London, July 22 .- At what was virtually an all-night session, the House of Commons completed its consideration of both the German peace treaty and the Anglo-French convention.

The bill carrying approval of the German treaty was considered in committee of the whole, exciting lengthy debate, in which Premier Lloyd George took an active part. The bill was then placed before the House and passed its third reading, after a motion by Johnson Devlin to reject it as a protest against the premier's attitude towards Ireland had been defeated by 163 to 4. Then, at 3 a.m., the Anglo-French pact was taken up, and the bill approving it was unanimously passed after a short but sharp debate, in which the argument that the treaty was not consistent with the league of nations failed to find any substantial echo.

The German treaty passed through all its stages without amendment. In concluding his speech on the treaty, Premier Lloyd George, while making no claim of perfection for it, expressed confidence that any defects would be remedied by the league of nations.) Despite its imperfections, the premier declared the treaty would stand "as a lighthouse in the deep, and a warning to nations and rulers of nations against the perils which the German empire shattered itself against

The German officers later surrendered themselves to the American forces. Certain of their former associates had become suspicious, however, and are believed to have arranged to mete out stern justice. Utmost precautions were taken even within the allied lines to protect the informers, but as officials believed that as long as they were kept in France their lives would be in danger, orders were given for their transfer to this country. The prisoners are said to be Alfred Scholz and Alwin Grothe. The former is an infantry officer, and was captured at St. Mihiel, September 2, 1918. Grothe, an aviator, was shot down in the Argonne in October of the same year.

BYLAWS DISCUSSED BY CITY COUNCIL AT LIVELY MEETING

Discussion of City Fathers Lasts Well Over Two Hours.

STREET RAILWAY AGAIN

Now Reported They Have Already Broken Agreement With the City.

The Waterloo street pavement, street oiling and the street railway fare increase bylaw were matters which occupied most of the time of the city session, the balance of which was practically devoid of special interest.

The Waterloo street pavement matter reached another stage, but just what the present situation is, even most of the aldermen apparently do not know. The bylaw to pave the street from Harvard to Huron street with asphalt was repealed, and a resolution adopted to introduce a new bylaw for asphalting the two blocks between Grosvenor and Huron. The bylaw to lay gravel road on the remaining portion remains, but according to Ald. O. G. Keene, the work cannot be done this year in any event.

Pave Waterloo.

No. 2 committee, through its chairman, Ald. E. S. Little, submitted a recommendation that the engineer be authorized to proceed with the construction of asphalt pavement on Waterloo street from Harvard to Huron. Ald. S. Manness immediately rose to take objection. He pointed out that the bylaw for this work had been superseded by one calling for gravel road on the lower blocks as a result of a petition from the residents on the street. These people did not want asphalt, and they were not going to have it. They had threatened to take proceedings if necessary to enjoin the city from proceeding with the work. The policy to preve the street from Barryard to Huron street with asphalt was proposed, and a resolution, additionally the policy of the polic peal the asphalt bylaw, which had been given two readings at a previous meeting and then referred back to No. 2 committee, be now given the third reading. The champions of asphalt among the aldermen took exception to this suggestion, urging that the matter should be referred back to No. 2 committee again to straighten out the legal tangle, which they maintained the solicitor had by no means cleared up. The mayor held that in any event, Ald. Manness' motion was not in order, as the matter had been referred to No. 2 committee previously, and should not be taken out of the

The mayor deprecated the suggested action, stating that the council had passed the bylaw in order to avoid a most difficult situation, and he thought it would be unwise to deliberately bring about the same situation again without very careful consideration first. After almost every member of the council had expounded his own views on the situation an amendment to refer the matter to the special railway committee and the engineer was adopted.

A letter from Judge Judd threatened hat unless Ridout street, between Land that unless Ridout street, between Langarth and Emery streets were oiled before Wednesday next, the property owners on that block would proceed to enter action for mandamus to compel performance of this work, which was being paid for and to which, therefore, the property owners were entitled. Ald. Keene thought that the engineer's department was doing the best it could, and that complaints were not justified. Ald. Manness was of the opinion, on the other hand, that there was every justification for complaint. This work ought to be done immediately. Long discussion again ensued, and ended with a resolution, which was adopted, to proceed with this work immediately. ing paid for and to which, therefor was adopted, to proceed with this work immediately.

Number 2 committee's recommandation, that James Cooper Young, nominated by the board of health, be appointed plumbing inspector under the building inspector, was referred back to the board of health at the suggestion of Ald. Holmes, who said that the board had asked for an opportunity to reconsider its nomination and submit the name of a returned soldier.

money was to be our first consideration; but, like the miser who forgot self, our actual necessities, our loyalty and our patriotic spirit, which should have been worth all we could spend as an example to our children, to say nothing of our pride as a city which boasts of its incentive and dash in such things. While the flagstaffs in London stood naked, nearly every city, town and village in this fair country put on something that was really worth while, while none forgot the thanksgiving that London pretended to believe sufficient. Even Kitchener, whom we have been mocking with our lip-loyalty for the years of the war, put on a splendid day of rejoicing to celorate the conclusion of peace and the downfall of the German Empire, while London, the great and loyal, goes home and goes to sleep, or hands its surplus change over to the London and Port Stanley Railway, or to the businessmen of some other town or village, who are on to their job. Surely this huge mistake could not have been made unintentionally. There must be a reason for our council allowing the city to fall down on such a day. There must be a reason for our council allowing the city to fall down on such a day. There must be a reason for our council allowing the city to fall down on such a day. There must be a nigger in the woodpile somewhere. but rather commended and encouraged the indifferent spirit in our otherwise enthusiastic citizens.

But how shall the citizens redeem the shameful situation? There appears to be only one way, and while we commend the vote of censure passed by our G. W. V. A. on the city council in the matter, we also commend their spirit of enthusiasm and progression, in our effort to stage one grand day of celebration for the joint purpose of honoring and entertaining His Royal Highness the Prince of Wales, and as a special local day to celebrate peace. Shall our city council and our citizens permit these returned men to stand alone and bear the total expense of such a celebration, to sustain and save the reputation of our fair city? We hope not. Let everyone wake up to the fact of our failure and realize the necessity of redeeming the good name of this city. Let every soldier, every businessman, every organization, and every citizen come to their aid in this growd effort and above all let the businessman, every organization, and every citizen come to their aid in this grand effort, and, above all, let the city council wake up to the possibility, and the necessity of this attempt of the Great War Veterans, and get in with will, energy and money. Let us have one great day to mark this great event, and all will be forgiven and forgotten.

The Party for Farmers.

The Party for Farmers.

"The Liberal party is the place for farmers," declared Chairman George Innes, who added, "I have been a farmer all my life. There is room for all the virtues in Liberalism, as long as a man is a true Liberal. There is lots of room in the Liberal party for all farmers' clubs and farmers are in the majority in the Liberal convention."

The word 'model' I found it was 'a small imitation of the real thing.

"That is pretty near the true situation concerning the budget. They make believe they are doing something great for you in that budget. They allege they are 'lowering duty on farm implements,' but it won't become effective until after the farm crops are taken off.

Referring to his own long association with the West Middlesex riding, extending back over 40 or 50 years, he humorously remarked that in all that time, it had only been represented twice by non-Liberals. One was a bank manager. He got in, but the bank broke. The other ruptured the Liberals.

Stating emphatically that the Nathe history of the Dominion, the chairman added, amid applause, that the convention will not represent the rebirth of Liberalism. for the reason that the principles of Liberalism are eternal. The convention, he pointed out, will be a gathering of representative Liberal men and women from all parts of the Dominion, to choose a leader and formulate a platform begge the and formulate a platform, hence the importance of choosing good men and omen to cope with the problem which lies before them.

With regard to the selection of the leader, "I hope," said Mr. Innes, "that the convention in Ottawa is as fortunate in this respect as the convention in Toronto."
With every other speaker of the afternoon, the chairman paid a tribute of affection and reverence to the late honored Liberal chieftain, Sir Wilfrid Laurier. Fine Boost for Dewart.

Premier Lloyd George replied to his critics in the debate in the House of Commons on the second reading of the German peace treaty and the Anglo-French convention. a neutral country for this purpose, it has been contended, would have been better.

War is a Crime.

The premier, in answer to this, said: "What right have we to assume that any neutral country could desire to be the scene of such a trial? The allies have sufficient confidence in this country that whoever comes here for trial will receive a trial equal to the highest traditions of the British nation, and there are none higher in the world. If the read on the said has a neonorable game with the dot as an honorable game with the dot as an honorable game with the author of the war should be tried."

Premier Lloyd George, in replying, expressed gratification at the course the debate had taken, and the spirit in which the treaty had been received. The believed this reflected the spirit of the great public outside.

The premier defended the Anglo-American convention with France, which, he contended, was no proof of France's want of confidence in, nor any reflection upon, the league of nations. The league was in the nature of an experiment. He considered France justified in arguing, after the experience she had gone through, that while she believes in that experiment and will do her atmost to promote its success, she thinks the league would have a better chance of establishing itself as a permanent organization if it has the British Empire and the United States behind it, and its decrees are respected.

With regard to criticism of the peace treaty itself, the premier thought that they did be readed:

"Some think we demanded too little: others too much."

Dealing with an amendment moved by Horatio W. But, he asked, was there the remotest chance of exacting that sum? The total cost to the Allies £30,000,000,000. The sinking fund Germany would have to provide was £1.800,000,000 yearly. That was largely due to Germany's policy of establishing little colonies here and there in order to Prussianize Poland, and the peace conference had taken the only possible course in accordance with the principles accepted as the basis for the armistice.

Turning to the question of conscription, Lloyd George relterated that it was necessary to retain a strong army until peace and the fruits of victory had been secured, but he hoped that by the beginning of next year Great Britain would have a voluntary army meeting all her needs with respect to stopping mad competition and armaments. Everything, he added, depended upon the sincerity of the nations in their desire for peace.

Mr. Lloyd George, replying, ridiculed the suggestion that his attitude toward Ireland had changed. He said he adhered to his position announced in the general election, and was prepared to carry it into effect. A Great Finish at Midnight.

Most of the games were finished by 11 o'clock. Only one game was in progress after that hour. This proved to be a battle royal between A. A. Langford's Thistles and W. H. Downey's Windsor four. Langford was up four shots on the last end and was lying a couple when Downey played a runner with his last bowl and killed the end. On the next end, the Windsor bowlers fought hard and after some skillful work, managed to tie the score by getting four shots. The extra end was a battle all the way with Windsor having a good chance. A. A. Langford, however, came across with one of his beautiful draw shots and lay right beside the kitty for shot and game. A large gallery followed the play on the last two or three ends and it was one of the most exciting finishes of the day.

A Tournament to Satisfy All.

It was pointed out that a two-day tournament, followed by a big Scotch doubles torney, would give those bowlers who prefer the shorter and quicker tournaments a chance to compete, while those who prefer a longer and more leisurely bolwing could play in the doubles and fill out the three or four days pressure to complete the events. days necessary to complete the events.

Many of the bowlers are of the opinion that the short tournament where the bowlers toil from early in the morning to the early hours of the next morning, are doing bowling a lot of harm and making it work instead of sport

KINGSTON, July 21.—Several records were broken on the links of the Cataraqui Golf and Country Club Saturday. C. Mr. Shannon's performance evidently put Mr. Newman on his mettle, and in a game he played with Dr. Ross he made a remarkable score, which ranks with the most brilliant performances of experts. Water With Meals Doesn't Delay But Helps Digestion

Not only are your rations more com-pletely digested, but the imbibed water causes these better digested products to be absorbed thoroughly and quickly into the blood and tissues.

Moreover, he who takes several glasses of good water simultaneously with his fodder helps to keep bacteria, harmful foods, the necessary peck of the second dirt and other poisons more dilute and more easily dislodged by the "peris-taltic" or worm-like motion of the stomach and intestines.

taltic" or worm-like motion of the stomach and intestines.

Way to Reduce.

Odd to tell and contrary to theory, a glass of good water before dinner or breakfast does not wash away the "powers of digestion." Quite the contrary. It promotes the entrance of pepsin, hydrochloric acid and the other digestive juices from the membranous walls of the stomach into this breadbasket proper.

Obviously, water before meals is like an invitation to the dance. It makes for the pleasures and succes of digestion. The more water you drink before and at the table the better your tissues will appreciate the assistance given.

COUSIN BRUIN S

That brave Cousin Bruin swam across the great lake to escape the burning forest fire; but his eyes were so full of smoke that he could hardly see, so he had to wash his face like a Tabby Cat. Jimmy Coon followed around the edge of the lake, where he waited for Cousin Bruin at the edge of the pond.

Jimmy Coon could run faster than Cousin Bruin could swim, and Teddy Possum was with him. "My big Cousin Bruin We do?" Teddy Possum whispered this in Jimmy Coon's ear, for he was afraid Cousin Bruin," said Jimmy Coon, "is the king of the woods; no fire can catch him!"

But Cousin Bruin da shiny, but now it was harsh, rough and all singed.

Teddy Possum said, in a very sly way. "What Cousin Bruin needs is a little Bear's grease to rub on his fur way. "What Cousin Bruin needs is a little Bear's grease to rub on his fur way." Even then, however, a glass of cold water is to be preferred, just as a cold shower is better than water of the same temperature as the body.

Water of 50 to 60 degrees Fahren heit is a tonic because it is palatable and helpful, because it removes the tax of work from the intestinal walls and aids in the digestion and absorption of food.

Cousin Bruin was so worn out with

Cousin Bruin was so worn out with his long run through the woods, and his long swim, that he felt more like taking a nap than doing anything else. So those little animal friends gathered leaves together, with little twigs and pieces of moss, and piled them up for a soft bed. Cousin Bruin had never seen them do such a thing before; but a soft bed. Cousin Bruin had never seen them do such a thing before; but as Jimmy Coon had said that he was a king, and as Chatterbox said that all kings do, anyway, is to sit or lie down and be waited on, Cousin Bruin thought it was a very pleasant custom to be a king. So he told them to be very quick about it, as he was very sleeny. Soon all was ready, and Cousin Bruin lay down for a nap. Teddy Possum and Jimmy Coon sat, one on each side, and fanned him with big leaves to keep the flies and insects away. In a few minutes a loud snoring was heard. Cousin Bruin was sound asleep. Tomorrow-Fat for the Bear's Coat.

well, it will pay you to read this series.

In most makes of first there are usually three grades and three different prices; they are the SAME in QUALITY, but vary in WEIGHT. There are also three grades of seconds, BUT they VARY in QUALITY, also in PRICE. Real cheap seconds have generally labric defects, mould pinches or buckles, and prove expensive at any price. Good seconds have only minor rubber defects and give good service. We keep only the best and guarantee your money's worth of service.
