FORTY-FOUR LOSE LIVES IN EXPLOSION ON UNITED STATES WARSHIP

Turret No. 2 on Dreadnought Mississippi Blown Up as Result of Misfire—Disaster Occurs Off San Pedro Harbor During Pacific Fleet Manoeuvres.

A despatch from San Pedro, Cal., says:—Three officers and forty-one men of the battleship Mississippi were swept to death, at 11.45 a.m. on Thursday, on the San Clemente fleet drill grounds, off this port, when a shell in one of the 14-inch guns, turret No. 2, exploded prematurely, according to semi-official information given out from the United States Steamship Mexico, flagship of the Division Four, of the fleet.

Nearly a score of men were injured by the flare-back that carried the terrific charge through the breach of the gun instead of out through the muzzle. The gun crew were preparing to fire as one unit the great sea fighter's powerful broadside, when a sailor called for the electricity to be turned on for the charge.

The switch was thrown on to ignite the shell before the breach was locked, and in another moment the interior of the turret was littered with dead and dying.

Ensign D. Smith from the U.S.S. New Mexico was the first man to enter the turret No. 2 following the explosion.

Upon entering the turret, Ensign Smith took with him an air hose, which immediately caused flames from the burning debris to shoot forth. After flooding the turret with water, the men were dead at that time, their faces swelled and puffed almost beyond recognition by the intense heat. Identification marks on the clothing, however, was still discernible.

Three-quarters of an hour lapsed after the fire in turret No. 2 was observed from the quartermaster's deck before entrance into the red-hot chamber containing the charred bodies of the entombed men could be made by Ensign Smith.

Had the turret, which was revolving at the time the explosion on the battleship Mississippi occurred, remained in the position in which it was at the time of the explosion, the hang fire from the left gun would have gone into the centre of the City of San Pedro, witnesses aboard the ship said. When the gunner's hand guiding the controls was wrenched away by the explosion, the guns kept revolving and stopped as they pointed directly aft.

CANADA HOLDS ALIEN PROPERTY OF VALUE

Custodian Has Met Claims Totalling Nearly Five Million Dollars.

A despatch from Ottawa says:—Alien property worth $9,782,232 is still in the hands of the Canadian custodian, who had paid out claims totalling $4,727,000 to date. Figures dealing with alien property were tabled in the House of Commons on an order for return. It is shown that Canada received in cash from Germany, Austria-Hungary, and other alien countries, $5,216,000. On account of indebtedness to enemy nationals, Canadian citizens paid into the custodian $3,397,000. In securities, real estate, unrealized property, and other sources, $5,897,451 was realized. Disbursements out of the fund are divided into four heads. To Canadian creditors, 250 in number, $709,500 was paid; to 51 Canadian claimants a total of $1,592,000; cash releases to 950 people totalling $1,151,000; and $1,273,448 was paid to the central clearing office for enemy property.

Of the amount still in the hands of the custodian $3,687,786 is in cash and $200,000 is invested in treasury notes, $5,400,811 in securities and $493,635 represents value of property.

Favorable Indications of Revival of British Trade

Favorable signs all along the line have renewed confidence and promise better business, says a cable from London. The British Industries fair and the Empire Exhibition at Wembley are in full swing. The budget removes the corporation profits tax and leaves the income and death duties unchanged. The continued high exchange value of the franc reduces Continental competition. Resumption of work in the mines and shipyards and increased bank clearings and relative firmness of prices are other favorable factors.

His Majesty Averts Mishap by Good Horsemanship

A despatch from Aldershot, Eng., says:—The excellent horsemanship of King George got him out of a tight place and saved him from a possible serious mishap. As the King was leaving the parade grounds on his charger, after reviewing the troops, the horse became frightened at the cheering crowd. The animal "bucked" and nearly collided with a horse ridden by the Duke of Connaught, beside the Queen's carriage.

The King made a second attempt to force his horse to accompany the procession, but the animal, terrified, plunged until its royal rider was forced to turn back and ride home along a quiet route.

DAWES NOMINATED FOR VICE-PRESIDENT

Republicans Choose Coolidge for President on First Ballot.

A despatch from Marietta, O., says:—Brig-Gen. Charles G. Dawes has accepted the nomination for the Vice-Presidency.

"I accept the nomination by the Republican party for the Vice-Presidency," he said in a formal statement when informed of his nomination. "I deeply appreciate the honor conferred."

A despatch from Convention Hall, Cleveland, says:—Charles G. Dawes of Illinois was nominated for the Vice-Presidency by the Republican National Convention, after it once had nominated Frank O. Lowden, former Governor of Illinois, and he had refused to accept the place.

In a brief and spectacular fight, in which William M. Butler, President Coolidge's campaign manager, had said to Senator Reed of Pennsylvania, "It must be Hoover," and Sen. Reed had replied, "It can't be done, it must be Dawes," the Dawes supporters marshalled their forces and put the General across for the nomination.

Earlier in the day Mr. Butler's forces had passed the word that the Administration men desired the nomination of Theodore E. Burton of Ohio, and in the voting which followed the supporters of Frank O. Lowden of Illinois ran away with the nomination for their man, only to have him decline it. The nomination of Dawes came as the climax to one of the most spectacular scenes in Republican party history, in which the convention, once having nominated a candidate, was obliged to undo its work and find another.

Calvin Coolidge was nominated for the Presidency on the first ballot taken in the Republican National Convention. He received 1,065 of the 1,109 votes. Robt. Marion La Follette got 34—28 of the 29 from Wisconsin and 6 of the 13 from North Dakota—and Hiram Johnson got 10 of the 13 votes from South Dakota.

As usual, the galleries received every mention of La Follette's name, and the report of the votes cast for him, with jeers and hisses, but they had only laughter for the name of Hiram Johnson.

Does it pay in these materialistic times to play the "Good Samaritan"? There is a London coffee house still keeper who is of the opinion that it does. A few weeks ago, in the early hours of the morning, a well-dressed man ordered a cup of coffee and a sandwich at his stall, only to find later that he had no money to pay the check.

The proprietor not only gave him a second cup of coffee on trust, but also advanced him sixpence for his fare home. The generous act was rewarded the following day by an invitation to dinner at the House of Commons. The "broke" stranger turned out to be J. Toole, M.P. for South Salford. He had been kept late in the House of Commons and chose this means of showing his gratitude to the man who had befriended him.

Canada from Coast to Coast

St. John's, Nfld.—Latest reports from the sealing fleet are to the effect that seven vessels operating in the North had killed 176,000 seals up-to-date, equaling the catch of the entire fleet last year. Most of the seals are still on the ice floes, the report said, and must be picked by the ships when they are able to force their way through the pack.

Kentville, N.S.—Reports from the apple crop in the Annapolis Valley show that the entire crop, including the estimated local consumption, was 1,816,000 barrels. The growers exported 1,252,725 barrels to European and other markets, and sent the major part of the crop to the United Kingdom, although the Canadian market absorbed 190,000 bushels. It is estimated that 70,000 apple trees and 9,000 plum trees were set out in the valley this spring.

St. John, N.B.—A new sardine canning factory has been started at West St. John by the Lewis Connors & Sons. The plant has a capacity of from 100,000 to 150,000 cases of sardines a year and is expected to operate during the season which ends at the end of November. The company have installed equipment for making their own cans. They will pack for the domestic and export trade.

Montreal, Que.—The present summer promises to set a high-water mark for the number of Canadian and American travellers to Europe, surpassing even that of pre-war days of low-priced pleasure travel. In addition to the summer tide of tourists, which has steadily increased since the close of hostilities, 1924 will witness a large number of special travel movements to Europe from this port.

Toronto, Ont.—A party of fifty Australian boys will be the guests of the Canadian National Exhibition, Charlotte Islands, are planning construction of a town on Massett Inlet.

GOVERNMENT INSPECTION OF BANKS

The Commons, and no less the country, is awaiting with a good deal of interest the appearance of further details of Hon. Jas. Robb's proposed amendment of the Bank Act providing for government inspection of chartered banks. It is to the credit of the Acting Minister of Finance that he has made up his mind regardless of the pleas placed before him by certain interests, to accord to the people of the Dominion such legislation as will inspire in them more confidence in the security of banking institutions than had been warranted before.

The broad outlines of policy already placed before the banking committee by the Minister indicate with sufficient definiteness that the proposed "Inspector-General for Canadian banks will have very real and very wide powers; also, that his confidential reports to the Department will be used as the basis of ministerial action in such instances as call for action. The real power will remain with the minister; that power will be exercised on the advice of the inspector.

NEW FISHING REGULATIONS

An order in council amending the fisheries regulations for the province of Ontario has been published in the Canada Gazette. The order makes it illegal for anglers to use more than one fishing line. Except for those angling or trolling all fishermen must hold licenses from the department of game and fisheries of the Province of Ontario. The order reads that "no one shall fish for, catch or kill in any of the waters in the province in one day by angling a greater number than eight large mouthed or small mouthed black bass or take away at any one time a greater number than two days' catch." This regulation also states that four muskellonge will constitute a day's legal catch. No one shall catch by angling a greater number than in the aggregate shall weigh more than ten pounds according to the regulations. It is forbidden to take away more than twenty pounds of trout.

BETTER LEFT UNSAID

"Damn" is a word which might be dispensed with in speech, as it mostly is in print. Of course one can't tell whether there is an "n" to it or not. "Dam" is an Indian coin, worth about the fiftieth part of a cent. If that is the word in mind when one says that he "doesn't care a dam," or "it isn't worth a dam," it's quite objectionable, but how's one to know? Better cut it out altogether!

ADVISING THE FARMER

It is curious how every one knows the farmer's business better than the farmer. Some one has figured that out of 15,000 daily and weekly newspapers published in the United States about eighty per cent. have at least one editorial a year on the farmer's problems. We really thought the percentage was a good deal higher than that, but probably the other twenty per cent. didn't think it wise to say just what they thought. Of

THREE MONTHS HARD LABOR

Thursday morning Elmer McDougall came before Justice of the Peace A. G. MacIntyre and Wm. Temple on a charge of vagrancy placed by Mr. Holding, a C.N.R. detective who is working on the theft from the freight cars case and it was intimated that young McDougall was connected with this although no charge was laid. McDougall has been before the magistrate before and dealt with most leniently and given a chance, which he evidently refused to take. At the hearing he admitted not having worked for the past year or made an attempt to get a job. "Then I'll give you a little work for three months," said J. P. MacIntyre and sentenced him to three months and hard labor. McDougall was taken to Walkerton immediately after the hearing. Mr. MacIntyre intimated that this was not the end, that there were three or four others to be brought up in the near future when charges will be laid. He also intimated that the authorities were sick and tired of being lenient with ungrateful youths and that every case that comes before them will be given a jail sentence.—Kincairdine Reporter.

those editors who did relieve their souls ninety per cent. declared that the farmer's difficulty could not be reached by legislation, and eighty per cent. were certain that the low prices of farm products could not be raised by any legislation, although seventy per cent. of the men who hold this view are solidly in favor of a protective tariff as a means of keeping up the price on manufactured articles. About sixty-five per cent. of the editors thought that if the farmers would only work a little harder and produce more they would soon be rid of all their troubles. Of course, they can't sell at a profit what they raise now, but if they raised more and brought down the price still lower they would soon get rich. Clear isn't it? Thirty per cent. of the editors thought that further loans from the Government would speedily banish the depression and make the farmers rich. Of course, getting deeper into debt is a well-known way of avoiding bankruptcy. About fifty per cent. of the editors advocated more diversified farming, and these editors seem to have had at least a glimmer of common sense, although when the slump in prices hits everything the farmer produces from wheat to flax and from cattle to chickens it is hard to see just how this advice will help matters much. Some recommended a higher tariff and the tariff was shoved up to more than forty cents, and the price of wheat promptly declined. About four per cent. of the editors advised a reduction in freight rates, but these were brave men, and there is not much chance of their advice being taken. Under the circumstances the farmers have formed a "farm bloc" in Congress and are determined to see if there is any possible legislative method of helping themselves out of their financial depression. If one method should fail they can at least try another, and some of them argue that in any event they do not stand to lose much.

of past achievements we have reason to thank God and take courage. Nevertheless we dare not ignore the fact that the enemy is alert and seeks to destroy what we, by much toil and sacrifice, have accomplished. We regret that during the past year the Provinces of Manitoba and Alberta have relinquished their advanced position and substituted by popular vote certain Government sale measures for their prohibitory laws. Since Saskatchewan will vote on the liquor question on July 16 and Ontario is also threatened with another contest it behooves all friends of prohibition to face the issue.

Therefore resolved:
1. That we hereby express our confidence in, and unqualifiedly endorse the principles of our Provincial prohibitory laws and declare that they have been a decided social, moral and economic boon to our people.
2. We are strongly convinced that another vote at the present time is entirely uncalled for and would entail an enormous expenditure of money and energy, as also tend to unnecessary and unavoidable confusion in business and social life.
3. In view of the fact that the people have repeatedly declared by overwhelming majorities in favor of the total abolition of the liquor traffic for beverage purposes, we are persuaded that it would be detrimental to the common good to in any way weaken the existing prohibitory laws therefore we strongly urge the adequate, impartial and most rigid enforcement of and the further adoption of such measures as will tend to stabilize and consolidate our existing laws.

4. That we urge the people of Ontario and Saskatchewan to adopt such methods of organization and education as will enable them in the best possible manner to effectually cope with the present situation.
5. Since we believe that the greater the legal restrictions are upon the sale of alcoholic liquors for beverage purposes the greater will be the benefits to the people, we unreservedly declare ourselves as being strongly in favor of a Dominion Prohibition Law, which would prohibit the manufacture, importation, exportation, transportation and sale of intoxicating beverages throughout all Canada to which end we will ever work and pray.

WORTH BILLIONS AND COULD NOT BUY A POSTAGE STAMP

There is a Chinaman in Owen Sound who is not only a millionaire but a billionaire—in Marks. He has an account of no less than three and one-half billion marks in the Deutsche Bank, Berlin, Germany, but the value of this account with the bank is so low that it is nearly worthless, and in a letter to the local Celestial, the bank says it would not be worth while furnishing a statement of the account.

WORSE SUMMERS THAN THIS

Appropos of the cold, backward weather, the Perth Expositor says: "The year 1816 was known as the 'year without a summer.' Snow commenced falling in the middle of June, by the middle of August it was one foot in depth, and from the first fall of June until the following summer the earth remained under covering of the wintry blanket. Absolutely nothing in the way of harvest was garnered. Everything in the way of crops rotted in the ground. What did the people live on? Meat and fish, there were no vegetables and there was no flour. It was venison and fish today, relieved by fish and flesh tomorrow taken from slaughtered cattle. Hay had to be shipped from Ireland to feed the starving cattle in Quebec, and it sold there for $45 per ton; flour sold at $17 per barrel in Quebec, and potatoes were two cents a pound. This was called the year 'Eighteen hundred and frozen to death.' The cause of the cold was believed to be sunspots which were so large that they could be seen without the aid of a telescope. It was also known as 'poverty year.'"

TEACHER ASSAULTS PUPIL

That some teachers don't altogether confine themselves to imparting knowledge and enlightening the young hopefuls from subjects from the curriculum during school hours was brought to light in a case heard before County Magistrate McNab at Southampton on Wednesday afternoon. It seems that Mrs. Barbara Robb, who has been teaching on the Saugeen Reserve for some years, resides in a government owned house and raises fowl as a sideline. Now about every Indian on the Reserve owns a dog and one of these curs belonging to Mrs. Besto had a peculiar liking for the schoolman's chicks and is said to have lunched off some of the birds. On May 19th some of the chickens had been killed and after dinner the dog was seen chasing the hens. On going to school the teacher took the matter up with Mrs. Besto's daughter, Lillian Cameron, who was a pupil in her room. Continuing the argument about the chickens advanced towards the girl's seat with a pointer in her hand and snatched the lass a beauty on the shoulder. On being pulled for assault the teacher in court admitted striking the girl but maintained that she did it in self-defence, as the girl, she claims started to swing at her. As none of the pupils who witnessed the affair would testify that the pupil had attempted to slap the teacher, the magistrate Monday rendered judgment against the teacher for assault and assessed her $10 and costs or a total levy of $25.84. In default of payment by June 16th the offending schoolman is to serve 15 days in the Walkerton jail.

HOW FAR DOES YOUR STAR SHINE?

By Edgar L. Vincent
Some folks get a lot of fun out of looking at the stars, both with the naked eye and with telescopes, big and little; and nowadays they tell us that they have discovered new stars that never had been heard of before, stars whose light, starting nobody knows how many millions of years ago, is just reaching this little world of ours. The bigger the stories these watchers of the stars can tell, the better they seem to like it.

BAD MOTOR ACCIDENT

A motor accident occurred here on June 3rd that might easily have had fatal results. As it was, a Ford car was so badly smashed up that it is doubtful whether it will be worth repairing. Mr. J. McIntosh of Skipness, with his two children was on a visit to his uncle, Mr. Andrew McIntosh, having made the trip in a Ford car. On the way over, there had been some trouble with the steering apparatus and the car had been taken to a garage to be examined. Nothing could be found wrong with it and Mr. McIntosh and his children started home. Approaching the lower bridge over the Saugeen River on the road out of Southampton the car swerved to one side and ent over the edge of the bank about thirty feet from the bridge. The bank of the river here is about sixty feet high and very steep. As the car made for the edge the children managed to get out but Mr. McIntosh was carried half way down the bank before he was thrown or jumped out. The car continued on and turned completely over, smashing the top and landed right side up on the narrow margin of sand at the edge of the river. The wheels were broken to pieces and the upper parts damaged. None of the occupants were injured.—Southampton Beacon.

CHILD BITTEN BY DOG

Revis, the two-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. J. G. McKay, of Lovat, was so severely bitten in the head by a dog on Sunday at Mrs. W. McKay's, Underwood, that the doctor fears the child's hearing will be affected. Revis was playing with the dog and fell, when the canine, took the little lad's head in his mouth, inflicting the injuries. It is supposed that in falling the child's body struck the dog, and the animal was thus accidentally roused to anger. The dog's teeth sunk into the orifice and it is not yet known what the extent of the injury may be. Little Revis is making an early acquaintance with the dangers to life in this world, as it is only a few months ago that he was operated upon for appendicitis.—Paisley Advocate.

FROM BENCH TO PULPIT

Mr. Allen Quanz, who formerly worked as a tinsmith and plumber, at Reuber's store in Walkerton and later in Cargill, has risen, as it were, from the bench to the pulpit, and is assisting at the Pentecostal camp-meeting here, he having come over with his wife from Indianapolis where he is connected with the Pentecostal mission, personally presided over by Mrs. Etter, the world-famed Pentecostal evangelist. Mrs. Quanz, who prior to her marriage last January, was Miss Francis Williams of St. Louis, Mo., is a splendid singer, and is assisting materially in the song service here.—H. & T.

Every time a man has a fine cough he takes it to a public gathering and puts it on exhibition. One never knew, until bobbed hair came into fashion, that the human neck could be so long and scrawny.

THE FARMERS' LOT

In the whole sweep of industrial pursuits we know of no other industry that demands such a diversity of practical knowledge and wisdom as that of farming. The farmer must know a great deal about stock, grain, weeds, grass, roots, soils, milk, butter, poultry, etc. He must have the practical knowledge of a veterinarian, the trade of a buttermaker, the knowledge of an orchardist, the facility of a marketman and the hands of a carpenter. But with all these accomplishments he is helpless against the attacks of unseasonable weather. At this moment in this community there is seed oats and corn rotting in the ground, and some fields idle that should be growing a crop. The weather was too wet and cold. And yet these farmers are patient. They are ready to sow these fields with buckwheat when the time for this crop comes around.

JOHN D. MILLER WRITES

Wiste, Alta., June 5th, 1924. Dear Editor Gazette:

I intended to write you before this. However, better late than never. We arrived home safe and sound from the East, on the first day of April. We had a splendid trip. On our homeward journey we spent a week with Rev. H. J. Holtzmann and family at Neudorf, Sask. The weather was fine, and the snow was all gone when we got near Winnipeg, but we were seen enough of it in Old Ontario. The spring, however, has been backward here as far as growth is concerned, but splendid for work on the land. We had a 24 hour rain on the last Sunday in May, and it certainly was well come. The crops are coming on fine now, although the early wheat was frozen down. It now looks green again, and we are looking for a fair crop.

I suppose all the farmers over there are done seeding this long time. If we had only a small acreage to put in, like the Ontario farmers have, it wouldn't trouble us much. I have 500 acres in crop, and that takes some time. Had to plough 110 acres this spring. We are having nice warm weather just now, and everything looks lovely. We were sorry to read in your paper of the death of Mr. George Himmer. He looked so well when we visited him at Mildmay, that was quite a shock to us. In closing, we wish to thank all our friends in Mildmay and surrounding for the hearty welcome they gave us on our recent visit, and we hope at some later date to be able to meet them again.

Yours truly, John D. Miller

JUNE COURT SESSIONS

The June Court Sessions, which opened before His Honor Judge Sutherland of Owen Sound, in the Court House here on Tuesday afternoon, was featured with a docket of three criminal cases, the defendants in two of the actions being women who have had some experience with courts in the past. True bills having been returned against the two ladies by the Grand Jury, the distinction of being the first to go on trial fell to Mrs. Nancy Wiley of Owen Sound, formerly of particular attention to the features of the bride on that occasion. Mr. Klein held that nothing had been produced to prove that the accused was the bride at the Wilson wedding, nor that she had ever lived with Wilson, and he therefore asked the Jury to find this woman "Not Guilty," which they did after being out only a few moments.

Judge Sutherland, in commenting on the verdict, said it was entirely different from his view on the matter and he couldn't see by what line of reasoning they could arrive at such a conclusion. The marriage certificate from the first wedding gave Teeswater as the birth-place of the bride, Nellie Guinness, while the marriage certificate of the third matrimonial event in which the same woman was claimed to have participated, sets out the bride's name as Selwood, her alleged second husband's surname, and her birth-place as Cargill. Rev. Mr. James, the officiating rector, couldn't swear at court here this week that the accused was the woman he had married, as it was dusk and the lamps were lit at the time of the Wilson wedding and he didn't pay As the woman came into court without a lawyer or any apparent preparation for her defense, Judge Sutherland sent for D. E. Klein, and in defence to the Bench the latter consented to appear for the accused. The woman, who is about 39 years of age, was first married to Wm. Mallard, now of Purple Valley, and to whom she had three children. She later left him and went with the children to Owen Sound, and was said to have married and lived with another man named Selwood. This man took ill and died, and before his death, which occurred a few years ago she and an insurance agent named Sprague went to Purple Valley to see her first husband and induced him to give her a cheque for about $25 to pay Selwood's life insurance premium. On the latter's death, she inherited his insurance amounting to $1700. In Sept., 1923, she is alleged to have married J. W. Wilson a butcher and grocer of Warton, it being charged that the ceremony was a rather sensational bigamy case.

other hand, urged that the accused be adjudged guilty on all three counts. The Jury after being out a short time brought in a verdict of "Not Guilty," and the triple charges were dismissed. A former Greenock Twp. woman, who prior to her entry into matrimony was known as Nellie Guinness, and whose father, the late Nelson Guinness, resided at one time in Walkerton, was the defendant in Arran Twp. Apparently feeling competent to conduct her own case, Mrs. Wiley undertook, without the aid of a lawyer, to defend herself against three charges of theft, forcible entry and detaining, which the Crown had preferred against her. It seems that Mrs. Wiley and her husband, Wm. Thos. Wiley, separated, she leaving her husband's farm in Arran and going to reside with some of her children in Owen Sound. She sued her husband on different occasions for alimony but failed to get judgment. Finally Wiley sold his Arran farm to his brother, Sylvester Wiley, and went to reside in Port Huron, Mich. Thinking that she still had rights on her husband's old farm she came down from Owen Sound and took up her abode in the vacant house on the place, and besides using some of the hay to feed her horse, killed some hens about the place for food. When her brother-in-law, Sylvester Wiley, protested, she is alleged to have asserted herself and resisted ejection from the premises. As the woman maintained it was her old home and she thought at the same time she still had some rights on the place, she appealed to the Jury to do what they thought was right in the matter. The accused woman has a rather unsavory past, she having, it seems, served terms in the Owen Sound and Walkerton jails, as well as a term in the Mercer Reformatory. Having lost the first two cases at the court, Crown Attorney Dixon did his utmost not to let the entire series go against His Majesty the King, and in the action against James Ward of Lion's Head, charged with indecently assaulting a young girl, Jane Bestward, Mr. Dixon strove strenuously for a conviction, but Lawyer Birnie of Owen Sound put up a whale of a fight for the defence and the Jury, after being out a short time, brought in a verdict of "Not Guilty," and the court closed.—H. & T.

PAYING PARTIES.
People in the country frequently are taxed for the building of not only the church of their own particular choice but for those of other denominations which neighbors and friends are interested in. The problem is at times a difficult one to solve. Many of us have willing hearts but lean purses, so we must sharpen up our wits in order to find means to do our part.

Entertainments of various sorts offer a solution, for they bring the people together in a social way. The old-fashioned pound party, apron and necktie party, strawberry festival and oyster supper stood the test for many years and helped to build many churches, but there are newer ideas taking their place. One is a poverty party, where each guest is taxed a modest sum for every bit of luxurious apparel or jewelry that they happen to be wearing. This creates a lot of fun and the judges report on the cases and collect just dues before a modern pancake and coffee feast is served at a small sum per plate.

The initial party is perhaps newer still and may not have been tried in your particular neighborhood. Each guest has to pay an admission fee upon arrival, gauged by the number of letters in his name; five cents for capitals and a penny apiece for the small letters. No middle names are allowed to be overlooked. There is usually a punch bowl of lemonade or fruit punch, a table of homemade candy at modest prices, and if dancing is indulged in ten cents a dance is asked. This yields quite a tidy little sum and does not make an evening that is unduly expensive.

In one small town there were three churches going to be built and in order to be fair the heads got together and arranged their entertainments so that they did not clash, and partially and it made the greatest harmony among the workers.

There is another point in church work that these same people cleared up and their findings are worth passing along. At each entertainment the women were asked to furnish food, cakes, pies, cold meats, and so on. Usually all such things that are not sold or eaten are wasted, so the women decided that the donor should take home anything of hers that was left.

Another idea was to have a food sale by one of the different groups on three Saturdays of the month, leaving the fourth Saturday free for all. At the sales home-made bread, biscuits, cakes, pies, mayonnaise, jellies, fancy desserts, baked beans, pickles, candies and other good things were offered at fair prices, and here again the donors look back the things of theirs not sold. The sales were wonderfully popular and profitable.

An indoor picnic is a jolly affair and has one money-making feature. Each worker, matron or maid, arranges a picnic luncheon basket for five as possible; then at the appointed time they are sold at auction to the highest bidders, who invite their special girls to enjoy the contents.

EVERYDAY TABLECLOTHS.
It is a fact that pure linen seems too expensive to use for common table wear, but it is also a fact that the much-advised table oilcloth does not always prove to be a satisfactory substitute for linen.

A farm woman, whose dining table always looks inviting, says that unbleached cotton solves her problem. She buys the sixty-three-inch width, and uses it square, as her family is small. It can be used in greater width, and longer too. For trimming, a two-inch band of fast-color checked gingham is used in place of hems. Such cloths are durable, easily made and laundered, and much more attractive than oilcloth.

LINOLEUM FOR THE STAIRS.
There was no stair carpet and the stairs were painted white. The tenant wondered how she could keep those stairs looking presentable, for she could not afford to buy a carpet to fit them, which would, perhaps, prove totally unfit for the next farmhouse into which she might move. For a dollar she found a remnant of linoleum in a neat tile pattern which she cut into pieces the width of the stair steps and about half their length. One of these pieces was fastened in the centre of each step, and the effect is very neat and pleasing. The linoleum softens the sound, is easy to clean, and looks much better than a cheap carpet.

A PRACTICAL GARMENT FOR YOUNG CHILDREN.

4568. Here is a style that will appeal to the busy mother of little children, especially those of the "creeper" age. This design provides a convenient closing at the inner seam, which is very practical for children below 2 years of age. The garment may also be made with this seam closed, for the back is in drop style.

The Pattern is cut in 3 Sizes: 6 months, 1 and 2 years. A 6 months size requires 1 1/2 yards of 36-inch material.

Pattern mailed to any address on receipt of 15c in silver, by Hal Wilson Publishing Co., 73 West Adelaide St., Toronto. Allow two weeks for receipt of pattern.

USES FOR STICKERS.
Keep a box of stickers in your china closet. You will be surprised at how many times they will come in handy. For instance, when you want to put away jelly or preserves you can write the variety on the sticker and be sure it won't come off. Another use for them is to paste over the holes in salt and pepper shakers, usually closed with a cork.

TO CATCH THE DUST.
We want to leave the pantry window open when the hot days come, but the dust comes in through the screen. About the best things to do then, is to fasten a piece of white cheesecloth neatly over the screen on the inside. This allows a free circulation of air, and the frequent need of laundering proves how much dust the cloth keeps out.

Take from man Hope and Sleep, and you make him the most wretched being on earth.

"When Hearts Command"

By ELIZABETH YORK MILLER

"When hearts command, From minds the wisest counsellings depart."

CHAPTER XXI.

Jean was lucky, for shortly before she was quite ready to start for the farm Carlo drew up at the gate in the two-wheeled cart on his way back from early market. He had a few things to leave on behalf of his master, and Jean readily availed herself of the opportunity for a lift.

There was a so-called road to the farm, but it was a long way round, much too far for her to attempt by foot, and she had been dreading the steep mule-path. Alice would have undertaken the mission of delivering Hugo's mysterious-looking letter, or it could have been sent up by a peasant or farmer's boy going that way, but Jean was too curious about it to delegate the errand to anyone else.

Besides, she was longing for a brief escape from the wilderness of stitching, through which she had been plodding, and this was a good excuse for taking it.

The cart started off at a smart pace. Carlo's idea of travel being to make the little horse gallop madly. The cart rocked from side to side, moving in a fine cloud of white dust, and Jean held on for dear life, her head bent against the wind to keep her hat from blowing off. She had no breath to spare to scold Carlo. But on the up-grade the little horse settled into a more sedate pace. Carlo leaned back with an idle whip and slack reins, and presently they merely crawled. And now they were enveloped in a black cloud, a cloud of gnats and horse-flies, infinitely troublesome. Jean fought them; Carlo and the little horse were indifferent. It was very hot, the hottest time of day, with the southern spring much to the fore.

Jean wished that she were going to Lucerne on a honeymoon, and that she had finished her interminable sewing, and that she had a little more money. In intervals of fighting the gnats and horse-flies she did sums in mental arithmetic—her greatest accomplishment—and came to the conclusion that it would be necessary to wire Christopher Smarke for a small sum. After all, it could be paid back out of Alice's little savings-bank board. Weddings are not everyday affairs. Close-fisted Christopher ought to realize that. Of course he did not know yet that there was to be a wedding. Perhaps he would be annoyed that they hadn't troubled to write to him, even though he couldn't come. Some people are so easily annoyed.

By the time the exhausted little horse crawled them up the last steep lap to the fair smiling plateau at the top, Jean was in a pink perspiration between the arithmetic of the world as a hot and excessively troublesome sphere.

The little farm lay grilling tranquilly under the shimmering sun waves, not a soul, not a sound, not a bird, not a dog, not a cat, not a mouse, not a fly, not a gnat, not a horse-fly, not a single creature entered and surprised a contented group of hens making a meal off the untidy remains of breakfast. Men's muddy boots stood about with an air of some time expecting to be cleaned, and their articles of more intimate attire had been hung to dry before a fire which had ceased to exist. Why had they not been spread in the sun? And where was Maria?

Jean called, and presently the old woman came hobbling in with a basket of newly-dug potatoes and a dead rabbit. She did not seem any too pleased to see company. Obviously this was a man's house, and feminine society had to be prepared for and not encouraged to pay impromptu visits.

Maria said that she thought the signori were in the fir grove taking a siesta.

Jean went out to the fir grove, that cheerful little plantation with its odd bits of rock and floor of dry pine needles, which seemed from this lofty eminence to survey the whole world, and found Hector Gaunt and Hugo regularly enjoying themselves. With their coats rolled up for pillows they lay side by side on a slanting rock, eyes shielded from the glare by old panamas, with a pair of pipes and a half-empty flask of Chianti, and water to beat them company. Just like disgusting tramps! thought Jean as she approached their pleasant sanctuary.

Aloud she said: "So this is how you work!"

Instantly the lazy flow of their conversation ceased, they raised themselves on their elbows, and blinked smilingly at her.

"Hal-lo!" Gaunt cried. "Here's Jean. Well, this is a surprise."

Hugo looked to be in radiant health and spirits. Already he was considerably tanned and appeared to have lost every vestige of his bad cold.

He jabbed at his eye-glasses and his gaze was misty and far away as he added his greeting to Gaunt's.

"We were talking about the Seven Seas," he said, "and once when we were lost and couldn't get our bearings for three weeks. That was long before you came to Bordighera with Madame Douste. Why, Hector was quite a youngster then. . . . But sit down, my dear. Would you like my coat? It's not very clean, I'm afraid. We get so muddy on the terraces in the early morning."

Jean declined the coat and settled herself on a convenient boulder under an inky splash of shade.

"Here's a letter for you, Hugo. It came this morning and I thought it might be important."

Hugo reached out eagerly and attacked his eye-glasses again, giving them a very severe punch this time.

"Well, now—yes, of course! I thought so. I could have told you even before I saw it. . . . H'mm, yes, yes!" The murmuring went on as he tore open the envelope and read its contents, while Hector Gaunt and Jean waited to share in his news.

At last Jean's patience wore thin. "Hugo, who's it from? Do stop that silly mumbling."

Hugo looked up mightily pleased. "You can read it if you like. Only a communication from Mrs. Egan's solicitor. You see, I was right. She did over me that money, and she did communicate with her solicitor as she promised she would. I was right, wasn't I? I knew she'd pay it when I mentioned the matter. It probably slipped her mind. Ladies are so forgetful. But of course she's honest; never doubted it for a moment. So you see I was right, wasn't I?"

Lifebuoy

Highest and Lowest.
The greatest height above sea level is not so great as the greatest depth that has been probed below it. The summit of Mount Everest is 29,002ft. high, and the ocean bed between Guam and Midway, in the Pacific, is 31,614 ft. down. Thus, from the very top to the very bottom is 60,616 ft.

Trees' Limits.
The reason pine trees are so often associated with mountain scenery is because they are among the few trees that can grow at a very high altitude. Pine trees can grow at 6,200 feet, fir at 6,700 feet; but you will rarely find an ash above 4,800 feet, or an oak above 3,350 feet.

Happiness.
It is not a joy that's born of wealth; The poor man may possess it,
It is not alone the prize of health; No sickness can repress it,
It is not the end of mortal strife,
The sunset of the day of life,
Or but the old should find it:
It is the bond 'twixt God and man,
The touch divine in all we plan,
And has the soul behind it,
And so this toast to happiness
The seed of which we all possess.

UNION STOCK MARKETS TORONTO

Cattle receipts were light for the opening market of the week at the Union Stock Yards, but despite this fact prices displayed an easier tendency. The only steadiness in the cattle was in those taken for export while the greatest declines were in cows. Some grass cattle were shipped for yesterday's market, and the bulk of these were cows. Trade was slow in starting, but became active after 11 o'clock.

A fairly active demand was in evidence for the overseas markets but buying was not any heavier than a week ago. In addition to buying heavy steers the exporters took the pick of the handyweights. The store cattle trade continued dull, and most of the buying was by speculators. In small meats calves remained steady, while there was a further decline in the prices paid for lambs. Sheep sold steady, and there was no change in the market for hogs.

Butcher steers and heifers were about 25c a cwt. lower than a week ago, but export offerings sold at steady levels. Cows were down from 25 to 50c a cwt. when compared with the previous Monday, and off about 25c from the end of the week. The offering of cows was a heavy one, and a big portion was made up of grass cows.

Choice butchers sold from $7.00 to $7.50 with a few at $7.65. Medium to good killers changed hands from $6 to $7, with some common, mostly light Westerns bringing as low as $4. Some heifers were taken for export $7 to $7.85. A load of 24 averaging 915 pounds, were sold at $7.35 for Mr. Schmidt of Mildmay. A load of 19 averaging 973 pounds brought $7.45.

Prices paid for lambs were down about $1 a hundred. While the run was not unduly heavy, it was big enough to start values at a seasonal decline. Packers were only bidding $15 a hundred at the opening of the market, but most of the sales were made from $16 to $16.50 the best, with medium quality from $14 to $15.50. Culls brought from $10 to $13. Choice handyweights sold from $5 to $6 with one little bunch at $7. Heavies and culls sold from $3 to $4.

The veal trade was sticky at the start but sales were generally made at steady prices. Choice calves sold from $9 to $10, but there were none above $10. Medium to good calves sold from $7 to $8.50, with a lot of common from $4 to $4.50.

The run of hogs was light and prices remained unchanged on the basis of $8.25 fed and watered. Off car sales were made from $8.45 to $8.65.
