Who shall Roll away the Stone," s away the stone in in the door of the s and when they looked they saw that the olled away.— Mark xvi. 3, 4

What poor weeping ones were saying,

Eighteen hundred years ago. We, the same weak faith betraving. Say in our sad hours of woe. Looking at some trouble lying In the dark and dread unknown, We too often ask with sighing, " Who shall roll away the stone ?"

Thus with care our spirits crushing, When they might from care be free, And, in joyous song out-gushing, Rise in rapture, Lord, to thee. For, before the way was ended. Oft we've had with joy to own, Angels have from heaven descended, And have rolled away the stone.

Many a storm-cloud sweeping o'er us Never poured on us its rain : Many a grief we see before us Never comes to cause us pain. Ofttimes in the feared " to-morrow" Sunshine comes-the cloud has flown! Ask not then, in foolish sorrow, "Who shall roll away the stone!"

Burden not thy soul with sadness; Make a wiser, better choice; Drink the wive of life with gladness; God doth bid thee, man, " Rejoice." In to-day's bright annight basking, Leave to morrow's cares alone; Spoil not present it is by asking. H WED CHANGE THE BUT OF THE BLOKE PH 1-10-1

The doctrine of justification by faith has bee well described as that by which a church stands true spiritual life. When the penalty of his that now he would moveor falls. Those who deny it, reject the counsel offences is remitted, and he is restored to the That this House have heard with the most proof God against themselves. Those who do not merely acknowledge it as a theological tenet, but embrace it as the means of their personal salvation, become the joyous subjects of " peace with God through our Lord Jesus Christ."

Justification implies two things-the absolution of the sinner from all his guilt, and his shed abroad in our heart. The adopted child restoration to the favour of Almighty God .- is renewed in the spirit of his mind, and puts on Both of these ideas are again combined in the the new man, which after God is created in phrases, "acceptance with God," "accepted in righteousness and true holiness. Justification, then, denotes a change of ou relation to God. It is something done for us, rather than a change wrought in us. It removes us from the position of the convicted and condemned criminal, and puts us among those against whom no charge can be brought. Other terms are employed in the Holy Scriptures to express this transition of the sinner, from a state of condemnation to one of acceptance; and to exhibit, besides, some other distinguishsimply styled Pardon, bringing into full view the condescension and clemency of the Sovereign of the Universe; for, "who can forgive is. Loved ones who have passed to the other side The gleam of their snowy robes I see, But their voices are lost in the dashing

There's one with ringlets of sunny gold, And eyes the reflection of heaven's own bli He crossed in the twilight gray and cold, And the pale mist hid him from mortal view We saw not the angels who met him there. The gates of The City we could not see ;

My Brother stands waiting to welcome me Over the River the Boatman pale Carried another—the household pet ; Her bright curls waved in the gentle gale-

Over the River, over the River,

Darling Minnie I see her yet !

She crossed on her bosom her dimpled hands, And fearlessly entered the pantom bark; We watched it glide from the silver sands And all our sunshine grew strangely dark We know she is safe on the other side, Where all the ransomed and angels be ;

Over the River, the mystic River, My childhood's idol is waiting for me. For none return from those quiet shores Who cross with the Boatman cold and pale We hear the dip of the golden oars,

We catch a gleam of the snowy sail. And lo, they have passed from our heart-They cross the stream and are gone for aye We cannot sunder the veil apart,

That hides from our vision the gates of day We only know that their barks no more Shall sail with ours on life's stormy sea, Yet somehow I hope on the unseen shore, They watch and beckon and wait for me.

And I sit and think when the sunset's gold Is flushing river and hill and shore, I shall one day stand by the water cold And list for the sound of The Boatman's oar I shall watch for the gleam of the flapping sail, I shall hear the boat as it gains the strand, I shall pass from sight with the Boatman pale, To the better shore of the Spirit Land ! I shall know the loved who have gone before,

And joyfully sweet will the meeting be. When over the River, the peaceful River, The Angel of Death shall carry me!

Dreaming Susy. Some little friends, when they read the words,

" Dreaming Susy," will be sure to imagine, all in a minute, a pretty little girl, blue eyes, dimples, and roses mixed in just the right proportion, who has been playing all day; and, very tired, has at last fallen asleep out in the heyfield, or under the apple tree.

But no, you are not quite right, Tommy and Kitty ; for the little girl that I am going to tell you about, used to dream with her eyes wide open. All day long from sunrise to sunset, little Susy dreamed and dreamed, till you hardly knew whether to say she was ever awake or not. Perhaps you will understand me better, if 1 ve you an account of one of the days of Susy's

In the morning would come a loud call, " Su 1 Suav 1 it is time to get up !" and Suav. rubbing her eyes, would answer, "Yes, mo ther," and sit up in bed. Then she would think, "What trouble to put on my stockings and shoes, and comb my hair! How nice it would be"-and here Susy would begin to dream-" if I had a little black girl to come in and wait on me ! she would wash me with sweet perfumed soap, and curl my hair in long ringlets, and dress me in a blue silk dress, and put a little thin handkerchief, all embroidery, in my hand and then, if I felt lazy, I would say, ' You ms bring me my breakfast up stairs, Jettie-a little broiled chicken and some toast, and-let me se

-ves, some preserves and cake, and"-Susy !" her mother's voice would break ss breakfast is all ready ;" and Susy, with a great start, would find she had been dreaming half an hour, and the end of all would be, she would either lose her breakfast altogether, or come down very ill-naturedly, with her hair hastily twisted in a little knot, and make a meal of cold cakes and potatoes, in such very different plight from what she had imagined in that pleasant dream, that tears of vexation were continually

But more serious consequences than these re sulted from Susy's habit of dreaming. She was very fond of taking long walks, and as she lived only a mile from the sea-shore, she would often on a Saturday, ramble there with her work. and, sitting on the rocks, dream away hours a

Now, it happened one day that Susy had an examination composition to write, and, taking her pencil and paper with her, she went down to the rocks, so, as she said, "that no one shoul interrupt her." She played awhile with the sand and shells, and then settling herself comfortably, she spread her paper upon her lap and be gan to-dream.

" How nice it would be," began Sasy in her usual fashion. " if some big hand would tak hold of my pencil, and without my having to think at all, would just guide it along over the paper, writing the funniest and nicest things in the world; then bow neatly I would copy it off, and have it all off my mind!
