the estate goes into the stock gambling rapids of wall street! How often it is that you have known the man to whom trust funds were committed taking them out of the savings bank and from trust companies and administrators, turning old homesteads into hard cash, and then putting the entire estate into the vortex of speculation. Embezzlement is an easy word to pronounce, but it has ten thousand ramifications. There is not a city that has not suffered from the abuse of trust funds. Where is the court house, or the city hall, or the jail, or the postoffice, or the hospital, that in the building of it has not had a political job? Long before the new court house in New York city was completed it cost over $12,000,000. Five million six hundred and sixty-three thousand dollars for furniture! For plastering and repairs, $2,370,000. For plumbing and gas works, $1,231,817. For awnings, $23,553. The bills for three coming to the nice little sum of $13,151,-There was not an honest brick, or stone, or lath, or nail, or foot of plumbing, or inch of plastering, or establishment. That bad example was followed in many of the cities, which did not steal quite so much, because there was not so much to steal. There ought to be a closer inspection, and there ought to be less opportunity for embezzle-ment. Lest a man shall take a fivecent piece that does not belong to him, the conductor on the city horse-car must sound his bell at every payment; and we are very cautious about small, but give plenty of opportunity for sinners on a large scale to escape. For a boy who steals a loaf of bread from a corner grocer to keep his mother from starving to death, a prison; but for defrauders, who abscond with half a million dollars, a castle on the Rhine, or, waiting until the offense is forgiven, a castle on the Hudson! Another remark needs to be made, and that is that people ought not to go into places, into business, or into inkstand, or door-knob, in the whole of a bad opportunity whether he is in a safe place. How many parents make an awful mistake when they put their boys in banking houses and stores and down part of a railroad bridge. A shops and factories and places of freight train came along, and it crash-solemn trust without once discussing ed into the ruin, and the engineer and whether they can endure the temptation? You give the boy plenty of money, and have no account of it, and the way down become very easy, and you may put upon him a pressure that he cannot stand. There are men who go into positions full of are incrative positions.

An abbot wanted to buy a piece of it, but the owner finally consented to let it to him until he could raise one crop, and the abbot sowed acorns-a crop of two hundred years! And I tell you, young man, that the dishonesties which you plant in your heart and life will seem to be very insignificant, but they will grow up until they will over-shadow you with horrible darkness, overshadow all time and all eternity. It will not be a crop for two hundred the property of others as you are careful of your own. Above all, keep your own private account at the bank separate from your account as trustee of an estate, or trustee of an institution. That is the point at which thousands of people make shipwreck. They get the property of others mixed up with their own property, they put it into investment, and away it all goes, and they cannot return that which they borrowed. Then comes the explosion, and the money market is shaken, and the press denounces and the church thunders expulsion.

You have no right to use the property of others except for their edvantage, nor without consent, unless they are minors. If with their consent you invest their property as well as you can, and it is all lost, you are not to blame; you did the best you could; but do not come into the delusion which has ruined so many men, of thinking because a thing is in their possession, therefore it is theirs. You have a solemn trust that God has given you.

Then the governor said: "I was much impressed by the letter you wrote me asking for a certain office in my gift, and I had made up my mind you should have it; but a young man who will cheat a laborer out of 5 cents would swindle the government of the state if he got his hands on it. I don't want you. Good morning, sir." pends the support of a bereft household

I do not suppose there was ever a better specimen of honesty than was found in the Duke of Wellington. He marched with his army over French frontier, and the ermy was suffering, and he scarcely knew how to get along. Plenty of plunder all about, but he commanded none of the plunder to be taken. He writes home these remarkable words: "We are overwhelmed with debts, and I can scarcely stir out of the house on account of public crieditors waiting to demand what is due to them." Yet at the very time the French peasantry were bringing their valuables to him to keep. A celebrated writer says of the transaction: "Nothing can be grander or more nobly original than this admission. This old soldier, after 30 years' service, this iron man and victorious general, established in an enemy's country, at the head of an immense army, is afraid of his creditors! This is a kind of fear that has seldom troubled conquerors and invaders, and I doubt if the annals of war present anything compar-able to its sublime simp city."

Oh, is it not high time that we preach the morals of the gospel right beside the faith of the gospel? Mr. Froude, the celebrated English historian, has written of his own country these remarkable words: "From the great house in the city of London to the village grocer, the commercial life of England has been saturated with fraud. So deep has it gone that a strictly honest tradesman can hardly hold his ground against competition. You can no longer trust that any article you buy is the thing which it pretends to be. We have false weights, false measures, cheating and shoddy everywhere. And yet the clergy have seen all this grow up in absolute indifference. Many hundreds of sermons have I heard in England on the divine mission of the clergy, on bishops, and on justification, and the theory of good works, and verbal inspiration, and the efficacy of the sacraments; but during all these thirty wonderful years, never one that I can recollect on common honesty."

Now, that may be an exaggerated statement of things in England, but I am very certain that in all parts of the earth we need to preach the moralities of the Gospel right along beside, the faith of the Gospel.

My hearer, what are you doing with that fraudulent document in your pocket? My other hearer, how are you getting along with that wicked scheme you have now on foot? Is that a "pool ticket" you have in your pocket? Why, O young man, were you last night practicing in copying your employer's signature? Where were you last night? Are your habits as good as when you left your father's house? You had a Christian ancestry, perhaps, and you have had too many prayers spent who have tested it. on you to go overboard. Dr. Livingstone, the famous explorer, was descended from the Highlanders, and he said that one of his ancestors, one of the Highlanders, one day called his family around him. The Highlander was dying; he had his children around his death-bed. He said: "Now, my lads. I have looked all through our history as far back as I can find it and I have never found a dishonest man in all the line, and I want you to understand you inherit good blood. You have no excuse for doing wrong. My lads, be Ah, my friends, be honest before God, be honest before your fellow-men, be honest before your soul. If there be those who have wandered away, come handled, and the man is not sure of his own integrity, you have no right to all, come into the kingdom of God.

I am glad some one has set to music cane. A man can tell by the sense of that scene in August, 1881, when a weakness or strength in the presence young girl saved from death a whole rail train of passengers. Some of you remember that out West in that year conductor perished. There was a girl living in her father's cabin near the disaster, and she heard the crash of the freight train, and she knew that in a few minutes an express was due. She lighted a lantern and climbed up on the one beam of the wrecked bridge temptation, considering only that they on to the main bridge, which was trestle work, and started to cross amid the thunder and lightning of the tempest, ground, and the owner would not sell and the raging of the torrent beneath. One misstep, and it would have been death. Amid all that horror the lantern went out. Crawling sometimes, and sometimes walking over the slippery rails, and over the trestle work she came to the other side of the river. She wanted to get to the telegraph station where the express train did not stop, so that the danger might be telegraphed to the station where the train did stop. The train was due in a few years, but a crop for everlasting ages. | minutes. She was one mile off from the compensation. The bribe may not be I address many who have trust telegraph station, but fortunately the offered in money. It may be offered in funds. It is a compliment to you that train was late. With cut and bruised you have been so entrusted, but I feet she flew like the wind. Coming charge you, in the presence of God and the world, be careful; be as careful of with almost deadly exhaustion, she had only strength to shout, "The bridge is down!" when she dropped unconscious, and could hardly be resuscitated. The message was sent from that station to the next station, and the train halted, and that night that braye girl saved the lives of hundreds of passengers, and saved many homes from desolation. But every street is a track, and every style of business is a track, and every day is a track, and every night is a track, and multitudes under the power of temptation come sweeping on and sweeping down toward perils rag-ing and terrific. God help us to go out and stop the train! Let us throw some signal. Let us give some warning. By the throne of God let us flash some in fluence to stop the downward progress. Beware! Beware! The bridge is down, the chasm is deep, and the lightning of God set all the night of sin on fire with this warning: "He that, being often reproved, hardeneth his neck, shall suddenly be destroyed, and that without

SIMCOE, Jan. 18th, 1897.

Messrs. Edmanson, Bates & Co., Toronto. Gentlemen -For over five months I was confined to my bed, not being able to move. The best medical skill was called in, all treating me for catarrh of the stomach, but to no avail. I could not eat the most simple food without being in dreadful misery, and found no relief until same was vomited up. After spending a large sum in medical advice, I was advised to try a box of Dr. Chase's Catarrh Cure. I purchased a box from J. Austin and Company, Simcoo, and to my surprise found great relief. Not being able to eat I tried a box of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills; the pains left me the third day. My appetite has been fully restored. I am positive that my marvellous cure (which I think it is) is due purely to Dr. Chase's remedies, which I have used. I can honestly recommend the same to any persons suffering from symptoms similar to Wishing you every success,

FATHER FLANNERY

Pays a High Tribute to the Memory of the Late Archbishop Walsh.

[St. Thomas Journal.] On Sunday in the Roman Catholic Church, Rev. Dr. Flannery spoke at length and with much feeling of the death of Archbishop Walsh. The reverend doctor and the late archbishop were almost life companions, having been ordained priests about the same time by Bishop de Charbonell in Toronto, and lived in that city from 1853 until 1867, when Bishop Walsh was consecrated, and both came to London. During the first two years of his episcopacy, Rev. Dr. Flannery acted as secretary to his lordship, and accompanied him in his first visitation to every parish in the dlocese. The people of St. Thomas and of every parish in this western peninsula, lasting debt to the memory of the late archbishop. The many elegant brick churches and priests' residences, the new school houses, convents and hospitals (three of which are found in London, Chatham and Windsor), besides the palatial residence and grand monumental cathedral, are all the results of Bishop Walsh's zeal and untiring energetic disposition. The thousands of young people in every part of this diocese, comprising, as it does, nine counties, whom he instructed, and to whom he administered confirmation, can never forget his paternal kindness and wholesome admonitions concerning their future and eternal welfare. Especially may it be said of the present generation of young men in these counties and cities, to every one of whom he administered the temperance pledge; that they, and their families and society in general through them, have personally fited and grown in grace and honor before God and man through Bishop Walsh's silent but steady and persevering work for the 22 years in our

The London Statist's Opinion of America's Immediate Future-The

London, Aug. 10.-The London Statist predicts for the United States an era of great prosperity following the conclusion of peace with Spain. It says:

"The prospect of an early conclusion of the war has very naturally given a and his five children a few days ago fillip to the market for American securities, and when a treaty of peace is actually signed it may reasonably be expected that there will be a marked

"Of course, it is possible that complications may grow out of the American demands. It is also possible that the United States Government, having once adopted a policy of over-sea acquisitions, may take other measures which may excite apprehension; but we ourselves do not see any reason for entertaining such a fear.

THIRD GOOD HARVEST "In the first place, the harvest again romises to be excellent. It is true that all European harvests likewise promise well, and we hope that Australia and Argentina will also have good crops. Therefore it is reasonable to expect that there will be a considerable fall in the price of wheat. Consequently the United States will not realize the immense profits which accrued to them the past two years; still, a third good hearvest in succession will be an immense gain to the country, and even if the farmers do not receive as much money for the wheat they have to sell, the wage-earning classes, who are the bulk of the inhabitants in the towns, will benefit from cheap bread, and so a stimulus will be given to general trade. CUBA TO BE DEVELOPED. act upon the United States. "Furthermore, Porto Rico will have to be brought up to the American level, and whatever acquisition the United States makes in the Pacific will likewise call for a large outlay of capital. "Lastly, the new position taken by the United States in the world makes it incumbent upon the government to largely augment its fleet. Therefore large additions of first-class ships of the newest type will have to be made, and that implies a considerable government outlay. "The army likewise will have to be increased, which again means an additional government outlay. "For all these reasons, and others that might be mentioned, it is reasonable to expect a long period of exceedingly active trade in the United States as well as much business on the Stock Exchange, and higher prices in both. Dr. Chase's Preparations Have Merit

Stratford, Aug. 10.-George Walton. of Brantford, whose wife deserted him and eloped with a married man named Luther Myles, who has a wife and two children, found his erring spouse in this city Saturday night. Myles and Mrs. Walton arrived here just a week ago and registered at the Queen's as J. Wyled and wife, of Hamilton. On Wednesday last Mrs. Walton secured employment at the Dominion House, while Myles got work on the sewer. On Saturday it was learned that they were the Brantford elopers, and Chief Mc-Carthy sent word to Mr. Walton informing him of the whereabouts of his wife. Upon arriving here Walton went immediately to the hotel where his wife was working, and there they kissed and made up. She agreed to return to Brantford, but as the last train had gone, they had to remain here until Monday. Sunday afternoon Myles, not having heard of Walton's arrival, called to see Mrs. Walton, and very soon there was a lively scene. The injured husband came across Myles on the street, with the result that Myles got a severe drubbing. Walton carried an umbrella, which he broke on Myles' head. PAWNBROKER-LENDS MONEY ON and Editor, John Cameron London, Wednesday, Aug. 10, 1898.

Mr. T. D. Hodgens and His Ram Mr. T. D. Hodgens, the member for East Middlesex, has begun his career of statesmanship, his first eventful step being a formal request of the mintry for all correspondence relating to the purchase of a ram by the Government from Mr. Hodgens himself.

If we mistake not this is the ram more expressly described by Mr. Hodgens in the late campaign as "the old We give credit to Mr. Hodgens for his evident desire to fulfill his pledge to the electors by tracing the ram through all its ramifications since it left his penfold for pastures new. He feels that the eyes of his constituents are upon him and the buck. In conferring this public distinction upon the venerable animal, Mr. Hodgens shows a thankful spirit. It did him many good turns. Whenever the electors tired of hearing about the piggery and the asylum contracts, Mr. Hodgens could always recall their rambling attention by trotting out the Fam. Metaphorically he gallavanted up and down the side roads on the old buck, and some of his friends say it was the old buck that carried him to victory, so that to forget it now would be an act of heartless ingratitude, worthy the contempt of the Humane Society.

The member for East Middlesex has hinted at dark, mysterious chapters in the history of this beast which, when unfolded, will place the Government on the ram's horn of a dilemma. It is certainly unfortunate for the Government that so grave an issue should be projected on the Legislature when short session is desired. But the Opposition may have staked on it heavily. If bye-elections come they will want a new policy, and the old buck may develop into an issue that will dwarf the pig and relegate the constable question to the dusty purlieus of the law. Mr. Hodgens may yet wear the laurels which have dropped from the brow of the disconsolate St. John.

Misconduct of the War.

Now that the smoke of battle is out of their eyes, the American people are beginning to see and condemn the mismanagement of the Cuban campaign, in which failure was averted only by fortuitous circumstances. Had famine not compelled a premature surrender of the Spanish, the result to the Americans would have been dire disaster, as present conditions prove. The splendid fortitude and gallantry of the American troops would have been unavailing had the Spanish prolonged the siege until the climate began to get in its deadly work. One-fifth of the American force are on the sick list, and the remainder are in such a debilitated state that they must flee the country or risk annihilation by disease. The round robin signed by the officers in camp, demanding the immediate return of the troops to the United States, has created a profound mensation, and the people now realize that their brave men were rushed into the fray with an appalling inadequacy of preparation. The commissariat was wretched, but the hospital equipment was criminal. The sick and wounded who survived the horrors of Siboney were sent home in floating charnel houses. In ordering an investigation of these outrages the government is responding to public senti-

The indignation leveled at the war department has been given a fillip by the publication of the Alger-Roosevelt correspondence. Lieut.-Col. Roosevelt wrote a well-intentioned but somewhat indiscreet letter to Gen. Alger, the secretary of war, advising that the Rough Riders and regulars be sent to Porto Rico, as they were superior to the volunteers. Gen. Alger had ordered the troops to the interior of Cuba, but when he received the roundwhich was initiated by Roosevelt, he at once dictated a stinging reply to the brave young officer, accusing him of making invidious distinctions to the disparagement of the volunteers. Although Roosevelt's letter was private and confidential, Alger gave it to the press, along with his own rebuke. It was an exhibition of personal and official spite, unworthy of a man in Gen. Alger's high position. It strengthens the charge that the war department is honeycombed with political intrigue. Roosevelt is a possible Republican candidate for the governorship of New York, and it is openly alleged that Gen. Alger took this means of crushing his ambition by making him unpopular with the state militia. It is also said that Gen. pire. The Austrians practice protec-

No Gain From Undue Haste. The wisdom of those who favor cautious action in proceeding with London sewerage system is upheld by the fact that though the best authorities in Great Brithave declared in favor of the land filtration system, as the most economical and satisfactory, there are hopes that improvements may soon be made. For this reason, not a few contemplated sanitary operations are ostponed until such time as the Royal Commission on Sewage Disposal, now sitting, may make its recommendations. This commisison a composed of men eminently fitted to make a thorough examination into every phase of this interesting question. Among its members are Lord Iddisleigh, who is chairman. Sir Richard Thorne, F. R.S., Prof. Foster, F.R.S., Prof. Ramsay, F.R.S., Gen. Carey, Dr Russell, and other eminent sanitary and scientific authorities. The commission has already taken a good deal of evidence, and will, during the present month, engage in bacteriological and chemical work After some further evidence has been taken, the commissioners will draw up a report, and it will be printed along with the evidence of the municipal authorities.

There can be no doubt that the findings of these experts will be most useful to the public in centers of population, which are virtually interested in the economical disposal of sewage. So far as this city is concerned, the local authorities have done well in arranging for systematic conveyance of the sewage to the city limits, where meanwhile, it is disposed of in a manner which inflicts but a limited amount of inconvenience or trouble to anyone. There is really no hurry for going on with the remainder of the works and the board of health and city council will have public opinion at their back if they suspend further developments till the British Royal Commission on the subject reports.

Let us have the best system, by all means. It will be cheapest in the end. Meanwhile, no money authorized bystatute to be borrowed for this purpose should be diverted into other channels. Such a course would be dishonest, and worthy of the severest

The Situation at Manila.

The news of a flerce fight at Manila comes like a bolt from the blue. Cut off from direct communication with the outside world, the defenders of the city have apparently heard nothing of the peace negotiations, or they would not have aggravated their own helpless situation by such a move. The battle is notable, as the first in which Spaniards took the initiative. It was a midnight surprise, in the midst of a raging typhoon and a downpour of rain, but the Spaniards needed stronger ally than the elements, were, as usual, repulsed with heavy loss. The result may stiffen the attitude of President McKinley and his advisers, and dispose them more to retain the Philippines entirely. Complete possession would probably involve the United States in fewer difficulties. By keeping only a coaling station or one island, they would leave the remainder to be grabbed by rivals. As a London correspondent puts it, the Philippines would become the cockpit of the European powers. Great Britain openly desires American sovereignty over the islands, as it would give the United States a stake in Asia and strengthen the identity of British and American interests in the East.

The Opposition do not court an appeal to the courts.

The Dominion Government are trying to work up a larger trade between Canada and the British West Indies. The omens are bright, as the last Government tried it and failed.

Mr. Mulock's claim to public appreciation rests upon something more than imperial penny postage. His administration of the postoffice department has been remarkable. When he took office he faced a deficit of $700,997. In 1896-7 he reduced it to $586,539. This huge balance on the wrong side has dwindled this year to a trifle over $74,-000, so that the department for the first time is practically self-supporting. In mail contracts alone, Mr. Mulock has saved $103,936 a year. This is not only a great tribute to Mr. Mulock, and a relief to the taxpayers, but a proof of the late government's corruption and extravagance.

The Inventors' Review for July 22, gives the following summary of trade

"Taken as a whole, the trade of the country continues in a very sound and healthy condition. Manufacturers are for the most part busy with a very fair number of orders on hand, and a good prospect of more to follow. Work has this week been largely interrupt-ed in Glasgow and the West of Scotland, but this is owing to what are known as the fair holidays, not to any diminution in the amount of work waiting to be done. On the contrary, shipbuilders have still a plethora of orders, and the iron and steel makers have enough to do to keep them supplied. In Manchester things have duller aspect than in any other manufacturing center. There is not much doing, and where there has been some movement-as in gray goods for India-it has been caused by somewhat reduced prices. There is generally a waiting or expectant attitude."

Russia is the only country in the world without its Christian Endeavor Society. The total enrollment from without the United States is 11,775 societies. The increase in South Africa, India, China, Germany and throughout Great Britain has been large. In discussing the question of garbage disposal at the American Municipal League Convention, which met recently in Detroit, Hon, F. A. Walker, of Trenton, N. J., advocated the incineration method in preference to the reduction or utilization plan. The city of Trenton, with a population of 75,000 people pays $6,000 for the collection and destruction of its garbage at & rate of 30 cents a ton. He said that the cremation plan was being successfully used in a number of cities, and it was found that reduction plants would operate more cheaply than incineration plants as the lye products bring in an income. The mayor of Atlanta stated that that city spent more money to dispose of its garbage than for any other item, but they would rather keep on with their expensive system than waste money on experiments. The usual cost is from 30 to 50 cents a ton for cremation, and from $2 to $3 for collecting the garbage. Several attempts to establish a garbage system in London have failed. The promoters will find some practical information in the proceedings of the convention.

AMERICA'S DUTY

In our opinion, the government at Washington will not be doing their duty to the people of the Union unless they insist upon two principles: First, that Spanish rule shall cease

tion, but they will hardly relish this absolutely and forever in Cuba, in the Philippines, and in Porto Rico; and, secondly, that America, and America alone, shall decide what is to be the ultimate fate of the former possessions of Spain. Unless these principles are insisted on absolutely, America may find that the war, instead of having been a blessing to the inhabitants of the Spanish colonies, has turned out a curse, and instead of a movement in the direction of humanty and civilization, an actual step backward.-London Spectator.

> THE PRESS AND THE PLEBISCITE. A. few days ago, a Toronto dispatch contained the announcement that the officers of the Dominion Alliance claim to have reason to believe that they had now fairly complete knowledge that the plan of campaign of the liquor associations is to belittle the plebiscite, bribe the press and bulldoze the politicians. We have no knowledge whatever of their plans, but the evident intention of the officers of the Dominion Alliance in publishing the above statement was to arouse a suspicion against he press so that any newspaper which belittles the plebiscite and opposes prohibition may be suspected of being bribed by the liquor associations. Not ong ago the Montreal Witness made a manly and honest retraction of a state ment that a majority of the press was not in a position to take a just stand on prohibition, because it was in the pay of the liquor dealers. All such sweeping statements and insinuations are unjust and damaging to the pressof Canada, and ought not to be allowed to pass unchallenged, since they are designed to create an erroneous and injurious impression that the press is, as a general thing, venal and purchase. able.-Ottawa Journal.

BIRDS OF OUR CHILDHOOD. The other evening, as the twilight fell, I heard the red-breasts chirping in the beeches, and I reflected with soft emotion that they were singing precise-ly like those I heard in my childhood on the borders of the copses in my province. The birds have this charm, they seem to be always the same. Years pass, we grow old, we see our friends disappear, revolutions alter the face of things, illusions fall, one after the other, and yet, in the trees of orchards and woods, the birds we have known from childhood repeat the same familiar calls, modulate the same musical phrases with the same fresh voice. Time does not seem to attack them, and as they hide themselves to die, as we never see their death agony, we can almost persuade ourselves that we have always before our eyes those that enchanted our earliest youth.

RICH AGAIN

Brother John Has Recovered His Lost Fortune.

Chicago, Aug. 9 .- John Cudahy has recovered the fortune he lost five years ago on the board of trade. He has paid in that time $2,000,000 in debts. It was in August of 1893 he was caught "long" on pork, the panic preventing banks and his friends from coming to his assistance. Now he has paid all claims and is rich again. When Mr. Cudahy walked out the board of trade five years ago his wealthy brother Michael handed him a check for $100,000, saying: "John, take that and use it. John Cudahy had used the money with remarkable sagacity. ## Acute Rheumatism

Pains in the Foot and Limb-A Complete Cure Accomplished by Hood's Sarsaparilla.

"For a number of years I was afflicted with acute rheumatism in my left side and all the way down my limb into my foot. I live five blocks from my work and had to stop and rest several times in going and coming. I could get no relief from my trouble and was on the point of giving up my job when I happened to hear of Hood's Sarsaparilla. I purchased a bottle of this medicine and a vial of Hood's Pills and began taking them. Before I had half finished them I was relieved and it was not long before I was completely cured. I never lose an opportunity to praise Hood's Sarsaparilla, for my cure meant a great deal to me, as I have a famfly and must always be at my post." Lord Beresford goes to investigate the prospects of commerce and to report particularly as to the extent to which the Chinese Government will guarantee the safety of British capital already invested and of contemplated investments. SECRETARY CURZON EXPLAINS. London, Aug. 10.-Answering a question in the House of Commons, the parliamentary secretary for the foreign office, Mr. George N. This was in reply to Great Britain's message, saying she would support China against any power committing an act of aggression in China, because China London, July 10.—The Council of the had granted a British subject permis-

Mr. Frank Strongman, a Londoner, Was in Cuba.

His Experience in the First Important Engagement of the War-Visit to London After Five Years' Absence

Mr. Frank Strongman, an old London boy, has just returned from Cuba, where he fought at Guantanamo in the first important engagement in the war. He was attached to Company "D," Marine battalion, under Capt. Spicer, and was one of a score of the men in the company who recently completed their five years' service in the army, and were discharged. Mr. Strongman, before leaving, was promoted to the rank of sergeant, and if the war were not now practically over, would still be at the front. He is in the best of health and "roughing it" has only made him hardy. He gives a thrilling account of the horrors of the fight. The Marine battalion is one of the oldest military organizations in the States, and has the reputation of being 'the first to land and the last to leave wherever there is trouble. The battalion, numbering 700, was mustered from the coast marines in May, Brooklyn being the rendezvous, and started south under the command of Lt.-Col. Hunt ington. From Hampton Roads to Key West they were accompanied by a co voy. Six weeks of continual drilling were spent at Key West, when the battalion was ordered to Guantanamo. The gunboat Montgomery, commanded by Capt. McCalla, shelled the beach and gave protection while a landing was effected. On the second night, its distribution. No. 2 ward organized, June 12, the camp was attacked by the Spaniards. At the sound of the first shot and the first yell of the enemy, the Americans jumped to their guns, and never left them for three nights and three days. The attacking force numbered over 3,000, and it was only because of the Spaniards' poor shooting that the small band of 700 Americans was not completely wiped out. Shells from the Montgomery went screaming over the heads of the sol-diers in the trenches, and would strike into the Spanish territory 150 or 200 yards ahead, raising clouds of dust. At times the Americans themselves were in danger from the boat's fire. The soldier next to Mr. Strongman was shot in the arm while he had his gun to his shoulder. The bullet entered the wrist and came out at the elbow. The Spaniards' loss of life was very great. When repulsed by the men in the trenches, they attempted to retreat to the shelter of their block-house, but in doing so they got under the fire of powers to such an extent as to make a conflict inevitable, and then will seek the Montgomery's guns. This was so disastrous that they turned again to riddled their ranks as before. By the time they escaped from between the two fires several hundreds of their men were left as prey for the vultures. The loss on the American side was 5 killed and 50 or 60 wounded. The first man killed was the surgeon. He was sitting in his tent when the shooting commenced. "It's getting pretty hot, boys." he said. "Guess I'll have some work to do," and as he stepped out was shot in the temple. The shots by the enemy which took effect, says Sergeant Strongman, were merely chance shots. "They couldn't hit a barn. We knew what the result would be as soon as we saw them shoot. The greenest man in the American army is a better marksman than a Spanish negular." A ruse of the Spaniards was to cover themselves with cactus plants or other vegetation, and make their way up to the American camp undetected, so that they could fire at short range, but even then they couldn't hit anything. Not one shot in 5,000 took effect. Speaking of the Spaniards' bravery Sergt. Strongman said: "They are like western coyotes. In a pack they will face anything, but single-handed there is no bravery in them.' Mr. Strongman had heard the whistle of bullets and the war-whoop of the Indians in the Western States, so when asked about his most striking impressions of the fight, said: "Getting rid of the mosquitoes and flies was our worst trouble. They were awful." The camp at Guantanamo was not attacked by large numbers after the siege of June 12, 13 and 14, so that the work then consisted of keeping guard the Worth establishment, died Mon-day. and protecting the place as a base of supplies. Santiago is 45 miles to the east of Guantanamo. Speaking of the Cuins, Mr. Strongman, after describing their wants, said: "We couldn't blamethem for going through our knapsacks when we weren't watching."The Spanish soldiers, he said, were paid in cigarettes. The American soldiers had no ground for complaint, because The construction of the Bismarck mausoleum will be begun immediately. The work has been entrusted to Prof.

Von Scharnbeck, the Hanover archithat the Spanish did not mutilate the Character of the treatment they received. It was as good as could be expected, he said. He denies Admiral Sampson's report that the Spanish did not mutilate the of the treatment they received. It was He denies Admiral Sempson's report that the Spanish did not mutilate the dead Americans. They mutilated them fiendishly he says.

The police magistrate this morning decided the fate of the 3,500 volumes of an alleged medical work, which was seized by the police as obscene literature. The books are valued by Hodgins and Haskett at between $2,000 and $3,000. The work is said to have been compiled by a London lawyer.

Preliminary Trial in the Bank Robbery at Napanee Resumed.

Napanee, Aug. 10 .- No one but the crown counsel will be allowed hereafter to interview Pare. Pare has written a letter to his sister, Madame Saucier. The letter was, of course, read by the crown officers. The only remark it contained bearing on the case was an expression of sympathy for the mother of Ponton. The trial was resumed here yesterday and continued today.

Pare sat on the witness stool, and told Lawyer Porter of his arrest by Constable Siles at the baseball match in the park. According to the constable, Pare's story tallied with the fact in every particular. Holden was arrested with Pare. The two were lodged over night in the police station, seven days before the robbery. Pare said he had three keys upon him; one he put in his mouth, like a quid of tobacco. This was the key that opened Cameron writes: "I was confined to shed behind the bank. The second key my bed with inflammation of the lungs was to Mr. Bayne's compartment the third key was a brass one to work the combination. Pare swore that ce buried the last two keys in the police station. The witness described the events of the night of the robbery, stating that Holden, Mackie and himself removed their shoes in Ponton's room and put on tennis shoes, moccasins and old socks to deaden the sound. He was particularly positive about the fact that no noise was made. This part of Pare's evidence knocks Hannah Mc-Greer's evidence of last year to pieces. W. S. Herrington, in open court, gave the lie to certain statements, saying the prisoner Pare had been drilled daily on his evidence by the detectives.

The other was of steel, and was used to work the combination. The court opened with Pare still under Mr. Porer's cross-examination. The story of the case from the time the money was counted up in Ponton's room was gone into. Pare said that he did not know whether Ponton knew where the money was planted or not. Holden did the planting. Five thousand dollars in good money and $2,000 in unsigned notes were put in a tin cracker box and buried at the side of the G. T. It was one of those sudden tempests that sometimes come up on a bright day; and it had almost covered the vestern sky before they perceived it. As the doctor spoke it struck the villa. Holding on his hat he ran toward the bridge.

Sister Agnes, with the double flaps bonnet, black silk over white inen, flying in the wind, ran about gathering the ladies, and getting them nto the house.

Valeria went up to her chamber for a moment; then, seeking the sister, coaxed out of her an anwilling permission to go to the terrace on the roof, and see the storm come in over the "Only don't stay out in the rain," Sister Agnes begged, as she unlocked the terrace door. When the first flight of large raindrops came, flung against the house with a rattling like shot, she went down to her room again. There was a loud booming sound of the wind rushing through some fissure in the ceiling or roof over her window. "Hear the Barberini bees," she said, thinking of the great stone bees on the cornice outside, to the nurse, who was closing the window. The girl started.

Before sunset the storm was over; and at evening the full moon rose superbly into a world all golden, and kissed on her silvery forehead by the last sunbeam. Even the sullen Tiber had been put into good humor by this tempestuous sfogo of the skies. Could that be the ugly, wicked Tiber-that shining stream, all delicate rose and silver, with every arch and every its tide?

Valeria had begged another favor of Sister Agnes; and when the ladies were all shut into their rooms, she came quietly out of her own. Passing along the corridor, the light of her candle shining on the pretty crimson borders of the doors, she saw a light at the end, in the chamber opposite that of the Signora Agnese, who was both called by her maiden name, that shouting her psalms as usual, and, apparently, fancying she was edifying before, as a bride, she had won the ducal circlet.

Weeping wildly, she stretched out her arms to that mocking vision of her vanished greatness set upon the ened whimpering, and pleading words

This was a new patient. She was a young woman, with large, lustrous eyes, and rich hair that fell about her; and she seemed to be almost paralyzed with terror. The sister and the nurse were trying to soothe her, and to find out what she feared, but mone to me, the equal of queens! I leria went into the room, the woman have three coronets on my head, I am a duchess; and I can call nothing my could understand nothing. When Va-

"O signora, what snall I do? O signora!" It was all that she could say; but she clung so that her hold had to be loosened, finger by finger.
"She is another one who will not eat," the sister said.

Valeria, shivering hurried away as of more than life and friends, and have those about merely raise their long day of watchfulness, to be followed, in some cases, by a disturbed are rending those hearts no more to

Out-doors all the world was radiant with moonlight, and all was silent. Valeria went down through the garden, touching the flowers as she went. The yellow roses showed in that light; but the red roses were known only by their sweetness. Wrapping a shawl around her, she seated herself in the swing, and sat there looking about and thinking, only moving the swing softly with a touch now and then.

Sister Agnes came out and ran down hrough the trees toward the bridge. She was going to the community to supper; and, the day's work done, the nuns also would have their little hour of recreation.

"If there is a letter for me, bring it up tonight, Suor Agnes," Valeria called out.

The nun assented and hurried on. She sat thinking in that scene of enchantment, which was also a scene of despair, till the sister came up. Then she went to her chamber and read the letter that was brought to her. Others came in the morning. Leteither of a success which might have a failure. People liked her book, smiling faces were bending over it far away; and every word of praise was a feather to the arrow of a lie. People would look up with pleasure at sound of her name, and would listen to a story to make the smile die on their Hands would be half outstretched, then coldly withdrawn. It was not a great book, it was full of faults, much of it had been written in pain and sickness; yet it had touchthe hearts of friends, but for bonds," more cruel than the bonds of St. Paul, viler than the bonds of a murderer. The praises that she had hardly dared to hope for came and beat upon the bars of her prison, and fell broken and worthless before her. Better for her had she been the most obscure per-son on earth; for then no one would have cared to know her story.

She read these notices that were sent her, and dropped them. Yet there were times when they drove her almost wild. Was there no one in that far-off land of her birth who would have opened her prison doors had he known? If she could send all her story to the journals, and call on the American public for pro-tection, would they not demand her release?

She resisted the temptation to call for help, and waited. This struggle could not continue long without its effects on the sufferer. Per-fectly sound in health, without any malady, and gifted with an appearance of robustness. Valeria had yet a sensitiveness of organization that left her body at the mercy of her mind. Sadness became a malady, and fear a disease. A fit of weeping made her physically ill; and as her courage died her strength died. Delight would have snatched her from the brink of the grave; a lie could push her into it.

While at work he St. Catharines, and his son Frank came down from St. Michael's on the steamship Manuenz, and went east. Mr. Dawson is not in love with Klondike winters. He says that every winter adds about five years to a man's age. Young Indians of 15, who have lived in the north for years, look like men of 30. When Mr. Dawson left the Klondike living was getting cheaper, meals being down to $1.25 each.

The plan was to add another story to the structure and make the building a counterpart of the well-known Hotel Ste. Claire, in Detroit. On good authority, it is said that the D., B. I. and W. Ferry Co. was approached with a view to shifting the Windsor ferry dock a block in order to steer trade to the new hotel. This move would not only have greatly benefited the proposed hotel, but would have greatly added to the value of the property in the vicinity, and for blocks northward in the city. The consummation of the recent deal by which the British-American Hotel changed hands, together with a number of obstacles not to be avoided at present, resulted in the scheme's going into the air. The project has not wholly been given up yet, however, and St. Louis, the real estate man, who has been acting as agent for the London men, expects that the plan will be further pursued this fall."

"Gifted Genius" From Huron Gone to Find the Peg-Leg.

Says That Toohey's Murderer Became Disgusted With Life and Shot Himself 12 Miles West of London.

The policemen of the London force are somewhat agitated over the turn of events the last day or two. Yesterday morning a man named Rau, a German, called at the police station. He said he belonged to Crediton, Huron county, and had come to see if the $500 reward offered for the capture of P. C. Toohey's murderer would be paid if the body of the tramp were turned over to the authorities. He was a mind-reader, he said, and possessed a very rare gift, by which he learned that the murderous tramp had committed suicide in the woods twelve miles west of London. Rau said he had made a study of such things for nine years, and as nothing of this nature had failed him before, he was sure it would not now. The chief laughed, but P. C. Rowell, volunteered to accompany the stranger to woods, where the body was to be found concealed in a log. The tramp, Rau said, had gone to the border be low Sarnia, where he had found it impossible to cross. He returned east, and when about twelve miles west of London he met a small boy, to whom he told the whole story of P. C. Toohey's death. The tramp complained of hunger and of being hounded by the police, and suspiciously eyed by everybody who sighted him. #### The Wiring of the New Hospital Partly Arranged For-The Committee Undecided About Putting in Conduit -More Tenders Called.

Tenders on the modified specifications of the wiring of the new hospital were received from the Rogers and the London Electric companies by the hospital building committee last night, and discussed for a couple of hours before the contract was awarded. The Rogers Electric Company offered to do the work for $1,346, with $450 extra for complete switchboard, with all switches and instruments as originally specified. The company also agreed to do all the work first called for by Mr. Wilkes for $2,300-$76 lower than the lowest tender opened on Monday night. The London Electric Company offered to do all the wiring called for in the amended specifications for $1,300, and to place one marble switchboard for the power plant, with instruments and switches, wires for power conduit to laundry, main wires from generator to switchboard, and from switchboard to feeder wires of public vendor, for

On motion of Ald. Jolly, the latter tender of $1,300 was accepted. Messrs. Rogers and Hunt, representing the tenderers, were present, and when asked to give prices on lines differing from the specifications, the pro cedure was characterized by Ald. Jolly as "very unfair." "Stick to the specifications," he said, and they did. Messrs. James Grant and Frank

Love, representing the Amorite Conduit Company, of Pittsburg, Pa., urged that the conduit system be adopted. The article made by the Armorite Company was conceded to be the best made. It was approved of by the un-derwriters of New York, Chicago and other American cities, and insured absolute safety from fire. It also gave permanency to the system. Rev. Ralph H. Baldwin, of Saginaw, Deserts His Wife,

And Flies With a Former London Woman-A Sad Case of Neglect Exposed.

Charged with Having Betrayed Another Woman-Deposed From the Ministry.

(Condensed from the Detroit News.) For the sake of a woman whom he met in a house on Gratiot avenue. Rev. Ralph Harolde Baldwin, of Saginaw, Mich., sacrificed his wife and family, his position in the church and in society, and his brilliant prospects of advancement, and is now a wanderer, trying to hide himself from those who knew him while he was a respected member of society. The woman in the case is known in Detroit as Alice Keays, and is said to be a native of London, Ont. The two went in that direction yesterday (Friday), closing up the house at 606 Second avenue, which has been their home for the past five months. During all that time he neglected his wife completely, and only spent from Saturday afternoon till Monday in Saginaw. All the rest of the he was with the Keays woman. Mrs. Baldwin, having guessed the real state of affairs, summoned her father, Mr. Crittenden, the New York millionaire. Mr. Baldwin then decided to give up everything and seek refuge where he was not known. Before going he sent to Bishop Davies his resignation as rector of St. John's Episcopal Church, and his complete renunciation of holy orders, and instructed the trustees of the church to take what money he had left behind to pay any accounts he might be owing. only $20 in his pocket he set out for a new career for himself, and, as soon as possible, marrying the woman who has come between him and everything that

He threw up his hands, and, in a broken voice, asked the reporter not to reveal his whereabouts.

As to the woman with him, he would only say that he has done what he considers his duty by her. I will marry Alice Keays as soon as I can consistently do so, but at present I only want work and peace."

Baldwin studied at Yale, and afterward attended the Berlin Union seminary, where he attained a wonderful proficiency in modern languages. He pecame private secretary to Bishop Potter, of New York, and married the daughter of a millionaire. It was al-
